There is no good reason why a farmer and his wife should answer the word "slave." The man on a farm can make a slave of himself and his entire family if he desires, but there is no call for it. Rather he should be called a king in his calling, and the wife should be the queen of the household. A great deal of slavery is done on the farm to gratify ambition. It may be to accumulate land, money, live stock, or for the education of sons and daughters. It is not necessary to enslave any person in these times, when prosperity should be enjoyed.—Homestead.

Who sympathized with you when your little girl was sick? Was it your home merchant or was it Sears and Roebuck? Who carried you last winter when you were out of a job and had no money? Was it Montgomery Ward & Co., or was it your home merchant? When you want to raise money for the church or for some needy person in town do you write to the Fair store in Chicago or do you go to your home merchant? How much do Siegel Cooper & Co. give towards keeping up the sidewalks of the town or paying the minister's salary? When you were sick how many nights did Hibbard, Spencer & Bartlett sit up with you? When your loved one was buried was it your home paper that shed the tears of sympathy and uttered the cheering word, or was it some Chicago or New York paper?—David City Banner.

Frank Wible of Winside, was in the city Tuesday.

The United States transport McClellan left New York at 3:30 Sunday on its voyage to Manila with 200 teachers, most of whom were from the middle states and the south and west. This is the vessel upon which Miss Leona Hunter of this city, who left last week for New York, sailed. Her host of friends in Wayne county will wish her a safe voyage and successful experience in the new possessions of Uncle Sam.

"The Raging of the Sea," by Norman Duncan in the March number of McClure's is the story of a stern battle with the tides, winds and rocks of the Newfoundland shore, recounting how Job Luff, the blasphemer, beat back to the harbor in his creaky punt in the teeth of the gale, while all the folk of Ragged Harbor gathered on the rocks to see the man go down. This is the second of Mr. Duncan's Newfoundland stories in McClure's, for which he went to live among the fishermen of the island.

Winside Tribune: Ed Hennick marketed a car load of hogs Tuesday and got the top price. Mr. Dan Roush of Wayne visited his sister, his sister Mrs. G. B. Carter. Messrs Tom and John Price shipped a car load of cattle and one of hogs to Omaha on Sunday and expect to visit the fine cattle sale of yesterday and today. The Knights of Pythias lodge in Winside is doing well these days and to not be a K. P. is to be out of fashion. Six new members were initiated Tuesday night and a general good time was had. John R. Hays, having announced that he is not a candidate for congress this fall, it is in order for each county to bring out their favorite son and commence the campaign. The Tribune has no disposition to mix in republican politics, but it cannot refrain from remarking that if the G. O. P.'s of this district are looking for a man that perfectly fills the bill they need not look farther than Winside and should unanimously nominate Hon. E. E. Gurney, the talented young orator who has done so much towards cutting down the overwhelming majority in the Third district. Mr. Gurney is not a candidate but he should be forced to be one.

The postmaster at Battle Creek puts a few facts in the following article that might be read with benefit by many citizens of Wayne. If you don't believe it observe for yourself sometime. He says: "Kind and gentle reader, you doubtless have observed that there has been a 'lookout' at the postoffice for the last few evenings. Do you wonder why? If so, listen and I will tell you. From the time that the mild of man runneth not to the contrary, it has been a custom for the wails of the town to make a break for the postoffice as soon as the train has 'done hooped' and by their boisterous talk, laughter and ungentelemanly conduct, make it almost impossible to properly and expeditiously distribute the mail and I have warned you that if a stop could not be put to it in no other way I would have, in self protection, to adopt this method. I believe the town is in a great measure responsible for the conduct of its people, and it would if a mob should take possession of one of our usually quiet saloons, so as to make it impossible for the bartender to properly mix drinks, see to it that the mob was dispersed and order restored. But the kids are not the only ones to blame. Business men meet in the job of the office to tell stories and create such a confusion that it is next to impossible to do business behind the screens, and I observed one of your number some time ago, out of fear no doubt that we might be lonesome, take one of his jewels in his arms while he led the second one in, just to lend enchantment to the scene. Hereafter the postoffice will not be opened Sunday evenings, at least until the people who are interested appreciate the sacrifice we make in their behalf. On last Sunday evening the organ would have disgraced a camp of Hotentots, and that, too, in the presence of a majority of the city council and chief of police. So if you innocent souls that do not know where your 'buds of promise' are hereafter on Sunday evening you can be assured that they are not raising hedges in the post office."

Don't be fooled into the belief that weeds destroyed after growing and allowed to return to the soil will return all the fertility that has been removed. These weeds have removed the moisture, which is a positive loss. The plant food taken up by the weeds from the soil is tied up in dry fibre and is not available to the crops that season. When they decay then they are available, but no more is added to the soil than was originally there. There is a positive loss for some of the nutriment has been carried away by the wind.—Homestead.

Wakefield's new auditorium building is a splendid evidence of the push of the business men of that burg. It is modern in all respects, handsomely seated with opera chairs, heated by hot air, and in fact is a model opera house. It would be a credit to a town many times the size of Wakefield, and makes the old building here look decidedly on the bum.

MRS. FORRESTER.

CHAPTER XIV.
After a ten days' visit to Mrs. Clayton, Winifred was summoned home. "I would gladly let you remain longer," said Lady Grace, "but you remember, my dear, that our original plan was to leave for London on the 25th, and Sir Clayton never likes his plans interfered with."

On the 25th of April Winifred returned to London Vale, very sorry to leave her friend, but with almost a sense of relief at being freed from the onerous duties of Mrs. Clayton. Ever since her arrival at the house had not seemed the same without her—It lacked the sunshine, as the old French lady said.

On the day appointed Sir Clayton and Lady Grace Paragon and Miss Pyle arrived at Eaton Square and were introduced to the various family parties. Her ladyship had spent all her young years in such quiet, not to say monotonous. She found it very pleasant, although not altogether what it had been in her dreams two years before.

Her ladyship took place at the house of Mrs. Douglas, Lord Harold Erskine's aunt, a lady occupying a very decided position in the fashionable world, and the centre of whose entertainments was very generally desired. Lady Grace was anxious that her protégée should look her best.

When Winifred appeared, dressed, on the night of the ball, Lady Grace had no reason to regret having allowed her to exercise her own taste. Her dress was of a marvelous whiteness and softness, almost like snow clouds, and here and there over it were the softest white flowers that might have been flakes of fallen snow.

Very late in the evening Mr. Hastings appeared. As he entered the ballroom he caught sight of Winifred talking in a very animated manner to Lord Harold in an interval of waiting. He stood and watched her for some time, and she had never thought her beautiful. He had loved her for her grace, for her pride, for her innocence; but as she looked and smiled now, he felt she had a greater claim to general admiration than he had ever dreamed of.

And she might have been my wife now, he thought. "If I could have loved her—how proud I should have been of her!—I wonder if she really cares for that fellow Erskine?"

"At this moment a voice said close to his ear, as though the speaker had divined his thoughts:—

"Perhaps I should, do you think?" He turned with an angry start, and met the mocking gaze of Flora Champion.

"You mean Gray and Miss Wentworth? I think it very probable," Mr. Hastings answered, curtly.

"Oh, no, that I would a doubt, I meant the girl Harold Erskine and—his partner."

"You cannot form the slightest surmise. Your cousin—and he spoke the word pointedly—"your cousin is very beautiful, and may even do better."

"Perhaps he will be by the descendant of all that Hastings?" she asked, with a scornful laugh.

"Your penetration seems unusually at fault to-night, Miss Champion," he returned, coldly; "but pardon me, the dance is over. I am going to seek a partner for the next, you will recall me, and she had received all before Flora had time to intimate her willingness to exchange his name on her program with that of a less eligible aspirant. She bit her lip angrily as she saw him cross straight over to where her cousin stood, and bent to speak to her. Her eyes followed her as she turned the other way, and she heard toward the quiet, middle-aged man of whose arm she leaned, and began to talk to him, and some of her old vivacity and vivacity. He listened with admiring attention, but had very little to say in reply. Flora felt inexplicably bored.

"This man is a dot!" she said to herself, angrily; "the idea even of all his money, scarcely recomends me to the house, and I am spending so much time in his company."

Mr. Maxwell was an excessively uninteresting, rich bachelor of two-and-forty. He gave one an impression of weakness and yielding that made it a matter of surprise he had been allowed to remain so long in the unblemished estate of his father-in-law. He had been married several times and had admired her.

"He is rich," she said to herself; "he is weak as water, and he is greedy—three admirable qualities for a husband whom you do not want to care about. Why should I not marry him?"

"Why should I not marry him?" she asked, when she saw his handsome face bent on her with genuine admiration. Some sudden thought of forgetting her pride and yielding to her love came surging into her brain; and then her second husband. She turned and smiled at him, and he smiled back at her, and she smiled again. "You will dance with me, Winifred?" he whispered, as Lord Harold turned to speak to someone behind him.

"I am engaged for every dance, thank you," she said, smiling.

"May I come and call in Eaton Square?"

"I dare say Lady Grace will be pleased to see you."

"But you?"

"It is my duty to be pleased to see any one of Lady Grace's guests."

"You are not natural, Miss Erskine—you are strangely altered from the generous, large-hearted, true Winifred I knew two years ago."

"It is well for ignorant country girls to be mistaken," she asked, with a quick scorn. "If they are generous, do they always meet with like generosity from those whose minds are more enlarged, or should be, from their birth and station?"

"Your equality to be trifling, then?"

"No doubt it will wear out in time; but every other feeling does," was the quick response.

"As Mr. Hastings walked away, he asked himself how it was possible that a man whose inherent fault was to be so easily misled, should have been so easily misled. He felt that he was a little better than a fool."

"How can you protect me from it?" she asked sadly.

"I would give you my love in the balance with Mr. Clayton's money once," she said slowly. "And my children's love with my heart. I am twenty. I have no hope in the world, and an agonized sigh broke from her. "I know that after to-night I dare not see you any more. If I had been good or wise enough to remember my duty, I could have kept from speaking of my misery to you, we might have gone on meeting as we have done. To-night we shall part forever."

"Do not say that, Mrs. Clayton. How can I leave you to that man's brutish?"

"How can you protect me from it?" she asked sadly.

"I would give you my love in the balance with Mr. Clayton's money once," she said slowly. "And my children's love with my heart. I am twenty. ### IT SCARES PEOPLE

Who comes of a consumptive family when they begin to cough and the lungs are painful. But it is a fact beyond dispute that consumption is not and cannot be inherited. The microbe which breeds disease must absolutely be received by the individual before consumption can be developed.

Men and women who have been afflicted with obstinate coughs, bronchitis, bleeding of the lungs, emaciation and weakness, have been perfectly and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It cures the cough, heals the lungs, and builds up the body with solid flesh.

"When I commenced taking your medicine, eighteen months ago, my health was completely broken down," writes Mrs. Cora L. Sunderland, of Cheyenneville, Col. "I could not walk across the room without pain in my chest. The doctor who attended me said that my lungs were so bad that I would never be well again. At last I concluded to try Dr. Pierce's medicine. I bought a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and soon commenced to feel a little better, then you directed me to take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the 'Favorite Prescription,' which I did. Altogether I have taken eighteen bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Favorite Prescription,' and five vials of 'Pellagra' and am now almost entirely well, and my work without any pain whatever, and can walk with more ease than I could formerly walk."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 cent stamps or covers, except postage of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

In all of the larger cities Washington's birthday was appropriately observed by leading clubs and schools. The memory of the father of his country will live as long as the nation lasts.

Terry McGovern defeated Dave Sullivan in a fistic encounter before the Southern Athletic Club at Louisville Saturday night in fifteen rounds of as desperate fighting as ever occurred in any prize ring.

Owing to severe weather on the Ocean Prince Henry did not arrive at New York on schedule time, the Kron Prince Wilhelm being about 24 hours late, but when he arrived Sunday morning he was given a genuine American reception.

Governor Savage entertained four former chief executives of the state at the executive mansion Saturday forenoon, a plan adopted by Gov. Dietrich a year ago, Washington's birthday being chosen for the day. The remaining five governors were unable to be present.

Governor Savage has decreed that all news emanating from the executive office shall be withheld from the state papers. This censorship may please the governor, but it will make little difference to the papers. It might have been better if the governor had undertaken the job several months ago.

A fire at the Winsor hotel in New York City Saturday, caused the loss of fourteen lives and two million dollars' worth of property, while many people were seriously injured. The fire flared as well as all other kinds of flairs have certainly been having their innings the past few months. The casualties have simply been frightful and the loss of life and property enormous.

There is a boom in certain localities for John C. Sprecher for governor on the fusion ticket, but is John a fusionist? Of course he may be, but by diving down a little deeper into the political situation, it will be discovered that a member of the famous law firm at Madison still believes that he can be elected again this fall. But there will be a difference next November.

If the third district republicans want to win the congressional race this fall with hands down, put up a man like Senator W. W. Young of Stanton, and see how easy it will be. No man in the district is better equipped in every particular to make a winning campaign, and no one can better stump the district than he, and it's time for the Third district to get down to business.

The York Times says that Governor Savage was justified in pardoning Bartley and think the newspaper men should go and discuss the matter with the governor, who has requested the 4 p. m. of the state to call and see him. If there was any good and valid reasons, or just cause for the governor's action why does he not make them public. In this matter the newspaper men will no doubt meet him half way by using the columns of their papers in showing up the said just causes and reasons for granting the pardon.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Examinations hold sway this week, and harder than ever.

Miss Margaret Adsit taught some of Prof. Snodgrass's classes this week.

There was only one person in the Botany class who thought the examination easy.

Prof. Snodgrass went to Obleas Monday morning to attend a Teachers' Association there.

The Sophomores rendered an enjoyable program Wednesday morning in place of the regular opening exercises.

Miss Leitch is afflicted with a rather troublesome cold, on account of which she missed one class Tuesday afternoon.

Many of the pupils are bothered with coughs this week, and as a result they are somewhat more noisy than usual.

Miss Barret, the new teacher of Miss Hunter's room, is having good success with the little folks, and well she deserves it.

The students of the high school room miss those little talks on various subjects that Prof. Conn used to give opening exercises in the morning. Wouldn't a talk by Prof. Snodgrass once in a while be better than singing all the time?

Several new pupils have enrolled in different departments of the schools, which should be an example to boys and girls not in school. Every person should have a good foundation upon which to build; and no foundation is better than a common school education.

Miss Anna Chace, who has been visiting friends here the past week, returned to Omaha yesterday.

Peter Kautz did not arrive in time for the dance last week as reported by the Democrat; neither has he arrived at the present writing.

The masquerade Friday night was very well attended considering the bad roads, and some very nice costumes were there, but didn't the two little girls in blue foot 'em.

Omaha Market Report.

Feb. 20, 1902.

The beef cattle market last week was on the whole quite satisfactory to sellers, there being good demand from all packers, and prices advanced 20 to 25¢. This week starts out with a fair run, 8000 for first three days, with prices steady. Good heavy heaves $5.00 to $5.80; fair to good 1050 to 1250 pound heaves $5 to $5.50; common to fair $4 to $4.80. The demand was good for cows and mixed stock, and choice fat heifers brought from $4.50 to $5, with good beef stock $3.80 to $4.50. Butcher cows $3 to $3.75; milkers and springers in good request at $30 to $50 per head.

There was quite a marked decrease in hog receipts last week and the market shows an advance of 10 to 15¢. Weights have been light but the quality is a rule good, and the bulk of the sales was right around $3.80 to $5.90.

The first three days of this week bring heavy receipts at all the markets and the advance at this date is about all lost. We look for heavy receipts the balance of the week and lower prices.

Sheep market starts this week with steady to strong prices. Good choice lambs $6.25 to $6.40; choice light yearlings $5.60 to $5.75; wethers $4.50 to $5.15; and ewes $4.40 to $4.80.

Stop the Blight

It is a sad thing to see fine fruit trees spoiled by the blight. You can always tell them from the rest. They never do well afterwards but stay small and sickly.

It is worse to see a blight strike children. Good health is the natural right of children. But some of them don't get their rights. While the rest grow big and strong one stays small and weak.

Scott's Emulsion can stop that blight. There is no reason why such a child should stay small. Scott's Emulsion is a medicine with lots of strength in it—the kind of strength that makes things grow.

Scott's Emulsion makes children grow, makes them eat, makes them sleep, makes them play. Give the weak child a chance. Scott's Emulsion will make it catch up with the rest.

This picture represents the Trade Mark of Scott's Emulsion and is on the wrapper of every bottle.

Kipling and British Soldiers.

Recent British reverses in South Africa give point and pertinency if not entire justification to Rudyard Kipling's contention, as expressed in his latest poem, that if Great Britain is to maintain her military prestige "each man born in the island" must "be broke to the matter of war."

It is not flattering to "haughty Albion," whose sons in the past have fought with valor upon so many fields and "only sheathed their swords for lack of argument"; that it is unable to conquer a little handful of Dutch farmers, and it is no wonder that Britons wince under the lash of Kipling's poet but forceful argument in the conduct of the military establishment, particularly in sending to the front in South Africa "street boys and colicists."

With the flannelled tools at the wickets Or the muddled oats at the goals.

There is something of injustice, however, in Mr. Kipling's sweeping denunciations. Great Britain has had in the rank and file of its South African army a host of brave and efficient men, notably from Canada and Australia and from the mother land as well, whose loyalty and courage could not be questioned. In the earlier stages of the war there were many exhibitions of fighting quality by no means creditable to British arms.

While the military conditions, war office blunders and incompetency in the field, so caustically criticised by Mr. Kipling, have no doubt had very much to do with the prolongation of the war, it must be remembered that England's fighting men determined to die in the last ditch rather than become the subjects of an alien conqueror. It is apparent that the war cannot be settled in the field until the last armed burgher has been killed or captured and deported. The extermination of a race seems the only possible outcome of the fighting. If England had had a larger and more formidable force in South Africa, this possibly might have been accomplished before this time. Meanwhile the direful work goes on, at what tremendous cost is indicated by a review of the operations in South Africa for the year 1901, lately published in London, showing:

British killed, wounded, taken prisoners, dead of disease and injured..... 39,260
Boers killed, wounded, taken prisoners and surrendered..... 12,320

The latter figures do not include the thousands of noncombatant Boers, women and children—who have perished in the British detention camps.

The officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad company gave a felicitous naming to the advance of the wages of 20,000 employees, announced a few days ago. They called it "an adjustment." It is, says the Philadelphia Record, the establishment of a more satisfactory mean between the company's earnings and the earnings of labor. This is eminently right. If the "community of interest" principle which the great transportation companies are endeavoring to establish among themselves shall be carried so far as to recognize the right of the worker to a fair wage and the right of the shipper to a fair rate, much apprehension that now exists will be quieted. The Pennsylvania is making a good beginning.

THE CAPITAL,

O. D. Franks Prop.

An army of loggers is cleaning after the British army in South Africa and completing the desolation of the country. In one district the swarm is forty miles wide and in some places ankle deep, and all traffic has been stopped. The loggers cannot be decorated for gallant conduct, but the Philadelphia North American suggests that Mr. Chamberlain might adopt a Pachylyng migratorius (sajant) as his crest in recognition of their distinguished services in advancing civilization in his majesty's dominions beyond the seas.

According to the New York papers, there is inclination to go "higher up" than the trainmen in fixing the responsibility for the frightful tunnel disaster on the New York Central railroad in which fifteen people were killed outright and two score maimed. There is a generally prevailing opinion that the tunnel is safe and that the management of the road should be held responsible for the slaughter.

The profits of the state of South Carolina last year from the sale of liquor under the state dispensary system foot up $453,345, with gross sales amounting to $2,325,681, exclusive of beer. Altogether the state liquor business seems to have been as flourishing as though it had been carried on in the saloons.

According to The Insurance Press, the value of property destroyed by fire during the past year exceeds $170,000,000. During the same period about 1,200 fire insurance companies went to the wall—burned to death, as it were.

In spite of many unfavorable conditions there was a good volume of trade last week.

The most spectacular occurrence in the business world during the week was the failure of the City Savings Bank of Detroit.

As to the situation in the iron and steel trade the production of pig iron in January amounted to over 4,500,000 tons.

It is significant that the menace of revolution comes on the eve of the boy king's accession to the throne.

Aunt Hulda's Good Time

Let it wait, he said, with a wave of the hand; 'the circus only comes once a year.'

'There's the supper.' 'I'll help you get it—and eat it, also. And I'll help you do the dishes.'

'Two of us can feed the stock in no time,' he declared; 'so come, please; let's get to work at once.'

'Oh, no! Martin's real good to me,' she answered.

The next hour was a bright and happy one to them both.

'Good afternoon,' he said, pleasantly. 'Will you let me lie here and rest a bit?'

'Not very,' he answered; 'but it looked cool and pleasant here, and I thought I'd like to talk with you.'

'You see, I am not limited as to time,' he continued, lazily stroking the kitten that had crept to his side.

'The highest place to here is Millbank,' remarked Aunt Hulda.

'I guess you're right, that's jolly! There's nothing I care better than to attend a country circus. Not for the sake of the barabrack riders and clowns, you understand; but to watch the people and enjoy their enjoyment.'

'Martin is there now,' she said.

'My man. It's his year. We take turns, you know; he goes one year, and I go the next. Martin went early this afternoon, so as to see the animals fed; but he won't see the show till the evening performance. It's always better evenings. He took his supper in his pocket.'

'But why don't you go together?' asked the boy, sitting up.

'I can't afford it at all, but we're two old folks, living all by ourselves, and we thought we'd divide up, and take in the circus every year.'

'How far is the town?' he asked.

'Two miles.'

'Have you a horse?'

'Yes, indeed. Old Piebald is in the barn now. Martin never takes him to the circus; no more do I. We walk. Piebald gets scared at the steam plows and it costs a quarter to put him up in the hotel barn.'

'Let's go,' said the boy, suddenly.

COCKATOO KILLS CAT. Feeling Attacks 60-Year-Old Bird and Meets Death.

This is a story of a poor pussy and 'Blanco,' a magnificent cockatoo owned by Policeman Charles S. Kenna.

'Blanco' is a magnificent cockatoo owned by Policeman Charles S. Kenna. It happened Friday afternoon...

'Well, are we ready for home?' broke in the boy. 'I expect old Piebald is anxious to get back and munch his hay. Shall we go?'

'They drove me almost in silence, with Martin sitting in the back of the wagon box and the driver driving. Only once did Aunt Hulda speak, and that was to say, with a contented sigh, 'I don't think we needed a single tub!'

'What made you do it?' she whispered. 'Why were you so good to an old woman like me?'

'The boy was enjoying himself, also. He filled the kettle, helped set the table, cut the bread and talked continually. Then when the simple meal was ready, and the apples were simmering on the stove, they sat down opposite one another at the rude table and feasted merrily.'

'He afterward tied a checked apron around his waist and wiped the dishes while Aunt Hulda washed them.'

'We must hurry,' he said. 'For I don't want to miss a bit of the fun. Now for the stock!'

'The boy had climbed the loft to throw the hay, fed the pigs and the chickens, and did it all so handsomely and quickly that Aunt Hulda was amazed. Next he led out old Piebald, harnessed him to the wagon, and had the equipment waiting beside the apple tree before the woman had finished putting on her 'best dress' and smoothing her hair.'

'I guess everything's tended to,' she said, as she climbed to a seat beside him. 'I put your wheel in the kitchen, and tied the apples to slow-burn, and put the lamp handy for use when we come back, and fed the chickens.'

'So there's nothing on your mind to keep you from having a good time,' he contented.

'Then they visited the animals, and he told her many wonderful things about them that were both strange and edifying to the simple old woman. But the band was now playing fiercely in the big tent where the circus performance was held. Indeed, nearly every one had already entered, and they found themselves alone with a few stragglers.'

'I believe the grand procession's going to start,' she whispered, nervously. 'All right; let's go,' he replied, and led her to the entrance.

'The big tent was literally lined with people, from the canvas roof to the seats at the very fringe. It seemed impossible that it could hold another person. The boy looked anxiously around. On each side of the band stand he discovered that a small box had been built, with a dawning red canopy over it and cushioned seats. One of these boxes had been taken by a party from Squire Meldrum's house—the 'big man' of the village—and a merry group of young and old people occupied it. But the other box was vacant; for who beside the squire had money enough to pay a dollar a seat at the circus?'

'The boy stopped an usher, and after a whispered conference was escorted, with Aunt Hulda, behind the passage into the box. Their appearance caused a murmur of surprise from the surrounding benches. Many knew the old lady's pleasant, homely face, and marvel at seeing her thus occupying the position of honor opposite Squire Meldrum himself.'

'Martin was seated away down near the fringe, but he looked up with the others, and his astonishment was intense when he saw Aunt Hulda framed by the crimson curtains and caught by the crimson youth beside her. She was paying her devoted attention. All during the circus the poor old lady's gaze, between this remarkable vision of his wife and the antics of the clowns and jugglers. He saw her drinking red lemonade with her companion, and that her lap was loaded down with peanuts, and candy and popcorn; for the boy would do nothing by halves, and bought everything that was offered for sale.'

'Millions in the Milk Trade. Outside the business of supplying New York City with milk, the farm of New York State has an investment of $48,450,000 in cows, and a corresponding amount in dairy farms and fixtures, the total being not less than $150,000,000.'

Details of Barcelona Fight. Dispatches from Barcelona give the following account of the fighting there: 'A fierce battle has been fought between the troops and the rioters in the suburb of Barcelona known as Suro. Before the engagement the cavalry and infantry had been posted in the most dangerous points and a field battery had been located on the plain, from which ranging point the guns could sweep the surrounding streets.'

'When the final clash with the troops occurred the scyllery was brought into action and raked street after street. The rioters engaged the batteries at close range, but were finally driven off. It is reported that 100 persons were killed or wounded on both sides. The rioters' neighborhood was wrecked by the shells. The rioters caught fire and this completed the destruction.'

'Further fighting is reported at Matarranya (fifteen miles from Barcelona), where a quantity of arms have been discovered. Fighting is also reported at Tortosa and Tarragona, respectively 160 and fifty miles southwest of Barcelona.'

'Factory workers' associations have been dissolved and the members of their committees arrested. The dwellings of the strike leaders and of anarchists are being registered and put under guard. The battleship Polayo has been ordered to Barcelona.'

The strike movement has begun to spread seriously. At Castellon de la Plana, taking advantage of the night and the absence of the police, the strikers are bringing two factories with the aid of violence. The factories were burned. At a workmen's meeting held at Castellon de la Plana a general strike was voted. At Saragossa most of the factories are closed on the demands of the workmen, and the strikers are bringing pressure to bear to compel the factories still remaining open to close their doors. The captain general of Saragossa is wired for reinforcements.'

Women took a prominent share in the riots, and were more violent than the men. Among the incidents related of her disorders at Barcelona is that of a workman who led a victim in his embrace to an inspector named Tiesias, who is much hated by the anarchists; the policeman mistaken for the inspector was assassinated.'

CANCEROUS ULCERS

Are in many respects like other ulcers or sores, and this resemblance often proves fatal. Valuable time is lost in fruitless efforts to heal the sore with washes and salves, because the germs of cancer that are multiplying in the blood and the new cancer cells which are constantly developing, keep up the irritation and discharge, and at last sharp shooting pains announce the approach of the eating and sloughing stage, and a hideous, sickening, cancerous sore begins its destructive work.

No ulcer or sore can exist without some predisposing internal cause that has poisoned the blood, and the open discharging ulcer, or the festering sore on the lip, cheek or other part of the body, will continue to spread and eat deeper into the flesh unless the blood is purified and the cancer germs or morbid matter eliminated from the circulation.

S. S. S. cleanses the blood of all decaying effete matter. It has great antitoxin and purifying properties that soon destroy the germs and poisons and restore the blood to its natural condition. And when pure blood is carried to the ulcer or sore the healing process begins, the discharge ceases and the place heals over and new skin forms. S. S. S. is a strictly vegetable blood purifier containing no mercury or minerals of any description.

If you have an ulcer or chronic sore of any kind write us about it, medical advice will cost you nothing. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in that ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would not cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement, accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY.

Following are resolutions adopted by the Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church of Wayne: Whereas, in the providence of God, Mr. A. H. Ellis, father of Miss Libbie M. Ellis, an active member of our society, has been suddenly called from earth to his heavenly home.

Therefore resolved: First, that while we deplore her loss of an earthly father, we bow in submission to our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well, and we will find in her sad bereavement a new admonition to faithfulness in duty and to earnest purpose to love and serve our Lord Jesus Christ.

Second, that we hereby express our deep sympathy with the afflicted family and assure them that we share in their sorrow.

Third, that these resolutions be spread on the minutes, and a copy of them be sent to the family of the deceased and also have them published in the local newspapers.

WILBUR SPOOKS.

One night last week spooks made a fruitless attempt to scare one of Wilbur preelot's sturdy boys, but didn't do so. No one need be afraid of ghosts in that section. Willie Jacobs was over to Thun's one night during the week, and in returning home took a short way through the fields. About half way home a gun report was heard nearby and soon another. This time Willie noticed the fire coming from the gun and two large snow white figures bore down upon him, but the lad never flinched, although in the distance the third figure appeared against the horizon, and flew when he discovered that Billy was not afraid of ghosts. He grabbed one of them and soon discovered the identity of both. Take warning don't play the ghost act with guns. If Billie had had a pistol there might be a dead ghost or two now. In this instance the joke seems to have been on the ghosts.

Said the Grocery man to the butcher man, "It really is a sin that you buy your salt on the wholesale plan and don't let me handle the tin." Then he hid him back to his grocery store and quickly an order sent for a few choice hams for family use and a box of fish for lent. Said the clothing man to the hardware man, "You certainly don't do right when you order a suit from an eastern house with my big stock in sight! But the clothier wanted a new steel range and it came as the neighbors know, in a box that he tried in a barn to hide for 'twas marked 'Sears Roebuck & Co.' Small chance was there for pulling hair whenever the truth was known, for the heart of man is a selfish thing and each looks after his own; and so it was on every hand, each man who came to enquire soon proved himself as deep in the mud as his neighbor was in the mire. The business men called a meeting then to see where the trouble lay, and as they agreed 'twas the editor instead of the devil to pay. Why don't he roast the department stores, and the peddling fakes? they said, and stand by the ones who stand by him, and give him his daily bread. So they drew up a protest, long and strong, for the editor to peruse, and they waited on him with aspect grim as he solemnly drug for news; but the editor laughed a great horse laugh, till the whole gang took to the woods.—It was written on cheap-john letterheads that come with a bill of goods.—Mortimore Crane Brown in Commercial News.

Saved Him From Torture. There is no more agonizing trouble than piles. The constant itching and burning make life intolerable. No position is comfortable. The torture is unceasing. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures piles at once. For skin diseases, cuts, burns, bruises, all kinds of wounds it is unequalled. J. S. Gerall, St. Paul, Ark., says: "From 1895 I suffered with the protruding, bleeding piles and could find nothing to help me until I used DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. A few boxes completely cured me. Beware of counterfeits, Orth.

For this day at least the Lincoln gas company will no doubt keep out of politics. Perhaps this augurs the good time coming when municipalities will not be conducted for the primary benefit of greedy corporations.

A Thousand Dollars Thrown Away. Mr. W. W. Baker, of Plainville, Neb., writes "My wife had lung trouble for over fifteen years. We tried a number of doctors and spent over a thousand dollars without any relief. She was very low and I lost all hope when a friend suggested trying Foley's Honey and Tar, which I did; and thanks be to this great remedy it saved her life. She is stronger and enjoys better health than she has ever known in ten years. We shall never be without Foley's Honey and Tar and would ask those afflicted to try it. Raymond.

Had To Conquer or Die. "I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had Consumption so bad that my best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in consumption, pneumonia, la grippe and bronchitis; infallible for coughs, colds, asthma, hay fever, croup or whooping cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at Raymond.

A Night Alarm.

Worse than an alarm of fire at night is the brassy cough of croup, which sounds like the children's death knell and it means death unless something is done quickly. Foley's Honey and Tar never fails to give instant relief and quickly cures the worst forms of croup. Mrs. P. L. Cordier of Mannington, Ky., writes: "My three year old girl had a severe case of croup; the doctor said she would not live. I got a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar, the first dose gave quick relief and saved her life." Raymond.

To talk of Prince Henry and to discuss the Filipino question makes the average democrat distracted.

The Last Heard of It.

"My little boy took the croup one night and soon grew so bad you could hear him breathe all over the house," says F. D. Reynolds, Mansfield, O. "We feared he would die, but a few doses of One Minute Cough Cure quickly relieved him and he went to sleep. That's the last we heard of the croup. Now isn't a cough cure like that valuable?" One Minute Cough Cure is absolutely safe and acts immediately. For coughs, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis and all other throat and lung troubles it is a cure. Very pleasant to take. The little ones like it. Orth.

Beauty Triumphs.

'Tis a Pricelless Treasure.

No woman objects to being beautiful. Beauty is woman's crown, joy, pride and strength. The world has always pined and adored beautiful women. Pretty women are always ready for a husband. It is not a woman's duty to be beautiful, but it is her right. Beauty is the most valuable thing a woman can possess. It is the only thing that will never grow old. It is the only thing that will never fade. It is the only thing that will never be lost. It is the only thing that will never be stolen. It is the only thing that will never be sold. It is the only thing that will never be given. It is the only thing that will never be taken. It is the only thing that will never be lost. It is the only thing that will never be stolen. It is the only thing that will never be sold. It is the only thing that will never be given. It is the only thing that will never be taken.

Winside has organized a commercial club to provide for the interests of that town. The officers elected were: E. R. Gurney, president; H. Q. Chapin, vice-president; J. C. The spring is approaching and the farmer does not know what to look for. He has no knowledge and no way of finding out whether it is going to be a season of drought, frost, flood, or insect ravages, serious plant and animal disease, or varied accidents that are likely to occur. He probably knows he will have to meet more or less unjust taxation and will have to look after the middleman to some extent. He will be required to do his very best under the circumstances.—Homestead.

Wakefield Republican: Miss Mable Kimball visited over Sunday at Wayne. J. M. Johnson, Dr. Harmon, and Chas. and Will Beith were Wayne visitors Tuesday. Captain J. H. Brown has appointed the Wakefield band the Third Regiment band, which appointment was accepted at the band meeting Monday night. Mr. Brown is chairman of the committee which had the matter in charge and he naturally favored Wakefield. The boys will get $100 per year and uniforms. W. S. Ebersole was at Wayne on Tuesday and secured several members of the band at that place to join the Third Regiment Band. This will make an organization of twenty to twenty-four pieces and will give Wakefield a band that will be a big advertisement to the town besides giving us some excellent music. All the boys from Wayne are "sight-players" as well as those of the Wakefield band and we shall expect big things from the Third Regiment Band. Three cheers for the band boys.

The following article was clipped from the North Bend (Wash.) Chief, of Feb. 21: "Last Friday evening, a little south of Stratford, people could be seen coming from every direction as if drawn by some powerful centripetal force till all were gathered at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Layman. The assemblage represented every stage of life from blitheness of youth to the steadiness of old age. The occasion was a supper given on the anniversary of Mr. Layman's birthday. Mr. Layman claimed to have seen the snows of fifty-four winters but the vivacity he displayed called for the records of the old family bible to establish the fact. Soon after arrival all were gathered around a spacious table laden with delicacies of a richness and profusion that would appeal to the palate of the daintiest epicure. When each had feasted to overwhelming satisfaction, all obstacles were cleared away and plays began with a spirit that showed that things were not to be done by halves. Age tried to outlive youth and displayed a degree of activity that made gray hairs try to hide themselves. Time seemed to have been forgotten until the old family clock rang out with unwonted loudness, "one, two, three," when the company ceased their merry-making and after wishing Mr. Layman many happy returns of his birthday anniversary, departed for their homes. This was an occasion not to soon be forgotten, and to some, brought sweet memories of yore. Mr. and Mrs. Layman have shown themselves to be charming entertainers of the old style, in which restraint and formality are less prominent than cordiality and good cheer, and it could only be wished that the Dispenser of all blessings may yet vouchsafe to them many happy returns of the same event.

A large number remained to the dance, and the whole affair netted the band something over $20.
