An editor got a cattle show and a concert mixed in making up, and now he has to keep dark. This is the way he did it. "The concert given by Robinson's most beautiful young ladies was highly appreciated. They sang in the most charming manner, winning the plaudits of the entire audience, who pronounced them the finest herd of short-horns in the country. A few are of rich brown color, but the majority are spotted brown, and white. Several of the heifers are able bodied, fine limbed, and promise to prove good milkers.
The students attending the Winter Course in Agriculture which begins on Dec. 31, will have a fine opportunity to study the various styles and makes of band separators. The dairy department at the university of Nebraska is as well equipped for instruction in home dairying as any school in America and a special effort has been made to meet the demand for information regarding hand separators. Economic milk production is a live and important subject which Nebraska boys should be interested in now that feeds and markets are so favorable to the industry. Hence a thorough study is made of the most economic way of producing milk.

It is said that one of our hardware firms has a clerk who is a genuine genius. A short time ago a customer went into the store to get some gunpowder, but was given blasting powder instead by the aforesaid clerk. The next day the customer brought back the lumpy blasting powder to exchange for what he originally asked for. Here is where the clerk's genius displayed itself. Instead of taking back the blasting powder on the spot he tried to argue the customer into buying a coffee grinder with which the blasting powder might be ground to the requisite fineness. Sad to relate he failed, but he made a great hit, nevertheless.
Democrat: A. A. Welch has received notice that the supreme court has reversed the district court's decision in Lound vs. the Windele State Bank. This is one of those real old chestnuts with the legal fraternity. Years ago Mr. Lound secured a verdict in the lower court against the bank, (C. B. French as defendant) it was taken to the supreme court and reversed. In the second trial Mr. Lound was given a verdict against French for $1200, now this has been reversed and a new trial ordered, which will probably come up at the next spring term. Mr. Welch was attorney for the bank, vs. French, and Fuller and Barnes for Lound. Possibly plaintiff Lound will now give up the chase.
Homestead: There are a great many reasons why farmers should visit each other more than is now the custom. One is for the exchange of ideas even if all of them are not accepted. Sometimes one idea is worth a great deal. Farmers are in need of sociability, and in no other way can this be brought about than by visiting. Winter is a good time to visit and exchange ideas. An old pack peddler is seldom admitted in the home where many papers are taken and where families have plenty of sociable neighbors and friends. But few gold bricks are bought, and swindlers of all kinds steer clear of such homes.

In the January McClure's, Mr. Geo. Washburn Smalley gives us the first of his delightfully intimate portraits of some of the great men and women in Europe. Mr. Smalley speaks with the authority of close acquaintance. For years he was the chief American newspaper correspondent in Europe, and was received everywhere, and made friendships with the best men and women of the day. This time he writes of a number of men who are making British history—Lord Rosebery, Arthur Balfour, Sir Edw. Gray, H. H. Asquith—men whose names we see almost every day in the papers, but of whose personal and social qualities we know very little. Mr. Smalley shows them to us as they appear to their own countrymen; he shows them to us as men of rare personal charm and popularity, independent of politics.

With General Lew Wallace and Jas. Whitcomb Riley as its deans, the "Hoosier School" of poets and authors is assuming a prominent place in the field of American letters. The late Maurice Thompson and Charles Maljor and Booth Tarkington have each contributed and are still adding to its fame, and now a comparatively new name is written besides these; Frederick M. Smith. Mr. Smith is a native of Indiana, who confesses that he has "been trying to learn to write for ten years," and also that the reason his writings haven't appeared oftener before is not so much his fault as the editors'. One of his first stories to attract general attention was "The Blue Gown that Wouldn't Fit," and which came out in the Ladies' Home Journal last August. Since then he has contributed a short romance called "Christine" to the same magazine, and an interesting note about this tale is that it is not wholly a "child of invention." The material for it was gathered in Germany where the writer finished his education.

The physician is one of the most unappreciated men in the community. It is he who is called in green apple time to untie the knot into which your contortions have drawn you. If you feel indisposed with a gum boil, have a tooth of the epizootic, tooth, ear on any other kind of ache, you need him and it matters not how dark the moon is, or whether it is the worst storm of the season, you want him—you want him quick—you want him bad and he always responds with the greatest of pleasure, brings smiles and pills which makes you glad he was no longer coming. We love the local doctors. They are the best fellows on earth, for they bring us news, they cure our many ills and make us think bitter is sweet and if we don't take their ugly medicine they look so alarmed that we just swallow it, spoon and all, and then have to take another dose to save the spoon. A young lady is said to have once swallowed a penny and the physician made her cough up $2.50 to get the penny back but then this is a day of speculation and who can blame the doctor for having his torn. The first man we desire to see when we get sick is the physician and to be candid he is the last man we desire to see when we get well but then, Great Scott, we newspaper people are not alone in this respect.—Ex.

Salmon's Sermon

Copyright, Louis Kleppner, 1901.

It is the duty of the church to be full of the activity and appropriate for the holidays; text, Luke xi, 26. And they came with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the babe lying in a manger.

The black window slitters of a December night were thrown against some of the finest snow of a winter whose days of white frost had already melted back the slippers of the child, and the white and blue of the echoes of hill and valley appeared and covered the half-fallen cherubs.

They went to go into that Christmas scene as though we had never before worshipped the manger. There is a Madonna seated in the center of the manger, and the child of the manger is in all hands and in all Christian centuries is Mary. And there are Marys in palaces and Marys in the streets, and though German and French and Italian and Spanish and English pronounce it differently, they are all names of the one whom we find in all hands and in all Christian centuries is Mary. And there are Marys in palaces and Marys in the streets, and though German and French and Italian and Spanish and English pronounce it differently, they are all names of the one whom we find in all hands and in all Christian centuries is Mary.

There are three different masterpieces, each of them a masterpiece and each of them a masterpiece. The first is the manger scene, the second is the manger scene, and the third is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene.

Following the Shepherds. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene.

Core of God's Creation. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene.

Behold also in this Bible scene how on that Christmas night God honored children. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene.

The Influence of Mother. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene. The manger scene is the manger scene, and the manger scene is the manger scene.

not how many wrinkles crossed her forehead, how her face or how much her shoulders stooped with the burdens of a long life, if you painted a Madonna here would be the face. What a gentle hand she had which was sick and what a voice to soothe pain, and was there any one who could see all in a room with peace and purple and light? And what a sad day that was when we came home and she could greet us not for her lips were forever still. Come back, mother, in these Christmas times, and let your old hands and feet be as they were when you came and open the old Bible as you used to, read and kneel in the same place where you used to pray and look upon us as of old when you wished us a merry Christmas or a happy New Year. But no! That would not be fair to call you back. You had troubles enough and aches enough and heartaches enough which you were here. Tarry by the throne, mother, till we join you there, your prayers all answered, and in the eternal home-stand of our God we shall again keep Christmas jubilee together. But speak from your throne, all you glorified mothers who kneel at the feet of your old mothers, words of love, words of waiting, words of cheer. They need your voice, for they have traveled far and with many a heartbreak since you left them, and you do well to call from the heights of heaven to the endless of earth, the enraptured assembly: We are exulting, King, for you right beside you at the banquet.

Slow faded years! Move swiftly on into the goal of that awaiting sun, Homestead we are for thee, O calm beyond the sea.

SERMONETTES

Moral Truth.—Whatever moral truth was effective in the past is good now.—Rev. J. Henderson, mission, Chicago, Ill.

Christ's Gospel.—Christ's gospel is the ever-present need and ever-constant salvation of men.—Rev. J. R. Boyle, Methodist, Philadelphia, Pa.

Prayer.—Prayer is something that links human weakness to the strength of omnipotence.—Rev. G. Dugan, Presbyterian, Troy, New York.

To Live Right.—People know how to live right; how to live honestly. Do they want to live right?—Rev. Merton Smith, Evangelist, Omaha, Neb.

Christ's Life.—It was not the doctrines of Jesus that made him so great. It was his life. Truth and love were in the world before Christ came, but Jesus put new power in love. He made the truths common, talking with them and living with them.—Rev. Fannie Austin, Universalist, North Dana, Mass.

Success.—No success in material pursuits can be a substitute for faith and love. No activity of industry or commerce can permanently take the place of the higher things of life. Civilization means raising material things to higher valuations. A man is, up to a certain point, a machine, but there is a divinity in him which calls out for the living God.—Rev. Dr. Gammon, Universalist, Canton, N. Y.

Ministry of Teaching.—The present conditions point to what is a ministry of teaching, which is a ministry of teaching, which is a ministry of teaching. The ministry of teaching is the ministry of teaching, which is a ministry of teaching.

Jenny Washington. Philip Vickers Philbin, a tutor at North Hall, Virginia, in 1771, gives this description of Washington's niece, Miss Jenny Washington. Evidently she was a personable young lady, with all the graces of her time.

Compleat. "Oh, yes, our home is compleat in every respect," said Mr. Prouton.

Foxy Scheme. Bluffer—So you have taught your wife poker? Meekby—Yes. It's a great scheme! Last Saturday night I won back nearly $2 of my salary.—Puck.

The Mistakes of Animals. It is just as easy to do as an animal as it is to be a human being. Thousands of birds leave a field or a garden alone merely because a scarecrow has been stuck up in the middle of it. Fishes are constantly swallowing hooks that are hidden in make-believe flies. A dog that worried a postcard at looked a truly pitiable object when he found out his error.

A London Mystery Explained. A strange cry may be faintly heard at dead of night in a street not far removed from Park Lane. A lady householder happened to have an attachment to cats, which is not all happy. The love that ought to cast out fear has exactly a contrary effect, and the lady's heart is full of apprehensions, one of which is that the police, at this the beginning of the dead season, writing the necks of the stray cats they meet on their rounds. Hence, at intervals of the night, when she awakes, she throws upon the window and shouts into the air a tentative, "I see you, you villain!"

A Hazardous Experiment. In order to secure some evidence for use in the trial of a damage suit against a Western railroad company the father of two children who had been run over in Rooks County, Kansas, recently placed two dummy figures on the railway track at the point where the fatality occurred and awaited the arrival of an express train. His experiment nearly caused the loss of another life, for the driver of the express saw what he supposed to be an obstruction on the track as the train approached at a speed of forty miles an hour and attempted to jump from the cab. The cool-headed engineer seized him in the nick of time and held him until the train had passed over the dummies.

Cities Without Slums. Berlin is none of the horrible areas which disgrace London and so many other English towns. Even in the poorest quarters the dwellings are good, the streets well paved, clean and comparatively wide. It also has no slums in the English sense of the word. Kyoto, in Japan, and Sebastopol, in Europe, both boast an absence of slums and shanties. In England the largest manufacturing town which is free from this reproach is probably Huddersfield, and after that would come Leamington, Spa and "London by the Sea"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Blacksmith's Story. Goodland, Kan., Dec. 23.—N. E. Albertson, a local blacksmith, had almost decided to give up his shop altogether on account of rheumatism, which had crippled him so that at times he could not use his hammer.

McKinley's Thoughtfulness. "I had a little experience once with the President," said a local professional man, "which left a most pleasing memory of his thoughtfulness. I was on a local after-dinner program, and had been assigned to the last position among the toast responders. Maj. McKinley—it was a few months before his first nomination—preceded me. The major's address was scholarly and eloquent. When he finished there was much applause and considerable clattering of glasses, and quite a number of the guests—as was natural, because the hour was late—pushed back their chairs and started for the doors. I did the best I could, omitting a good deal of what I meant to say, and bringing up my climax with a sharp turn.

Building Material from Coke. An excellent building material consisting of pressed brick but harder, is now being made at European gas works from coke ashes, hitherto a troublesome waste. The ashes are carefully powdered, mixed with a tenth part of slaked lime, formed into a stiff paste with water, and pressed into bricks like ordinary brick. The bricks, protected from rain, harden in the air without the aid of artificial heat.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured. Up to local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear, there is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by systematic treatment. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, the sound vibrations are intercepted, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and the tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. It is not a matter of days, weeks, or months, which is nothing but an advanced condition of the mucous surfaces.

CHRISTMAS DOINGS.
Christmas has come and gone but there will remain many pleasant recollections of the day as time speeds on. The day was not a model Christmas day as the weather was warm and the streets crowded but the younger generation cared not for mud. We doubt if there was a household in Wayne where Santa Claus failed to arrive and friends and relatives from abroad were here in numbers to enjoy the Christmas dinner. There were a number of home parties, and in many homes were beautifully decorated Christmas trees. The Christmas services were held at the Lutheran church yesterday morning, at which time the pastor, Rev. Ringer, preached a Christmas sermon to a large audience. Christmas eve the different churches held appropriate exercises.
At the Presbyterian church the pulpit was beautifully arranged, the principal feature being a pretty tree and a fir place, the tree being loaded with presents for the Sunday school. An excellent program consisting of songs and recitations was rendered. A Christmas play under the supervision of Mrs. Ley, was presented, which was greatly appreciated.
At the English Lutheran church the Sunday school rendered a well prepared program which consisted of recitations and songs. Special numbers that were appreciated were the songs by the Berg sisters, the Petersen sisters and Paul, Ethel and Nellie Juhlén. On the pulpit platform was a beautiful evergreen tree, finely decorated and illuminated. Beneath it were piled many handsome presents for members of the school.
At the M. E. church the Sunday school classes were arranged on the stage and in their usual places, and a Christmas tree in the center of the platform was decorated with handkerchiefs and other pretty things. No other presents were given than those which the Sunday school presented to each of the younger members. Each member of Mr. Main's, Rev. Bithell's and Prof. Wolfe's classes was presented with a knife, and each of Mrs. Crossland's class with a handkerchief or tea plate. The exercises consisted of music and speaking. Mr. Bithell giving a very interesting talk on "Why We Are Here." Misses Alma Farr and Edith Stinson rendered a beautiful duet entitled "Watchman" and as they sang a large star was made to shine with pretty effect. Then Santa Claus amused the children for a while, after which a few presents were given to the younger members of the Sunday school.
The Christmas entertainment at the Baptist church was less elaborate than it was a year ago when a beautiful Christmas cantata was pleasingly rendered, yet the large audience which assembled on Tuesday night were well entertained. Songs, recitations and concert exercises made up the program. Santa Claus was present, of course, much to the delight of the children, and each member of the Sunday school was remembered in his distribution of good things. The decorations were very pretty. The slove back of the pulpit was draped with white and upon this gilt stars were effectively arranged. A realistic appearing fir place and an artistically decorated Christmas tree occupied places in front. The platform, carpeted with white and sprinkled with silver dust, giving the appearance of snow, completed the decorations.
Last night occurred the exercises at the German Lutheran church. A handsome tree loaded with presents for young and old and especially the Sunday school, was the principal feature. The exercises consisted of songs and recitations and the evening was delightfully spent by the large audience present.

COAL PASSERS AT LUDINGTON, MICH., BADLY INJURED.

One Man Already Has Succumbed and Two Others Probably Will Die—Many Others Badly Wounded—Accident Caused by Pipe Bursting.

While entering Ludington harbor Sunday night under a heavy southerly gale the Here Marquette car ferry No. 10, of the Ludington Steamship Co., was struck by a boiler explosion...

No. 10 arrived at the harbor from Milwaukee after a ten-hour voyage. In spite of the heavy seas and strong wind from an unfavorable gale, Capt. Charles Thompson decided to hazard an attempt to land the boiler.

When day broke the life saving crew, consisting of their rannor, three a line and the wrecked craft and began rescuing the crew with their breeches buoy apparatus. The entire crew of thirty-three men and the body of Platt were taken off the wreck in this manner.

It is believed that the No. 10 will prove a total loss. An attempt will be made to lift her out, but unless the weather conditions are perfect it will be almost impossible. Great tanks of iron surrounding the hull on all sides. Boat and cargo valued at $200,000, and are fully insured.

A LESSON TO CHINESE.

State Funeral to Massacred Native Christians.

The officials of Tung Chow have given a number of native Christians who were massacred last year a remarkable funeral. This action was taken in accordance with an agreement between the missionaries and the officials by which the missionaries were to refrain from demanding the punishment of those guilty of murdering the Christians if the officials would make public atonement for the crimes and impress the people with respect for missionaries and converts.

The funeral procession traversed the principal streets of the walled city of Tung Chow. There were seventy coffins to be buried, and these were followed by hundreds of relatives of the victims. The procession was composed of a company of Chinese cavalry, a company of infantry, several bands and hundreds of men carrying gaily funeral emblems.

The Chinese troops, the police and the funeral attendants formed in a square with the officials, the missionaries and the white clad mourners in the center, near the graves. Chinese officials from fifty villages where the Christian converts had been massacred, attended the funeral and bowed before banners as they engaged the Christians for having died in defense of their faith.

DEATH IN TERRIBLE GUISE.

Ten Men Burned at a Pittsburgh Furnace and Four Others Injured.

Ten men were burned to death and four injured by an explosion of gas at the Solo furnace of Jones & McLaughlin, located in Pittsburgh Thursday. The explosion was caused by a slip in the furnace, the gaseous flames belching upward through the bell. The men were on the furnace platform, eighty-five feet above the ground.

There were sixteen men on the furnace when the explosion occurred. Fifteen of them were caught in the flames. Two of them escaped with slight injuries. The other four were the regular men employed as top fillers, and escaped without injury.

The explosion was caused by the gas becoming engaged in a crust of cinders forming at the bottom of the furnace. A wheelbarrow containing ore had been sent up to the men, and when they went to dump it into the bell of the furnace they pushed it over too far and it rolled into the hopper. The barrow weighed 900 pounds and was too heavy for the four men to raise.

The most distressing feature of the disaster was the burning of Frankowitz. He was seen by thousands of people who were on their way to work from the platform railing and leap into the air. He was a mass of flames as he spiraled through the air. He fell on the stack-yard shed and literally burned to death before the eyes of the crowd, fifty feet below, who had no way to reach him.
