MEMORIAL DAY.

The memories of the dead soldiers of the civil war were honored Sunday in the patriotic services held at the opera house, where Rev. D. C. Montgomery preached the Memorial sermon. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers and national colors, and the G. A. R. occupied front seats. The music was furnished by a choir composed of members of the different church choirs. Rev. Montgomery preached an excellent sermon paying a glowing tribute to the heroes who gave up their lives to save the nation. He also referred to the present war with Spain and spoke in a feeling manner of the boys who have enlisted to fight for the cause of humanity.

ADDRESS BY CAPT. W. C. HENRY

The Parade was One of the Finest Ever Witnessed on a Like Occasion in Wayne and the Crowd One of the Largest.

Decoration day was celebrated in Wayne with an impressiveness which carried a new lesson to the younger generation and kindled anew the feelings of patriotism in the breasts of the veterans. Many memorial days have been given special prominence in the past, but owing to the present war with Spain none in the list of all those dedicated to the memory of the defenders of the Union will rank higher in significance to the American people than the one just celebrated. The flag of our country means more today than it ever meant before. It represents a strong nation of re-united, liberty-loving people.

The day was a beautiful one, just the kind to tempt the farmers to remain in their fields, yet they came to town in large numbers to pay tribute to the nation's dead. The crowd was one of the largest and most patriotic ever seen in Wayne on an occasion of this kind. Early in the morning the business houses and many residences were decorated with flags and bunting and the hearts of the old soldier boys were gladdened by the enthusiasm of the crowd and the beautiful appearance of the city.

At 1:30 in the afternoon the procession formed on Main street, headed by the Wayne band, which was followed by the firing squad composed of eight young men, commanded by H. L. Kimball, a company of young ladies under the command of Mr. Ferguson, the boys brigade, members of the G. A. R., the different civic societies and citizens in carriages and on foot. The procession was one of the prettiest sights ever witnessed in Wayne and under the able direction of Marshal Stringer and assistants, marched to the cemetery where the ritualistic services of the G. A. R. were performed. Capt. Ferguson and his company of young ladies first decorated the old soldiers' graves with flowers, then all gathered around the grave of comrade Mettlen where the remainder of the services were conducted in an impressive manner under the direction of Commander A. W. Taylor. The procession then returned and marched to the opera house where the services of the day were concluded.

Capt. W. C. Henry of Fairmont, had been secured to deliver the address, and the large audience was more than pleased with his eloquent and patriotic utterances. Some excellent music was furnished by the choir, and Miss Klintworth sang a very appropriate solo entitled, "The Boys who Wore the Blue are Turning Gray."

THE JOHN ROBINSON SHOW.

One of the largest crowds that has been in Wayne for many a day, was in the city yesterday to attend the John Robinson show. They came from every direction, the first delegations arriving on the early morning trains, and by ten o'clock Main street was a mass of living humanity. The parade at 10:30 was a very creditable one, and it was the opinion of many who attended the entertainment in the afternoon that with the exception of Ringlings, it was the best show that has visited Wayne. The feats of strength of Cyr were wonderful, and in fact, about all that was advertised was to be seen. There were no "fakers" or "graffers" to be seen with the show, and not a complaint has been heard to our knowledge. In fact, John Robinson is to be praised for the excellent manner in which he conducted the affairs of this great show.

THE TRIP TO SAN FRANCISCO!

E. R. Lundburg Writes of the Journey From Lincoln to the Pacific Coast.

CAMP MERRITT.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 21, '98. (Special to the Herald.)—After spending four days and four nights on the train we are at last landed in the Queen city of the Golden Gate. I would have written immediately on arrival but it took some time for us to get our tents in order and so one day has already passed over our heads in the land of orange groves.

It is impossible for me to put in words the impressions of this journey of so many days. The last letter I wrote was while passing through Wyoming. Aside from the great canon we passed through on entering Ogden and the Salt Lake, there was nothing of note until we reached western Nevada. Ogden is a very pretty city but it is not so very large. It is located in a beautiful valley opening into the great Salt Lake basin. The ride from Echo to Ogden was rather a thrilling experience. Just imagine being whirled with the rapidity of the wind around curves and past mountains whose rugged sides of solid rock reached thousands of feet above; across iron bridges beneath which gushed the sparkling waters of a mountain stream in its ever winding course, and then to have it changed in a wink to the blackness of night by shooting into a tunnel. It was rare delight with just a little fear at times. I never used my eyes so fast, but I felt afraid when I looked up those mountain sides at the loose boulders, wondering if they didn't roll to the track sometimes. So it was a relief when the train rushed through Devil's Gate and entered the widening valley to Ogden. Out of Ogden it was mountain climbing with the help of a second engine having four drive wheels to a side; the two readily "crawled" up an incline which I hardly thought would be attempted. From the summit of this and to the southward one beholds an admirable view of the placid waters of the Great Salt Lake stretching far away only to stop at the dim outline of mountains which I was informed were over fifty miles away. From the mountains near the Lake almost to Reno, Nevada, is one ceaseless scope of clay bluffs and sage brush, which, thanks to goodness, was mostly passed through in the night. In coming to Reno the train stopped at two beautiful little towns whose inhabitants turned out in masse with bands and banners. This was the beginning anew of the demonstrations which till now had ceased with Ogden. But Reno is the town of all, a beautiful little paradise of about five thousand people. The train was delayed here during the afternoon and most of the night because of a wreck on ahead. After a spirited drill for an hour, the soldiers were given their liberty and we all took in the town. Stock raising and mining and the railroads are the support. Irrigation makes its orchards, abundant yields of alfalfa and green fields and flowering gardens. It seems so odd to see little rivulets of water rippling through every dooryard. Quite a large mountain stream flows through Reno which abounds with the finest brook trout in the west. Large numbers of people come up from California to fish in the streams near Reno. The Pinte Indians do most of the fishing for market, and find a ready sale for all they get. I was shown a dish pan full of trout, each one weighing from three to six pounds. I straightway made for a restaurant and ordered fish, and determined to have a real square meal if it took all the money I had. Maybe that trout wasn't good? Well I guess yes! Won't forget it for months, and only two bits. Everything is sold by bits there. Out of Reno we went through several tunnels and about forty miles of snow sheds. Over the Sierra Nevada and on the Pacific slope we could see the fruit on the trees well advanced, and the farmers making hay. At Colfax, Auburn and Sacramento the ladies and school girls met the train and showered us all with bouquets of flowers. And such roses I had never seen, some three and four inches across. Boxes of ripe, luscious cherries and baskets of oranges were given out among us at these places. I had an armful of roses before reaching San

People with baskets of flowers have been here today, and now our tent is decked with posies and filled with their sweet perfumes. We remember the inspiring and lofty cheers of the plain men from our homes to the summit of the Nevada's, but those pretty roses, so richly abundant and fragrant, were touching tributes of the people's feelings for the soldier volunteers.

At the landing of the ferry from Oakland mole to San Francisco, the Third Battalion of Nebraska gave up the comforts of ten Pullman sleepers, stacked arms, and were marched into a spacious room of the depot where stood tanks of steaming coffee and tables piled high with sandwiches and good things galore. A hundred ladies in dainty aprons stood by to supply all. These are the ladies of the Red Cross society and such is the reception, tendered every train load of Uncle Sam's boys that arrive in the city.

The troops from the Pacific states are located at the Presidio, and the Nebraska Regiment was the first to cast tent on the old Bay District track, about three miles march from the ferry landing. While it is sandy here, yet it is a better place for camping the Presidids. All regiments from across the mountains will be camped here until they are ordered to embark for the Philippines. The 1st California Regiment leaves on the "City of Pekin" on Monday. It may be two weeks before we are put aboard to "sail o'er the blue."

It was an inspiring throng of gaily dressed people with beaming faces that cheered the Nebraskans through the streets of San Francisco to the place of camp. We may talk about patriotism being rampant, but I can give you no idea of that grand ovation. It just made a person glow all over.

It has been raining and somewhat chilly today, a condition unusual for California at this time of the year.

Let me say right here the Nebraska boys are all right and their home state can feel more than pride for them. Their appearance struck the admiration of the people of San Francisco and their unequalled hospitality is being showered upon us. We left home but feel like we just got back. The papers have great praise for the soldierly bearings and rugged health of the stalwart sons from the land of corn.

BOTTLED UP IN THE BAY

Spanish Armada Is Entrapped at Santiago de Cuba.

SCHLEY BLOCKS DON'S WAY.

Admiral Cervera Will Now Be Forced to Surrender or Fight.

Our Squadron Is Guarding the Entrance to the Trap at Santiago de Cuba and Spain's Ships May Never Leave That Harbor—Madrid Has Official Advice of Cervera's Predicament—Town Is Short of Provisions and Could Soon Be Starved Into Submission.

Washington special.—The Navy Department has official and positive information that the Spanish fleet (Santiago de Cuba), and that the American warships are on guard to prevent its escape. A cipher dispatch from Commodore Schley was received at the Navy Department stating that he is off Santiago, guarding the harbor entrance, to prevent the escape of the Cape Verde fleet. In his message Commodore Schley gave the essence of the information that came from the American fleet's presence in Santiago bay, but it is understood that

COMMODORE W. S. SCHLEY.

The Spanish ships are not visible from Commodore Schley's position on account of the hills that surround the bay. A dispatch to the London Daily Mail from Madrid says that official dispatches from Cuba confirm the reports that the Americans are blockading Admiral Cervera at Santiago.

These prison Admiral Cervera and his ships in place and incommunicado, according to Spanish regulations. They are as securely imprisoned as any instrument in Morro Castle. The Spanish admiral has bottled himself up in a harbor where he could not go out and make an even fight if he wanted to. A much inferior force could prevent the Spanish fleet leaving the harbor because of the narrow inlet which permits only one vessel to pass at a time. He would have to take his fleet out in single file and be able to use only his forward guns, while the ships waiting outside could pour broadsides into him as he made the run.

Sampson and Schley have the Spaniards bottled up and can keep them there until they surrender. The naval authorities say that with the Spanish fleet at Santiago de Cuba, it ceases to be a factor in the war. It is imprisoned and cannot be released. Should Spain send another fleet to Cervera's relief, Sampson can station his monitors in front of the inlet to destroy Cervera's fleet as it comes out, and take the fighting ships to meet the coming fleet. The only question with naval officers is as to how long it will take to starve out the Spaniards. It is not believed that Santiago has enough food to support the people and the Spanish troops and the Spanish navy for more than two or three months.

TO FORCE SPAIN TO SUBMIT.

Madrid is expected to be resolved to enter the war soon. A dispatch from Madrid says that Senor Castillo's reason for not joining the ministry is that Senor Sagasta is determined to carry on a vigorous war, while Senor Castillo is aware that Spain's friends in Europe, especially France, are resolved to insist upon her suing for peace at the

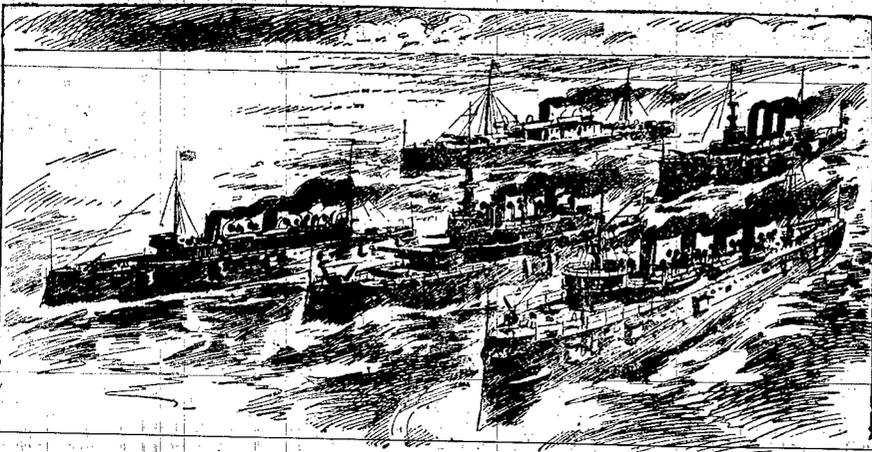

SANTIAGO HARBOR.

First favorable moment. It is hoped that Spain will be able to retain the Philippine Islands, which will be utilized in making political combinations later on. The dispatch adds that the time is very near when Spain will be asked to propose negotiations for peace.

COMMODORE SCHLEY'S FLYING SQUADRON.

CARDENAS ALMOST WRECKED.

Town Suffered Severely in Recent American Attack.

Ernest Castro, a Cuban refugee, who was in Cardenas on the day that the Winslow was injured in trying to capture a Spanish gunboat, returned to Key West, having been picked up off Cardenas. It will be remembered that the motive for the attack was a desire to capture three little gunboats which had been trying for several days to lure the American ships into the mined channels of Cardenas harbor. The first that reached the Winslow did not come from a hidden battery, as was supposed, but from a gunboat. According to Castro, the other two gunboats were on the other side of the point, with their guns trained through the trees, which concealed them from the sight of the approaching Americans. These two boats, he says, were destroyed by the Winslow's fire. Most of their crews were killed or wounded. Castro says that the port of Cardenas along the water is almost totally wrecked. All the wharves are buried, and the Spanish casino, a large building used as the headquarters of the infantry, was also destroyed. The troops and citizens fled from town. Thirteen soldiers were killed by one shell as they fled along the street. The disposition was that the Americans were attempting a landing, and after the ships ceased firing the soldiers returned to camp that night.

Roosevelt's Rough Riders.

"Roosevelt's Rough Riders" include in its muster rolls the most experienced fighters and the most experienced platoon leaders of the West, and though some of these are fighting men, who would fight with utter desperation, they have the true Western spirit of self-respect. Most of them have left valuable interests to go to the front, and there are almost as many professional men in the ranks as there are plain men and business men. They are for the most part brainy as well as brawny.

Many Wish to Be Officers.

Seventy-eight second lieutenants are to be appointed to the army by the President, as a result of the passage of the bill, which increased both the numbers and the officers of each infantry regiment.

The Auxiliary Fleet.

Since the outbreak of war with Spain the Government has acquired ninety-nine vessels for the auxiliary fleet and these are exclusive of over thirty transports which have been only chartered. In this auxiliary fleet there are fifteen cruisers, thirteen in commission, seventeen vessels belonging to what is called the mosquito fleet, and sixteen revenue cutters, now with the Cuban blockading fleet. There are beside numerous tugs and colliers.

Why the Agent Surrendered.

The agent of the Central Pacific Railroad at Ogden, Utah, demanded $30 above the contract price for transporting a carload of horses from that city to San Francisco for the Minnesota troops. Maj. Higgins refused to pay and ordered two of his soldiers, who are experienced railroad men, to seize the train and kill any man who attempts to interfere. The agent surrendered.

Demonstrated His Courage.

When William Mitchell of Birmingham, Ala., bragged that he could whip a carload of Spaniards, somebody in the crowd laughed at him. Mitchell pulled out his revolver. The coroner had charge of the two corpses, that were picked up in the street a few minutes later. Mitchell escaped.

COULDN'T BLUFF DEWEY.

Piney Admiral Refuses to Allow Germans to Enter Manila.

A special dispatch from Manila says that Admiral Dewey refused to permit it. The consul then declared, according to the dispatch, that he would force the landing under the protection of two German cruisers, but Admiral Dewey threatened to fire upon the cruisers, and the attempt to land the supplies was abandoned. Another dispatch asserts that Admiral Montojo, commander of the Spanish squadron destroyed by Admiral Dewey, is to be court-martialed on the charge of cowardice.

The Navy Department received a cablegram from Admiral Dewey, which says that the situation remains unchanged, and that the strict blockade continues. There is great scarcity of provisions in Manila. Foreign subjects fear an outbreak of the Spanish soldiers.

Fine Body of Men.

A correspondent writes from Tampa: "The American soldier of to-day is incomparably better than his predecessor. Conditions of enlistment are more severe. He is more generously treated. His uniforms are improved and he has facilities and privileges formerly unknown. They offered incentives to manliness and self-respect. How far these have been successful is indicated by the statement that among all the troops in this place I have not observed a single case of drunkenness or disorder of any description."

Advices from Cartagena, Spain, say the explosion at Castle San Julian caused a panic in the city. Arms and legs were picked up at a great distance from the scene of the explosion. Recruits Are Not to Come Entirely from National Guard.

President McKinley Asks the Several States to Let Him Have More Troops with Which to Whip the Spaniards—Call Is Thought to Indicate Early Invasion of Cuba by Army Now in the Field—Germans Failed to Bluff Dewey at Manila.

Washington special.

The President has issued a proclamation calling for 75,000 more volunteers. This will make the total army strength, regulars and volunteers, 280,000. The second official call for troops is as follows:

"Whereas, An act of Congress was approved the 25th day of April, 1898, entitled 'An act declaring that war exists between the United States of America and the Kingdom of Spain,' and

"Whereas, By an act of Congress entitled 'An act to provide for temporarily increasing the military establishment of the United States in time of war and for other purposes,' approved April 22, 1898, the President is authorized, in order to raise a volunteer army, to issue his proclamation calling for volunteers, to serve in the army of the United States;

"Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, President of the United States, by virtue of the power vested

in me by the constitution and the laws, and deeming sufficient occasion to exist, have thought fit to call forth, and hereby do call forth, volunteers to the aggregate number of 75,000, in addition to the volunteers called forth by my proclamation of the 23rd day of April, in the present year, the same to be apportioned, as far as practicable, among the several States and territories and the District of Columbia, according to population, and to serve for two years, unless sooner discharged. The proportion of each arm and the details of enlistment and organization will be made known through the War Department.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington this 20th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and twenty-second.

"WILLIAM MCKINLEY, By the President.

"WILLIAM R. DAY, Secretary of State."

It is confidently predicted in Washington that this second call for volunteers denotes an early and concerted move upon Cuba and Porto Rico. With this understanding of it the proclamation of May 25 will be as welcome to the American people as was that of April 23 calling out the first 125,000 volunteers, and will be responded to as heartily and as promptly. In answer to the first call the quotas are practically all filled except those of a few Southern States. When the full number of men allowable under these two proclamations has been enlisted, and when the regular army has been recruited to the limit permitted under its present organization, the United States will have under arms nearly 280,000 men, and volunteers prepared to supplement our gallant navy ought to be able to take anything short of Madrid itself.

Like the men called out under the former proclamation, these new volunteers are to be enlisted for two years, unless sooner discharged. But unlike the others these will not be drawn exclusively from the State militia organizations. The enlistments will be open to all men of proper age and physical abilities, irrespective of whether they have had previous military training or not. This will give a much desired opportunity to many private organizations of a military nature to see active service, and it will also give a similar chance to thousands of patriotic individuals who have belonged to no organization at all.

STARTS FOR MANILA.

CRUISER CHARLESTON OFF TO JOIN DEWEY.

Expedition Leaves San Francisco to Support Admiral Dewey in the Philippine Islands—7,000 Troops on the Way—Monitor Monterey Is Delayed.

Go to Dewey's Aid. The cruiser Charleston is well on her way to Manila. She will call at Honolulu for coal and then proceed direct to the Philippines, and in less than thirty days at the outside she ought to report to Admiral Dewey. Though the monitor Monterey has been ordered to Manila, it will be several weeks, probably, before she can get away from San Francisco. Her executive officer, Lieut. Carlin, said the ship must wait for certain kinds of ammunition desired by Dewey.

Fully 7,000 troops will soon be started for Manila. Those who did not go on the three steamers will go later on the China, Centuria, Colon and Zealandia. Three steamers—the Pekin, Australia and City of Sydney—started together. A fleet of transports will be met at Honolulu by the Bennington and thence conveyed to Manila.

Every steam vessel in the harbor blew an reveil to Capt. Glass and his crew as the Charleston steamed out of the Golden Gate. None of the forts in the harbor saluted the vessel, but the demonstration made by the 6,000 soldiers gathered at the Presidio was tremendous. When the vessel was sighted coming down the bay the soldiers gathered on the bench and cheer upon cheer rang out from the men who were to soon follow the Charleston to the scene of Admiral Dewey's triumph. It was expected that the trip would occupy about twenty days. This allows for a somewhat lower rate of speed than is usually made by steamers like the Pekin, Sydney and Australia, the authorities recognizing the necessity of economizing the coal supplies when carrying heavy cargoes.

The War Department is still negotiating for other steamers to be used for transport purposes between San Francisco and Manila. The Government at present has the services of five ships. It is believed, and in case Congress shall decide to give American register to vessels of the Northern Pacific Steamship Company, the whole fleet of that company will be placed at the disposal of the Government on reasonable terms.

HAVANA IN DIRE NEED.

Letters Via Mexico Say the Situation Is Desperate.

Letters from Havana by way of Mexico say that the situation is desperate there, and that the people are beginning to eat horse meat, the few cattle in stock having been seized by the army. The insurgent bands are controlling the interior, and have taken possession of some towns, while Spaniards in large numbers control the northern coast. A strong Spanish military line has been placed along the railway between Havana and Batabano. On account of the great scarcity of coal, Gen. Blanco issued an order stopping the gas, works and all manufactures in which coal is needed; and the coal has Laurel Advocate: W. O. Gamble of Wayne, delivered 6,000 bushels of corn to G. V. Patrick this week. James Harbour and wife and L. B. Palmer and wife of Wayne, were Laurel visitors Monday. D. L. Strickland and J. W. Mason of Wayne, were Park guests Wednesday.

Went To Purchase A Cow. One of Henry Evans' most intimate friends called upon him one evening just recently, to purchase a cow. The evening was spent in pleasure until after supper hour, when the invitations were extended to him to help milk. In order to make a good choice of a cow he accepted, and would have milked the entire herd had it not been for the assistance of Mr. Evans and son. When milking was done up as usual, and the choice was made, the good housewife appeared and kindly informed the gentlemen there were no cows for sale but she thought Mr. Graves would sell a cow. The purchaser will hereafter call in mid-day so he will not have to milk. Beware of all kinds of schemes in milking hours.

For June Reading. Among the leading features in the June issue of Conkey's Home Journal the most noticeable, perhaps, on account of the war spirit which is abroad in the land, is an article on "The Progress of the Torpedo," by Vice-Admiral Colcomb. Conkey's Home Journal contains each month from 32 to 40 pages, handsomely printed on a superior quality of paper. Single copies may be had for five cents, or it can be obtained for 50 cents per year. The publication office is in the Franklin building, Chicago.

A robust, manly son and a cooling baby-sit, in his bosom—what more can any womanly woman ask? It is a boon that should be granted to every woman. Thousands fail of this because they have neglected to look after their health in a womanly way. The health of a woman's babies is dependent upon her own health during the period of prospective maternity. The prospective mother cannot be too particular about her physical condition. If she suffers from local weakness, nervousness or loss of vigor and virility, her children will be weak, puny and sickly. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the delicate and important organs that bear the brunt of maternity. It makes these organs strong, healthy, vigorous, virile and elastic. It makes the prospective mother strong and cheerful. It robs maternity of its perils. It insures a baby constitutionally strong. It is the invention of an eminent and skillful specialist, who has had thirty years' training in this particular branch, during which time he and his staff of physicians have prescribed for many thousands of women. Medicine dealers sell it and an honest dealer will not urge upon you an inferior substitute merely for the little added profit he may make thereon. "I am the mother of a nice baby four and a half months old," writes Mrs. J. B. Clough, (Box 255) of Little, Green, Co., Va. "I cannot too much praise to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is just as good.

Republican Newspaper
PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

The Republicans of the state will be almost as one man this fall, and there are a whole lot of men who haven't been Republicans, who will be in the same class this time.

We have just begun to realize the size of Uncle Sam and his strength, the magnificence of the American navy and the glorious privilege of being a citizen of the United States.

When one considers the fact that 120,000 volunteer soldiers have been mustered in and moved in less than thirty days the unhappy idiots who criticize the administration for "moving slowly" will find empty benches to talk to.

The Madison Chronicle is eminently correct when it avers that "to run a newspaper without occasionally publishing an item that proves to be incorrect or gives offense is like running a railroad without having any accidents or smash-ups. It can't be done."

The story that President McKinley offered to end the war with Spain on condition that she abandon Cuba, the United States to give up all claims to Porto Rico and the Philippines, etc., and that Spain in return snubbed the chief executive, is a falsehood on the face of it. President McKinley knows as well as any man living that this country will never consent to let Spain occupy an inch of territory in this hemisphere again. He would no more think of hauling down our flag at Manila than he would think of hauling it down from the capitol at Washington. The lie has not the merit even of being a plausible one. Inter Ocean.

The press reports say that Tom Rawlings has been authorized to raise a company of soldiers and naively adds that it is not necessary for the organizer to enlist. This suits Tom so well that we hardly know whether to laugh or applaud. It gives him a chance to get considerable newspaper notoriety with entire safety and we can imagine how he will putter around and be a big gun; perhaps will be able to present a flag or something; make one of his wild speeches and be entirely happy. Then when the boys leave for the seat of war Tom can spend "anxious days and sleepless nights" in their behalf, and rattle around as if he personally saved the country. It is a rare chance for the Hon. Tom—trust him to take advantage of the opportunity.—Dixon Tribune.

Through the courtesies extended by the C. St. P. M. & O. Ry. and the Exposition officials, the writer visited the grounds and buildings of the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha prior to the opening, June 1st. To attempt to give a description of the grandness of the grounds, the magnificence of the White city which will forever remain the pride of the West, would be impossible. Nothing has ever exceeded it in this country except the World's Fair, and that only in size. The lagoon and main court on the exposition grounds must be seen that its marvelous beauty may be realized. No person visits the grounds who is not surprised at the immensity of the exposition. The state buildings are handsome, and especially will the citizens of our great commonwealth be proud of the Nebraska state building. Here, Mr. Williams who is in charge of the building, a brother of Dr. Williams of this city, showed us through the different departments. This structure will be visited by all of our people. No one can afford to miss attending at some time during the six months. The management is treating the newspapermen in a courteous manner, and all cause for complaint has about disappeared. The friends can assure their readers that for weeks they can be entertained by the magnificent sights at the great Trans-Mississippi and International Exposition.

Remarkable Increase in Exports.

That the United States is destined at no distant day to become the creditor nation of the world, provided the American policy of the present administration is maintained, is evidenced by the foreign commerce statistics of the past ten months.

The record of the fiscal year, which ends with this month, will show that our exports have gone far beyond the high-water mark of 1892, which was the most prosperous year in our country's history. The figures will also show that while the volume of our exports surpasses all records there has been a corresponding decrease in our imports. In fact, it is ascertained that during the first ten months of the present fiscal year, the records of which are already completed, we have sold to foreign countries double the amount of goods we have bought from them.

In 1892 the exports exceeded our imports by $202,875,686, while the excess of exports over imports during the ten months of the present fiscal year amounts to $514,245,495. It is highly probable that notwithstanding the disturbance of business conditions that would naturally be expected as a result of our war with Spain, the excess balance of trade in our favor for the full fiscal year will not fall below $600,000,000.

The total exports for 1892 were $890,090,332, while that for the first ten months of 1898 amounts to $1,025,420,681. The most gratifying feature of this remarkable showing is the fact that breadstuffs formed a very large share of the exports, and hence a good portion of the prosperity from heavy foreign sales has come to the farmers; although it is well distributed among all departments of productive industry. The exports of agricultural products during the ten months are more than $100,000,000 in excess of those of the corresponding period of last year, and very far in excess of those of any year in our country's history.

If the United States continues to have a trade balance of nearly $2,000,000 per day in its favor it is but a question of time when it must become the creditor nation of the globe.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Is the Business Profitable?

How many people who are in the poultry business know whether they are making a profit in poultry? We venture to say that there are a great many who do not know how many hens they have, the number that are laying or the number that are merely staying for the food they eat. There may be plenty of nice looking hens that never lay an egg. If there are such, they are surely unprofitable. The hen that does not help fill the treasury should fill the pot as early as possible. We have frequently watched hens that we had very good reason to suppose did not lay any eggs, and when they were dressed abundance of evidence was found that they had never laid an egg, being barren. Keep your eyes peeled for the hen that is lazy or that does not contribute in some way to the farm treasury. These had better be dead than making expense without producing income. We know that it is often the supposition that when lots of hens are kept and lots of eggs are sold and lots of groceries are obtained from the lots of eggs that are sold, lots of profit is being made. This is all guess work, but a little observation will disclose any cheater in the flock, and she should be disposed of in some way—usually by the pot pie route. If the business is not profitable, find out why, and see that it is made so. If it is profitable, see if it is possible to make it more so.—Homestead.

The financial strength of the United States is something remarkable. Our stock of gold has reached the highest mark in the experience of the nation and for the first time exceeds the holdings of any other country. In the midst of war such a condition of affairs can be contemplated with a great deal of satisfaction and pride.

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance.

Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases.

My son, Charlie, was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula, and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years. His head and body were a mass of sores, and his eyesight also became affected. No treatment was spared that we thought would relieve him, but he grew worse until his condition was indeed pitiable. He had almost despaired of ever being cured, when by the advice of a friend we gave him S. S. S. (Swift's Specific). A do-able improvement was the result, and after he had taken a dozen bottles, the one who had known of his former dreadful condition would have recognized him. All the sores on his body have healed, his skin is perfectly clear and smooth, and he has been restored to perfect health.

THE SERMON

It is in this sermon presents the old gospel under another phase; text, I.e. various xlv. 5-7: "And the priests shall kill one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel, over running water. As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar wood, and the scarlet, and the hyacinth, and shall dip them and the living bird in the blood of the bird that was slain, and shall sprinkle the living water, and shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy seven times, and shall pronounce him clean and shall let the living bird loose into the open field." The Old Testament to very many people is a great slaughter house strewn with the blood and bones and horns and hoofs of innumerable animals. It offends their sight, it disgusts their taste, it actually nauseates the stomach. But to the intelligent Christian the Old Testament is a magnificent corridor through which Jesus marches. As he appears at the other end of the corridor we can only see the outline of his character. Coming nearer we can discern the features. But when at last he steps upon the platform of the New Testament, amid the torches of evangelists and apostles, the orchestra of heaven announce him with a blast of music that wakes up Bethlehem at midnight.

There were a great many flocks of birds brought down to Jerusalem for sacrifices, sparrows and pigeons and turtle doves. I can hear them now, whistling, cooing and singing all around about the temple. When a leper was to be cured of his leprosy, in order to his cleansing two of these birds were taken. One of them was slain over an earthen vessel of running water—that is, fresh water—then the bird was killed, another bird was then taken from a hyssop branch and plunged by the priest into the blood of the first bird, and then with this hyssop branch dipped, the priest would sprinkle the leper seven times, then lift the bird from the hyssop branch, and it would go soaring into the heavens.

Now open your eyes wide, my dear brethren and sisters, and see that that first bird meant Jesus and that second bird means your own soul.

There is nothing more suggestive than a pigeon bird. In the down of its breast you can feel the glow of southern climes. In the sparkle of its eye you can see the flash of distant seas. In its voice you can hear the song it learned in the wildwood. It is the child of the sky in captivity. Now take the bird from the text, captured from the air, washed in the blood of the first bird, and then with this hyssop branch came down from the heights of heaven. He was the favorite of the land. He was the King's Bird. Whenever a victory was gained or a throne set up he was the first to hear it. He could not walk inelegantly along the streets, for all heaven knew him. For eternal ages he had dwelt amid the mighty populations of heaven. No holding had ever dawned on the city when he was absent. It was not his earthly prince, occasionally issuing from a palace heralded by a troop of clanking horse guards. No he was present everywhere as a brother and all heaven was perfectly at home with him.

But one day there came word to the palace that an insignificant band was in rebellion against the ruling king. To possess with a monarch's heart, King Herod, the King's realm, and to govern without the King. The tributes to the King are large enough without that. We can sympathize. Not so, said the Prince, the King's son, and I see him push out on the day under the protest of a great company. The prince's strength for the rebellious island. He lands amid the excoriations of the inhabitants, that grow in violence until the malice of earth has smitten him, and the spirits of the lost world put their black wings over his dying head and start the storm. The hawks and vultures swooped upon this dove of the text, until he had breast and feet run blood—until under the rocks and banks of darkness he had perished. No wonder the poor thing perished. No wonder the poor thing perished. No wonder the poor thing perished. No wonder the poor thing perished.

A Clean Bird.
I notice also in my text that the bird that was slain was a clean bird. The text demanded that it should be. The raven was never sacrificed, nor the plover, nor the vulture. It must be a clean bird, says the text, and I suggest the pure Jesus—the holy Jesus. Although he spent his boyhood in the worst village on earth, although blasphemies were poured into his ear enough to have poisoned any one else, he stands before the world a perfect Christ. Harold was cruel, Henry VIII. was wicked, William III. was treacherous, but not our King. He was born in the streets of Nazareth. He grew up in the woods of the hills. He was a poor boy, but he was a clean boy. He was a clean boy, and he was a clean boy.

Then, my dear brethren, let us have our own source of pure delight. Let us have our own source of pure delight. Let us have our own source of pure delight. Let us have our own source of pure delight.

torment, and it comes flowing to our feet with the purpose of our Lord, in which, if the soul be plucked, like the bird in the text, it shall go forth free—free! Oh, I wish all people to understand this, that when a man becomes a Christian he does not become a slave, but that he becomes a free man; that he has larger liberty after he becomes a child of God than before he became a child of God.

But by reason of sin we are poorer than that African. We cannot buy our own deliverance. The voices of death are bidding for us, and they bid us in, and they bid us down. But the Lord Jesus Christ comes and says: "I will buy that man. I bid for him my Bethlehem manger. I bid for him my hunger on the mountain. I bid for him my aching head. I bid for him my fainting heart. I bid for him my wounds." A voice from the throne of God says: "It is enough! Jesus has bought him." Bought with a price. The purchase complete. It is done.

The great transaction is done. I am my Lord's, and he is mine. He has bought me, and I followed him. Charmed to confess the voice divine. Why, is not a man free when he gets rid of his sins? The sins of the tongue gone, the sins of action gone, the sins of the mind gone. All the transgressions of thirty, forty, fifty, seventy years gone—more in the soul than the malaria that floats in the atmosphere a thousand years ago, for when my Lord Jesus pardons a man he pardons him, and the life is no half-way work about it.

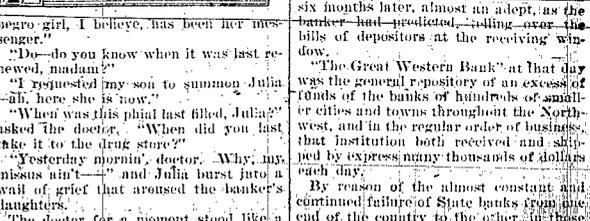

He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind.

He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind.

He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind.

He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind. He is free from the sins of the tongue, the sins of action, the sins of the mind.

PAYING THE PENALTY

neuro girl, I believe, has been her nurse-sister."

"Do—do you know when it was last renewed, madam?"

"I requested my son to summon Julia—all, here she is now."

"When was this phial last filled, Julia?" asked the doctor. "When did you last take it to the drug store?"

"Yesterday morning, doctor. Why, my mistress ain't—" and Julia burst into a wall of grief that aroused the banker's daughters.

The doctor for a moment stood like a statue. He paled to the very lips. "Your wife's death," he presently said, "was caused by heart failure. She passed away while asleep. Her death was painless. I deeply sympathize with you in your affliction."

The physician took his departure, bearing with him the half empty phial.

Once on the sidewalk he exclaimed: "My God, for six long years killing herself, and I, her attending physician, knowing nothing of it. Six long years and a sufficient quantity in twelve hours to have killed a dozen men whose systems were not saturated with it. I feel very culpable, and yet why should I? The directions on the phial were plain. What victims of the morphia habit adhere to directions? And she, poor woman, had not what she was taking—she only knew that the remedy—under her irresponsible hands—had been changed. I had already changed the prescription. God pardon me. Oh, cursed, cursed drug! And yet what would we do without it? Heart failure, heart failure—yes, heart failure is death by heart."

From the date on which Elmer Kellogg had declared to her son that she had forgotten the mystery of her sister-in-law's sufferings, she more and more assumed the management of the invalid. She indeed so completely ingratiated herself into the good will of the banker's wife, and was so tender and solicitous in her attentions that that lady was only satisfied when she was by her side.

Janette had been nearly heart-broken at having her place so much usurped, as she almost considered it. And more than once, with tears in her eyes, she had said to her mother:

"Oh, mamma, I am with you so little since Aunt Elmer came. I wish I could read to you as I used to do all day."

"Darling," would be the reply, "you were reading away under the confinement; I cannot permit it longer. It is as fortunate for you as for me that your aunt came."

"Was it fortunate, mamma? I sometimes doubt my aunt's motives."

"She has no motives; dearest; no wish but to alleviate my sufferings and to see me restored to health. I fear you are a little jealous, my love. Do not cry, dear. You shall attend me as many hours each day as I think will be well for you. You know how I love you."

"More than you do aunt, mamma?"

"Far more, my precious. You are my own sweet child."

After one of these conversations, Janette, kneeling by her mother's side, would have her cry out; but her sunny nature and her mother's caresses would soon subside the tears, and after which she would remain happy until she again thought that the widow was too much abusing her rights.

Somewhat she did not repose full confidence in her aunt. Laura, being two years the elder and having since her mother's illness been accustomed to direct the household affairs, had necessarily spent less time in her company.

Stephen Kellogg, after the body of his wife had been laid in the grave, wrote his brother Amos of her death. He had been in his letter how unkindly Elmer had been in her care of the invalid, but did not particularize concerning the malady that had taken her off.

A few days later he received a letter of condolence from his brother, from which we quote the following:

"Do not fail to at once write me all the particulars of your wife's last illness; and fully in regard to her death. You state that her demise was the result of heart failure—the heart failure was superinduced by what? Have you full confidence in the physician who attended her? Write me his statement in regard to the case."

The banker was greatly surprised when he read what we have quoted from his brother's letter. He rose from his arm chair and went to the door of his private office in a state of no little agitation.

"I cannot understand it," he exclaimed. "Why should brother Amos desire all the particulars of my wife's last illness? Why does he wish more information in regard to her sad death? Why a knowledge as to what superinduced the failure of her loving heart to think that the pulsations of life? Why to know if I have full confidence in the physician who attended her? All this he desires a knowledge of and at once. I am completely at sea!"

"Why I could scarcely give him all the information he asks. I had best request Dr. Hewit to write my brother in person; but no, he has been too good a friend; for many years our family physician, he would not have known of my mother's death without my knowledge. I have all confidence in the physician who treated my wife."

"The heart failure was superinduced by a gradual weakening of all the forces of the body; by—well, I will write Amos at once and set his mind at rest. It was the will of God."

"Strange, though, how my wife rallied for two months previous to her death, then died suddenly; but such is heart failure. People even drop dead on Chicago's streets from failure of the heart to perform its functions."

Mr. Kellogg wrote a lengthy letter to his North Carolina brother, the contents of which must be presumed, somewhat trivialized that gentleman's mind, for when a few days later, seated in the library of his Southern home, he had perused it, the troubled look that for some days had clouded his countenance, disappeared as if by magic, and the words "Thank God!" escaped his lips.

A strange expression from one who had just read a detailed statement of the last illness and death of a brother's wife!

Elmer Kellogg, after the demise of her sister-in-law, became a yet more important personage in the banker's household.

The two young ladies clung to her in their affliction as the one who had nursed and loved their mother. Even the prejudice that had been growing in Janette's heart faded away, and she found comfort in her deep grief, in the arms of Elmer Kellogg.

The banker was somewhat surprised the morning Howard, the bank teller, had informed him that he must sever his connection with the bank; but on being informed that a wealthy uncle of that gentleman had recently died, leaving him a large estate in Boston, he congratulated his old employee and cast his eyes about him, as one to all his duties.

He finally decided to entrust the duties to Elmer.

"True," he thought, "he is young and practically without experience, but Tony can assist him. He will soon be an adept. He must be honest. At least I will give the young man this chance. Lawrence carries the office key to the vault safe mine."

Robert is yet dealing in futures on the Board of Trade. The Lord only knows what she has done for him. He has not yet hit it off.

The Most Tremendous Canyon in the World.
It is abruptly counter-sunk in the forest plateau, says John Muir in the Atlantic, so that you see nothing of it until you are suddenly stopped on its brink, with its immeasurable width of divinely colored and sculptured buildings before you and beneath you. No matter how far you may have wandered hitherto, or how many famous gorges and valleys you have seen, this one, the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, will seem as novel to you as uncharted in the color and grandeur and quantity of its architecture, as if you had found it after a tedious search of some other star, so incomparably lovely and grand and supreme is it above all the other magnificent canyons in our fire-molded earth—quake shaken, rain washed, water washed, river and glacier sculptured world. It is about 6,000 feet deep where you first see it, and from rim to rim ten to fifteen miles wide. And instead of being dependent for interest on waterfalls, depth, wall sculpture and beauty of park-like floor, like most other great canyons, no waterfalls are in sight and no appreciable floor space. The big river has just room enough to flow and roar obscurely, here and there, grouping its way as best it can like a weary, murmuring, overladen traveler trying to escape from the tremendous bewildering labyrinthine abyss, while its roar serves only to mellow and deepen the silence. Instead of being filled only with air, the vast space between the walls is crowded with nature's grandest buildings—a sublime city of them, painted in every color of the rainbow and adorned with richly fretted cornice and battlement, spire and tower in endless variety of style and architecture. Every architectural invention of man has been anticipated and far more in this grandest of our terrestrial cities.

Anecdote of a German Prince.
In Austria and Germany the gaming laws against gaming were, and still are, very strict. When the Duke of Baden was occupied by Prussian troops after their suppression of the insurrection of 1849 the officers quartered at Rastadt were warned against playing at Baden Baden. One Sunday strolled into the gaming-rooms and noticed an officer in civilian clothes sitting at play. He had won twice on the board and was about to pick up his money when he caught sight of the Prince watching him. Terror-stricken, he sat quaking, daring to reach out for his winnings. The red turned up a third and then a fourth time. As the maximum was quickly reached, the Prince touched the officer on the shoulder and said, gently: "Take up your money and go, one of your chiefs should—fight with me." Of course, the soldier did not require to be told twice. Two days later there was a review at Rastadt, during which Prince Wilhelm signed the culprit and sent for him, "captain—," he said, "after you went away, the red turned up four times more. I prevented you from winning four times the maximum, which you would certainly have staked. You will draw on me for that amount. But take my advice, do not gamble again. The memoirs of an old German general who lived to see his last victory at Sedan have stated as follows: 'It was the kindness of the lesson that cured me of gaming. For me it was better than a year's imprisonment.'—New York Tribune.

Value of Land in London.
It has been stated that every piece of land between the King William statue and Trinity square, London, E. C., cost 1,000 guineas a yard. This would mean over $25,000,000 per acre. The ground in the vicinity of the Bank of England is estimated to be worth not less than $10,000,000 per acre, and in Pall Mall has changed hands at $300,000 per acre.

MOTHER! There is no word so full of meaning and about which such tender and holy recollections cluster as that of "MOTHER"—she who watched over our helpless infancy and guided our first tottering step. Yet the life of every Expectant Mother is beset with danger and all effort should be made to avoid it, so assists nature in the change taking place that the Expectant Mother is enabled to look forward without dread, suffering or gloomy forebodings, to the hour when she experiences the joy of Motherhood. Its use insures safety to the lives of both Mother and Child, and she is found stronger after than before confinement—in short, it "makes Childbirth natural and easy," as so many have said. Don't be persuaded to use anything but MOTHER'S FRIEND

"My wife suffered more in ten minutes with either of her other two children than she did altogether with her last, having previously used four bottles of 'Mother's Friend.' It is a blessing to every Expectant Mother," says a customer.

WINSIDE.
John Bender's mother and brother from Pennsylvania reached here on Saturday night. They expect to reside with their son and brother hereafter.

We have had plenty of rain, small grain is doing well, unless it becomes too thick, but corn is looking yellow on account of too much moisture. We have had a few washouts in the corn fields, so that some of the corn has had to be replanted.

We have soldiers and possible soldiers drilling here almost every evening. Fourteen of our boys have joined Company G at Waterloo, and are ready to go forward as soon as called. Tim Casey of this place, has been made a Sergeant, and Robert Jenser a Corporal in the above Company.

There was a mad-dog scare south of town a few days ago. "Mr. Whitaker's dog began frothing at the mouth and seemed to be mad, and the next day after this dog was killed Mr. Weible suspected his two dogs were going the same way and shot them. It is not thought that any of these dogs had bitten any other animals.

The closing of our schools for the long vacation was celebrated by an entertainment the last of the week. The children were remarkably well-trained and showed great self-possession in the delivery of their various parts of the program. The patriotic drill was especially well done, and showed the proficiency of both teacher and pupils. Our opera house was crowded and everybody was well pleased with the work done.

R. W. Priobard was in Norfolk Tuesday. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has no equal as a household liniment. It is the best remedy known for rheumatism, lame back, neuralgia, white bruises, sprains, cuts, burns, sores, and sore throat it is invaluable. Wertz & Pike, merchants, Fernandina, Florida, write: "Everyone who buys a bottle of Chamberlain's remedies, comes back and says it is the best medicine he has ever used." 25 and 50 cents per bottle at L. To the Public: I take this opportunity through the kindness of the press, to thank you one and all for the manner in which you exhibited your national patriotism and loyalty not alone to the American flag and the living patriots, but for your love, your tenderest feeling for our honored comrades who sleep so peacefully in the bosom of the land they helped to save; and to the several societies, and all who assisted in our sacred ceremonies we desire to again thank you for the interest you manifested, and you may rest fully assured that such loyal demonstrations satisfies the hearts of the old soldiers and conclusively proves that our labors from 1861 to '65 were not in vain; and we feel very sure that the American flag is safe in the hands of so grateful, and loyal people.
A. W. TAYLOR, Commander.

While putting ourselves on the back over the prospect of an abundant cereal crop we should not lose sight of the humble grass of the field which, according to scripture, "today is and tomorrow is cast into the oven." Today it is indeed. The hay crop promises to be abundant and pasturage never presented a more inviting appearance. Cool weather and plenty of rain have brought about these conditions so that all nature blends its smile with that of the farmer.—Sioux City Journal.

A LETTER FROM THE SOUTH!
Review of the Trip and Chickamauga Park by Private Ralph Claybaugh.

Chickamauga, Ga., May 23, '98.
Co. L, 2nd Reg., N. V. I.
(Special to the Herald.)—At last our orders to move arrived. Tents were lowered about two p. m. the 19th. We were marched to the train on the double track to avoid as much of a wetting as possible as it was raining quite hard. Our battalion went by the way of Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville and Chattanooga. We left Lincoln at six Thursday; reached Chickamauga Sunday at about 1 p. m. The people along the way cheered us to our hearts' content. But Kentucky will be remembered the longer on the boys for the bouquets that were given. Elizabethtown treated us the best; there we were given sandwiches, cakes, cookies, radishes, pickles and coffee. Our sick boys had cherries and strawberries. Just before we reached Lowden, Iowa, I saw the path of a cyclone that passed through there two days before. We passed two wrecks on the way down; one before we reached Nashville, the other this side of Chattanooga, the one the Missouri boys were on.

As we passed along the foot of Look-out Mt. and looked up to the top, and was told it was five miles away we could hardly believe it. There is a hotel at the top. It is the largest in the south but at that distance it looked very small. The old forts are still there and in fairly good shape after standing nearly 35 years.

The first sign of the battle ground of Chickamauga was about six miles this side of Chattanooga. It was a statue of Robert Lee. The next was the monument of Gen. Lytle, on the spot where he was killed. It is made of cannon balls; they are about six inches in diameter and 316 to each monument. The ground is marked with stone monuments where each regiment made its stand, and all cannon used in the battle is on the first line. Other cannon mark the places they were moved to. Most of the boys have been looking for relics but few are found. One of the New York boys found a skull with a bayonet sticking through it.

This is a very nice camping ground, all covered with timber and up high and dry, and my! how the thunder echoes in the mountains. There is some trouble about getting water, but it is a good thing because the boys would drink too much. The government is laying pipe now, to be finished the last of this week, which will bring the water about seven miles. It takes lots of water for 40,000 men, besides the horses and mules. There are plenty of rumors of men being shot for poisoning springs, but there is no truth in them. We made our bed out of bannop. Of course it isn't as nice as feather, but will do for lack of anything better. One of the boys came along with a fungus that had the appearance of a tarantula, and quite a few of the boys were careful to get out of the way of it. Lizards are very thick and are quite friendly, even more so than we care for. They like to sleep with us; something we do not appreciate very much.

Schley attacked Spain's armada at Santiago de Cuba Tuesday and bombarded the forts and batteries of El Morro, Zecapa and Punta Gorda. The firing was extremely heavy for a time and great damage was done to the forts. It is supposed that the attack was made because the Spanish fleet attempted to escape.

Forty thousand troops are to be landed at Santiago de Cuba and a joint attack of land and sea forces made. The invasion of Porto Rico will wait.

It is reported that a third call for volunteers will soon be made by the President.
