Indian Woman Dances on Her Husband's Anatomy and Causes His Death—Farmer Urges the Wisdom of Patronizing Home Merchants—Alfalfa Culture Encouraged—Bankers Meet at Ponca.

According to the almanac, Monday was the first day of spring.

The Ponca creamery will resume business about the middle of April.

Paper Bros. have let the contract for a new building at Randolph to cost $5,000.

The Farmers & Traders' bank at Wakefield proposes to erect a new bank building this spring.

High water necessitates a great deal of travel by boat by farmers living along the Platte river.

The ladies of Concord have an organization for the improvement of the town's cemetery and are giving entertainments to raise funds for that purpose.

W. L. Diddock of Pender has gone to Washington, D. C., in behalf of a bill before congress authorizing the distribution of $100,000 belonging to the Omaha Indians.

James Brink of Lyons, has been arrested and bound over to the federal court on the charge of counterfeiting money, being alleged that he changed $1 bills to $10 bills.

Mrs. Anna Trayford, of Bancroft, became violently insane and has been taken to the asylum at Lincoln. Her affliction is said to have been caused by religious excitement.

The Pender Republic reports that Robert Dale, an Omaha Indian, died last week from the effects of a tumor and his wife dancing on his body during a drunken revel.

Mrs. Fred Marsh, wife of the county school superintendent of Knox county, was suddenly seized with appendicitis while visiting in Creighton and died within an hour after the attack.

Randolph is in the throes of a bitter factional fight over local government. A ring is reported to have been running things, and the paramount issue at the coming election will be to get rid of the ring.

Geo. Weseloh, aged 12 years, injured one of his legs so badly by falling from a carriage while going home from school at Laurel that an operation was necessary. Accordingly, he was taken to a Sioux City hospital. He was unable to stand the operation and died before recovering from the shock.

An Iowa man owns a Toulouse goose that weighs 114 pounds, stands over two feet high and lays eggs as large as common carafes. A boarding house recently made fourteen custard pies from one egg. This remarkable showing in developing poultry equals the experience of our local fancier, John Kate.

Hon. J. R. Manning, of Wayne county, was in Stanton Monday in the interest of his candidacy for commissioner of public lands and buildings. Mr. Manning thinks his chances for securing the nomination are good. He correctly judges Stanton county as being favorable to his aspirations.—Stanton Picket.

The Northeast Nebraska Bankers' association is planning to make the matter of burglar proof safes a conspicuous feature of the program at its meeting in Ponca April 22. Prominent safe manufacturers are asked to enter for a competitive test of their goods, and one has already announced its willingness to do so.

Professor J. M. Pile, president of the Wayne Normal, a jovial fellow and one of the very best educators in this or any other state, was in attendance at the teachers' association at this place last Saturday. Of course he made a call at these headquarters and exchanged pleasantries for half an hour, without so much as intimating what he thinks of the political outlook or whether it is to be a repetition of Grover and clover or whether Colonel Bryan will again declaim himself to victory with a crown of thorns and cross of gold. He did, however, admit that it made him feel good to meet so many of his former pupils and know that all are succeeding well.—Stanton Picket.

Fred Scott and his father will sow from 30 to 40 acres of alfalfa this spring as a start toward securing about 80 acres of this excellent forage. The Scotts will, in the next few years, devote their attention especially to hog raising as the quickest and easiest money, barring disease epidemics, on the farm. After this year they will not raise any small grain, but will make corn and hogs their specialty, using alfalfa for the main hog ration and the corn for finishing for the market. According to their figures oats are not profitable because of expense of twine, threshing and the exchange of help at harvest and threshing time.—Randolph Times.

"I am in favor of patronizing the home merchant," remarked a farmer to an exchange, and continuing said: "He will take out produce and if we treat him right he will do as well by us as the small order houses. We have one great advantage in dealing with the home merchant, and that is, we can inspect his goods and groceries before we buy them and if they don't suit, we don't have to buy. I believe it is a good idea to see everything you buy before you take it, because the samples these distant big houses send out do not represent the bulk. Sometimes in sending off for goods blinding mistakes are made and then you cannot help yourself. These men from the distant cities do not care whether you are satisfied or not. Trade with the home merchant and you will be better satisfied with yourself and everyone else."

CITIZENS' CAUCUS.

Friday evening the court house was crowded with citizens interested in nominations for city officers. Rollie James called the meeting to order, and A. A. Welch was elected temporary chairman and E. A. Lundburg temporary secretary, and later the temporary organization was made permanent.

On motion Jas. Britton was nominated for mayor by acclamation.

For clerk, A. T. Witter, O. A. King, Fred French, Tom Holtz and A. R. Davis were proposed. Messrs. Holtz and Davis declined. The ballot resulted in the nomination of A. T. Witter.

E. F. Feather and A. H. Howser were pitted against each other for police judge and the nomination fell to Mr. Feather on a standing vote.

Judge E. Hunter and S. R. Theobald were nominated for members of school board. Judge Hunter is a member of the board at present, his term and that of R. Q. Warnock expiring.

A motion prevailed that the chairman and secretary be authorized to fill vacancies and call the caucus one year hence.

Ward caucuses for nominating councilmen followed the adjournment of the main show. Citizens of the First ward met in J. P. Gaertner's furniture store and nominated W. B. Geldie. Second ward met at Channy Sewell's shop and nominated John Harmer. Dr. J. J. Williams was made the choice of the Third ward's meeting at the court house.

Perfect harmony seemed to prevail, there being no momentous local or national issues at stake.

She leaves a husband and three sons and one daughter.

MAN FOUND DEAD

Chas. Wagner Probably Killed by a Fall

FATALITY OCCURS IN ALTONA

Believed He Attempted to Climb the Stairs of Warehouse and Fell—Dr. Williams, Coroner, Summoned and Holds Inquest—Jury's Verdict Fixes No Cause for Death—Wagner an Old Settler.

Chas. Wagner, an unmarried man, aged about forty years, was found dead near a warehouse at Altona early Friday morning. It is believed he fell down a flight of stairs, causing injuries that resulted fatally. He occasionally slept in the upper story of the warehouse and it is thought that was his intention when he fell in attempting to go up the stairs. There was a St. Patrick's ball Thursday night and Wagner was seen frequently by different ones during the evening. He was last seen by a man named Pals who met him near the saloon between 12 and 1 o'clock Friday morning and says Wagner seemed to be sober and all right at that time.

Dr. J. J. Williams, coroner, was promptly summoned and held an inquest. A bruise was found on the dead man's head and one of his fingers was crushed. There were no other apparent injuries. The coroner's jury returned a verdict without assigning any cause for his death.

Chas. Wagner had been in this county for about twenty years and up to the time he accidentally shot and lost his arm a few years ago, he followed the work of a carpenter and contractor. Since then he has been painting, and was then engaged at Altona. He seems to have been especially unfortunate in the matter of accidents, having sustained a broken leg last fall. He was a brother at Stanton and mother in Council Bluffs. The remains were buried in the Altona cemetery.

LOCAL NEWS.

M. S. Davies is having his store building re-shingled.

The interior woodwork of Two Johns' store has been improved by a new coat of paint.

Members of the lodge of Ben Hur had a box supper in their lodge room Saturday evening. A program of recitations and music was rendered and all had a good time.

The building for the new telephone exchange is nearly completed, and work of putting in the system will begin next week, so the HERALD is informed by Mr. Bell. He proposes to run the wires underground for a distance of a half mile. It is expected that the system will be finished and in running order in sixty days.

Col. J. H. Hardy, an expert marksman with a rifle and revolver, gave an exhibition of his skill on the fair ground here Friday afternoon before a large number of spectators. He lives at Hymas, Neb., but is traveling and advertising for the Peters Powder Co. He is a first-class shot with a rifle or revolver, but Harry Fisher, a local marksman, proved more than a match for him in the use of shotguns.

Some youths who are passing through the mischievous age, have lately been stretching wires across walks to trip people at night. One woman became a victim of the wretched contrivance last week and had a violent fall. Serious injury might result, and city authorities should take a hand if the boys persist in annoying and endangering the public. Their growing energies ought to be directed in a better channel than that prompted by the instinct of wanton deviltry.

Jay M. Cole appeared before Justice Feather Sunday and lodged complaint against his brother-in-law, A. A. Chance, charging him with a misdemeanor. Cole who makes his home with the Chance family, alleged that Chance put him out of the house and kicked him. The accused was arrested and gave bonds for his appearance Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. In the meantime the two seem to have had a reconciliation, Cole withdrawing the complaint Monday morning and paying all costs.

Father Haley's lecture last Thursday night, vividly illustrated by stereopticon views, was attended by a large and appreciative audience, whose interest in the subject presented was held from first to last. He led his hearers on a "Tour Through Ireland" and did so to their perfect satisfaction, showing his great ability in the line of a lecturer. The appropriate music added an interesting feature, and the entertainment as a whole proved both pleasing and instructive. The cash receipts amounted to about $30.

Prof. Chas. Scanlon, one of the strongest lecturers on the platform along the line of moral reform, will speak in the Baptist church on Thursday and Friday evenings, April 7 and 8. We are assured that the people of Wayne county cannot get their expectations too high regarding these lectures and feel sure that here, as elsewhere, Prof. Scanlon will be greeted by a large attendance. Admission free to everybody, the expense having been provided by citizens of Wayne, that all may receive the benefits of the lectures.

A. B. CLARK, Wayne, Nebraska

He Expresses His Approval of American Emigration to Canada. During the winter months the head of the family consults with the other members as to the prospects for the future, and doubtless one of the most interesting topics discussed is that of moving to some district where it is possible to more easily secure what is necessary for a comfortable existence.

Having before us the knowledge where he can secure a home with the expenditure of but little money, it is well for him to obtain all the information possible regarding the possibilities of the land in the country that he may select. For several years past a large number of Americans have removed to Western Canada, and as nearly as it can be ascertained almost all of those who have expressed themselves satisfied with the conditions that exist there. During the past summer a number of the editors of farm papers throughout the United States made a personal visit to a tour of inspection, and the reports of these gentlemen prove interesting reading. Mr. H. E. Heath, editor of the Nebraska Farmer, a paper enjoying a wide circulation, as well as the confidence of its subscribers, after giving some idea of the extent of this wonderful country, says:

"Western Canada is the last unoccupied and unimproved good agricultural land in America available to-day." He then discusses its possibilities for raising live stock and the advantages it possesses for dairying, farming, and wheat growing, and says, "What has been said about the country as to the ability of the soil, the yield of wonderful crops of wheat, is quite justified."

To quote further from Mr. Heath, he says, referring to climate: "These people (skeptical ones) do not know or realize that altitude does not mean latitude makes climates; that large bodies of water, both fresh and salt, that never freeze over, exert a wonderful influence on climate. Another influence on climate, more potent than those named above, which applies more to the Alberta district, is the warm Chinook breeze from the Pacific Ocean, which is 600 or 700 miles nearer than Colorado or Wyoming, besides the Rocky Mountain range is not nearly so high nor half so far from the ocean as it is down in the States."

"In further considering the climate of the Canadian prairies, we should not lose sight of the fact of the influence of the rains; the total average rainfall for the season is but 13.35 inches for the territories and 17.34 inches in Manitoba, and that the amounts falling between April 1 and Oct. 1 are respectively 9.30 inches and 12.87 inches or about three-fourths of the entire rainfall. From the middle of June to the middle of July there are over two hours more daylight in every twenty-four hours than there is in Nebraska. The main reason why Western Canada wheat grows to such perfection is the effect of solar light, or longer period of sunshine it gets each day. This is what makes seeds of grain more perfect, grown in this country than elsewhere. This extraordinary rapid growth of vegetation under the influence of this long continued sunshine exceeds anything known in lower latitudes."

"We do not wish it understood that wheat alone is the main product of this country; it leads to that, yet it is destined to become famous for its cattle, horses and sheep and for its dairy products. We saw more and larger bands of cattle and sheep grazing in Alberta and Alberta than we ever saw on the western plains of the United States. One band of cattle numbered 5,000 head were grazing on the rich grass and sheep without number."

The Government of the Dominion of Canada is still using the same organic fertilizers which have been used for the past five or six years to settle up these western prairies, and on application to any Agent of the Canadian Government the settler will be able to secure a certificate entitling him to a low rate, which will give him the opportunity of visiting any portion of Canada's grain producing domain."

Original Meaning of "Spinster." "Spinster is the term that the law applies to the woman who is full married. The origin of the word dates back to the days when spinning was not done by machinery, but by hand. At that time every girl learned to spin as a matter of course, the same as she now learns to spell. She was obliged to spin a couple of hours each day, and what she produced belonged to her. Thus every girl by the time she came to get married, owned a great quantity of linen of her own make (that she brought, as a kind of dowry, to her husband. Every girl's leisure, up to the spinning of linen for use in the household of her spouse. Therefore every unmarried girl was called a spinster."

Spin-Righteous Man's Last Words. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst was talking about the self-righteous. "They are a strange class," he said. "Whenever I think of them I am reminded of a man who died in Leipzig while I was studying there, some thirty years ago. This man was so abominably self-righteous that they say he murmured as he lay dying: 'And if I live any man anything, I freely forgive him the debt.'"

The Chinese wear cotton garments all the year round. For warmth they wear silk, never wool.

CROSS-PURPOSES; OR, Saved at the Altar.

A Story of An American Girl.

BY MATTIE DYER BRITTS.

Vance got his hat and went with the old Squire in search of Achilles, the foreman of the field negroes. He was Aunt Nerva's "ole man," and his patrician name had been converted by his fellows into "Kilias," and passed as such into general household use. Miss Madeline remained in the dining room to give some directions to her maids, Louis and Marcie went out on errands.

"It is so lovely to stay in doors," said Louis. "Suppose we ride over to Leslie's and make a call?" "Agreed," said Marcie. "I'm dying to see Maggie's wedding dress, anyway. It only came home last night."

"I had rather see yours," said Louis, with a smiling glance, which now seemed to be directed at Marcie's cheek. She was not half so happy in her engagement as she had hoped to be. "I will go and get ready," she said, anxious to escape, as she always was when Louis tried love-making. She had promised to marry him, she meant to keep her word, and be a good and faithful wife. But she could not bear to let him make love to her, and she vaguely wondered if all girls felt so when they were engaged. Maggie didn't, she was sure. But then Maggie almost worshipped Lionel, while she—well, perhaps she might come to love Louis as much—as after a while.

The ride to Leslie's was very pleasant, and the welcome they met as hearty as ever. Marcie went upstairs with Maggie to see the wedding dress, just home from Louisville. Of course, Maggie had to be in the parlor with Mr. Le Dru while they were gone—it would not be polite to leave him alone. The wedding robe was lying in state upon the bed in a spare chamber, a lovely creation of pearl white silk and frosty lace, the wreath of orange blossoms in a white box close by, with the long, white gloves and fan. The dress was really beautiful, and Marcie could hardly express her admiration.

"Yes, it is pretty enough," said Maggie. "But I wish I could wear it. I shall look like a black ghost, if there is such a thing, in all that moon-shiny white stuff! Red and black would suit me much better."

"Red and black would be a very odd bride for Marcie. 'Though it would become you better than white, your bright little brunette. It is a pity all young brides are doomed to wear white, whether they look well in it or not."

"You will be lovely in it," cried Maggie. "Do you know I haven't got ready for the double wedding yet? I do think you and Louis might be married at six o'clock."

"But I'm not ready, and won't be for two months yet," said Marcie, blushing deeply. "Well, you might be bridesmaid, any how."

"No, Maggie, dear, you know I am too busy; and as I am so soon to be a bride myself, it would be very embarrassing. Please, put somebody else in my place."

"Do so, dear Florry. You see, a mere trifle, the dropping of a card photograph—has led to this journey, and whatever it may result in."

"So, dear Florry. You see, a mere trifle, the dropping of a card photograph—has led to this journey, and whatever it may result in."

Monday morning everybody was early, as the old Hall Miss Madeline had ordered a very early breakfast, so that Vance might be in time to catch the train for Lexington, and make connections at Lexington Junction for Cincinnati.

"Be sure you are back in time," whispered Marcie, as he bade her good-by. "I shall surely be here for that," returned Vance, grimly, holding her close for one short instant. She did not say in time for what, but he well understood her. Yes, he would return in time for her wedding, even though he came as an unbidden guest.

Sam drove Vance to town in the light wagon, so as to take his large valise also. After they were fairly upon the road, Sam gave vent to several tremendous sighs, took off his hat, scratched his head vigorously, hitched at his suspenders, where a rusty nail did duty as a button, and said to Vance, who was sitting by his side, "What's the matter with you?"

"Well, Sam, I see you want to tell me. Out with it, said Vance, encouragingly. "I have you got into a scrape, in any way?" And he gave Sam a quizzical look.

"No, Marsie Vance, I ain't. I don't try to behave myself 'de best' I kin. 'Tain't 'long of my meanness. But I gwine tell you, 'kase I 'low somebody oughter know."

"What do you mean, Sam?" asked Vance, with an uneasy feeling, as he knew Sam was no gossip. "I's talkin' 'bout my betters, I s'pose," said Sam, "but I mean Marsie Le Dru, dat's what I mean."

Vance felt the blood bound hot in his veins. "Sam," he said, sternly, "if you know anything of Louis Le Dru's actions, tell me. At what I gwine to do, Marsie Vance. Is it de positive' truth dat Marsie Le Dru 'n' Miss Marbury gwine to git married?"

"I suppose it is, Sam."

"Sorry for it, Marsie Vance. I's only pore black nigger, an' he bery fine gentleman, but he ain't got 'nuff 'bout Marsie Vance. Dere's a reason 'fo' dat sayin' 'oh, my nuff'."

"Well, Sam, give me your reason."

"Marsie Vance," began Sam, solemnly, "hah you see anything wrong wid Miss Myry Leslie, lately?"

"No, I haven't. What do you mean, boy? I thought you were talking about Mr. Le Dru."

"Yes, but his actions is 'nuff to make a smart wab. 'Tis so!"

"Sam, do you understand what you are talking about?" he asked sternly. "Yes, sah, I does! De old song says, 'nigger court but one,' but Marsie Le Dru, he done court two, bote to ouet—Miss Marbury 'n' Miss Myry."

"Sam," said Vance, "I'm looking for a look of injured innocence. 'Marsie Vance, did you eiber know me to lie?"

"No, Sam. But this is a serious matter. 'So 'tis, Marsie Vance, or I'd nigger made bote to tell you. But it's gospel truth, 'fo' hah seed—hah Lily Leslie. De last time I s'pionced anything was de Leslie's party. You 'member Miss Myry couldn't be found 'fo' awhile?"

A REASON FOR LENT.

By Rev. H. P. Nichols. And men as bad as the theologian and the preacher make them out to be? Not in the uniform and technical way in which the standards of the gospel and by the measure of their own awakened conscience they are as bad as far from good, as any preaching puts them. Every day life is constantly knocking out the spiritual nature.

The parable of the sower is perhaps the best presentation of the way men treat religion. Some harden themselves, some give it a light and passing interest, some receive it enthusiastically and then choke it out from their crowded lives.

St. Mark tells us that one of the things which choke out religion is the lusts of other things. They go to church, hear and receive the gospel, enroll themselves in the church's membership, plan their part in duty and service, by and by they are found but rarely at the church, as present at the Lord's table only on a great festival, drop their sense of responsibility for the church's maintenance and life. What is the reason? The lusts of other things, spiritual nature is being choked. He is honest, good to his family, a respectable citizen. He has other things in his hands, which matter that he loses his religious life. Let his neighbors all imitate him. Let a generation grow up without any of the religion which he had in his youth. Let there be among men only material interests, without any spiritual ideals behind them. Weeds are ready to grow in every garden. A godless, Christless, churchless world would be a world of beasts, though they were twentieth century beasts, educated, refined, ingenious. A material mastery, gaped at the expense of spiritual earnestness, would turn its ingenuity to deriving the quickest ending for life. The loss of spiritual quality from human life is the loss in the long run of humanity's one reason for being.

The lusts of other things put that spiritual quality most in peril. These "other things" that men desire, lust after, are not bad things. They are even necessary for the lower ranges of human life. They are allowed to become absorbing. They use up all the vitality of the man; he has nothing to spare for the higher. The peril to religion, the loss from church worship and church consecration are due not so much to hardness of heart, to vicious living, as to material preoccupation. The lusts of other things are a reason for the pause and the searchlight of Lent.

What, in the large, are these "other things" that choke out religion? There is, first, one's occupation, that which it is one's business to do in the world. The seed of religion once sown and rooted, we go to our work, the school, the home, the store. To that a man owes his best. Yet all material work should be from a recognized spiritual background. Bread is earned, the house is ordered, the lesson is mastered, not merely to satisfy the craving of appetite, to enjoy one's ease, to know one more language and die. An ideal vision lurks within all such material activity, even in the grossest nature, of service to the world, of bringing in the kingdom, of ripening on to the divine. All work, in the profession, the home, the study, gets at once inspiration and value from the spiritual purpose in the life of man. To choke the spiritual nature with material occupation is as the sin of the soldier who destroys the body with the soldier's own sustenance.

Companionship are a second lust of other things that choke religion. Companionship is as essential to a man as work. It may be false or it may ennobling. We make it our first concern to secure for our children companions we can trust. We leave the spiritual light in our own matured lives to be dimmed in the attractive company of the careless, the cynical, and the irreligious.

Love of novelty is another showy weed that chokes the spiritual life in man. The latest book, discovery, amusement leads us as captive and lands us far from what has done the best work for our lives, from all we hold dear. A creed or a sect is not accredited because it is new. Man's deeper life needs not new truths or new methods so much as a fresh presentation of the old, and a deeper earnestness in using and commending what he has as God's gift.

To the uprooting of these choking lusts of other things, absorbing business, unwelcome friendships, a running after novelties, Lent bids us. It is not the openly defiant transgressors of law that occasion questioning anxiety in the hearts of religious people to-day. It is rather those who, with good seed sown and taking a promising start, are failing to bear fruit because of the lusts of other things. If the well born and privileged sons and daughters of the church are irreligious, where can we look for the church's support? Are we letting "other things" use up the spiritual capacity in our lives, and are missing for ourselves and our fellows the purpose and the beauty of living?

THE GREAT NEED OF THE CHURCH. By Rev. J. L. Coburn. The angel of the Lord bade Joseph to call the son of man, Jesus, at his birth. "Thou shalt call his name Immanuel," which being interpreted, is, "God with us." God manifested in the flesh. The Apostles believed in God, the son. They felt safe in his presence. He was their guide, their teacher, their power. They looked to him for strength to accomplish in them, and through them, whatever he

A Concluding Incident. One Sunday a young man called on his best girl. After they had talked until they could not think of any more to say, he declared his intention of kissing her. She was very indignant and said she would tell her father if he did. Remembering the old saying that "Paint never wears upon old lady," the young man dared and succeeded in planting a fairly respectable kiss somewhere behind her ear. The young woman arose hastily and walked into the other room.

"Pa," she said, "Mr. Smith wants to see your new gun." "All right," said the old man, delighted with the chance of showing off his new gun. Taking it from the rack, he stepped into the drawing-room. The young man broke four windows in getting out, and when last seen he was still running bareheaded down the road.

Completely Surrounded. Dr. S. M. Erickson, president of the Society of the Gineases, tells a story of Oliver Herford, who was surrounded by a number of his friends in a drawing-room in London, when another friend approached him and said: "I see, Mr. Herford, you are surrounded by your coterie." "Yes," responded Mr. Herford; "by my coterie, and my vestry and pantry well!"—New York Times.

Eight Years of Torture. No suffering more keen than kidney suffering. Sick kidneys make bad blood, cause weakness, and aching back, cause blind, sick and dizzy headaches, lack of appetite and loss of sleep; keep you all tired out and spoil digestion. To have perfect health, you must cure the kidneys. Read how one man was cured by Doan's Kidney Pills after eight years of torture: Henry Soule, of Putney St., Hammondsport, N. Y., says: "For eight years I suffered constant agony from kidney complaint. I had the worst tortures from gravel and the kidney secretions were excessive and contained sediment like brick dust. I had to get out of bed from ten to twenty times a night and the loss of sleep wore me out. Indigestion came on and the distress after eating was terrible. Doan's Kidney Pills effected a complete and lasting cure, and after the symptoms of kidney trouble were gone my stomach began to work like it should. This lasting cure, especially in a person of my age, proves the great value of Doan's Kidney Pills more convincingly than could any words of mine."

Doan's Kidney Pills sold by all druggists, price 50 cents per box, or mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Write for free trial.

Put and Kettle. The following educational incident takes fair rank among the humor of the age: A young German studying in this country had received back his theme from his instructor in English. On it were some notes in red ink, which the student could not decipher. Accordingly he took it to the tutor in order that he might not miss some important advice. "I beg your pardon, sir," he said, "but I can't make out this correction here. It's—it's a little hard to read." The instructor took the theme, scowled at it critically, and then said, with some show of irritation: "Why, it says it says, 'Write more legibly!'"

His Own Way. "Do you ever have your own way?" asked the cynical near relative. "Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "Sometimes I do my own way, but not without consulting Henry's advice. I never before I make up my mind."—Washington Star.

The Practice of Medicine Becoming Specialized

The Physicians of the Large Cities the First to Adopt it and There are Many Now throughout the Country.

Specialism is the idea of the day. Not that every physician can be a specialist, nor would it be justifiable in every doctor becoming one, but there are advantages which can be derived only by a special practice which is applicable to certain communities even though the physician himself is not a bona fide resident of that immediate vicinity. Small towns and the country are the principal communities in which a specialist could scarcely prosper, but as practiced by some specialists, that of going from one city to another, making visits and seeing patients at regular appointed intervals, one can derive advantages far superior to those one would receive in many instances where they visited the cities.

We cite, for instance, that of Dr. Caldwell, a specialist of Omaha, who is and has been making regular visits to our community for the last two years. Dr. Caldwell came well recommended and has succeeded in establishing a practice far beyond her expectation. She has made many cures and has succeeded in building up a reputation and practice among those whom she has cured that would be hard to get away from her. Dr. Caldwell is a lady from the new school. Her experience and training have been that of many years' practice and vast experience. She confines herself to the treatment of chronic, lingering and deep-seated ailments. She pretends to cure only such diseases as she has had sufficient experience with in handling, and does not go into that class of incurable diseases which in many instances it is useless to bother with.

As a result of long experience, Dr. Caldwell is thoroughly familiar with her specialties. In the treatment of cancer, consumption, heart disease, nervousness and female diseases, there are very few specialists better qualified to treat them than Dr. Caldwell. Some of her cures seem almost like miracles. People from far and near consult her as she makes these regular visits and she is always busy from the time she arrives until her time of departure. It is claimed by Dr. Caldwell's friends that she can diagnose a disease without a question. This being the case, she is not liable to doctor her patient for the wrong ailment, which is many times done by physicians of inexperience. Dr. Caldwell does not treat typhoid fever, whooping cough, measles, and those acute diseases for which the local home physician is called upon to treat. It is not her desire to antagonize nor to take from the home physician that part of the business which really belongs to him. Many times Dr. Caldwell is called in consultation with the home physician and the kindest of feelings should exist between them.

Dr. Caldwell is charitable. In many instances where people are devoid of funds to pay for their services she charges in such cases for the medicine only and no person, no matter how humble, has she ever turned away without seeking to give them relief.

By permission we are pleased to publish a few of the many cures she has made throughout the state of Nebraska. These are only a few as time and space will not permit us to publish more:

Mrs. Henry Oaskill, Cozad, Nebraska, cured of nervous trouble, female and stomach trouble of long standing.

Mr. John Underwood, Bancroft, Nebraska, cured of stomach and heart trouble.

Mrs. John Connelly, Akron, Nebraska, cured of cancer.

Mrs. Henry Sloan, Albion, Nebraska, cure of female, heart and kidney trouble.

Mrs. Mary Vorgt, Norfolk, Nebraska, cured of stomach trouble, varicose veins and rheumatism.

Republicans of the Sixth district have re-nominated Congressman Kluska by acclamation—an honor of which he is eminently deserving.

William E. Andrews of Hastings, auditor of the Treasury department at Washington, has yielded to the entreaties of his friends to run as a candidate for United States senator. His announcement comes a little late to detract much from the Burkett boom.

It looks as though Senator Dietrich would be vindicated by the senatorial committee and that his accuser, District Attorney Summers, would soon have to shed his official toga. It would appear that Dietrich is guilty of nothing worse than being a cipher in the realm of statesmanship.

In yesterday's Norfolk Daily News W. Robertson announces the withdrawal of his candidacy for governor. Harrison of Grand Island, is the only man still in the race against Gov. Micokey. With both Robertson and Dinmore out of the way, the chances for Micokey's re-nomination have materially strengthened.

William R. Hearst has arranged to establish Nebraska headquarters at Lincoln for the purpose of scattering literature and otherwise promoting his presidential candidacy. We are in favor of Hearst for the democratic nomination for the same reason expressed by another paper—because he is a newspaper man and we can't be any to beat. Editors are somewhat cleanish and always like to help each other.

On reflection we are inclined to oppose the Rockefeller gift for a specific purpose. We would favor accepting the money as a sort of refund due on account of loss in buying weak oil at strong prices, but would drop it into the state's general fund, so it would lose its identity. Then, after shaking the sack, containing the whole fund, we would appropriate from it enough money to put up the desired building.

Henry Waterson says that Theodore Roosevelt will be the only democratic issue in the coming campaign, that silver will not be mentioned and that the party's platform should be short. People readily recognize the sickly plight of democracy without an issue and that the party will be forced to stand on a platform of ambiguous generalities, fighting Roosevelt on the ground that he isn't doing things right and should be replaced by a democrat, who could insure as good if not better times than we had from '98 to '96.

A great deal is being written these days as a warning against agents who are trying to induce girls to go to St. Louis, in a view of the position, ostensibly for worthy employment, though in reality to become entrapped in the villain's web and lost in the maelstrom of vice. Human hyenas, luring innocent girls to degradation and ruin, are the most pernicious enemies of society and their nefarious designs should be thwarted by an alert public. It is suggested that an organized effort be made to protect young women and prevent them from falling into traps ardently laid in St. Louis. It is the duty of parents and others who have a sense of the importance of social purity and wish to avoid wrecked homes and broken hearts, to surround and surround with good influences, give proper instruction and otherwise guard them against cunning, daring demons who would insure them in leprous meshes and cause their permanent ruin. Circulars sent broadcast from St. Louis, emphasize the warning and outline plans to be followed by strengthening protection. Organization of church societies for that purpose, co-operating with one in the exposition city, is suggested.

THE GOSPEL OF WORK.

President Roosevelt is not only an exemplar of integrity and high impulses, but of applied energy. He believes in work as indispensable to right living and never misses an opportunity to preach to the young the gospel of work. "It is not enough to know the true sense of the word if he does not work," declared the president on one occasion, and only the tramp who lives an idle, useless life of roving which scorns honest endeavor and mocks at any human need that is in excess of enough to eat, a place to sleep and a coat to cover for the body, will dispute the statement. In treating this subject, the Portland Oregonian comments as follows:

"It is true that there is in the world a myriad of workers who, for all that they have of the fruits of their hands to show for the year's work, might as well have spent their time in turning an empty coffee mill, but the gospel of work has reached even these, and graciously given them returns in the self-respect that waits on busy hands, and the insurance against mischief that is the need of industry."

"Opposed to this wholesome gospel is the religion of idleness, the religion that work is a burden and the necessity of work a misfortune. Nothing is more common than the expression of sympathy for working people, based upon the fact that they must work in order to support themselves and families. It is not unusual to hear the expression of pitying tones as a man who 'kolls from sun to sun,' and his wife and children as drudges, defrauded of the right to the enjoyment of life by the constant requirements of a treadmill existence. Yet at the same time the thrifty farmer is acknowledged to be an example of many independence, and his occupation is lauded as the oldest and most honorable of industries. Pity for the honest, cheerful worker whose hands are directed by his brains is a sentiment grossly misplaced. It is, in fact, a gratuitous insult to the individual and should be vigorously repudiated. Pity is for the sick, the maimed and the orphaned, and the gospel of labor, thus instigated, practically applied, comes to their relief by furnishing means to supply their needs. It is but wisdom when it is applied to able-bodied intelligence that it regards work as the necessity of civilization and substitutes cheerfully to the simple tenets of its gospel as requisite to the temporal and spiritual welfare of mankind."

The policy of holding one caucus and permitting it to practically settle the municipal election is certainly naive. Though no special issues, there ought to be two or more tickets in the field, to arouse interest and afford a greater number of candidates for the choice of voters. The more candidates and the more rivalry, the better it is for a city government. A man who is elected after a spirited contest, will exercise greater care in managing affairs than he will if the office falls to him from the hands of a public that regards the trust with apparent indifference. If a caucus were sufficiently representative to supersede the election, the latter could be entirely dispensed with aside from the formality of complying with the law. With but one caucus, it performs the rare feat of the tail wagging the dog. The election is merely a listless confirmation. The HERALD is surprised that a city the size of Wayne should have followed the course.

DEWEY IS ACQUITTED

MILLIONAIRE CATTLEMAN NOT GUILTY OF MURDER.

Cowboys Also Found Guiltless—Outcome of a Long Standing Feud in Kansas, Which Resulted in the Killing of Burchard Berry.

Channey Dewey and his two cowboys, Clyde Wilson and William J. McBride, were acquitted of the charge of murdering Burchard Berry by a jury which had considered the case twenty-eight hours. Channey Dewey, a young millionaire ranch owner, went to Cheyenne County, Kan., early in 1900 to manage the Dewey ranch. Soon after his arrival he became involved in trouble with the Berry family, who were also prominent cattlemen. Frivolous misunderstandings grew into serious differences, which culminated in the killing of Burchard Berry in June, 1908, at the home of Alpheus Berry during a fight in which Dewey and ten of his cowboys were pitted against all of the Berrys. Dewey and his cowboys went to the Berry ranch to get a tank that Dewey had bought in at a sheriff's sale. The feud had grown bitter before this time, and when the Deweys started to take the tank away the Berry boys rode up and a battle took place between the two factions. Burchard, Alpheus and Daniel Berry were killed. Dewey, McBride and Wilson were indicted on three separate counts, this trial being upon that of killing Burchard Berry. Eighteen ballots were taken before a verdict was reached. The seven Dewey cowboys, O'Neill, Charles Wilson, Tucker, Slater, Dey, Armentrout and Wisniewski, who came to Norton to testify for the defense, and who were arrested after their arrival on the charge of being accomplices in the murder of Burchard Berry, will appear in a justice court next Wednesday and give bonds of $1,000 each. They will waive preliminary hearing and their cases will be set for the December term of court.

AMERICANS IN FIGHT.

Four Hundred Men Defeat a Force of 2,000 Moros.

News of an important military engagement has just been received at Manila, P. I., from Catabano, capital of the province of Mindanao. On March 7 a detachment of the Seventeenth and Twenty-third infantry, Troop B, Fourteenth cavalry and Gately's Battery C, all in 450 strong, under command of Gen. Leonard Wood, attacked and captured a fort which was held by Datu Ali, who resists the anti-slavery law. His defensive works were destroyed and their abandonment forced by the accurate fire of the battery. Two thousand Moros made their retreat, with a loss of 100. The Americans sustained no losses. Twenty-four cannon, forty-six native artillery and a large quantity of ammunition were captured and the fortification reduced.

VIOLENCE IN KANSAS CITY.

Non-Union Hack Drivers Badly Injured.

Albert Ferguson, a non-union hack driver, was shot and mortally wounded at Kansas City, Mo., by one of four men, probably strikers, who had decoyed him into the outskirts of the city. The men escaped. In another part of the city Andrew Meyers, a non-union hack driver, was badly beaten by strikers, and at still another point a hack driven by a strike breaker was demolished by main men. No arrests were made. Judge Phillips, of the United States court, on petition of the Transfer Association, granted a temporary injunction against the strikers, restraining the members of Hack Drivers' local, No. 459, of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., from interfering in any way with the business of the companies. The writs are returnable March 30.

No Elections in Ohio.

There will be no municipal elections in Ohio this spring. Gov. Herrick has signed the Chapman bill abolishing spring elections, and it is now a law. The terms of all elective municipal officers which would have expired in April have been extended until after the election next November.

Hitchcocking Proves Fatal.

Edward S. Caldwell, an influential and wealthy farmer and father of Edward F. Caldwell, a Rock Island railroad official died at Laporte, Ind., after four days of continuous hitchcocking, which resisted all treatment. He was born in New York in 1827.

Pledge Cost Him His Life.

Sick unto death, Fred Baum, 62 years old, 5200 Emerald Avenue, Chicago, kept his promise to vote for a friend, and died shortly after casting his ballot.

Another Reduction in Grain Rates.

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway has announced another reduction in grain rates. The changes affect all Iowa points on shipments destined east of the Illinois and Indiana state lines. There will be a general reduction.

Sues for $200,000 Damages.

The Bates Machine Company of Joliet Ill., which secured a writ of injunction against the machinists' union and its members, has brought suit for $200,000 damages against the same defendants.

One Negro Killed.

A. C. McGiven, a negro, was killed, Deputy Sheriff Clemens and Senhorn Cook probably fatally injured, and Mrs. Williamson, a white woman, slightly wounded, in a fight between negroes and deputy sheriffs about two miles west of Bessemer, Ala. The cause of the trouble is unknown.

Twenty-Seven Ballists Drowned.

The German bark Emma, which was carrying twenty-seven ballists, was wrecked in the Bay, Ireland. The Lady Cairns sank in a few minutes. Her crew of twenty-two were drowned.

SULLY "GOES BROKE."

King of Cotton Market Proclaims His Fall.

Daniel J. Sully, the cotton operator, who has for fifteen months been the biggest figure in the cotton markets of the world, and who has "bulled" cotton for 7 cents a pound over 17 cents, announced his inability to make good his engagements on the New York cotton exchange Friday. Within a few moments cotton fell nearly $12 a bale from the highest figures of the day.

Spears such as followed the announcement of the failure it has been the privilege of few brokers to witness before.

Traders in the street have witnessed stock panics in previous years; corners have been broken and many trashes have been recorded, but none has been accompanied by such frenzy and confusion. Shortly after the afternoon session, there was a lull in the pit, and about five minutes after 2 o'clock the announcement of the suspension was made by Superintendent King.

For a few seconds there was an ominous quiet over the floor, as though the news had stunned all within hearing of the announcement. Then, with one impulse, a mighty shout went up from the bears, they who had been fighting Sully and the bull clique for months. This was thrown into the air to fall where they would, a moment later to be trampled upon by the stamped for the pit. Coats were torn by frantic brokers in their mad efforts to unload their holdings, and chairs and camp stools were dashed into the pit to emphasize some wild broker's offer to sell.

Messengers soon were rushing in and out of the building with orders to sell or buy; telephone booths were besieged, and telegraph offices were flooded with dispatches. Outside the cotton exchange appearances gave little indication of the pandemonium within until the messengers began to rush between the exchange and the brokers' offices.

It was estimated that something like three-quarters of a million bales of cotton were traded in during the twenty minutes of the panic that followed the announcement. Of this upwards of half a million bales represented "forced liquidation," of the selling out of men whose margins have been nearly or quite wiped out. As the market slumped 250 points during this period, the loss falling on this element amounted to something over $1,000,000.

FOR HORRIBLE BUTCHERY.

Waiter is Sentenced to Life Imprisonment at Detroit.

Emil Waitse of Detroit, Mich., was found guilty of murdering 4-year-old Alphonse Welmes, whose horribly mutilated body was found Aug. 18, 1903, in the rear of the Detroit stove works, and sentenced to imprisonment for life.

The slaughter of the Welmes boy was a horrible crime. When found the child's hands were wired together behind his back, and a rag made of a red handkerchief protruded from the mouth of the little victim, having been stuffed down his throat. The clothing was disarranged, and the middle part of the body was mutilated in a shocking manner. The body had been discolored; there were seven gashes around the thighs and hips, and the face was badly bruised. Across the right hip there was another awful gash, while the backs of both thighs were laid open. An examination by County Physician Pulzker revealed the fact that the little boy's neck was broken.

Coffelt had been tried four times on the charge, each trial resulting in a hung jury. The case has been in the courts for two years. Montgomery was killed the evening of Oct. 5, 1901. He had just finished supper a few minutes before and sat down at a table in the sitting room of his home prepared to make out his weekly reports to the main office in Topeka. He was busily engaged upon this work when a shot was fired, and he fell out of his chair upon the floor dead.

CLEAR'S ATMOSPHERE.

Bristow Not Wholly Responsible for Report.

Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, in testifying before the house special committee on the postoffice report at Washington Thursday, claimed for himself responsibility for only the first seven pages of the report which was sent to the postoffice committee, and said the other portions of the document were the work of other officials of the department. The clerk hire section, he said, was prepared in the office of the first assistant postmaster general, and that part relating to leases by inspectors and others in his own department.

Mr. Bristow's testimony threw considerable light on all phases of the inquiry. He practically cleared members of congress from wrong doing touching the clerk hire section of the report, by stating that it was the duty of the first assistant's office to ascertain the condition of the work in an office where an increase had been recommended.

At the first open session of the house postoffice investigating committee Thursday afternoon Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow, was on the stand. Asked how the special report was made up, he said that on Jan. 22 last the postmaster general referred to him the letter from Mr. Overstreet, which appears in the report. He personally prepared on Jan. 23 the statement on pages 4 and 5, with the letters appearing on pages 6 and 7. In answer, Mr. Overstreet wrote the postmaster general asking the additional information.

The first information referred to is that concerning the lease cases of Representatives Wadsworth of New York, Lilley of Connecticut, and Bowersock of Kansas. The second letter recited that there were a number of cases where "illegal and improper allowances were made," and that it would require time to make a compilation.

FOR BIG COMBINE.

The night of Jan. 25, Mr. Bristow said, he was taken sick with the grip, and he was unable to be in his office until last Monday, March 14. "I had nothing further personally to do with the matter," continued Mr. Bristow. "I am informed that the postmaster general asked that the office of the fourth assistant postmaster general prepare the information asked for, and that it was prepared by inspectors and turned over to the postmaster general by the chief inspector."

H. D. About 150 feet west of No. 18, also standing still, was Chicago and Northwestern engine No. 5, with way car No. 1791, to the west of the engine and about 150 feet west of the engine. Freight No. 20, with a heavy string of cars and running about twenty-five miles an hour, according to the best judgment of those who saw the accident, crashed into the Chicago and Northwestern way car, pushing it and the Chicago and Northwestern engine up to the way car at the end of Union Pacific No. 20.

The crew in the Northwestern way car, which was struck first by the incoming train, jumped and saved their lives, but Switchman Conolly, standing on the end of the Union Pacific way car into which the incoming train and the Northwestern engine and way car plunged, was caught and killed instantly. His head and limbs were mangled, and his head and body more or less bruised. The police ambulance and surgeons immediately were summoned, but the young man was beyond aid. Mr. Stephen Riess of Sinton has been offered a position in a Japan school which he has declined. He expects to leave for Japan soon. Between three and four inches of snow covered the ground at Table Rock last week. Much good will result therefrom, as the earth was very dry before. Commencing Saturday afternoon and continuing through the night there was a severe storm of rain, hail and snow at Harvard, accompanied by lightning. At a meeting of the board of trustees of the Cheyenne high school, Prof. W. A. Finnegan of Shelby, was unanimously elected principal for the ensuing year. A Swede named Felix Hammerquist was lustily killed at Columbus by being struck by a Union Pacific train as it came into the station. He was intoxicated at the time. Her mania was caused by religious excitement. Joseph Morfield of Columbia, is suffering from a seriously torn tongue. The stem of a cob pipe was driven through it in a fight with such force that it could be drawn out except by means of a surgeon's knife and a tapered tongue required two big stitches afterwards to pull it together. George W. Carter, who for six months past has been the cashier in the bank at Dakota City, has severed his connection with that institution and will resume his old position as passenger conductor on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railroad between Sioux City and Omaha. In view of the fact that Captain G. W. Stes will temporarily leave Omaha, and that the city has a vacant position, the commander of the Military Police, Lt. Remington, has declined to assume the responsibilities of a commanding officer, the possibilities are that the company will be mustered out of the service. The manumission case of Mrs. Sarah Dimmick against the Fremont school district was decided by Judge Hollenbeck in favor of the relocator. Between three and four inches of wet, heavy snow fell at Crete, bringing joy to the heart of the farmer and stopping for a time, at least, the dust and sand which have so frequently swept the streets of late fall and winter. It already suffered much from the frost and wind storms, will be greatly benefited by this timely moisture. George Reiter of Lincoln alleges that the Burlington Railroad allowed him to work with a "jack" marked O. K., which is not O. The accident happened in December in the freight yards at Lincoln. At Fremont the other day a normal student wearing a big cowboy hat and a suit decidedly western cut was walking down Main Street when about thirty town boys began to follow him. Their aim was so good that he was obliged to retreat. About an hour later he showed up again. The boys were hugging him and gave him a hot reception. He laboriously pulled out a big six-shooter, and in an instant there wasn't a bullet left. WAR IN THE ORIENT

Progress of Struggle Between Muscovite and Mongol.

SIX WEEKS OF STRIFE

Contest Up to the Present Time Has Resulted Favorably for the Japs.

Russia slowly assembling its armies on the Yalu, while Japan lands troops in Korea and rushes them to the front—Bombardments of Port Arthur and Dairen, Culminate in Torpedo-Boat Battle—Czar's Losses Heavy.

The sixth week of the Oriental war was a week of bombardment. It began with the sudden appearance of the Japanese fleet under Admiral Uru at Vladivostok and its attack on the Russian stronghold. The forts did not reply, either because it was preferred not to reveal the location of the guns to the enemy, or as a ruse of war.

ADMIRAL TOGO, later report has it, because they lacked ammunition, most of it having been sent to Port Arthur. A small boat was killed by a shell and several sailors wounded.

Several bombardments of Port Arthur and Dairen culminated in a battle between the Russian torpedo flotilla and Japanese torpedo-boat destroyers encountered in the Liao Tsin Shan strait. One vessel was sunk on each side, and there must have been considerable loss of life. This was followed by a severe bombardment of the harbor, in which there was some loss of life, two women in the town being among the victims.

St. Petersburg promptly denied the story that Port Arthur had been abandoned. When one reflects that such action would necessarily include the destruction of the Russian fleet and the abandonment or removal inland of the main coast defense guns in the forts about the city, not to mention those at Dairen, and the surrender of authority over southern Manchuria to the Japanese, one can understand how improbable was the story.

It must be conceded that the Russians are making an astonishingly feeble display of ability and resourcefulness in meeting the attacks of Admiral Togo. Their losses are heavy and they do not retaliate upon the enemy in a way sufficient even to dampen his ardor. The battle of the torpedo boat destroyers showed courage, but from the Russian and Japanese official reports it is clear that the Russians failed to hold their own against an inferior number of Japanese vessels.

The fighting was close and furious until the Russians retreated further into the city which the big guns of the battleships carried on for three hours and a half on Thursday was more effective than such bombardments usually are. Admiral Togo having arranged his cruisers in such a manner that they could observe the effect of each shot and signal to the battleships to correct the aim.

Russia is slowly assembling its armies on the Yalu and making preparations for a great battle. Japan is landing troops in Korea and rushing them to the front with the prospect that she will compel Russia to accept her position, simply because the movements of the latter's army are so slow.

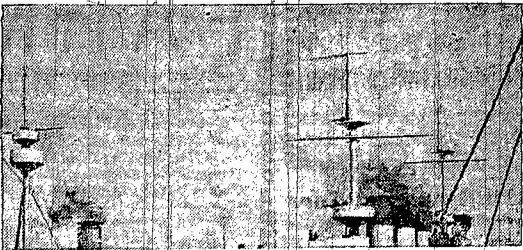

JAPANESE LAUNCHING A WHITE TORPEDO.

ADMIRAL TOGO, later report has it, because they lacked ammunition, most of it having been sent to Port Arthur. A small boat was killed by a shell and several sailors wounded.

The attitude of China is one of doubt. The imperial forces have been assembling on the Manchurian border, ready for an opportunity for a forward movement. Large bands of Chinese bandits have been harassing the Russian rear and committing depredations which may call for serious attention. The Chinese are manifestly hostile to Russia, and may not much longer be held in restraint. If they should break loose, there would be an Eastern war of so large proportions as to involve more than one European nation. This possibility keeps Europe on the qui vive.

The international situation is better. Russia has warned China that she will be held responsible if her troops are not kept in check. President Roosevelt has issued an executive order that civil, military and naval employees of the government must refrain from actions or expressions which would tend to irritate either belligerent.

THE WEEKLY HISTORIAN

Proper Amount of Sleep.

A proper amount of sleep is of course absolutely essential to continued good health; but if dietetic habits are correct, it is a matter which will regulate itself. If a rule is needed, one will follow naturally from the fact that almost every one feels languid on waking and is disposed to take another nap, no matter how long he has been sleeping. This is a morbid sensation which it would take too long to explain here. It is enough to say that lack of sleep should be made up, if possible, at the beginning and not at the end. The best general rule is to rise at a given hour every morning, whether tired or not, and go to bed when sleepy.—St. Nicholas.

For Growing Girls.

West Pembroke, Me., March 21st.—Mrs. A. L. Smith, of this place, says that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for growing girls. Mrs. Smith emphasizes her recommendation by the following experience: "My daughter was thirteen years old last November and it is now two years since she was first taken with Crazy Spells that would last a week and would then pass off. In a month she would have the spells again. At these times she would eat very little and was very yellow, even the whites of her eyes would be yellow. "The doctors gave us no encouragement; they all said they could not help her. After taking one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills, she has not had one bad spell. Of course, we continued the treatment until she had used in all about a dozen boxes, and we still give them to her occasionally, when she is not feeling well. Dodd's Kidney Pills are certainly the best medicine for growing girls. Mothers should heed the advice of Mrs. Smith, for by so doing they may save their daughters much pain and sickness and insure a healthy, happy future for them.

Practical View.

"After all," remarked the sentimental wife, "home is the dearest spot on earth." "Yes, verily," rejoined her husband, "but the matrimonial trust, as he finished auditing last month's grocery bill.

PURMAN FADELESS DYES cost but 10 cents per package.

The Fatal Finger Imprint.

Glories will soon be won by an indisputable part of every burglar's outfit. The other day Mr. Denman, of the London courts, sentenced a man to twelve months' hard labor on the sole evidence of the impressions of the middle finger of his left hand. This method of identifying a prisoner, far more certain than photography, was in use, we believe, in China years before its adoption in any European country, and in conjunction with the Bertillon system, has been used in France successfully for a decade or so. It is a strange thing that nature should have so provided every man with a witness against himself, a witness which he cannot be rid of. Disguise can alter the face until a photograph, however careful, is useless for identification, and even the elaborated deliberate infliction of some new mark on the body. But if a criminal mutilate the end of his finger, such mutilation alone would suffice to make him a suspect. In attempting to avoid this evidence he practically confirms his guilt.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

Not Far Wrong.

A school teacher was trying to make the children define the word "bovine." "It applies to an animal," she said. "Can any one tell me what animal?" There was the silence of confessed ignorance. The teacher began to throw out leading hints. "The animal that gives us meat." Still silence. "And shoes," she added. No light broke on the puzzled countenances. "And the straps that you carry your books in." "Oh, I know!" cried a young voice, with explosive eagerness. "Well, James, what animal is it?" "Bather!"

Doctor Did It.

Fred, a physician back to health and he gains an experience that he can use to benefit others. For this reason Grape-Nuts food is daily recommended to patients by hundreds of physicians who have cured themselves of stomach trouble. One doctor says: "Although a physician and trying to aid and assist my fellow beings to enjoy good health it must be admitted I formerly did not enjoy the best of health myself. In January, 1899, I only weighed 119 pounds. At this time I was living in the Ohio valley and began to think I had about seen my best days. One day about 3 years ago I had an opportunity to try Grape-Nuts food for my breakfast. I liked it so well that I ate three teaspoonfuls three times a day and have regularly used it up to the present time and I now weigh 155, a gain of 36 pounds and enjoy the best of health. "Not only has Grape-Nuts made this wonderful change in me, but through it I have helped my friends, relatives and patients. The sustaining power of this food is simply wonderful. "I have one patient who is a section hand on the C. & O. R. R. who can't sleep in the morning but four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and you'll see his very hard work up to lunch time and enjoys the best of health and strength. "I could name a great many cases like this and I still prescribe Grape-Nuts in my practice every day." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. "Ask any physician about the scientific principles on which Grape-Nuts food is made. He'll tell you the principles are carried out in the food that's good for the stomach, so treated that the food is a pleasant one. Show in renewed physical strength and brain energy. "There's a real reason for looking in each pkg. for the grape-nuts logo. The Road to Well-

WAR IN THE ORIENT

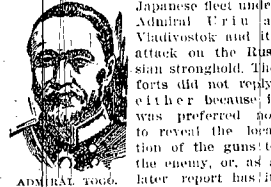

Progress of Struggle Between Muscovite and Mongol.

SIX WEEKS OF STRIFE

Contest Up to the Present Time Has Resulted Favorably for the Japs.

Russia slowly assembling its armies on the Yalu, while Japan lands troops in Korea and rushes them to the front—Bombardments of Port Arthur and Dainy culminate in torpedo-boat battle—Czar's losses heavy.

The sixth week of the Oriental war was a week of bombardment. It began with the sudden appearance of the Japanese fleet under Admiral Uruu at Vladivostok and its attack on the Russian stronghold. The forces did not reply, either because it was preferred not to reveal the location of the guns to the enemy, or as a ADMIRAL TOGO. Later report has it, because they were sent to Port Arthur. A woman was killed by a shell and several sailors wounded.

Several bombardments of Port Arthur and Dainy culminated in a battle between the Russian torpedo flotilla and Japanese torpedo-boat destroyers. One vessel was sunk on each side, and there must have been considerable loss of life. This was followed by a severe bombardment of the harbor, in which there was some loss of life, two women in the town being among the victims.

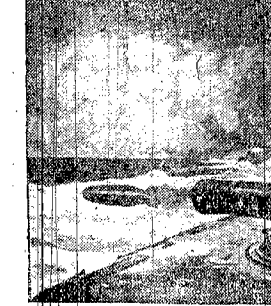

St. Petersburg promptly denied the story that Port Arthur had been abandoned. When one reflects that such a thing would necessarily include the destruction of the Russian fleet and the abandonment or removal inland of the main coast defense guns in the forts around the city, not to mention those at Dainy and the surrender of authority over the southern Manchuria to the Japanese, one can understand how improbable was the story.

It must be conceded that the Russians are making an astonishingly feeble display of ability and resourcefulness in meeting the attacks of Admiral Togo. Their losses are heavy and they do not retaliate upon the enemy in a way sufficient even to dampen his ardor. The battle of the torpedo boats showed courage, but from the Russian and Japanese official reports it is clear that the Russians failed to hold their own against an inferior number of Japanese vessels. The fighting was close and furious until the Russians retreated. Other Japanese torpedo boat destroyers captured a Russian destroyer, which sunk while being towed away.

Apparently the gunnery of the Japanese is distinctly more effective than that of the Russians. Capt. Shohiro Asai seems to have fought as if with a heavy gun, going close in and hammering away regardless of consequences, though coping with superior numbers.

The heavy bombardment of the forts and the city which the big guns of the battleships carried on for three hours and a half on Thursday was more effective than such bombardments usually are. Admiral Togo having arranged his cruisers in such a manner that they could observe the effect of each shot and signal to the battleships to correct the aim.

Russia is slowly assembling its armies on the Yalu and making preparations for a great battle. Japan is landing troops in Korea, and rushing them to the front with the prospect that she will compel Russia to accept her position, simply because the movements of the latter's army are so slow. Taken all in all, the past week has been a period of preparation for coming events which will prove decisive.

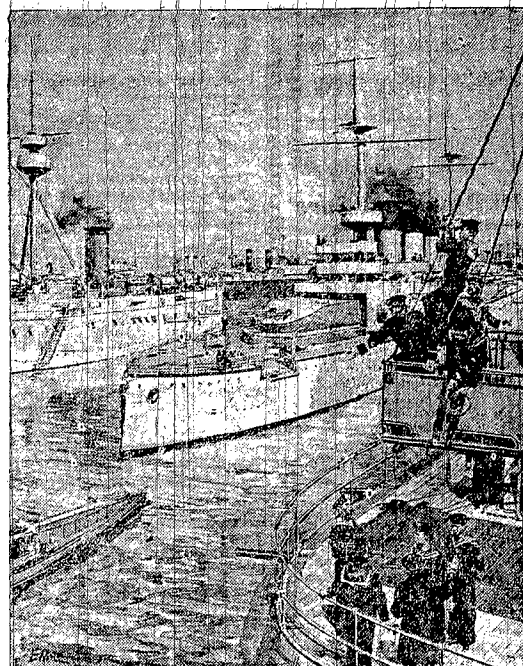

JAPS LAUNCHING A WHITEHEAD TORPEDO.

The attitude of China is one of doubt. The imperial forces have been assembling on the Manchurian border, ready for an opportunity for a forward movement. Large bands of Chinese bands have been harassing the Russian rear and committing depredations which may call for serious attention. The Chinese are manifestly hostile to Russia, and may not much longer be held in restraint. If they should break loose, there would be an Eastern war of large proportions as to involve more than one European nation. This possibility keeps Europe on the qui vive.

The international situation is better. Russia has warned China that she will be held responsible if her troops are not kept in check. President Roosevelt has issued an executive order that civil, military and naval employes of the government must refrain from actions or expressions which would tend to irritate either belligerent.

ed that Admiral Makarov, with the Russian fleet, left Port Arthur March 10. It is supposed he was attempting to join the Vladivostok squadron. He sighted Admiral Togo's scouts March 13, when he returned to Port Arthur. There is an uncorroborated report that Vice Admiral Stark, relieved of command at Port Arthur, has attempted suicide.

RUSSIA FIRES FIRST SHOT.

Gunner on the Korietz Has the Honor of Opening War. The London Telegraph prints a letter from Cheumoo giving an account of the first battle of the war. "The fact is now generally admitted," writes the correspondent, "that Russia fired the first shot of the war. A gunner on the Korietz fired the honor. The warship had veered to anchor on Feb. 8, with dispatches from Port Arthur, when off the entrance to the harbor she met a fleet of Japanese warships under command of Rear Admiral Uruu. There were two battleships, six cruisers, seven torpedo boats and five torpedo-boat destroyers escorting 3,000 troops on transports. A torpedo boat crossed the bows of the Korietz. The captain of the latter immediately ordered for action and an overboard gunner took aim and fired at the intruder. Immediately the torpedo boat left the main fleet and circled about the Korietz and discharged torpedoes at her, all of which, it is asserted by the Russian press, were missed. The Korietz stopped, turned about, fired at full speed to the anchorage inside the harbor close alongside the Yalu, and in the midst of the neutral war vessels lying there, the Japanese fleet followed by the waste and came to anchor near by at 8:20 a.m. and fired.

This story, which comes from Russian sources, is of importance, as it admits the firing of a shot by a Russian during the afternoon of Feb. 8, and which may possibly prove to be the first shot of the war. The torpedo discharges are not admitted by the Japanese, who, during the night landed their troops and, by daylight the entire fleet had disappeared outside the harbor.

Israel Sheffer, a 6-year-old son of I. J. Sheffer of North Topeka, was playing on the Rock Island tracks when a train came along and ran over him. He was killed instantly.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS WHO LOST SHIPS DECORATED FOR HEROISM

Russian naval custom requires a strict accounting from an officer who loses a ship. Two officers, Capt. Belyeff of the Korietz, and Capt. Rudieff of the Varang, faced a board of inquiry, but such were the accounts of their heroism in the face of overwhelming odds that Capt. Rudieff was made aide-de-camp to the Czar and given the St. George's Cross, while Capt. Belyeff was also decorated. Capt. Stepanoff went down with his vessel, the torpedo depot ship Yenesel, which was blown up by a mine of its own planting.

COTTON KING IS DOWN.

Failure of Sully Causes Wild Panic in New York Market. Cotton King Sully has fallen. The man who emerged from obscurity fifteen months ago and brought the markets of two continents to his feet, announced his withdrawal from the market by his engagements on the New York Cotton Exchange. With his fall the market dropped out of the greatest bull market ever known. Anarchy displaced the monarchy of the spectacular Daniel J. Sully's building. "Sully suspends." Those were the words that turned the New York Cotton Exchange into a bedlam, that carried ruin over the necks to thousands of men and women of sudden wealth, that shot consternation to New Orleans and other cities of the South, and, speeding under the ocean, made their vibrations felt in the marts of Liverpool.

In the New York Cotton Exchange frenzied men fought until their clothes literally were torn from their backs. On the floor of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, a thousand miles away, the scene was being repeated. The man responsible for these simultaneous scenes of disorder was self-imprisoned in a room on the twenty-third floor of a Wall street office building.

"My suspension is only temporary," said Mr. Sully, who was seen at his residence at night, but he did not care to add anything to that simple statement, and I shall not have any further statement to make."

The man who has been such a conspicuous figure in the world's cotton market for many months did not appear to be in the least perturbed over his firm's suspension. He was apparently not here when the report was that he had made several millions through unprecisely high prices for cotton. Apparently Mr. Sully still holds to the belief that his theory about the shortage of cotton and resultant high prices has not been overturned. He would not discuss the overture. He might have been treacherous at some point, but would he indicate how soon he expected to resume operations.

The crash came with the suddenness and fury of a tornado, for the meteorologists of the cotton market were unable to read the premonitions of disaster in the strange barometric conditions of the morning. Ten minutes after the opening the market went off half a cent. Prices went down—ten, twenty, thirty points in two minutes. A minute later they were back where they started.

WAR NEWS IN BRIEF.

Reports are that the Russians have crossed the Yalu and are invading Korea. Large orders for ammunition have been placed with all the German powder factories.

Russian refugees, succeeding in evading military duty at home, reach New York and relate thrilling stories of escape.

It is reported that a large force of Russians has been stationed at the important fortified and strategic town of Ashu-Shan.

The Czar has declined with thanks the offers of the German and French Red Cross societies to supply contingents for service in the field.

A deal for 5,000 tons of barley has been closed at San Francisco with agents of the Russian government for the use of Russian troops in the field.

The Russian government is building some armored trains for use on the Manchurian railroad after the model of those used by the British in South Africa.

Official denial is given in Paris of the report that exchanges of views are now going on between Paris, London and Washington relative to offering mediation in the far eastern war.

Advices from Pong-Huan-Cheng forty miles northwest of Wiju, say the Russian troops are showing an admirable spirit in surmounting the difficulties and hardships of the march over the frozen tracts of east Manchuria.

Three Norwegian steamers arrived at Shanghai from Port Arthur and reported that the Japanese bombardment caused the greatest destruction in the town. The shells, which were fired most accurately, killed 127 persons.

The Korean superintendent of trade at Pong-Huan-Cheng on the Yalu river has received a note from the commanding general at Vladivostok saying that since Korea has a belligerent and will act accordingly.

The State Department at Washington has received formal assurance from China that the government of that country will insist on the observance of the strictest neutrality toward both sides during the present war on the part of Chinese subjects.

The Emperor of Korea intends to leave his town palace and return to Yunkoo, his palace in the outskirts of the city. It was there that the Queen was assassinated in 1895 and from there that the Emperor fled to the Russian legation in 1896. His present residence is situated in the midst of the foreign legations, so that his removal to Yunkoo will doubtless be most satisfactory to the Japanese government.

ADMIT MANY MURDERS.

Members of Chicago Car Barn Gang Tell of Their Crimes. The Chicago car barn bandits, convicted and sentenced to death, are now confessing crimes that have long mystified the authorities. Peter Niedemeyer, the brains of the gang, admits killing twenty-three men, one for every year of his life. Gustav Marx remembers murdering eight persons. Marx declared in a confession that he was one of the three men who held up the Chicago and Northwestern express train at Tower W, near DeKalb, four years ago. The crime, which has passed into history as one of the most desperate ever committed in or about Chicago, has never been accounted for.

"I used dynamite for the first time in the lower robbery and made a gaggle of it," Marx said. "We tied and huggled the tower man and then haggled the train. One of my pals had got the dynamite in California. I placed a big lot of it on top of the safe and when it went off it not only wrecked the safe but most of the money inside. With a swag of $8,000 we came back to Chicago, although the police were under the impression we headed for Omaha.

"Besides John B. Johnson, killed at the car barns, Detective Quinn, killed at the time of my arrest, and Otto Bader, whom Rueski is generally supposed to have killed, I have killed five other men."

If Peter Niedemeyer's story is to be believed, he has killed a man for every year of his life.

"I have killed twenty-three men and wounded seventeen," he declared. "Innocent men and serving time for my crimes in more than one penitentiary. Rewards amounting to $16,500 are outstanding for me in different States. I will confess to those crimes if the police will give me a written promise to give a part of the reward to my old mother."

BIG PRICE FOR HEALTH.

Sanitation of the Panama Canal Route Will Cost $2,000,000. The House committee on interstate and foreign commerce Wednesday again heard Prof. William H. Barr on the question of sanitation of the Panama canal route. The Isthmian Canal Commission, he said, had regarded the subject as one of the greatest importance. The work of sanitation would be chiefly the construction of water works and a sewerage system for the cities of Panama and Colon and the drainage of districts between those cities. It would require the cooperation of the police, as the people on the isthmus had no idea of sanitary principles, he said, to make the territory healthful. He estimated the cost at $2,000,000. The completion of the canal, he said, could be accomplished in eight or nine years.

A VIEW OF THE CANAL.

quire the cooperation of the police, as the people on the isthmus had no idea of sanitary principles, he said, to make the territory healthful. He estimated the cost at $2,000,000. The completion of the canal, he said, could be accomplished in eight or nine years.

Answering Mr. Hays, Prof. Barr said that while men are careless in their habits on the isthmus the mortality is high. He did not, he said, that a thousand men lost their lives for every mile so far as work has been done, nor had he ever heard of a grave-yard containing 8,000 cases of laborers, or of the fact that 300 Chinese died in three months.

Prof. Barr was subjected to many questions, bearing mostly on the amount of excavation by the two French companies, and said they had excavated about 7,000,000 yards, two-thirds of which was useful, leaving 1,000,000,000 cubic yards still to be excavated.

NAVAL BOAT SUNK.

British Submarine Vessel Is Hit by a Liner.

The British submarine boat A No. 1 of the Holland type, which was run down the other day by a peap line vessel while undergoing a trial off the Isle of Wight, was sunk with her crew of officers and men, all being drowned like rats in a trap. The crew numbered nine.

The discovery that the submarine had gone to the bottom with her two officers and crew, has been made only through the report by the liner Birwick Castle, from East London, Cape Colony, Feb. 10, and Las Palmas Feb. 29, for London. The captain of the Birwick Castle reported having struck a detached torpedo off the Isle of Wight, and this, coupled with the fact that nothing had been heard from the submarine for a time longer than was apparently necessary for her trial, set the naval authorities thinking. It was believed that the submarine had suffered some mishap and a search was begun, but without result for some time. Finally from the description given by the captain of the Birwick Castle, as to the place where the boat had been encountered, search revealed the submarine on the bottom off the place known as the Nap, in seven fathoms of water.

The crew and the two officers were found in the body of the submarine, having apparently been asphyxiated by the fumes of gasoline spilled. It is believed, when the submarine went to the bottom after impact with the liner supposed to have struck her. The theory of the naval experts is that the submarine's periscope was either defective or for some reason became ineffective after the vessel was submerged and that Lieut. Manergh was unable, therefore, to note the approach of the liner.

THE WEEKLY HISTORIAN

Proper Amount of Sleep.

A proper amount of sleep is of course absolutely essential to continued good health; but if dietic habits are correct, it is a matter which will regulate itself. If a rule is needed, one will follow naturally, from the fact that almost every one feels languid on waking and is disposed to take another nap, no matter how long he has been sleeping. This is a morbid sensation which would take too long to explain here. It is enough to say that lack of sleep should be made up, if possible, at the beginning and not at the end. The best general rule is to rise at a given hour every morning, whether tired or not, and go to bed when sleepy.—St. Nicholas.

For Growing Girls.

West Fenbrook, Me., March 21st.—Mrs. A. L. Smith, of this place, says that Dadd's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for growing girls. Mrs. Smith emphasizes her recommendation by the following experience:

"My daughter was thirteen years old last November and it is now two years since she was first taken with Crazy Spells that would last a week and would then pass off. In a month she would have the spells again. At these times she would eat very little and was very weary, even the whites of her eyes would be yellow.

"The doctor gave me no encouragement; they all said they could not help her. After taking one box of Dadd's Kidney Pills, she has not had one bad spell. Of course, we continued the treatment until she had used in all about a dozen boxes, and we still give them to her occasionally, when she is not feeling well. Dadd's Kidney Pills are certainly the best medicine for growing girls."

The Fatal Finger Imprint.

Gloves will soon become an indispensable part of every burglar's outfit. The other day Mr. Denman, of the London county, sent labor on a man to twelve months' hard labor on the sole evidence of the impressions on the sole of the middle finger of his left hand. This method of identifying a prisoner, far more certain than photography, was in use, we believe, in China years before its adoption in any European country, and in conjunction with the Berillon system, has been used in France successfully for a decade or so. It is a strange thing that nature should have so provided every man with a witness against himself, a witness which he cannot be rid of. Disguise can alter the face until a photograph, however careful, is useless for identification, and even the elaborate deliberate infliction of some new mark on the body. But if a criminal mutilate the end of his finger, such mutilation alone would suffice to make him a suspect. In attempting to avoid this evidence he practically confirms his guilt.—London Pall Mall Gazette.

Not Far Wrong.

A school teacher was trying to make the children define the word "bovine." "It applies to an animal," she said. "Can any one tell me what animal?" There was the silence of confessed ignorance. The teacher began to throw out leading hints.

"The animal that gives us meat." Still silence. "And shoes," she added. No light broke on the puzzled countenances. "And the straps that you carry your books in."

"Oh, I know!" cried a young voice, with explosive eagerness.

"Well, James, what animal is it?" "Father!"

"I never use any of the butter sold in the markets on my table," remarked the landlady of a hash factory. "This butter came from my uncle's dairy in Michigan."

DOCTOR DID IT.

PUT ON 30 LBS. BY FOOT.

Feed a physician back to health and he gains an experience that he can use to benefit others. For this reason Grape-Nuts food is daily recommended to patients by hundreds of physicians who have cured themselves of stomach trouble. One doctor says:

"Although a physician and trying to aid and assist my fellow beings to enjoy good health it must be admitted I formerly did not enjoy the best of health myself. In January, 1899, I only weighed 119 pounds. At this time I was living in the Ohio valley and began to think I had about seen my best days. One day about 3 years ago I had an opportunity to try Grape-Nuts food for my breakfast. I liked it so well that I ate three (enough) three times a day and have regularly used it up to the present time, and I now weigh 155, a gain of 36 pounds and enjoy the best of health."

Not Only Has Grape-Nuts Made This Wonderful Change in Me, but Through It I Have Helped My Friends, Relatives and Patients. The Sustaining Power of this Food is Simply Wonderful.

"I have one patient who is a section hand on the C. & O. R. R. who calls nothing in the morning but four tablespoons of Grape-Nuts and four tablespoons of his very hard work up to lunch time and enjoys the best of health and strength."

"I could name a great many cases like this and I still prescribe Grape-Nuts in my practice every day." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Ask Any Physician about the Scientific Principles on Which Grape-Nuts Food is Made. He'll Tell You the Principles are Perfect.

WAYNE NORMAL
Proposed New Building for the College.
TOWN ASKED TO GIVE $10,000

President Pile Will Put an Equal Amount into Investments. Main Structure to Cost $15,000—New Dormitories and Lighting Plant Needed—Attendance Must be Limited or More Room Provided.
A good-sized representation of business men attended the meeting last Friday evening, called for the purpose of action looking to needed improvements for the Wayne Normal college. The main building proposed will cost approximately $15,000, and in addition there should be new dormitories, with furnishings and heating and lighting plant. The citizens are asked to subscribe for the purpose the sum of $10,000 and President J. M. Pile agrees to put an equal amount into improvements. Those subscribing will not be asked to pay until the entire $10,000 has been raised.
During the course of his remarks at the opening of the meeting, President Pile said that either a new building must be provided or the attendance limited, and that it was proposed to have a building large enough for 400. There were 470 when the school closed in January and there is assurance of 500 or more during the coming summer. Under present conditions would be necessary to cut out some departments, employ less teachers and limit the number of students.
Attorney A. A. Welch said the proposition would be a good financial investment, increasing property values and benefiting mercantile men. Not a gift, but an investment.
A. L. Tucker made a favorable comparison of the Wayne college in education and number of students with schools having greater investment and expense. Thought the proposition was a good investment and that the town owes it to President Pile.
J. D. King emphasized the fact that the college is really the property of the citizens, reverting to them in case the institution suspends for one year. He called attention to the gift of Norfolk people of $75,000 for the asylum, which is of less public benefit than a college. It will raise property values in both town and country.
It was decided to start subscription before adjournment and accordingly, eleven citizens pledged amounts aggregating $1,300. It is believed the entire sum asked can be secured without difficulty.
