There are two grand entrances, emphasized by pediments embellished with statuary and the grand seal of the state. The building is 90 x 145 feet. The principal feature is the central done. This is 60 feet in diameter, oclagonal in form, and rises to a height of 85 feet. This done indicates plainly the magnificent assembly room, which is open to the top of the done. It is surrounded at the second story by a large gallery. Off this assembly room, which is intended for general gatherings, are offices, reception rooms, puriors, baggage and toller rooms. These are for the convenience of various state sections and These are for the convenience of various state societies an and tollet rooms. These are for the convenience of various state societies and also for the use of states having no buildings of their own on the ground. The four corners of the building are surmounted by small domes which, in form and ornamentation, harmonize beautifully with the central dome. Over each entraince and opening from the gallery is a large, slry bulcony for the use of the public. Above these bulconies are band galleries, reached by stateways, from the main gallery, which also lead to the main roof, where a promenade is proided. While not a very large building the general harmony of style, excellent proportions and tasty detail make this one of the attractive buildings of the proportions and usery dealt make this one of the attractive buthings of exposition. (To be continued,

Farly in 1880 he published one of the most hiteresting of the many books written on Australian expleration.

"Australian Twice Traversed." His knowledge of the wild black tribes of the intertor was not excelled by any other man in Australia. and equaled only by that of Ernest Favene, another fellow who has done great work for his adopted country, land, like Giles and the rest of these devoted men, earned nothing for the benefit he has conferred upon the Australian people.

Toor Giles, a year ago, was given an an official position on Coolgardle gold field by the government of western Australia. A severe cold which daveloped into pneumonia carried off one of when Robert Kellogs and Barl left the house.

This man was yet in the vicinity when the banker, accompanied by Elitor Kellogs and Laura, stepped girl on the phagas and fair yet stepped girl on the phagas and his eyes, rested quickly of the three forms before him.

"More, much more than I expected" be mittered.

Laura was dressed for the structuration is was evident that the wides, whose bead was uncovered, and whose black fair glistened beneath the rays of the morning our, had but accompanied them to the door.

"You appear innusually werried this morning, dear Ellion," said Mg. Kellogs, ""Well, when we received the cronsting for the beacht he has conferred you though the parts to day. Your continued and the parts to dear. Your continued the form house since Janette's illiness has been too constant, Let us hope for the best. I dislike to see clouds on that fair's brow. Good-bye." The So,080,000 which we outh in in powder to celebrate the Fourth of July is so much greater than the tax imposed; upon-the colonies by the "Stamp Act" that there is little comparison. Of course, England never got the revenue sin designed from the passage of that iniquitous bill, but it she had it would not have amounted to a tithe of what we now expend in branian powder yearly. Bestden in the powder which is burned up in fireworks on the Fourth of July, there mist be taken into account the amount of powder which is used in salutes.

Every little-village frees a salute to the nation's birthday, and some of them expend as much powder as do the big cities, for in those places where the immediate need of things has not carried any the efforts and the souls of the inhabitants partjoitism is stronger and more powder is burned.

Marked an Epoch.

The Fourth of July marked so epoch in history, not alone in the history of our own country, not alone, in that of the English-speaking nations, but in that of
