Too Much Water at Fremont—New Proprietor of Pender Republic Outlines Solid Business Policy—Telephone Building at Wakefield—New Rural Routes Established—Wakefield Banker Goes to Europe.

There is prospect of a fifth mail route out of Randolph that will accommodate 115 residences.

One hundred commercial travelers met in Norfolk Saturday and organized a Roosevelt club.

Five Laurel families left last week for the Pacific coast and expect to find homes in Oregon.

Two rural mail routes out of Bloomfield will be established April 1. They will serve a population of 915.

R. R. Lane, a blacksmith at Laurel, has invented a device for shoeing fractious horses, and has applied for a patent.

Ex-Sheriff John F. Sides, of Dakota City has been appointed deputy United States marshal, his duties beginning April 1.

A preacher proclaims that Omaha is the wickedest city in the land. It is probably the only city he knows anything about.

Mr. Fink is preparing to move his general store from Laurel to Dixon where he expects to enlarge it to a $12,000 stock.

Five Iowa bankers have suicided lately because of financial difficulties. It isn't as much fun to run a bank as some people imagine.

It is announced that the proposed electric railroad from Omaha to Sioux City, via Decatur, shows bright prospects of materializing this year.

John D. Haskell, banker at Wakefield, departed on Tuesday of last week for a tour of Europe, accompanied by his wife and daughter. They will be absent several months.

Somebody secretly used the town hose at Bloomfield recently, left it full of water and it froze solid. Thus the town would have been in an unfortunate predicament if a fire had broken out.

Ponca business men got together last Thursday evening to organize for the advancement of commercial interests. The town has aroused to the needs of a commercial club, which every progressive place ought to have.

Mack Spuhr, who slashed a negro's throat at Norfolk and nearly killed him over a year ago, and who was sent to the penitentiary to serve two years and a half, has just been let out on parole by Governor Mickey.

The three prisoners accused of the Lyons bank robbery have been held to answer in the district court with bonds fixed at $2,000, which they could not furnish. It is expected that they will be tried at a special session of court on the 28th inst.

The Hartington Herald editor announces that he was forced on an occasion last week to perform the painful duty of ejecting the mayor from the printing office on account of his use of language offensive to the sacred precincts of the sanatorium.

Ice formed a gorge in the Platte river at Fremont and caused a flood which did a great deal of damage. Railroad tracks were under water and trains delayed. One of the most serious losses was the drowning of 1600 sheep belonging to Nick Schreiner. They were valued at $8,000.

The remaining fragment of the populist party in Dixon county, met at Martinsburg recently and organized what will be known as the Old Guard. Warner Starr, rather of populism and who has radiated populism here and stood by the party's guns through all kinds of weather, was elected president. The Old Guard is opposed to fusion.

The new telephone line is now in running order, there being about 32 phones connected up and more are being connected as fast as expert workmen can do the work. Will Johnson, of Wayne, brother of Mrs. N. N. Sackerson, of this place, took the train here Wednesday morning for Omaha where he will remain during the spring.—Wakefield Republican.

This afternoon about 1:30, sparks from a passing Great Northern engine fired the dry grass near the east line of the mill land and rapidly spread to the cemetery and across to within a short distance of John Roger's farm buildings. About 20 men from town drove to the fire and beat it out with shovels and clubs. Considerable damage is done to the cemetery trees.—Randolph Times.

The following business policy, announced by C. W. Hubbard, an assuring control of the Pender Republic, is the only solid and sensible course and should be the rule of every publisher: "We expect to run the paper on a cash basis. We will pay cash for everything we buy and expect to receive cash for goods and services rendered. We do not want farmers to offer to pay their subscriptions in 'garden truck.' Most merchants to ask us to take out advertising accounts in trade. No paper can prosper on such a basis and a paper that does not prosper is a detriment to

New houses and barns are being finished; a two of Mrs. J. G. Morrison's farms is this county.

It is reported that a number of Windside parties suffered in the fall of the wheat market last week.

Sixty of the 100 books for the public library have arrived and the balance are expected the last of this week.

The supper given by the Catholic ladies last Thursday evening was largely attended, netting them about $56.

O. D. Franks has sold his saloon business to A. D. Stodden, of Council Bluffs, possession to be given May 1. Mr. Franks reports that he has not decided as yet what he will do or whether he will remain here or locate elsewhere.

The new mercantile firm of Sells & Young, who arrived from Atlantic, Iowa, the latter part of last week, will soon be ready for business. They have been busy this week receiving and placing their stock in the building recently vacated by Wilson Bros.

The new firm of Eli Bonawitz & Son, who bought the livery stable of Richards Bros.; about a month ago, took possession of the property last Thursday afternoon. G. W. Richards, who has retired from the business, expects to leave about May 1 with his family for Washington to look up a location.

The matrimonial market, unusually dull since the first of the year, is picking up and promises to be lively from now on. Judge Hunter informs the HERALD that he issued fewer licenses during January and February than during any similar period in the history of his official experience.

Little Mrs. Tom Thumb, her little husband and her husband's little brother, assisted by an exceptionally skillful magician, gave very interesting entertainments here Friday evening, Saturday afternoon and evening. Good sized audiences attended and were well pleased. As the HERALD learns, the company dissolved here and the three little folks went to Boston to accept new engagements.

Prof. M. R. Snodgrass, president of the Northeast Nebraska Teachers' association, has issued a circular reminding members of the annual meeting to be held in Columbus March 30 and 31 and April 1. All teachers are urged to attend and are assured a pleasant and profitable time. The two principal addresses will be given by State Superintendent Stetson of Maine, and Frank R. Robertson, the noted traveler and lecturer.

Dr. G. Neiman was pleasantly surprised last Thursday evening by a gathering of friends at his residence in honor of his birthday anniversary. With games, sociability and refreshments, the occasion was made enjoyable for all. Names of guests: Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cherry, Rev. and Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Loy, Judge and Mrs. E. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Craven, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill.

Henry Stumpf had one of the most successful auction sales of the season last Monday. He had some first-class stock and accordingly prices soared high. One good mare sold for $175.50 and her colt brought something over $90. Auctioneer Cunningham says Mr. Stumpf's sale is the last one on the string for the season and probably there will be few if any more. Mr. Stumpf and wife expect to leave at once for the Big Bend country in Washington, where they have some land. They don't figure on locating there permanently and may return here at the end of a year.

A large party of ladies assembled on invitation of Mrs. James Britton and Mrs. A. N. Matheny at the former's home Friday evening and enjoyed progressive cards until a late hour. After the games, delicious ice cream and cake were served. The following ladies were present: Mesdames Armstrong, Hresler, Clark, Corbit, Cunningham, Franks, Frith, Huse, Hammond, John Harrington, Henry Jones, Woodward Jones, Kate Kohl, Ledson, Lane, Ley, Neely, Northrup, Fortfield, Parker, Perry, Raymond, Strahan, Sken, Shultheis, Swan, Theobald, Thomas, Williams, Wilson.

People are improving the quality of their live stock—a step demanded by the advance in real estate values. Farmers cannot longer afford to raise common breeds on high-priced lands, and it is especially undesirable and unnecessary to do so when it is realized that the same care and expense required for a scrub animal will raise one of several times its value in some purebred variety. The Nebraska farmer changes and advances with the times and has been quick to respond to the need of a higher grade of live stock, and Wayne county is one of the foremost in the state in that respect. For several years farmers here have been systematically ridding their farms of common varieties and replacing them with pure blood.

A Story of an American Girl.

BY MATTIE DYER BRITTS.

"Thank you, Squire! Thank you a thousand times! Words will not express what I feel at this moment. Have I really your permission to address Miss Marcia?"

"Yes, Louis; if she consents, I shall not object. If I were not already convinced of your worth, Louis, I would never give my consent, as you well know," said Squire Douglas, gravely.

"Sit down, my boy; there are yet one or two minor matters to speak of. I am on the down-hill side of life now—I have not a great ways farther to journey, at the longest. I have buried the wife of my youth and two fair daughters—all I have loved, except my Marcia." She is the darling of my old age, Louis.

"I can well believe that, sir," said Louis, in tones of tender respect.

"Then, my boy, if I give her to you, you must promise that she shall live here, until I go hence, at least. Of course I should expect a hearty visit to your own estate, but this house is big enough for a home for all of us. Will you agree to that?"

Now, if Squire Douglas had only known it, he was removing the last stumbling block from Mr. Le Dru's path. There were reasons, however, for his credit, which made Louis quite ready to avoid taking a bride to South Carolina, at least for the present. It was, therefore, with unfeigned heartiness that he answered promptly:

"I agree with all my heart, Squire! I could hardly but think of separating so happy a family. My affairs can easily remain as they are at present, in the hands of a trusty agent. I should, for my own sake, prefer a home here, among the society so dear and pleasant to me. I have neither father nor mother, no brothers—no family ties, as Marcia has."

"Yes, yes; you have the very same, Louis. Her family is yours, from today," interrupted the kind old Squire.

"Louis, my son, I give you my full consent. And may heaven deal with you as you shall deal with my darling daughter."

Louis Le Dru bowed his head and extended his hand to clasp the one which the noble old gentleman held out to him. But with all his hardness he dared not say "Amen" to those solemn words from the loving father's heart.

CHAPTER XI.

Vance and Marcia, leaving their young friends in Frankfurt, rode joyfully home alone together since Mr. Le Dru's arrival. It was a happy time that they were so very sorry when the familiar gateway came into view. Marcia hurried up to her own room to take off her hat and habit before dinner.

"What dress shall I bring, Miss Marcia?" asked Hoss, who was waiting, as usual.

"Bring my pink tulle," said Marcia. Something, she could hardly tell what, prompted her to wear the dress she had worn when she last rode with her cousin—the elegant day of Mr. Le Dru's arrival.

She put it on now, and fastened some sprigs of sweet fern at belt and bosom. She was rewarded when she met Vance in the hall, on her way downstairs. He stopped, and a smile gazed to see it his fine face, as he said warmly:

"My dear little girl, you look more like your own dear self than I've seen you look in many a day."

"Why, haven't I been like myself lately?" asked Marcia, hastily.

"Not altogether," answered Vance. He put his two hands on her shoulder, and tenderly clasped her in a kindly, but keenly, into her face. "My dear little sister, is there nothing troubling you? Are you quite happy?" he asked tenderly.

Marcia faltered for an instant, but the thought, "Florence" flew into her brain—she calmly herself, and, raising her eyes to meet his, she answered:

"To be sure, Vance! Why shouldn't I be happy?"

"I don't know, Marcia; but sometimes, of late, I have fancied you were not. He suddenly drew her into his strong, kindly, friendly clasp, laid his cheek down on her bright head, and said, as if in solemn benediction, "Heaven bless you, my dear little sister, and keep her life bright forever."

Then he released her, and neither of them dreamed how beautiful that earnest benediction was at that moment, or how near the cloud was, even now, hovering over her fair, young head.

Vance went on to the parlor, but Marcia turned and fled back to her room—she must struggle for composure before she could present herself downstairs.

"What had Vance seen? How much did he guess? Oh, she must guard her secret better than that. So well that no one could guess she had one. How kind he was; how good! Oh, how could she bear life knowing that she had loved Vance, Florence! How the name rung in her ears. Yet Florent was a noble girl, worthy even of Vance.

A tap at her door startled her, and Miss Madeline, in her hall, "Marcia, you are dressed, your papa wants you in the library."

"Yes, aunt, I'm dressed; I'll come directly," answered Marcia, rising and smothering the last shadow from her fair brow before she went to meet her aunt. A summons from him was nothing unusual, so she did not expect any startling disclosure. But one glance at his face as she entered the library told her that something more than common had happened.

"What do you want, papa?" she asked, seating herself on a hassock beside his chair, clasping her limpled hands over his knee. "Are you well to-day? You look very sober, I think."

"Quite well, darling, and happy," replied the good old Squire, fondly stroking her brown hair. "Well and happy, and anxious to see my little girl happy, too!" She felt as though something very important was about to be said. She sat silent, leaning her head against the arm of her father's chair, waiting for him to speak again. Presently he asked:

"Is my little bird tired of the old home-place?"

"No, papa, no, indeed," replied Marcia, brightly. "Why should I be?"

"You'll love change, daughter?"

"Not for one, papa. No doubt there are grander places, finer sights in the world, but I do not long for them. I never want to leave my dear old home-ning any more, papa. I love you are not thinking of sending me away?"

"No, darling, I shall not send you away. While I live, I could hardly consent to let you go to some far-off place."

CHAPTER XII.

Squire Douglas could not have the engagement for a seat. He arranged it to Miss Madeline and Vance at the supper table, and as Aunt Nerve and Rosa were both in waiting, of course the news flew to the kitchen.

Vance was half-startled by the news of the engagement. Something of the kind he expected, but not quite so soon, and no one dreamed how the blow struck him.

He saw his dreams fulfilled. He knew that Le Dru was utterly unworthy, and that Miss Madeline there, now yawned a terrible gulf which would swallow all the happiness of her young life. If she were allowed to plunge into it.

But what could he do? Denounce Le Dru to his uncle? No, common sense would not permit that. He had no one to offer. And he could not help her. Only to one friend—to Florence. He remembered her promise now. He did not fear to trust her, he would go to her, and tell her all. She might suggest some way to serve him, and if nothing more, she could comfort him a little with kind words. As he passed through the hall going out, Marcia came downstairs.

"Where away, truant?" she asked, smiling.

"Yes, far away, over to London's a little while," answered Vance.

But the smile faded from Marcia's face. She knew he was going to see Florence. But Florence did not expect him, that evening. And as soon as she saw him in the parlor, she felt sure that his call was connected with the promise she had lately given him.

"Vance, you look so sober, I am sure you must have had news for me," she said, when they had exchanged greetings.

"I have news, certainly," said Vance. "Good or bad, as you may consider it. My cousin Marcia is engaged to Louis Le Dru."

There was a dead silence for a few moments. Florence was too utterly astonished and startled to speak. Vance said presently, "I wonder if you think that good news?"

"No, indeed, Vance. I'm afraid that I cannot give you a tangible reason, but I don't like him. Do you?"

"No, certainly! But I can give a reason—he is a bad man, Florence."

"Yes, I feel that he is, Vance."

"And I know it! But I don't know how to prove it. Oh, Florence, if I only could!" Vance bowed his face upon his hands, in deep distress.

Florence was touched by his grief. She came over and sat down beside him, laying her hand upon his shoulder, said, kindly:

"Don't give up, Vance. Perhaps it can be proved. I will help you all I can."

"Florence, dear sister, I know you will. That is why I came to you."

"Yes, Vance, tell me," and trust me you would your own sister."

"I do trust you fully, Florence, and I feel that you can help me, if any one can. And, oh, Florence, I must do something! There must be some way to save Marcia from a life of misery, and this, as well as her life, depends upon finding it."

After a moment's thought, Florence said: "Did you not tell me once that you were in college? I suppose you knew something of his history here?"

"Yes, to a degree."

"Was it to his credit, or was he what is usually termed a fast young man?"

Vance hesitated an instant, then said: "Florence, if I speak to you at all on this subject, it will have to be very plainly. Do you give me your word?"

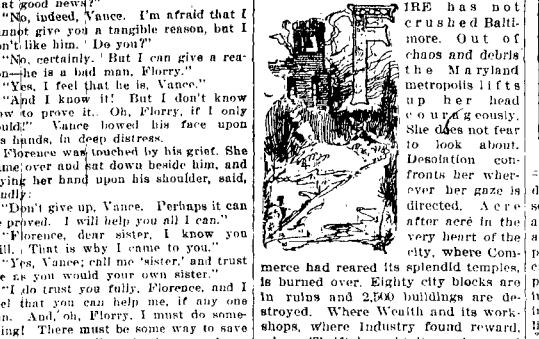

"Certainly! Speak just as you would to your own sister, Vance."

THE SCOURGED CITY.

BALTIMORE A MODERN AMERICAN MUNICIPALITY.

Famous as a Shipping Railroad and Manufacturing Center—Fire Hazards, Noted Buildings and Institutions—Conspicuously Faces the Future.

RUINS OF THE GREAT EQUITABLE BUILDING.

IRE has not crushed Baltimore. Out of chaos and debris the Maryland metropolis lifts up her head like a phoenix. Desolation confronts her wherever her gaze is directed. A city after a city in the very heart of the city, where Commerce had reared its splendid temples, is burned over. Eighty city blocks are in ruins and 2,000 buildings are destroyed. Where Wealth and its work-shops, where Industry found reward, where Thrift brought its savings and Plenty reared its structures of stone, brick and steel, where the great engines of Finance maintained an activity which sent life and power through the commercial arteries of the town—there is a scene that the man of sober mind dreads to look upon.

Only once before has there been presented on the American continent a scene so expressive of the horror, the consuming power of flame; that was when Chicago fell under the fiery blast in 1871. Then there were no relics of the disaster like those which Baltimore contains. Building had not yet become an art in the metropolis of the West and the structures which the flames attacked were burned to the ground. Here it is different. All through the burned district the massive skeletons of architectural giants remain. Hundreds of ugly-looking frames of steel, with blackened bricks clinging to them, make a forbidding sight. After the progress of the fire had been checked these looked like great coke ovens, with tongues of flame leaping from them. The walls had the color of coke. For days there after clouds of smoke hung over them. At the same time tangled masses of wire crossed and recrossed the streets. These the wind blew hither and thither, just as it did the sheets of tin and huge timbers while the flames

VIEW ON LOMBARD STREET, BALTIMORE.

Electric Snaps and Thunder Worse Than the Roar of a Battle.

If you have never seen a mountain thunderstorm at an elevation of 7,000 feet or more, you have missed an experience that will add glory to your head. Here is the story of a storm among nature's massive sentinels upon whom it left a lasting impression:

"To be a thunderstorm back East held no special terrors, and frequently I have been out in such a demonstration without feeling any special nervousness."

"Up here on the Rocky Mountain things are different, and I confess now to live in an awful abject terror of a thunderstorm, especially at night in my tent. I suffer this terror notwithstanding the fact that so far the storm have in every instance except one given around or beneath the tent, and over ranging clouds to wet the ground. But it is the 'going around and beneath' that gets into my nerves. In the first place, imagine what it is to be one and a half miles nearer a rip-roaring thunderstorm than one is 'back home.' There you have occasional flashes of lightning; here it is a continuous, dazzling, awe-inspiring performance. The lightning strikes, too, for it is no uncommon thing during a storm to hear the rocks splintering and cracking when one especially vigorous bolt has landed."

"Add to this nerve-racking exhibit the most awful detonations of thunder that you can imagine, and a 'straight-blown' wind that sometimes makes the flags of your tent play a ragtime melody, and you have some idea of a mountain thunderstorm. The thunder is worse than the sound of a mighty battle. It hangs up against the mountainside and reverberates and rolls off into one ear-splitting concussion after another, until you, lying quaking in your tent, fully believe that the next 'boom' will split mountain and valley in twain and land you in China or some other remote spot."

"I lay one night and with chattering teeth, spouted five distinct thunderstorms come up to the edge of the tent on which my tent stands." (Philadelphia Press.)

were sweeping the town. Crumbling walls still swayed in the breeze, endangering the lives of those who ventured too near. By day the scene was one of chaos. At night it was weird.

Baltimore has come to shudder. The loss approximates $150,000,000, of which 50 per cent is covered by insurance. The loss sustained by the cessation of business will add much more. There are 50,000 persons out of work. It is a blow such as none but American fortitude could endure.

Yet Baltimore courageously fronts the future. She foresees a new era. She is planning for a new city to be built on the ruins of the old, and it is expected that the new city will be wider, streets, better sanitary conditions and improved fire protection. Out of the ashes of the old will come forth a new Baltimore, more splendid than that whose sufferings aroused the world's sympathy.

The Stricken City.

The stricken city is one of the most picturesque municipalities in the United States. It has many claims for distinction other than its vast commercial interests, whose various manifestations extend all over the world. It is famous for its ornamental streets, magnificent buildings, noted institutions of learning, handsome monuments, and as the seat of the Catholic hierarchy in the western hemisphere. It is known as the "Monumental City" from its public shafts that grace several of its principal streets and squares. The most notable are the Washington monument, the streets are broad and level, the main thoroughfares being magnificent avenues. They are mostly laid out at right angles to one another and generally have a width of sixty feet. The rest

BIRDS BIG APPETITES.

If a man could eat as much in proportion to his size as a sparrow is able to consume he would need a whole sheep for dinner, a couple of dozen fowls for breakfast, and six turkeys for his evening meal. A tree-sparrow has been known to eat 700 grass seeds in a day. Birds can do work far harder than human beings. A pair of house-martins when nesting will feed their young on an average one in twenty seconds—that is, each bird, male and female, makes ninety journeys to and fro in an hour, or perhaps 1,000 a day. It must be remembered that on each journey the bird has the added work of catching an insect. Even so busy a bird as the wren has been counted to make 110 trips to and from its nest within 430 minutes, and the prey it carried home consisted of insects much larger and heavier than were caught by swallows.

A Physician's Advice.

Yorktown, Ark., April 7th.—Dodd's Kidney Pills must not be confounded with the ordinary patent medicine. They are a new discovery, a specific for all diseases of the Kidneys and have been accepted by physicians only after careful tests in extreme cases. Mr. Leonard Williamson, of this place, writes endorsing Dodd's Kidney Pills "as a remedy for the various forms of the diseases of the Kidneys, pains in the back, soreness in the region of the Kidneys, foul-smelling urine and cloudy or thickened conditions of the urine, discharges of pus, catarrh of the bladder, inflammation and congestion of the Kidneys and all kinds of complaints." Continuing he says: "I could mention many cases in which I have prescribed Dodd's Kidney Pills with success. For instance, Mr. Robert Weeks, a farmer, had a laminitis or swamp fever three times, kidneys weakened, continual pain and soreness in back, which made him very nervous, had a little fever and sometimes chills. Urine changeable, but generally strong, high-colored, an acid chronic case who had tried many medicines with little effect. After taking Dodd's Kidney Pills about six weeks he was entirely cured and had gained fifteen pounds in weight. The last time I saw him he was the picture of perfect manhood."

Kornell's Mistake.

The late John Kornell, the Irish comedian known in his prime to go back to Ireland whence he would often bring material gathered in alleys and on the highroads, that after wards served him well in dialogue upon the stage—once said at a little supper party in Boston that he had met on a street a little fellow, a fisherman, driving a horse so that it staggered as it walked.

"Why don't you put more flesh on that man?" Kornell exclaimed indignantly.

"More is it?" the fisherman answered. "Why, by the powers, don't you see that the poor creature can hardly carry what little there is on him now?"

Indirect Answers.

Vancees are said to answer one question by another. Turks meet questions by other sort of evasion, quite as intricate as that of Vance. One day during a journey through Asia Minor he met a shepherd driving his flock.

I asked how many goats he possessed.

His reply was, "As many as passed by you."

"But," said I, "I did not count them. How many are there?"

"The same number I took with me to the mountains."

"But how many did you take to the mountains?"

"As many as I had."

It was useless to inquire any further. Tassing a caravan of laden camels I asked one of the drivers whence he came.

"From that side," was the answer, pointing with his finger in the direction.

"But from what town?"

"The town is there," pointing again.

"But the name of the town?"

"It was toward Smyrna."

And so the colloquy ended.

ON A RANCH.

Woman Found the Food That Fitted Her.

A newspaper woman went out to a Colorado ranch to rest and recuperate and her experience with the food problem is worth recounting.

"The woman at the ranch was pre-eminently the worst housekeeper I have ever known—poor soul, and poor man."

"I simply had to have food good and plenty of it, for I had broken down from overwork, and was so weak, I could not sit up over one hour at a time. I knew I could not get well unless I had good food. I could easily digest that and would supply the greatest amount of nourishment."

"One day I obtained permission to go through the pantry and see what I could find. Among other things I came across a package of Grape-Nuts which I had heard of but never tried. I read the description on the tin, and it became deeply interested, so then and there I got a saucer and some cream and tried the famous food."

"It tasted delicious to me and seemed to freshen and strengthen me greatly, so I stipulated that Grape-Nuts and cream be provided each day instead of other food and I literally lived on Grape-Nuts and cream for two or three months."

"I had never before seen how fast it would fill me up and how pleased and surprised you. I am now perfectly well and strong again and know exactly how I got well and that was on Grape-Nuts that furnished me a powerful food. I could digest and make use of it."

"It seems to me no brain worker can afford to overlook Grape-Nuts after my experience. I have heard of it for years. But I had not the chance to get the genuine Grape-Nuts until I went to the ranch."

REBUILT ON PAVETT STREET, BALTIMORE.

Under the supervision of the Jesuits, and the Seminary of St. Sulpice, are flourishing Catholic institutions, while the University of Maryland occupies a conspicuous position in educational circles. In 1873 Emory Pratt, a successful merchant of Baltimore, established a free circulating library which now comprises a handsome central building and four branches, scattered through the town. Several other valuable libraries are to be found in the city. The Catholic cathedral and the residence of Cardinal Gibbons are objects of interest to the visitor. Among its superb public buildings is the City Hall, which is built of white marble at a cost of $3,000,000. It occupies an entire square. The white marble brick and granite used in the construction of a large number of the buildings come from quarries and quarries adjacent to the city. The water supply of Baltimore was first taken from Jones' Falls, about seven miles above the city, but in 1881 a further supply was brought seven miles through a twelve-foot tunnel from Campover River, entailing an expense of $3,000,000. The aqueducts leading from the storage reservoirs have a capacity for delivering 200,000,000 gallons daily. Baltimore is a great railroad center and has great freight and passenger stations. Many public squares and parks dot the city, one of them the Lombard Hill, containing 700 acres.

Japanese Brains.

The Japanese have attracted so much attention and admiration by their remarkable progress in the physical and moral as well as in the intellectual, as well as by their native genius in art, that the results of an investigation of the brain weight of the Japanese people as compared with Europeans must interest everybody. For ten years Professor Dagny of Tokyo University has been studying the brains of his fellow countrymen. He shows that with adults the brain weight compares favorably with that of Europeans of similar stature, and may even be slightly superior. There is one striking difference, however, in the fact that the Japanese brain grows more slowly during infancy and early youth than is the case with Europeans. In Japan, as everywhere else, there is found a positive relation between brain weight and stature; that is the larger brains, generally speaking, go with the larger bodies.

Rent Paid in Peppercorns.

A pepper mill is a piece of silver not often seen on tables nowadays. English housekeepers, however, still use the pepper mill, and American silversmiths sometimes keep it to meet the demands of old-fashioned families who prefer to grind their own pepper rather than risk the chances of adulteration. The pepper mill dates back to the time when pepper was a scarce commodity and was always ground at the table from the peppercorns. Pepper was so valuable in those days that rents were often paid in peppercorns, and the high prices they brought were among the incentives that induced explorers to brave the dangers of the unknown deep. If a short passage could be discovered to the Indies, it was agreed by all that a wealth of pepper could be easily brought to Europe.

Zebra is Easily Tamed.

Among the advantages promised to the people of South Africa by the British government is the utilization as a domestic animal of the zebra, which is indigenous to that region. An attempt is to be made to domesticate the zebra for use in the recently acquired possessions. It is proposed to catch large numbers of wild zebras and allow them to breed in captivity, training the young as draught animals. No attempt apparently will be made to tame and train the captured animals themselves, although this has often been accomplished with selected individuals.

The zebra proper is very difficult to tame, but allied varieties, such as the South African quana, are more easily domesticated. At the Cape twenty years since these were often seen working with draught horses.

We are always wondering that some one has not compiled statistics showing that the preponderance of divorce cases is reported from boarding houses.

We have noticed that after the wool wears off a tennis flannel gown, what is left wears so well that a man never has an excuse for needing a new one.

WESTERN CANADA'S RESOURCES

Farming Very Successful.
By Western or Northwest Canada is usually meant the great agricultural country west of Ontario and north of Minnesota, North Dakota, and Montana. Part of it is agricultural prairie, treeless in places, park like in others, part is genuine plains, well adapted to cattle ranching, part requires irrigation for successful tillage, most of it does not. The political divisions of this region are the Province of Manitoba and the territorial district of Assiniboia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Athabaska. At present, however, the latter is too remote for immediate practical purposes.

The general character of the soil of Western Canada is a rich, black, clay loam with a clay subsoil. Such a soil is particularly rich in food for the wheat plant. The subsoil is a clay which retains the water frost until it is thawed out by the warm rays of the sun and drawn upward to stimulate the growth of the young wheat so that even in dry seasons wheat is a good crop. The clay soil also retains the heat of the sun later in the summer, and assists in the early ripening of the grain. It is claimed that cultivation has the effect of increasing the temperature of the soil several degrees, as well as the air above it.

Western Canada climate is good—cold in winter, hot in summer, but with cool nights. Violent storms of any kind are rare. The rainfall is not heavy. It varies with places, but averages about seventeen inches. It falls usually at the time the growing crops need it.

The Department of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada, has agents established at different points throughout the United States, who will be pleased to forward an Atlas of Western Canada, and give such other information as to railway rates, etc., as may be required.

See—but it's a woman's privilege to change her mind, you know.
He—Yes, and her age also, but she takes her time in doing it.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Daniforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is fading away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by weakness or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily, and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use. —MRS. GEORGE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich. —$8.00 for 100 Tablets if original of course letter proving genuineness enclosed."—C. N. U.

CHRIST'S REMEDY FOR DESPAIR

By Rev. C. O. Wright.

"All things have been delivered unto Me of my Father, and no man can take it from Me. He that labors and is heavy laden, I will give you rest. . . . For my yoke is easy and my burden is light."—Matthew 11:27-30.

The most pitiful of all life's dark facts is despair. No bodily distemper is so dangerous, no worldly state so terrible, no other mood so tragic. These are but the contributing cause, but despair is the culmination of all life's ills.

And the Lord hath a remedy for this, too. The Great Physician is come to heal humanity; to cure late and evil and terror and despair. As man lost body and estate by the ills of his spirit, God will restore these too, by healing his spirit.

It is so sad, faith, spirit exhaustion that brings despair, and, therefore, joy is the only thing that can restore you to your normal state.

MANY BALAAMS IN THE CHURCH

By Bishop Samuel Fallows.

Balaam, who, as the Bible states, loved the wages of unrighteousness, was a man having at one time many traits of nobleness, of unselfishness and firmness. He was a man of prayer. He desired the guidance of heaven and was divinely inspired. He refused point blank to outrage his conscience. He would not sell his soul for a house full of Balaam's silver and gold.

And yet he grievously fell from the heights of honesty and lofty purpose. The ambition and avarice which were latent in his subconscience nature made him prostitute his noble gifts.

There are many Balaams to-day. They began like their predecessors, with high resolves. But the love of place and power which a man may lawfully possess and gratify has at last become a lust to overbear in its insane cravings all that is honorable between man and man in public life.

These are modern Balaams in the church who present the same contradictions and utterly confound the moralist and theologian who attempt fully to explain or condone them.

These modern Balaams far transcend their ancient prototype in everything that is reprehensible. Competitors are struck down with an iron hand. Gross deception in statements and actions is practiced. Contracts are but cobweb agreements. Officials are bribed, multitudes are defrauded, congregations are ruined, but like him of old these Balaams want to be found in the ranks of the holy.

SERMONETTES

Sailing.—Life is like a mighty ocean. And we are like ships with sails set, making our way toward unknown lands.—Rev. F. A. Huckleby, Unitarian, Philadelphia, Pa.

A Truce.—In every denomination there is a growing respect for every other denomination. The Protestant acknowledges the essential work of the Catholic and the Catholic sees that truth and virtue are exalted in some measure, at least, by the non-Catholic.—Rev. D. M. Wilson, Unitarian, Northfield, Mass.

The Domestic Problem.—The problem of the domestic system will continue to be perplexing just so long as the hired girl is in a lower social class. When the duties of home are put on the same plane of service as all the duties of the text books, the problem will be nearer solved.—Rev. E. J. Van Horn, Congregationalist, Worcester, Mass.

Theology.—Theology has never had a scientific basis. Speculation and conjecture are its base. Science must deal with facts, leaving fables to sentiment. Science must cleave to truth, while sentiment holds to traditions. Science must deal with principles, while sentiment holds to personalities.—Rev. F. E. Mason, Scientist, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Things that Endure.—The things that are present are only partial. Sound reason will tell us that value should depend on endurance. The only joys that are real and satisfying are those that endure forever. Present pain is dreadfully real, but it is brief. No one should allow it to stand in the way of everlasting peace.—Rev. J. J. Belford, Roman Catholic, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Work for All.—There is something for everybody to do, and one is justified in living for himself just as long as he is not interfering with the work of others. Each individual should have some occupation, a place in the world's vast factories, a work of some sort which shall tell for the happiness of others.—Rev. H. C. Swenzel, Episcopalian, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Human Rights.—Modern civilization is not properly regarded of the value of human life. The feeling of responsibility is not as strong among us as it should be. Public spirit is lax and apathetic. There is an oblivious tendency to cheapen life. The prime object of most persons is living self-gratification, they show a brutal indifference to the rights of others.—Rev. J. A. R. Hussey, Disciple, Baltimore, Md.

HOW TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN ESCAPED DREAD CATARRH BY USE OF PE-RU-NA.

Catarrh Robs Women of Health and Beauty. Pe-ru-na Makes Women Healthy and Beautiful.

Miss Amanda Johnson.

"I think I never had been troubled with catarrh ever since I was very young, aggravated each time I caught cold. This did not prove sufficiently serious to be obnoxious until last winter. Then my head and nose were so stopped up that I felt I must do something. Peru-na was recommended to me by a friend. I used it for four weeks, and found to my relief that it cured me. I have not had a bit of trouble since. My head is clear, and I can safely affirm that Peru-na cured me."—Miss Flora Hauser.

Hundreds of Women Cured by Pe-ru-na of Annoying Catarrh.

DR. HARTMAN has probably done more than any other physician toward popularizing a means of escape from the facial deformities, such as watery eyes, twinkling nose, offensive breath, dry, cracked lips, due to the ravaging effects of catarrh.

He has made chronic catarrh a life-long study. His remedy, popularly known as Peru-na, is the most famous remedy for catarrh in existence.

Probably there is not a man or woman, boy or girl within the bounds of the United States that has not heard of Peru-na. By its largest majority have used Peru-na.

The multitude of people that have been cured of chronic catarrh by using Peru-na can never be known.

Seven Good Reasons.
Labor troubles in the ministry are not unknown, and if accounts of them seldom find their way into print it may be for the reason that the walking delegate has not arisen in the clerical working world. Bishop Mallieue of the Methodist Church, says the New York Tribune, is always condemning the small salaries that congregations able to do better, sometimes pay their pastors.

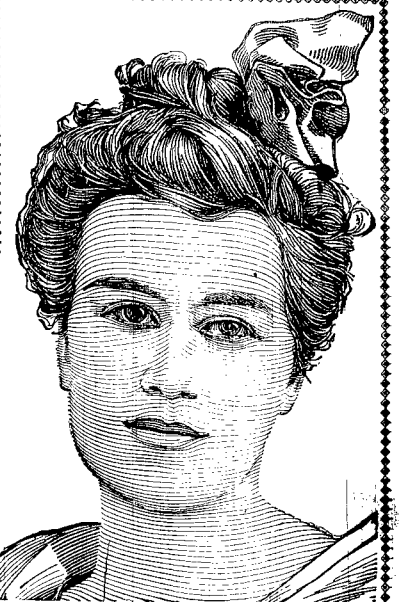

Why It Failed to Appear.
Scribbles—I sent a poem to a daily paper last week, but for some reason it has failed to appear.
Critics—Did you include a stamp?
Scribbles—No.
Critics—Well, that accounts for it. Had you done so it would no doubt have appeared in your mail the next morning.

A Sensitive Point.
"I didn't know until to-day," said young Mrs. Torkins, "that Charlie was taking an interest in palmitry."
"Indeed?" responded the caller.
"Yes, and he has put his heart into it, just as he does into anything he undertakes. He was as indignant as he could be because he met a man last night who had a better hand than his."—Washington Star.

Rheumatism's Killing Pain.
Let in quick order after taking 10 doses of Dr. Skirvin's Rheumatic Cure, in tablet form, 25 doses for 25c, postpaid, DR. SKIRVIN CO., LA. CROSS, WIS.

The Hall-Mark.
"I don't see how you can call Van Meter a genius. His poems certainly do not show it."
Bumble—No, but the fact that he sells them does.—Judge.

Miss Amanda Johnson, Fairchild, Wis., writes:
"I write to tell you how much Peru-na benefited me. For a number of years I had pain in my head around my eyes, and I thought it was because my eyes needed treatment, so I went to an oculist and had glasses fitted to my eyes and wore them for some time, but felt no relief whatever. In fact, I felt worse than before, and came to the conclusion that the trouble was not with my eyes, but with my head, and that it must be catarrh. As so many of my friends had used Peru-na with benefit for this trouble, I thought I would try it. I was not sorry that I did so, for in a short time I began to improve, and in four weeks my eyes were in splendid condition, my general health was much improved and all the catarrh of the head was gone. I was glad to get rid of this trouble and am glad to endorse such a good medicine as Peru-na."—Miss Amanda Johnson.

Miss Flora Hauser.

Many a girl has regained her faded beauty, many a matron has lengthened the days of her comely appearance by using Peru-na. Peru-na produces clean mucous membranes, the basis of facial symmetry and a perfect complexion.

The woman here has been slow to discover that a course of Peru-na will do more toward restoring youthful beauty than all the devices known to science.

While it is true that Peru-na cures catarrh wherever located, yet it is advisable for everyone to use Peru-na as a preventive and not wait until catarrh has fastened itself in some part of the system.

Peru-na acts quickly and beneficially on the inflamed mucous membranes lining the different organs of the body. Thus it will cure catarrh wherever located.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peru-na, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

THE WAYNE HERALD

Official paper of Wayne and Wayne county. Published every Thursday. W. HUSE & SON, Editors. Entered at the Post Office at Wayne, Nebr., as second class mail matter. Subscription, $1.00 a Year in Advance.

Democratic editors are to meet together in Lincoln to unite in convivial enjoyment, embrace each other and exchange inspiration preparatory to the coming uphill political tug.

Capt. Richard P. Hobson, late of the navy, who won distinction in Santiago harbor and later proved the most expert kisser in America, is in the field for congress in his Alabama district. His experience in oscillatory exercise ought to make campaigning easy for him.

Up to date not a single good reason has been advanced to show why the state convention should not nominate a United States senator. Those opposing the proposed step may be able to think out some fairly respectable reason in time, but they haven't done so as yet.

In considering the testimony of Joseph Smith before the committee investigating the fitness of Reed Smoot to hold down a seat in the United States senate, people wonder how women can become so foolish that they will enter polygamous marriages—how they can tolerate a condition which gives them only a fraction of an interest in a man's attention and consideration. Ultra credulity and obedience to the religion of the church no doubt induced them to accept a bondage that would have been scorned, unfeared and crushed in this country.

The question of the eligibility of Reed Smoot to represent Utah in the United States senate has been before a senatorial committee the past week. In the course of the investigation, the committee has gathered some sensational evidence from Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, regarding polygamous marriages. He says that the church has obeyed the law of the land, limiting a man to one wife, but those who had a string of a dozen, more or less, prior to the enactment of the law still maintain them. Personally, Smith was very moderate, having only five wives.

The objection to Governor Mickey is that he is too pious. What shall we say then of our friend, Harrison, of Grand Island. Those who have seen him in swimming all say he has wings under each collar bone. (Dismore is accused of belonging to the Salvation army and we all know that Robertson is well along on the king's highway. If we are to have a wicked, worldly man, we will have to turn to the democrats. There is Uncle Jake Wolfe. He'll do. He plays billiards some, wears a good deal, and told a lie about H. Deomb once. He said Governor Holcomb bloped from the bottom of his feet to the top of his head, when he should have said he sloped from the middle both ways.—York Times.

A life of deception and dishonesty, though carried on without liability to the criminal law, never even temporarily gains, in dollars or other considerations, what may be won by a career of candor and strict integrity. One should not only win public confidence, but should conduct himself that he may permanently hold it. Men are generally apt enough in reading human nature to detect a dishonest heart and are usually able to tell whether one can be relied on or has to be watched with suspicion. One who is streaked by natural faithfulness should take pains to overcome the affliction and in time it would be easy to do things exactly right, uninfluenced by the short-sighted view that "I will get it my work today and let tomorrow take care of itself."

Senator Dietrich's record is being investigated by a senatorial committee this week. It is hoped the facts will exonerate him, so that he can go back home at the end of this term feeling that the good of his senatorial career is not worse than nothing. He has an abiding conviction of his innocence and wants to clarify his record before his constituents and remove any possible ground for suspicion. Other wise, sensitive as he is, he would permanently feel the sting of false judgment, shrink from all men and perhaps not even have the courage to attend a ward caucus.

THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Feb. 19, 1903, the Wayne Free Public Library was first opened. It has been open two days of each week the entire year. During that time 512 persons have taken out reader's cards and 3600 loans were made. When we first opened the library we had 162 volumes. Since then the Monday Club donated 360 books, and by donation and purchase we have swelled the number to over 1000 volumes. A number of the prominent men and women of the city are regular patrons of the library. The school children, too, are much interested, as well as their teachers. We have been told by the latter that they have noticed a change in the kind of books the children are becoming interested in. Most children love to read, and will devour anything and everything that comes along. The books in the library are selected with care, and parents need not fear that their children will be given anything that will be injurious.

Then we have a large number of reference books that have been extensively used by both high school and college students. To the thinking public this institution seems to be what is especially needed in Wayne. The maintenance of it surely will not make work for the police court. The ladies of the City Federation have this in charge. It is under their care and management. To say it has been well cared for will be useless. Just now a course of lectures has been arranged, the proceeds of which will be used for the purchase of new books. The first in the course will be by Rev. Wright. This will be followed by one from Rev. Burrell, then Father Haney with one of his popular lectures, then Prof. Pile, and later on one by Rev. Daley. We hope the people of the town will make an extra effort to attend these lectures. You will be entertained, we know, and will doubtless be benefited more than you think, while the library will be able to provide new books, as every dollar belongs to them. These lecturers donate their services. Congressman McCarthy is also interested, as well as Senator Millard, and as a result we have received a number of historical and other documents that will be valuable as reference books.

We hope ere many months to have completed quarters down town and have them open each day. This course has been done at once, but will do by and by. Remember our quarters are in the court house. The room, lighted and heated, is donated by the county commissioners.

$1,000 will buy a good, paying newspaper plant in a thriving town in southern Nebraska. For particulars, inquire at this office.

We have a good lot of Early Ohio seed potatoes raised at Gordon, Neb., also some good home grown potatoes. EPLER & CO.

Go and see the funny old farmer, Uncle St. Haskins at the opera house, Mar. 11.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Miss Terrant, of Bancroft enrolled this week. Miss Rose Heaney was the guest of the Beascheming girls over Sunday. Grover Hersey enjoyed a visit from his brother from Pierce, over Sunday. Amelia Hirschman left last week to begin a term of school near Newcastle, her home.

Two more weeks remain of the present term, spring term opening Tuesday, March 29. Tom Lashrop we are glad to report is able to get out after several weeks confinement to his room. Messrs Holmquist and Evans returned Monday after an absence of a week or more while struggling with the grippe.

Prof. Pile goes to Stanton county Saturday to address the Teachers' Association which meets at that time and place. Miss Johannah Aherm of the scientific class of 1902 came in from Minnesota Saturday and returned Sunday. She recently secured a state certificate in Minnesota.

The presidential nominating convention is on for Saturday of this week. The organization of the convention will be effected at a sitting beginning at 1:30 p. m. Saturday, and the political effervescence, rhetoric and fireworks are set down for seven in the evening. Persons really interested in convention scenes and methods will be welcomed as visitors, but there will not be any room for others.

Rev. Bittel was a welcome chapel visitor Tuesday morning. Having addressed the N. N. G. students from the chapel platform nearly fifty times during his five years' residence in Wayne, it is little wonder that he felt somewhat at home and that his remarks were enthusiastically received. Nor is it surprising that in his traveling about the country he is confronted on every hand by young people who "knew him at Wayne." May he return to us often.

County Superintendent Pifer of Pierce county, spent last Thursday visiting the college and observing its work. In a talk to the students Friday morning he offered the opportune advice that the student should thoroughly prepare himself before entering on any work and especially that of teaching. Low wages and incompetence are certain concomitants in teaching or in anything else. Supt. Pifer spoke in a somewhat complimentary manner and paid a high compliment to the general order and bearing of the students about the N. N. G.

HOSKINS.

Mrs. H. F. Ferris is very seriously ill. A masquerade given by the orchestra is billed for the 17th. A. H. Carter of Winside was in town between trains Monday. Mayor Hazen of Norfolk was transacting business in town Monday.

C. W. Mank was in Sioux City Saturday buying goods for spring trade. Wm. Mettlen of Omaha visited here Sunday with his sister, Mrs. H. J. Candor.

Mrs. R. Mitchell and children who have been visiting relatives here for some time left for their home at Centralia, Wash., Saturday evening. J. F. Orshy has been very seriously ill for several days but is now convalescing. His sister, Mrs. H. I. Miller, of Bloomfield, has been taking care of him.

F. Nauenberg had a valuable team, buggy and harness stolen from his place five miles north of town last Tuesday night. There is no clue to the thieves. Some one entered Poter Kautz's saloon Tuesday night and got about $7.00 in small change and a few bottles of liquor. The thief visited P. S. Benner's store, but were frightened off before gaining an entrance, leaving a crowbar and a spade behind.

FROM WINSIDE. E. W. Ouellet and wife visited Wayne Sunday. The high wind last Friday blew down a number of windmills in this vicinity. Mrs. McElrath's mother and sister, of Iowa, who were visiting here returned home Tuesday.

Arthur Putzler was summoned to Iowa Saturday by the death of his grandmother. County Superintendent and Mrs. Bright attended a debate in Winside Friday evening. Miss Ida Johnson closed a successful term of school in the Welsh neighborhood last week and has returned to her home in Wayne.

Herbert L. Cope, the humorist, gave the closing number of the lecture course Saturday evening. His lecture was one of the best of the season. A. L. Beeson has sold his bowling alley and pool table and fixtures to John Dummel whose brother-in-law, Chas. Anker will have charge of the business.

Word has been received here that Fred Cohn, a young man formerly living near Winside, has fallen heir to $50,000 the gift of a rich relative who died in New York. A large and appreciative audience attended the debate between Curroll and Winside students at this place Friday evening. The judges decided in favor of Winside, though both sides handled the question fairly. The debate was prepared and followed by appropriate music.

FROM CARROLL. R. H. Manning has sold his residence property to Th. A. Evans. Chas. Robins has rented it and will move into it in a few days. Rev. J. I. McLaughlin, of Omaha, represented the Methodist hospital of that place at the Methodist church here last Sunday. Cash and subscriptions to the amount of $22.50 were raised.

The Carroll and Winside high schools clashed again at the Winside opera house last Friday night over the question: "Resolved that the free text-book school law should be repealed." The decision of the judges was given to the Winside students who defended the law as it is.

Dining Room Elegance.

The dining room is where you do the honors of your home. Three times a day, you're lucky, and your family meet in the dining room. Half of your enjoyment is taken there and next to your food nothing adds more to that enjoyment than fine dining room furniture.

But elegant Dining Room Furniture doesn't necessarily mean expensive furniture. Not if you buy it here. The largest and most complete line of Dining Room Furniture will be found upon our floors, and while you marvel at the richness of design and durability for prices will reveal that it costs not a cent more than much inferior goods.

If you are looking for Dining Room Elegance at a mighty low price, call on us.

Almost a Clean Sweep

Our fire sale has proven a success and it has been almost a clean sweep. We will have but little left to burn after Saturday. In Men's Suits, we could have sold at least fifty more if we had had them. This is our first fire sale in Wayne and it has been a surprise to everyone to see clothing sold at half price. It will come here to find that we have a lot to sell. Our stock is now clearing and showing that is old style. Other men have tables full of old-style suits rather than offer them to our customers for this reason we have a fire sale to sell them at one-half price.

New Goods Arriving

Our spring goods are arriving in great preparations for this year's latest and best clothing made ever.

Made to Measure

If you want a suit made to your measure, for we are prepared to make tailor-made suits for more than make a mistake by leaving your order to a man who has not had experience in making a fit, and in style, a full description of your shape, together with a practical mechanic with a needle and thread can do it, and if we fail to fit the suit. It costs no more to have a suit made by an experienced merchant than to have it made by a novice. Leave your order here.

THE WAYNE HERALD. Official paper of Wayne and Wayne county. Published every Thursday. W. HUSE & SON, Editors.

Democratic editors are to meet together in Lincoln to unite in convivial enjoyments, embrace each other and exchange inspiration preparatory to the coming April political tag.

Capt. Richard P. Hobson, late of the navy, who won distinction in Santiago harbor and later proved the most expert kitesur in America, is in the field for congress in his Alabama district.

Up to date not a single good reason has been advanced to show why the state convention should not nominate a United States senator. Those opposing the proposed step may be able to think out some fairly respectable reason in time, but they haven't done so yet.

In considering the testimony of Joseph Smith before the committee investigating the fitness of Reed Smoot to hold a seat in the United States senate, people wonder how women can become so foolish that they will enter polygamous marriages—how they can tolerate a condition which gives them only a fraction of an interest in a man's attention and consideration.

The question of the eligibility of Reed Smoot to represent Utah in the United States senate has been before a senatorial committee the past week. In the course of the investigation, the committee has gathered some sensational evidence from Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, regarding polygamous marriages.

The objection to Governor Misco is that he is too pious. What shall we say of our friend Harrison, of Grand Island. Those who have seen him in swimming all say he has wings under each collar bone. Dinmore is accused of belonging to the Salvation army and we all know that Robertson is well along on the king's highway. If we are to have a wicked, worldly man, we will have to turn to the democrats.

There is Uncle Jack Wolfe. He'll do. He plays billiards some, swears a good deal, and told a lie about H. Lomb once. He said Governor Holcomb sloped from the bottom of his feet to the top of his head, when he should have said he sloped from the middle both ways.—York Times.

A life of deception and dishonesty, though carried on without liability to the criminal law, never even temporarily gains, in dollars or other considerations, what may be won by a career of honor and strict integrity. One should not only win public confidence, but should conduct himself that he may permanently hold it. Men are generally apt enough in reading human nature to detect a dishonest heart and are usually able to tell whether one can be relied on or has to be watched with distrust and suspicion. One who is streaked by natural foolishness should take pains to overcome the affliction and in time it would be easy to do things exactly right, unaided by the short-sighted view that "I will get it my work today and let tomorrow take care of itself."

Senator Dietrich's record is being investigated by a senatorial committee this week. It is hoped the facts will exonerate him, so that he can go back home at the end of this term feeling that the good of his senatorial career is not worse than nothing.

Democratic editors are to meet together in Lincoln to unite in convivial enjoyments, embrace each other and exchange inspiration preparatory to the coming uphill political tug.

Capt. Richard P. Hobson, late of the navy, who won distinction in Santiago harbor and later proved the most expert kisser in America, is in the field for congress in his Alabama district. His experience in oculatory exercise ought to make campaigning easy for him.

Up to date not a single good reason has been advanced to show why the state convention should not nominate a United States senator. Those opposing the proposed step may be able to think out some fairly respectable reason in time, but they haven't done so as yet.

In considering the testimony of Joseph Smith before the committee investigating the fitness of Reed Smoot to hold down a seat in the United States senate, people wonder how women can become so foolish that they will enter polygamous marriages—how they can tolerate a condition which gives them only a fraction of an interest in a man's attention and consideration. Ultra credulity and obedience to the religion of the church no doubt induced them to accept a bondage that would have been scorned, unfettered and crushed in this country.

The question of the eligibility of Reed Smoot to represent Utah in the United States senate has been before a senatorial committee the last week. In the course of the investigation, the committee has gathered some sensational evidence from Joseph F. Smith, president of the Mormon church, regarding polygamous marriages. He says that the church has obeyed the law of the land, limiting a man to one wife, but those who had a string of a dozen, more or less, prior to the enactment of the law still maintain them. Personally, Smith was very moderate, having only five wives.

The objection to Governor Mickey is that he is too pious. What shall we say then of our friend Harrison, of Grand Island. Those who have seen him in swimming all say he has wings under each collar bone. Dimmore is accused of belonging to the Salvation army and we all know that Robertson is well along on the king's highway. If we are to have a wicked, worldly man, we will have to turn to the democrat. There is Uncle Jake Wolfe. He'll do. He plays billiards some, swears a good deal, and told a lie about El Lomb on Sunday. He said Governor Holcomb sloped from the bottom of his feet to the top of his head, when he should have said he sloped from the middle both ways—York Times.

It is hoped the facts will exonerate him, so that he can go back home at the end of this term feeling that the good of his senatorial career is not worse than nothing. He has an abiding conviction of his innocence and wants to clarify his record before his constituents and remove any possible ground for supposition as he is likely to feel the sting shrink from all even have the courage.

Almost a Clean Sweep

Our fire sale has proven a success and it has been almost a clean sweep. We will have but little left to burn after Saturday. In Men's Suits, we could have sold at least fifty more if we had had them. This is our first fire sale in Wayne and it has been a surprise to everyone to see clothing sold at half price. It will be a pleasure to anyone coming here to find that we have no old, out-of-style clothing to sell. Our stock is now clean and not a single suit to show that is old style. Other merchants may be satisfied to have tables full of old-style suits, but we will burn them rather than offer them to our customers in the regular way; for this reason we have a fire sale every 2 or 3 years and sell them at one-half price.

New Goods Arriving Daily

Our spring goods are arriving daily and we have made great preparations for this year's stock. You will find here the latest and best clothing made and the prices lower than ever.

Made to Order

If you want a suit made to order, by all means get us to take your measure, for we are practical mechanics and have made tailor-made suits for more than twenty years. Don't make a mistake by leaving your measure with anyone that has not had experience in making clothing to order. To get a fit, and in style, a full description must be made—how you stand and your shape, together with the correct measure, and only a practical mechanic with experience can do that. We can do it, and if we fail to fit and please you we will keep the suit. It costs no more to have us take your measure than an inexperienced merchant will charge you. Why not leave your order here.

CARPETS AND MATTING ...IN STOCK...

We have just received and put on sale, a nice selection of Ingrain Carpets. Our all-wool ingrain is the HEAVIEST AND BEST MADE and the DESIGNS AND COLORINGS ARE NEW, also some nice patterns in one-half wool. Our prices are right, quality considered. We will have them made if you wish. Carpet Linen, Linoleums, Oil Cloth and Mattings in nice patterns. Don't miss us for anything in floor covering, lace curtains or portiers.

Bloomfield Train Struck by a Freight

NO ONE IS SERIOUSLY HURT

Blinding Storm Prevented the Train Crews from Seeing Each Other—Rear End of Coach Off the Track and Badly Damaged—Engine Also Damaged—Slow Motion of Trains Prevented Worse Results.

A west-bound extra freight train plunged into the rear end of the coach of the Bloomfield train at this place this morning and caused some damage, though fortunately injuring no one seriously. The blinding, deafening storm prevented either crew from seeing or hearing the other. The Bloomfield train was just leaving and had cleared the switch. Before the brake-man could turn the switch back, the extra freight appeared and struck the coach. The rear of the car was smashed and thrown off the track, and the steam chest of the engine was broken and other less damage done. About a dozen passengers were in the coach and though severely shocked, none were badly hurt. W. H. O. Woodhurst of North Platte, Neb., was near the door and rushed out and off the platform just before the engine struck. A moment later he would have been crushed. Another passenger had a gash cut in his face and still another one received a sprained back. Both trains were moving slowly; otherwise all in the coach would doubtless have been killed. The Bloomfield train resumed its journey at 11:30 with the combination coach.

DEATH OF MR. REPINE.

Albert E. Repine who resided five miles east and one mile north of Wayne, died unexpectedly Monday forenoon at 11:30 o'clock. He was apparently in robust health, but in reality had not recovered his usual strength since an attack of pneumonia two or three months ago. However, he was up and around, gave directions as to farm work a short time before his death, and also suggested what he would like for dinner, which he did not live to see. Suddenly he complained of feeling weak and died within a few minutes, no doubt due to heart failure. He was aged 40 years, 3 months and 26 days, having been born November 18, 1893, at Kendallville, Indiana. He leaves a wife and two foster-sons. Funeral services were to have been held this afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Presbyterian church at Wakefield, conducted by R. V. E. B. Young of Wayne, with the assistance of the local pastor, Rev. Armstrong, but owing to the severe storm will probably be postponed. Interment takes place in the Wakefield cemetery. Mr. Repine was a good citizen and leaves a large circle of friends.

It is Evident the Attacking Squadron Designed to Make the Enemy Disclose the Position and Weight of Its Shore Batteries.

Vladivostok advices state that a Japanese battleship and two cruisers appeared off that place at 12:25 o'clock Monday afternoon and bombarded the town and shore batteries for fifty-five minutes.

The fleet approached from the direction of Askold island, at the east entrance to Ussuri Bay, and about thirty-two miles southeast of Vladivostok.

The Russian batteries, commanded by Gen. Veronez and Artamonov, did not reply, awaiting a closer approach of the enemy.

The Japanese fire ceased at 2:30 p. m., and the enemy retired in the direction of Askold island. Simultaneously two torpedo boat destroyers appeared near Askold island, and two more near Cape Middel. The Japanese ships were covered with ice.

The attack resulted in no loss to the Russians, but cost the enemy 200,000 rubles ($100,000) in ammunition. Most of the projectiles were 6 and 12-inch shells.

The population of Vladivostok was warned Monday morning of the presence on the horizon of a hostile fleet and the prospect of attack during the day, but it remained tranquil.

REED IS THE WINNER.

Creosote Lawyer to be Judge Shiras' Successor.

Henry T. Reed of Cresco, Ia., was selected by the Iowa delegation at Washington, D. C., Friday to be recommended for United States district judge for the northern district of Iowa. Two senators and five members of the house have been battling for three months on a candidate, and no deal received a majority until Friday.

The selection of Mr. Reed did not come as any great surprise to those who have been closely following this long drawn out contest for a successor to Judge Shiras.

For the past month, and particularly for the past two weeks, the members of the caucus have shown much restiveness. All sorts of arguments were advanced to show that Judge Birdall could not continue for any great length of time voting for Healy.

For several weeks he has been voting for the Fort Dodge candidate, but pressure was brought to bear upon him, and realizing that Mr. Healy could not be elected, he decided to show in the lineup, and not willing to prolong the contest, left his name and the election of Mr. Reed was accordingly made.

Mr. Reed's particulars the contest over Judge Shiras' successor will stand out as one of the most strenuously fought battles for supremacy ever waged by the Iowa delegation. The contest for a judge in the southern district, which resulted in the selection of Smith McPherson, lasted seven weeks. But this contest, which commenced long before the meeting of congress in December, can be said to have seriously begun within five days of the meeting of congress in extraordinary session in November, and, barring the mention during the Christmas holidays, continued until Friday.

Two deaths were verified.

The country was very dry, no rain having fallen for months. Grass and stubble fires set by farmers, as is customary at this season of the year, were driven beyond control by a violent gale which rose suddenly.

At Hebart, the county seat of Kiova County, the fire approached from the east, destroying the stables and fifteen race houses, fifteen residences, two business houses and various small buildings. Spreading to the southwest, the fire swept 75,000 acres of government military timber reserve and Indian school reserve, destroying several Indian houses and forty head of government cattle.

Numerous reports are coming in to Topeka from Kansas counties telling of heavy losses from Wednesday night's prairie fire. In almost every instance the fires were caused by people burning stubble and prairie land. The high wind came unexpectedly and the fires were beyond control in a short time.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Madman Threatens Life—Frank Fox Escapes From and Returns Amuck at Fort Crook—Later He Tries to Commit Suicide.

The village of Fort Crook was wrought up to a high degree of excitement the other night over the sudden appearance of a madman carrying revolvers and a knife.

The first person he met was Frank Ketchum. With a revolver in hand he ordered Ketchum to stop and then cut his hand. This was complied with without question. The madman, then dancing around and brandishing his gun, requested Ketchum to bring out his revolver, as he would have for it very soon. Ketchum was handed him one of his guns, telling him to get ready for trouble. When friends ran to the rescue the men were standing face to face, each holding a revolver and ready to shoot.

The mad man was immediately disarmed and arrested and taken to Papillion, where he was jailed. Ketchum said it was either one's life, and decided to do what he could to save himself. It was found later that the man was Frank Fox, a resident of Fort Crook in former days, who was twice sent to the asylum from Omaha and Papillion, but who has now escaped.

While Chief James Gatwood was making preparations for the commutation of a fine in the jail at Papillion, Fox suddenly collapsed and fell into the chief's arms, a stream of blood pouring from an ugly wound in the left breast.

The wound was dressed at once and the man left the jail for recovery.

Fox said he wanted the man that he intended to catch Ketchum to kill him, but failing in that, had tried to cut his heart out. "My razor could not cut through my ribs," said Fox, "and I press a man's hand till his time comes."

Progress of the War

THE fogs of doubt and uncertainty hung as heavily last week over the seat of war in the East as at any time since the beginning of hostilities. No official news of land movements was permitted by either Russia or Japan to leak out, while the operations on sea by the Japanese, with the exception of an occasional attack on Port Arthur, were carefully screened. As a result the war correspondents in the East are forced to send out uncertain rumors, without having the time or opportunity of investigating them, and thus much of it is unreliable in its way into the history of the present struggle. Were all the reports of Japanese successes true, Russia would scarcely have a boat about in the East, outside the Vladivostok fleet, and that, too, according to early reports, was blown up in the Tsungshai Straits. Some of the Russian vessels at Port Arthur must have been destroyed in these reports, it seems conclusively established that the Japanese failed to block the harbor at Port Arthur, else the Russian cruisers could not move so freely from the inner basin to the roadstead.

Relative to the immunity of the Japanese vessels under Russian fire at Port Arthur, the reports do not by any means agree. Two separate reports came from Chifu that two Japanese warships, after the bombardment of last week Thursday, were towed in a disabled condition to Suibei for repairs, and a paper published at Tien-Tsin states that the battleship Yashima and the cruisers Asama and Tokiwa were damaged and that two torpedo boats were destroyed. According to a Chifu dispatch the Russians discovered a sunken Japanese torpedo boat in the outer harbor. Later the Japanese bombarded Port Arthur again and the cruiser Askold had a gun dismounted and two men injured.

The Russians deny the loss of a torpedo boat in Pigeon bay. They state that a Japanese ship pierced the hull of a torpedo boat, but that the leak was stopped and the vessel returned to Port Arthur under her own steam.

Meantime, according to reports, which neither country confirms, the Japanese have extended their sea operations to the north and are said to be blockading the Russian naval base at Vladivostok. No reports confirming the landing of the Japanese in force at Poshet bay, seventy-five miles south of Vladivostok, have been received. The object of this movement, it was said at the time, was to advance into the interior, some 220 miles to Kirin, which is a town situated on a spur of the railroad running to Port Arthur. The country between Poshet bay and Kirin is mountainous and poorly supplied with roads, so that the Japanese, if such a movement is being conducted, must have at their disposal a strong force. In pushing on to Kirin the Japanese would flank the Russian army being concentrated on the Yalu river, and they would lay their own base of communication exposed to the Russian troops at Vladivostok. At the same time they would be advancing directly into the teeth of the heavy reinforcements which Russia is pouring down the Port Arthur branch of the Manchurian railway.

There seems to be the same dearth of positive information regarding land operations as sea movements. No two reports agree as to the strength of Japan's forces in Korea or of Russia's in Manchuria. Probably outside government circles the knowledge does not exist, and neither government is outlining either its land strength or its plan. That the Japanese are availing themselves of their temporary mastery of the sea, hastening reinforcements to Korea, is certain; that Russia is straining every nerve to hurry her troops from Europe to the East is equally so. Advance parties of the Japanese and Russians are getting glimpses of each other in Northern Korea, and mounted Cossacks are reported as seizing telegraph lines where they penetrate. Reports state that Russian mounted cavalry (presumably Cossacks) have appeared at Anju and that a strong force has been dispatched to Eastern Korea. Both sides are apparently maneuvering for position and it is probable that somewhere near Ping Yang the first serious engagement on land will be fought.

RUSHING TROOPS TO SCENE OF WAR. Russia has strained every nerve to get troops into Korea. Her Cossacks are the flower of her army. They are said to be the finest cavalrymen in the world. This is a sketch of a regiment of Cossacks, enroute at Irkutsk for the scene of conflict.

The Japanese are said to have landed 120,000 troops in Korea, and transports are leaving Japanese ports at regular intervals with reinforcements.

Russia is moving much slower than Japan in this military movement. Gen. Kouropatkin, who will have supreme control of the land operations in the East, will have to move for the front for a couple of weeks yet, as it is his wish to have 400,000 troops at his disposal before actively entering on the campaign. That Russia does not intend to force the fighting is evidenced by the notification given by her Ambassador at St. Petersburg relative to the American officers who are to make observations with the Russian troops. They are not expected to attach themselves to the Russian army before April 15.

Meantime there seems to be a consensus of opinion among military experts that Japan is preparing for an investment of Port Arthur by sea and land. In fact, in what quarters the belief is strong that the investment for the land is already under way. The Russian commander, Gen. Stessel, who directs the garrison, has issued a proclamation outlining this purpose of the Japanese, and called upon the troops to fight to a finish. "I, as commander," he said, "will never give an order to surrender."

In case of investment, it is interesting to know how well prepared Port Arthur is for such a siege. At the outbreak of the war all details were worked out, so that there would be as few months as possible of food. According to one report, Port Arthur is provisioned for eight months. Should it be able to hold out even for one-half of that time, Russia should be able to pour enough troops down the Liao-Tung peninsula to shut the land investment. But it is the belief of military and naval experts that Port Arthur is vastly more vulnerable than it was thought to be when Russia secured a twenty-five years' lease of the place from China and began to fortify it. It is estimated that Russia has 200 guns in position in its forts.

The Whitehead torpedo, the terrible engine of destruction and terror of modern warfare, used by the Japanese navy.

ENTIRE ARMY CALLED OUT.

Czar Issues an Imperial Order Which Will Mobilize All Russian Troops.

The Czar has issued an imperial order which practically calls out all the troops at Russia's disposal and orders them to prepare for immediate service in the East. The order is couched in a high and stirring style, not particularly flattering to army and navy officers, but it gives indications of a government which is fully aware of the difficulty which will attend the execution of the war. Officially the order seemed an innocuous one. It summoned the reserve subalterns and first-class reserve men of European Russia to the colors for a six weeks' course of training. A higher order was issued to the naval reserves. On the face of it this order does not seem to mean much. But military men and diplomats know it means that every thing is being made ready for the possibility of a sudden outbreak. The order was undoubtedly a shock to the Russian people. When the war started it was fully believed that the victory over Japan was a matter of but a few weeks. As the days passed and news of Russian victories did not materialize, the public had it simply to the supposition that the Czar's navy and troops were waiting only until they felt that they could deliver a crushing blow to the forces of the Japanese and thereby end the war in a few months at the most. The order opened the eyes even of the civilians—the military contingent had long realized that the war would be long and costly one.

JAPANESE DREAD DALNY.

Nines Extending Far Into the Harbor of Port Arthur.

In Port Arthur, officers, marines, coolies and everybody, they have been working day and night at the railway and docks in connection with the transportation of provisions and munitions to the front. The soldiers of the forts have worked like horses, harnessing themselves to carts and drawing them. That Japan has a heavy conscripted respect for Dalny on account of the important sub-station mines, laid there and which extend far to the east. The floating mines in the neighborhood of Dalny are also calculated to keep the Japanese at a respectful distance from Port Arthur.

KEEP PLANS SECRET.

Big Movement of Troops in Preparation for Decisive Fight.

A Nagasaki cablegram, via Shanghai, says that an extraordinary movement of Japanese troops to the coast is now completed. It includes the first reserve. The second reserves are now being mobilized at Tokio. The Sendai and Yamaguchi divisions of the army, the best fighting men in the service, already have been transported to Chemulpo, which will continue to be the principal base in Korea.

Fusan will be made the secondary base for the dispatch of troops along the east coast and for Vladivostok. The railways have been completely equipped for the transportation of these troops. The men are not permitted to leave the trains, even dining and sleeping on board. The civilian traffic between Tokio and Kobe has been reduced to a minimum.

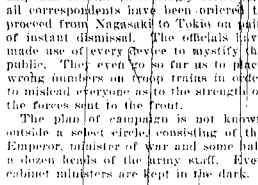

Immense activity prevails at all points of embarkation. At Kobe and other ports tons of food and dry goods and all supplies have been collected. The censorship has become increasingly strict and all correspondents have been ordered to proceed from Nagasaki to Tokio on pain of instant dismissal. The officials have made use of every device to mystify the public. They even go so far as to place working numbers on troop trains in order to mislead everyone as to the strength of the forces sent to the front.

The plan of campaign is not known outside a select circle, consisting of the Emperor, his staff and some half a dozen members of the army staff. Even cabinet ministers are kept in the dark.

BAIKAL NOT CONQUERED.

Frozen Lake a Serious Obstacle in Way of Russian Troops.

The reassuring statements published by the chief of the Russian transport service regarding the transport of troops across Lake Baikal are entirely discredited by independent witnesses. According to a Russian informant there is no reason for doubting the reports that many hundreds of soldiers have been rendered unfit for service by the hardships endured on the march over the lake. The casualties, this authority adds, have been vastly increased by inadequate clothing and the food supplied the soldiers. The men before setting out on the march across the lake are served only in the morning at Baikal station where they are entirely disoriented by a half way wooden barracks they receive a basin of hot wheaten gruel cooked in salt water without the addition of any fat, and in the evening, at the end of their toilsome journey of forty-seven MARCH AND RIDE BY TURNS.

The Russian Soldiers Do Not Make a March from the Front to the Rear.

The wife of a Russian officer of high rank, who has just returned to St. Petersburg from Port Arthur, leaving that town the day after the first attack by the Japanese, says that the Japanese troops tramped passed her all the way. This method of transportation being supplemented, so far as possible, by the soldiers marching and untrailing alternate.

When an east-bound train arrives at Irkutsk, the soldiers are ordered to march to the next station, their places being taken by men who had been marching from the last station. The soldiers are thus kept in better condition.

Smith Gives Source of His Power.

In his testimony President Smith explained that the first presidency was composed of the president of the church and two high priests or counselors and that the twelve apostles, of whom Mr. Smith was one, were next in authority.

President Smith declared that notwithstanding a second "revelation" to the effect that polygamy is not obligatory upon members of the Mormon church, he still believed polygamy was right.

He was questioned closely in regard to the principles of divine revelations. He said he adhered absolutely to all the teachings of the church in that regard, and that he himself had been visited with divine inspiration from God directing him as to details in matters pertaining to the welfare of the church, though no angels had come to him, as in the case of the revelation to his uncle, Joseph Smith, Jr., the founder of the church. He subscribed to the standard of authority for the church in relation to the revelation commanding polygamy as made known to the president in a visit from "an angel" in black.

The testimony was directed in a slight degree to Senator Sargent, but no attempt was made by the defense to curtail the admission of testimony which President Smith was questioned in relation to polygamous cohabitation and the manifesto of the church before the manifesto of 1890.

The attorneys then objected, and much time was devoted to the relevancy of such testimony. The committee went into executive session, and after a discussion determined to allow the most latitude to the barbers, which means that some practices will be avoided. The protesters said they regarded this as a victory for them.

Great interest attaches to the hearings because of the dual purpose of the inquiry. Other investigations have been directed at the rights of certain contestants to seats in Congress, but never before has there been introduced an inquiry into credits of political factors to determine whether an unlawful influence is being exerted in the political affairs of the nation.

CHURCH TEACHES POLYGAMY.

Mormon President Smith Admits that Fact in the Senate Case.

Mormonism was placed on trial before the Senate committee on privileges and elections Wednesday when the taking of testimony was begun to determine whether the Rev. Reed Smoot, a member of the Utah church, should retain his seat in the Senate.

Joseph D. Smith, president of the Mormon Church, was on the witness stand all day and in his testimony admitted that he had given polygamy to the rights of the governing bodies of the church held the same position and that the church still taught polygamy, despite the order of President Woodrow Wilson to discontinue and repeal the law of the nation against polygamous marriages.

For those protesting against the seating of Smoot it was contended that he, being one of the church's twelve apostles, was sworn to uphold bibles and precepts in conflict with the laws of the nation and therefore was ineligible to make the nation's laws. Mr. Smoot's lawyers tried to restrict the inquiry to certain points and to curtail methods. The committee, however, decided to hear every bit of testimony offered and to make its own rules of procedure and its decisions on the church as well as Mr. Smoot on trial.

John G. Carlisle, former Secretary of the Treasury, and ex-Congressman H. W. Taylor of Ohio are the attorneys for the protesters. A. S. Worthington of Washington and William Van Coten of Salt Lake City are the lawyers for Mr. Smoot.

JAPANESE PRONUNCIATION.

A like a in father; Al as in state. I like a in me; El as in well. U like I in pie; Au and o as in bone. O like o in pony; U as oo in moon. U like oo in book.

I in the middle of a word and u in the middle or at the end of a word are sometimes almost interchangeable.

The consonants are all sounded, as in English; a, however, has only the hard sound, as in "give," although the nasal soft, as in "duck" and "sin"; and z before u has the sound of dx. In the case of double consonants, each one must be given its full sound.

There are as many syllables as vowels. There is practically no accent.

Be sure to avoid the flat sound of u, which is always pronounced ah.—From "A Handbook of Modern Japan," by Ernest W. Clements.

BLIZZARDS SWEEP WEST.

Fiercest Storms of the Winter Prevail in Several States.

The worst blizzard of the winter swept across several States of the Northwest Wednesday and Thursday. It covered the prairies of North Dakota and Minnesota and the hills and valleys of northern Wisconsin with a deep fall of snow that tied up street cars in many places and delayed steam railway traffic.

While a 50-mile gale blowing straight for Chicago was descending from the Lake Superior region Wyoming was being under a blizzard that had "drifted" from the Rockies, and Nebraska was suffering an unprecedented drop in temperature of sixty-three degrees within a few hours. From seventy-nine degrees the Nebraska temperature dropped to sixteen. A gale was whipping across the whole State and giving warning that the Wyoming blizzard and its cold wave was traveling downward at a terrific gait.

Michigan and Colorado, at the same time were experiencing all the rigors of cold, hurricane and snow. Iowa, too, was shivering, first in a sleet storm and two hours later under a fall of snow, the temperature having dropped twenty-five degrees.

The cold wave reached Chicago Thursday night, and the thermometer promptly hugged the zero point. The advance agent of the cold wave arrived Thursday morning. He brought a few handfuls of snow, which he scattered about. The cold was characteristic of December five degrees.

The local fire department soon had ten streams of water playing on the blizzard, with little effect on the Milwaukee department was called for repair assistance.

At 8 o'clock the flames were bursting from the windows of the north and south wings, and the roof was being blown away by this time being destroyed.

The last departments to burn were those of the Secretary of State and Governor, on the south, the Attorney General and insurance commissioners on the main floor, and the Supreme Court law library and State library complex on the second floor. Practically all the valuable State records were saved, as most of them were in masonry and steel walls. The State treasury had only about $8,000 in cash on hand.

Ex-Gov. Schofield maintained insurance on the building through a company for $600,000, but the last Legislature instituted an insurance fund and directed the State's officers to allow the insurance policies to lapse. In June last they lapsed $510,000 and in December the sum of $30,000. There is in the insurance funds at the present time about $8,000 to meet the loss of $800,000.

The Portland woolen mills at Sellwood, a suburb of Portland, Ore., have been destroyed by fire. Loss $150,000. Insurance $150,000.

FOES MEET IN KOREA.

HOSTILE ARMIES IN TWO SHARP ENGAGEMENTS.

Russians Driven Back from Ping-Yang Port Japs at Another Point. Forces of Puring Cosacks Capture the Horses of the Enemy.

Russian troops have clashed twice with the enemy on the soil of Korea. At Ping-Yang a body of Russian cavalry approached the north gate of the Japanese camp and fired at a distance of 1,000 yards. The Japanese infantry promptly responded and a sharp fusillade followed, as a result of which the Russians were forced to retire.

In the second encounter the Russians were victorious. A dispatch from Leno-Tong, a town on the Manchurian railway some distance south of Moulken, says that Chinese of the Yalu river report that an advance guard of Russian cavalry which has penetrated Korea for a distance of about 200 versts had an encounter with a detachment of Japanese and that the Japanese were compelled to retreat, leaving their horses, which were seized by the Cosacks. Gen. Lievitch dispatched cavalry and a body of infantry in pursuit and with an order to occupy northern Korea. On the Hamgyong frontier, northeast of Wiju, a detachment of Korean soldiers was attacked and dispersed by Russian troops.

Russian officers believe they have now accurate information of the Japanese plan of campaign in Manchuria and Korea. The Japs have large bodies of troops near the eastern coast, and at Chemulpo on the western coast of Korea. These troops are engaged in establishing a line of fortifications along the banks of the Tsi-Tong river and are making preparations for the receipt of a large army landed a few days later. The Japanese have also landed at Chemulpo on the western coast a series of fortifications right across Korea from Gensau to Chionampo.

These measures the Russians believe to have been concerted in order to defend the middle and southern parts of Korea from the Russian shore. The Japanese are unsuccessful on the Yalu and in Manchuria.

ATTACK PORT ARTHUR NEW.

Japs Do Great Damage to Port's Feeding Squadron.

The Japanese fleet Monday practically completed the annihilation of Russia's Port Arthur squadron. A fierce bombardment, begun at 10 o'clock in the morning, resulted in the sinking of the cruiser Askold and a torpedo, the crippling of the Novik and the silencing of the Retvizan. The Japanese withdrew in perfect order. The attack was in compliance with Mikado's orders that Port Arthur must be taken at all costs.

When the bombardment began the Russian cruisers Novik, Bayan and Askold, accompanied by four torpedo boats, steamed out of the harbor to meet the attack. After a fierce battle they were compelled to retire.

The Askold was in a sinking condition, the Novik greatly damaged, and one torpedo boat sunk. The Russian battleship Retvizan, which has been on the rocks since the first engagement of the war, is a special target for the Japanese fire.

When the Japanese saw that they had done all the damage possible they withdrew in good order. As far as is known, their fleet suffered no damage. After the bombardment a large force of Russian troops was sent to Pigeon bay, it being feared that the Japanese would attempt to land troops there.

Port Arthur was reported very short of provisions. The soldiers manning the land batteries seemed demoralized by the repeated attacks of the Japanese squadron.

FLAMES RUIN A CAPITOL.

State Building at Madison, Wis., Burned, Causing Loss of $800,000.

The Wisconsin State capitol at Madison was destroyed by fire Saturday with a loss estimated at $800,000. The State carries only partial insurance, being in companies to which hanging from insurance and a special session of the Legislature, and the probable removal of the capitol from Madison to Milwaukee.

The flames, which were caused by a lighted gas jet on the second floor, early in the day, had ruined the east and west wings, containing the Senate and Assembly chambers, and the department of fire commissioning, the adjutant general, railroad commissioner, State school superintendent, superintendent of public property, board of agriculture, State normal school, commissioner of fisheries, fish and game warden, State board of pharmacy, State land office, dairy and food commissioner, State board of health, commissioner of labor, and were blown to the departments of the Governor, Secretary of State, State board of control and the insurance commissioner.

The local fire department soon had ten streams of water playing on the flames, with little effect on the Milwaukee department was called for repair assistance.

At 8 o'clock the flames were bursting from the windows of the north and south wings, and the roof was being blown away by this time being destroyed.
