THE SMALL GRAIN.

No longer is there reason for fear of storms, or anything else so far as the small grain crop is concerned. It is now all cut and a great deal of stacking has been done, while many farmers expect to thresh out of the shock. Perhaps at no time in the history of the county were the prospects so bright for a big wheat crop. The fields far and near had that appearance. However, from some cause or another, the yield is much lighter than was expected, and while there are many fields that will yield 15 or 20 bushels per acre, the average will be in the neighborhood of 12 bushels per acre. But with the out crop it is entirely different. The yield is very large and at this time it is almost impossible to give the yield per acre though it is estimated at from 45 to 60 bushels. The crop of hay is unusually heavy. So it is with the potato crop. It is simply immense and the quality above the average. Taken all in all, it is a great year for Wayne county farmers and the evidences of prosperity are multiplying on every hand. Improvements are noticeable on nearly every farm, while throughout the county the number of new farm residences and barns that have been erected during the present year, is very large.

The Security Mutual Life of Nebraska is coming right to the front as one of the leading western companies under the present management and with an absolutely clear and liberal contract, the best we have ever seen. The Company should receive a very liberal patronage in Wayne county. This company is a state company, governed by the laws of Nebraska, and every dollar of its securities must be deposited with the State as security to the policy holders, and the President, Secretary and Treasurer have given bonds issued by the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland, in order that the policy holders shall be absolutely safe. You can not do better than place your insurance with the Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Lincoln, Neb.

W. G. Gamble is adding quite a number of names to the Company's list of policy holders in this county. If he should call on you take a few moments and examine a contract that is up to date for that is the only thing you want. It is automatic and you cannot lose your equity after three payments have been made. It is what you want if you buy Life Insurance.

AT YOUR SERVICE.

BUSINESS CHANGE.
I desire to announce to the people of Wayne and vicinity that I have purchased the drug store formerly conducted by R. W. Wilkins & Co. This store has been favored with public confidence for seventeen years, and I wish to assure you that under new ownership it will be no less worthy of your patronage. I expect to conduct a modern drug store; a store to which people can come with confidence; confidence in the goods sold, in the accuracy of the service, in the fairness of the prices charged. I shall aim to conduct a store to which it will pay you to come; a store that will afford you the utmost security in every way.

MY STOCK AND SERVICE.

I shall carry an ample stock of drugs, medicines, toilet articles, wall paper and paints. Will supply the finest soda water that can be made. Shall give special attention to the prescription department. All drugs will be the finest obtainable; they will be pure and of standard strength, and will be compounded in the most scientific manner. I have had ample experience, I take pride in the drug business as a professional, and will endeavor to give you ideal service at the fairest possible prices. I cordially invite you to call and get acquainted.

ED. J. RAYMOND.

A Bumper Corn Crop.

The above is hardly a strong enough term to use in speaking of the forthcoming corn crop in this county. All previous records promise to be smashed to smithereens. The acreage is much larger and apparently every kernel of corn planted grew, and grew luxuriantly, two and three stalks being visible in every hill throughout almost the entire county. The fine rain of last Friday set at rest all fear from that source and nothing but a heavy frost can prevent a bumper corn crop. A ride thro' the country fills the heart of the average Wayne citizen with joy. It is not an unpleasing sight to see two ears of corn shooting out from every corn stalk and the thousand of shocks of grain visible on every hand. In addition to this it is pleasant to know that more stock has been shipped from Wayne during the past two months than ever before in the same length of time, and the prices were about all that could be asked. The hog market at the present time is enough to make even the rankest porc contented, and the farmers' bank account keeps increasing. The Herald is certain that every word we have written along this line is an undeniable truth, and will be of no disadvantage to any one to be known far and near.

Thos. Hennessey, a Well-Known Citizen of Wayne, Testifies.

For some time back I have been crippled and stiffened with rheumatism, giving me great pain and unfitting me for work. I was advised by a prominent man here in Wayne to try Craig's Indian Remedies. I bought a treatment of the manager and followed his careful instructions and I will now say to the public that my bones and joints are supple, pain is gone, and I feel a better man than I have felt for years. I heartily recommend Craig's Indian Medicine to any one suffering from rheumatism or kidney disease. I am, Yours respectfully, Thos. Hennessey.

There is enough wear and tear on the soldier without the discomforts that come from having to use strong laundry soap. Common brown soaps, when used for washing the person, are extremely irritating. Ivory soap is the ideal soap for the soldier, suitable for all purposes, for the kitchen utensils, for washing clothes, and for the bath.

Ivory Soap is not easily lost, for—it floats.

THE IDEAL KITCHEN.

(Delle Merrill, Ellipte, Ia., is Homestead)

The ideal kitchen should be made according to its use. If it be a kitchen only, in a large house, and the one that would suit me best, it would be a small one, with cupboards that open on both sides into kitchen and dining room. In this small kitchen I would have a stove, sink, cistern pump, a table and a chair; the wood box should be made on the outside of the house, with a slide door in the waistspotting, so when it is closed it will not appear to have any break in it. The box is always to be filled from the outside. It should have a good fitting, slant cover on the outside. Under the sink should be a place for rolling pin, cutter, (bake pans, salt, soda, baking powder, spice, egg box, and everything that is used at any time in the baking department. From the sink should be a drain to carry all waste water to the hog lot. The kitchen should be made as cool as possible by having plenty of windows and doors, and a door should lead from it to the cellar. In the cupboards everything can be stored and covered up tight, away from mice and flies, thus doing away with a pantry, and all the unnecessary steps that it takes to take things to and from it. But if the kitchen is to be used as a dining room, then it should be arranged differently. There should be a pantry and not the cupboards in the kitchen, and it should then be long and of good size. The stove should be at the end near the pantry and the table set at the most convenient place. But the ideal kitchen for me is the small one, and I see an economy of time and labor.—Homestead.

It was a great find when the pops went out to Broken Bow and pulled Silas Holcomb out of his little, dingy loan office, where he had successfully skimmed the people for several years, and made a reform jobman of him. The great defect in the job is that he did not reform him. Had they done that the people would have some confidence in their nostrums and incantations. But Sil was too hard for them. They could easily make a reformer of him but to reform him was another question. He is the same "Slippery Sil" the same grasping, eager miser that he was when first discovered. He has the same overweening lust for gain, the same little, three per-cent ideas, the same pernicious activity in accumulating money and the same tenacity in holding on to it. As Uncle Jake Wolfe once truthfully said of him, "he slopes from the head down," and he always will slope the same way. He was bred in southern Indiana where men were either patriots or rebels and he was no patriot. When the war was over the K. G. C's. and their sons felt like hyenas in society, they realized that they were looked upon with suspicion and practically ostracized, and like the poor, outcast Jew, Silas settled down to a sullen determination to come as near getting even with the world as he could by getting hold of as much money as possible and letting none of it go. Under these circumstances it is not strange that he has not been so particular as some men would be as to how he got it.—York Times.

Childless people often drift apart. The wife seeks to satisfy her heart craving, by society. "Always roaming with a hungry heart." The husband finds the home dull and goes to the club. The happiest homes are those which echo to the love and laughter of childish voices.

The conditions which preclude motherhood are often remediable. They grow out of a diseased or enfeebled condition of the delicate female organs. When these conditions are removed, and vitality and elasticity given to the organs of motherhood, it frequently follows that the home is gladdened by the coming of a healthy, happy infant.

I had consulted several physicians and I would have given up the idea of ever having a child to live through an operation before I could give birth to living children," writes Mrs. Rhonda E. Evans of Geneva, Luzerne Co., Pa. "When about to give up in despair I saw the advertisement of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I thought I would give it a trial as a last resort. I bought a bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after taking it felt better than I had for years. After taking four and a half bottles I gave birth to a healthy baby girl who in four months old and has not had a day of sickness. CHAPTER IX.—(Continued.)

They were out of hearing by this time, and Sylvia, flying on winged feet, was back in her room. Never in her life had she been so poised, so intensely excited, so boiling over with indignation.

"Oh, if my father and Dave were only here to punish them soundly! How could they dare do this to me! Never in my life had I been so treated! One old woman! Oh, dear! Oh, dear! If I were only a man!"

Mistress Esther, busily occupied in teaching Dolls how to bind a stocking, had looked up and then what she saw when she saw Sylvia's face.

"What's the matter, my dear? You look as if you were in a bad way. Is anything wrong?"

"Nothing, mother. I was just thinking of my father and Dave. They are so good to me, and I wish they were here to punish those two boys."

"Oh, if my father and Dave were only here to punish them soundly! How could they dare do this to me! Never in my life had I been so treated! One old woman! Oh, dear! Oh, dear! If I were only a man!"

you to headquarters. Mallo, there, Corporal!"

A man emerged from the darkness, and after a few low-spoken words, took Featherfoot by the wrist, and bidding Joseph follow, led them into the camp.

"I thank you for your kindness, sir," said Sylvia to the sentinel as they left him.

"We are much beholden to you, sir," added Joseph, using an expression he had heard his father utter.

"You are most welcome, worthy sir," the man replied, gravely, but they heard his mellow laugh for some distance.

"I like not that man, Sylvia," whispered her brother. "He is not mannerly to laugh at an in such a way."

"Nay, no. He means it in all kindness. Perchance you remind him of his own lad left behind him at home," she answered, trying to soothe his injured dignity.

"The presently stopped at a large tent, and she saw a light moving within. A man stepped out carrying a lantern.

"Who comes here?" he asked. "Dave! Oh, Dave! 'Tis I, Sylvia!" was the quick, unexpected response, spoken gladly.

"Come close and I will tell you. I must see my father at once. Every moment is precious. There are spies in our village. Where is my father, Dave?"

"And you rode all this way to bring the word, my brave girl?" he said, laying his hand over hers. Then, to the corporal, he said, "This is of grave importance. Let Timothy Leland be summoned with haste."

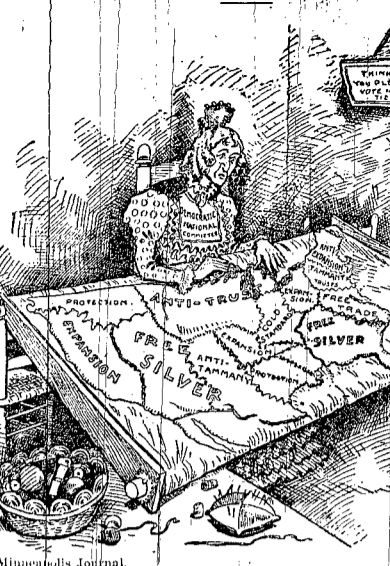

"The man hurried off to execute his order. Meanwhile little Joseph was feeling very much left out in the cold, for Dave had taken no notice of him. He had waited patiently for a long time, he thought.

"So he piped up in a small voice: 'I am here, too, Dave.'"

"To be sure! And a right courageous little man you are, to ride so gallantly," replied Dave, going around and shaking hands with him.

"Timothy Leland was summoned with haste."

MISS DEMOCRACY'S CRAZY QUILT.

PROSPERITY IN THE WEST.

One of the facts that have a discouraging effect on the leaders of the Democratic party is the great increase in industrial activity in the West.

Every body, Democrat as well as Republican, who reads anything nowadays about the social conditions in the Western States mentions the prosperity which is diffused throughout all of them.

Business is more active in all of them than was over-known before. The reports of the bank clearances from all quarters of the West show an immense increase in transactions since the last year at this time.

The earnings of the Western railroads are at the highest figures ever touched.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Vanderly, who has just returned from a tour through several States in the Mississippi Valley, is eloquent about the evidences of industrial activity and prosperity which he saw everywhere.

He remarks that this is killing the silver issue as a Democratic dogma. Democratic leaders in the West are saying the same thing. There is a strong disposition among the shrewder Democratic magnates of the Western States to take up some other issue, and let silver drop altogether or put it so far in the background that it will not give it the victory.

The silver issue has long since ceased to be a political issue. Many votes will have to come from the West to win that party if it is to have any chance to win.

The Democratic leaders know that they can get very few votes from the West, under present conditions. It was the business depression resulting from the Democratic party of 1893 which created the conditions in the West which gave the Democracy several States in the Mississippi Valley and on the Pacific slope in 1900.

Republican prosperity has continued since then, and the entire situation is changed. This is why the reports of business activity and general prosperity throughout the West, which come from Democrats and Republicans alike, have a disconcerting effect on the Democratic leaders.

It means a sweeping victory for the Republican party in 1900. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Lace Collars and Skirt Trimmings—Draperies Are Still Applied Flat—Many Double and Triple Skirts Are Worn—Organdies Coping In.

New York correspondents.

VEN in midsummer coats are as plentiful as they were last winter when one out of every three or four well-dressed women was in some form of a light summer coat.

But the summer coat is something very different from the light affair trimmed with circular ruffles. It is of lace to begin with and quite different as to shape.

Yet in one form or another the lace-trimmed appearance in nearly every stylish summer wardrobe. There is a deal of variety in these garments, individual taste having free license, and so the selection of a typical lace coat for illustration is not an altogether easy task.

The one pictured here, however, is as fairly representative as any single one could be. The gown of which it was a part was of chaste green cloth, and the coat, which was over a waist of silk to match the skirt, was of black net with embroidered figures in blended emerald colors.

A border of lace to match was on the skirt, frills of silk cascading below it. This lace coat was made one with the silk beneath, but many such costumes show a coat that can be slipped on over any bodice.

As no loss of freshness or stylishness results from making in the latter manner, it is to be recommended over the other, as tending toward economy.

The use of laces and nets in skirt trimmings has been a feature of the season.

Millions of dollars a day represents the size of the demand which the European nations are making upon the American workshop at the present time—Chicago Times-Herald.

This is a view of the situation which ought to appeal and which undoubtedly has appealed most powerfully to American workmen. There can be no doubt that they find a most satisfactory state of things, a state of things much more to be desired than the days of idleness and of free soup, which the triumph of free trade and the enactment of the Wilson law ushered in.

The policy of protection which American laboring men are called upon to do the work for our own seventy millions and more of good Americans whose demands are more extensive than are the demands of double that number of people in any other country in the world.

It means also that American laboring men are called upon to do the work for millions of people in other countries. Without our protective tariff, the foreigners would be doing both their own work and the larger part of ours.

A choice between these two situations is not a difficult one. That choice was taken definitely and decidedly when American workmen voted in November, 1890, to put William McKinley in the presidential chair.

and bodice were banded with row on row of black lace insertion alternating with groups of tucking. Sometimes instead of rows straight around the skirt, or of way-on or pointed bands, the insertion of ribbon is carried in an unbroken spiral to where it ends in the circle of the collar. Only a graceful figure can stand this sort of twisting. Bands lapping at the waist, and spreading as they extend, perpendicular to the edge of the skirt and to the shoulder, are also worn, and are generally more becoming than are horizontal or spiral bands.

Speaking generally, the liking for the lace coat idea finds expression in garments not much longer than that shown in the first of these pictures. Occasionally the notion is carried out with some semblance to a long coat, and the result is usually very rich in appearance. The costume at the right in the second picture was one of these, the coat effect coming from a lace polonaise. This was in one with the yoke and opened to show the front of bodice and skirt. Its very heavy black net was covered closely with linen colored roses stitched in black. Bodice and skirt, which were princess in effect in front, were of linen colored bengaline.

CARROLL NEWS.

Hot weather? Well, well! J. A. Jones was in Wayne Tuesday. M. S. Merrill of Vermillion, is in the city for a few days.

Geo. Porter is reported much better and able to be around once more. The harvesting of small grain is over and the hum of the threshing machine is a welcome sound once more.

There is some talk of having the Santee Indian ball club play here one week from next Friday and Saturday.

Among the Nebraskans registered at the Oxford Hotel in Sioux City we noticed the name of W. A. Berry of Carroll.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bailey returned from DuBois last Friday, and were tendered a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Beach Friday evening.

Mr. Foliver of Clifton, Neb., who has been clerking for Herby & Co., severed his connections with them Tuesday and will return to his home in Clifton tomorrow.

Spencer Jones of Red Oak, Iowa, a brother of J. A. Jones of this place, has accepted a position as clerk in Hornby & Co's. grocery and general merchandise store in Carroll.

Carroll and Randolph will try conclusions again on the diamond at the Wayne fair grounds on Wednesday, Aug. 23, the day of the A. O. U. W. picnic at Wayne. These teams have played two games, each winning one and the third game promises to be a good one. If they will play ball and dispense with all rag chewing and chronic kicking at the umpire the game will be worth witnessing, and it is our opinion that if any of the players, outside of the two captains, who make any objections or unnecessary remarks, is removed from the game, it would put a quietus on a great deal of unnecessary jangling.

Mr. Rundell of Wayne, that great expounder of the popocratic faith, was in Carroll for a few moments Wednesday, preaching calamity and all that sort of things, but everybody was too busy to listen to any such "woll da roll." Mr. Rundell drove up to hold a consultation with the popocratic chairman of this precinct, but after looking over fields of ripened grain and acres of promising corn, and hearing of a dozen farmers inquiring for help offering $1.50 to $2.00 per day for hands, he concluded that this end of Wayne county wasn't a good place to preach such doctrines, and when he was informed that no pops existed in this part of the county the expression on Mr. Rundell's face was terrible to behold and for a time it was feared that it would be necessary to charter a special train to haul Mr. Rundell to Norfolk.
