The new glass front just put in is one of the best in the city, and will give him an opportunity to display the furniture to much more advantage. John is imbued with the spirit of progress.

The entertainment given at the opera house by St. Mary's League last Friday evening was a delightful affair, and one which should be highly gratifying to the League both as a social and financial success. Pleasant games were enjoyed by many while the floor was filled with merry dancers. About 10:30 light refreshments were served, and many times the tables were filled before the large assembly had been served.

A very great majority of the people are heartily in accord with the views of the HERALD in the controversy regarding the county printing. We have given the facts as they exist, and a large number of people have had their eyes opened in regard to the peculiar methods of a certain individual. We are glad that we have had the opportunity of bringing this matter properly before the public and are more than repaid for our efforts by the many words of commendation we have received.

Mr. Bennett and family have a large number of friends here who will be glad to learn that they will once more become residents of Wayne. They will occupy the J. M. Cherry residence.

Mrs. Henry Ley entertained about thirty-five little folks last Monday evening in honor of LeRoy's eighth birthday. Wilson assisted in entertaining the little folks.

The work on the Trans-Mississippi Exposition goes on merrily, and it is expected that everything will be in readiness by June 1st, the date of the opening. In the meantime what do the citizens of Wayne propose doing? Is one of the best counties in the state to be left out in the cold, or shall it be properly represented? This is a matter which should receive attention at once.

At the meeting of the Knights of Pythias Tuesday evening the following officers were installed for the ensuing year: T. B. Heckert, C. C.; W. H. McNeal, V. C.; H. G. Maute, Prelate; D. H. Blanchard, M. of E.; S. Davies, M. of E. A. J. Tracy, K. of K. & S.; W. K. Heister M. of A.; W. H. Buetow, I. G. The Lodge expects to move to Masonic hall and hereafter the regular meeting nights will be the second Wednesday of each month.

Henceforth, regardless of what may be said derogatory and unjustly against us, The HERALD will give no heed to it, and we shall adopt the method we have pursued since our newspaper career began, of gleaming and publishing all of the news, devoting our attention to the upbuilding of the city and county, laboring vigorously for the principles of the republican party, and we shall put forth our best efforts along this line. With an apology to our readers for permitting The HERALD to be drawn into a personal controversy, with a thing in human form, the first time we ever have, we draw the curtain and propose to keep it drawn if it is within our power.

MAJESTIC COOKING EXHIBIT.

This is a very busy week at the new store of E. P. Olmsted & Co. The celebrated Majestic Steel Range is on exhibition there and they are feeding the crowds on hot biscuits and coffee, free of charge. R. L. Sore and wife, of St. Louis, who represent the Majestic Manufacturing Co. are here assisting Messrs Olmsted & Co. The Majestic Steel Range is certainly one of the best stoves on the market and for quick and perfect baking cannot be excelled. A tin of biscuits were baked yesterday afternoon in just two and one-half minutes with the oven door open. It is claimed these stoves are more economical in every way than any other make of cook stoves, and all who have used them here are highly pleased with them. Up to the time of going to press twelve stoves have been sold this week. The exhibition continues tomorrow and Saturday, and if you have not already called at the store we would advise you to do so.

R. P. Williams is a Winside visitor today. Farm Implements, the best kind on hand. Phillee & Son. A new pair of 1/2 soles at any time for 50c. The Raocket. Will Sears went to Madison on insurance business this morning.

James Harmon came down from Randolph yesterday on business. A cold wave accompanied by high wind arrived early this morning. A large line of new and nobby embroideries just opened. The Raocket. Attend the lecture on Africa at the Baptist church next Monday evening.

Just Opened—A large line peopls in all the new spring styles. The Raocket. What's the matter with the hog market? Evidently Hanna has taken a notion to raise the price. Mesdames Ellis and Fuller will entertain their lady friends at the home of the former tomorrow evening.

A large majority of the citizens have made up their mind as to Cunningham and further comment is unnecessary. Will Beebe came over from Stanton Saturday afternoon and visited a few days with his brother, Chas., of the HERALD.

There is a man in Wayne who says that he will give $100,000 towards a court house if five other people in the city will give a like amount. Miss Grace Ludecke entertained a number of her young friends last Saturday evening. The evening was very pleasantly spent in playing games.

The Wayne Club will move into the rooms vacated by the Knights of Pythias, in the Mellor building, which will give them large and commodious quarters. S. B. Seace shipped 157 head of sheep last Friday and was fortunate in striking a good market. S. B. knows a good thing when he sees it, and his sheep were all wool and a yard wide.

We are going out of business by March 1st. All overcoats, suits, hats, caps, boots and shoes will be closed out 25 per cent under former price commencing Feb. 1st. Wm. Soenneken. Attention Comrades: Casey Post No. 3, G. A. R., will in the future, hold their meetings first Monday of each month at 7:30 p. m., at court house hall, until further notice. A. W. Taylor, Com.

About the safest proposition we have heard of yet is the one in the Republican where it states that Nels Grimsley says he will give $1,000 towards a court house if nineteen others will give a like amount. The ladies of the Home Missionary society of the M. E. church did an act of kindness last week and one which will, no doubt, be greatly appreciated at the Mothers' Jewell's Home at York. On last Thursday, they sent to that institution 125 dozen cookies, about $19 worth of clothing and $6.35 in cash; $4 of the money being furnished by the Junior League.

At the recent G. A. R. encampment at Norfolk, which, by the way, was one of the most notable in the history of the Grand Army in the state, our esteemed fellow townsmen, J. D. King, was elected a delegate to attend the National Encampment at Cincinnati next September. His selection was a deserved one. J. D. wont forget Wayne when he attends that encampment.

The German masquerade ball held at the opera house Feb. 4th, was one of the most successful events of the kind yet held by the German society. The gallery was crowded with spectators and the floor with merry maskers, who tripped the light fantastic until late in the night. Mrs. F. Thielman was awarded the prize for having the best costume. The above was written for last week's HERALD, but was misplaced.

It has been rumored that we will open up in our new quarters in the Hughes' block with a mixed stock of sausage, shoes, patent medicine, harness, tinware, bacon and toys. This is incorrect, as we are not envious of our neighbors who happen to be prospering in their special lines of business. We intend in the future, as in the past, to handle boots and shoes exclusively, and always the best goods at the lowest prices. Maute's Shoe Store.

JERSEY MILK. I can supply any one with straight Jersey or mixed milk. Orders may be left at D. Sullivan's or at D. S. McVicker's. A. B. EVERHAM. OUR NEW SPRING STOCK is now coming in. Weatherholt of Hoskins, was here on business Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Brown visited with Winside relatives Sunday. If you have an item of news drop in to the office and tell us about it. A lecture worth 50 cents for 15 cents at Baptist church Monday evening. See those beautiful single Dress Patterns in our new spring stock, Ahern's.

The city of Wayne will be lighted by electricity ere mid-summer. Let the good work on. We sell our stock of wheels and sundries at auction at Watson's furniture store next Saturday. Phoenix Cycle Co. Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Newton went to Lincoln this morning to attend the golden wedding anniversary of an uncle. $1.35 will pay for the HERALD and the Chicago Weekly Inter Ocean for one year. Subscribe now and get all the news.

We understand that two or three business changes will be made in the near future, one of which will occur March 3rd. Ross Hammond says that "the man who is too busy to take a vacation is usually the first one to be given a permanent location in the cemetery."

Charley Walker, at one time foreman of the Republican, was a caller at this office Monday. He was fireman on the engine that started with the special train of stock from here to Chicago on that day. C. A. Watson will dispose of his stock of furniture at auction Saturday. Mr. Wheelock of Hartington, will cry the sale. The Phoenix Cycle Co. will sell their stock of wheels and sundries at the same time.

Whooping cough is the most distressing malady, but its duration can be cut short by the use of One Minute Cough Cure which is also the best known remedy for croup and all lung and bronchial troubles.—L. P. Orth. Rev. C. B. Antisdale, a man who has spent three years in Africa as a Missionary, will give a lecture on the customs, country and people of Africa at the Baptist church Monday evening, Feb. 21. Admission 15 cents; High School and College students 10 cents.

O. W. Edwards, one of the prominent young men of Sherman precinct, was in Wayne Saturday on his way to Columbus. From there he goes to Red Oak, Iowa, where he expects to remain for some time. Mr. Edwards has a host of friends who regret to see him leave Wayne county, but will wish him the best of success in whatever he may undertake. After years of untold suffering from piles, B. W. Pursell of Kintnersville, Pa, was cured by using a single box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Skin diseases such as eczema, rash, pimples and obstinate sores are readily cured by this famous remedy. L. P. Orth. Superintendent's Notice. I will be in the office Mondays and Saturdays. Examinations the third Saturday of each month and Friday preceding. CHARLOTTE M. WHITE, Supt. of Public Instruction.

Buy your New Carpet from the Roll. You can tell just how it will look when down. 50 New Rolls February 15. Harrington & Robbins.

ELECTRIC LIGHTS. Wayne is now in a fair way to secure electric lights. At the meeting of the city council on Monday evening the subject was pretty generally discussed—we understand, and it was finally decided that petitions should be circulated in the different wards to be presented to the council requesting that an election be called to vote bonds in the sum of $5,000 for the purpose of putting in an electric light system, and that the bonds will carry there is no question, for nearly everybody is in favor of electric lights. We have been informed by Mayor Ley, who, by the way is one of the best and most energetic Mayors Wayne ever had, that there will be money enough on hand this spring to pay off one of the $2,000 water bonds and that the taxes will be no higher than they are at the present time after the bonds are registered. The putting in of an additional new boiler of sixty horse power at the water works will greatly increase the efficiency of the system. The revenue derived from the electric light system will pay the deficiency that exists between the expense of running the water works and the revenue derived therefrom. This being true there remains but one thing to do and that is to vote for electric lights. In the first ward Ed Reynolds circulated a petition and obtained the required number of freeholders for the purpose of calling an election. The same was done by F. L. Neely in the second ward, and Dan Harrington in the third ward, and an election will be called. Get maple syrup at Brookings. For Single Dress Patterns—The Raocket. Clean your seed wheat, the Owens Mill will do it right. Phillee & Son. Money to Loan on choice town property, by W. M. Wright & Co. Services will be held at the Methodist church every night this week. On Saturday night it is expected that Dr. Ellinwood of Lincoln, will be present and preach. That dark brown taste and horrid breath you have in the morning is caused by an inactive liver. Some medicines relieve for a while, others for a few days, but Herbine cures. R. W. Wilkins & Co. Westpoint Progress: The promotion of Miss Amy Bruner of this place to the assistant principalship of the Wisner high school, is a source of much pleasure to her many friends here, and is proof that ability will be rewarded. After doing business in Wayne for fifteen years I will retire from business on March 1st. I have left a few men's overcoats for $2.50 and $3.00. Boys' overcoats for $1.50. Ladies jackets $1. Also one brand new sewing machine with drop head, at $23.00. One number 1 Upright piano, One family horse, and harness, One two-seated wagon, at a bargain. Wm. Soenneken. MARRIED. Jno. W. Jennings and Miss Nettie Souders were united in marriage at the home of W. L. Fisher, west of Wayne, on Monday evening, Feb. 14th, at 8:00 o'clock, Rev. C. A. Lemon of the Baptist church officiating. The HERALD extends congratulations. Card of Thanks. To the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and death of our darling Grace we desire to express our heartfelt thanks in this, our time of bereavement, and commend them to Him who doeth all things well. Mr. and Mrs. H. Claybaugh & Family: Our Carpet Room will be an attraction this spring for those needing a spring Carpet. Harrington & Robbins. The following special telegram from Colorado Springs, Colo., appeared in Tuesdays Omaha Bee:—"The jury in case of Shirley D. Chamberlain, charged with the murder of Herbert H. Kay of Wisner, Neb., on Elke's Peak in August last, tonight brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree. The case is the most sensational one in the history of El Paso county and has attracted widespread interest, owing to the place where the deed was committed. Kay had started to ascend the peak by night and his dead body was found forced into a small culvert under the oog railroad, at a point about 12,000 feet above sea level. The evidence against Chamberlain was circumstantial, but conclusive, and the jury was out about an hour."

WOOL AND MARRIED

BY CHARLOTTE M. BRAEME

CHAPTER VI.

A week had passed since Lady Caraven reached Paris—a strange week. She had seen but little of her husband. He never took breakfast with her; they met at dinner, and twice he had taken her to the opera. He never interfered in the least with any of her affairs. He sent up her letters unopened, and never even inquired from whom they came. He sent every morning to ask if she had any particular wish for the day—if there was any place she desired to see. At first she said, "Yes," and went to the different places of note. He accompanied her, but she could not avoid thinking that he was slightly bored by these excursions. The next time he sent she declined, and he did not remonstrate; he made no remark, and she felt almost sure that he was relieved by her refusal. When they went to the opera, they were never alone—he always secured some companion. It seemed to Hildred that he was quite as much a stranger as on the first day he entered the Hollies.

"Shall I ever be part of his life?" she thought. "Shall I grow to be heart of his heart, soul of his soul? Shall I ever know what he thinks, what he likes, what he loves?"

One evening he was rather startled by Hildred. There was a favorite singer at the opera, and they went to hear her. She was very fair, and the gentlemen were busily engaged in discussing her. With Lord and Lady Caraven was a Frenchman, the Comte de Quincey, a great admirer of the women. The conversation kept in a friendly way, and the gentlemen were always the charming actors.

"She is of the real English type," said the comte, "and the English ladies are so fair—they are adorable!"

"I think myself," remarked the earl, "that a fair-haired English girl is certainly the loveliest object of creation."

The comte laughed.

"You prefer the blondes to the brunettes, then?" he said.

"Certainly," said Lord Caraven. "I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair."

He had entirely forgotten his young girl-wife with the dark eyes and the Spanish face. He would not have wantonly pained her, but he had forgotten her presence. She heard the words. At the time she made no remark, although they burned into her heart like fire.

"I want you to tell me one thing," she said later. "I am a fair girl, with golden hair, why did you marry me, with hair and eyes so dark?"

She asked the question in such perfect good faith, in such a naive way, with such a soft, sweet smile, that he was touched, not despite, but as he would have been had some child come to him with trembling lips to tell a painful tale.

"You know why I married you," he replied, gravely—"why ask me the question?"

He saw a bright color spread over her face, a rich light shone in her eyes. The simple girl thought and believed he meant that she knew he had married her because he loved her. His heart gave a great glad bound. He loved her! She would understand better in time; she would know why he seemed reserved, reticent, cold and indifferent.

"I will try to remember," she said, gently.

Dull as was his ear, he heard new music in her voice.

"You will remember what?" he asked.

"I will remember why you have married me," she replied, and as she went away he wondered greatly.

"I should not think that she is likely to forget," he said to himself. "Certainly, why I married her, she will try to remember. Why I married her, and the words seemed like nothing music on her lips, a light that was like sunshine on flowers spread over her face. Why I married her because her father sold her for a title, and she was willing to be sold!"

Three weeks had passed away, and Lord Caraven began to wonder how much longer he was to remain in Paris. If he had been free to follow his own inclinations, they would have led him to the gaming tables at Baden Baden. But as he had no money, he had no idea of going there with a whole train of people to look after.

once more in use. Hildred was slightly overwheeled by the magnificence of everything around. How little she dreamed that her fortune had preserved the grand old place from utter ruin—that but for her the massive walls, the beautiful pictures, even the old wainscots, would have passed from the Caravens, and the family name would have been written in dust? Perhaps some such thought occurred to him as he looked at the sweet face before him; perhaps that thought made him feel a little more kindly toward Hildred.

He talked to her, and showed her the various art treasures, the costly pictures, the statues, the ancient armor. She was pleased and bright and interested in all he said. He showed her the library, where the accumulated treasures of so many scholars lay. When she had seen and admired all, he said to her: "If all these were on the verge of destruction, and one woman offered to save it, what would you do?" "I should call her the good angel of the house," she replied, "and having the least idea that he was referring to her."

"That shall be my name for you," he said. "You shall be the good angel of the house."

CHAPTER VII.

A beautiful evening in October. It was as though some of the warmth and sweetness of summer had returned for a while. The sky was blue, the colors of the sunset were gorgeous; the foliage of the trees was magnificent, autumn flowers were blooming, autumn birds were over the land. The day had been unusually warm and sunny. Lord Caraven had invited some friends to dinner, as they lived at some little distance, and they could not remain for the night, dinner was ordered earlier than usual. It was only twilight when the guests drove away, and Lord Caraven, having no one to play billiards with him, sat himself down to read a book, but he had been not to provide himself with a companion for the most interesting part of his reading.

"I did not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

"I do not see how a woman can be beautiful unless she be fair," he said.

kindness, but I believed implicitly that you married me for love."

"I had never seen you—I saw you only once," he said in astonishment.

"I know, I remember. Still, I repeat what I have said to you; I—fancied—I am quite ashamed to tell you the truth, but I will do so—I fancied that you had seen me somewhere and had liked me."

He laughed, but the laugh was not pleasant to hear.

"Did you really think that?" he asked musingly. "Poor child!" Then he turned to her with sudden briskness. "Do you really mean to tell me, on your word of honor, that you do not know why I married you?"

"She raised her fair, proud face to his. 'I assume you most solemnly that I do not. It is the greatest puzzle I have ever had.'"

"Did your father tell you that I—I loved you?"

"No," she replied, thoughtfully. "He did not. Indeed, he assured me that love was not necessary for happiness. He never said you loved me. He said you wanted to marry me."

"What was that?" she asked.

"That it was a grand position, in which I should be supremely happy."

"What else?" she asked sternly.

"I hardly remember. That if I consented his highest ambition would be gratified."

Lord Caraven murmured some terrible words between his closed lips.

"Then he never told you why this marriage was forced upon me?"

"I do not know," she repeated, gently.

Perhaps the sudden pang of her lover's face startled him, or the sharp quiver of pain in her voice touched him.

"He said your father never told you that he insisted on the marriage?"

"No, never," she replied, faintly.

"He never told you that he made it my only refuge from him—my only hope—my only alternative?"

"No, he never told me that."

"Then I will tell you now. I am compelled to marry you—and I begin to perceive that he has sacrificed you as well as myself."

"Sacrificed us?" she repeated. "You cannot mean the word."

"I do mean it, both for myself and you," he replied. "I will tell you, Lady Caraven, it is right that you should know the truth. I have been a spendthrift and a prodigal. I have squandered a large fortune, and was deeply in debt. I owed your father the sum of sixty thousand pounds—I had mortgaged Ravensmere to him. I was also deeply in debt to others. I had literally come to my last shilling; disgrace, ruin, poverty and shame were all before me. Your father had the management of my affairs, and when I asked him what I was to do, he told me that he had two hundred thousand pounds and a daughter."

1732. GEORGE WASHINGTON. 1799.

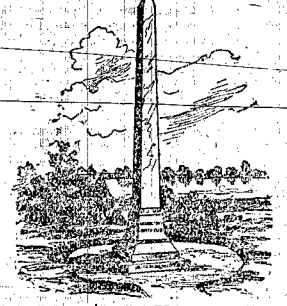

George Washington, the first President of the United States, was born on Bridge Creek, Westmoreland County, Va., Feb. 22, 1732, and died at Mount Vernon, Dec. 14, 1799.

WHERE WASHINGTON WAS BORN.

Monument Marks the Birthplace of the Father of Our Country.

A monument in honor of George Washington now marks the place of his birth. In 1835 Congress appropriated $11,000 in furtherance of the project, but not until July 4 of the following year did the unveiling take place.

The monument stands fifty-one feet above the cement foundation, the monolith shaft rising 40 feet 4 inches above the base. The shaft springs from a foundation fourteen feet square and eight feet high. Dressed down the shaft weighs about thirty-six tons. Above this rises the stone of the first base, twelve feet square and one foot eight inches high. On this rests the second base, nine feet three inches square and three feet high. Above this is the die upon which the inscription is cut, and this is six feet six inches square and four feet ten inches high. The plinth just above it is four feet five inches square and one foot two inches high. The shaft that springs from this is three feet eight inches square and rises forty feet four inches above the plinth. The marble for this notable landmark was quarried at Barre, Vt.

Washington's birthplace is near Wakefield, forty-two miles from Fredericksburg, Va., and no one can imagine the dreary isolation of the place. The site of the house in which Washington was born, which was determined before the erection of the monument only by a scattering pile of broken bricks and mortar from the chimney, is about one mile and a half from the Potomac at a point where that river is about seven miles wide and about six or seven hundred feet from Pope's creek, formerly Bridge's creek. The Government has built a wharf 1,050 feet long out to the Potomac, and when the grounds are beautified it is intended that the river steamers shall stop here.

The nearest point now to be reached is Colonial Beach, some ten or twelve miles distant, from which point one has the choice only of driving or sailing to the spot.

Where Washington Took the Oath.

An interesting relic of the early days of the republic was discovered by workmen remodeling the old Senate chamber in the Court of Common Pleas building, adjoining Independence Hall. In the course of the work the court platform was discovered, and underneath it was found a

THE EXPERIMENT FAILED.

No man admires the memory of George Washington more than Chauncey M. Depew, and the only defect Mr. Depew ever saw in the character of the greatest American he related at a dinner in honor of the celebration of the battle of Brimston; Washington's quiet dignity and sternness of character prevented not only himself but his companions from enjoying the hilarity necessary to a good dinner.

"The grandfather of Gen. Cochrane was surgeon-general of the staff, and he used to tell this story of the attempt of the younger members to break through this reserve and bring the commander-in-chief into sympathy with both the serious and hilarious incidents that happened. The novel method of producing this result was that the best raconteur should tell the story which had found the greatest success, and then that Gov. Morris, the most brilliant, audacious and best loved of the officers, should slay the general on the back and say, 'Old gentleman, how do you like that?'"

Washington was first astonished, then a pained expression came over his face and he slowly rose and with great dignity retired from the room. This was the last experiment they made upon Gen. Washington."

MRS. WASHINGTON'S BEDTIME.

A Homelike Picture Described in Mrs. Wharton's "Martha Washington."

Mrs. JAMES GIBSON, who frequently visited Mrs. Washington when, as the President's wife, she resided in Philadelphia, then the capital of the United States, gives a homelike picture of that lady and her favorite granddaughter. Mrs. Gibson's language is quoted by Miss Wharton in her "Martha Washington."

"Mrs. Washington was in the habit of retiring at an early hour to her own room, unless detained by company, and there, no matter what the hour, Nellie (Miss Curtis) attended her."

"One evening my father's carriage being late in coming for me, my dear young friend invited me to accompany her to grandmother's room. There, after some little chat, Mrs. Washington apologized to me for pursuing her usual preparations for the night, and Nellie entered upon her accustomed duty by reading a chapter and a psalm from the old family Bible, after which all present knelt in evening prayer."

"Mrs. Washington's faithful maid then assisted her to disrobe and lay her head upon the pillow. Nellie then sang a verse of some sweetly soothing hymn, and then, leaning down, received the parting blessing for the night, with some emphatic remarks on her duties, improvements, etc. The effect of these judicious habits and teachings appeared in the granddaughter's character through life."

When Washington Was Young.

WASHINGTON'S POLITENESS.

A Very Pleasant Anecdote of the Great American Gentleman.

In the Century there is an article by Martha Littlefield Phillips, giving "Recollections of Washington—and His Friends." The author is a granddaughter of the youngest daughter of Gen. Nathaniel Greene's, and she tells the following story in the words of her grandmother, concerning a visit of the latter to Washington at Philadelphia:

"One incident which occurred during that visit was so common in itself, and so characteristic of Washington, that I recall it for your entertainment. Early in a bright December morning a droll-looking old countryman called to see the President. In the midst of their interview breakfast was announced; and the President invited his visitor, as was his hospitable wont on such occasions, to a seat beside him at the table. The visitor drank his coffee from his saucer, but with a grievous look at the snowy damask, he scraped the bottom of his cup on the saucer's edge before setting it down on the tablecloth. He did it with such audible vigor that it attracted my attention, and that of several young people present, always on the alert for occasions of laughter. We were so indiscreet as to allow our amusement to become obvious. Gen. Washington took in the situation, and immediately adopted his visitor's method of drinking his coffee, making the scrape even more pronounced than the one he reproduced. Our disposition to laugh was quenched at once."

WASHINGTON'S ANCESTORS.

Old English Building Dates from the Seventeenth Century.

Washington Hall, in Durham County, England, which was lately sold under the hammer, with the adjoining grounds, for $2,025, was the early home of the ancestors of George Washington. The building dates from the early part of the seventeenth century, and it was erected by William James, Bishop of Durham.

It is of stone, having mullioned windows and boldly projecting porches. A large outstanding chimney is at one end of the house. The building is now fast falling into ruin. The Washington family occupied the old manor for five centuries before the hall was built.

William de Wessington's name appears as witness to the charters of the Bishop of Durham between 1260 and 1274, and Washington Irving has traced to the Wessingtons of Durham George Washington's ancestry.

Bobby's Reason.

I know that Washington was true. And good, and best of the British too. And never once lost hope—that is, When things went wrong he just kept cool. But what I like him for is this— "Gains on his birthday there's no school." —Household.

A thrill of terror is experienced when a brassy cough of croup sounds through the house at night. But the terror soon changes to relief after One Minute Cough Cure has been administered. It is safe and harmless for children. Orth. Journal: If people want to buy and use flour made of both wheat and corn why should they not be permitted to do so? Whose business is it but the man's who pays his money and takes his choice? Certainly flour made of wheat is wholesome. Certainly flour made of corn is wholesome. How the diabolical can it be that a mixture of both kinds of flour is deleterious to the public health?

It is singular that farm poultry, which finds a place on nearly every one of the 5,000,000 farms in the country, should, until now, have had no representative paper, poultry journals being, almost without exception, published in the interest of the fancier and exhibitor. The Poultry Farmer, however, which has recently been established at Des Moines, Ia., has changed this, and in it farm poultry, grown to pay grocery and dry goods bills, finds a practical and truly representative paper. It should be read on every farm where a chick "peeps" and a hen scratches for it. It is just what the farmers and farmers' wives and daughters who keep chickens and sell the eggs and meat they produce, have long needed, for it is made expressly to meet their wants. It is only 50 cents a year. The February number is just out, and every reader of this paper can get a free sample copy by addressing the Poultry Farmer, 37, De Moines, Iowa.

Homestead: Many thousand young people go out into the world from farm homes every year, carrying with them the "blood and iron"—the push and energy—which give the world's progress its continually renewed motive power. While we are constantly discussing methods by which young men can be kept on the farm, the fact that the outflow towards the cities and towns exists and will continue to exist must be recognized. It is a condition and not a theory that confronts. The best protection which can attend a young man or a young woman leaving the farm and seeking the more dangerous surroundings of city life, will consist of the memories and influences of a genuinely homelike farm home. If this has been what it should be, it will continue to be a guardian influence long after it has been left behind; if not, or if the recollections are unpleasant, there will be a conscious or unconscious effort to forget it, and with it will go the influence of such good as there may have been in home teachings. It is important, therefore, that the farm home be made attractive to the young people in it.

TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION.

Met at the court house about 10:00 A. M. last Saturday, it being called to order by Miss C. M. White, acting as temporary president. The meeting proceeded to the election of officers, it being the first meeting held this year. The election resulted as follows: president, Miss C. M. White; vice-president, Mr. George Husted; secretary, Nellie Miller. The attendance was good and after an opening address by the president the program was taken up. First Prof. J. M. Pile gave a very interesting and profitable talk on "Why we teach mental arithmetic," followed by Miss Jennie Mettlen. Who gave many reasons "Why we do not teach it." "Augsburg Drawing" methods by W. E. Howard. "Objects" by Nellie Miller. The meeting adjourned until 1:30 P. M. After dinner the meeting was called to order by the vice president. Mr. U. S. Coan then explained to the teachers what work would be best to send to the Omaha Exposition. Miss Anna Weaver came next on the program who gave us her plan for "Map Drawing" and a fire map for the teacher to examine. Mr. Elmer Lundburg closed the program with many new and good plans for arousing an interest in the study of geography. In the afternoon there were over 60 teachers present and several patrons. The patrons are always welcome and should attend whenever the opportunity affords. Miss White was highly pleased with the meeting and left it to a vote of the teachers when we should meet again. A motion was made and carried to meet again the second Saturday in March. The meeting adjourned and all went away feeling well paid for the day spent.

When a business floor to the point where he cannot sleep at night, where he is so shattered of nerve that it is torture to even remain in his bed, and he has to get up and pace the floor at a time for that man to bring himself up with a round turn. If he does not, it means nervous prostration and mental, if not physical, death.

For a man who gets into this condition there is a remedy that will brace him up, put him on his feet and make a man of him again. It is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It goes to the bottom of things. It searches out the first cause. When a man is in this condition you can put your finger on one of two spots and make the first cause—the stomach or the liver or both. This great medicine acts directly on these spots. It promptly transforms a weak stomach into a healthy one. It facilitates the flow of digestive juices and makes digestion and assimilation perfect. It gives a man an appetite like a boy's. It invigorates the liver. It fills the blood with the life-giving elements of the food, and makes it pure, rich, red and plentiful. The blood is the life of the man when it is filled with the elements that build new and healthy tissues, it does not take long to make a man well and strong. It builds firm, muscular flesh, sinews and strong and steady nerve fibers. It puts new life, vigor and vitality into every atom and organ of the body. It cures nervous exhaustion and prostration. Nothing "just as good" can be found at medicine stores.

And indeed about eleven years with a pain in the back of my head and back," writes Mr. Robert Hubbard of Varner, Lincoln Co., Ark. "I suffered for eleven years and spent a great deal of money for doctors and medicine, but did not get better. Then I tried four bottles of the Golden Medical Discovery and I was cured. I sent for five more and now am glad to tell everyone that I am in good health."

Scrofula

Is a deep-seated blood disease which all the mineral mixtures in the world cannot cure. S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) is a real blood remedy for blood diseases which have no equal.

Mrs. V. T. Beck of Delancy, Ark., had Scrofula for twenty-five years, and most of the time was under the care of the doctors who could not relieve her. A specialist said he could cure her, but he filled her with arsenic and potash which almost ruined her constitution. She then took nearly every so-called blood medicine and drank them by the wholesale, but they did not reach her trouble. Some one advised her to try S.S.S. and she very soon found that she had a real blood remedy at last. She says: "After taking one dozen bottles of S.S.S. I am perfectly well, my skin is clear and healthy and I would not be in my former condition for two thousand dollars. Instead of drying up the poison in my system, like the potash and arsenic, S.S.S. drove the disease out through the skin, and I was permanently rid of it."

A Real Blood Remedy.

S.S.S. never fails to cure Scrofula, Eczema, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, or any disorder of the blood. Do not rely upon a simple tonic to cure a deep-seated blood disease, but take a real blood remedy.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

Lincoln's birthday, February 12, was pretty generally observed throughout the country, and especially in the larger cities.

Minister De Lome was able to hypnotize Cleveland, but he was too small for McKinley, and he will now take a ride over the ocean.

Spain has done many things which almost amount to an insult, but the time may come when Uncle Sam's patience will tire.

The Hornet is the name of a new paper established at Wisner, but whether its sting will be of any consequence to the Chronicle or not, time will tell.

Even the leading papers of London have been forced to admit that President McKinley is a very strong man, and that he is President of the United States not only in name, but in fact.

Spain will now have two of her heroes gentlemen of leisure and out of a job. De Lome and Weyler will be great comforts to each other. Both ran up against the President of the United States and both got hurt.—Inter Ocean.

There must be a literal application of the principle of "letting the office seek the man" in the coming campaign, if the Republican party expects to win, either in county or state. Politicians and office-seekers will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly.—Allen News.

Illinois republicans are organizing already for the campaign in that state, which will begin early and last late, but with Mayor Harrison and Jno. P. Altgeld struggling for the control of the state organization, there can be but one result, a sweeping victory for the republicans.

The republicans of Wayne county have a duty to perform if success is to attend the party. New blood must be put at the head, the desire to shut out party workers must be nipped in the bud, and further dictatorship suppressed. If this is done the party will march on to victory.

The so-called free silver republican element throughout the state is without a rudder, and with no prospects ahead, and it is more than likely will drop back into former party affiliations which means that with upright and honorable men nominated the republicans will carry the state.

Minister De Lome, representing the Spanish government at Washington, forwarded his resignation to Madrid, having written a letter of an insulting nature in regard to President McKinley, which was presented to De Lome who admitted writing it. His resignation was accepted, but Spain has to deal with Uncle Sam in the matter yet.

It must be admitted that when Senator Thurston speaks on any political question, his views are his honest convictions. He has announced himself not a candidate for re-election and therefore there is no reason for his making any grand stand plays for political policy. His position guarantees him perfect immunity from criticism of his motives.—Fremont Tribune.

The newspaper boys are busily engaged trotting out their respective town's "favorite son" for congressional and gubernatorial honors. Of those already mentioned we find Judge Norris of Wayne, J. J. McCarthy of Ponca, H. P. Shumway of Wakefield, Jno. T. Bressler of Wayne, and Wm. Peebles of Pender; all for congress. Wm. Peebles is also mentioned for governor. The pot will have some time to simmer, and whoever may be the nominee, may be an honorable and able man, and a thorough republican for either office.—Hartington Herald.

THE DE LOME LETTER AND CUBA.

Dupuy de Lome, Spanish Minister at Washington, has officially admitted that he wrote the published letter to Senor Canalejas. Coupled with this admission was his resignation, which his home government promptly accepted. This was adding insult to injury. The letter was a personal insult to President McKinley; the acceptance of the resignation of the slanderer was an insult to the head of the United States government in his official character—was a condoning of the offense, a recognition of the offender's claim to the support of the Spanish government. Unless apology be offered the quarrel ceases to be that of De Lome and President McKinley and becomes that of Spain and the United States.

The De Lome letter is really more offensive than abusive of President McKinley than anything which was published during the campaign of 1896. De Lome put himself on a lower level than the bottom strata of American politics. The most extreme democratic partisan has never accused William McKinley of coarseness, or of weakly catering to the rabble, nor yet of being a low politician. It seems almost incredible that a man like Dupuy De Lome should be guilty of such blackguard vulgarity. If he had filed a denial, or allowed one to be filed, in his behalf, it would have been accepted. But no, he seems to glory in his shame. He may have written it for the very purpose of being published clandestinely.

He belongs to the Conservative party, the party of Weyler. It is medieval in all its ideas of public affairs, national and international. It belongs to the age of the inquisition, not the printing press. But a careful reading of the letter would indicate a deliberate Cuban policy, and not merely a vicious thrust at President McKinley.

It is a part of the current creed of the Spanish Conservative party that if Spain has to give up Cuba it should be wrenched away at the point of the bayonet. That general notion may be the key to the De Lome letter and explains its being allowed to get into print. If this be true the cloak of decency was thrown aside in hope of provoking a spasm of indignation that would unkenel the dogs of war.

The time of publication favors this suspicion. The letter came out the very day Senators Mason and Cannon made their speeches. It fits in well with the systematic policy of deception and falsehood adopted by Spain at the outbreak of the Cuban war, and steadily adhered to ever since. The cloak of decency, always too thin to hide the insolent hate beneath its fold, was perhaps thrown aside, not accidentally dropped.

The reference to commercial relations is really the most significant clause in the letter. After some general remarks about the English phase of the Cuban question, De Lome adds:

It would be most important that you should agitate the question of commercial relations, even though it would be only for effect, and that you should send here a man of importance in order that I might use him to make a propaganda among Senators and others in opposition to the Junta, and to win over the exiles.

There are a few Utlanders in this country who are more anti-American than the Spaniards themselves. They seem to be in constant dread of some sort of disturbance to "commercial relations." They are mostly Democrats and magwumps, but Senator Hale of Maine is of the number. He is the most offensively conspicuous of them all. The hot impatience of so-called jingoes like Senators Mason and Cannon finds its explanation in the prevalence of the kind of commercialism which De Lome wanted help in promoting.

From the standpoint of Cuban affairs there are three classes of Americans. Between the two extremes, fairly represented by Senator Mason on one side and Senator Hale on the other, is found the great body of the American people. They have unshaken faith in the far-reaching statesmanship and warm philanthropy of the President. They trust his judgment. This De Lome letter may relieve the administration from embarrassments woven by extremists on both sides.

Spain is truculent. She is playing the part of a government that cares not for consequences. She is drifting willingly into a course that is likely at any moment to bring war upon us. Every true American should consider this and resolve to sustain the President in the trying days now at hand. He who palters over partisan differences at such a time is unworthy of his citizenship. Sustain the President.—Inter Ocean.

The truth will not hurt this country. Let it be proclaimed from the housetops. It is the infernal and never ending pop misrepresentations and slanders that will hurt the country if anything does. There is no reason why republicans should be called upon all the time to defend this part of Nebraska from the falsehoods and slanders of populists, but they are compelled to do so or let the impression go out that all our farmers are as improvident and foolish as a few of the most wasteful have been, and that the country will not produce enough to support the inhabitants.

There is no section in the United States where men have prospered and have grown rich as they have in this part of Nebraska, and the man who whines about this country or about present conditions here has some ulterior object in whining or is not up to the average in management and industry. There are poor men here, men who have laid around expecting to get rich out of the labors of others, men who have tried by tricks and schemes to make a living; and right here we might as well say that tricks and schemes do not work with the intelligent population of this country and the man who tries them is doomed to get knocks that will surely make him sore. Then there are men here whom adverse and cruel fortune has followed with continued missteps and disappointments. Those are not flourishing even in this country. But where do such people flourish? Do you want to live in a country where the lazy, the dishonest, and the ill-starred are more prosperous than the diligent, the honest and the intelligent?—York Times.

FEEDING CATTLE ON GRASS.

(John Cowan in Homestead.)
"I want to ask you a few questions in regard to feeding cattle in the summer on grass. When would you begin feeding them to be ready for market not later than December 1, 1898? Would you advise soaking corn, and when on grass would you feed once or twice a day? If once, would you feed morning or night?"

If cattle are to be fattened on grass and marketed not later than December 1, 1898, there is no time to lose in beginning the work. Feeding should by all means begin as soon as possible, not necessarily by confining in a yard, but, in addition to the range of the stalk fields, straw, hay or corn fodder that may now be the ration, corn must be added. Begin with a small amount at first, three or four ears daily, and gradually increase the quantity for three or four weeks until, with two-year-old steers, a peck is fed, younger cattle not requiring as much. Continue feeding until the grass has obtained a good start, furnishing at all times an ample supply of fodder, and gradually accustom the cattle to the change from dry food to grass by allowing them on pasture in the afternoon when the grass is dry, not to exceed an hour at first. Increase the time each day for say, ten days, in the meantime furnishing an ample supply of palatable and nutritious fodder while the cattle are in the yard, with salt and water within reach.

After the cattle are a short time on grass their mouths will become tender and dry ear corn will not be relished as formerly. It will then be advisable to shell and soak the corn, but not longer than twenty-four hours in the early summer, and in very hot weather not to exceed twelve hours.

In regard to time of feeding I have very decided opinions, the result of a large number of tests, feeding and weighing the cattle myself.

I would only feed grain once a day when grass is abundant and good, and invariably at night, allowing the cattle to go to pasture as early as possible in the morning. A peck of corn fed in this manner will give as good results as twice the amount fed during the winter, but if for any reason the pasture is not good I would feed twice a day. In the autumn of the year I would feed twice a day, and as soon as new corn is fit to feed it should be substituted for the old corn. Begin feeding the new corn in September, first by cutting and latter by snapping in October, and excellent gains and a good finish can be secured by the 1st of December. For economy in feeding the method here outlined cannot be excelled, but a beginning must be made in February to secure the best results. Ten months is none too long to feed cattle that are either thin or in fair flesh at the commencement, and far better results will be attained by feeding the same amount of corn in ten months than would be secured if it were all fed in six months.

We are anxious to do a little good in this world and can think of no pleasanter way to do it than by recommending One Minute Cough Cure as a preventative of pneumonia, consumption and other serious lung troubles that follow neglected colds.—L. P. Orth.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate, or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney remedy, cures the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE WAYNE HERALD and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

Sympathetic Husbands.

The sympathetic tenderness of a loving husband for everything to an expectant mother, especially during her first ordeal, George Layton, Esq., a prominent druggist of Dayton, O., gives the following case:

A customer of mine, whose wife has used four bottles of "Mother's Friend" before confinement, says, after seeing the effects of the remedy, that if she had to go through the ordeal again, and there were but four bottles on the market, and the cost was $100 per bottle, she would have them.

"Mother's Friend" is a scientifically compounded liniment which affords certain relief in the various ailments preceding childbirth, and assures proper elasticity to the cords and muscles involved in the final ordeal.

"Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists, or expressed on receipt of one dollar.

Valuable book, "Before Baby is Born," mailed free on application.

Children and adults tortured by injuries, burns, scalds, eczema or skin diseases may secure instant relief by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It is the great Pile remedy. L. P. Orth.

There are three little things which do more work than any other three little things created—they are the ant, the bee and DeWitt's Little Early Risers—the last being the famous little pills for stomach and liver troubles. Orth.

It is not what a manufacturer says about his own medicine that cures a patient, but what the medicine does. Ballard's Horehound Syrup does the work and does it well. It cures coughs and colds in a day. It is healing, quieting and soothing. 25¢ and 50¢. Wilkins & Co.

There is no pain and discomfort when Tabler's Buckeye Pile Ointment is used. It relieves that itching increased by scratching. It is prepared with scientific accuracy and professional knowledge, and is the kind that cures blind, bleeding, itching and protruding piles with no pain or loss of time. Wilkins.

The teachers meeting which was held last Saturday, was enjoyed very much by all who attended. Much good comes from these meetings, especially to those who are teaching and take part in the program.

The Debating society met Tuesday evening to discuss the question, Resolved, That Lincoln's name is more cherished by the American people than Washington's. A very able argument was produced on each side, and the victory was given to the affirmative.

Arrangements are being made to give a mock trial on the evening that the debating society meets, in place of the regular program. We do not know just who the party is, who is to be arraigned before the chief Magistrate of the law, but presume there will be no lack of obfuscation. If there any more drafts forged in the Actual Business class, we presume the case will originate in that class.

DIED.

It is with sadness we write the lines recording the death of little Grace Mildred Claybaugh, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Claybaugh, occurred at 5:40 Sabbath evening, Feb. 13th, of tuberculous meningitis.

Since Dec. 22, 1897, she had been a patient little sufferer, but was not seriously ill until the past two weeks when the disease developed in an alarming manner, and on Thursday it became evident that she could not recover but she did not complain, and on Saturday said to her sister "I can only stay one day longer." A short life on earth but an eternity of joy and happiness in Heaven, and with a sister that has gone before, she is "safe in the arms of Jesus."

She was born in Montgomery Co., Ia. Sept. 1st, 1890, and being the youngest of nine children, was the pet of the home. Sweet in disposition, she had the added charm of an intellectual face and a bright mind, a pretty child that won the heart of all who knew her. The fairest jewels in heaven are the flowers of youth plucked from the garden of the world before Time withers their sweetness with his heavy hand, and Grace has gone but to beckon the way to those who so tenderly loved her on earth. While we weep with those who mourn the loss of this sweet blossom let us not forget that our Heavenly father knoweth best and while we shall miss her sadly here, let us rejoice in the hope of meeting her on the other shore.

The community, the nearer friends of the grieved ones, all shed tears of grief beside the little grave, and seek by human sympathy to make lighter the burden that rests on the fond parents, sisters and brothers. Grace is gone, but the memory of her life sheds a sweet incense that makes the world better for her having lived. The Valley of the Shadow of Death is illumined by her countenance for the Peace of a better world has kissed her brow and bade her rest, free from the cares and worries of this mortal world. She leaves a loving father, mother, four brothers and three sisters to mourn her loss, all of whom was present excepting Mac. Funeral were held at the Presbyterian church Tuesday, Feb. 15th, at 1 p. m., conducted by Rev. Montgomery.

CITY COUNCIL.

A resolution from the department, thanking the mayor and council for passing ordinance allowing compensation for fire boys when on duty, was read.

A petition for sidewalk along west side of blocks 2 and 3, east addition, was read and referred to street and alley committee.

A TERRIBLE DISASTER.

About 10:00 o'clock Tuesday night the United States Cruiser, Maine, situated in the harbor at Havana, Cuba, was blown up; the explosion breaking glass in every house in Havana. Two hundred and fifty-eight sailors were killed and many more wounded. It was one of the worst disasters that ever befell a United States battle-ship. The men below the deck had no chance of escape, and only the officers, many of whom were dining on another vessel, were saved. The cause of the fearful explosion remains a mystery. However, had the Cuban war been ended, such a catastrophe could not have occurred.

It is not often that a physician recommends a patent medicine, when he does, you may know that it is a good one. Dr. J. P.
