Alba Heywood's Bi-Chloride of Poin will cure everything (including the blues). He treats the entire system through the eye and ear. Throats examined while you laugh. No pain except in the side. You yell, but it don't hurt. You cry, but it's from laughing. Heywood is supported by a company of artists, all the best in their line. Not a dull moment, but a merry-go-round of fun. To appear here on the evening of June 2.

One would think, judging from the excitement that prevailed on the streets Monday morning that a murder had been committed, but the facts were that Messrs. Gil Harrison and Ted Perry had driven over to Emerson Sunday where Mr. Harrison had a set to do Kansas. The row occurred in the McDonald Hotel at that place, and Jerry on his return here, no one was seriously hurt. But friends of the latter telegraphed him at Omaha to return to prosecute Harrison and Perry with the present that on Monday they were bound over in the sum of $200 to appear for a hearing today at Emerson. That the men did wrong there is no question as they acknowledge it themselves, but the cooler judgement of our citizens should prevail in the matter.

He says the mineral boom south of him still keeps up and that work is in progress on a railroad from Eureka Springs into the heart of the zinc belt. Three lines of surveys are being made through the section of the country in which he lives.

The Herald has in no way taken any part in the recent saloon controversy and has said nothing as we felt it was a matter for the citizens to settle and that everybody has an equal right to his opinion the same as every other. Personally the writer has favored the granting of as many licenses as there were men willing to advance the money if any license was granted at all, believing that even in this respect, one man should have an equal right with any other. This has been our stand personally regardless of who the people were, desiring a license. This is our privilege the same as any man is entitled to who is opposed to it, but we deplore most sincerely the affairs that have resulted from the contest, where men, in the heat of their anger, do such things as bring discredit to themselves as well as friends.

The social meeting of the Federation of Women's clubs will be held at the home of Mrs. Terwilliger Thursday, June 7, at 8 p. m. This meeting will be confined to the club women of the city and their husbands. Refreshments will be served.

N. Grimley, E. Lundburg, R. H. James, E. Cunningham, Phil Kohl and A. A. Welch went to Emerson Monday where the complaining witness Mr. James swore out a warrant for the arrest of Gil Harrison and Ted Perry on a charge of assault to do bodily harm to the person of Albert Berry. Messrs Perry and Harrison also went to Emerson on the same train.

Random Reporter: Geo. Lundburg of Bloomfield, lately in the mercantile business at that place, was in town several days the first of the week and made a deal with Z. Boughn for his stock of general merchandise. Involving business began Tuesday night and Wednesday morning it was generally known that the deal had been made, but alas! a slip twisted the cup and the lip spoiled it all, or more correctly speaking there was a woman in the case. Mrs. Lundburg, after pleading and much argument, induced her husband to quit the deal and they left Randolph on the morning train.

LATER: Mr. Lundburg says that the deal has not yet been consummated. Republican: Charles LaCroix came home from Sioux City Saturday. As our readers are aware he has been there in a hospital for several weeks. His leg that was broken by a horse falling on it last winter and which refused to knit, causing him to have a surgical operation performed in which some of the bone was removed, is now able to get around some with the aid of crutches. The magnetic healer in Wayne is our old friend S. B. Seace, who has taken the place of Dr. Orault or formed a partnership with him—so we are informed by Frank Strahan. Mrs. John Baker and Mrs. Nuernberger were called to Bloomfield on Wednesday by the serious illness of Mrs. J. H. Nuernberger of that place. Sam Hood and wife started overland on Friday for Montana where they go in quest of improved health for Sam. Scores of friends here will hope that before the snow flies he may be in as robust health as any body could desire.

Growing Every Day.

Yes, our business is growing every day, and making a healthy, steady growth. We have now been eight months in Wayne and our trade has grown more than we had reason to expect. It is now about twice the size it was the first month, and those that bought fall clothing of us are buying their spring suits here, proving that our system of doing business is satisfactory to them. We are getting new customers every day and we believe our first year in Wayne will convince everyone that it is safe and satisfactory to buy clothing of the 2 Johns. We know how hard it is for some to go into a new store and investigate the prices of clothing, but it is quite different to come here to look than it is in the usual new store. We have been in the clothing business for over 20 years and you will not feel embarrassed or uncomfortable the first time you come here, for we know how to make you feel at home. It was hard for you to leave your friends and come and investigate Wayne county, but most of you are glad you did it. It will be the same if you investigate us. If we conducted business like other merchants there would be no necessity of you looking at our goods, but our business is conducted on an entirely different plan, and it's like going west to investigate the country, to get acquainted with our manner of buying and selling clothing. It cost something to see a new country but it costs you nothing to see what we can do for you. When we were boys we used to have to plow twice in a row of corn, but by looking around we found a plow that would plow a row at one time. If you will look around and find us, you may find that one dollar will do as much here as two does in some stores, conducted on the old plan. No, its a long story to tell you all we have, so let us cut it short by saying, here you will find what you want and the best there is in everything made for men, and boys wear. No old styles to look over; everything new and up-to-date. Every article is marked in plain figures and sold to everyone alike. We never sell anything less than the price marked. If not satisfied you can return any goods and the money will be refunded. Make us a visit, ask to see anything we have, examining the quality, and see the price and you will be satisfied with your visit, and we will appreciate your kindness.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

The commencement exercises of the Wayne high school, which occur annually, were held in the opera house last Thursday night and were witnessed by one of the largest audiences that ever assembled in the building. A special effort had been made in the matter of floral decorations and the stage presented a beautiful appearance and the exercises were of a thoroughly enjoyable nature. Prof. Conn and the teachers of the school are entitled to a great deal of credit and are to be congratulated on a most successful year's work. The cantata by the high school pupils was one of the pleasant features of the program and was highly appreciated, while the Brownie drill and the little sun flower girls, greatly pleased the audience and brought forth continuous applause. The vocal solo by Miss Lulu Cook with violin obligato by Carl Burdick is heard to have been the finest ever heard in the city. The impersonation of a Chinese vocalist by Walter Harrison was not the least pleasing feature of the excellent program and the closing song by Misses Gamble, Phillip, Cook and Nangle was well rendered. John B. Neely, as satirist, had chosen for his subject "Self Made if Ever Made," and he handled it in a creditable manner, speaking clearly and forcibly so that he could be heard throughout the entire building. "Grit and Gumption" was the subject of a very creditable oration delivered by Miss Maude Cook. Miss Anna Gamble selected for her subject "Simon says Thumbs Up," which she presented in a happy manner, greatly pleasing the audience with the wit and humor therein contained. "Whether Tend We" was the subject of a well delivered oration by Paul Nindel and which evidenced the fact that in the future he gives promise of becoming an able speaker. Miss Johannah Ahern gave the valedictory closing for her subject "Evolution" and it met with the hearty approval of the audience.

DECORATION DAY.

A more beautiful day than yesterday for Decoration Day exercises could not be wished for. As a result the city was thronged with men, women and children during the afternoon and the business houses were generously decorated with flags and bunting, while the old soldiers—God bless them, were visible here and there greeting friends. Promptly at 1:30 the Grand Army and soldiers of the Spanish-American war assembled at Masonic hall where the procession formed headed by martial music and proceeded to the cemetery. Here the graves of seven comrades of the G. A. R. and two of the S-A war were beautifully decorated with flowers and the regular order of the G. A. R. carried out. All over the cemetery graves of departed loved ones were strewn with flowers by loving hands in kind remembrance, which presented a beautiful appearance. At the conclusion of the regular order at the cemetery the procession again formed and marched to the opera house which was filled to overflowing with hundreds of people while many others were unable to gain admission. The first number on the program was most excellent music by the special choir organized by L. F. Holtz, followed with prayer by Rev. Bithell. The address of the day was delivered by County Superintendent E. A. Lundburg who greatly surprised his hearers, and we take especial pride in speaking of it as one of the best we have ever heard here, and the fact is evidence that Wayne need not send elsewhere for her speakers on such occasions. The address of Elmer Lundburg which followed, was a masterly and eloquent effort, filling with pride his host of friends who congratulated him on the success he has attained since attending the state university. To the Herald it is a source of much satisfaction, for Elmer began Mr. L's as "dovlin" in this office and we feel deeply interested in his future.

The Decoration Day exercises were a decided success in every particular, and Casey Post is to be congratulated for the splendid order in which every detail was carried out.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

An unusually large audience attended the memorial services at the opera house Sunday morning in honor of the Grand Army of the Republic. The decorations were beautiful, flags and banners adorning the stage entrance.

SOME QUEER THINGS IN POKER.

Phenomenal Luck of Beginners—Simple Tricks that are Successful. "There are three things in poker," said a Michigan man the other day...

"One case in particular comes to my mind to illustrate this latter fact. In a New York town lived a man—well known by Mr. B.—who had played poker all his life...

"In an honest game a new player all the time always wins. I've seen them go in against old players—men who thought they understood the game—and win where a professional would lose his wad...

"One of the simplest bunko deals I ever ran across was when I was playing a game of poker in Michigan. One of the players—evidently a stranger—made a full house and was entitled to a 'pot' of nearly $300...

"The meteoric streams, says another astronomer, are really small planetary bodies, revolving around the sun in fixed orbits by the force of gravity...

"The Human Hair Harvest. It will doubtless surprise many to learn that the dealers in human hair do not depend on chance clippings here and there, but that there is a regular hair harvest that can always be relied upon...

"Saw-in-Law Granted It. "Saw-in-law," he said, as he called him into the library and locked the door, "you have lived with me for two years..."

"Noted Farm in Cuba. In the province of Matanzas, Cuba, at Caba Mocha, an industrial relief farm is carried on by a New England relief society...

"Old and Kind. Gen. Silas M. Bailey, 64, one of the 300 of the famous 'Old Guard,' which stood by Gen. Grant in the convention of the Grand Old Party...

"No Misunderstanding. "You are welcome," said the man who had just given up his seat in the crowded street car...

"A young Eskimo woman who is visiting Chicago was recently stranded at night by the cold. She thought that she was run by devils...

"The latest man in Maryland lives in Carroll County, near the town of Westminster, and with a strange appropriation, he names his wife Louise...

"A woman has a terrible struggle with her conscience if she feels that she has been struggling through with her husband to get him to church...

SHIP SUBSIDY BILL.

MEASURE HAS BADLY DISCOMFERTED THE DEMOCRATS.

In Attempting to Make Party Capital Out of the Shipping Bill They Show Themselves to Be About Evenly Divided For and Against It.

The Democratic leaders in Congress have been making elaborate preparations to make the shipping bill a campaign issue. They have attempted to terrorize the Republicans into the abandonment of the bill at the present session at least...

A $200,000,000 a year business is the stake. If Democratic threats of filibustering are effective enough to induce Republicans to postpone the consideration of the shipping bill, the foreign shipping lobby, their free trade allies and Democratic dupes will each have carried their point...

Democratic success up to this time is the more amazing, as their own disorganization on this question is so manifestly shown by the fact that they would be united in opposition to the bill, if intending to make a campaign issue of it...

The other four Democratic members of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee who signed the other report are Messrs. John F. Fitzgerald, of Massachusetts; Marion DeWies, of California; Thomas Spaight, of Mississippi; and Wm. D. Daly, of New Jersey...

Seven tons of button-making, six in Iowa are centers of button-making. It is an important industry, and as the report says: "Besides the people thus directly connected with the business, many others in more than a score of towns are benefited, including merchants, machinists, boatmen, draymen and transportation companies..."

The Tariff that Pays. A tariff for revenue only may generally be classified as a tariff that doesn't produce enough revenue—either for the National Treasury or the wage-earner. Note the following statement of customs receipts:

The Enemy's Country. The Republicans have captured the Bryan kopie in Nebraska, the boy orator's own State, and are living up in great shape for the big tussle next fall. They were successful in many municipal contests, and carried Lincoln, Bryan's home city, by the largest majority in years...

Lower Trade Failures. Only 106 trade failures last month, with liabilities of $7,214,787. Compare that with the April failures in the two Democratic years of 1895 and 1896. This:

Table with 2 columns: Year, Amount. 1895: 1,650; 1896: 310,750; 1897: 14,020,714; 1898: 7,214,787.

Where is that Blimp? We would humbly inquire of the Minneapollis Journal and some other gliding dancing contemporaries where they find the great anti-Republican blimp that was to punish the perpetrators of the Porto Rico bill? The election returns show heavy Republican gains all more everywhere. Sioux Falls (S. D.) Leader.

COTTON MILL MEN.

FIVE HUNDRED OF THEM MEET IN THE SOUTH.

President J. H. McAden Says Every Industry is Prospering and that All Are Together for Prosperity—Believes in the "Open Door."

One of the largest assemblages of cotton mill representatives ever held in the United States convened recently at Charlotte, N. C., the occasion being the fourth annual session of the Southern Cotton Spinners' Association. Five hundred mill men were in attendance...

PORTO RICANS PLEASED. British Consul There About the Only Man Who Wants Free Trade. A private letter received from an American in Porto Rico indicates that talk of the hardships predicted to fall upon the Porto Ricans following the enactment of the tariff and civil government laws for the island is moonshine...

Port-Bottom-making was first made possible in the United States by the McKinley tariff of 1892. Of course the industry was nearly destroyed by the free-trade Wilson bill of 1894. After further protection was given the industry by the Dingley tariff of 1897, the eighth biennial report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics for the State of Iowa says:

Our Trade Expansion. A series of special articles recently appearing in the London Times, addressed to the British manufacturers, calls attention to the increasing exports of American products, especially to Great Britain and her colonies. The Times considers the matter one of grave importance, and it is not in England only that our increasing export trade causes comment...

Western Wool Values. Oregon wool prices are interesting, as the following values, at which the same staple grades were sold in that State, show:

Table with 4 columns: Year, High, Low, Average. 1894: 14, 6, 10.1-9; 1895: 14, 7, 10.8; 1896: 12, 8, 10.6; 1897: 14, 9, 13; 1898: 15, 9, 13.

The Democratic Milestone. The adoption by the Democrats of Nebraska of a Populist platform, at the dictation of Bryan, shows that the free silver agent is still willing to take up with "any old thing" for the sake of catching a few votes, but his poor performance has ripped the Democratic party up the back, and they are wondering how they can get rid of the mill-stone of the human lowest...

Spelling Croker's Vacation. The New York official who so seriously disappointed Boss Croker by conducting his office in an honest manner after having secured his election on the Tammany ticket is being mentioned as a Democratic candidate for Governor. Such unpleasant rumors are conjured to detract materially from the measure of Boss Croker's European outing.

Internal Revenue Cost. Internal revenue collections, in 1895 and 1896, cost 2.62 per cent of the money collected. In 1890 only 1.50 per cent of these revenues was chargeable to collection expenses. A Republican administration is always careful of the people's money.

Caution. Mr. Gorman doesn't guarantee Democratic success in Maryland this year. Mr. Gorman's recent experience with the Maryland voters has made him more conservative than ever.

Not Convicted. This year the Democratic orator will be charged with the great task of trying to convince the man with the full stomach that he is hungry.

Port Policy. It is quite certain that the condition of the Porto Ricans is not to be improved by a policy of growling and impediment.

WHE GAVE UP HER OWN LIFE.

Mother's Heroic Sacrifice to Save Her Small Son.

The heroic impulse of Mrs. John Sommebroton in pushing her 6-year-old son away from her saved the boy's life at the expense of the mother's existence. She was 25 years old, the wife of a farmer living near Lyndhurst, L. I. She was walking with her son toward Babylon on the east-bound track of the Long Island Railroad.

The train left Babylon at 4:25 in the afternoon, bound for Long Island City. Mother and son were in no danger where they were. They could see the train three miles away, for the road runs perfectly straight at that point. The boy was walking at his mother's side and was next the west-bound track. The oncoming train was rushing at high speed. That tremendous fascination which even grown people sometimes feel when they are looking at a swiftly approaching train—a desire to throw one's self in front of the locomotive—must have taken possession of the child.

The boy gave a scream and darted across the tracks. He passed for a second in the path of the train. His mother sprang after him. That one second enabled her to catch up with him. It was a matter of a fraction of a second. She thrust the boy from her just as the train struck her. Death came to her instantly. All had happened so suddenly that Mrs. Sommebroton was a corpse before Engineer Forbell could close the throttle and check the speed of the train. The train crew went back to find the victim. Engineer Forbell had told the others how the woman had given up her own life in an effort to save the boy, and they wondered if she had succeeded.

When they found the woman's body the trainmen took off their caps and tears streamed down their faces as they lifted the remains to the side of the track, where they placed a guard over them. Not far away they found the child, unconscious, but alive. He was hurried into a car and placed on seat cushions, while the train sped to Long Island City, where an ambulance was waiting.

DEEDS AWAY HIS DAUGHTER. She is Given as a Sort of Chrono with Fifteen Mining Claims. Miss Ida Davis, youngest daughter of Josiah W. P. Davis, of Reading, Cal., a pretty girl, with dark eyes and an earnest yearning to make his acquaintance, finally seized on a very flimsy pretext to run over to Pittsburg for a couple of days on ostensible private business, but really to meet C. D. face to face. I was only 17 and was sure we would have a glorious time together...

A Woman's Wit. Gen. Hazen, the first head of the weather bureau in Washington, found it almost impossible to persuade the members of Congress to vote for him the necessary funds with which to carry out his plans. One spring, when the appropriation had been shamefully cut down by the economy loving chairman of the committee, Mrs. Hazen was the guest at an after-dinner reception at the house of one of the Cabinet members, where it was a decided and unendurable weather, unkind and unlooked for, was the topic of the moment. As Mrs. Hazen crossed the room to make her adieu she was waylaid by the chairman of the offending committee, who accosted her thus: "Well, Mrs. Hazen, is this the best your husband can do for us in the way of weather?" Mrs. Hazen looked at him with a sudden flash in her eyes, then answered, clearly and sweetly: "Yes, Mr. Blank, the very best—for the appropriation. The discredited man died, in the midst of the hardly concealed smiles of the surrounding guests.—New England Magazine.

It saves His Purpose. A boy's code of etiquette does not conform with the manual most approved and adopted in so-called polite society, says the Memphis Scimitar, but it serves his purpose all right. Two chubby little fellows were strolling along the sidewalks the other afternoon, when they were joined by a third, who was a stranger to one of the two chums, so the other proceeded to introduce them.

"Ned! Bright, do you know 'Tom Brown'?" he questioned. "Nops," replied "Ned." "Well, 'Tom Brown, as you know 'Ned' Bright?" "Nops," returned "Tom." "Well, now you know each other." "So, 'Ned' and 'Tom' proceeded to 'throw' each other in the most approved manner and roll over and over in the dust in the friendly way boys have.

A shrewd person never makes the mistake of putting oleomargarine before a woman's gait in the country. How superior a boy feels when he hears some other boy being scolded!

TELEGRAPH FRIENDS.

People Who Know Each Other Without Having Seen Each Other.

"It's very funny," said a former "lightning jerker" the other night, to an New Orleans Times-Democrat man, "what vivid pictures telegraph operators who have never met will form of each other merely from talking over the line. As a general thing they are correct, for you can take up a man pretty accurately from the way he manipulates the key, but sometimes they are ludicrously wide of the mark."

"When I was a kid and was holding down my first job in a little Ohio town, I worked on a Pittsburg wire, with an operator who signed C. D. He was a jolly fellow, and slack times we used to chat and chaff and spin yarns to each other by the hour. He was a capital story teller and a still better listener, and there was an appreciative quality in his 'h-h-h-h-h-h' that was peculiarly tickling to my vanity. You know, that's the way telegraphers laugh over the wire, by sounding h-h-a and repeat, and there's just as much difference in the way it is done, as there is in laughing with your mouth."

"Well, I got quite attached to C. D. and imagined I knew exactly how he looked. I thought he was about 20, with a round jovial face, and a little baseball moustache. A good dresser, I said to myself, and popular among the girls, who I was filled with such a yearning to make his acquaintance that I finally seized on a very flimsy pretext to run over to Pittsburg for a couple of days on ostensible private business, but really to meet C. D. face to face. I was only 17 and was sure we would have a glorious time together...

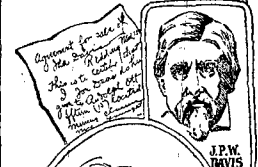

I walked into the office, a young man, with a long gray beard, standing against the counter. "Hi, Mr. about?" said I, giving C. D.'s right name. "Hi Mr.," he replied, and you could have knocked me over with a feather.

"When he heard who I was he turned red and made some excuse to get away. Poor old chap, he had enjoyed playing boy, and we were equally disconcerted. I never joked with C. D. any more."

Republican Judicial Convention.
The republican electors of the several counties of the Ninth judicial district of Nebraska are hereby called to meet in convention at Norfolk, Nebraska, June 21, 1900, at 2 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for district judge of said district and the selection of a judicial central committee and such other business as may properly be considered. The basis of representation is one delegate at large from each county and one delegate for each one hundred votes and major fraction thereof cast for Hon. M. B. Reese, for judge of supreme court, at the election held in 1899. The several counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Antelope, 10; Knox, 12; Madison, 17; Pierce, 8; Wayne, 10.
It is recommended that no proxies be allowed but that the delegates present at the convention cast the full vote of the delegation.
By order of the central committee of the Ninth judicial district of the state of Nebraska.

JOHN R. HAYS, Chairman.
JACK KOENIGSTEIN, Secretary.

As between the Clark machine and the Daily machine the Montana voter gets it in the neck coming and going.

Settling River has an unusually strong current this fall and will be able to carry a Towne or any other old thing.

To horse! to horse! in accents wild, cried the populists at Sioux Falls, as they gained two horses in democracy, just as the sun went down.

Even old Missouri leans strongly toward republicanism and this fall may join the column of States believing in prosperity and the goodwill of mankind.

The pop supreme court of Nebraska, and the Bee editor are in a squabble in which the latter is charged with contempt of court. But that isn't a "patron" to the contempt the people feel for the whole affair.

When the election is over next fall the fusionists will discover a break in the oleale at Madison brought about by the defeat of Congressman Robinson and Hon. John R. Hays is the bully boy who will cause the break.

If our populist friends have any idea that Nebraska is any longer populist, let him at once begin to pray for a drought for nothing else can wipe out the returning tide of republicanism which will sweep the state this fall.

Governor Poynter's appointees will be pertinaciously active in his behalf from this time forward to the July conventions. When the federal office holders lent Senator Thurston a helping hand recently the fusionists and the fusion press showed much righteous indignation. But for Governor Poynter it is different, of course.—Fremont Tribune.

The Supreme Court of Nebraska, especially that part presided over by Judges Holcomb and Sullivan and particularly Holcomb's end of it, seems to have been terribly hurt by a few editorials that appeared in the Omaha Bee some time ago. Editor Rosewater has been cited to appear before that court in a few days and tell why he shouldn't be punished for contempt. Before an honest court Rosewater will have no trouble to show cause why not. The Pilot has carefully read the editorials and in our humble opinion to find any contempt one would have to split hairs. The constitutional right of "free speech" and "free press" will no doubt do something of an injunction on those who now confess the fine stained countenances.—Blair Pilot.

A Practical Financial Law.
The chairman of the committee on banking and currency, Mr. Brosius, of Pennsylvania, does not overstate the case when he says the new financial law has more than met the sanguine expectations and that "the refunding provisions of the law are working out a revolution in finance without a parallel in the history of the world." A fresh triumph has been added to the record of the Republican party. Up to May 1 the treasury refunded $280,000,000 of 3, 4 and 5 per cent bonds maturing between the years 1894 and 1908, replacing them with 2 per cents. After deducting the premium paid the net saving effected is $8,604,454. This transaction not only saves a part of the surplus to advantage, but demonstrates that the credit of the United States Government is the highest in the world, for its two cent bonds are at a premium. A clear saving of over $6,000,000 by an operation that also advances public credit to its highest notch is a notable occurrence in national finance.

Under the new law national banks may be established with less than $50,000 capital, a decided broadening out of the system. There is scarcely a town in the country that cannot afford to start a bank if the field exists to make it profitable. Within six weeks after the passage of the law no less than 800 applications to start new banks were filed with the Comptroller of the Currency. Of the number approved 194 banks have capital of less than $50,000 and 42 of $50,000 or over. Since the passage of the new law the consequent increase of the bond-secured money in circulation, up to May 1, exceeded $20,000,000. This same law clinches the gold standard and breaks the endless chain. Its practice working is a splendid vindication of the wisdom and soundness of Republican financial ideas. The same administration that secured payment almost in full, principal and interest, from the Pacific railroads can present a new claim to the indorsement of the people.—Globe Democrat.

A few little fellows who sneeze every time Peebles takes snuff have been trying to credit Peebles with making Hays the nominee at the Norfolk convention. This assertion is being religiously circulated by the fusion press with the object of causing an injury to Mr. Hays. It is understood that Hays was in any sense a Peebles man it would lose him lots of votes throughout this district. Fortunately the record doesn't show that Mr. Hays owes Peebles anything and the Hartington Herald from Mr. Jones's own town quotes the record and gives up the situation truthfully when it says: "Keep the record straight. The stampede to Hays was not started by 'Billie Peebles.'" It was started by Platte county long before Thurston county was reached in the roll call. Platte started by throwing its solid strength to Hays, it having previously given Jenal about half, and divided the balance between Hays and Everett. Platte's action was followed by Pierce, which had just voted, changing solidly for Hays. We are aware that it has been claimed that Thurston started the ball to roll, but it is unquestionably a mistake; it is too bad to spoil such a good bogle man story, but we must keep the record straight, you know.—Lyons Sun.

"There is only one way to save your life and that is through an operation" were the startling words heard by Mrs. J. C. Populism in the Saddle.
In 1898 the democratic party nominated for president a man essentially a populist, and adopted a platform which was largely a restatement of populist views as those had been expressed by the people's party in 1892. Four years ago, however the democrats at least enjoyed the poor privilege of holding their convention first, and seeing the populists accept a candidate who they themselves had already named. But this year populism is in the saddle, and by the action taken in its national convention at Sioux Falls the other day it has put the historic old party in a position of absolute subordination to a non-descript organization of political odds and ends.

The populist managers realize their advantage, and were meretricious in the use of their power. The permanent chairman of the convention told the story of the organization and its successes in converting democracy. Speaking of the Chicago convention in 1896, he declared with entire truth, that "the spirit of populism sat under their throne and in their convention, and under the name of democracy they commenced a contest for populist principles, embodying in their platform nearly every one of their paramount issues that has been declared in the people's party of four years before." Recalling the fact that Alexander and Cassars, after their wars of triumph, led their most distinguished captives before the assembled rejoicing multitude, he says, that "if the people's party were to indulge in such a parade, they would have the right to lead in procession before the assembled people and the government as the chief and greatest captive the democratic party and the platform they had adopted."

DEMOCRACY APPARENTLY HELPLESS.
The captive is far more helpless in 1900 than in 1896. Four years ago the democrats could at least claim that they took the initiative in the matter. They nominated Bryan on the 10th of July, while the populist convention did not meet until the 22nd. This year the democratic convention will not assemble until the 4th of July, while its predestined candidate for president was nominated by the populists the other day.

The very spread-eagledness of nominating oratory was so thoroughly monopolized at Sioux Falls in May that the leavings will be stale by July at Kansas City. What so-called democratic senator can equal Senator Allen as an orator when the Nebraska populist has already pronounced Bryan "a statesman of ripe experience, a philosopher and an orator without a peer on this or any other continent," "clearly the greatest American citizen of the age," "this magnificent man this unadorned statesman, hero and orator?" Whence can there go to Kansas City any rival of "Cyclone" Davis, the unique production of Texas populism, with his impassioned declaration that "we are ready to give Bryan our votes again; yea, more, we are ready to worship at his shrine and to give to him the hot blossoms of a noble surrender as the only hope, the only salvation of this nation?" And who will have the assurance to try his tongue at a hopeless task after such an authority on tongues as Butler, the populist senator from North Carolina, has rendered the verdict that "there are times when the human tongue can grow eloquent in painting the sterling virtues of some great character whose virtues are not fully known to the world, but when the duty is involving upon any man to attempt to express with human tongue anything to add to the greatness, the sterling worth of such a man as William J. Bryan the human tongue is not equal to the task?"

MUST INDOSE A POPULIST.
The truth is that there is nothing left for the Kansas City convention in the matter of a presidential candidate except to say "Ditto." As regards a platform, the populists have also saved the democratic convention a good deal of trouble. Here it is to be found the re-affirmation of the demand for free silver coinage, which was the corner stone of the Chicago platform four years ago and has been re-affirmed in many democratic state conventions during the past few weeks. Here, too, is a fresh plank which is sure of endorsement at Kansas City, denouncing the gold standard act recently passed by Congress as "the culmination of a long series of conspiracies." An anti-injunction resolution is ready for transfer bodily to the democratic platform. Indeed, there are but few in the long list of principles which are not now "good democratic doctrine," as such doctrine is interpreted by the new school of leaders.

A HUMILIATING SPECTACLE.
There is one thing that the populist leaders might have foreborne to do, but they would not. They were forcing the democrats to accept their candidate president. They were framing a platform which must be endorsed in its essential features at Kansas City. Should they name also a candidate for Vice President, and try to deprive the democratic convention of control over anything? There were men at Sioux Falls who inclined to the side of mercy. They favored the idea of making up a role of statesman, and allowing the privilege of a choice among them. But the advocates of moderation were outvoted two to one, and ex-Congressman Towne of Minnesota was nominated for vice-president. The democrats can either take him or make themselves responsible for two tickets again—Bryan and Towne and Bryan and—
It is a humiliating spectacle which is now presented by what was once the democratic party, with populism thus firmly seated in the saddle. It is a national misfortune that, instead of the powerful opposition to the existing administration which should always exist, we see a once great party shorn of its old influence and claims to respect, and mere tender of an organization which the country detests.—New York Evening Post.

The Barber Shop Boss.
"You're next, sir," said the boss barber, indicating a fat man who was buried behind a newspaper. "I'll wait for awhile," replied the fat man. "I'm in no hurry." As another man climbed into the vacant chair the fat man leaned over to another customer who was waiting his turn and confided that he was in a hurry, a deuced hurry, but he would rather lose his turn than be shaved by the proprietor of the shop. "It isn't that I have any preference against this particular barber," he went on, "but I shun all boss barbers as I would a plague. In the first place, he patronizes you, and, in the second place, he is invariably the worst barber in the shop. Then, too, it takes him about twice as long. He will lather one side of your face and then go over to the desk to make change for a customer who is going out, for he is generally his own cashier. He is considering it his duty to exchange airy persiflage with each customer as he leaves the shop, and by the time he gets back to your face is cold as a fish." "This usually happens four or five times while you are getting shaved, and you may consider yourself lucky if a salesman for a perfume or soap house doesn't come in to talk up his wares. In that event you are bound to be kept waiting for 10 or 15 minutes, and when you are finally shaved your peace of mind is destroyed for the rest of the day. No boss barbers in mine. I know 'em too well, and I wait every time."—Exchange.

Scored on McCullough.
"The late John McCullough, the tragedian, was a great friend of mine," said Comedian Crane, "and when in this city used always to live at the Gilsey House. One day I went there to call on him and, he being out, left my card, upon which, underneath my name, by way of a joke, I wrote in large letters the word 'Actor.' The next day I was passing McCullough on the street when he stepped me with 'Say, Billy, what do you mean by leaving a card in my box with such an infernal lie as that written on it?' 'I got on with him, however, later. McCullough was inordinately fond of the game of seven up, and one evening I had the satisfaction of beating him nine straight games. Bright and early the following morning I again left my card for him at his hotel, this time writing below my name 'Seven up player.' When I saw McCullough later in the day, I jollied him with 'That wasn't any lie I put on my card this morning, was it, John?' And he evidently saw the point, for he didn't reply to my question."—New York Tribune.

The Best at the Bottom.
Speaking of poison murders, a native of Maine told of a peculiar crime that occurred in his state. This was the case of a man who had tired of his wife, and in order to rid himself of her in the shortest and most expeditious manner possible he determined upon her death. Divorce, while a feasible method, appealed not to his frugal mind, since it involved a large initiatory expense from counsel fees and a continuous one from attorney.
So on murder he resolved, arsenic as the agent to effect it, and the method through which to introduce the poison into the stomach of his victim without arousing her suspicious the usually innocuous and popular lemonade.
At the trial it was proved that he carried through his plans with skill and finesse, but after the deadly lemonade had been drunk by his too trusting spouse, noticing that some of the precipitate remained in the bottom of the glass, he stirred it well up and again handed it to his victim with a loving smile, at the same time remarking, "But the best's at the bottom, my dear."

How Shrapnel Operates.
Shrapnel shell is a beautiful and ingenious missile. It consists of a hollow, elongated shell, with a bursting charge of powder at the base and filled with from 200 to 600 half inch bullets, according to the size of the gun. It is fitted with a time fuse, which is "set" to fire the bursting charge at a given number of seconds after the shell has left the gun. The bursting charge in turn blows the head off the shell and sends forward the 200 to 600 bullets, which continue their course in a conical shower on to the ground.

Not a Violent Case.
Mrs. Peck—Henry, what would you do if I were to die suddenly?
Henry—Pray, don't talk of such a thing. I think it would almost drive me crazy.
Mrs. Peck—Do you think you would marry again?
Henry—Oh, no! I don't think I would be as crazy as that.—Chicago News.

An Exclusive Book.
The "Alamogordo Cipher" is the most exclusive book of its kind, and perhaps of any kind in the world, and to get one's name in its pages implies that one is either an exalted personage or something very much like it. And of those whose names appear very few are able to boast of having a portrait between its select and scarlet covers.—London Letter.

A prominent western clergyman, W. W. White by name, was a member of a learned society in which there were several members who were fond of quibbling. During a speech he had been annoyed by their interruptions almost beyond the point of endurance. At last he said, "I trust I will not be troubled again until my speech is finished."
Before he could begin another sentence one of his chief tormentors arose and said, slowly and solemnly: "Oh, doctor trouble you, trouble you, trouble you, trouble you, trouble you, trouble you." The doctor sat down.—Kansas City Independent.

Said Lake City paper reports that a certain woman, with ginger hair and a somewhat heretic expression of countenance, lately came to the County Jail of Boxelder County, in that State.

"You're the man that keeps the marriage books, ain't you?" she asked.

"Yes, ma'am," he replied. "What book do you find out if Jack Peters was married?"

"I developed the name of John Peters for whose marriage a license was issued two years before."

"Thought so," said the woman. "I'm Lizzy Waters, didn't I?"

"The license is issued for a marriage with Miss Elizabeth Waters."

"Well, I'm Lizzy. I thought I'd come in and find out if Jack has any more."

posed to listen. But here was a man who had graduated at no college, had not in any academy by ordinary means learned the alphabet of the language he spoke, and yet he proposed to talk, to instruct and to subject such as he surrounded by the wisest intellects of John say, "The Jews, marvelled, saying, How hath this man letters, having never learned?" We in our day, have found out that a man without a diploma may know as much as a man with one and that a college cannot transform a stammer into a philosopher or a thoughtless man into a man of letters.

There is a profound satisfaction in the completion of anything we have undertaken. We lift the burdens with which we are weighed on the other hand, there is nothing more disappointing than after having toiled in a certain direction to find that our time is wasted and our investment fruitless. Christ came to throw up a highway on which the whole world might, if it chose, march. He was not content to tread on his own feet, but he tempted to tread on his could not distinguish the sublime satisfaction which he expressed when he said, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do."

Alexander the Great was wounded, and the doctors said he would die, and in his dream the sick man saw a plant with a peculiar flower, and he dreamed that that plant was just upon his wound and that immediately it was cured. And Alexander, waking from his dream, said to his physician, "I have found the plant which thou hast described, brought it to him, and the wound was healed. Well, the human race had been hurt with the glass of all wounds—that of sin. It was the business of Christ to bring a better plant that would—the brain of divine restoration. In carrying this business to a successful issue the difficulties were stupendous.

"Blessed Are the Poor."

Popular opinion declared in those days, "Blessed is the merchant who has a castle down on the banks of Lake Tiberias." This young man said, "Blessed are the poor." Popular opinion said in those days, "The man who has a fountain and gardens in his front yard and a fine carriage is a nobleman." This young man said, "Blessed are the poor." The Spiritual Uplifting.

In his father's shop no more intercomers were there than in an ordinary one. In bargaining with men that have work to do, yet Christ, with hands hard from use of tools of trade, was called forth to become a public speaker, to preach in the face of mobs, while some went and some shook their fists and some raised their hands with threats and many would him out of the way. To address orderly and respectful assemblies is not so easy as it may seem, but it requires more energy and more force and more concentration to address an assembly of men than it does to address a group of people.

The Question of Lineage.

I imagine Christ one day standing in the temple and he said to a man who was seated him and said, "My father was a merchant prince. He had a castle on the beach at Galilee. Who was your father?" Christ answered, "Joseph, the carpenter." A man from Athens, he standing there, saying, "I am a descendant of a noble lineage, and you are a carpenter's son."

SHORT SERMONS.

Self-Realization.—The path Christ pointed out the heavenward ascent through the soul, is the open door set before us to the highest self-realization. No man can shut it but yourself, for in him all the rich past centers, all the spiritual potentialities of the race reside.—Rev. Morgan Millar, Unitarian, San Francisco, Cal.

Jesus.—Man is demanding the rights that an infinite nature has bequeathed to all alike—the right to live harmoniously, happily and prosperously, without oppression. His service was of socialistic tendencies. His service was to man. He was not a religionist, for he fulminated against the national religion of the Jews.—Rev. P. E. Mason, Spiritualist, Brookline, N. Y.

The Confession.—While we reverence the confession for what it was to our fathers, we are forced to recognize that it falls far short of being an adequate expression of the truth of our faith in God. Emphasizing the sovereignty of God on the side of salvation, it draws a conclusion which no man today can accept.—Rev. M. S. Littlefield, Presbyterian, Washington, D. C.

Greater Work of the Church.—Whoever does not believe in the greater work of the church does so in spite of the plain teaching of its religion, either from lack of information as to what the Bible teaches, or from lack of sufficient energy to impel him to do his duty, or from a deep selfishness, which leads him to hold on to everything for himself.—Rev. J. L. Barton, Congregationalist, Bangor, Me.

How Much You Eat

Is not the question, but how much you digest, because food does good only when it is digested and assimilated, taken up by the blood and made into muscle, nerve, bone and tissue. Hood's Sarsaparilla restores to the stomach its powers of digestion. Then appetite is natural and healthy, and dyspepsia is gone.

BROKE HIS WIFE

Of the Habit of Going Through His Clothes.

"I say, old man," said Dodson, as he leaned his friend Blossom a nickel to pay his car fare, "why don't you try my scheme?"

"What scheme?" growled Blossom, as he mentally tried to figure out how much his wife had realized in her midnight raid.

The Supernatural Nature.

No man could go through all the obstacles I have described, you say, without having a nature supernatural. In that arm, and his muscles and nerves and bones, were interwoven the energies of omnipotence. In the syllables of that voice, there was the emphasis of the eternal. In the words that he spoke, there was the power of the Creator. In the look of his eyes, there was the radiance of the sun. In the sound of his voice, there was the thunder of the sea. In the very air that he breathed, there was the fragrance of the earth.

His Worst Offense.

When it was proposed to lessen the list of crimes punishable by death, Lord Eldon objected to the noise being banished in cases of petty shop-lifting. "The small shopkeepers will be ruined by this exemption," said the old Tory Lord Chancellor.

Another Tory, a judge, so venerated the sovereign that he included in his regard any article belonging to the king, no matter how far removed from actual possession. A tailor had been condemned for the murder of a soldier, and the judge tacked on this addition to the sentence of death:

Another Article Tabooed.

If a man refused to eat all the articles which from time to time are placed under the ban by doctors the chances are that he would soon starve to death. A Spanish street physician who is a doctor to the extent of being known as a crane, has this to say to his patients: "I have always been regarded as not only harmless but actually beneficial. This doctor claims to have discovered that the soil in which celery is grown is laden with germs of enteric fever, and that in the ordinary process of washing it is impossible to remove all of the soil, any portion of which, he says, if taken into the system, would contain enough germs of typhoid to fill a hospital. And now his patients are wondering what is to come next.—Philadelphia Record.

From the Cow.

Mrs. Morey, of Coney Island, New York, peddles milk, but she doesn't keep a horse and wagon. Instead of that she drives her cow around to the houses of her customers and while they wait Mrs. Morey says, "So, Boss" to the sleek-looking cow, and proceeds to milk the desired quantity. In this way each customer is assured that the milk received is fresh and free from adulteration. This custom of leading the cow from door to door was in common practice in this country many, many years ago, and in parts of Europe the milk cows of goats are still made to serve in the place of the modern milk wagon.

A Whistling Language.

It seems that there is really a whistling language. It is in the Canary Islands, that people whistle instead of speaking when they hold converse with each other. The language is composed of words, as we were, like any other language, and the inhabitants attain great proficiency in it, so that they can converse on all sorts of subjects.

PILES OF PAIN.

"For Twenty Years I've Suffered, and Now I Am Well."

A Miracle Performed for a Father and His Three-Year-Old Son—Millions of People Need Relief.

What causes them? Nothing but irregular working of the bowels. When a viscous mass of undigested food remains in the intestines instead of being passed out of the body, its pressure congests the blood vessels, and produces all kinds of hemorrhoids, itching, and horribly painful and annoying.

Nothing will cure them except to go to the cause, make the bowels regular, and then tone up the intestines so they can keep regular. Only a stomachic, intestinal tonic can do it, and Cascarella's Candy Cathartic is the best kind. The best kind of a proof is the experience of Mrs. H. K. King, Chicago, Ill.

Gentle—I have been using your Cascarella's Candy Cathartic for some time, and it has done me more good than any other medicine. PUMPLES

Perhaps you have already discovered that powders and washes will not cure these eruptions on your face. They may cover up and suppress, but they cannot remove. Rashes, boils, salt-rheum, shingles, hives, eczema, tetter, etc., are but surface indications of a deeper trouble. And

That's Bad Blood

That's AYER'S

The question for you now is,—how to make bad blood good blood; how to get rid of all these impurities in your system. Everybody knows the answer,—a perfect Sarsaparilla. No ordinary Sarsaparilla, such as you can buy at almost any store, will answer; it must be a perfect one. There is such a Sarsaparilla, and it differs widely in every way from all other Sarsaparillas.
