PUZZLE FOR POLICE MATRON

At Loss to Know What to Do with Inscrutable Girl.

Looked up in the women's ward at police headquarters last night was Annie Schultz, a pretty, blue eyed blonde haired girl of 15, who should have been home with her mother, but instead had just been dragged by the police from a low resort in the Soudan. What to do with the girl was a problem which worried the matron of police.

She is an incorrigible of the worst sort, said the matron. "The girl has a good, respectable home in Wayne, Neb., and would receive kind treatment if she were to remain there. The industrial school for girls is the proper place for her, but I do not know that Iowa should bear the expense of her treatment in such a reformatory. She is determined to remain in a house of prostitution, and when I talked with her in a kindly way and told her if she did not quit the life and either go to work or return to her home, she said that if I did not allow her to remain in Sioux City she would go to Omaha or some other city where she could live a fast life. I do not know what to do with her."

A young man hung around the station last night and tried to obtain an interview with the girl, but the police would not permit him to see her. Sioux City Journal.

A LONG FELT WANT SUPPLIED.

For many years this city has needed an up-to-date, first class eye specialist, and since January 1, Dr. J. C. Clark from Sioux City, has been making his headquarters here. The wonderful success he has met with is conclusive as to his ability in his profession. The Doctor came to the Boyd Hotel June 28th, and remained three days. His rooms were crowded the whole time, and in fact, it is the same each time he comes. His patients number into the hundreds and they are all loyal in his praise. His next date to Wayne is July 25 and 27.

Belden News: As a town good streets is a very pretty place. It has wide streets. It is thickly studded with trees. It has some fine business blocks and handsome residence properties. But it is several sizes smaller than its reputation. It put up a very poor celebration the 4th. There was to much time between acts for gin fizz. The only really good thing on the program was the bicycle and military drills by the little ladies and these were fine. The hotels and restaurants vied with each other in serving dressed potatoes. But there was no tendency by the business men to rob the visitors. Even the livermen were reasonable. Some of Wayne's fair damsels should have been entered in the solitary horse race. It was dead slow. The next time we go to Wayne to celebrate we'll get a bottle of pop and a straw and stay to home.

A very small crowd was in attendance at the play given by the elocution class of the College last Friday night. The play was quite well rendered, but the picnic dinner scene was rather quiet for a crowd of girls. Miss Louise Sullivan did exceedingly well in the character of Anita, the Italian wail. Another play will be given by the College in about two weeks, and should be much better attended than this one was.

Dan Cavanaugh one of the hustling citizens of Winside, has established a new harness and saddlery store in that thriving town of elevators. He has put in and is receiving daily a fine line of harness, fly nets, Saddles, oils, and everything kept in a first-class establishment of this kind. Mr. Cavanaugh is well and favorably known in that section of the county, which insures him a successful business. He has also secured the services of a skilled manufacturer of harness, and solicits the patronage of the people.

HORRIBLE MURDER AND SUICIDE

Frank Lepley, a Bohemian farmer sixty years of age living near Stanton, murdered his wife in a horrible manner and then killed himself Tuesday evening. Lepley took a hammer and attacked his wife, beating her head almost to jelly, and the floor and walls of the room were covered with blood, showing that the woman made a brave fight for her life. A young son eight years old was present and begged his father to spare the mother's life, but he threatened to kill the boy who fled to a neighbors and told of the horrible crime. A party started at once for the scene of the murder, but when they arrived Lepley and wife were both dead, he having ended his own existence by taking a dose of poison. No reasons are given for the crime.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Fred Thies, who lives with his father on the Dressler farm one mile north of Winside was struck by lightning about four o'clock Sunday morning. A lantern was hanging up by the chimney, which he was after and just as he reached for it a bolt of lightning struck the chimney, striking young Thies in the shoulder and running from there to his hip, soldered together a number of pieces of money in his pocket, and passing on down the leg, paralyzed both arm and leg. While he was severely injured it is thought his recovery is possible.

SOLD OUT.

For some time it has been understood that the Bell Telephone Company would come into possession of the property of the Iowa and Nebraska Company in this section of the state, and on July 1st the latter conveyed its business to the former, and the Nebraska company, better known as the Bell Co., is now in possession. Mr. E. W. Pritchard has been retained as general manager of the system purchased as well as a portion of that in other territory. We are informed that no increase in the rate charged for the city exchange will be made, and only a slight increase in the tolls to make the rates uniform. Mr. Pritchard has given very general satisfaction, and it is to be hoped that the city will not be discriminated against in any way by the new company.

JIM AND MAY AND THE BABY.

About ten or twelve months ago Jas. Worthen, who lives near Carroll, decided to get married and having a sweetheart here in Iowa sent for her to come out here. On her arrival Worthen made up his mind that he was not quite ready to tie up and put the girl off with a promise to marry her in a week or so. However he failed to keep his promise and in a short time sent her back to Iowa, where in the course of time the young girl became a mother. She told her folks she was married but they mistrusted something was wrong and began to investigate the matter. As soon as the girl was able to travel she was sent back here, had the father of the child arrested and brought into court. With more promises of marriage he finally persuaded the girl to drop the case and accordingly she had the case dismissed. This was about three weeks ago. He took the girl to one of the neighbors promising to call for her the next Monday morning when they would get married. However he failed to put in an appearance and friends of the girl taking the matter up brought the case before the county commissioners who called a warrant in the hands of Sheriff Cherry for his arrest. The sheriff Worthen had at last come to the conclusion that he had better fulfill some of his promises and in company with the sheriff, the girl and the baby came to Wayne, secured a license and had Judge Hunter pronounce the words which made three hearts beat as one.

FELL UNCONSCIOUS.

A young man who had pulled too heavy on a log stick opposite the depot ground on the 6th inst. fell unconscious into the arms of a friend. He showed signs of a bad spinal strain. The manager of the Craig Indian Medicine Co. happened to be standing by the young man. He applied Craig's Indian oil externally and internally. The young man came to immediately. TO THE PACIFIC COAST

Frank Nangle Writes an Interesting Letter Descriptive of His Trip Out West, for Publication in The Herald.

PALO ALTO, CAL., July 3, '99.

Leaving Sioux Falls on Tuesday, June 27, I awoke in the morning on Wednesday and found I was near the end of Nebraska, riding over the Plains. We had left the lowlands and were rising towards the Rockies. Such a desolate place as those Plains are! Towns are a long distance apart and the naked prairie greets the eye in endless expanse. The prairie dog, coyote and jack-rabbit were our only companions. Prairie dogs! Thousands of them close by the track and seeming not to fear the train at all. The towns are small and far between. A few shanties are out on the prairie, and here and there a herd of cattle, but not many; you know there is very little for them to eat. Cactus and sage brush are the prevailing plants. Cactus, you should see it! The ground in some places is literally covered with it, and those gorgeous red, white and yellow blossoms make a beautiful sight. The air now was crisp and bracing, apparently as dry as tinder, and rather cool.

At 5:20 Wednesday morning we first caught sight of the Rockies stretching away in snow-covered grandeur to the North. They were nearly 150 miles away. We steadily came nearer and about eight o'clock pulled into Denver. Say! I thought Omaha was a rustling place, fine buildings, etc. Well, it is not in it at all with the metropolis of Colorado. More business, more money, more people, more fine buildings, more of everything that goes to make up an American city, than Omaha could ever dream of. We had an hour of a stop there and I improved by walking nearly a mile up into the city. I went into the Brown Palace Hotel which is said to be the finest hotel building in the United States. And such magnificence! The office or rotunda is about half a block square, and opens clear up to the roof, eight stories above. It is finished in a beautiful clear stone, which looks like alabaster. And such furnishing! It is by far the grandest building I was ever in. We left Denver and started south over the Denver & Rio Grande towards Pueblo, getting there at noon. Phew! but it was hot, then. I think, literally, Pueblo is the hottest town I ever was in. We stopped there 20 minutes for dinner. Then westward along the Arkansas river. It is a large stream and we followed it toward its source. I had expected scenery on this trip and I got it now. We soon ran into the mountains, and shortly after entered the Royal Gorge of the Arkansas. Oh, such mountains! Great masses of rock rising several hundred feet into the air on either side of the river and at the bottom the water dashing, foaming and bubbling over the stones. Close beside the river and right against the rocky wall ran the railroad. Dozens of times, a hand stretched out on one side would be dashed to pieces against the impene-trable stone, while on the other you could drop anything directly into the angry foam of the river. Sometimes the roar of the water was deafening and completely drowned the noise of the train. Once we ran over a bridge which was suspended from the rocky walls of the canon, there being no support for it below. Then we left the gorge and followed the river on up towards the mountains rising, ever rising towards that land of perpetual snow which was in plain sight all afternoon. How odd it did seem to look out as the sun's rays became unbearable and we pulled down the curtains, to see the snow drifts lying in long lines only a few miles away. The breeze from them tempered the atmosphere so that it was very comfortable, except when directly in the sun. At last we reached Tennessee Pass, the highest point in the route, 10,418 feet, and although at that immense elevation I felt no inconvenience, others seemed to be suffering some. About two miles away, and apparently right on a level with the depot, lay several large snow banks, and from that direction came a small rivulet over which a man might step—the Arkansas river which we all afternoon had been following. Then we passed through a two mile tunnel and before the descent on the other side beside a small stream which sprang from some rocks near by, and which my map told me, was soon to become the Grand River with the most wonderful accessible canon on earth. The engineer evidently quit work right about here, and the fireman went to sleep, for we ran at a rate that I haven't seen equalled. Down long straight descents, around curves where the engine was almost at an angle of 90° to the last car. There were twelve on the train. Through tunnels and over bridges which spanned the rapidly increasing Grand; now past pleasant valleys, and now through narrow canons we dashed until we found ourselves at nightfall more than three thousand feet lower than we had been at five o'clock. We passed through the celebrated canon of the Grand after dark so that we missed that most wonderful sight. At Glenwood Springs I stayed all night, and took the next train in the morning. We soon left the more mountainous country and came into that part of the valley of the Grand which is noted for fruit raising. I saw thousands of acres of irrigated land planted to fruit trees. Irrigation is all right. In some places I saw the farmers cutting and putting up large crops of alfalfa, while in another place on the same farm another man would be opening the trenches to water splendid looking crops of corn, potatoes and also the fruit trees. They don't fear rain when they cut their hay. About noon we left the grand and struck into the desert. And such a desert! Sand and alkali in every direction hemmed in by mountains which were nearly always in the dim and hazy distance. Just as the shades of night began to prevail we passed through the Wasatch Range and came into the rich and fertile country south of the Great Salt Lake. I am very sorry that this was so for I wanted to see that country, but we passed it all at night, including the Sacred City of the Mormons. We reached Ogden at midnight and soon started for the coast over the Central Pacific. More desert, more alkali, with the dust nearly choking one and covering all goods and chattels with a fine white powder. More clay banks as we passed through Nevada and then another night. When I awoke this (Saturday) morning I saw at once we were in a different country. The mountains were covered with fress and shrubs. Everything had more the appearance of God's country. We soon ran through nice-looking little towns from which the famous California fruit is shipped. For instance, one town—Roseville, I was told by a resident, exports seven cups of fruit per day, during the fruit season. We broke our fast at Sacramento, said by many to be the most beautiful city in the U. S., and certainly our view of the city did not belie the statement. The run to the coast was short. We were carried—engine, cars and all, across the Sacramento river on the largest ferryboat in the world. Then to Oakland and across the bay to the metropolis of the Pacific Coast, the city of the Golden Gate, the hills built on seventeen—maybe more—levels. Naturally the muscular organs which are wont to perform the ordinary functions of my body, were not existing in that blissful state which we designate complete restfulness. In other words, I was tired, not to speak of the real estate which was resting on my brow—and everywhere else. So I went out at once to the Sutter baths and after taking a long look at the Pacific rolling and tumbling on the shore as it has for ages past and will for ages to come, I went into that magnificent bath house covering several acres and tumbled myself into the green waters of the ocean. Was it salty? Why really, I got outside of so much of it that I haven't needed seasoning in my food since. It was immense. Then this afternoon I made the hours' run down here, went out to the University, and—you know the rest.

BATTLE OF TINY FOES.

ONE MALARIA GERM AGAINST THREE LUSTY PHAGOCYTES.

Combat Observed Under a Microscope—Causes of Malaria and Life of the Microbe—How Mosquitoes Transmit the Disease to Men.

If there were no mosquitoes in the world probably there would be no malaria. This is because malaria is caused by a microbe which is carried about from person to person by the mosquito.

The malaria germ propagates its species by segmentation. Periodically every day, or every three days, or every four days, according to the type of the disease, the malaria germ...

When the segmentation at last is complete, some wonderful process of telepathy, or perhaps the recognition of the germ itself at the end of the then stage of its existence, gives what might be called an intra-brain signal...

While there can be no doubt that malaria in its several forms is the result of a microbe, it is yet evident that there are conditions under which the germ will not thrive.

In the country it is hard to get help for the household work. Wives, mothers and daughters who do their own work should have the very best of everything to do it with. Ivory Soap is the best; it cleans quickest and is easiest on the hands. It floats.

A WORD OF WARNING.—There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the best." They are not, but like all counterfeiters, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Look out for any old fusion howl this fall. The goong has sounded.

Who is to be the next republican state supreme judge. The right man our defeat Holcomb, easily.

The supreme court will be asked to pass upon the new law which will have gone into effect July 1st. Audit of Cornell declares the new law unconstitutional.

The big bugaboo to the Haveneyer sugar trust is the fact that the Dingley tariff knocked off about six million a year of profit from that octopus. That's what's the matter with Haveneyer.

The political eddy has become ruff and it will not be many weeks before the polling point will be reached. The HERALD feels in sympathy with any poor son-of-a-gun that runs for office.

The Greater America Exposition may be likened to a beautiful Dresden vase containing nothing but foxtail and dog-fennel.—Bee.

The free school system has already been established at Manila. In a few years the Philippines will realize how far behind the times they were, and will have supreme faith in their savior, the Right Hon. Uncle Samuel.

The prosperity that has visited the country during the first half of this year continues through the last half. This country's howler will be in a worse predicament than Coxey's army was during the "good-old-democratic" times.

The Banoroff Blade says "when you hear a man sneer at the local paper, remember a sensible paragrapher, you can safely put it down that he doesn't understand his money making it better. The man who can't see the benefits arising to a town from his newspaper's factory little benefit to a community.

Mr. Bryan condemns the attorney general of the United States for failing to enforce the federal anti-trust laws, but nobody has ever heard Mr. Bryan condemn the attorney general of Nebraska for refusing to enforce the anti-trust laws in his own state. The attorney general of the United States is a republican and the attorney general of Nebraska is a popocrat. Hence these hours.—Bee.

The Globe Democrat says that "Gen. Harrison Gray Otis is another man who thinks the Senate's delay in ratifying the treaty was the cause of the Philippine outbreak. Otis was in the island at the time, and probably knew much more about the conditions in that quarter than anybody. His judgment is endorsed by everybody whose opinion on the subject is entitled to any weight. Aguinado thought that Gorman, Hoar and other obstructives in the Senate represented the majority of the American people. He had an idea that Bryan, Atkinson, Garrison and the other copperheads would either go over to the Philippines themselves and help him to prevent the government from sending him any more soldiers over to crush him. Aguinado made a very serious mistake, but the mistake was made by Gorman, Hoar, Bryan, Billy Wood, Atkinson and the rest of the gang of copperheads are responsible for the loss of every American life which has been expended in the Philippines. The American people will attend to those rascals if any of them come up as candidates for any office hereafter."

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY AND THE PEOPLE.

A beautiful illustration of the mud-diness of mind which characterizes the average demagogue of today is furnished by an agitator named Lawrence Gronlund. "In this country," says Gronlund, "we have on the one side a party with wealth and brains, the Republican party, but with no good will toward the masses. On the other side we have the Democratic party, which has absolutely no brains, but which has good will toward the masses."

Gronlund's characterization of the Democracy is a little more favorable to that party than the judgements passed upon it. The Democracy has often been stigmatized as the "organized ignorance and vice of the country," it has good will, but no sense, according to Gronlund. It means well, but does not know.

Gronlund's assertion that the Republican party, with all its wealth, and brains has "no good will toward the masses," has a comical sound. Good will toward the masses—the defence of the people against the slave oligarchy of the democratic party who wanted to spread their system of bondage through the territories and reduce the workingmen of the North, as they already had those of the South, to the conditions of serfs—was the cardinal principle on which the republican party was founded. The Republican party accomplished its object, but in doing this, it, of course, had to overthrow the Democracy, and to keep it overthrown for a quarter of a century. The Republican party enacted a home-stead law, which the democracy always opposed, and which a Democracy president vetoed when passed at one time by Republican votes. This act which a Republican Congress passed and which a Republican President signed, has provided free homes for millions of persons in the past third of a century. It has materially aided in peopling every state from the Allegheries to the Pacific, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Canadian line, in the entire hundred years of the Democracy's career that party never gave any aid to the people which will bear an instant's comparison with the splendid service which the Republican party rendered to human freedom and civilization in each of these magnificent achievements.

This Socialist agitator is far astray on matters of American history. What Gronlund says about the Democracy's stupidity is to be sure, correct, except that nobody has ever heard, except from the mouths of demagogues like Bryan and Debs, that that party ever showed any good will toward the masses. It is clear that Gronlund never heard of all about the slavery conflict or the free homestead issue, or if he did some body must have told him that the Democracy was on the opposite side from that on which it fought. If the Democracy had succeeded in its slavery conspiracy of 1854 of all the territories of the union would have been open to this day to human bondage, and the cause of free labor would have been hampered in all of them. If the Democracy's plot of 1850 had to keep free lands out of the hands of the people had succeeded, half a dozen or more states now in the union would be in the wilderness, the population of the country would be many millions less than it is today, and the country's prosperity and prestige would be immeasurably below its present "line." If the Republican party had never done anything else for the people than what has been done, these two splendid achievements alone would give it a place in American history high above any rank which any other party in the country's politics has ever attained.—Globe-Democrat.

Our baby has been continually troubled with colic and cholera infantum since his birth, and all that we could do for him did not seem to give more than temporary relief, until we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Since giving that remedy he has not been troubled. We want to give you this testimonial as an evidence of our gratitude, not that you need it to advertise your meritorious remedy.—G. M. Mr. Bryan will observe that the rest of the country has passed up several notches while he was standing where he did two years ago.

Marriage is said to be an equal partnership. But the kind of a one-sided partnership it really is, cannot be better expressed than in that old saying: "When about to give in a last resort, marriage onward, her body is daily drained of strength and her mind daily burdened by cares. She lies on the couch her back aching from female troubles, and gets up and puts on a smiling face to meet her husband.

Marriage can only be an equal partnership when the drains and strains of married life of the woman can be replaced by the perfect health of the delicate womanly organs. No woman need suffer with inflammation, ulceration, debilitating drains or female trouble. There's an absolute cure for all these in Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes life a pleasure, does away with morning sickness, and makes the baby's advent easy and almost painless.

"I had been suffering from the trouble for about three years, having had miscarriages at that time, and the doctor said I would have to give up. I tried all kinds of medicine, but nothing did me any good. I saw the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after taking it felt better than I have ever felt before. I now have a healthy baby four months old and have not had a day of sickness."

"Favorite Prescription" contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant. Nothing else is "just as good." Refuse all substitutes. If you go for Dr. Pierce's, get Dr. Pierce's.

Discovered by a Woman

Another great discovery has been made, and that too by a lady in this country. "Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood its severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She finally discovered a way to recovery, by purchasing of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, and was so much relieved on taking first dose, that she slept all night; and with two bottles, has been absolutely cured.
