IN THE VICINITY.

Martinsburg, a town off the railroad in Dixon county, is soon to have its first bank, Ponca capitalists being the incorporators. Martinsburg is one of the oldest towns in Northeast Nebraska, but its growth has been retarded by lack of railway facilities.

The Rosebud Indians are developing mercenary proclivities rapidly these days. They have raised the price of their lands from $2.75 to $5 an acre. Ideal weather, a large crowd and an interesting variety of entertainment made Ponca's carnival last week a signal success.

Farmers in the neighborhood of Wakefield had a meeting recently to consider plans to furnish them with a telephone system. It is an improvement that would add inestimably to the convenience and comfort of the farming community, and in time we may expect to see all the rural districts of the state provided with telephones.

Magnus Hansen, of Wakefield, returned home last week from a visit in Sweden. He says he is glad to get back to America.

Burglars entered the Ewing bank at 10 o'clock Friday morning and blew open the vault with dynamite. The terrific explosion aroused the town and the robbers became frightened and escaped before attempting to break into the inner vault where the bulk of the cash is kept. As it was, only a small amount of money was secured.

The Norfolk Daily News is now publishing two editions daily, one at noon and one in the evening, the former to accommodate out of town readers, who are thus furnished the news several hours ahead of the service rendered by the Omaha, Lincoln or Sioux City dailies. It is a stroke of enterprise that should and doubtless will meet liberal support along railroad lines leading out of Norfolk.

Ira Hopkins Cary, one of the well known old settlers of Thurston county, died of typhoid fever at Colorado Springs, Colo., on the 21st ult. He had resided for many years on his farm four miles north of Pender.

A report from Washington states that Superintendent Mathewson, of the Omaha and Winnebago agency, has tendered his resignation. Mr. Mathewson says that his withdrawal from the service is due to ill health. H. G. Wilson, superintendent of the Sisseton, S. D., agency, will succeed Mr. Mathewson at the Winnebago agency, and John F. McKey, at present connected with the Uintah and Ouray agency in Utah will manage the Omaha reservation. On the resignation of Mr. Mathewson, it was decided to immediately divide the Winnebago and Omaha reservations in accordance with a previous plan.

W. E. Sweeney returned to Emerson recently from Yellowstone Park where he had been engaged with a U. S. civil engineering party. He reports that snow has already this season reached a depth of several feet in the park.

D. P. Sullivan, of Laurel, had his son, Minor, operated on in an Omaha hospital last week for a tubercular swelling just above one of his knees. The operation was reported very successful.

IN A SPANISH HILL TOWN.

Movement of the World Outside Made Little Difference There.
A traveler in Spain tells, in the Century Magazine, how slight an effect news from the outer world may have on the simple inhabitants of a sleepy hill town, such as he visited. The loungers at the inn were apparently too honorable to suspect the traveler of lying, but when he told them a tale of boring holes in American ground for gas to light cities and run machine-shops, they unrolled grimly.

The host, a tall man called Jose, peered up his ears at the mention of American "sky-scrapers."
"We run them up very high," said the guest. "They are twenty or more stories tall."

Jose gave a start that nearly upset his chair, and all the loungers sitting about uttered a long-drawn exclamation, and looked up the chimney as if to see how high these houses really were.

"How do they get to the top?" inquired Jose.
"Elevators." But if the answer had been "beanstalks" they might have been less puzzled.

Then a jovial fellow inquired if the visitor was a Frenchman.
"No," was the answer. "I am a Yankee."

"Ah, well, we don't know the difference here. We call all foreigners Frenchmen."

"And you had a war there, did you not?" asked a fat man, swathed in a stuff fully a foot wide.

"We had a war," said the American. "Didn't you hear about it? It was with Spain, and our soldiers fought yours at Santiago de Cuba."

"Heard something about it," he replied. "But tell us what you know. We don't get much news here."

"Well, I was there, and we had one big fight. After that we put in sixteen days, our soldiers and yours, looking at one another; and finally we agreed not to fight any more."

"That's right," exclaimed Jose, wringing his head and snapping his little black eyes. "Those soldiers had good sense. If governments want to fight, I say let them do their own fighting among themselves, and if soldiers had any sense they would make them do it, too. They would just put down their guns, and tell the governments to do their own fighting."

As no one disputed this statement, he leaned back in his chair and dozed off to sleep.

"I Found It So."
McDonnell, Ill., Sept. 28.—Miss Ethel Bradshaw of this place has written a letter, which is remarkable for the character of the statements it contains. As her letter will be read with interest, and probably with profit by many women, it has been thought advisable to publish it in part. Among other things Miss Bradshaw says:

"I had kidney trouble with the various unpleasant symptoms which always come with that disease, and I have found a cure. I would strongly advise all who may be suffering with any form of kidney complaint to use Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy which I have found to be entirely satisfactory."

"This remedy is within the reach of all, and it is all that is recommended to me. I found it so, and I therefore feel it my duty to tell others about it."

Dr. Dunaway of Boston, Ill., uses Doan's Kidney Pills in his regular practice, and says they are the best medicine for kidney troubles. He claims they will cure Diabetes in the last stages.

Towed by a Whale.
Whales, as is well known, are now hunted in steamers, one of the most thrilling appliances of which is the gun by which the whale is harpooned and killed. The gun is mounted in the stern of the vessel, and can be turned in all directions. It fires a pointed shell in which is an explosive substance. When first constructed the gun was far from perfect, but the inventor, Sven Foyn, has by gradual improvements brought it to perfection. An incident is related of one of Foyn's last-year experiences with his gun.

One day a whale was shot, but the shell did not explode, and the consequences were that the whale, with the harpoon in its body, made off with the steamer in tow, a vessel of twenty horse-power. The engines were ordered full speed astern, but with no more success in arresting the career of the whale than as if the creature had been an ironclad at full speed.

The stranded animal made for the open ocean, and against the wind, Foyn had to sail in order to check its speed; but it had hardly been halted, when it was sent to shreds by the velocity of the progress against the wind. The wind increased to a storm, with high sea, but still the giant of the ocean kept up his speed, while sea after sea swept the steamer.

The situation became serious, and several of the crew asked Foyn to cut the cable; he was, however, bent upon testing his apparatus thoroughly, perhaps in the hope of the shell exploding. But no; on went the mad drive over the polar ocean for ten hours. At last the cable snapped to the great relief of all on board.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

DESIRING AND OBTAINING.
By Rev. F. B. Chetwood.
Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For he that asketh receiveth, and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.—St. Matthew vii. 7, 8.

These words proclaim an unchangeable, universal, eternal law of the kingdom of God. They are not a three-fold repetition of a single thought. They are rather an announcement of the three successive stages in the upward progress of the one law of desiring and obtaining. These steps are not interchangeable. Seeking is not asking. Knocking is neither asking nor seeking. Asking is desiring; seeking is desire concentrated upon a definite purpose and plan.

The words of the text are, we believe, not the language of a "character" in fiction, but an utterance of Jesus Christ. Two of their most impressive qualities are their unquestioning confidence and their unflinching scope. There is no suggestion in the law of doubt of the reality of the law; no hint of a fault in the law in time, or in space, or in the nature of things. Ask, seek, knock, at any time, anywhere, and for anything, and you shall receive, you shall find, it shall be opened to you. Painful or pleasant, good or what is thought to be evil, what you wish for, what you look for, what you work for, you shall have.

The lesson of the reality and the universality of the law of desiring and obtaining is hard to be learned. Like other hard lessons of human life, this is to be learned only by experience. Man gets opinion and belief from observation. Experience alone brings knowledge. When one has seen the fulfillment of a law of God's kingdom in his own life he knows that the law is real. This is the foundation of his faith in the law and in the God expressed in the law. His faith, too, is the real faith, which results from real understanding, which grows out of real knowledge acquired by man in his own individual experience. No argument can shake such faith. No denial can destroy it. Once attained, it is immortal.

It would seem that this kind of knowledge was the foundation of the faith of Jesus Christ in the reality and the universality of the divine law of desiring and receiving. He believed that the law was real and unlimited, because he saw and felt its operation in the concerns of his own holy life. He knew that what he asked was being given to him; that he was finding what he sought; that the doors at which he knocked were opened to him. He lived to do good to others; he desired to attempt to be turned to do good to them, and the sick were made well, the lame walked, the blind saw, the deaf heard, the dumb talked, lepers were healed, the dead were raised, and broken hearts were mended. How could he question the universality of the law when he found that whatsoever good he determined to do, and whenever and whosoever he determined to do it, the good was done? This was actually receiving what he asked, finding what he sought, the opening of the doors through which he pursued to pass!

From the point of view of human experience there was nothing peculiar in the earthly existence of Jesus Christ. Tested at all points as all humanity is tested, Jesus found what all humanity finds—the knowledge that results from experience, the understanding that accompanies knowledge, the power, the faith, the love that come from understanding. He came into this world a baby groping after power, with almost aimless hands. At the end of his experience on earth he went out from his cross the God-man, imbued with all power in earth and in heaven. Because we believe that the faith of Jesus in the reality and the universality of the law of desiring and obtaining was an outgrowth from his experience and that his experience was in no essential particular peculiar to himself, we believe the law to be as real for all as it was for him, as real for ourselves as it is for all others. More than this, we believe that as Jesus grew into actual faith in the reality of the law, because we find it fulfilled in our own experience, whether in the good which we have desired to do or in the mistakes which we have undoubtedly made.

Whatever we may be doing, therefore, wherever we may be doing it, we will have faith that God gives to those who ask and seek and knock, and that if we desire them and seek them and knock for them we shall receive in due time—that is, in God's good time, "all good things—all the knowledge, all the understanding, all the wisdom, all the power, all the faith, and all the love of which humanity is capable!"

INNOCENCE NOT ENOUGH.
By Bishop Cheney.
The orientals have a proverb, "Do not stoop down when passing through your neighbor's melon garden." The attitude might involve an innocent man in the suspicion of picking his neighbor's fruit. This is a warning that we Christians need more than innocence. We need a manner of doing what is good that shall keep it above suspicion.

The recent story that the oil wells of the Texas field had been flooded with salt water by a great competing corporation is probably utterly false. But had it been true no gifts to education, no costly endowment of universities or contributions to missions could prevent judgment men from speaking evil of trade and saying that no man could be a successful business man and at the same time a good Christian. On the other hand, no man doubts that combinations of labor are a good thing. But when they terrorize by threats, defy the sacredness of law and deny to the 100 per cent of working Americans the right to earn their bread in peace except they carry the threat of a union, then no talk about Jesus Christ being a workman and of his sympathy with the poor and lowly can alter the plain facts of the case. They make a good thing to be evilly spoken of.

A Christian ought to be chary of taking his stand upon his technical and legal rights. The ethics of Christ go beyond all that. A minister who is always contending with his people for his "rights" does not seem to be like his Master. I never knew a clergyman to appeal to the courts for payment of arrears of salary that he did not damage his Christianity. Yet he was within his rights. But why ministers only? Will not you of the pews carry this idea into the strenuous life of the coming week, even though you may sacrifice technical rights to the principle?

STRANGERS AND SOJOURNERS.
By Rev. T. W. Wood.
We are strangers before thee, and sojourners, as were all our fathers.—1 Chron. xxix. 15.

When David's long and eventful lifetime was drawing to a close, with much to look back upon with thankfulness, and with much also to contemplate with regret, the aged king declared that, after all, we on earth are but strangers and sojourners. If that one so exalted as David was, who had reigned through so many eventful periods of life—who had done so much for God and for his own people, in spite of his shortcomings—of King David, who had left so much behind him to tell of his greatness, his power, and his might, showing that he had really lived to accomplish mighty purposes—if David could say truly, when all was nearly over, "We are strangers and pilgrims," surely we should consider, now we are passing through the world, as he once did, that we also are strangers here, only going through the world as if we were on a pilgrimage. And yet how few seem to realize what they know well is a plain and straightforward fact, one there is no denying, though much attempt at evading, or at least an attempt to persuade ourselves that our sojourning here is far from being nearly over, and that our pilgrimage has not nearly reached its termination. Yes, strangers and sojourners we are, and so we must remain to the end of life in this world.

We use the word "strangers" in common talk in different ways; or, perhaps, I should say, with different meanings. We talk of people as "strangers" at one time; but they do not remain strangers always—e. g.: when a lad first leaves home and goes out into the world he is a stranger among the people whose life is cast; but in course of time and by degrees he finds out that he knows them and they know him. Then he is a stranger no longer. Again, a man who is traveling in a foreign country, knowing imperfectly the language of the people, and feeling strange at sights and sounds with which he is not familiar, is indeed a stranger in a strange land; but supposing he remains there for some years, by degrees the strangeness wears off, and at length he feels at home where once he seemed to be much out of place. So he is a stranger no more. Or, again, let us imagine another case. Take an enterprising traveler who, hurrying to make discoveries, ventures across the boundaries of civilization and encounters people and objects which are new and altogether different from what he or any one else has experienced before. Every man he meets is a savage, and every savage perhaps thirsts for his blood. With such surroundings and among such people he is ever likely to remain a stranger. And it is in some such way as this we are taught to look upon our passage through the world as being, I mean, a place where we have no continuing city, but are only strangers passing through it. At any moment we may find out that this is true; for at the time appointed, not by ourselves but by God, we may be struck out of our trail, and the final triumph in which we now dwell may be broken up, while we ourselves are conveyed to another scene.

And we may well ask ourselves, when will that other scene be? We know that there remaineth a rest to the people of God who have passed as strangers and pilgrims through the world. And we know, moreover, we are admonished to labor to enter into that rest. Let us strive, then, so to do, and give all diligence, and take all heed to enter into that eternal rest when our sojourning here is over. Let us not, through negligence or sloth, come short of the promised rest. As good soldiers of Jesus Christ let us fight manfully under his banner, laying aside every weight and the sin (whatever it may be) which so easily besets us. Let us run with diligence and patience the race which is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith. Let us always remember that although our toiling along here may not be always pleasant for ourselves, yet there will be a glorious and everlasting rest for us who have passed through the world, as strangers pass through the world, which is not their home. When we now look towards this home and hope one day to enter therein, we may truly say:

Ah! then my spirit faints,
To reach the land I love,
The bright inheritance of saints,
Jerusalem above.

Children of Light.—Let us throw off the things of darkness, which we now practice, and become the children of light and righteousness and we will reap the fruits of holiness unto everlasting life.—Rev. G. F. Miller, Episcopalian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

WORN OUT, DRAGGED OUT,

Are Most Women in Summer —Per-u-na Is a Tonic of Efficiency.

Mrs. Tressie Nelson, 422 Broad St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"As Peruna has done me a world of good, I feel it duty bound to tell of it, in hopes that it may meet the eye of some woman who has suffered as I have."
"For five years I really did not know what a perfectly well day was, and if I did not have headache, I had backache or a pain somewhere and really life was not worth the effort I made to keep going."
"A good friend advised me to use Peruna and I am very pleased to say that six bottles made a new woman of me and I have no more pains and life is bright again."—Mrs. Tressie Nelson.

JOSEPHINE MORRIS, 236 Carroll St., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:
"Peruna is a fine medicine to take any time of the year, but I have found it especially helpful to withstand the wear and tear of the hot weather. I have taken it now for two Summers and feel that it has kept my system free from malaria, and also kept me from having that worn-out, dragged-out look which so many women have."
"I therefore have no hesitancy in saying that I think it is the finest tonic in the world."—Josephine Morris.

Peruna is frequently used as a mitigation of the effects of hot weather. With a bath to the skin, Peruna keeps the mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes, and the clean mucous membranes, bathing keeps the skin healthy. Peruna makes the mucous membranes clean and healthy. Write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Rustic Work.
Sooner or later every owner of a country home runs up against the idea of rustic work. Generally it hits him hard—sometimes too hard. If you really need seats or summer houses in your woodland nothing can be more appropriate than logs with the bark on, because they harmonize with the growing trees, says Country Life in America. This is the real secret of the popularity of rustic work—its fitness. It is opposed to costlier and more architectural features which make a strong contrast with natural surroundings. Occasionally, however, you will find a man who has fallen head over heels in love with rustic work for his own sake. The consequence is that he fills the lawn in front of his house with all sorts of rustic possibilities, which look doubly foolish because they have no earthly sense and because they are out in a sunny spot in the midst of an environment which is civilization rather than nature.

Then He Said "Good Night."
The subdued light in the room made even his "howling" necktie a thing of beauty.
For fully three minutes they had sat amid the silence which it seemed cruel to break.
"Then he stirred uneasily."
"Don't you think, Miss Inlu, that it is a great mistake for a man like me to travel through this life alone?"
She regarded him fixedly for a moment.
"Won't you?" the words came slow and with firm enunciation—"won't you mother chaperon you?"
To this day she is uncertain whether it was sixteen or seventeen seconds that elapsed before she spoke his name and his downward stare followed.

There is no blessing equal to the possession of a stout heart.—Smiles.

Old Maids and Bachelor Girls.
The Old Maid was a woman who couldn't marry.
The Bachelor Girl is one who won't. The Old Maid was a creature of tea and toast and rubber cats, and a fringe on the edge of somebody's else's family.
The Bachelor Girl is up on fashions and sport, football and polo, and the backbone of the community in which she lives.
The Old Maid was an object of pity. The independent, joyous lot of the Bachelor Girl makes her an object of envy.
All of which goes to show the change in the attitude of the public toward the status of woman.

Aching backs are eased. Hip, back, and loin pains overcome. Swelling of the limbs, rheumatism, and dropsy signs vanish.
"It was an hour after midnight when there came a furious ringing at my door bell," said Abe Gruber, delivering "the latest" to a number of friends. "The next minute I poked my head out of an upper window and inquired as to what the visitor wanted."
"This where Mr. Gruber lives?"
"Yes; I am Mr. Gruber. What is it?"
"You delivered a speech this evening in which you mentioned Curless McGibney?"
"I did."
"Was he a Protestant or a Roman Catholic?"
"He was a Protestant. But what?"
"Thanks; that's all I wanted to know. I'm the shorthand reporter that took down the speech, and I couldn't tell from my notes whether you said he entered the ministry or the episcopacy. Good night."

Don't be negligent, slothful, dilatory, tardy. Be punctual in all things.—Fremont Tribune.

PROPOSED GAS PLANT.

C. J. Tannev, president of the Standard Gas Construction Co., of Omaha, and H. L. Snyder, of Norfolk, also representing the company, were in Wayne Monday evening and presented to the city council the advantages of their gas lighting and heating system with a view of establishing a plant here. The estimated cost of installing the plant is between $13,000 and $15,000, and it is proposed to vote bonds to the amount of $10,000 for the purpose. The matter was referred to the lighting committee and will be further considered at an adjourned meeting of the council next Monday evening.

The city has a good electric system, but its present power is absorbed by 2300 lights and as there is a growing demand on the plant, the council finds it necessary to either strengthen it or add another source of supply. Which course is the more feasible, is the question to be considered.

BLACKMAILING PLOT.

Dynamite Required Great Sum for Immunity.

Helena, Mont. It has developed that the recent attempts to dynamite bridges and tracks on the line of the Northern Pacific between Livingston and Missoula was in furtherance of a plot to force the railway company to pay $300,000 for immunity from the outrage.

It is alleged that the company received a letter demanding $25,000, in which it was threatened that if the terms proposed were not agreed to dynamite would be placed on the line.

No attention was paid to the demand and shortly afterward the railroad bridge at Livingston was partially wrecked by dynamite. Then other letters were received and a trap was laid to catch the plotters. This, however, failed and another demand was made, this time for $50,000. Again the railroad tried to trap the men, but without success.

Finally after the letters began to arrive again from the dynamiters, making the same demand and telling the railroad to agree to the terms to put the flag on the engines. This the railroad company has not done and in the past two weeks there have been four attempts to dynamite the line by the use of dynamite.

A PRISONER BY EXPRESS.

Man Sent from Columbus, Neb., to Boston, Mass.

Boston, Mass. The distinction of being the first prisoner ever sent by express, and the first to be sent by express, was undoubtedly bestowed on Floyd T. Perrie, who arrived here by American Express from Columbus, Neb., on route to Lynn, where he is wanted for the larceny of $250 from the company which transported him.

Perrie was willing to remain, on word sent after the fact, but it was necessary to send an officer after him. He was accordingly entered upon the regular way bill as one "Lynn," consigned to "Police Lynn" at "Owner's risk." He was placed in the express car with the messenger as guard.

BIG FIRE IN INDIANAPOLIS.

Indianapolis, Ind. Fire broke out shortly after midnight in a five-story plant of the Dugger Candy Company on Georgia street, one of the most valuable buildings in the Indianapolis wholesale district.

One man was injured in a collision between a street car and a fire truck. The fire spread so rapidly that a general call for the Indianapolis fire department was sent in a few minutes after the first company arrived on the scene. A heavy rain failed to check the growing blaze. Loss to the Dugger Candy Company building alone is estimated at $600,000.

TRAIN HOLDUP FRUSTRATED.

Peculiar Experience on the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Woodstock, N. Y. Because the trained eye of Engineer George W. Boss recognized in the awkward swing of a lantern the work of a uvicor, he pulled the throttle wide open and drove his train swiftly by a warning signal and thus frustrated what was believed to be an attempt to hold up the boat train at Plimmer's Lodge, a lonely spot a mile north of White Station, on the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Thursday night.

The train had reached a point within an eighth of a mile of Plimmer's Lodge, where Engineer Boss saw a green signal light indicating a clear track. Suddenly the light changed to red and the engineer closed the throttle and set the train brakes. As he did so a lamp was thrust into his face and he was told to stop. The engineer, who had been acquired by experienced training and it flashed across Boss' mind that the man who gave the signal was not stopping the train for any good purpose.

As far as he could see an unobstructed track lay before him. In a few seconds the train was made up and he dashed out the danger signal. Learning out of his cab Engineer Boss saw a man leap from the track, two other men standing on the ladder holding the stationary light and tampering with the signal while seven other men were lined up along the roadbed.

TO KEEP PRICES UP.

Hard Coal Operators Place Restrictions on Output.

Wilkesbarre, Pa. The orders for the restriction of the anthracite coal output have affected nearly all the collieries in this region. Orders have been issued by the Lehigh Valley Coal Company to close down its twenty collieries. The Susquehanna Coal Company will place its sixteen collieries idle at once. The Delaware and Hudson Company has posted notices at its eight collieries in this vicinity that the mines would be worked but five hours a day until further orders. It is said that the Delaware, Lehigh Valley and Western Company will place its collieries on three-quarters time. The Reading Coal Company will also restrict the output by shutting down some of its collieries for repairs.

Over 42,000,000 tons of coal have been mined since January 1, while in several months more than 100,000,000 tons of coal are produced for a like period in the history of the mining industry. The present glut in the market and the effort to prevent a break in prices is the cause of the restriction.

PERFORMS 275 FEET IN AIR.

Chamber Stands on Head on Hill Fastened to Flag Pole.

Cincinnati, O. On the ball of the traction skyscraper building's derrick, 275 feet above the street, "Steeple Jack" Ransauer performed thrilling feats. The crowd around Fountain Square, Ransauer climbed the pole without any help other than a slight grip on the top of the big globe. He stood on his hands, then on one hand, then he stood on both feet and finally on one foot.

As a finale he sent a thrill of horror through the multitude which watched him by pretending to slip, recovering himself after an apparent effort.

DYNAMITE ON THE TRACK.

Another Attempt to Wreck a Northern Pacific Train.

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Hunter is Killed—August Schmidt Says that When He Levelled His Rifle at the Gun Was Empty.

John Houser is dead, and August Schmidt, who shot him, is in jail at Hartington. The tragedy was the result of a long explication. Schmidt said that when he pulled the trigger of his gun he did not know it was loaded.

Sunday afternoon John, Cyril and Peter Houser went hunting and met Jess Miller and August Schmidt, and the latter was asked to get in their rig and join in the hunt.

After driving about a mile all got out of the rig, according to the story of the witnesses, August Schmidt leveled his gun at John Houser, at the same time remarking, "I'll fix you." The contents were discharged and most of the contents took effect in Houser's neck, severing the jugular vein, death following in about two hours.

Part of the charge from Schmidt's gun took effect in Peter Houser's back, but nothing dangerous will result.

Later Schmidt said he did not know the gun was loaded, and merely made the remark, "I'll fix you," in a joking way. He is about twenty years of age. He claims he has always been a friend of the dead man and that they had never had any trouble whatever.

TOO MANY CHURCHES.

Plan is on Foot to Form a Religious Trust of All Societies.

If the opinion of a number of ministers of Lincoln is the opinion of the people of Lincoln and hereafter, there will be no more churches erected in that great religious city. The idea of the formation of a religious trust for the purpose of providing for many months and the Ministerial Association will hold a meeting and it is expected the matter will come up, and probably an irrevocable agreement will be made whereby the small church and the small preacher will become a thing of the past.

R. H. Bradley, a brakeman on the Northwestern, had the front part of his left foot cut off at Irvington. He stepped back of the engine to fix the coupling and slipped and fell, fortunately outside the rail. Bradley had only been working for the company a week and was on his second trip.

Farmer of Lancaster County Takes His Own Life.

The body of William Sawyer, a farmer aged 70 years, was found hanging from the limb of a tree by a small stream on the farm of W. M. Whitbeck, about two miles from Hartington, Monday afternoon. The body was hanging from the trunk of the tree near the public well, but was not from view by the engine. It is believed Sawyer hanged himself on the Friday of Saturday. Temporary insanity is supposed to have been the cause.

MAN'S BODY HANGING ON TREE.

Son of Nebraska Divine Takes the Contribution Box.

Just to prove that preachers' boys could be bad William Mottler, son of a Methodist minister attending the conference at Lincoln, drank whiskey Friday night and stole the contribution box from St. Paul's church. Prisoner Got Freedom.

Charles S. Snyder, arrested on a charge of embezzlement and wanted in Missouri County, Mo., on charges of arson and horse stealing, and with a penitentiary record back of him, was released from the county jail at Hartington Monday afternoon and left for his home, without making a cent for his transportation. Snyder owes his freedom to the bitter feud existing between the county officers.

Condition of Corn.

BIG CORN CROP IN NEBRASKA

Yield Estimated at Two Hundred Million Bushels.

Omaha hotels are filled with country merchants from all parts of the state making winter purchases. Winter trade has been held off (all the effect of the frost on the corn crop) could be ascertained. Experts estimate that the corn crop will exceed last year's by 200,000,000 bushels, as against 2,000,000,000 more last season. Railroads which ship the grain from the state close their whips, and all are agreed that the crop will be nearly as large as the preceding season.

FOUND DEAD ON BRIDGE.

Crushed by Wheels of Heavy Load of Corn He Was Taking to Town.

Henry Hudat, a farmer living south of Columbus, was found dead on the Loup River wagon bridge. He was coming to town with a load of corn and, while no one witnessed the accident, indications point to the fact that the neckyoke came down and Hudat was either dragged from the wagon or fell off and his skull was crushed by one of the wheels of the heavy load.

Hudat was a well-to-do farmer and was 54 years old. He had lived in Platte County for thirty years. No inquest will be held, as everything points to accident at death.

KILLED BY STREET CAR.

Boy Bicycle Run Down by Car While Avoiding a Team.

Harlan Whisman, a 16-year-old boy, son of Charles Whisman, was run down by a street car on Monday afternoon at four minutes later. The boy was riding a bicycle somewhat rapidly along the street and turned out to avoid a team. The slight wrong that he made to clear the team brought him directly in the way of a passing car which backed him to the pavement, the front truck passing across his head and striking his chest and abdomen, which he held in his left hand. He was killed.

CONVICTED OF KIDNAPING.

Rev. R. A. Gould Sentenced to Six Years in Penitentiary.

At Central City Rev. R. A. Gould, a Free Methodist preacher, who eloped with Rev. J. H. Moore, of Hartington, in March, was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. He was tried under the kidnaping law passed by the state legislature after the Coudoy kidnaping in Omaha, and his conviction was the first under that statute.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

DAMAGE BY FROST HAS NOT BEEN SERIOUS.

The weekly summary issued by the weather bureau says while the week has been abnormally cool, with general frosts throughout the central valleys and as far west as the northern portion of the central valley, the damage has not been serious, except in the extreme western portions of Kansas and Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin and New England. The south Atlantic States have suffered from excessive moisture, while the heavy rains of the previous week have done much to restore the soil to a normal condition. THE WEEKLY HISTORIAN

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

At midnight Tuesday the Hay-Herran Panama canal treaty became a thing of the past. As Tuesday was the last day for the exchange of ratifications of the treaty; under the terms of the convention, that instrument may be considered as dead. For several weeks, some newspapers assert, the treaty has been used as a blackening device for forcing the French Panama Canal Company to give up a portion of the $100,000,000 it was to receive from the United States for its plant, concessions and completed channel. The report that the Columbians seriously contemplated withdrawing from the United States for a larger bonus has never been fully authenticated, although there was doubtless a disposition to demand better terms from this government until they were advised by the State Department, through Minister Beupre, that no better offer would be made for the canal.

THE TRIUMPH was achieved in American manufacture when four bower screws, 18 inches thick and 120 fathoms of American hemp, were completed in the city of Washington for the French.

THE PRESIDENT appointed three commissioners to determine all disputed cases of land in Mississippi territory whether under grant from Great Britain and Spain or by actual settlement.

COLUMBIAN CONGRESS FAILS TO ACT IN TIME LIMIT.

Time for Ratification of the Hay-Herran Convention Has Expired—Year's Delay in Sight—Washington Now Awaits a New Proposal.

WASHINGTON

When it comes to representation in Congress, the farmer has the best of it. The most influential, because the most able, Senators and Representatives are from the rural districts. The big cities furnish a disproportionately small number of the men who "do things."

The above is apropos of recent protest sent up by the western farmer at the ribbon-cutting ceremony in a recent magazine article, and generally in eastern publications. Whatever he may be in other respects, the farmer does not have to take off his hat to city legislators. A few examples will illustrate. The Speaker of the House (the man who will be elected from a rural district, Chicago, 1899) is a farmer. The man who takes pride in his farmerhood, and all his talk and personal habits savor of an upbringing among cultivators of the soil. He is the most powerful single personality in the popular branch of the national legislature. The average country congressman has more information on all public matters than his average city member. He voices a greater and more intelligent interest in such matters than is found in the great municipalities. The city congressman is ephemeral. He comes and goes, and even if he is an intelligent man and able to make an impression, he is not often kept in Congress long enough to do any good. The country districts know the value to themselves of a Congressman who has been in Washington long enough to learn the ropes and to work up to a position in the legislative organization where he has some power. The cities, passing around the honor as a reward, do not know the value to themselves of a Congressman who has been in Washington long enough to learn the ropes and to work up to a position in the legislative organization where he has some power.

Commissioner of Pensions Ware, in his annual report, predicts that the pension roll is not likely to again cross the million mark, as the highest point was made a year ago. He suggests that men convicted of an infamous crime be deprived of the right to a pension and recommends cutting off the pensions of women who marry soldiers after the war has become permanent. More than the total number of pensioners now on the rolls at 996,645, of which 728,356 are soldiers and 267,189 are widows and dependents. The cost of the pension system per capita of population for 1903, is given as $1.75. The system was the greatest as a burden to the people of the United States in 1903, when it had cost $224,132,241, or $1,000 of taxable wealth, and in ten years, he says, the burden will cease to be noticed. Mr. Ware estimates that the unpensioned survivors of the Civil War, exclusive of deserters, is in round numbers 200,000. The great bulk of the roll is as follows: Civil War, 170,000; Spanish War, 248,300; Spanish War, Invalids 9,200; widows 3,400; regular establishment, invalids 0,170, widows 2,938. The roll shows a net loss of 2,001 pensioners during the year. Out of a total of 304,800 applications on hand during the year 130,100 were admitted and 113,704 rejected. The average annual value of one pension is $137. The annual value of the Spanish War pension roll has reached $176,630.

The Pan-American conference of the Episcopal bishops, which will convene in Washington Oct. 15, promises to be the most important gathering of the churchmen of the United States. More than fifty bishops of the American church will be present and participate in the discussions. Twelve of the Canadian bishops have accepted invitations to attend, and there will be in addition bishops of several of the South American nations, notably Brazil. Missionary bishops from China, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Iceland, Africa, and the West Indies will also be present. One of the subjects most likely to come before the conference is the union of the Christian churches of the world. Churchmen are looking forward to a noteworthy advance in this direction to be taken by this conference.

The interests of the old soldiers are always well cared for by Congress, but they are certain not to be neglected in the Fifty-fifth Congress. Although the Civil War ended over 38 years ago there will be 77 men in Congress who fought in it. Forty-seven fought on the Union side, and 30 on the Confederate side. In the Senate there are 13 Union soldiers and 13 ex-Confederates. But in the House, where the representation is more fairly apportioned, there are 34 Union veterans and 17 ex-Confederates. The Grand Army has declared in favor of the extension for all Union veterans over 62 years of age, and a new law will be made to pass such a bill. But as any veteran who needs help gets it now, regardless of age, there is thought to be poor prospect of the success of such a measure.

When President Roosevelt jumped to the wharf at Ellis Island to greet the immigration cutter H. B. Chamberlain the other day a powerful gust caught the skirts of his frock coat and whirled them against the back of his head. Those standing behind the President saw striking out of his right hip pocket the handle of a revolver. One of the secret service men has explained that the President invariably carries a revolver when he goes to a public place. The President has carried a pistol ever since he took the oath of office after the assassination of McKinley. He has the greatest faith in the revolver. Forman announcement is made that Representative John A. Ketchum of New York is to succeed Eugene D. Leonard as chairman of the postoffice committee of the House. This committee is expected to be one of the most important during the next Congress, as it will conduct the investigation of the postal scandals which it is generally understood Congress will order.

All offers of silver bullion for the Philippine coinage were rejected by the Treasury Department on account of the high prices demanded. The offers amounted to $60,000,000, and the prices asked ranged from 60.25 to 60.55 cents per ounce.

FARMERS' NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Twenty-Third Annual Meeting Is Held at Niagara Falls.

The farmers' national congress assembled at Niagara Falls in twenty-third annual session, being called to order by President Flaunders of Albany. Gov. Odell delivered an address of welcome. About 300 delegates representing thirty-eight States were present. Reciprocity treaties, the United States questions and the ownership of public utilities were among the subjects discussed.

Major D. G. Purse of Savannah, Ga., gave an address on "The Sugar Supply of the United States." Major Purse declared that sugar is the only product of the soil which is largely used that makes the United States debtor to foreign lands for supply. He believed this big deficiency could be made up by fostering both cane and beet sugar growing. At present the United States uses 2,275,740 tons of sugar yearly, of which but 500,000 tons are produced at home.

In the general discussion which followed all the delegates agreed that the United States would ultimately produce all the sugar it uses. Timothy L. Woodruff addressed the afternoon session of the congress on agricultural conditions in the insular possessions of the United States. Secretary Cortis of the Department of Labor and Commerce explained the purposes of the new department to the farmers.

At the evening session O. P. Austin, chief of the bureau of statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, gave an address on "Farm Products in the Market of the World." Mr. Austin stated that from 1870 to 1900 the population has increased 100 per cent, and agricultural exports 130 per cent, but that the increase in the number of people engaged in agricultural work has been only 75 per cent. Of wheat, the United States produced 40 per cent of the world's production, against 37.5 per cent in 1875. The United States also produces three-fourths of the world's corn, three-fourths of the world's cotton and 40 per cent of the provisions used in international commerce.

The farmers' congress passed mild resolutions on the question of trusts. The congress adopted this resolution and others as follows: Favoring an agricultural census every five years instead of ten. Favoring the admission of Oklahoma on the ground that its agricultural interests are of sufficient importance to demand admission.

Requesting Congress to establish postal savings banks and parcel posts. Requesting the States to pay the expenses of delegates to the meetings of the congress hereafter. Recommending farmers to give more attention to the referendum movement, but goes no further. Requesting Congress to submit an amendment to the Constitution for a graduated income tax.

The congress accepted an invitation from the National Civic Federation to send representatives to the industrial conference to be held in Chicago Oct. 15 to 17. China coppermiths earn $1 a day. England has nearly 4,000 female butchers. Columbus, Ohio, freight handlers will organize. Longshoremen at Providence, R. I., will organize. A law legalizing strikes is in preparation at St. Petersburg, Russia. Los Angeles plasterers won a $1 increase. They now get $6 a day. The demand for skilled white labor is steadily increasing in South Africa.

New Orleans, La., has nineteen negro labor unions, numbering 11,000 men. In the German Parliament there are over eighty representatives of workmen. Seamen on native river craft get $3 a month in China; on seagoing Chinese vessels, $8.

Mine owners of Sonora are arranging to employ Chinese laborers in place of Mexicans. A union of paper box makers in Chicago, Ill., composed exclusively of women, numbers 5,000. Scotch shale miners have agreed to ask for an advance of 1s. a day or 4d. a ton on their wages. International Typographical Union will make a determined effort for a general eight-hour day, commencing Jan. 1, 1905. Painters at Chattanooga, Tenn., after being out three weeks, won their strike for an eight-hour day and 3 1/2 cents an hour.

Nanaimo, B. C., miners are strongly considering the question of severing connection with the Western Federation of Miners. New Orleans, La., horsehoes have presented demands calling for recognition of the union and a new scale of wages and hours. The headquarters of the Amalgamated Leather Workers' International Union has been removed from Olean, N. Y., to Philadelphia. A colored man was elected as international vice-president at the convention of the longshoremen held at Bay City, Mich., recently.

Losses incurred by the strike of the workers at the naphtha wells, Baku, Russia, amount to no less than 1,400,000 pounds to the owners alone. A co-operative grocery, the company for which was incorporated May 31, has been launched at Elkhart, Ind., the Lake Shore shops being the prime movers. The strike of the workers at the United States, in order to force the Employers' Association to sign a scale for the coming year. Boston, Mass., union bricklayers, after being on strike since July 1, have returned to work, securing a rate of 55 cents an hour, and full recognition of the union.

The popularity of Germany's railway minister (Herr Bardo) is illustrated by the fact that nearly 20,000 laboring men bought his latest portrait—a lithograph costing 15 cents. A plan has been suggested in England for the erection of a sanitarium for the reception of tuberculosis patients on terms that would be within the means of the working classes. The estate of the late P. M. Arthur is probably worth from $100,000 to $150,000. Mr. Arthur's wealth was in Cleveland real estate and a limited amount of gilt-edged securities. It has been voted to remove the national headquarters of the International Brotherhood of Tailors and Dressmakers from New York City to Omaha to facilitate a crusade to organize the firemen of the West.

OPINIONS OF GREAT PAPERS ON IMPORTANT SUBJECTS

The End of the World Again.

MAN of the name of Baxter is causing a commotion in certain quarters of London by prophesying that the world will come to an end in 1924. Mr. Baxter's reasons for setting the limit at 1924 are not very plain to outsiders, but he claims to have Biblical authority for his conclusion. People who foresee the end of the world always have the Bible to back them up. It is simply a matter of interpretation.

Many people found a few years ago that their Bibles plainly pointed to the destruction of the world at the end of the nineteenth century. Signs and portents were everywhere, and when the whistles blew at midnight on the 31st of December and no general explosion came off there were thousands of men, women and children who drew long breaths and gladly decided to take a fresh start.

Prophet Baxter is probably no more of a seer than any of his predecessors in the end-of-the-world predicting business have been, but he may be serving a good purpose. Every time anybody tries a day for the end of the world certain people begin trying to do better. Hence those predictions are not without good results. Sometimes it seems as if society might be considerably benefited if there were more of them.—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Ever Present Germ.

WERE we science concede to us some measure of safety? It has lately been proved experimentally—which means that it is really so—that books may carry tuberculosis, and it was already known that they communicate scarlet fever and other infectious diseases. It is no longer safe to borrow a book unless we disinfect it thoroughly with powdered formal. If we fly to the mountains to escape germs, we find that even the peacocks that fall there contain them. Almost any one would suppose that in the middle of the sea we should find ourselves free from germs, but certain conclusive observations lately recorded show not only that "even the water of the central portion of the North Atlantic Ocean is not wholly free from bacteria," but that the germs in sea water are increasing in numbers. No sea water and no rain water has been found perfectly devoid of germs, though the rain water from the deep sea is more nearly free from them than the rain water that falls over the land. Not all these wandering germs are hurtful, but some of them are. The conclusion is rapidly being developed in the lay mind that the microbe being omnipresent, one is as safe from him in one place as another.—Harper's Weekly.

Why Men Eat Too Much.

EATING is the greatest of all our pleasures and amusements. A great number of people obviously eat a great deal more than they need, and it is entirely credible that a large proportion of the moderate eaters might thrive as well and look as handsome and work as hard and live as long as a very much restricted diet. But would the joy of life continue unimpaired for them? The native-born could subsist for 11 cents a day, but would they think life was worth living on 11 cents' worth of food a day? No, they wouldn't. That is one thing that all men.—Harper's Weekly.

Summer Life on the Farm.

HERE appears to be a steady demand for slightly farms in the New England States and a growth of that taste which makes people of means prefer the rest of country life during the summer, to the confusion and crowds which make life at a summer hotel wearisome and sends people home in the fall as tired, if not more so, than when they sought relaxation. The extension of steam and trolley lines has robbed country life of a large part of its isolation and helped induce people "to go back to the land." Old farms, which a generation ago hardly kept a family alive, are found to have a market value, owing to panorama of hill, vale, lake and river, which counted nothing in the

Should Dark Women Marry Dark Men?

They do these things differently in England, if one may judge by the following article in an English publication on "Should a Dark Woman Marry a Dark Man?" I know there is a scientific law, "Likes repel, unlikes attract." But surely it is a far cry to fit an electrical statement to souls. Though, of course, love may be a subtle kind of magnetism, in which case undoubtedly the dark should marry the fair.

The great advantage of this seems that, roughly speaking, fair people take life more easily and more amiably, and are less nervous and more amiable. Therefore the ideal man for the dark, energetic, highly strung man is the blonde, placid, good-natured woman whose calmness will cool his impetuosity. Just in the same way the golden-haired girl with violet eyes will probably be drawn to the dark, Italian-looking fellow whose eloquent brown eyes seem to speak a world of passionate yearning.

His eagerness, his audacity, will move her more than a blonde lover's Saxon handsomeness. The dark lover will be her ideal, the force of contrast will draw them together, and they will be, in the eyes of the world, a perfectly matched pair. I know of dozens of good ladies who sigh their loudest and exclaim, "Dear me! We shall see what we shall see" when they hear that a dark man and a dark girl are going to make a match of it. According to them the doom of the unfortunate couple is settled, because their hair and eyes are the same in color.

This is going too far. We've all known happy couples who were of the same complexion, just as we've known unhappy pairs whose coloring made a fine contrast. For the comfort of the dark haired girl who hopes to marry a man whose looks are almost her own color, I'm going to quote a few of the things I have learned from a close study of some few hundred married couples. If, then, you want to inspire a fierce, overwhelming passion in your lover, you will have a better chance if you are his physical opposite. But if you wish to inspire deep and lasting friendship, you will have a better chance by being his physical counterpart. Looking round the women I know who are, first and foremost, their husbands' chums, I am amazed to find the majority are dark and have dark husbands. In the rare cases I know of, where eyes of former owners, and the new occupants draw dividends in health, sunshine, shade and landscape which are fully as valuable as dollars.—Taunton Gazette.

The Nation's Wealth.

THE total wealth of the world is estimated at $400,000,000,000. These figures are probably lower than they should be, for the reason that statistical returns from South and Central American countries and from the semi-civilized portions of the globe, such as Asiatic nations and the Ottoman empire, are very inaccurate and incomplete. But taking this estimate as correct, the United States owns one-fourth, or $100,000,000,000, of the entire accumulated capital of the world.

This fact, however, does not mean that the Americans are the best off financially of all the people of the earth. The English are the wealthiest, with the Scotch a close second. Australia comes next, then France, and after her the United States. For the purpose of striking the comparison, the compilation of 1885 from Marshall's "Dictionary of Statistics" is taken, inasmuch as it is fuller than any table subsequently made. The per capita wealth of England is $1,384; Scotland, $1,257; Australia, $1,123; France, $1,210; United States, $1,237. Six other countries whose per capita wealth is worthy of mention are the following: Denmark with $1,104; Canada, $940; Holland, $878; Switzerland, $787; Germany, $748, and Belgium, $720. All these figures, of course, have greatly increased since the year they were compiled, but no great change in the relative standing of the different nations has probably resulted thereby.—Kansas City Journal.

The Gift of Laughter.

OD'S greatest gift to man was the laugh. Without it the human race would have wept itself to death or exterminated itself long ago. Pathos is beautiful. Tragedy is absorbing. But both pathos and tragedy are instantly forgotten by the laugh. Laughter has sunshine in it. It is warm. Learned men have searched for the secret of life. What is it but good humor? That's the secret of life being worth living. What sunshine is to earth, good humor is to man. Take the smile and the laugh away and it would be the end of man.

Men can't fight while they enjoy a joke. Death himself recoils from the laugh. The man in a good humor has an enormous advantage over the man who is angry. Anger is dark. Bitterness is filled with shadow. Intolerance is grim and black. Pugnacity is blind. Good humor—with the smile and the laugh—is sunshine in which objects are plain and distortion disappears and wherein phantoms become nothing.—Denver Post.

The Automobilist.

HERE are a great many people in the world who do not seem to realize that their rights end exactly where those of their fellow-beings begin. We are unwilling to believe there are many who are made up of "the combination of Biff and Black George" which that gaudy Virginia, John Randolph, of Roanoke, accused Clay of being, with the result of meeting on the field of honor; but there are some who, without being either rogues or moral law, constantly forget the rights of others. Consider the unamused automobilist. He is next of kin to the bicycle wrecker who ran his devastating course a few years ago. What is it that makes a man apparently sane otherwise wish to ride at a reckless speed through the city streets, endangering the lives of others, as soon as he thinks he knows how to open one of those unaccounted deadly weapons? Were we Buddhists we should believe him to be a reincarnation of the war horse described in the Book of Job that "swallowed the ground with fierceness and rage."

He saith among the trumpets, Ha, ha; and he smelleth the battle afar off.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Further statistics show that 29,000,000 people more than ten years of age are engaged in productive industry. More than one-third are in agriculture, a fifth in domestic and personal service, a fifth in trade and transportation, the professions hold a meager twentieth, while a fourth are in a manufactures and the mechanical pursuits, including mining. An ingenious statistician has figured out the relative proportions of the sexes engaged in these different pursuits as follows: If a given establishment employing 100 persons desired the typical division of men, women and children, it would be obliged to employ seventy-seven men more than 16 years of age, twenty women more than 16, and three children of young persons more than 10.

The King and the Reporter. King Alfonso of Spain has been saying to a Spanish newspaper what he thinks about the press. Could any thing be more modern than a king descended from an ancient line of monarchs consenting to an interview with a reporter? This is the way the young ruler delivers himself, or the way London M. A. P. translates him. The truly impartial periodical, which applauds with enthusiasm all that is good and censures with energy all that is evil, will ever merit the sincere esteem of those who prefer the interests of the Nation at large to any other consideration.

To reflect the state of opinion and to become the echo of its needs without its prejudices, and with serenity of mind, to sacrifice the secondary end to the common good is a most beautiful ideal, and one that falls perfectly within the scope of the mission of the press. I read the newspapers with interest and take especial delight in those which, like Die Woche, for instance, keep their readers informed of the advances made in science and industry. I think that it is expedient, even necessary, that the current daily narrative of events in the world, which excite public curiosity, and at times anxiety, should be associated with art, which delights, as well as instructs, and with science, whose discoveries should be popularized, especially those that affect industry, so that all who need instruction may have what is useful side by side with what is recreative.

The average woman can't understand where the trouble began, recalling with pride in herself that she always met her husband with a smile. How often men tell things, and then add, "I wouldn't have it known that it came from me." Then why tell it?

Immense Proportions Which Our Manufacturers Have Attained. Few Americans have an adequate conception of the greatness and importance of the manufacturing interests of the country. In fact, it is almost impossible to conceive it, even when we read in the census reports that there are more than half a million establishments for the manufacture of some article of commerce. And these establishments are using capital to the amount of $9,335,086,899, and employing 397,174 clerks and officials and wage earners to the number of 5,316,802.

But if the mind refuses this high burden what is the mental condition of the fellow who tries to jump the fact that $7,948,144,753 worth of raw material is consumed annually by this array of factories, and makes out of this material manufactured products worth altogether $18,014,287,498? That sum is nearly ten times the authorized capitalization of the greatest corporation on earth, the United States Steel Corporation. It represents the actual value of the States of New York and Pennsylvania combined. The product in 1890 was less, by nearly $4,000,000,000, while that of 1880 was only a little more than $1,000,000,000. We rank first among the manufacturing nations of the earth, for we produce, according to the most accurate authorities, about half as much as all of Europe combined, the United Kingdom ranking next. Vigorous Old Age
Paine's Celery Compound makes the old feel young, and cures their ills. It has added years of health and enjoyment to many a life.
Use this great medicine regularly, and its invigorating powers will fill your declining years with health, strength, and happiness. Read what George F. Morse, 67 years old, writes:—
"Walls & Richardson Co.,
Gardner, Mo.—Just a word in favor of Paine's Celery Compound, hoping it may catch the eye of some afflicted person, and they may receive the same satisfactory benefit.
Some 15 years ago I had a combination of malaria, chills and fever, and grip, which continued for a year or more; meantime I lost in weight about 60 pounds, trying different medicines and doctors with unsatisfactory results.
Paine's Celery Compound was recommended, and, after using a little I began to improve, gaining about a pound a week. In a year I had regained 50 pounds of the lost weight and good health, and have been a well man ever since. Yours truly, GEORGE F. MORSE,

THEY COME FOR HUNDREDS OF MILES TO SEE HER.
Nothing So Wonderful in the Days of Specialism.

DR. CALDWELL.
The success of Dr. Caldwell is attributed to her special study of specialism. Dr. Caldwell, a student, philanthropist and physician of wide reputation, having given her entire time and practice to a line of special diseases, which enables her from long experience in handling these troubles to certainly come forward as a master specialist. Her faculty for mastering disease, her ability to diagnose, and her plan of treatment is not excelled by any physician in life. A plain woman, and one who is used to the ups and downs of life, puts herself on a level with her patients and does not profess or pretend to practice the old plan of fashion, which is to look wise and say nothing. She knows disease; she knows how to explain the symptoms of disease, and the spot where located, and most of all she brings from experience, from what she has done in the past, she can certainly do for others in the future. It is said by Dr. Caldwell that she can cure a disease of a single patient without asking them a single question, that being the case, she is not likely to doctor them for the wrong ailment; she will not take an incurable disease and lead the patient to believe that she can cure them when there is really no hope for them.
Dr. Caldwell is a graduate from one of the best schools in the America. She has practiced her profession in some of the principal hospitals in this country. Her specialty comprises that class of diseases which the ordinary home doctor fails to cure, such as female diseases, heart diseases, diseases of children and the many special diseases of hidden nature. Her practice is mostly among the plain, hard-working people who are unable to come to her in the city office for treatment; she is reasonable in her charges and very lenient with those who are not able to pay.
She is charitable, and it is said has never been known to refuse to treat a patient who is worthy and in need. A number of important cases that we hereby take the liberty to publish, which might be of interest to some who wish to know more of Dr. Caldwell's special work:
