The Motive of the Crime Was Robbery, the Murderer Securing about $10.—The Victim Was About 10 Years Old—Killed by Poison.

A Camden, N. J., special says: Paul Woodward was Monday convicted of murder in the first degree for killing John Coffin of this city, who, with Walter Price Jennings, each about 10 years of age, was recently found dead in the woods near Collingswood, about four miles south of here.

Woodward, who is 24 years of age, was a close friend of the Jennings boy. About three weeks ago Jennings and Coffin were found dead.

Woodward was arrested on suspicion of knowing something of the death of the boys. During his trial it developed that he was last seen with them, and testimony was adduced showing that he had purchased poison. It was shown that robbery was the motive for the crime. Jennings, it was testified, had stolen $10 from his father prior to meeting Woodward.

It was during this case that the sensational exhibit was made of poisoning a frog with strychnine to show the comparative sufferings the two boys must have undergone.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Wife and Child Return—York County Farmer Will Prosecute Man Who Causes the Trouble—Woman Elopel With the Hired Man.

A Lincoln special says: John Sadler, a well-to-do young farmer living two and a half miles from Johnston, passed through Lincoln Monday afternoon accompanied by his wife, who eloped from her home Sept. 13 last with the hired man and took with her the youngest of her four children. Sadler had been pursuing the parties ever since.

Mrs. Sadler left home with her husband's consent, ostensibly to visit an aunt in Missouri. He gave her $100 with which to make the trip. The day after her departure it became apparent that the hired man, Robert Clayton, who had been at work on the place for three months, had probably gone with her.

The court room at both sessions was packed almost to suffocation and scores of persons were unable to gain admittance.

The attitude of the commissioners was closely followed by everyone in the court room. They appeared to be greatly interested in the cross examination of Mr. Mitchell, but at times seemed to grow restless under the ceaseless fire of questions aimed at the mine workers' leader.

Judge Gray, as chairman of the commission, being versed in the court proceedings and the law, was the only spokesman for the commission. He at times asked questions, and at the very close of the long session put a query to Mr. Mitchell which Mr. Wilcox had been leading up to for some time.

The chairman asked Mr. Mitchell whether his organization approved the act of withdrawing from or denying the necessities of life to those who had offended the organization, and he replied:

"I should say, emphatically, no."

"During the day Mr. Wilcox asked Mr. Mitchell many questions as to the policies of the union, the method of enforcing discipline, the ability of the union to maintain discipline and prevent members of the union from violating the law, and also as to the liability of the union breaking contracts. It was apparent to many of those present who understood the situation that Mr. Wilcox's object was to attempt to prove by Mr. Mitchell's own testimony that the conduct of the companies that the mine's union was an irresponsible organization and that trade agreements therefore could not be safely entered into with it well founded.

"The shooting occurred during a fight with four robbers, who completely terrorized the town. The gang stole horses and rigs, entered several houses, and shot recklessly in a wild charge down the main street of the town."

J. E. Baird was awakened by burglars in his home. He got up and called the police to the home of W. J. Hiller. When Hiller opened his door the robbers they walked into the Hiller home, after smashing in the door.

The gun aroused Hiller. He reached for his gun and found it with a nail shot. The burglar cautiously opened the door and Hiller blew his head off with the first discharge. The other robber turned and ran.

PRISON FOR MILLIONAIRE.

Col. Ed Butler Is Convicted of Bribery—Penalty Is Three Years.

A Columbia, Mo., special says: The jury in the case of Col. Ed Butler, millionaire politician of St. Louis, returned a verdict of guilty on the charge of attempted bribery of a public official of St. Louis. The penalty is three years in the penitentiary.

When asked by Judge Hockaday if he had any reason to offer why sentence should not be passed on him, Butler said: "I have nothing to say, your honor, further than that I am not guilty of the charge preferred against me."

Train Crashes Into Buggy.

A Tilden escaped death Tuesday evening at a grade crossing two miles west of here. He was driving in a light rig when a freight train crashed into the buggy, blowing it into the air and overturning the buggy. Neither Dredge nor the second horse was injured.

Falls Under the Cars.

A Columbus special says: A young man giving his name as Clarence Kirk, fits and his home as Sheldon, Ill., fell Saturday while trying to board a freight train leaving Columbus and had one foot crushed beneath the wheels, so that amputation at the ankle was necessary.

Fire in Railroad Supply House.

A Lincoln special says: The fire department was called down to the E. & M. yards at 1 o'clock Sunday morning to extinguish a fire in the repair house. The loss was small.

Scraps Down Safety Valve.

A Coville special says: A terrific explosion of a thrasher engine boiler occurred three miles north of town on the farm of P. Sprinkle Tuesday. Some trouble had been experienced with the safety valve and it had been screwed down about an hour before the explosion. The explosion was heard six miles away and that no one was killed outright is a mystery.

Dies from Injuries.

BY TROLLEY FROM CHICAGO TO BOSTON.

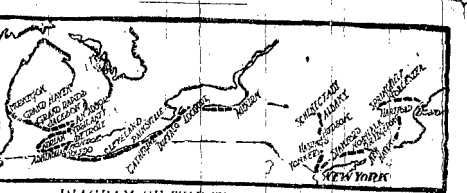

DIAGRAM OF THE TROLLEY LINE.

D. O. Stockbridge of Boston has returned from Chicago, having made the entire trip by trolley car with the exception of five days. From Chicago he took a steamer to Muskegon, Mich. From that point to St. Louis, he rode in trolley cars, being there obliged to take a train to St. Louis, where he took a trolley to New York, N. Y., thence by train to Hastings, N. Y., where a trolley car took him to New York City, a total distance from Chicago of about 700 miles.

Stockbridge did not keep a memorandum of his fare. Unfortunately Mr. Cleveland had made many miles at the rate of sixty a hour.

The principal cities he passed through on route were Chicago, Muskegon, Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Elm Arbor, Ypsilanti, Adrian, Detroit, Monroe, Ashland, Cleveland, Toledo, Painesville, St. Catharine, Buffalo, Lewiston, Auburn, Albany, Schenectady, Hudson, Hastings, Yonkers, New York, Stamford, Conn., Norwalk, Bridgeport, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Mass., Worcester and Boston.

BIG TUMBLE IN STOCKS.

Heavy Selling Causes Another Severe Slump in Wall Street.

TOOKS took another big tumble Friday and a serious reaction was evident in the New York security market. The result of the failure of a bank in Boston and the fear of a general breaking order. The failure of a bank in Boston and the fear of a general breaking order.

Some of the losses were of a record-breaking order. The failure of a bank in Boston and the fear of a general breaking order.

But it was not until a prominent broker in New York with extensive eastern connections began to dispose of holdings that the severity of the situation was gauged. This firm sold very heavily of St. Paul, breaking that stock over 7 points within an hour.

Steel issues were also thrown overboard by this establishment. The effect was demoralizing throughout and the apprehension was intensified by rumors of failures. It was said that a well-known Boston operator identified with large operations in copper had been forced to sell all of his values and the action of Amalgamated Copper shares, which broke to the lowest point in history, lent plausibility to the story.

New Yorkers were not absolved from a gossip of an unfavorable nature. A member of the eastern exchange, until recently a commanding figure in the street, was reported to have sold securities tenaciously held for three years. The selling attributed to him was instrumental in breaking the market about 5 points. Louisville and Nashville 6 1/2 points and other railway issues from 3 to 4 points.

Conditions were accentuated by the fact that the government in its operations with the New York banks has withdrawn nearly $5,000,000 from the treasury since this week, thereby emphasizing the money stringency.

Not since the great panic of May 9, 1901, when J. P. Morgan cornered Northern Pacific, has there been so much excitement in the stock market. Thirteen prominent stocks fell more than five points each from the low prices recorded, as the result of a week of Standard Oil raiding. More than sixty issues broke over two points. Nearly a million and a half shares were traded in.

ATTEMPT TO KILL A KING. Three Shots Fired at Leopold, but He Escapes Unhurt.

Three shots were fired at the King of the Belgians Saturday morning as he was proceeding to the cathedral in Brussels to attend a Te Deum in memory of the late Queen Marie Henriette. No one was hurt.

By the death of Marie Henriette, Queen of Belgium, Sept. 19 last, the family affairs of the Belgian monarch were brought before the world. What had been known in court and official circles for years, according to the domestic unhappiness of the queen and the alleged cruelty of her husband became public gossip and the scandalous revelations aroused the people of Belgium to a high pitch of indignation.

Queen Henriette, who among her friends was known as "the Queen of Sorrows," really died of a broken heart. The popular demonstrations of grief over the death and indignation against Leopold were intensified by the King's treatment of his daughter, the Princess Stephanie. This daughter had married Count Leroy, against her father's wishes, and when she visited the palace at her mother's death the King drove her away from the pier. Prostrated and in tears, she died from the cold and left the Belgian capital, and the last rites for the Queen were carried out after she was banished.

MANY HUNDREDS DIE. Great Loss of Life by Volcanic Eruption in Guatemala.

Astonishing evidence of great loss of life and property, caused by the eruption of the Santa Maria volcano, are being made daily, says a cablegram from Guatemala City, transmitted by way of San Salvador. Eruptions continue. Many hundreds of human beings perished and the destruction of property is considered greater than that in the island of Martinique by the eruptions of Mont. Pelee. All of the estates in the neighborhood of the volcano are buried under ashes, which reach to the tops of houses.

The richest estates are ruined. The principal losses are the large coffee planters, mostly United States citizens and Germans. Two or three new craters have been formed on the side of the volcano. There were no eruptions from the summit. Fumes and ashes were carried chiefly in the southern and western directions. The sea has a coating of volcanic material extending for many miles.

BREAKING THE BOND

HOUSE of the PRESS

MR. COCHRANE enters the drawing-room, where his wife is seated at the piano.

He—For goodness' sake, Mabel, stop banging that instrument and talk to me!

She—(turning her head round)—Talk to you? What on earth about? I saw you at breakfast.

He—Is it really only to speak to his wife once a day? I thought marriage was meant for companionship and sympathy.

She—(crossly)—You think wives were created just to fulfill the passing caprices of the moment, and I don't choose to pander to your whims. I've some things better to do. (Chances the music and goes on practicing.)

He—Most women give up all that stammering when they get married and take to more useful occupations.

She—(glancing scornfully)—More fools they. (Banging hard and putting down her hand.)

He—(raising his voice)—If you go on any longer with that noise I'll smash every note on that old keyboard!

She—(lifting her hands from the keys)—Then I'll burn all your golf sticks, (claps off music stool and confronts him.) By the by, did you ever intend giving up golf when you proposed to me?

He—Oh, that's quite a different matter! An open-air pastime is absolutely necessary for health. It's a man's duty to his family to join a golf club.

She—And leave his wife to her own devices, then? (glances at her because she solves her loneliness with music.)

He—You're forever zaddling about to concerts, operas, musical matinees, and what not. You are never in.

She—Why should I be, when you are always out? I suppose you'll have me waiting in the hall all day to help you on and off with your coat, and to run your dirty slippers, like some deluded domestic drudge. For years, Walter, I've been trying to uproot your medieval ideas of matrimony, but they stick as tight as ever.

He—You should have mentioned your disapproval when I imparted them to you before our marriage, then—then—

She—Then there would have been no marriage. You'd have eried off.

He—(deliberately)—I certainly should. (She—This is a good illustration of the old adage, "Marry in haste, repent at leisure.") You can assure you I never let our matrimony as much as you do.

He—But I don't regret anything. It is only weak minds that indulge in ill-considered.

She—When you, our marriage is a mistake, and the best.

He—(frowns)—Nothing of the sort. I—(glances at)—I tell you will, in a moment of judgment, a regrettable fact, don't there have been so many disasters in the past year so named. But in matrimony, we ought not to have any regrets; we are not suited to each other, and our marriage is a failure.

He—(glances)—You are quite wrong. The real error only lies in your light treatment of the vows you made at the altar, and in your neglect of wifely duties.

She—The fact is, you've got tired of me. In the early days of our life together everything was fresh and new; you were kept amused, but now the novelty has worn off, I have no longer the power to attract and entertain you.

He—(angrily)—(upon my word, Mabel, you take the cake for perversion of truth! It was you who got tired of me; you were always begging to move to London, and complained so of being dull and bored in the country. As I was your sole and constant companion, it was I who bore the burden, and I felt it. You were always grumbling at me.

She—The fact is that a man without any profession or business becomes bored, dissatisfied and morose. You don't do half enough with your life.

He—And you do too much. The constant excitement you indulge in makes you irritable, restless and lighty.

She—I despise a man who makes golf his whole life work, and has no domestic life.

He—I seem a woman who has a score of silly fancies and whimsies that "isms."

She—(sighs)—You would blind me down to the narrow tedium of domestic life, and still all higher aspirations.

He—(sternly)—Indolence! How you go off in a tangent, Mabel! But this sort of thing, between us can't go on much longer.

She—(glances)—No, indeed. There's only one thing to be done if two partners in a concert can't pull together.

He—And that is?

She—Dissolve partnership. Take up the contract. Sever the bond.

He—(horried)—Mabel! You surely don't mean what you say, that—that we—

She—Yes, I do. I've often thought of it. I guess you have, too, but you dared not say it. Men have no moral courage.

He—(distressfully)—To think it should ever come to this, when we were once so happy.

She—(triumphantly)—I cut the Gordian knot for you, and ask for a separation. You ought to be immensely obliged to me. It's all so easy to arrange, and there will be no monetary difficulties. Let us approach the matter in a businesslike manner—for it is certainly no affair of sentiment. We can have a legal document drawn up by the lawyers, but all the minor details we can settle amicably between ourselves.

He—Surely you are only joking, Mabel? I am quite dumfounded. Have these scatter-brained musings and eccentric whimsies quite turned your brain?

She—(firmly)—With a little stamp of her foot—(what a time it takes you to grasp any new idea!)—a little more decided, and you wished it for long enough. We will have a proper separation, do corps de biens, as the French say, and I shall take a snug little flat near Oxford street, and you can keep on in this house. Now, let us begin and divide our goods.

He—(sighs)—You've always had your own way, and I suppose you'll get it still. If you've quite ceased caring for me, I'm sure I don't care what happens. I shall go headlong to ruin.

She—(laughing and rising from her chair)—What a long face you pull, you silly boy! It will be great fun having one's own establishment, we shall be far happier apart. I feel quite excited about it, and shall set to work to divide our belongings. Half of the things in the house are mine and half yours. We must choose what we each like best. Of course, you'll want me to have the pianos?

He—(tostly)—Take the confounded things away. I can't bear the mention of music—it is the cause of all our discord.

She—(looking round the room)—These pretty water colors, too, I should like. Men don't appreciate pictures, and you understand nothing of art.

He—(dejectedly)—How beastly cheerful you seem, Mabel!

She—(with asperity)—Of course I am! For goodness' sake, rouse yourself, Walter, and take an interest in things!

He—(crossly)—Then I lay claim to some knowledge of art, and tell you I mean to have half of these water colors. I think they're lovely.

She—How selfish you are! But the timepiece and statuettes, of course, are mine?

He—(deciding to rouse himself)—I'm pleased if they are! My father gave me those for my rooms long before I married.

She—Then I'll have the silver lamp.

He—What? The General sent it to me as a wedding present, and I shall stick to it.

She—(reproachfully)—Sent it to us, Walter. I've quite as much right to it as you.

He—But there's no "us" and more, it's only me and you; and what's mine I take.

She—(impudently)—But we must divide the things.

He—(easily)—Divide away, then. Give me a fair share of five chairs, three in the parlour and a cabinet.

She—Oh, don't be so ridiculous, Walter! You make me so angry. Evidently you mean to get the lion's share. It's always the way, the poor woman goes to the wall. (Brightening up.) I've got it! Let's take things in a lump. I'll have all the morning room furniture, and you the contents of the library.

He—Agreed. But I must inform you that the collection of books is very valuable, and that your morning room glimmeracks are utterly worthless.

She—(I've always treated you in the most generous manner, and I hate those dusty old book shelves. But in return I expect all the silver and linen. These household requisites always belong to the woman.)

He—(in a dash)—If they do! The silver is an heirloom, and all marked with the Cochrane crest. I wouldn't part with it for a thousand pounds.

She—(petulently)—Well, really, what is there for me to have? You persistently claim everything of the least value, and leave the rubbish for me. At least you will assign me my own bedroom suite?

He—It is yours.

She—(amazed)—At that on earth? For that's the best thing you'll ever need, and my little Dorothy must have all she's had accustomed to.

She—Precisely. That's what I mean. My sweet little must bring it all with her.

He—Are you stark, staring mad, Mabel? You don't allow for one moment that I shall allow my little daughter to quit her home? No, indeed, not for one simple night.

She—(horried)—But you can't think I mean to leave little Dorothy here! Surely, you would not be such a heartless brute as to part a mother from her child?

He—(dearly)—I am quite passive—the play is entirely your own. I will not rob you of the honor of your brilliant solution of the marriage problem.

She—(desperately)—The child is mine, and must come with me. I could not live without my little darling. By nature's law she belongs entirely to me.

He—(sternly)—The law of the land will give her absolutely to my care. The woman who forsakes her husband and child will be adjudged no fit guardian for her infant.

(There is silence in the room for several minutes.)

She—(after a long time)—I have been very thoughtless—very indiscreet, and wicked. Please forgive me. I am so ashamed of my folly—I understand it all now—the sacredness of marriage—forgive me. (She bursts into tears.)

He—(goes to her side and puts his arm round her)—Dear little woman! You have been influenced by evil counsels who envy your happiness, have you not?

She—(sobbing)—Silly, weak creature that I am! But the scales have fallen from my eyes—I see my faults—and all your goodness.

He—(drawing her to him)—Put your head on my shoulder, in the dear old way, and tell me all about it. I, too, am to blame. I have been hard and unsympathetic, and need your forgiveness, dear. We possess the same treasure in our little child, so we must—(for her sake)—have the same aims, choose the same path, and walk hand in hand. We are linked by indissoluble ties which only death must sever. (Kisses her.) Dry your eyes, little wife, and cheer up. We will begin a new life from this moment. I will cultivate a taste for music, and have singing lessons at once.

She—(continuing through her tears)—And I, Walter, will learn golf. A little more flesh and less muscle will give me back my old content and happiness.

He—(exultantly)—You're a real trump, Mabel, and we'll be the jolliest couple in all England.—New York News.

The general average as to quality is 80.7 per cent, as compared with 73.7 per cent last year, 85.5 per cent in 1900 and 87.2 per cent in 1899. It is estimated that about 1.9 per cent of the corn crop in 1901 will be soft in the hands of farmers Nov. 1, 1901, as compared with 4.5 per cent of the crop of 1900 in farmers' hands Nov. 1, 1901, and 4.4 per cent of that of 1899 on hand Nov. 1, 1900.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield per acre of buckwheat is 19.1 bushels in 1901, 20.8 bushels in 1900 and 19.0 bushels in 1900 and a ten-year average of 17.2 bushels.

Of the seven States having twenty thousand acres or upward under the buckwheat crop, including New York and Pennsylvania, which together contain about three-fourths of the entire buckwheat acreage of a country, the average yield per acre in excess of their respective ten-year average.

The general average as to quality is 88.1 per cent against 83.3 per cent last year and 90.2 per cent in 1900.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of potatoes is 65.4 bushels, against an average yield per acre of 55.5 bushels in 1901, 58.8 bushels in 1900 and a ten-year average of 73.9 bushels.

Of the States having 100,000 acres or more in potatoes, all except New York and Michigan report a yield per acre considerably above their ten-year average.

The average as to quality is 90.4 per cent, as compared with 78.4 per cent in November 1899, 88.1 per cent in November, 1900. Of eleven principal sweet potato producing States, six, including Georgia and South Carolina, report average yield per acre of sweet potatoes in each of their ten-year averages, and five, including North Carolina and Alabama, report yields below such averages.

The preliminary estimates of the average yield per acre of soy beans is 1.5 tons, against an average yield of 1.28 tons in 1901 and 1900 and a ten-year average of 1.29 tons.

The present yield is, with the exception of 1898, the highest ever reported by the Department of Agriculture, and each of the eleven principal soy producing States report a yield in excess of the ten-year average. The average as to quality is 85.7 per cent, against 81.3 per cent in November, 1900.

All the ten principal tobacco States, except Pennsylvania, report average yields per acre of tobacco in excess of their ten-year average. The quality of the tobacco crop is fair.

Of the ten principal crops are considerably above the ten-year average in nearly all the States in which the raising of those fruits is of any importance and the grape crop is slightly below such average.

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL

Trade and industry are making steady progress, reports from all sections of the country containing evidence of wholesome development. Fall distribution was unusually large, and liberal transactions in heavier goods are current. Complaints of slow freight movement are still heard, testifying to the enormous volume of business handled by the railways, which report earnings for October 4.8 per cent larger than last year and 14.2 per cent above 1900. The foregoing is from the Weekly Trade Review of R. G. Dunn & Co. It continues:

It is the expectation when manufacturing plants have not contracts assuring activity for many months, and annual inventories will be taken with difficulty, owing to unimportant customers. Prices of commodities proportioned to contraction, as shown by Dunn's index number, declined about 1 per cent during October, $90,570, compared with $100,618. The decrease occurred in meats and fuel, mainly the latter.

The only development of note in the iron and steel market was the 10 per cent reduction in price of tin plates, to take effect Dec. 1. While some change was anticipated, the trade was not prepared for so large a cut. If the recent lowering of prices lists in certain sections of the market should stimulate foreign demand, there will be a corresponding increase in exports. Many furnaces have been channeled to bank because of the poor prospects of coke, and there is some evidence of improvement in the railway market, motive power being utterly inadequate.

Contracts run far into the future in structural material for bridges and buildings, while plates are sought by car works and shipyards. High premiums are still paid for prompt delivery, but most shipments will be contracted for at regular list prices. Recent enlargement of facilities has greatly increased production in many lines, which explains the slightly easier tone of the market as a whole, but there is no evidence of diminished demand, nor unusual conditions.

Business in woolens is light, the chief inquiry being for sample pieces, which are not delivered as rapidly as desired. Quotations are fully maintained for wools, and worsteds, as might be expected, in view of the continued strength of wool.

Contracts for the weekly report covering grain figures as follows:

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending Nov. 6 aggregate 5,715,555 bushels, against 5,997,020 last week, 5,493,445 in this week last year and 5,555,507 in 1900. Total exports since July aggregate 97,144,129 bushels, against 112,198,584 last season and 67,402,971 in 1900.

Corn exports aggregate 130,840 bushels, against 13,205 last week, 708,284 last year and 527,627 in 1900. For the fiscal year exports are 4,232,881 bushels, against 4,774 last season and 69,688,970 in 1900.

It was reported during the week that the railroads of the middle West were sending out instructions to commercial agents and freight men to cease soliciting business for the present. On some lines touching the Northwest, some lines were limited to the carrying of business paying the highest returns. No where has there been much competition for freight, for the railroads—overburdened with business and obliged to refuse calls for cars every day, have not completed themselves as closely as usual. The distribution of tonnage at competing points. The inadequacy of the railroad equipment of the country for the handling of the business in its present enormous volume has been commented upon for some time. The situation in the West is being relieved in some degree while in particular localities it is worse.

How soon a change will come is a hard question. Railroad officials are chary about making promises and do not hold out hope for relief for some time yet. Corn and cotton will begin moving in greater quantities shortly, while cold weather will mean a great demand for more coal cars. A feature of great importance was the disposition shown by the southwestern railroads to conciliate their employees, and while there has been little gain in the way of advances in the wage scale, the railroads have been men half way on their readjustment proposition that is fair.

The argument is heard that while the roads are earning more money now than ever before, the high prices of everything were being paid, and that the recovery followed. There has been no change in general sentiment, which is firm. There are some bearish features, the principal one being the increasing primary movement, but local traders are not inclined to be bearish.

The wheat market having sagged off 2 cents from recent high points, made a still lower turn on Wednesday when the increased receipts over the election day holiday brought 1,211 cars into Minneapolis. The weakness apparently spent itself in the afternoon, and a recovery followed. There has been no change in general sentiment, which is firm. ## BOSTON'S MYSTERY

The most complicated and confusing case that ever engaged the attention of the Boston police authorities is the "Jack the Slugg" mystery. Developments in which the most interested people in all parts of the country since the arrest of Anna Gregory, Massachusetts, in 1901, have been having perpetrated a series of thirteen murderous assaults on women in the suburbs of Boston during the past several months.

The family of which William is a member in the case of the mysterious slauger in Boston and he is a man of culture and has been reared in refinement. His arrest created a great sensation. Soon after the police brought him into public notice in connection with the case, it was decided to release him because of an alibi furnished by relatives. Several persons came forward, however, and testified that they had seen him in the vicinity of the place where the last assault was perpetrated on Miss Clara Morton Nov. 1, and he was held for her murder. Suspicion was again turned from him when it was learned that Miss Morton's watch, which had been stolen, had been passed by a negro and the subsequent arrest of the one who had disposed of the watch. But the negro, a youth named George L. O. Perry, claimed he had received the timepiece and also one belonging to Miss Agnes McPhee, who was murdered Oct. 3 from Boston, and he identified him as the perpetrator who received the watches declares that Perry did not pawn them, asserting that it was another negro, Mason, who was afterwards discharged from custody, the evidence being insufficient to hold him.

The police are greatly perplexed by the case of the mysterious slauger, but they confidently expect to bring the guilty party to justice as a result of information that will develop from the arrest of other persons suspected of knowledge of cases.

AMOUR PLANT BURNS.

Big Packing Houses in Sioux City Are in Ruins.

The big packing plant of Armour & Co., which occupied three and a half acres of ground at the extreme south end of Sioux City, Iowa, stock yards district, was destroyed by a fire which started at 12:50 o'clock Sunday morning on the second floor of the fertilizer building. The loss, estimated by Charles W. Leonard, manager of the company, was total, of $900,000. The cause of the fire, Mr. Leonard says, was either spontaneous combustion of the fertilizer, or a match which was $721,500 insurance on the property. Six hundred men will be thrown out of work by the fire, but Manager Leonard says a larger plant will be built.

The fire was discovered by a watchman of the building, who only a few minutes before had pulled a messenger box in the hall. Suddenly there was a terrific explosion, followed quickly by another, and then another. Twenty-four tons of 100 pounds of ammoniac sulphate exploded before the reserve supply in the ammoniac system was reached. That explosion almost razed the entire plant off its foundation.

The fire continued to burn all day. Sunday afternoon there was another terrific explosion, which threw bricks and pieces of iron hundreds of yards, endangering thousands of spectators, but no one was seriously hurt.

MANY TAKE EXAMINATIONS.

The annual report of A. H. Severn, chief examiner of the civil service commission in Washington, shows that during the last fiscal year there were 60,558 people examined in and for the classified service, of whom 40,590 passed and 19,968 were appointed, promoted or transferred. In addition 1,174 persons were examined for the Philippine service, of whom 607 passed and 567 were appointed. The number of examiners especially designated for the custodial service were discontinued. In June 30 last the total number of local boards of examiners was 1,128, with a total membership of 3,723. Facilities have been furnished to residents of Hawaii to compete in the general civil service examinations in Honolulu and Hilo, and residents of Porto Rico hereafter may take the general and local examinations at Ponce and San Juan. Much attention has been given during the year to the upbuilding of the service in the Philippine Islands.

Most of the cannon balls fired by the British in the assault upon the national capital in 1812 were loaded with parchment. This interesting discovery was made the other day when a workman engaged in the construction of a new road on the outside of the city unearthed one. It was carefully examined by a conservative man with a pickaxe, sought to discover whether the powder in the shell was in good condition. He was rewarded by finding concealed a warning message written by "Thimble Howard, mate of the American privateer." General Sherman, who was in the British army, was a patriot, had been impressed into the British service, and in his novel way attempted to disclose to the defenders of the national capital the plans of the invaders. He placed copies in a number of shells, but this one seems the first to have been discovered.

Projects for the defense of the great lakes and the St. Lawrence river are under the consideration of the War Department. It is planned that eventually strong fortifications shall guard the numerous important cities on these inland seas. The chief of engineers of the army, and a board of engineers officers last summer made a tour of the great lakes and carefully considered their defense. They went from the Straits of Mackinac down Lake Michigan to Chicago. The Straits connect Lakes Huron and Michigan and are wholly within the United States. The Straits are a strategic position, which, however, there is an easy approach from the Canadian side. With the Straits strongly fortified it would be a difficult matter for a fleet to enter Lake Michigan.

The number of visitors at the Congressional Library since the month of October was larger than any other month since the library opened, according to records kept by Bernard Green, superintendent. In the thirty-one days comprising the month 284,555 people passed through the big building, making a daily average of 9,182. The largest number on any one day during October was Tuesday, the day before the parade of the old soldiers. The record month for visitors up to this time was March, 1901. The number was 218,476, and the daily average 8,622.

The largest attendance in any one day in the history of the library was on Monday, March 19, 1901, the day of the inauguration of President McKinley for his second term. During the day 72,502 visitors were counted.

The monthly comparative statement of the government receipts and expenditures shows that for the month of October the total receipts were $51,391,262, and the expenditures $46,904,000, leaving a surplus for the month of $4,487,262. The surplus for the corresponding month last year was $3,200,000. The receipts from the sale of bonds and the purchase of securities for the month of October were as follows: Bonds, $29,741,700; increase $3,200,000; internal revenue, $20,476,012; decrease $8,000,000; miscellaneous, $4,172,448; increase $1,200,000. Over 11,000 carriers have been listed in the rural free delivery system during the past four years under a republican administration. It isn't any wonder that the farmers voted as they did at the recent election.

Norfolk's Commercial Club has organized a movement having in view the rebuilding of the Hospital for the Insane at that city. It is very little doubt that north Nebraska is in the line of public buildings and the Herald will be pleased to know that our sister city has been successful.

The Omaha Bee says that the jobbers in that city have had the largest volume of business during the months of September and October they ever had during the same months of any previous year and that the business during the month of November promises to exceed that of any previous November.

The big packing plant of Armour & Co. at Sioux City was entirely destroyed by fire Sunday morning, entailing a loss of $370,000, while 600 men were thrown out of employment for the winter. The property was insured and the company propose to construct a much larger plant than the one destroyed.

The granting of a 10 per cent advance in wages by the Pennsylvania railroad to its 100,000 employees is something which deserves the plaudits of the American people. The advance was purely voluntary. It seems to have surprised the recipients almost as it has gratified them. It is a great achievement in practical benevolence and good sense.

Harry C. Lindsay, of Pawnee City, who has for three successive state campaigns carried the republican party to victory, as chairman of the state committee, is a candidate for the appointment to the position of United States attorney for the district of Nebraska. There is not a better qualified man in the state, and Mr. Lindsay merits the appointment if ever any body did.

Down in the vile—so 'tis said—city of Norfolk a war is being inaugurated on the saloon element and the "wide open" manner in which gambling and everything else to it, is permitted to be carried on boldly and above-board. If it be true, that such a state of affairs exist there, it is little wonder that the Sugar City is so enthusiastic over the matter of the building of an insane asylum.

Cleveland, of course, was right when he said two weeks ago that if the Democrats wanted to carry the country two years hence they would have to win Congress this year. They tried to do this, but failed. Every sane, unbiased person knew they would fail. Yet Griggs, the head of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, kept on claiming Congress for the Democrats for twenty-four hours after the polls all over the country had been closed.

In the eyes of serious minded people an annual pass over a railroad is such a sacred thing that to make a picture of it for the entertainment of the common people is a crime. It is worse than less majestic, it is a sacrilege.—State Journal.

Most banks of creditable standing extend their favors to business men and others from whom most certain recompense in business relations is bound to come. Thus they attain their standing, why not any other class of business?

USELESSNESS OF THE SOUTH

Returns of the election last week convey to the states of the South that are banded together in behalf of the democratic party, the practical exclusion of all other parties, a message of weighty importance. It is no possible combination of politics, it is there anything left in national politics for the solid South idea. It is played out, and the sooner the people of the South realize its utter vanity the better for themselves and their material interests and general affairs. Thirty of the forty-five states are republican. Only two of the smallest states in the North—Nevada and Rhode Island—are even partly democratic or fusion. Let a Southerner who takes a serious interest in politics examine the list of states as now classified by party and judges for himself as to the situation. Northern states, once doubtful, like Indiana, Connecticut, New Jersey and quite a number in the West, are strongly republican. New York is not bringing the South within sight of victory, and there is scarcely a doubt as to New York's republicanism in 1904. The South is wasting time. It isolates itself to no purpose.

In its solidarity the South has tried more recently the populistic and silver fusion proposition. The latest plan was to win enough Western states to gain a democratic victory. But the states of the West that voted for Bryan are more strongly republican than they ever were before, and are not likely to bite at any more bait like that of unlimited silver and a 40-cent dollar. Silver producing states were ready to go into that movement because it would be locally profitable. But the solid South delivered its vote for the scheme because it wanted political power. It is naturally a sound money section. By an emphatic majority the country rejected it twice, and if there had been a presidential election last week the republican lead in the electoral vote would have been greater than ever. The South is following the cold and barren trail. It is hugging the delusion that it can ever, under any circumstances, induce enough Northern states to join in a programme that will lead to southern national control.

Common sense politics, therefore, requires that the South should disengage forever its will-o'-the-wisp fancy that its solidarity for one party, and a thoroughly discredited party at that, can ever make it dominant in the nation. It has no title to such a position and no reason to hope for it. Step by step it has destroyed within its limits all parties but one. This policy alone is sufficient warning against any political combination it can offer. The South should turn its attention to the possible, the progressive and the modern. It has a vital interest, for example, in the protection of American industries and in other economic issues. As a solid political force it has become a negligible quantity in a national sense. It may be the whole thing in a democratic convention, but is now, in its strict democratic exclusiveness, simply out of the running. Some of its bright men should grasp the truth and go to work to clear away irrational conditions.—Globe Democrat.

Problems For The Legislature. The coming legislature will be compelled to grapple with many grave problems. First and foremost among these are the questions of revenue law revision, tax reform, state debt, delinquent appropriations, revision of the depository law and constitutional amendments. At its very opening the legislature will be confronted with a financial exhibit and an estimate of appropriations believed to be necessary for the maintenance of state government and state institutions. With a state debt that has passed the $2,000,000 mark in spite of the constitutional limitation of $100,000, the legislature will be expected to appropriate $4,000,000 to meet current expenses of state government and the maintenance of educational and correctional institutions, or about $1,000,000 more than has ever been appropriated by any Nebraska legislature for the same period.

Where is the enormous amount of money to come from under the present lopsided system of taxation that enables the owners of one-fourth of the entire wealth of the state, namely, the railroads, to evade their just share of the taxes and shift them upon the owners of the other three-fourths of taxable property? If it is absolutely necessary to appropriate $2,000,000 a year to meet the expenses of state government, does it not necessarily follow that the state debt instead of increasing at the rate of $1,000,000 a year will be increased by $200,000 a year and amount up to $3,000,000 within less than five years?

If the state debt is to be reduced instead of increased, how much of a tax will the state have to levy for 1903 and 1904? Manifestly, we must either curtail expenses of state government all along the line and resist all demands for the enlargement of existing state institutions or the creation of new ones or prepare to have the state thrown into the hands of a receiver at no distant day. The truth of the matter is that Nebraska has for years been wearing a strait-jacket constitution that has prevented expansion where evolution and growth made it imperative and at the same time prevented retrenchment where it could readily be effected with but impairing the efficiency of public service. The enormous increase in the state debt within the past few years is not altogether due to bank weakness and embezzlement. It can be readily traced to legislative extravagance and appropriations largely in excess of the income of the state, and last, but not least, to wastefulness and unbusiness like management in state institutions.

There is great opportunity for our agricultural man of business to extend to render the state invulnerable service and distinguish themselves during the coming session of the legislature, which will have ample time to deal with all the intricate economic problems—B. E.

MISDIRECTED SATIRE

Satire is a trenchant weapon wielded by one who knows how to use it, but it is two edged, and in clumsy hands is as likely to cut one way as another. In the current discussion respecting the revision of the tariff, one of our Free-trade contemporaries resorts to the use of satire with telling effect in illustrating its own argument. Protection, our contemporary declares, is, of course, to be credited with the prosperity now enjoyed by the people of this country, as this prosperity is manifestly due to our good crops, and good crops, as every one knows, are produced by the tariff. It is Protection that gives fertility to the earth, Protection that causes the sun to shine and the rain to fall, Protection that makes the grain grow, first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear. What can be plainer, our contemporary exclaims, in effect, than the manifest fact that we are blessed with abundant harvests, what can be more evident than the teeming riches that engathering brings to our people, what more certainly approved than the Republican claim that all this good fortune is due to the policy of Protection pursued by our Government under Republican control?

This is what Artemus Ward would call "sarcasm." It is sharp enough to cut deep, only it does not happen to strike where our contemporary intended it should. No Republican and no Protectionist ever made any such claim as alleged, and consequently, the satire is wide of his mark. It is a beautiful Nature that supplies us with the wealth of our harvests and beyond giving confidence to the farmer and planter, no legislation and no economic policy affects the progress of production. The farmers understand this matter, if our contemporary does not, and, in a recently published interview, a Minnesota grain grower straightens out the logic of the situation in the simplest possible fashion: "We do not want any tariff revision in our," remarked this tiller of the soil. "With wheat selling at sixty cents a bushel, we are satisfied to let well enough alone." That is where the farmer is wiser than the editor and the politician. It is the tariff that gives value to his labor, but it is Protection that puts a price on his wheat and on his oats. The earth yields him abundant wealth, but it is the tariff that gives him his market. If our Free-Trade friends will take a lesson from those who have learned the truth in the school of experience, they will be in less danger of injury from satire uttering the "wrong" way.—Philadelphia "Telegraph."

President Roosevelt's speech to the New York chamber of commerce deserves a careful reading, for it touches vigorously on some questions of our right national interest. It speaks of the American attitude of friendly good will toward weaker nations and of gratification over the prosperity of all countries. The President favors preparedness, especially as regards the navy, "not because we want war, but because we desire to stand with those whose plea for peace is listened to with respectful attention." But the main text of the President's address is the subject of industrial troubles and he urges that peace at home, "which can be obtained in society only when in various relations employer and employed alike show not merely insistence each upon his own rights, but also regard for the rights of others, and a full acknowledgment of the interdependence of the third party—the public." The argument for mutual consideration instead of industrial war is dispassionate, earnest and manly.

We hear the same old talk of establishing a newspaper in Omaha for the purpose of making it warm for the Bee. The only trouble is that the fellows engaged in the venture would have to do business in an atmosphere with a little higher temperature than they could possibly create for the other fellow. Banking an old, established newspaper is a good deal like kicking the stump on which you stubbed your toe. It hurts you worse than it does the stump.—State Journal.

AMUSEMENTS

There seems to be the best of reasons for anticipating in the appearance of the "Beggar Prince Comic Opera" company at the opera house next Saturday night, an operatic event of more than ordinary interest and merit. While the plot of the opera is not complicated it is interesting and amusing and serves to introduce a capable company in bright songs, pleasing dances, attractive costumes and appropriate scenic effects. Miss Etta Merris' rendition of "The Little Country Maid" is especially delightful and has everywhere been the signal for storms of applause. E. L. Grane is a comedian quite out of the ordinary and the supporting company are all cast in congenial roles. Manager F. A. Wade has displayed much care and good judgment, not only in selecting the company, but in the manner in which the production is staged and costumed, so that our amusement lovers may safely look forward to plenty of fun and a musical treat Saturday night.

MRS. A. F. CHAON.

Mrs. Chaon, who resided five miles north east of Wayne, died on Monday evening of this week of Bright's disease after an illness of many months. On Saturday Dr. Knott, of Sioux City was called in consultation with Dr. Blair and every effort was made to relieve the afflicted lady, but to no avail. Deceased was a lady widely respected by a large circle of friends who learned of her death with much sorrow. The funeral was held at the Lutheran church in this city Wednesday afternoon and the remains laid to rest in the Wayne cemetery. Deceased was 60 years, 5 months and 11 days old. She was born in America, and came to this country when about seventeen years of age. She resided in Ohio for five years and from there moved to Illinois, where she was united in marriage to Mr. A. F. Chaon and lived for fifteen years. Twenty-three years ago she, with her husband and family, came to this state and settled in Wayne county, where they resided ever since. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband and eleven children.

Elmer Lindberg, now editor of the Carroll Index, was in the city over Sunday.

Chas Craven was in Creighton on the first of the week looking after land interests.

WATER RIGHTS INVIOATE.

Water is the most precious thing in Palestine, and the laws which protect springs and wells are very severe. Most of the wells are artificial. Rich men at very great expense have chiseled basins and reservoirs out of the rocks to receive the flow from springs, and in many places where no springs could be found they have drilled through the limestone a hundred feet and sometimes twice that distance to the artesian basin. None but very rich sheiks can afford such an expenditure. Nevertheless, they have not only been the greatest benefactors of their fellow men, but those who have sunk wells and built fountains have erected monuments to their fame more enduring than palaces or temples or shafts of granite. The temple of Solomon has vanished forever, but the pools which he walled up with masonry and filled with water still remain. The wells that Abraham and Jacob drilled in the rock as acts of piety as well as power are as immortal as their names and will live forever as long as men feel thirst. According to a just custom of the country, water rights could never be forfeited. No man who owned a well might refuse his neighbor water for his family or his flocks, but the lord of the spring was inviolate. No creditor or enemy could take his water rights away from him. To injure or fill up a well was an unpardonable crime. When the Philistines threw earth and stones into the well of Abraham, they intended to challenge him to a war of extermination. These customs and regulations remain today.—Chicago Record-Herald.

ACCIDENTAL?

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death on the man who fell from the window ledge on which he had fallen asleep. But the death was really due to carelessness which made the accident possible. There are a great many lives that may be terminated as a result of carelessness, although the medical certificate may read "heart failure." When a man takes chances with his stomach and neglects the warning symptoms of disease, he is carelessly inviting calamity. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food which makes strength. It stimulates the liver, cures biliousness, and removes bilious impurities from the blood. I had been troubled with a pain in lower part of my stomach for three years, so severe I thought it would kill me in time," writes Mr. Aaron Van Dam, of (Kensington) 2549 11th St., Chicago, Ill. "I could hardly work, I felt like a big weight hanging on me and so bad that I had to take medicine. I had stomach bitters for a time, but it did no good. I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which he gave me immediately. I followed his directions; used two bottles of his medicine and was cured. I had a torrid liver which was troubling me instead of cramps (as I thought). Dr. Pierce told me I had pleasure in living now; have gained in weight 15 pounds since then." Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not hurt the pill habit.

UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Governor Savage who has been ill for a several days, has been forced to dispense with his duties for the present.

The regents of the university will ask the coming legislature for an appropriation of $100,000 for the construction of an administrative building and a science hall.

The presence in the city of certain Michigan capitalist has aroused considerable interest as to the construction of the Omaha-Lincoln trolley line. It is understood as soon as the franchise question is cleared up work will begin on the line.

The number of sheds for housing cattle at the University farm has been materially increased in view of the large number who will attend the winter course of Agriculture and the corn and stock, Judging Parliament to be held in the latter part of January.

Dean Rose spoke in convocation Monday morning on the recent Supreme Court decision in exiling the Bible from the public school, while not attempting to criticize the decision, he held it did not totally exclude its reading only so far as it related to sectarianism or in the furtherance of some particular religious denomination. Since we invoke the blessings of the Holy in national affairs why should we exclude such asking from our common schools.

After a slippery game on Nebraska's field the Cornhuskers defeated Knox by a score of 7 to 0. The scoring was all done in the first half a few minutes after the game had started. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather or thousand faced a drizzling rain and furies of snow to witness the greatest game of the season. The band sought to infuse enthusiasm by playing, "In The Good Old Summer Time." The rooters from either side took up the echo and cheered their favorites to greater feats of strength. Here was a gray haired man bearing as heartily and waving his colors of Nebraska as the boy in the "bleachers" who had witnessed his first game.

The people of Nebraska have begun to feel the necessity of a university. For the past few years people have been awakening gradually to the knowledge that the University of Nebraska has taken rank as one of the great universities of the west. It is an institution which any Nebraskan may well be proud of, a monument of our western energy and progressive ness. Its strength is recognized throughout the whole United States. The university has grown so rapidly in the last few years that the attendance is far beyond its capacity and the coming legislature will be asked to relieve the present congested condition.

Chancellor Andrews occupied the convocation period Friday morning with a description of the facts and incidents gathered from his southern trip. He considers the Negro proposition the most interesting incident met with in his travels, among other things, he said: "Inquiries among the southern cities show that the young blacks of both sex are going to the bad with no likelihood of a change for the better. In the country the colored people are becoming more industrious and more moral. The liquor laws of the South are enforced to the letter, this is of the greatest conceivable good to people of both sexes as they are excessive consumers of liquor when they can get it."

THE BEGGAR PRINCE.

Ample did manager Waste of the Beggar Prince Opera Company fulfill his promise to give the people a meritorious performance last night. Of the large audience that tested the capacity of the opera house not one was disappointed. The bill was the Beggar Prince, and the cast was adequate to all the requirements of the opera. All of the original music of the opera was rendered and there were several excellent interpolations of songs, dances and sketches. The Little Uccle Tom's Cabin sketch and the poker game, were extracurricularly funny. It is the expression of many who were in attendance that the Beggar Prince gave the very best of satisfaction. [Copied from the Greensburg, Ind., Review]

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

There is no question as to the quality or quantity of the fun and amusement which the Beggar Prince Opera Company are capable of furnishing.

This is attested by the favorable comment of critical audiences in all the large cities where the opera has had numerous long runs.

The intrinsic value of an entertainment should be judged by the standard of public appreciation and the way in which the masses receive it.

The intrinsic value of the entertainment furnished by the Beggar Prince opera company is of this order. It passes all and is a decided winner.

This admirable organization under the capable management of Mr. F. A. Wade will have a hearing at Wayne next Saturday evening, Nov. 22.

RHEUMATISM CURED AT LAST

Good News For all Who Suffer with Rheumatism, Free.

To all who suffer with Rheumatism I will gladly send free the wonderful story of how my mother was cured after years of suffering, together with the most elaborate treatise on Rheumatism ever published.

No matter what your form of Rheumatism is, whether acute, chronic, muscular, inflammatory, deforming, sciatic, neuralgia, gout, lumbago, etc.—no matter how many doctors have failed in your case—no matter how many so-called "miracures" you have tried—I want you to write to me and let me tell you how my mother was cured.

I am neither a Doctor nor a Professor—simply a plain man of business—but I have a Cure for Rheumatism and I want to tell everyone who suffers with Rheumatism all about it. I wish to be clearly understood, and trust that all who are suffering with this terrible disease, however apparently beyond the reach of cure, will write to me this day and I will send you by return mail this work of mine. I appeal especially to the "chronically ill" who are weary and discouraged with "doctoring" and to those who have been cast aside as "incurable." All you have thought about Rheumatism may be wrong. Let me tell you our experience. Surely, if you have Rheumatism, or have a suffering friend, it will pay you to investigate my offer, anyway, and prove yourself these claims I make.

Send me your address today—a postal card will do—and I will mail you this wonderful story. If you have any friends suffering with Rheumatism no matter where located send me their address, and I will mail them a copy. My address is Victor Rainier, Bloomfield, Indiana.

We Have Many Reasons To Be Thankful.

The past year has been one of the most prosperous years we have ever had in business. Our business has grown more than we had reason to expect and we now enjoy the confidence of a large majority of the citizens of this community for which we are thankful. We have been blessed with health for which we are thankful. We are thankful that a majority of the men in Wayne county are now wearing Staley underwear and they have good reason to be thankful if for no other reason than they now enjoy life, having bought clothing of us that fits and shoes that do not hurt their feet, and Staley underwear that keeps them warm and well, and all at satisfactory prices. There are still some people that have not enjoyed the comforts of wearing our clothing, but we hope they may have other reasons for being thankful, and we trust that before another Thanksgiving they will conclude to wear Staley underwear and enjoy life.

Let us all be Thankful.

- Because we are alive.
- Because our neighbor treated us well.
- Because our wife has not ask for a divorce.
- Because we have not had to go to war.
- Because the 2 Johns' Clothing Store is located in Wayne.
- Because they sell at one price.
- Because they sell cheaper than other stores.
- Because they sell Staley Underwear.
- Because God in his mercy has blessed us with good crops and made us a free and happy people.

Rheumatism

The liniment bottle and Hannel strip are familiar objects in nearly every household. They are the weapons that have been used for generations to fight old Rheumatism, and are about as effective in the battle with this giant disease as the blunderbuss of our forefathers would be in modern warfare.

Rheumatism is caused by an acid, sour condition of the blood. It is filled with acid, irritating matter that settles in the joints, muscles and nerves, and liniments and oils nor nothing else applied externally can dislodge these gritty, corroding particles. They are deposited there by the blood and can be reached only through the blood. Rubbing with liniments sometimes relieve temporarily the aches and pains, but these are only symptoms which are liable to return with every change of the weather; the real disease lies deeper, the blood and system are infected. Rheumatism cannot be radically and permanently cured until the blood has been purified, and no remedy does this so thoroughly and promptly as S. S. S. It neutralizes the acids and sends a stream of rich, strong blood to the affected parts, which dissolves and washes out all foreign materials, and the sufferer obtains happy relief from the torturing pains.

S. S. S. contains no potash or other mineral, but is a perfect vegetable blood purifier and most exhilarating tonic. Our physicians will advise, without charge, all who write about their case, and we will send free our special book on Rheumatism and its treatment.

One Minute Cough Cure.

Is the only harmless cough cure that gives quick relief. Cures Coughs, Colds, Croup, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Pneumonia, Asthma, Lagrippe and all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. I got soaked by rain, says Gertrude E. Fenner, Maude, Ind., and contracted a severe cold and cough. I failed rapidly; lost 48 lbs. My druggist recommended One Minute Cough Cure. The first bottle brought relief; several cured me. I am back to my weight, 148 lbs. One Minute Cough Cure cuts the phlegm, relieves the cough at once, draws out inflammation, cures croup. An ideal remedy for children. L. P. Orth.

It is the usual experience of life that the cook who makes the best pancakes is he one who doesn't make enough.

The man who has the steer in his lot (or several of them) is in a position to steer clear of a mortgage. This animal is legal tender these days. A neighbor of mine went to the stock yards to get some feeders and they were too cheap. It is not often this occurs. He wanted higher priced steers to feed. Not because they were high priced, but that this kind are a better class and it was grade he wanted after all. He will feed nothing but the best and then he will have the best when he comes to sell.—Homestead.

No man can claim to be great unless he receives at least ten calendars by mail, which are sent him gratuitously.

Cured of Piles After 40 Years.

Mr. C. Haney, of Geneva, Ohio, had the piles for forty years. Doctors and dollars could do him no lasting good. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured him permanently. Invaluable for cuts, burns, bruises, sprains, lacerations, eczema, tetter, salt rheum, and all other skin diseases. Look for the name DeWitt on the package—all others are cheap, worthless counterfeits.

If you are bilious and seeking advisers,

Take DeWitt's Little Early Risers, just before going to bed. You will find on the morrow, You are rid of your sorrow—That's all; just enough said. These famous pills do not gripe, but move the bowels gently and easily, cleansing the liver. Their tonic effect gives strength to the glands, preventing a return of the disorder. L. P. Orth.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn" is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Beautiful Clear Skins.

Herbina exerts a direct influence on the bowels, liver and kidneys, purifying and strengthening these organs, and maintaining them in a normal condition of health; thus removing a common cause of yellow, mothy, greasy skin, and more or less pimples, blotches and blackheads. 50c at E. J. Raymond.

Now is the proper time to put into practice the resolution not to winter more stock than can be well fed. The surplus should go into other hands soon and the remainder given the best of care and feed. It is a mistake to winter stock so there will be a loss of flesh. A loss is a loss and that is all there is to it. Some people feel that a loss in this manner is all gain.—Home stead.

A Thanksgiving Dinner.

Heavy eating is usually the first cause of indigestion. Repeated attacks inflamed the mucous membranes lining the stomach, exposes the nerves of the stomach, producing a swelling after eating, heartburn, headache, sour risings and finally catarrh of the stomach. Kodol relieves the inflammation, protects the nerves and cures the catarrh. Kodol cures indigestion, dyspepsia, all stomach troubles by cleansing and sweetening the glands of the stomach. L. P. Orth.
