An Account of the Trip from San Francisco to Honolulu.

BANQUET FOR BOYS IN BLUE.

The Capitol Building Opened to Boys who were Furnished Stationery and Stamps by the Hawaiian Government. Excellent Schools and Fine Public Buildings. Everything thoroughly American.

At Sea, on Board S. S. Senator. June 20th, 1898.

(Special to HERALD.)—To while away the hours in amusing myself I will write in a tablet which I have, incidents and reflections of the voyage to Honolulu. The Nebraska Regiment went on board the steamship Senator from Pier 11, in San Francisco Bay, on Tuesday, June 14. As there was a large amount of supplies to be put on board it necessitated the removal of a hundred tons of coal to make room for it.

To do this required all of Tuesday night and the forenoon of the next day, and the clock in the Ferry Tower pointed to the hour of 1 p. m. when the Senator pulled out into the stream. Here lay the China, Zealandia and the Colon, and immediately these four transports, laden with nearly four thousand soldiers of the U. S., started on the long journey to Dewey's aid. Every pier along the shore was lined with people waving flags and handkerchiefs. The booming guns on the Marion training ship and the shrieking sirens of the big steamboats with a thousand other whistles on the shore announced to the city that the second expedition to the Philippines was starting on its way. A hundred pleasure crafts and ferries decked the bay and darted back and forth between the big transports as they ploughed their way to the Golden Gate.

Monday in the evening quite a quantity of U. S. commissary supplies was brought on board to be sold to the soldiers at cost, consisting of canned fruits, preserves, etc. The Com. Sergeant has opened a store in the smoking room, and the boys just jammed the place, buying canned pears, apricots and jellies, and they are scattered all over the ship in groups of two's or more with a can between them. To take them away from the pie wagons and orange vendors so numerous about Camp Merritt was too much of a change and this opportunity was anxiously demanded and eagerly seized.

There is one man on board in civilian dress, whom I have taken to be and who undoubtedly is a newspaper correspondent. I sat near him at the dining table and had the privilege of pumping him with questions. He holds a very promising view of the Philippines for United States. He said that most of the boys thought they were going there to fight, but he believed they would have little, if any, of that to do. As the United States, he said, "she must recognize its government, and it will require thousands of clerks and accountants to carry on all its various departments, from policing its cities, to filling its courts, collecting custom duties, taxes, etc., and managing all its domestic affairs. Spain has kept the population in a state of dense ignorance, and the American system of education must be developed among them. The introduction of American civilization will require American push and enterprise back of it." A rather glowing view, indeed. He says he intends to remain in the Philippines permanently, as he looks upon them as a new country to the world and those who come first secure the plums. He gave me a lot of new thoughts to ponder over. I don't believe they should annex isolated territories, or attempt to take and rule distant lands because they have the power to do so. So with these people, though they be simple and ignorant, our own right to self-government is no more sacred than theirs. But when our country, in establishing its honor, wrenched these islands from the oppression of Spain, it is our rightful duty to stay with them a while and teach them to care for themselves. "It is the mission of America to bring liberty to the oppressed and make mankind happier. She has shown the world she can do it, and in doing it always leads the van."

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22, P. M. The four transports are still sailing close together ever since leaving San Francisco, but this morning about 8:00 o'clock the China leaves and goes ahead. As she is a faster boat than the rest she will reach Honolulu and coal up before the rest get there. She is hardly out of sight, her upper masts just above the horizon. Another smoke is on the horizon to the south-west. Perhaps it is a mail steamer. I will write. Maybe it is a Spanish war vessel. Goodness, I hope not. The China steams from her course towards it, she is not afraid evidently. Guess it is no "man-o-war." If they take mail, perhaps they will "take this home." Its hull is above now and it appears plainly. The China and her masts have disappeared and only lingering smoke shows her position. The new arrival is near us, to the south, and will pass close to the Zealandia, the outer ship of the squadron. A boy of the ship's crew says the vessel is the Alameda, a nineteen-knot boat, from Sydney to San Francisco, via Honolulu. She flies the stars and stripes and dips her colors in salute, and the troop ships answer with flags half down and three long blasts from her monstrous whistles. As she passes those on deck are waving handkerchiefs and I can hear them cheer. The boys on the Senator are on deck crowding the railings. It is quite a sight for it is the only ship that has been sighted since leaving San Francisco. The Zealandia signalled her, and as she turns about our ship and the others stop. The two steamers stop close together, and I presume returning mail is being transferred, but at least she bears to Frisco the news that all is well with the transports.

HONOLULU, HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

On Board S. S. Senator, June 24th, 1898. (Special.)—We are at Honolulu safe and sound. We arrived off the harbor at about nine o'clock last night, but anchored until this morning. A tug boat laden with a brass band came out from shore and serenaded each ship in turn, playing all the American patriotic airs, and the music sounded beautiful. The Senator played her search light about the bay, on the other transports, and the little craft with its reception committee and band of music. The Senator is the only one of the ships that has a search light. This morning with the rising sun a pilot came from shore and now we lie fastened along the wharf, while a score of dusky natives are pushing wheelbarrows of coal up the planks into the Senator's bunkers.

I have just finished a breakfast of beans, bread, blackberry jam, bananas, and a large ripe pine-apple newly picked, with a big coconut and a bottle of Hires Root Beer. But most of these we bought through the port-hole of the ship right after it stopped. We had a pie but it didn't taste as good as those at Frisco. It lacked the flavor of the American hog.

I had written just so far when orders were "fall in." Our Captain took us up town and turned us loose. I wish I could write down what happened and what I saw. The stars and stripes decked the city as frequent as the Hawaiian flag. It was everywhere to be seen and so often they hung side by side. As we marched down the principal street "Old Glory" so large and proudly fluttered on the breeze, midway over the way, being without arms we doffed our hats as we passed under, and lay them on our breast—a form of salute. The street was lined with spectators and they clapped their hands and cheered at this, while one called out so loud that all could hear: "You love your flag. So do we. Make it our banner, won't you?" They are genuine Americans in Honolulu. Their hopes and sympathies are with the U. S. No more enthusiastic or elaborate reception has been tendered us than that today at the hands of these people. The ladies of the Red Cross and the people of San Francisco gave us cheers and things to eat, but here they have us in Honolulu and all these other things besides. We didn't paint the town red but it was blue all over. All the soldiers were given dinner under the spreading palms and other tropical trees and upon the beautiful lawns about the Executive building. Acres of tables were spread with all the good things that could be prepared. About forty kinds of summer drinks were free in any quantity to the boys. But the fruit of the islands is what takes one. Oranges and bananas are of unusual good flavor, while the pine-apples beat all. They had a stack of pine apples and we were to carry away all we wished, so I have two large yellow ones nearly a foot long. The Hawaiian capitol building was open to the boys, and in the Representative Hall with its chairs and desks, was stationary and writing material for them all to write home, and the government paid the postage on the letters mailed here. The Executive building was formerly the monarchical Palace and was the abode of Queen Lil up to the time of the revolution. It is a beautiful building and is magnificently finished throughout. Our First Sergeant and myself visited the schools this forenoon. The Royal school was just having their closing exercises of the year. I heard a dusky native youth deliver an oration on the "Trial of Warren Hastings." He handled his theme admirably and his delivery was fine. I take back what I thought these people were, and there will be more admiration for them one of these days when the Speaker of the American House recognizes the gentleman from Hawaii. They have good voices and are splendid singers. A man is engaged especially to instruct and direct them in their singing. They all speak English and the familiar school books of the U. S. are used. A gentleman connected with the English church here is Principal of the Royal school. Apparently most of the pupils of his charge are either natives or half-castes, but there was a large number of white children. They all dress very neat and tasty, with not the least inclination to gaudy colors. They are fairly good looking and always polite and sociable. The High School building is a beautiful structure surrounded by a perfect hower of palms and trees, all new and strange to me. The foot-paths, the broad drive-ways, and high stone wall with iron gates, make a pretty sight indeed. We went through the building from top to bottom. From the roof was a fine view of the extents of Honolulu, but as the buildings are generally low, the big trees hid them from sight. Finely carved wood work and rich paintings decorate the walls and ceilings of the interior. This building was erected as the Palace for the Princess Ruth of the extinguished dynasty, but now it is the High School building of Honolulu. An enlightening civilization turns the monarch's palace into halls of learning.

I have tasted two new kinds of fruit today. One was the mango. It has something the shape of a pear, with generally a green skin and a rich orange color within, and grow on tall trees. Don't like them: taste like they had rheumatism. The other was the papai. Looks something like a musk melon; grown on trees resembling a palm. It has round black seeds within about the size of a pea, and has a peppery smell when cut open. Believe I could learn to like them in a week. We had pies made from them today and it tasted good, but they were flavored with lemon or something else. A citizen with whom I was talking today said a person will learn to like the fruits of a tropical climate in a little while. Well I must stop for this time. The steamer Belgio is due from San Francisco with mail in the morning so I will get some letters I hope.

I haven't told of my sea-sickness. It was awful for nearly three days; threw up everything I had eaten for a month I guess. Have my sea-leas now and am well and happy.

ELMER R. LUNDBERG.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Last Friday as L. C. Titsworth's little daughter was passing in front of R. W. Wilkins & Co's drug store, with a baby car containing her little baby brother, she gave the cab a push and then started to catch it, but was too late. It run off the walk in front of Dr. Hammond's team and upset, throwing the baby under the horses. The animals became frightened and ran around the post to which they were hitched, but miraculously never touched the little child which was picked up by a bystander. The team, in trying to get away, broke Mr. Hammond's buggy tongue. It was a narrow escape as the child might have been crushed to death under the horses feet.

A SUDDEN DEATH.

SELLBERG: At his farm in Plum Creek precinct, six miles southeast of Wayne, Saturday, July 9, 1898, O. H. Sellberg, aged 75 years.

Deceased who resides alone, his wife having died six years ago, and has no children, had been complaining for some time, and on Saturday morning a neighbor, Oscar Bostrom, was at the house and noticed that he was not feeling very well and would not eat anything. About noon Mr. Bostrom went to another neighbor, Jno. Johnson, and told him about it and they decided to go and see him and render any assistance that might be necessary, as Mr. Johnson was farming Mr. Sellberg's farm. On reaching the house they found him sitting in a chair, dead, apparently having died very suddenly. According to papers left the funeral was to be in charge of Mr. Johnson whose family had taken care of deceased when unable to take care of himself. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon and the remains buried near LaPorte.

W. F. RAMSEY INTERESTED.

Editor "Tony" Langer of the West Point Republican, is enjoying a vacation in the east, and there are various rumors afloat in regard to his return. Soon after his departure W. F. Ramsey of this city, had occasion to be in West Point and the Republican has the following to say of him in connection with Mr. Langer's sojourn: "Just to put you on—a man by the name of Ramsey well known in Cuming county, came down from Wayne last week, and with blood in his eye and a gun in his pocket, he entered the Republican office and demanded to see the editor. He came at once. With all the anxiety of his command, your Uncle Paul, informed him that he had suddenly decided to take a trip for his health, and that he was now in Kalama, and would not see him. But Ramsey wouldn't go with him. He returned to the building from garret to collar, and then went to Judge Krake's office to examine the marriage license record. He left town vowing vengeance on him. Another of his regular habits developed. It appears that Ramsey is a relative of a certain young lady whom the old ticket puncher was regularly in the habit of visiting; a habit he had indulged in until—well, until its abrupt termination naturally caused consternation and anxiety. But then, she is not the only one." Mrs. Wm. Baird and children went to Coon Rapids, Iowa, this morning to visit with relatives and friends.

With a spirit of fairness shown to all republicans and an equal division of the party work in convention, in the selection of delegates, and otherwise, there is no reason why the republicans of Wayne county cannot get together and go forth and do battle and win gloriously. In talking with a large number of republicans The HERALD finds this sentiment and we hope it will prevail. "In unity there is strength."

J. Tower received a letter from his son Charley, last week, who has been detailed company clerk of Company C, at Fort Omaha; and which also states that Jno. Hayes was detailed as company clerk of Company G, which went from Wakefield. The Wayne boys seem to be in it; this makes four Wayne boys who have been appointed to some position in different companies, and one as a Division clerk.

The audience which attended the entertainment given by the ladies of the Elocution class of the College, was not as large as it should have been. The play was of a pleasing character and the different roles were well sustained. Especially is this true in the leading part "Vagrant" by Mrs. F. Wallis, and the part of "Clarissa Cadman" by Miss Jennie Mettlen. Her singing brought down the house. The picnic party which was held at the spring chicken party, of which it almost brought tears to the eyes of the audience, because they were not there. Misses Ahern, Curtis and Miller, and their party, in returning to the city, were met by a party of friends at the depot. The party was to be erased from memory, was the opinion of Mrs. Ruth Caffee's children, grand-children and great grand-children, thirty-four in number, who gathered at her pleasant home on July 3d. Never was a table spread with more luxuries, and all were as happy as larks. The oldest son, Ezra, arrived in time to have his share of the luxurious dinner. He lives in Washington and had not seen his mother in twelve years. She did not know him. Thomas and family were here from Wayne, Neb., Alva and John from Martelle, with their families, and Mrs. V. Holden and her children completed a happy reunion that is not often witnessed. Such occasions are milestones on the journey of life. May God bless all such reunions.

Commodore Personally Directed Spanish Armada's Destruction.

Further Details of the Destruction of the Spanish Squadron—Castilian Crews Fought with Drunken Frenzy—Blanco Ordered the Admiral to Make the Dash—Thrilling Incidents of the First Great Battle, in Which the Spaniards Were Driven from Their Defenses.

Washington special: The fighting by land and sea around Santiago sheds new lustre on American arms. It is a story of marvelous heroism, a fearlessness that overpowered the foe and of unvarying success. On land the victories were bloodless. On sea hundreds of brave men sacrificed their lives and other hundreds will go through life maimed. The nation owes the dead and the living everlasting honor for upholding the American reputation for valor, for from the landing of the army at Balquiere the advance to Santiago was one continuous success. The Spaniards were strongly entrenched and fought gallantly, but every stronghold was overcome. Fighting in a strange land, and in a feverish climate, wading through streams and piercing cactus jungles, charging up hills on whose crest the foe lay hidden behind intrenchments from which poured a storm of lead, the dauntless boys in blue earned for themselves fame as enduring as that of the glorified warriors of old.

But the bullets are not all for the men on shore. The fleet that had been kept in suspense for months awaiting an opportunity to attack the Spanish boats at last saw the signal to open fire. The despairing Spanish admiral had made bold to straggle from the shelter of the American guns, and now he was driven back against the rocks, striving the Cuban shore for miles and miles with Spanish shells. It was a picturesque scene that Sunday chase along the Santiago shore—and its result will give it a place in the annals of the world.

From July 1, the American troops had been promising Santiago "A Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight." They sang the rollicking ditty on the march and in camp, and they meant it, and though it was impossible owing to certain circumstances, to deliver the goods exactly on the minute, Shafter's army had a settled determination to keep its promise.

The trouble at Santiago began Friday, July 1, at 4 o'clock in the morning, with the American advance and a joint attack on Agudoz to the south by Gen. Duffield, and an attack on El Caneby, to the north-east of Santiago, by Gen. Lawton's division.

The first shot was fired by Capt. Allyn Capron of the First artillery, whose son, Capt. Allyn K. Capron, was killed in the charge of the rough riders at La Quisnua. It fell in the center of the town, and it was followed by a rapid succession of other batteries, and from the Second artillery, under Capt. Grimes, who had taken a good position at El Paso, until the defenders of El Caneby were completely overwhelmed by the generosity of their visitors and "annihilated."

Grimes and Capron then began to shell the outer intrenchments of Santiago. Under cover of their fire, Col. Wood, with the rough riders, started toward the works. The advance was rapid and brilliant, and the Spaniards of the powder was something for Spaniards to wonder at for many a day. The batteries were silenced, the enemy retreated, and Wood's command occupied a line of hills where they could be comfortable and shoot Spaniards for the rest of the day.

During the fighting on the right, Gen. Sumner had commanded the center, on account of Gen. Wheeler's illness, but by 1:30 o'clock Wheeler decided he could stand it any longer and started for the front in an ambulance. On the way he met wounded soldiers being taken to the rear in litters, so he gave up the ambulance, mounted his horse amid the frantic cheers of his men, and soon had his horse and rider surrounded by the enemy. By night the army had advanced two and a half miles all along the line. Lawton's division had driven the enemy beyond El Caneby and down the main road to Cabana. Gen. Shafter had sent 2,000 Cubans on transports to Agudoz to prevent the west of Santiago bay from being cut off by the advance and prevent the retreat of the Santiago garrison. Spaniards' feet had pounded away at the Morro Castle and had pulverized the fort at Agudoz. Two thousand Spanish troops were prisoners, and about 400 Americans had been killed and wounded. The only semblance of a reprieve was at Agudoz, on the extreme left, at the mouth of the San Juan river, and it is not certain that Gen. Duffield intended more than a diversion at that point.

Before the second day's fight began the town was shelled so that 12,000 Americans were extended over a front of three miles. Reinforcements and more ammunition were brought up.

Saturday morning the Spaniards were awakened bright and early, roused out of Agudoz, and pushed along a little nearer town. Sampson began dropping shells into the San Juan barracks. Lawton began crawling the enemy's lines, pouring in a fierce oblique fire. Corvera's fleet, now passed into history, got the range of the American line and bothered the troops considerably.

It was not Shafter's object to assail the town on the second day, as he lacked siege guns, so the army merely stood by and held its position, ready for an advance in case Lawton's fire developed exceptional opportunities for a rush. The purpose of the day was more than gained, as Lawton's son went to Shafter in the afternoon that had taken several good positions for artillery.

It was on the third day that Corvera decided that Santiago was getting too warm for him, and, like a gallant sailor, he preferred sinking in the open sea to dying like a rat in a trap. So he started to cut his way out. That was to be the end of the wanderings of the Cape Verde fleet, for the shore from Santiago de Cuba, sixty miles west to Point Turquoise, is strewn to-day with its wrecked and burned and battered hulks. It was a gallant dash, but fatal.

The Colon, the Infanta Maria Teresa, the Vizcaya and the Oquendo, followed by the torpedo gunboats Furor and Pluton, issued from the harbor mouth, and it is probably due to one Hobson that they were not destroyed on their way out. They started westward, and owing to that fact Shafter was elected by a heartless fate out of the glory of battle, for which he had schemed and planned and watched and hoped and prayed for six weary weeks. The acting rear admiral's flagship, the New York, had gone on a cruise to the eastward and was so far away when the battle began she did not catch up until it was practically all over.

A Fight for Sixty Miles. It was a running fight for sixty miles. The Iowa, Indiana and Oregon, the Massachusetts, Texas and Brooklyn, the Maine and the Albatross, were ordered to get well out of range of Morro's guns and then turned loose a hurricane of shot and shell that never slackened its furious force until the last Spanish ship ran on the rocks.

The Infanta Maria Teresa, the Oquendo and the Vizcaya came out with a thin twenty miles of Santiago. The Furor and Pluton, after driving back and forth between the Gloucester and the battleships, decided to take their chances with the Gloucester, and hurled themselves at the little craft. But on the breeze was a westerly wind, and the Gloucester did not forget. The Gloucester was struck time and again, but with her little six-pounders she set both hulls afire, and they ran on the beach, where one blew up with her own torpedoes.

The Colon, Admiral Corvera's flagship, hunted like a wounded wolf, ran along the shore for sixty miles, looking for some refuge from the merciless attacks of her pursuers. She found none, and at last hoisted the white flag and was scuttled. American boats took off most of her crew, and the Spanish admiral surrendered as soon as he reached the shore. The lives of 350 of his men were blown out by the terrible hail of American shot, 1,600 were taken prisoners of war, and all with but one American marine killed. Gen. Wheeler maintained his position and demanded the surrender of the city. The demand was refused, and foreign residents and non-combatants began moving out. After four days of fighting as glorious as any that ever graced the annals of a nation the invading army halted within 300 yards of the harbor wire fence of Santiago, and the city's doom was sealed. The total American loss is estimated at about 1,800 men. The Spanish loss can only be surmised.

Madrid Reports that Three Warships Destroyed Alfonso XII. The Spanish version of the sinking of the warship Alfonso XII, is that she was destroyed by a higher message to Gen. Greely, briefly stating that the Alfonso XII, which had been overhauled near Mariel while trying to escape through the cordon of American ships, and that she was a total loss as a result of the fierce fire poured upon her.

Will Not Seek Peace.

A Spanish cabinet minister is quoted in a review as saying that the present Government of Spain will devote itself solely to the defense of the Spanish Republic and that the peace negotiations must be opened there and will be conducted by another Government.

SHAFTER'S SIEGE GUNS STORMING SANTIAGO.

WILL CARRY THE WAR TO SPAIN. SCHLEY GIVEN CREDIT.

Commodore Watson's Squadron Will Start Within a Week. Commodore Watson has been ordered to arrange his squadron at once for the march against the Spanish coast. Within a week the Newark and the Netherlands Iowa and Oregon will be on their way across the Atlantic. Signals may be seen from the coast of Cuba and waiting for a chance to get at the Cape Verde fleet, because he didn't crush it. If Corvera had escaped, Schley, left on guard, deserves the honor.

GENERAL DON ARSENIO LINARES.

Commander of the Spanish troops at Santiago, who was seriously wounded. not call Camara's fleet, now through the Straits of Cuba, to take the Canary and return the coast of Spain. If Camara retired, Watson will smash him. There is no hope for that fleet. It will be destroyed as was Montojo's fleet at Manila and Corvera's at Cebu. Admiral Dewey has won the war in the Philippines. If Camara neither goes

SPANIARDS SEEM TO HAVE CONCENTRATED THEIR FIRE ON SCHLEY'S FLAGSHIP.

When the Spanish fleet left Santiago de Cuba was with the intention to make for the Canary Islands, to secure coal and provisions. All the ships were very short of coal, the Cristobal Colon having only two days' supply, which she had concentrated at Santiago. The Spaniards concentrated their fire on the battleships, but the American gunners, which they considered the fastest of the American warships, and this gave an opportunity at least for one or two of the Spanish boats to escape. The Brooklyn was hit forty-five times.

HOBSON IS EXCHANGED.

Hero and His Seven Companions Safe Within Our Lines. The Spanish authorities consented to exchange Hobson and his men, and a truce was established for the purpose. The plan was for a change of the Spanish boats to the American line, two-thirds of a mile beyond the intrenchments occupied by Col. Wood's rough riders, near Gen. Wheeler's headquarters, and in the center of the American line. Hobson and his men were exchanged through the courtesy of Capt. Chadwick of the New York, who was awaiting them.

VIZCAYA'S DECK BLOWN AWAY.

Frightful Destruction Visible on the Spanish Cruiser. The correspondents who visited the wreck of the Spanish cruiser Vizcaya after the fight found the upper deck of the ship completely gone. Frightful destruction was visible everywhere. Dead gunners were found by their guns, and scores of dead sailors were found on the deck amid the debris of small arms, brass guns and wreckage. A great quantity of the equipments of the Spanish officers was floating about the wreck.

Cubans Are Good Fighters.

In speaking of the conduct of the Cubans, an officer of the Albatross says that they make good irregular soldiers. In a fight the Cubans usually throw away their guns and rush into the scrimmage with pistols and machetes, swearing in Spanish, and English when they can, and during the Spanish stand up before the "Almighty Cuban-American." This makes them effective skirmishers, but they lack discipline for hard, stand-up fighting.

ALFONSO XII SHOT TO PIECES.

Spanish Warship Destroyed While Trying to Escape from Havana. While attempting to run the blockade out of Havana the Spanish warship Alfonso XII, was shot to pieces by an American cruiser. News to this effect came to Secretary Long in a report from Gen. Greely, chief signal officer. It was conveyed by a cipher message to Gen. Greely, briefly stating that the Alfonso XII, which had been overhauled near Mariel while trying to escape through the cordon of American ships, and that she was a total loss as a result of the fierce fire poured upon her.

REINA MERCEDES SUNK.

Trics to Leave Santiago Harbor and Is Sent to the Bottom. Admiral Sampson telegraphed the Navy Department the following dispatch: "About midnight Monday night the Reina Mercedes was captured by the Massachusetts, coming out of the harbor of Santiago. The Massachusetts and Texas opened fire and the Spanish vessel was sunk opposite Detalle Cove. She was sunk with a total loss of all hands. The crew of the vessel and part of the cargo were saved."

ROOSEVELT'S MEN CHARGE SAN JUAN.

Received Corvera's Sword. George H. Norman, Jr., now on the Gloucester, had the honor and pleasure of receiving Corvera's sword when the admiral surrendered. Young Norman's brother, George, is with the rough riders. Norman are the sons of George H. Norman of Boston.

IOWA'S FINE WORK.

"FIGHTING BOB" TELLS OF THE BIG NAVAL BATTLE.

Captain Evans' Ship the First to See Corvera Emerging from Santiago Harbor—Hot Running Duel with the Battleships—Americans' Heroic Work.

Description by Evans. The battleship Iowa was the first ship to see the Spanish fleet coming from the harbor. She was the first to see the Spanish fleet coming from the harbor. She was the first to see the Spanish fleet coming from the harbor.

"At the time 'general quarters' was sounded the engine bell rang full speed ahead and I put the helm to starboard and the Iowa crossed the bows of the Infanta Maria Teresa, the first ship out. As the Spanish admiral swung to the westward, the 12-inch shells from the forward turret of the Iowa opened to strike him fair in the bow and the ship was a spectacle. As the squadron came out in column, the ships beautifully spaced as to distance and gradually increasing their speed to thirteen knots, it was superb.

"The Iowa from this moment kept up a sally fire from her heavy guns, leading the time to keep the Infanta Maria Teresa on her starboard bow and hoping to ram one of the leading ships. In the meantime, the Oregon, Indiana, Brooklyn and Texas were doing excellent work with their heavy guns.

"In a very short space of time the enemy's ships were all clear of the harbor mouth and it became evidently impossible for the Iowa to ram either the first or second class ship on account of their speed.

"The range at this time was 2,000 yards from the leading ship. The Iowa's helm was immediately put hard to the starboard and the entire starboard side

THE BATTLESHIP IOWA.

TELLS HIS STORY.

Lieutenant Hobson's Account of the Sinking of the Merrimac. The return of Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond P. Hobson of Merrimac, to his ship, the flagship New York, was marked by wild enthusiasm. As Hobson sat once more among his messmates he told the story of his experience, his narrow escape and his imprisonment in Morro Castle.

"We have been thirty-three days in a Spanish prison," said Hobson, "and the more I think about it the more marvelous it seems that we are alive.

"It was about 2 o'clock in the morning when a small boat approached the narrow channel and steamed in under the guns of Morro Castle. The stillness of death prevailed. It was so dark that we could scarcely see the headland. We had planned to drop our starboard anchor at a certain point to the right of the channel, but the boat was approaching us from the Merrimac around, sinking her directly across the channel.

"This plan was adhered to, but circumstances rendered its execution impossible. When the Merrimac poked her nose into the channel our troubles commenced. The deadly silence was broken by the hiss of a small boat approaching us from the shore. I made her out to be a picket boat. She ran close up under the stern of the Merrimac and fired several shots from what seemed to be three-pound guns.

"The Merrimac's rudder was carried away by this fire. That is why the collision was not averted. We did not discover the loss of the rudder until Murphy cast anchor. We then found that the Merrimac would not answer to the helm and were compelled to make the best of the situation.

"The run up the channel was very exciting. The picket boat had given the alarm and in a moment the guns of the Vizcaya, the Almirante Oquendo, and the shore batteries were turned upon us. Submarine mines and torpedoes were also exploded about us, adding to the excitement. The mines did no damage, although we could hear rumbling and could feel the ship vibrating.

"We were running without lights and only the darkness saved us from utter destruction. When the ship was in the desired position and we found that the rudder was gone I called the men on deck. While they were launching the catamaran I touched off the explosives. At the same moment two torpedoes fired by the Reina Mercedes struck the Merrimac and she was lifted out of the water and almost rent asunder. As she settled down we scrambled overboard and cut away the catamaran. A great cheer went up from the deck and warships as the hull of the collier foundered. The Spaniards thinking the Merrimac was an American warship.

"We attempted to get out of the harbor on the catamaran, but a strong tide was running and daylight found us still struggling in the water. Then for the first time the Spaniards saw us, and a boat from the Reina Mercedes picked us up. It then was shortly after 5 o'clock in the morning, and we had been in the water more than an hour. We were taken ashore by the Reina Mercedes and later were sent to Morro Castle. In Morro Castle we were confined in cells at the rear of the fortress and were there the first day the squadron bombarded Morro. I could only hear the whistling of shells and the noise they made when they struck, but I judged from the conversation of the guards that the shells did considerable damage. A British bombardment, Mr. Ramsden, the British consul, and we were removed to the hospital."

SHELLS THE TOWN.

SANTIAGO IS BOMBARDED FOR TWO HOURS.

Messenger Bearing a Flag of Truce Seen Coming from the City Just as the Army Was Getting Ready to Open Its Attack.

Vessels Shell the Town. Off Santiago de Cuba, via Playa del Este, July 11.—(Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press.)—At half past 9 this morning, after several range finding shots over the ridge protecting Santiago from the sea, the United States cruiser Newark opened fire into the city with her 8-inch guns. The signal corps officers stationed on top of the ridge reported the effect of the shots. The New York, Brooklyn and Indiana participated in the firing at intervals of five minutes.

The bombardment lasted for two hours, when Gen. Shafter reported that the shells were mostly falling in the bay and doing but little damage. The last shot, however, struck a prominent church in the heart of the city which was heavily stored with powder and ammunition, causing a tremendous explosion. The extent of the damage is not yet known.

When the warships ceased firing, and before Gen. Shafter had begun the land attack, a flag of truce was seen coming from the city. The object of this was not known at noon today, when the correspondent of the Associated Press left the front.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon the United States auxiliary cruiser Yale, with Gen. Nelson A. Miles, and the United States protected cruiser Columbia, arrived. Rear Admiral Sampson visited Gen. Miles immediately on his arrival, and then the Yale went to Sbonoy, Gen. Miles and his personal staff landing in a pouring rain.

Sunday's Fighting. Headquarters of Gen. Shafter, Sunday, July 10, 8 p. m., per the Associated Press Dispatch Boat, via Kingston, Jamaica, July 11.—(Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press.)—From 4 o'clock this afternoon until dark the American fleet was again being pouring in a deadly fire into the Spanish lines. Our men are greatly refreshed by their three days' rest and have been fighting with lionlike spirit. The knowledge of the arrival of reinforcements gives them new enthusiasm.

The new artillery is in place and is expected to do effective work. The position of the Spanish is almost in darkness tonight and our men believe the resistance of the enemy is about at an end. They expect a general assault tomorrow should the city not have surrendered by daybreak. The Americans are now much better fortified in the trenches.

On Board the Associated Press Boat. Off Agudoz, July 10, Via Port Antonio, July 11.—(Copyright, 1938, by the Associated Press.)—The Brooklyn, Indiana and Texas, under Schley, began the bombardment of Santiago at 6:15 this afternoon, in response to a signal from Shafter. The warships lined up a quarter of a mile from the shore, fired over the line, shells which came down to the beach and hid the city five miles away. The bombardment lasted an hour.

After thirty-six shots had been fired from the battleships, the Spanish command continued the bombardment at intervals of two minutes. Signals from the shore announced that the shells fell a thousand feet short and a little to the left of the Spanish position. At dusk the squadron ceased firing and Schley sent a launch ashore to ask Shafter if he desired the flag to continue under the night.

Flowers for Her Shunt-In. Coming down in the street car this morning a dear old lady residing in the Garden District entered the car with a beautiful bunch of Malmaison roses, sweet olive and multiflora. Taking a seat by my side she laughingly said: "Now, please don't ask for any of my flowers, for they are intended for my daughter. Whenever I go downtown shopping I take a bunch of flowers to the stores, and when I see a sad-faced, wood-looking saleswoman I give her the flowers. These girls are at work from 9 a. m. until 9 p. m., with no opportunity to enjoy sunshine or flowers, and I tell them my shunt-ins."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

At a public dinner some years ago, Mark Twain had just finished a big speech when Mr. Evans, of the Associated Press, moved both of his hands down into his waistcoat pockets, as was his habit, and laughingly remarked: "Doesn't it strike the company as a little unusual that a professional humorist should be laughing at this silly bad habit?" and then drawled out: "Doesn't it strike the company as a little unusual that a lawyer should have his hands in his own pockets?"

"Knowledge is power!" There is one kind of knowledge that is power and prestige in the hands of women. It is the knowledge of her own nature, her own physical make-up and her own health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a book that teaches all this. It is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Over 1,200,000 American homes contain copies of this work. It is used to cure 250,000,000 people. For a paper covered copy send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.; French cloth binding, 31 stamps.

This great book tells all about a medicine that is an unfailing cure for all weakness and disease of the delicate organs distinctly feminine. That medicine is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. During the past thirty years many thousands of women have used it with marvelous results. It imparts health, vigor, vitality, strength and elasticity to the organs that bear the burden of child-bearing, and restores the motherhood. Taken during the period of gestation, it makes the coming of baby easy and almost painless. It completely banishes the pain and suffering that are the result of a woman's neglecting her womanly health. An honest medicine dealer will give you what you ask for, and not try to persuade you to take some inferior substitute for the little added profit he may make thereon.

Mrs. Jas. Schaffner, of Freemansburg, Northampton Co., writes: "I was so pleased that I write to let you know the great good I have received from your medicines and the local self-interest that I have. I was troubled with female weakness, had pains in my back all the time, sometimes so severe that I could not lie in bed at night. I tried different doctors, but they could not help me. Then my husband got Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, and induced me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. After taking six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I feel like a new woman."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two mild cathartics. (Drugs will kill them, and nothing is "just as good.")

Hayward, Mathews and Norris is a trio to draw to. Wouldn't they smash the fusion cruisers, though? Hey?

Camara was afraid to get too far away from Spain, and in consequence "turned tail" and made a bee line for Spain.

It begins to appear upon the horizon that the whole American people are perfectly satisfied with President McKinley, and why not?

Spanish prisoners are becoming very numerous and they are about as happy as any other people, and apparently enjoy Uncle Sam's rations.

When it is remembered that the Virginia affair occurred at Santiago, retribution in the present condition of the Spaniards there is plainly visible.

The United States now occupies a position among the first-class nations of the world. In less than another century Uncle Sam will step into first place.

The United States now holds a prominent position in the Pacific Ocean. Hawaii is the property of Uncle Sam and the great American people heartily welcome her.

The freedom of the Cubans is not far distant, and thus another people will know what it is to be free and independent people and not the subjects of butcherers.

It will be a cold day for Blanco when American guns are turned on Havana, and unless Spain sues for peace, the war will be on at Havana before the geese wend their way southward.

The history written during the administration of President McKinley will be the most interesting known to the world, in which the President will form a most conspicuous figure.

Our fusion friends will find there are any number of republican candidates for state offices this fall, and that's not all, some of them will be nominated and elected, too.

Meiklejohn is going to Cuba to see the condition of things there. He is being depended on just as Charles A. Dana was in the rebellion. And he is meeting every requirement.—Fremont Tribune.

Hobson and his brave followers were exchanged for Spanish prisoners on Friday, and on their way to the flagship New York were given an ovation long to be remembered, showing that our soldiers worship their heroes.

The following Hawaiian Commissioners have been named by the President: Senator Morgan of Alabama, Senator Cullom of Illinois, Representative Pitt of Illinois, President Dole of Hawaii and Chief Justice Judd of the Hawaiian supreme court.

Wm. McKinley will go down in history as one of the greatest of American Presidents, and the period of his administration one of the most brilliant known to the world, while the matchless achievements of the United States will be the wonder of the entire world.

Congress has adjourned after making history that will be read by the American people in 100 years to come. The House adjourned singing patriotic airs in which member present, Star Spangled Banner and A. evidencing the great fact that a free and united people.

Richard Wainwright, who was second in command of the Maine, was commander of the little protected cruiser Gloucester, formerly the yacht Casate, and it was his vessel that sank the two Spanish torpedo boats, the Pluto and Furor. Well did he remember the Maine. He also received the defeated Admiral Cervera on board his vessel.

The first test of the popularity of the war policy in the United States was in the Oregon state election held the first of the month. Of late years Oregon has been classed as pretty safely within the fusion democrat-populist fold. The republicans had all the various silver combinations against them this year but they carried the whole state ticket by a goodly majority. There is no question of the majority of the American people supporting the administration. The only thing the republicans have to fear now is the possibility of a temporary reverse that before the fall election.—Bulletin, Honolulu, June 24.

ALL AT SEA.

Speaking through one of the phonographs that seem to have been sent over the country by the New York Evening Post on the subject of foreign trade expansion through reciprocity treaties and other practical measures, the Detroit Free Press vociferates ecophonically thus:

All this is entirely out of keeping with the doctrine of Protection to home industry, and shows that the Republican party is drifting away from one of its cardinal principles. To have increased our foreign trade to its great volume of over $1,200,000,000 for the fiscal year just closed, to have increased our exports of manufactured products so that they exceed in value by $50,000,000 the gross sum of our imports of foreign manufactures, and to have secured for the United States a credit merchandise balance of $300,000,000 for the year ending June 30, 1897, is indeed "entirely out of keeping with the doctrine of Protection," as it is misconceived and misrepresented by the Free-Trade press. But these grand results have nevertheless been accomplished mainly because of the operations of the American policy which first secures the home market to home producers and then opens the way for the swift capture of foreign markets.

It is but a little while ago that the Free-Traders were harping continually on one string, thus: "Protection means commercial isolation, death to foreign trade expansion, and the certain animosity of the outside world." Now that the folly of this assertion is so conclusively demonstrated by the marvelous commercial statistics of the year, the tune changes, and the graphophone squeaks out the refrain: "The Republican party is drifting away from one of its cardinal principles." And the reply of a prosperous country is "Let her drift, if you call that drifting which has made us a creditor nation to the extent of $600,000,000 in eleven months of the Dingley Tariff!"

Meanwhile, the party of Americanism and brains and common sense may be found doing business at the same old stand and in the same old way. It is the lanky derelict of the Cobdenites that is drifting and foundering with its cargo of water-logged theories and moldy loggans. In the bright blaze of unequaled national prosperity the Free-Trade mariners seem to have completely lost their bearings. Too much sunning has blinded their eyes and upset their reckonings. They are all at sea.—American Economist.

RIGHT ABOUT FACE.

When the president issued his ultimatum to Spain which brought on his declaration of war in a few hours, the "friends of the people" and especially Jerry Simpson, claimed that he had been absolutely forced into it by their able onslaught. They alleged that as the tool of the trusts and monopolies, the president was fighting against war and the independence of Cuba with all his might and main, but thanks to the patriotism of the pops, and the big racket they made, the people, "the great common people," had risen up and "forced the hand" of the administration. But that sort of thing is getting a little stale and the great common people evidently forgetting all about Jerry and Billy Bryan and the great principle of 16 to 1, and the crime of '73 while they were watching their brothers and sons marching off to Manila and Cuba, the pops have adopted a new war cry.

They now clamor with all the wind that is left in them, that this unholy war of conquest was brought on by the trusts and monopolies for the sole purpose of distracting the attention of the people from their suffering at the hands of the plutocrats, and that policy of "imperialism" has been adopted solely to make an excuse for running all the capable young men of the country off to distant islands of the sea and keeping them there while the bloated aristocrats finish eating up this country, and that in this way there will be no escape for the poor man who will have nobody at hand to fight his battles for him and some day "appel from the ballot to the ballot" with Debs, Altgeld and Tillman to lie back and egg them on. It is frankly pitiable.

But as a tank movement it is one of the most soul inspiring sights in politics ever seen. The only drawback is that the great common people are so busy looking elsewhere that they fail to appreciate the magnitude of the pop strategy.—State Journal.

Hon. T. L. Mathews, one of Nebraska's highly respected citizens residing at Fremont, will no doubt receive the republican nomination for State Auditor, and The HERALD believes it will be the same of wisdom on the part of the state convention to place him in nomination. Mr. Mathews is clear, fair-minded, an honorable man, whose qualifications and fitness for the position are of a high order. He is a man whose character is not tainted with corruption and such are the kind of men to make a formidable campaign.

A United Senator will be elected at the session of the legislature next winter, and if the republicans use wisdom in their proceedings there is little doubt of the defeat of Senator Allen whose term expires. With good judgment and a disposition to be fair with all members of the republican party, the senator and representative in the district in which Wayne county is located can be elected.

When Senator Allen got tired of hearing himself talk, the Senate seconded the motion by a vote of 42 to 31, just two to one. Had he taken another day the vote on the Hawaiian annexation question would have been about three to one. He caught the one and quit.

Thrashing From the Shock.

To stack or not to stack is a question which those who grow grain have to weigh and consider to a greater or less extent every season. There are, of course, advantages about thrashing from the shock for the time was when nobody did it and now a good many people do it. There must be some advantage about the practice or it would not grow. There are, however, a good many disadvantages, too, and one's circumstances and the conditions in which he finds himself have much to do with the question, whether it is safe to attempt it at all or not. If the grain grower could have things entirely his own way there would be a good deal of advantage in thrashing from the shock. If he could get the thrasher just when he wanted it, and the help when he wanted it, the grain would all come out bright and clean; injuries from damaged stocks would be avoided, the work would be done up and out of the way once for all; the stubble field would be immediately available for grazing; the risks of bad weather would be avoided, and if the ground were seeded down to grass the grain and straw would all be cleared off and there would be no spotted stand. Unfortunately, however, the grain grower cannot have things his own way. To thrash from the shock takes a good deal more help, and, generally, can only be done by cooperation with one's neighbors and "swapping" work. While the one man that gets the thrasher and the hands first is in luck, the grain of the others is all standing out in the shock taking its chances. The labor is sorest at the time when thrashing from the shock must be done, for everybody is busy, and those who do not thresh themselves are busy stacking. Very often one has to wait until late in the fall, with the grain exposed in the shock, bad shocks falling over, the grain becomes bleached and weather beaten, the weeds growing up around the shocks, the down bundles sprouting, and if the land is seeded to grass, the presence of shocks smothering out about half of it. If the straw is regarded as valuable this also furnishes a reason for stacking rather than thrashing from the shock, for even though one does get the shock thrashing done early, it is almost impossible to stack the straw so that it will be protected. We are old-fashioned enough to believe, too, that grain should undergo a sweat before it is fit to thresh, and this can only be secured by stacking. Take the middle West thro' a collection of opinions on the subject, and you will probably find that shock thrashing has the most advocates in the far West, where there is little danger of damage from rainfall, and fewer as one comes east where rain is more abundant and more continuous through the season. We have known a single thunder storm to damage a field of shocked grain at least a third, and very many instances where the grain thrashed from the shock has suffered a loss of another third or more from the heating in the bin.

Still, there are cases where thrashing from the shock is advantageous. One of these is that to which we have already referred, where the grain grower can have things all his own way about the time when he can get the thrasher and the help. Another is where from any reason he must call at once. It is a safer course to pursue, too, in a dry season than in a wet one. If a grain grower don't know how to stack himself, and can't get it done so that it will turn water, it would probably be better for him to thresh out of the shock. A still better way, however, would be for him to learn to stack so that he would not be driven to thrashing from the shock unless circumstances make it the proper thing to do upon its own merits. The subject is one that will bear a good deal of thinking about. There are so many things in connection with thrashing from the shock that depend upon circumstances that are outside of the control of the grain grower, that we would always prefer stacking unless we felt well assured that we had all the adverse conditions pretty well in hand so that they would not run away with us.—Iowa Homestead.

Hauling Down the Flag.

It would be just nits for the Republicans for the Democratic party to make a platform based on giving up the Philippines or any other country over which the American flag once waved. The democrats could not carry Texas on that platform.—Poughkeepsie Eagle.

There seems to be little doubt that Cuban insurgents along the shore fired upon and killed a number of Spanish sailors who were struggling in the surf and across the beach in their efforts to escape from Cervera's shattered fleet. At first thought this will strike the average American as an exhibition of wanton barbarity. But the average American cannot put himself in the place of the Cuban insurgent, nor feel as the Cuban father, husband or brother feels who has experienced nothing save evidences of Spanish brutality during the past three years. There are thousands of men in the Cuban army whose aged fathers and mothers, whose wives and sisters and children, have been subjected to unspeakable atrocities at the hands of the Spaniards. These men cannot think of the nice points involved in the treatment of a disabled foe. They have been taught by bitter experience to think only of vengeance. No quarter has been shown them or their families, and they are prepared to give none. Barbarous the attack upon the unfortunate Spanish sailors really was, but the history of Cuba, for the past three years is a chapter of barbarities, and if the insurgents are bruties they have been brutalized by the representatives of a nation that lays claim to advanced civilization.—Inter Ocean.

Catarrh is Not Incurable

But it can not be cured by sprays, washes and inhaling mixtures which reach only the surface. The disease is in the blood, and can only be reached through the blood. S. S. S. is the only remedy which can have any effect upon Catarrh; it cures the disease permanently and forever rids the system of every trace of the complaint.

Miss Josie Owen, of Montpelier, Ohio, writes: "I was afflicted from infancy with Catarrh, and no one can know the suffering it produces better than I. The sprays and washes prescribed by the doctors relieved me only temporarily, and I was constantly for years, though I used them constantly for ten years, the disease had a firm hold than ever. I tried a number of blood remedies, but their mineral ingredients settled in my bones and gave me rheumatism. I was in a lamentable condition, and after exhausting all treatment, was declared incurable. Seeing S. S. S. advertised as a cure for blood diseases, I decided to try it. As soon as my system was under the effect of the medicine, I began to improve, and after taking it for two months I was cured completely, the dreadful disease was eradicated from my system, and I have had no return of it. I have never been taking local treatment for years, and find themselves worse now than ever. A trial of S. S. S. for Blood will prove it to be the right remedy for Catarrh. It will cure the most obstinate case. Books mailed free to any address by Swift Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

S.S.S. For Blood

The Spaniards forgot to unroll the Cervera squadron with barbed wire fences and now there is weeping, wailing and gnashing of teeth down where they talk spanish.

One would conclude in looking over the papers published in Honolulu, Hawaii, that they were printed here so nearly do they resemble the American papers, therefore it isn't any wonder that Hawaii desired to be annexed to the United States.
