

Sewing on Trouble

There is an old proverb to the effect that every time you have a button sewed on the clothes, you are wearing the sewer sews on trouble. Whether this is true or not, it certainly TAKES trouble to sew up rips and on buttons. Good work won't rip—buttons well sewed on won't come off. We try to do good work—we are ready at any time to make good deficiencies. WE WANT YOUR PATRONAGE.

ALEJANDRINO INTERVIEWED

The Filipinos Wish to Negotiate as a Recognized Government.

(MANILA TIMES, OCTOBER 3, 1899)
Yesterday the ambassador of Aguilardo again met with General Otis, who had invited them to pay him a special call before their departure, in order to see whether they had any new proposition to offer which could be better considered. Matters were discussed generally and the outcome which led up to the outbreak touched upon. The Governor was again approached with a repetition of their first proposals, i. e., for General Aguilardo or a civil commission representative of his "government" to visit Manila for the purpose of negotiating peace, but this proposal was again firmly refused on the ground that the United States cannot negotiate with or in any way recognize the so-called government.

Many farmers are through husking corn and by the end of this week very little corn will be left in the field. The yield is from 15 to 45 bushels per acre, making the average yield about 30 to 35 bushels according to the best information we can obtain. Wheat turned out from 8 to 18 bushels per acre, making the average from 10 to 12 bushels. The oat yield was from 20 to 60 bushels, or an average of about 30 to 40 bushels if reports made us from different sections of the county are true. With cattle, hogs and an abundance of grain on hand, the farmers of Wayne county are certainly in pretty good condition for the advent of winter. Happiness and contentment will abound throughout the land.

Nothing therefore was accomplished and the three insurgent officers left on a special train at 9 o'clock this morning for their own lines to return Gen. Otis' answers to their chief and his own letter unopened. A large crowd of natives assembled in the Plaza de Blonido to witness the departure of the Filipino officers, and a large throng on foot and in vehicles accompanied their carriage to the train, where a demonstration was made at their departure. Hats were raised and Filipino cheers rent the air as the train departed.

The Commissioners were interviewed last night by the Manila Times. At first there was some difficulty in approaching them, but afterwards they were induced to admit visitors and talk freely. Alejandrino is looking very different from what he looked like when we last saw him in Hongkong, in April, 1898. He was then with others living in little back rooms with little cigarette shops in back streets of the poorer quarters of Hongkong. In those days not much was known of the Filipinos who had just come from Manila to Hongkong, but there were strange stories of large sums of money payable to them by the Spanish Government for ending the revolution.

Nobody felt very sure whether there was any reality in the tale and nobody took much notice of the humble looking Filipinos. Aguilardo was the chief of them and he kept them down to $15 per month each man. In a little while he found they were able to live on $10, and used the rest on dissipations of which he disapproved, and he promptly proposed to cut them down to $10. They kicked like compulsory mules and ultimately a compromise of $12 was effected. Such were the humble circumstances in which we last saw Jose Alejandrino. Then came Dewey, and the Filipinos took advantage of the situation to set up in business on their own account. Since then they have grown bolder and more ambitious and Alejandrino now blossoms out in a resplendent uniform with gold braid and all sorts of handsome things.

We had an extremely interesting conversation with Alejandrino, who said that he had come solely as the bearer of a letter from Senor Flores, War Secretary of the Filipino Government, to Gen. Otis. In this letter the Government, Army, Congress, and people of the Philippines desire to assure the Government, Army, Congress and people of the United States, of their sincere desire for peace. The war now progressing was most deplorable and the earnest desire of the Filipinos was to press for a settlement which would be honorable to both sides. This letter General Otis declined to receive, saying he could not recognize the existence of any such Government. That really ended the matter.

The Commissioners say that all the Filipinos are tired of the war and are fully convinced that it is ruining the country, but it will not be possible to persuade the whole nation to lay down arms without settling the conditions first. In the course of the conversation Soriano and Ortes both mentioned that they had for some time been serving without pay on account of the deplorable condition of the Filipino cause. They maintain however, that they were prepared to continue if peace could not be made on honorable terms and the fight could be continued ten or twenty years.

When the Times representative politely suggested that this was a fool's game to play, the Filipino commissioners courteously responded that they had another visitor to receive and would be pleased if we would call again some other time.

ONLY ONE CURE FOR SCROFULA.

S. S. S. is the Only Remedy Equal to this Obstinate Disease.

There are dozens of remedies recommended for Scrofula, some of them no doubt being able to afford temporary relief, but S. S. S. is absolutely the only remedy which completely cures it. Scrofula is one of the most obstinate, deep-seated blood diseases, and is beyond the reach of any of the many so-called purifiers and tonics because something more than a mere tonic is required. S. S. S. is equal to any blood trouble, and never fails to cure Scrofula, because it goes down to the seat of the disease, thus permanently eliminating every trace of the taint.

The serious consequences to which Scrofula surely leads should impress upon those afflicted with it the vital importance of wasting no time upon treatment which can not possibly effect a cure. In many cases where the wrong treatment has been relied upon, complicated glandular swellings have resulted, for which the doctors insist that a dangerous surgical operation is necessary. Mr. H. E. Thompson, of Milledgeville, Ga., writes: "A bad case of Scrofula broke out on the glands of my neck, which had to be lanced and caused me much suffering. I was treated for a long while, but the physicians were unable to cure me, and my condition was as bad as when I began their treatment. Many blood remedies were used, but without effect. Someone recommended S. S. S., and began to improve as soon as I had taken a few bottles. Continuing the remedy, I was soon cured permanently, and have never had a sign of the disease to return." Swift's Specific—

S. S. S. FOR THE BLOOD

—Is the only remedy which can promptly reach and cure obstinate, deep-seated blood diseases. By relying upon it, and not experimenting with the various so-called tonics, etc., all sufferers from blood troubles can be promptly cured, instead of enduring years of suffering which gradually but surely undermines the constitution. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable, and never fails to cure Scrofula, Eczema, Cancer, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Galls, Tetter, Pimples, Sores, Ulcers, etc. It is a pure S. S. S. nothing can be more. Books on blood and skin diseases will be mailed free to any address by the Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Georgia.

IVORY SOAP PASTE.

In fifteen minutes, with only a cake of Ivory Soap and water, you can make a better cleansing paste than you can buy.

Ivory Soap Paste will take spots from clothing; and will clean carpets, rugs, kid gloves, slippers, patent, enamel, russet leather and canvas shoes, leather belts, painted wood-work and furniture.

The special value of Ivory Soap in this form arises from the fact that it can be used with a damp sponge or cloth to cleanse many articles that cannot be washed because they will not stand the free application of water.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING.—To one pint of boiling water add one and one-half ounces of the small size cake of Ivory Soap cut into shavings, boil five minutes after the soap is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the fire and cool in convenient dishes (not tin). It will keep well in all air-tight glass jars.

STAGE FRIGHT FATAL

MANY CASES WHERE IT BROUGHT DEATH TO THE VICTIM.

The Affliction Is Not Confined to Beginners Before the Footlights, but Has Been Known to Attack Players of Experience.

"Of all the many ills to which the theatrical flesh is heir," said an old physician who has a large clientele of actors, "the worst is stage fright. This is nothing less than a species of heart disease, induced by the nervous dread that one's performance may not be successful. This naturally attacks beginners more often than old actors and is not infrequently accompanied by a morbid condition where death has been brought about through its evils, even in the case of old timers.

"Perhaps, however, the most peculiar instance of all was that of the veteran performer who had gone through 30 years of stage work without experiencing this malady. One night, however, he confided to a fellow player that a quite unaccountable nervousness had suddenly taken hold of him and that he did not think he could ever act again.

"His comrades laughed at the notion and urged him to go on, as usual, but his astonishment may well be conceived when the poor old player went on the stage and, after making several vain efforts to speak, fell back and expired. The doctor who made the post mortem examination stated that death was due to failure of the heart's action, evidently induced by the presence of an attack of stage fright.

"Death is by no means an infrequent end to the trouble, and more than one case in my own practice has ended fatally. It is not always the person whose heart is already affected who suffers the most, either for I recall one case some years ago where a young woman whose heart I knew to be perfectly normal made her professional debut in this city. While standing in the wings awaiting her first cue she was seized with an attack of stage fright and trembled violently.

"Not till she heard the line spoken which was her cue for entrance did she make any effort at recovery, and then, to the surprise of those who were trying to get her in shape, she braced up and went on the stage as though she had been on the boards for years. She went through her part mechanically and without apparent consciousness of her actions, but she played the scene better than she had done at rehearsal.

"At the close of her scene she came off the stage, staggered to her dressing room and sank agonized to the floor. She never recovered from her coma, and an autopsy developed the fact that she had died of heart disease, though I had examined her shortly before and could find no trace of cardiac affection.

"Several standard authorities quote the case of a young English aspirant who came to the theater on the night of his debut in a state bordering on nervous prostration. He was braced up on a sound and given encouragement by his friends on the stage with him, but no sooner had he stepped upon the stage than he clapped his hand upon his heart and fell dead. The excitement had ruptured the valves of his heart, and he had ended his career as he was about to begin it.

"One curious case was told me not long ago by one of the physicians at Bloomington. A young man, a member of a college dramatic club, was brought there for treatment. He had been cast for a part in the spring production, and this extra study, added to the regular studies imposed by the collegiate course, caused something to give way. On the occasion of the dress rehearsal it was found that he could not remember a line of his part, and this so worried him that he broke down and was brought here.

"For several weeks he could not speak an intelligent sentence, and then suddenly his part came back to him, and he could go through it, eyes and all, without a break. For another full week he kept going through the lines of his part, and then developed a severe attack of brain fever, from which he came out perfectly rational, but, oddly enough, with absolutely no memory of the lines of the play in question.

"The excitement caused by stage fright is most curious thing, and did this opportunity present, I would like to write a treatise on the subject, for it is a fascinating one, but I am kept too busy patching up the troubles that have existed,"—New York Telegraph.

Why Women Fight Sensitiveness.—"Are women more subject to sensitiveness than men?"

An Atlantic captain replies: "Yes; but, on the other hand, they stand it better. A woman struggles up to the point of despair against the what I might call the impropriety of the thing. She is not so much tortured by the pangs as she is worried by the prospect of becoming disheveled, haggard and dragged. She fights against it to the last and keeps up appearances as long as she can hold up her head."

What Broke Him Up.—"What broke him up in business?" "Slow collections."

"I thought he sold goods for cash only." "He did! It was the firms he owed that had the trouble in making the collections, and they closed him out."—Chicago Tribune.

When the snake sheds his skin, which occurs frequently, as often as every four or five weeks, the skin of the eye comes off with the rest. Translucent in most parts, the skin over the snake's eye is perfectly transparent.

Eating Like a Bird.—It isn't as polite as it is intended to be to say that a person has the appetite of a bird. If a human being ate as much proportionately as does the average bird, the sight would be disgusting. In one strike there have been found the remains of 79 caterpillars, 24 bugs, one field mouse and one leech. A field hawk that was observed for a month is credited with a record of 1,000 mice in that time. A raven will eat seven mice one after the other, and three hours afterward eat four more. The robin eats on an average 14 feet of worms daily.

HE KNEW HUMAN NATURE.

And Had No Trouble in Disposing of the Old Stock.

In Dearborn street is a haberdasher—time was when they answered to a less formidable name—who counts a genius among his employees. This "favored of fortune" is a youth who once clerked in a general store in the country, and his present proprietor wonders if there are any more like him running at large in the provinces.

There had been a stock of cheap collars and cuffs on the shelves for years. Once in awhile, usually just before inventory, these articles had been brought down, carefully dusted, tied with new baby ribbon, arranged in orderly fashion in the window and marked "9 cents" for the cuffs, "5 cents" for the collars. But patrons would none of them. Occasionally a man would come along and toss them over, attracted by the price, but that was all. They would not sell.

The country youth waited till the first hard rain. Then he took an armful of the goods and dipped them carefully in a pail of water so that about half of each article was moistened. Then he dried them in the sun at the back door, and next morning heaped them in the window with this marking:

..... Ruined by the Rain. Collars, 10 Cents Cuffs, 25 Cents

And they went before noon. It was all the genius from the country could do to get subsequent armfuls soaked and dried fast enough to supply the demand.—Chicago Post.

STRONG ROOMS.

Remarkable Expedients Adopted to Save Some Fabulous Fortunes.

The Bank of England's strong room is one of the largest in the world. The foundation, 66 feet below the street level, is a bed of concrete 20 feet thick. Above this is a lake seven feet deep and above that thick plates of iron specially manufactured to resist both skill and force. Any one attempting an entrance from above would find a similar bed of concrete, a similar lake and similar plates of iron. The walls are impenetrable, while the doors are one foot thick, weigh four tons each and are made absolutely undrillable.

Mr. W. W. Astor's valuables are stored in the office of the Fall Mall (theater) in one of the most remarkable strong rooms ever erected. It is steel throughout and covered with half an inch of solid concrete. The door, also of solid steel, weighs over two tons and has the most remarkable lock which the ingenuity of Chubb has ever constructed. The whole cost a fabulous sum, but this is not surprising when we are told that Mr. Astor locks up about $8,000,000 worth of valuables and money in this room.

The Imperial Ottoman bank, Constantinople, had a marvelous steel fort built upon a water bearing rock, and on top of the rock foundation is a four foot bed of concrete. The height is over 36 feet, length 46 feet and width 24 feet. The steel walls are surrounded by masonry and concrete and fire-clay thick throughout, while the whole comprises nearly 30 tons of steel.—St. Paul Globe.

Sure of Water.—Sir Joseph Prestwich had bought in 1864 a small estate near Sevenoaks, on which he built a residence, but it was high up on a dry and treeless chalk down. Where was water to be found?

"So confident was Prestwich in respect of water supply that he at once engaged an old well digger to sink a well 108 feet deep. The boring proceeded, but when a depth of 103 feet was reached the two workmen went to the city and sought an interview with their employer, whom they found at his desk. They explained that there was no sign of water and that in their opinion it was useless to bore to a greater depth. "Go on," was the quiet rejoinder, "you will come upon water tomorrow. You are within two feet of it."

"Next day it proved exactly as Prestwich had foretold. And ever after, among many of the denizens of the valley, he had the reputation, much to his amusement, of not being quite "canny."—Life and Letters of Sir Joseph Prestwich.

Love at First Sight.

Believers in the possibility of love at first sight may find a sympathetic interest, and perhaps find a Darwinian argument, in a story of the first meeting of two apes in the London Zoo. We retell the tale from "Wild Animals in Captivity."

Sarah was seated alone in her cage when a new ape made his appearance in front of the bars. Instantly both animals uttered shrill cries, and, bending toward each other, protruded their thin lips until they met across the bars of the cage. Then, as the keeper threw open the cage door, the apes rushed in to each other's arms and, squatting on the floor, hugged each other with comic affection. In a few seconds they rose, and, standing erect, raised their arms above their heads, grasped each other's front paws and screamed and howled in mutual appreciation.

Let us hope that they lived happy ever after.

THE WAYNE HERALD. AN EDITOR'S LITERARY CHASE

How the Author of "In His Steps" was Finally Run Down by a Magazine

Three months ago the editor of The Ladies' Home Journal concluded that his clientele would doubtless be glad to read a fresh article by the author of "In His Steps," and he wrote to the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon soliciting a contribution. But editors innumerable had sought the now famous Topeka minister, and to Mr. Bok's request he sent the same reply as to the other editors. But the Philadelphia editor wrote again, a stronger and more urgent letter. Again the clergyman declined. He had written nothing since "In His Steps," and did not wish to write anything. Meanwhile Mr. Bok had gone to Europe and Mr. Sheldon's second refusal was cabled to him. Each came the response to Philadelphia: "Spare no effort nor time to secure Mr. Sheldon, but get him." The editor's private secretary then tried his hand on the Kansas minister, but again he refused. Mr. Bok returned from abroad, and calling one of his editors, directed him to see Mr. Sheldon at Topeka, if he were there, or wherever he might be. Upon reaching St. Louis the editor located Mr. Sheldon at Buffalo, and later learned that he had gone to Detroit. Starting at once for that place the editor left at Chicago the minister had just left Detroit to rejoin his family at a summer resort in Upper Michigan. By more telegraphing Mr. Sheldon's family was eventually located at Old Mission, a most inaccessible summer resort on Travers Bay, and by the first northbound steamer the editor hastened on his journey. A voyage of a day and a night brought him to the place where he had hoped to intercept the minister, but failing to do so he embarked in a small boat for a day's sail toward his destination. At the nearest landing he pressed a farmer's team into service and drove through an almost blinding sandstorm along the bay shore—seemingly half-way across the peninsula—reaching Old Mission a few minutes before the arrival of the minister. This was too much for Mr. Sheldon. The fight was won, and in the November issue of The Ladies' Home Journal the article appears. It occupies barely a page, and the venture cost the magazine several hundred dollars for traveling expenses alone. But the article contains Mr. Sheldon's first words since "In His Steps," has become famous. It answers the question which every one asks after reading the book: "Is this theory practical?" and answers it forcibly. And the magazine is content.

Used by British Soldiers in Africa. Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous red Gallahe. Under date of Nov. 4, 1907, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and had given to my men, and in every case it proved most beneficial." For sale by Raymond's drug store.

Infant mortality is something frightful. Nearly one quarter die before they reach one year, one-third before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen! The timely use of White's Cream Vermifuge would save a majority of these precious lives. Price 25 cents. Raymond's Drug Store.

With Billy Mason blushing for his country and Illinois blushing for Billy Mason, the banks of the Wabash are getting pretty red.

A Chicago man has forty-two wives and hasn't yet thought of running for congress.

If Billy Mason does resign—but why should he resign in the air.

"I had dyspepsia 37 years and never found permanent relief till I used Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Now I am well and feel like a new man," writes S. J. Fleming, Murray, Neb. It is the best digestant known. Cures all forms of indigestion. Physicians everywhere prescribe it. L. P. Orth.

Mr. Bryan has a masterly set of oratorical ready for delivery in any state all warranted to suit the temper of the audience, no matter what it is.

What a lonesome time these anti-expansionists must have. For them there is no Fourth of July, no Thanksgiving day, no anything, but just kick, kick, kick. Such are the agonies.

The following is a statement from Abraham Lincoln, and does not accord with the references made to him by the Aguinaldos of this country: "Mr. Valandigham avows his hostility to the war on the part of the union, and his arrest was made because he was laboring with some effect, to prevent the raising of troops, to encourage desertion from the army, and to leave the rebellion without adequate military force to suppress it. He was warring upon the military, and thus gave the military constitutional jurisdiction to lay hands upon him.... Must I shoot a simple minded soldier boy who deserts while I must not touch a hair of the wily agitator who induces him to desert? This is none, the less, injurious when effected by getting a father or brother or friend into a public meeting and then working upon his feelings, until he is persuaded to write the soldier boy that he is fighting in a bad cause for a wicked administration of a contemptible government, too weak to arrest and punish him if he shall desert. I think that in such a case to silence the agitator and save the boy not only constitutional, but withal a great mercy."

Alden J. Blethen, the expansionist and free silver editor of the Seattle Times, cornered Mr. Bryan in Chicago early in the autumn and fired a series of questions at him as to his Philippine program. Mr. Bryan knew that the answers he would make would be circulated in the Pacific Coast bottled of expansion, and his answers were made accordingly. At the end of the interview Mr. Blethen was satisfied that Mr. Bryan was practically as good an expansionist as he was himself, and he told his readers so. Later, when Bryan got into the clutches of the Iowa and Nebraska article, he did not recant his previous expressions, but he uncoiled a volume of "official aggression" denunciation and "outcast of the government" epithets worthy of any red-hot agitator. As a consequence of this blowing hot and blowing cold, Mr. Blethen lost confidence in Mr. Bryan's disclamations to him. After thinking the matter over while he summarized the result of his negotiations as follows:

"It is a conundrum and has been a matter that has kept the people guessing, to know exactly where Col. Bryan stands on the Philippine problem. According to his own statement he would not pull down the flag—and yet to raise it means a deadly assault from Aguinaldo. Col. Bryan would not run away from the Philippines—and yet if the American army doesn't get out Aguinaldo proposes to kill them all. Col. Bryan would retain a naval station and military point on the island of Luzon—and yet to do so must be by "coercion" which is in violation of the conditions of a peaceful government which Col. Bryan would have established. Col. Bryan would control the Philippine islands by a "protectorate"—but against the proposition Aguinaldo would fight just as strongly as he is fighting against the army under Gen. O'Rourke at the present moment. Under the circumstances it is somewhat difficult to understand just exactly what Col. Bryan wants, the government of the United States to do, and yet preserve all its rights.

Labor World

What is believed to be the oldest trade union in Chicago is the Journeymen Stonecutters' Association. It was formed in 1852, when Chicago was believed to be a place with a bright future, but which at that time was apparently a long way off. A pioneer contractor of that early day, who was also a member of the association, standing with his men and went to Eastern cities to recruit a force which would be subject to his influence. The boss thought that he had solved the labor question, but the men and old workmen handed themselves together, and the contractor had to come to time. Nine hours was the day's work, which, during the civil war, was reduced to eight. The stonecutters were the first of the skilled crafts to adopt the short day and have maintained it now for a generation, permitting no departure in any way from the rule. Fifty cents an hour is the pay. The organization is now in a prosperous condition, with work increasing and prospects brightening. M. J. Sullivan, the President, is now filling his eighth term as chief executive, while he has served many terms as business agent of his union.

Industrial Notes. Fifty years ago 6-year-old children were employed in New England mills. Michigan's copper mines employ 5,000 more hands than at this time last year. Manufacturing industries of the United States employ nearly 5,000,000 persons.

The American Equal Wage Union is the name of an organization started in Kansas. Laws expressly prohibiting boycotting exist only in Colorado, Illinois and Wisconsin. The agricultural laborers in the United States number over 2,500,000, and there are 5,000,000 farmers. The first recorded strike in the United States is that of the journeymen bakers of New York in 1741.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners have 60,000 members, being one-tenth of the whole number of men in this trade. The efforts of the Federation of Labor to introduce labor unions in the South are meeting with success of late. The organization of such unions in the cotton mills will probably put an end to the long-day system which gives the Southern manufacturers an advantage over those of the North. The dry season has been a serious matter with mill owners along the water courses of New England, as well as with the farmers. Not in many years has the Connecticut River been so low, and this is true of other streams as well. Supplemental stream power has had to be employed to an unusual extent, and factories that have to depend entirely upon water power have had a hard time.

When Children Smoked Pipes. Every one has read that Hawkins introduced tobacco into England, and that King James inveighed against it. Elizabeth liked to sit on a low stool and watch Sir Walter Raleigh puffing away. Once she let him see that he could not tell the weight of the smoke in his pipe, but the philosopher won. In Anne's reign almost every one smoked. In Charles II.'s reign children were sent to school with their pipes in their mouths, and the schoolmaster called a halt in their studies when they smoked. In 1702 Josephus spent an evening with his brother at Garraway's coffee house, Leeds, and writes: 'I was surprised to see his sleekly child of 3 years old fill his pipe of tobacco and smoke it as naturally as a man of three score; after that a second and third pipe without any intermission, and so it is said to have done above a year ago.'

These were about 470 coffee houses in London, besides five chocolate houses. In Anne's time, smoking was general in them, and intoxicants were also obtained, as well as coffee. Bishop Trelawney was much hurt because Bishop Barnett had accused him of getting drunk in one of them on the 30th of January—a day of grief to Tories and all good churchmen.—Pitts Dispatch.

Couldn't Stand Prosperity. Though excuses for all sorts of doings have been made on account of a circus and the circus parade the latest in Indianapolis is something out of the ordinary, says the Philadelphia Inquirer. A story is told of W. B. Schwartz, a lawyer of Indianapolis, who has patented a typewriter having a number of vital and valuable points, going into Fletcher's bank with a representative of the typewriter trust. The lawyer had a certified check or draft for something like $30,000, which had been given him for his interest in the patent. The check was presented and the cashier began piling out bundles of bills. When the full amount had been placed on the desk the teller asked Mr. Schwartz to count it and see if it was right. He counted awhile, but became so nervous that he could not 'check out' the supposed amount in each pile of bills, and finally pushed all back and said 'Oh, I guess it's all right. Give me a certificate of deposit.' It was done and Mr. Schwartz left. The incident was quite amusing to the bank, and it was reported that Mr. Schwartz desired being excited on account of the large sum which he had just received as a result of five years' work. He said it was the circus parade that excited him. When a funeral is held on a Sunday, a man knows that he can invent no excuse for staying away that his wife will accept. Every secret society has its 'don'ts,' but they are not a circumstance to its dues.

SHORT SERMONS

A Common Motive.—What common motive can we think of strong enough to bind not merely one community, but the whole world together? What, indeed, unless it be the desire to bear a hand in that enduring conflict which is forever going on between the kingdom of darkness and the kingdom of light?—Rev. Dr. Huntington, Episcopalian, New York. Religious Citizenship.—When we take the principles of religious citizenship and attempt to apply them to the solution of the conditions of daily life, we raise a great stream of objections. The average business man who adopts this principle understands that he must follow the golden rule, and where is the man who follows the golden rule in business?—Rev. L. V. Broughton, Baptist, Atlanta, Ga. Ideals—Ideals rule the world. They lead us, they reveal us our possibilities. Men and nations have ever been led from meanness to nobleness, from narrowness to enlargement, by the vision of distant and radiant ideals. It is the shame and disgrace of our political life that there are no such things as Duty, Mountains and India's coral strand, and Dr. Raffles, who wrote of 'High in wonder-realm of light' and Isaac Watts, who went to visit St. Thomas Aliney and wrote the hymn 'Glorious Land,' were not agreeable a great that they made him stay thirty-six years, and side by side Armstrong's Toplay, who has got over his dislike for Methodists, and Charles Wesley, who was a Methodist, and George W. Bethune, as sweet as a song-maker as he was great as a preacher and the author of 'The Village Hymns' and many who wrote in verse of hymns, and who were passionately fond of music, but could make none themselves, the poorest singer there more than any earthly prima donna and the poorest players there more than any earthly beatificers of the immortal soul.—First line of O.K. that music.

READ THE BIBLE 11 TIMES.

Began From Curiosity and Continued Through Interest.

A stout, elderly man was noticed gazing earnestly at a display of Bibles in all languages in a show window.

"Yes," said the man, "but I have one at home older and bigger than any of them." There did not seem to be any connection between the age and size of a Bible, so for lack of anything further to say the customer asked the man if he had ever read his big Bible through.

"Yes," was the reply. "I have read it through 11 times."

His Mustard Plaster.

The mustard plaster is a harmless looking wafer, but it must be handled with as much circumspection as a woman. There was a newly married man once whose wife told him to put on a mustard plaster to cure a cold. He had faith in her, and put it on. Then he went to sleep, being gifted with the power of sleeping under torments which is not given to one man in a thousand. The plaster seemed to him somewhat unreasonably hot, but he argued that the hotter it was the better. Besides, he had confidence in his wife. Next day he found a well developed blister on his chest, and his wife only laughed and said she had never known any one would have sense enough to take off a plaster when it hurt him. Though that was 11 months ago, the mark of the plaster is still upon the man like a brand, and he now regards his wife's remedies with suspicion. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

The "Terrier"

A document known by the name of a "terrier" is supposed to be kept at every old parish church setting forth the sources of the income of the benefice—especially globe lands; hence the derivation from the Latin "terra." Ignorance of this purely technical term led a clergyman into a curious mistake. He was a sporting parson and had just been appointed to his first living. During the early days of his incumbency he received a form from the bishop which he was required to fill up. Among the questions asked was, "Do you keep a terrier?"

"No," wrote the cleric in reply, "but I have two well bred pointers, and your lordship is welcome to one if you care to have it." —St. James Gazette.

Parson Sinclair.

John Suberland Sinclair is a farmer in North Dakota. His farm is called Berriedale farm. In the book of the peerage Mr. Sinclair is put down as Earl of Calthness, Lord Berriedale and a baronet of Nova Scotia. All the castles and vast estates which his ancestors owned have shrunk to the North Dakota farm. The earldom of Calthness once embraced all the northern part of Scotland, from sea to sea, and the Sinclairs were earls of Orkney too. —Milwaukee Wisconsin.

He Was Exploited.

An ex-soldier who had lost a leg in the war and was tired waiting for his pension wrote to headquarters at Washington: "If you won't send me a wooden leg, won't you please send me a wooden leg, so's I kin git about? The leg I lost wuz a howl on the three little toes. Had three corns on the leg, and had to go now, you can't go wrong in makin a new one." —Atlanta Constitution.

The farmer's boy looks with scorn at the city boy, who doesn't know which the off horse and which the high horse is. —Somerville Journal.

Many a man loses a job trying to support the dignity he thinks ought to go with it. —Chicago Journal.

A victim of overcaution. "This bill isn't what I had a right to expect," grumbled the man who had stepped up to the cashier's window at the gas company's office.

"Two dollars, hey?" said the cashier, glancing at the bill. "That doesn't seem so very exorbitant. What was it the month before?"

"Four dollars."

"You didn't kick on that, did you?"

"No."

"Why is this so much smaller?"

"The house was shut up half the month."

"Then what are you complaining about? Isn't that about right?"

"Yes; but, blame it, I made a bet of $5 the other day that the bill would be as big as usual!" —Chicago Tribune.

A Warning Phrase. "What are you break off the argument so suddenly?"

"Didn't you hear what he said?" asked the cautious citizen.

"Yes. When you left, he had just said, 'Let us talk this over calmly and reasonably.'"

"That's why I went. Whenever a man says 'Let us talk it over calmly and reasonably' you may depend on his being so angry it won't take more than three words to make him fight." —Washington Star.

Placing the Responsibility. Visitor: (In penitentiary) —What brought you to this place, my friend? Convict: —Th' sheriff. —Ohio State Journal.

Married by Blood. In the island of Banquet there is a tribe of Dusuns differing widely in language, religion and customs from other tribes bearing the same name. Marriages are performed in the forest in the presence of two families. There is no public gathering or feast.

The rite consists in transferring a drop of blood from a wooden knife in the call of the man's leg to a similar cut in the woman's leg. After marriage the man takes the bride to her home, where he resides in future as a member of the family.

Whimsical Advertisements. The author of "Pages From a Private Diary" gives some whimsical advertisements, as for instance: "Respectable girls about 18, wanted for bottling."

and from a bookseller's catalogue: "Gleegymen.—A fine collection of 200 gleegymen, consisting of Protestant ministers, Roman Catholics, Wesleyan Methodists, Unitarians and Presbyterians, and also clean lot—5 shillings."

SAUCY, BUT SELF RELIANT.

"The typical girl of New York," says Charles H. Whipple in "The Ladies' Home Journal," is a product of her environment. She is surrounded by the good, bad and indifferent. She is in an attitude in which no girl should be brought. Her eyes and ears are closed to many disagreeable things around her. And she shuts them simply because she does not care to see and hear. Yet the east side girl is no saint. Far from it. The typical girl of that section is self-reliant, saucy, impertinent, slangy, quick tempered, ready to fight with the tongue, and even with fists if necessary. She will dance all night and work all day, repeat it three or four times a week, then declare she isn't tired and look bright and fresh all the while. She will upbraid her mother, whom she calls 'me ole woman,' and abuse her father, referred to by her as 'me ole man,' cut the ears of her younger brothers; have a hair pulling match with a sister, yet if any one should dare utter a word derogatory to the members of her family, 'Miss East Side' would go at them like a wildcat. She flirts outrageously with motormen, conductors and the like and will laugh derisively at or stare the faces of the well dressed man who presumes to become acquainted with her on the street; remain quiet after night at the bedside of a girl friend who is ill and follow a begging cripple half a block to give her last cent for charity."
