BRITISH TROOPS TAKE BLOEM-FONTAINE.

Lord Roberts Cables the London War Office that General Buller has Reached and Occupied the Head City of the Orange Free State.

The British war office received a dispatch from Lord Roberts on the 10th inst. stating that the Orange Free State capital had been reached and occupied by the British.

The Orange Free State is a naturally strong position. It is situated on the Orange River and is a fine example of a natural barrier to the westward advance of the British.

Side Lights on the Boer War.

It is said that in 1894 the Boers gave their first order for big guns and that the time they expended nearly half a million dollars with Krupp of Germany.

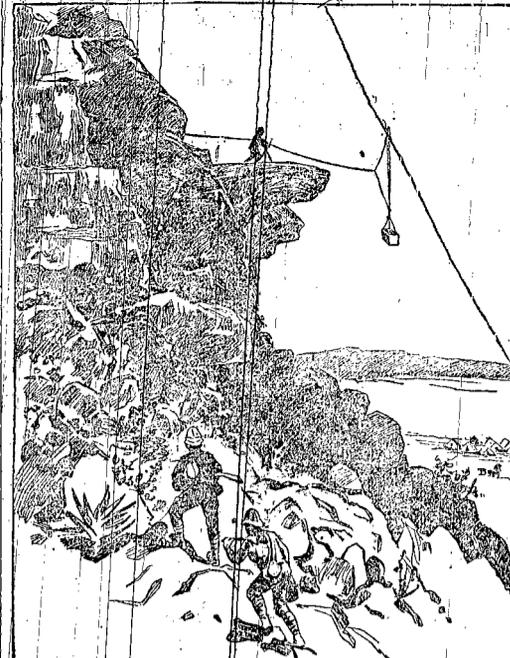

The Lee-Metford bullet is about four times as long as it is thick, and it keeps its point in the air for a long distance.

It is a fact that the Boers have been successful in their operations in the Orange Free State.

The Orange River is over 300 miles long and attains a breadth at its mouth of 450 feet.

Nearly sixty-five years ago, so the story runs, a party of Boer immigrants from the Cape Colony came upon a little plain in the territory north of the Orange River.

The question of the employment of native troops in the Orange Free State was discussed in the House of Commons on Dec. 5, 1899.

COUNTED BY BILLIONS

THE COBDENITE AND BRYANITE THEORIES UPSET BY FACTS.

This Country Has Passed the Two Billion Dollar Mark Alike in Its Foreign Trade and in the Amount of Money in Circulation.

The United States has reached the two billion dollar mark alike as to its foreign commerce and its volume of money in circulation.

Curiously enough, the facts that make both the Cobdenites and the Bryanites look silly are the product of a single month of the history of the United States under McKinley and Prosperity.

Mr. Hobbmuddle—What are you reading that absorbs you so? Mrs. Hobbmuddle—Looking up from his book—it's a new Scotch novel.

Mr. Hobbmuddle—Go on; just read where you are at. Mrs. Hobbmuddle—You see, the man's name is Duncan, do you see?

Mr. Hobbmuddle—A declaration of love? I thought he was telling a lot of symptoms to his doctor—Collier's Weekly.

The following table shows the amount of gold and total money in circulation at the beginning of each quarter of the fiscal year, from July 1, 1896, to date.

Table with 4 columns: Date, Gold, Total Money, and Circulation. Rows include July 1, 1896, Oct. 1, 1896, Jan. 1, 1897, Apr. 1, 1897, July 1, 1897, Oct. 1, 1897, Jan. 1, 1898, Apr. 1, 1898, July 1, 1898, Oct. 1, 1898, Jan. 1, 1899, Apr. 1, 1899, July 1, 1899, Oct. 1, 1899, Jan. 1, 1900, Apr. 1, 1900, July 1, 1900, Oct. 1, 1900.

It is true that as the Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and the author of the McKinley Bill of 1890, Major McKinley did at that time report and doubtless favor a "reciprocity" clause, but the reciprocity which he favored in 1890 was a very different article from that incorporated in the present law.

It is curious that when China is just on the verge of introducing Western methods of engineering she should threaten to demolish the greatest engineering work she possesses.

brought it immense new possessions of territory, has been forced to the position of the world's foremost power. To-day the world leans more upon our country than any other. It comes to us for bread; it comes for meat; it comes for textiles; it comes for iron, for coal, for silver, for gold.

A New Little City. Jones, of Arkansas, the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, has sounded a bell for his party in the coming campaign.

But suppose Jones' proposition is accepted as being correct, what will Bryan and the other rabid anti-imperialists in the Democratic party have to say about it?

Maybe, however, Jones has heard from Bryan and the "peerless leader" is getting ready to shift his position with respect to imperialism.

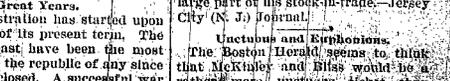

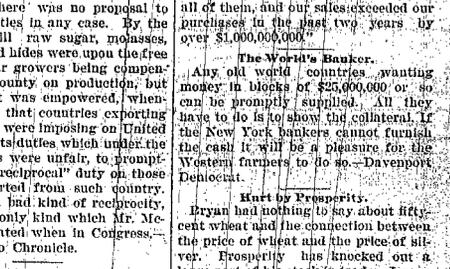

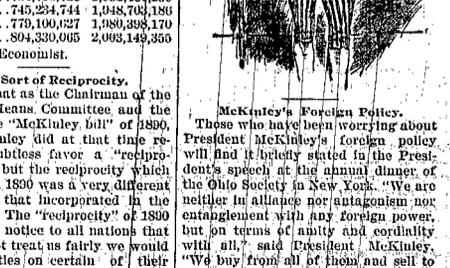

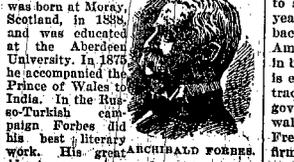

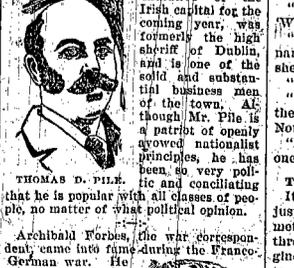

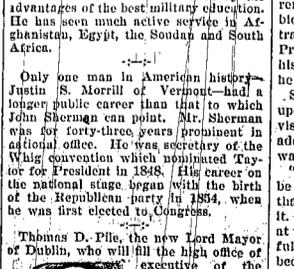

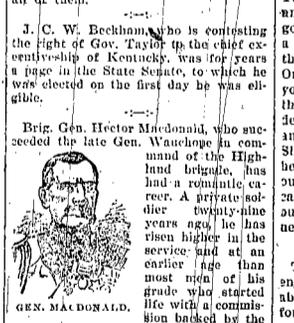

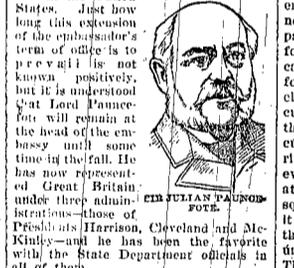

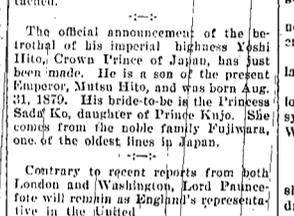

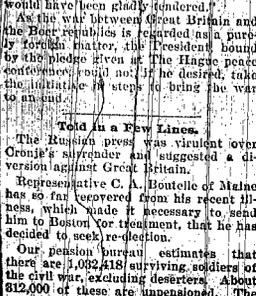

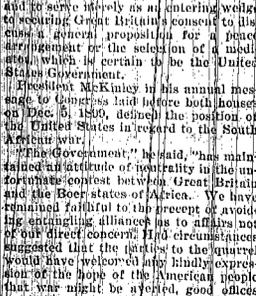

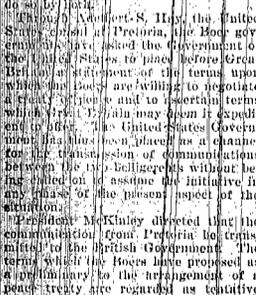

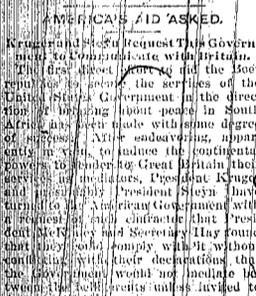

The short month of February made a showing in treasury receipts specially gratifying. The receipts from customs ran up to the splendid figure of about $20,000,000, keeping pace with the $20,000,000 of internal revenue.

Dr. Thomas came over from Wayne, last evening to spend Sunday with his friend, Dr. Seabee. Phil H. Kohl of Wayne, and Wilber F. Bryant of Hartington are in the city on their way to Lincoln—Norfolk Times-Tribune.

Homestead: Bad roads are a great drawback to rural life, for it generally occurs that good roads are most needed when they are bad. Where the best roads are found the farms all look thrifty, the buildings are fine and everything corresponds with the good condition of the roads.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany (N. Y.) druggist called at a drug store for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which he hoped would give some relief until the doctors should arrive. In a few hours he returned saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. For sale at Raymond's drug store.

A Pennsylvania man traveling through Nebraska recently heard a great many tall corn stories, and thought he would tell some of them in a letter home. This is how he did it: "Most of the streets are paved, the grains of corn being used for cobblestones, while the cobs are hollowed out and used for sewer pipes. The husk when taken off whole and stood on and makes a nice tent for children to play in. It sounds queer to hear the feedman tell the driver to take a dozen grains of corn over to Jackson's livery stable. If it were not for the soft, deep soil here I don't see how they ever would harvest the corn, as the stalks would grow up in the air as high as a church steeple. However, when the ears get too heavy their weight presses the stalk down in the ground on an average of ninety-two feet; this brings the ear near enough to the ground so it can be chopped off with an ax."

Damon went to see his girl, who lived at Albany. Three days were given him to get around and redeem Pythias and if he failed, his friend would go to protest.

We will now suppose three days to have elapsed since the preceding. A large party of enthusiastic citizens of Syracuse are gathered around the grand stand, and Pythias is on the platform cheerfully taking of his coat. Near by stands a man with a broad-brimmed hat, the Syracuse silver cornet band had just played, "It's funny when you feel that way," and the chaplain had made a long prayer, Pythias sliding a trade dollar into his hand and whispering to give him his money's worth. The Declaration of Independence has been read, and the man on the left is running his thumb playfully over the edges of his ax. Pythias takes off his collar and tie thinking reproachfully to himself at his miserable luck.

It is now the time to throw in the solitary horseman seen coming along the Albany and Syracuse toll road. He jabs his Mexican spurs into the foamy flank of his noble plug, and the lash of the whip as it moves through the air is singing a merry song. Damon has been delayed by road agents and washouts, and he is a little behind time. Besides, he fooled a little too long and dangled in Albany with the fair gazelle. But he is making up time now, and sails into the jail yard just in time to take his part. He and Pythias fall into each other's arms, borrow a chew of fine cut from each other, and weep to slow music, Dionysius comes before the curtain bows, and says the exercises shall be postponed. He orders the band to play something soothing, gives Damon the appointment of superintendent of public instruction, and the Syracuse post office, and everything is lovely. Orchestra plays something touchful. Curtain comes down on the heroes tried and true.

Men who are always in a hurry, and most men are, want a soap for the toilet that will lather quickly and freely in hot or cold water. Other soaps than Ivory may have this quality, but will likely contain alkali, which is injurious to the skin. Ivory Soap is made of pure vegetable oils, no alkali, produces a white, creamy lather, that cleanses thoroughly and rinses easily and quickly. Money cannot buy a better soap for the toilet.

The True History of Damon and Pythias.
(BY BILL NYE.)

The romantic story of Damon and Pythias, which has been celebrated in verse and song for over two thousand years, is supposed to have originated during the reign of Dionysius I, or Dionysius the Elder, as he was also called, who reined about 350 years B. C. He must have been called "The Elder" more for a joke than anything else, as he was by inclination a Utopian, although he was never a member of any church whatever, and was, in fact, the wickedest man in all Syracuse.

Dionysius arose to the throne from the ranks and used to call himself a self-made man. He was tyrannical, severe, and selfish, as all self-made men are. Self-made men are very prone to usurp the prerogative of the Almighty and over work themselves. They are not satisfied with the position of divison superintendent of creation, but they want to be most worthy high grand muck-a-muck of the entire ranch, or their lives are gloomy fizzes.

Damon and Pythias were named after a secret organization because they were so solid on each other. They thought more of each other than anybody. They borrowed chewing tobacco, and were always sociable and pleasant. They slept together, and unfeelingly "stood off" the landlady from month to month in the most harmonious manner. If Pythias snored in the night like the blast of a fog horn, Damon did not get mad and kick him in the stomach as some would. He gently but firmly took him by the nose and lifted him up and down to the merry rhythm of "The Babies in Our Block."

They loved one another in season and out of season. Their affection was like the soft bloom on the nose of a Wyoming legislator. It never grew pale or wilted. It was always there. If Damon was to the bat, Pythias was on deck. If Damon went to church fair and invited starvation, Pythias would go, too, and vote on the hand-somest baby till the First National Bank of Syracuse would refuse to honor his checks.

But one day Damon got to much budge, and told the venerable and somewhat old royal hummer of Syracuse what he thought of him. Then Dionysius told the chief engineer of the sausage grinder to turn on steam and prepare for business, but Damon thought of Pythias, and how Pythias hadn't so much to live for as he had, and he made a compromise by offering to put Pythias in soak while the only genuine

AMERICAN ROAD.

BY WILLIAM BLACK.

"Yes, but we are not ungrateful, are we, Peggy?" she observed, making a bold appeal.

"I hope not," the younger person answered.

"I am only sorry he has not seen this beautiful Severn along with us. Perhaps the Kennet may make it up to him."

"She seemed very certain that Jack Duncombe would come back to the boat; and there was this to be said for her, that she had not only assured to join our party, but he had always been curious to see how the craft he had helped to construct would behave in the open waters of the Severn."

boat. Perhaps, too, Queen Titia—if she were to be a dramatic actress—designs to be pleased to observe that the young man's position as host gave him a certain importance, and enabled him to display all his best points of manner. One could not help imagining that Miss Peggy was crying him a little bitterly, but that if her brief absence could not have transformed him into a stranger.

But what puzzled us most was this: How was it that he, who had left his in a most peculiar manner, and with a mind should now on his return be the blithest of moods? He declared that the invitation we had sent him had reached him at the most opportune moment, but he would have come uninvited, and begged to be taken on board as a day passenger, shifting for himself at night. So, there was no making up of any quarrel, or the removal of any misunderstanding.

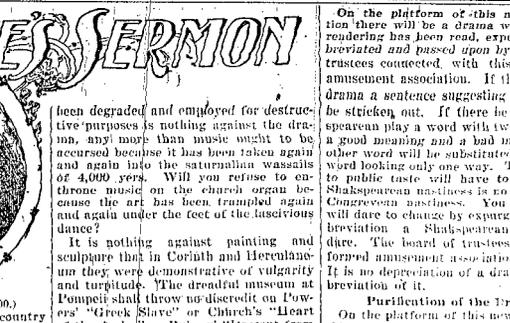

"I am only sorry he has not seen this beautiful Severn along with us. Perhaps the Kennet may make it up to him."

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

(Copyright, Louis Klopsch, 1900.)

A little while ago, when the country was in a throes of mourning for the late President, the theater, and some plays are being arrested by the police, and others are being patronized by Christian people, this sermon of Dr. Talmage is of much interest.

My reason for preaching this discourse is that I have been kindly invited by two of the leading newspapers of this country to inspect and report on two of the popular plays of the day—to some weeks ago to Chicago and to see the drama which I had written with respect to its moral effect and how to New York and the drama "Ben-Hur" and write my opinion of it for public use.

Correct. Do Not Suppress.

Purpose of the Drama.

Beware of Contamination.

ALL MET WITH MISFORTUNE.

Supernatural Relative to the Number Thirteen Singularly Verified.

Do you tell me this plan is chimerical? Such an institution would have to be supported at the very start by a donation of capital, but very soon, in a year or two, it would become self-supporting, and the board of trustees of the reformed amusement association would find that the idea paid not only in morals and the elevation of the people, but in dividends and hard cash.

Prediction of the Future.

For my love of pictures I can go to the art gallery, for my love of literature I can go to the lecture hall, but for my love of the theater, I can go to the theater.

Beware of Contamination.

Stamp Novelty.

Because the drama has again and again been degraded and employed for destructive purposes is nothing against the drama. It is because it has been taken again and again into the saturnalian wassails of 4,000 years. Will you refuse to endorse music on the church organ because it has been used in the wassails of 4,000 years and again under the feet of the lascivious dance?
