W. H. Buehelt, who has been president of the Norfolk National bank for many years, has resigned the position to go to Oakland, California, where he has accepted a cashiership in a bank. He is succeeded in the Norfolk bank by C. E. Burnam, formerly of Tilden.

A smooth-tongued stranger bilked Martinsburg and Newcastle people last week by the short-change fraud. A Newcastle man caught him on his attempted flight into South Dakota and made him square himself. Later an effort was made to locate and arrest him in Vermillion, where he had gone, but he could not be found.

A newspaper writer says that the world needs a religion today that will make a man's word as good as his note; that will make its possessor pay 100 cents on the dollar; sell sixteen ounces to the pound; thirty-six inches to the yard; four pecks to the bushel; 128 cubic feet to the cord; that will make a man do a full day's work for a full day's pay whether the eye of his employer is on him or not; that will make capital disgorge the lion's share of the profits and divide them equally and justly with the laborer, that will cause the manufacturer to cease adulterating his goods, the clerk from robbing his employers, the official man from embezzling the funds committed to his trust, that will make men upright, honest, pure, trustworthy through all their walks of life, that not only keeps a man happy but righteous.

Another important business deal has been completed the past week, by which the Manning and Merrill lumber yards pass into new hands. E. E. Robinson of Rippey, Iowa, in company with K. D. Merrill of this place succeed the old partnership or Rodney Manning and Geo. O. Merrill. Thus Carroll loses one good business man to gain another. Mr. Robinson has purchased the Guy Manning residence and will move his family to Carroll next week, while Rodney Manning leaves, shortly for no western Colorado to make a new home. He has already located interests in Route Co., Opa., and is enthusiastic over the prospects of that country. The town loses two of its best people when Mr. and Mrs. Manning leave but we all hope their best hopes may be realized in their new home. It is better than Nebraska in a good place to go.—Carroll Index.

Wayne citizens had a public meeting on Monday last week, at the instance of the village board whose members wished to have their official actions investigated. The impression had been created that the town attorney had been receiving a salary of $800 a year. It was satisfactorily explained that all amounts paid him in excess of the regular salary of $50 per year were used to defray expenses in occupation tax cases taken through the district and supreme courts. It was also brought out that the waterworks system was far behind in paying expenses and complaint made that people used more water than necessary by letting their hydrants run all night to prevent freezing. Among other things of public interest mentioned was that the mortgage on the auditorium falls due and may be foreclosed when it is known that liquor is sold or drunk in the building. The gathering was large and harmonious.

MEET IN NORFOLK

The Central Committee Calls Convention

TO NOMINATE CONGRESSMAN

May 17 is the Date Fixed, and Columbus the Place.—No Opposition to McCarthy.—Will be Nominated by Acclamation.—Committee Suggested and Informally Discussed Candidates for Delegates.

The congressional committee met in Norfolk Monday evening and voted to hold a convention in Columbus May 17, one day before the state convention. Columbus was the only aspirant for the honor.

Following is a part of the Norfolk Daily News' report of the meeting: "It was conceded by the committee that Congressman McCarthy would be renominated by acclamation.

"In regard to the position of delegates to the national republican convention at Chicago, for which several candidates have been mentioned, the committee discussed the prospects in an informal way. Frank Nelson of Nebraska was mentioned by George A. Brooks of Knox county. W. Williams of Albion was mentioned by committee members from that section and Mr. Piper of Bart county was brought forth by M. L. Rork of Tekamah. This was only done in an informal way, and nothing of a definite nature was attempted.

"The representation to the Columbus convention will be based upon the vote received by Mr. McCarthy two years ago. For every one hundred votes cast of major fraction thereof, one delegate will be allowed, and one at large. This will make over two hundred delegates in the convention. It will allow Madison county fifteen.

"The committee present were: G. N. Seymour, Elgin; R. F. Williams, St. Edwards; P. L. Rork, Tekamah; J. F. Jenal, Hartington; E. H. Phelps, Schuyler; J. C. Elliott, West Point; Sheriff Sides, Dakota City by proxy for J. J. Elmers, South Sioux City; Dr. O'Connell, Ponca; C. C. McNish, Fremont; George A. Brooks, Beale Mills; Burt Mapes, Norfolk; M. L. Rosster, Silyer Creek; J. A. Osborne, Genoa; Walter E. Muts, Plainview; Carl Kramer, Columbus, by proxy for H. O. Hanson; E. M. White, Stanton, by proxy for W. W. Young; K. A. Wilcox, Pender; W. H. McNeal, Wayne.

"Resolved that the discovery of America was of greater benefit to mankind than the invention of printing" was discussed and settled at a school house, a few miles from town, last Thursday evening.

The time for the battle drew near before a leading defender of the art preservative had been secured. Columbus smiled and shook hands with himself in a self-congratulatory manner, while Gutenberg became uneasy, anxious, wistful, disconsolate, still hoping, but nearing despair, in the throes of mental pain over the prospect of seeing the merits of his invention overshadowed from want of an efficient champion.

Later a foaming steed, hurried forward by a friend of printing, drew up at the Republican office and briefly explained the editor the frightful, impending fate that could be averted only by quick action. Editor Gibson stopped the press, wiped his perspiring brow, transferred the ink from his fingers to his apron, wrapped the office towel about him as the insignia of his station and sallied forth into the ambient darkness to valiantly defend the matchless merits and benefits of the printing art.

Columbus reduced the size of his smile and Gutenberg cheered up. The school house was reached in ample time and the daring and skill of our hero were adequately rewarded. Under his piercing, searching, forensic eye, the arguments of the opposing orators melted like dew before a July sun, and printing marched off triumphant.

DOCTORS FALL IN LINE

Practicing Physicians recognize the unflinching reliability of Doan's Kidney Pills by prescribing them for Backache, Kidney, Bladder, and Urinary Disorders—a tribute won by no other Proprietary Medicines. Four cases cited from "Notes of His Practice," by Dr. Le and Williamson, of Yorktown, Ark.

Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Yorktown, Ark., March 1, 1904.

Gentlemen:—I have been engaged in the practice of medicine in this section for ten years. This is a very sickly climate, on the Bayou Bartholomew, near the Arkansas River. It is particularly malarious and miasmatic; we meet with many and various abnormal conditions of the human family, prominent among the cases in which I have been called upon to prescribe is kidney disease. Many of these disorders manifest themselves by pains in the back, often extending to other parts of the body; sometimes headache is present, caused by uræmic or chronic acid poisoning; soreness in region of kidneys, cloudy, thickened and foul-smelling urine, discharges of pus or corruption; inflammation of the kidneys, extending to the bladder, is caused by excess of uric acid and decomposition of the urine. Hemorrhage is sometimes met with, caused by high state of inflammation or congestion.

There is no class of diseases a doctor is called oftener to treat than the variety of kidney diseases, in many of which the patient will have febrile or rigor, followed by fever, a result of the kidneys failing to eliminate the uric acid poison from the system. Such cases require the kidneys restored to their natural functions, then the poison and foreign substances are removed—shock to the nervous system averted, and nature's health restored.

I have, for some time, been using Doan's Kidney Pills in these many manifestations and with uniform success, curing most cases. I can further say that even in hopeless cases where they have waited too long, Doan's Kidney Pills afford much relief and prolong life. I can recommend the pills in conditions of excessive or deficient secretion of urine, as also in convalescence from swamp-fever and malarial attacks, as verified by the following cases in my practice.

- CASE 1.
THOMAS DIEHL, near Yorktown, Ark., age 40. Pain in back for several weeks, with chills, irregular sometimes, severe rigors followed by fever. After using purgative of calomel and opium, and Doan's Kidney Pills, after taking four boxes of the pills, patient up and enjoying good health for one of his age.
- CASE 2.
MRS. SMITH, Terry, Ark., age 20. Mother of four children. Had female complaint and kidney trouble, manifested by pain in back and urine irregular, sometimes very clear, changing to cloudy, and with much sediment on standing in chamber. Gave local treatment for female complaint and purchased Doan's Pills; after using six boxes she regards herself as cured.
- These are a few of the typical cases in which I have used Doan's Kidney Pills. In a great many instances I use them alone with curative results, while with some others indicated remedies are associated.
- I believe that by the judicious use of Doan's Pills many serious complications are arrested and many hopeless and incurable cases of Bright's disease prevented.
- I have often found that one box of the pills is all that is required to effect a cure, but in some cases I continue their use until all symptoms are entirely absent and the cure effectual and permanent.
- A free trial of this great Kidney and Bladder Specific can be obtained by addressing Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. The regular price is 50 cents per box. It is not for sale by your druggist or dealer. It will be sent by mail, charges prepaid, on receipt of price.

A LITTLE WHILE.
A little while—a week, a month, a day, or two, or a shadowed year.
Madly glad with love, dear love, or thought with tears;
And we shall learn the secret, find the way
To crown our hopes, or justify our fears;
For aye—for aye.

A little while, dear love, and you and I
Our wedding day will close—
Then will the spirit whisper where it goes,
His dwelling perished; bid the world
Good-by—
And vanish—as the perfume of the rose.
Or as a sigh.

A little while, a very little while!
The days—the days fly fast—
Then, portion of the sunlight or the blast,
How shall we know, with neither word
nor smile
To tell us, we have met again—and passed—
Unseen the while.

Oh, such a little while, sweetheart, have
We
To settle be and kind!
Ere we shall blend into the vagrant
wind,
Shall mingle with the never-sleeping sea—
Then, ever-seeking—shall we ever find?
I—you; you—me?

Across His Path

WELL, my lad, it's good to have you back once more.
"Thanks, Uncle Hervey; it's very kind of you to say so."
"Are you really better?"
"Sound as a drum! Never felt better in my life. There's nothing like New Zealand air, after all."
"So I should judge!" exclaimed Sir Hervey Ralston, a world of affection in his eye and voice, as he surveyed the sunburnt face before him.
"Talking of health, you don't look much unwell yourself, Uncle Hervey; which, under the circumstances, is not perhaps surprising."
Sir Hervey found his sunny smile infectious. "Perhaps not. You will be able to judge for yourself this evening. There is a function at Lady Wolverton's and, although I am sorry it occurs on the night of your return, I thought you would prefer to come."
Sighing his disappointment, Ralston rejoined: "By all means, Uncle Hervey. I would not have you change your plans on my account for the world. Besides which, I am eager to make the acquaintance of my future aunt."
Sir Hervey laughed. "I never looked at it in that light before. She is younger than you, my boy."
"And so are you in many ways," retorted Ralston stoutly. "You are a generation younger than most men of 45, Uncle Hervey. You know you are."
The deprecating, almost wistful, look called forth by his words was not lost upon the younger man, who hastened to aver: "I was desperately glad to hear you were well, and glad to see you were so good to die a luncheon. I shall kiss my heels with a light heart at your wedding, notwithstanding the back seat now in store for yours to command."
The laugh with which he ended was not a natural one, and his lip quivered under the fair mustache. The unyielding affection that between uncle and nephew was almost unique, was undivided no longer.

A drive of half an hour brought them to Sir Hervey's house.
"Hi!" observed Ralston, with a glance at the newly painted front. "Festive arrangements beginning early. Which is the happy day?"
"The 6th of April," replied Sir Hervey, leading the way into the house.
"And this is the 10th of February; it will be here in no time."
"I am glad you are back before April, lad. I begin to think Dunedin was to claim you as a permanent, and I want you as best man for the occasion."
High Ralston's eyes shone with pride. "I feel honored, Uncle Hervey. Any pretty bridesmaids to the fore?"
"You will probably meet one or two of them this evening. We have not much time to lose. You know your room."

Lady Wolverton's receptions were always well attended. In her position as queen of the society in which she moved she had been ably seconded by her daughter, Adelaide, whose engagement to Sir Hervey Ralston she viewed with unalloyed delight. His immense wealth was an undisputed fact, their own poverty being known only to mother and daughter. How much of the achievement of Sir Hervey's desire had been due to the maternal pressure brought to bear upon the girl was not realized by the latter herself, so subtle and ingenious had Lady Wolverton's tactics been.

"Now for the fray," murmured young Ralston as they mounted the staircase; "the usual crush is evidently in store."
They had entered the reception room and there, standing under the friendly light of a hanging lamp, Ralston saw the most beautiful girl he had ever in his life beheld.

"Ah!" exclaimed Sir Hervey, the blood coursing through his veins with a rapidly almost boyish. "Come, Hugh, and let me have the pleasure of presenting you; it is in one to which I have long looked forward."
Adelaide Wolverton had seen them and was ready with a gracious welcome for the nephew about whom she had heard so much.
"And this is Hugh?" she said. "You must not expect me to call you anything else, for your name has become a household word among us, has it not?" She turned to Sir Hervey, who met the shy, sweet glance with one of gratitude. That these two, whom he loved better than all the world besides, should be friends was his one desire—his dearest hope. He felt that he was filled as the evening wore on.
"Tell me," said Adelaide Wolverton, some two hours later, "that you do not look upon me as an interloper. I was desperately afraid of you before I saw you."

Ralston laughed. "And what did you fear in me?" he asked.
"I feared your jealousy," was the prompt reply. "For I knew how much you and Sir Hervey had been to each other. Jealous people are so unreasonable, are they not?"
"So I should imagine."
"Ah, the conditional mood! That is delightful. Then you do not bear me any ill will?"
Ralston looked at the upturned face and rejoined: "Ill will? How could I bear you anything but the very reverse?" With grandiloquence he tried to cover his embarrassment, but Adelaide Wolverton was not deceived. She knew, and knew also that Ralston was aware of her knowledge, that their meeting had proved no ordinary one. For love had awakened, a love that would never sleep again.

"I see," she said, slowly unfurling her fan, "your emotion is due merely to gratitude. Mr. Ralston, how long have you been away from England?"
The change of tone and subject was not lost upon Ralston. They had been treading on delicate ground, and, thankful for the deviation, he replied: "Two years this month, but it seems like four—I have seen and done so much in the time."
Turning to the girl beside him he noted the shade of bitterness that had crept over her face, and somehow as he looked he knew that she was not plying for Sir Hervey's well-to-do in his heart, for the baronet idolized his young betrothed.

Sir Hervey Ralston, honorable and clear-souled himself, incapable of subtlety or pretense, was never ready to imagine evil of any shape in others. And if during the weeks that followed it seemed to him that Adelaide grew more and more impressive, while a spirit of unrest had seized upon his nephew, he strove to see no manner of connection.

And what about Hugh?
At one and the same time had the gates of heaven and hell been opened to him, and he revealed in his bliss only to write in the agony involved. No words on the subject had he and Adelaide exchanged, thus far they had been loyal to Sir Hervey. But Hugh smiled bitterly as he acknowledged to himself the limitations of that loyalty. None knew better than he the subtlety of love's confessions.

On the evening of the last day in March he waited nervously for his uncle's approach to the smoking room, which had been the scene of many a confidential talk before his voyage to New Zealand. Sir Hervey's step seemed to have lost its lightness, or so it seemed to Hugh, as he listened to it drawing near. He was later, to be joining him than was his wont. Had any suspicion crossed his mind? Were his thoughts of next week's happiness unalloyed, or were they shadowed by a vague yet unmistakable cloud?
Hugh Ralston wondered, but said nothing as his uncle entered the room. The latter, with his usual precision and neatness, lit a cigar, seated himself, and was soon engrossed in the pages of the evening paper.

Thankful to escape the customary evening chat, Hugh paced monotonously up and down the room with temples throbbing and the blood surging through his veins. How could he broach the subject that to-night must be faced once and for all?
"My dear boy," said Sir Hervey at length, glancing over the top of his paper, "could you not sit down? You seem restless to-night."
Hugh dropped into the nearest chair. Silence reigned for full five minutes, a silence that Ralston broke by saying, with the composure born of despair, "I cannot stand England after all, Uncle Hervey. I am off again next Saturday. You can do without me on the 6th, can you not?" He laughed a little curiously as he added, "I am hardly a necessary part of the play."
Sir Hervey folded his newspaper, laid it on the table, and deliberately started before gazing before looking in his nephew's direction. "Do I understand you right? You prefer not to be with me on the day of my marriage?"
Hugh Ralston bowed his head.
Sir Hervey rose from his chair and instinctively the younger man did the same, a movement that brought them face to face as the words, "You dare not be with me!" broke from the baronet's lips.

The eyes of the two men met, and the soul of each was read. Then as Hugh leaned on the mantelpiece, burying his face on his arms with a groan, it was the elder man who proved the stronger, who first brought light into the darkness that had descended.
Hugh was conscious at last of the pressure of a hand upon his shoulder, and as through a vast space and time he heard the voice of Sir Hervey saying, "It is well, my boy. I am not worthy of her, any more than you are; but—have I made her happy? You must not blame yourself, far from it. I am going now to Lady Wolverton's and—will—release her." The last were words from lips that were growing pale. Sir Hervey walked slowly to the door. Hugh had never moved.
Turning round, as his fingers closed over the handle, the uncle said imploringly, "Don't, my lad! Don't take it so to heart! I shall get over it, and you—you will be happy, as you deserve to be." Baltimore Sun.

"Can you not believe," said the earnest exhorter, "that every hair in your head is numbered, my dear friend?"
"Yes!" replied the exhorter, removing his hat and turning his head over a shining pate, "it can't, it could almost do it myself." Cincinnati Times-Star.

A COMRADE OF GENERAL GRANT
Says: "I Do Not Believe Pe-ru-na Has a Superior for Catarrh."

BENJAMIN F. HAWKES
Benjamin F. Hawkes, of Washington, D. C., is One of the Three Living Comrades of General Grant in His Cadet Days at West Point.

In a recent letter from 611 G st., S. W., Washington, D. C., this venerable gentleman says of Peruna: "I had tried Peruna after having tried in vain other remedies for catarrh, and I cannot without reservation that I never felt a symptom of relief until I had given Peruna the simple trial that its advocates advise. I do not believe it has a superior, either as a remedy for catarrh or as a tonic for the depressed and exhausted condition which is one of the effects of the disease."
—Benjamin F. Hawkes.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 114 years. In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says: "Peruna exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation."

Billion Dollar Grass.
When we introduced this remarkable grass three years ago, little did we dream it would be the most talked of grass in America, the biggest, quickest, best grower on earth, but this has come to pass. Agr. Editors wrote about it, Agr. College Professors lectured about it, Agr. Institute Orators talked about it, while in the farm home by the quiet roadside, in the corner grocery, in the village post office, at the country, at the depot, in fact wherever farmers gathered, Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass, that wonderful grass, good for $5 to 10 tons per acre, and lots of pasture besides, is always a theme worthy of the farmer's voice.

Then comes the question, than which there is no better grass or better permanent hay producer on earth. Grows wherever soil is found. Then the farmer talks about Salzer's Billion Dollar Grass, that wonderful grass, good for $5 to 10 tons per acre, rich in nutrition and readily eaten by cattle, hogs, etc., and is good for 80 tons of green food per acre.

Victoria, British Columbia, which can be grown at 25c a ton, and Speltz at 20c a bushel, both great food for cattle, also come in their third, but this is not the end. JUST SEND THIS NOTICE AND 10c IN STAMPS to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., and we will send you a catalogue and lots of farm seed samples free. (C. N. U.)

Alpine flowers and plants are so quickly becoming scarce that strong measures are to be taken in the future for their preservation.

Peruna is a Catarrhal Tonic Especially Adapted to the Declining Powers of Old Age.

In old age the mucous membranes become thickened and partly lose their function. This leads to partial loss of hearing, smell and taste, as well as digestive disturbances. Peruna corrects all this by its specific action on all the mucous membranes of the body.

The bottle will convince anyone. Once used and Peruna becomes a lifelong friend. Mr. E. Little, of Yorktown, Pa., writes: "I can recommend Peruna as a good medicine for chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels. I have been troubled with it for some time. Now my cough is all gone, and all the distressing symptoms of catarrh of the stomach and bowels have disappeared. I will recommend it to all my friends. I am a well advanced contemplating a trip to Yellowstone Park this coming season. How is that for 70 years old?"

Mr. E. Little writes: "I am only too thankful for your kind advice and for the good health that I am enjoying today from the use of your Peruna. I have been out to the Yellowstone National Park and many other places of the West, and shall always thank you for your generosity."—Mrs. P. E. Little.

Strong and Vigorous at the Age of Eighty-eight.

Rev. J. N. Parker, Union, N. Y., writes: "In June, 1891, I lost my hearing. My hearing had been somewhat impaired for several years, but not so much affected that I could not converse with my friends. In June, 1891, my sense of hearing left me so that I could hear no sound whatever. I was also troubled with severe rheumatism in my limbs. I commenced taking Peruna and now my hearing is restored as good as it was prior to June, 1891. My rheumatic pains are all gone. I can now do anything for almost ten months. In December, 1890, I saw one of your books about your remedies. Then I wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice, and he wrote me. I have followed the use of Peruna, and how to take care of my hearing. I did not lose one day last winter that I could not tend to my stock. I am sixty-three years old, and I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, do not stop. Dr. Hartman will give you a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

Peruna is Used in the Family for Croup, Whooping Cough, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, and all the ailments of the throat and lungs.

Mrs. E. West, 137 Main street, Menasha, Wis., writes: "We have used Peruna in our family for a number of years and when I say that it is a fine medicine for catarrh and colds, I know what I am talking about. I have taken it every spring and fall for four years and I find that it keeps me robust, strong, with a splendid appetite, and free from any illness. A few years ago it cured me of catarrh of the stomach, which the doctors had pronounced incurable. I am very much pleased with Peruna. I am 87 years old."—Mrs. E. West.

ALABASTINE
The Only Sanitary and Permanent Wall Coating

ALABASTINE is not a glass-painting, hot water glue wall finish, furnishing a lodgment and harbor-ground for disease germs; it is a natural, rock-base composition, in white and many exquisite beautiful tinted forms, ready for use by simply mixing with cold water. Anyone can brush it on.

ALABASTINE cements to walls, discolored surfaces, cracks and never rubs off or scales. Other wall coatings, under painful names, and usually mixed with hot water, are unwholesome, stink on the wall with glue, which soon rots, nourishes germs of deadly disease, rubs off, scales, spalling walls, clothing and furniture. When it is necessary to refinish, the old coats must be scraped off—an expensive, messy, disagreeable job, making the rooms damp and unfit to live in.

When walls are once coated with Alabastine, succeeding coats may be applied, year after year, without washing the walls, thus saving great expense and annoyance.

Hot and Cold Water Kalsomines Have No Merit
Some dealers try to sell them, buying them cheap, and trying to sell on Alabastine's demand until such time as their customers learn of the imposition.

THEY ARE WORTHLESS PREPARATIONS
If you cannot buy Alabastine of your hardware, paint or drug dealer, refuse all imitations, and write us. We will tell you where you can get Alabastine without delay, or sell it to you direct. $5.00 GIVEN AWAY. Write for particulars.

PROVERBS

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites specially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Fort und fort berichtet der Telegraph von neuen siegenden Unternehmungen des zährigen Japaner-volkes gegen Rußland und wenn das so fort geht, wird das mächtige Japanreich einen recht schmerzlichen Stand haben seine Positionen im China zu halten. Dazu kommen Berichte davon wie England die Gelegenheit wahr nimmt da aggressive vorzugehen, wo Rußland schon seine Interessen seit Jahren vertrat. Es soll J. B. schon eine Expedition in das noch bis jetzt unabhängige Tibet gemacht haben. Und ob es nicht auch in das von Rußland bisher mit Argus Augen bewachte Afghanistan und Persien mit der Zeit einbringen wird, um seine Souveränität über dieselben geltend zu machen hängt nur von dem Fortgang und der Congruenztätigkeit des Russisch-Japaner Krieges ab. Da heißt's denn auch: Im Zeilen liegt die Zukunft zu liegen. Und während jene beiden Mächte Armeen führen, schnappt das isolierte politische Brittanien die besten Waffen vom Weltmarkt hinweg. Und während die Engländer und die Russen sich über die Persien und die Afghanistan streiten, schaut England die gut organisierten und gut bewaffneten, über die Welt zu ziehenden Armeen in die Augen.
