A SUDDEN DEATH

Mrs. Allbee Suffers a Fatal Accident.

TAKES DOSE OF CARBOLIC ACID

Mistakes it for Medicine—She is Beyond Help When the Doctor Arrives—Lapses into Unconsciousness Within Ten Minutes and Dies in Two Hours—Funeral Services on Tuesday Morning.

This community was started early in the afternoon Sunday by the sudden death of Mrs. Geo. W. Allbee, who died from the effects of carbolic acid taken accidentally. Mrs. Allbee was in poor health and had been taking medicine. After a late breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Allbee went up stairs. Soon afterward Mrs. Allbee recalled that she had not taken her medicine and went down stairs to do so. A moment later she hurried to the stair door and screamed to Mr. Allbee that she had taken carbolic acid. He rushed down stairs and to a neighbor's to use a phone in summoning help. There was unavoidable delay in reaching a doctor, and when Dr. Wightman reached the house, fifteen minutes after the fatal dose had been taken, he pronounced the case beyond help. Mrs. B. F. Feather who arrived in ten minutes, found the woman unconscious. Death resulted in two hours.

Mrs. Allbee was aged about 44 years and had resided in Wayne about twelve years. She leaves a husband and two daughters, one married, and five sisters and two brothers, viz: Mrs. A. J. Hyatt of Randolph, Mrs. W. Benshoff of Wayne, Mrs. C. F. Wineham of LeRoy, Kas., Mrs. J. P. Logan of Oregon, Mrs. John Mallicoat of Walnut, Ia., J. P. Cooper of Blee Grass, Ia., and W. A. Cooper of Harrington, Kas.

Funeral services were conducted in the Baptist church Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. E. E. Duley officiating. A large and sympathetic crowd attended. The sympathy of the community is extended to the surviving relatives in their affliction.

"TRIP AROUND THE WORLD."

Notwithstanding the rain early in the day, a large crowd took advantage of the opportunity offered by the Methodist ladies to enjoy a "trip around the world." The number of tickets sold exceeded expectations and had the weather been favorable traveling accommodations would have been insufficient. As it was vehicles were crowded and rushed and the different stopping places presented a lively lot of guests, some coming and others going, until after midnight. The cash proceeds amounted to over $80, and the entertainment throughout was an unequalled success.

The starting point was Neely & Craven's hardware store where tickets were bought, baggage checked and life insurance secured.

The first stop was in the "Sunny South," John Sberbahn's residence, where travelers were ushered in amidst scenes appropriate to the south. There were decorations of sunflowers and sugar cane, and eatables in the way of hoke cake, molasses, watermelon and coffee were served. A bevy of pickaninies enlivened the sojourn with dancing and negro melodies.

Germany, Dr. Heckert's, came next. Here were curios and decorations suggestive of Germany. With music and coffee cake and coffee the stop was made very agreeable.

The third stop was M. S. Snodgrass' residence, a part on the coast of Ireland, where the proverbial "pig in the parlor" and "harney stone" were on display. A number kissed the latter at 5 cents per smack. Soap and potatoes were dished out to the travelers.

"Gypsy land," Dr. Nieman's, was a veritable gypsy camp from which a band of fortune-tellers issued and plied their vocations in characteristic fashion. Over $5 was realized in that way. Cheese straws and coffee were served.

The travelers found Japan, Henry Ley's, feeling good over its success in Manchuria. Decorations and costumes were appropriate, and before an altar the visitors were required to bow in obedience to one of the habits of the country. According to another custom, they sat on the floor while drinking tea and eating rice with chopsticks.

The White House, D. C. Main's, was the last stopping place and from there travelers took the shortest routes home. At that point, they were greeted by the president and members of his official family, and were regaled with punch and nabisco.

So much of a success was the entertainment that the ladies were asked to repeat it, but the task was so great that they decided not to do it.

HARDWARE SALE COMPLETED.

The sale of the hardware store of Terwilliger Bros. to J. E. Marshall, of Harrison, Neb., was completed yesterday and possession will be given immediately after the invoice which is to be commenced about the 15th. Mr. Marshall arrived yesterday morning and his family will be here today. They have rented of F. M. Skeen the residence now occupied by Mr. Dillon. Mr. Marshall is a gentleman of affable manners and comes highly recommended as a business man of ability and integrity. He has had fourteen years of successful experience in the hardware business. To himself and family it is hoped people will extend a hearty welcome.

THE CONVENTION

Republicans of Wayne County Meet.

PEACE AND HARMONY PREVAIL

Judge Hunter Chairman and Bert Brown Secretary—Dr. J. J. Williams Endorsed for State Senator—H. E. Siman for County Attorney—Speeches Made Arousing Enthusiasm and Urging Unity.

The Wayne county republican convention was held here last Saturday with as much enthusiasm as could be expected in a year when there are few offices to dispense, and with more harmony than has usually characterized conventions of the majority party in this county. The proceedings were interspersed with impromptu speeches by L. U. McKee, A. R. Davis, Edward E. Waltman, E. A. Lundburg, J. D. King and H. E. Siman. They gave their experience as republicans a little after the fashion of the devotees of the old-fashioned religious revival meeting, rejoiced that they were republicans and proclaimed their faith in the continuance of commercial and industrial development and prosperity under a republican administration. Each declared with emphasis the importance of unity and the dissolution of factional animosities that create party division and help democratic success. All were good speeches and aroused the plaudits of the convention.

THE POWELL SHOOTING.

Mrs. E. C. Powell, who shot her husband at the family residence, fourteen miles southeast of Wayne, seems to be contented with her quarters in the county jail here and according to the sheriff, expresses no uneasiness over her future. However, she seems anxious about the welfare of her two children, of whom she frequently speaks. The bullet lodged in her left hand by the discharge of the revolver while scuffling with her husband, was removed by Dr. Williams and Blair last Friday, and the wound is healing rapidly. Complaint has been filed charging her with shooting with intent to kill, but a preliminary hearing has been deferred pending the outcome of Mr. Powell's wounds. At last accounts he was improving, with every probability of his complete recovery.

MISS EDNA NEELY ENTERTAINS

An enjoyable party was given by Miss Edna Neely at her home Saturday evening. The house was tastefully decorated with flowers and the lawn was illuminated and made attractive by Japanese lanterns. What was called "progressive hammock" was among features of amusement. Also dancing was participated in, and Miss Weber rendered a number of musical selections. Light refreshments were served on the lawn. Guests: Misses Mary Hyde, Alice Kate, Winifred Northrop, Lela Tucker, Kate Bressler, Mary Mellor and Florence Welch, and Messrs. Wm. Mellor, Perry Theobald, Lou Lundburg, Chas. Kate, Carl and Lou Beckenhauer, Henry Bush, Warren Schultheis and Arthur Neely.

ATTACKED BY BUMBLE BEES.

The little son of G. H. Albers, aged three years, was going home from the hay field last Tuesday and ran into a bumble bees' nest. The bees attacked the child who fell down and was at the mercy of the enraged insects. It was severely stung before it was rescued. Dr. Riley was summoned at once by telephone and hastened to the relief of the little sufferer, who was rendered unconscious by the poison of the stings, the effect being similar to those of a snake bite. The effects were counteracted by prompt treatment and the child left as easy as possible.—Wison Chronicle.

MR. BRUGGER DROWNED.

On Saturday, Mrs. J. H. Karpenstein received the sad news of the death of her youngest brother, Theophilus Brugger, at his home in Portland, Ore. He was professor of sciences in the Portland high school. Mr. Brugger was drowned in Lewis river in Washington while trying to ford the stream on a horse. He was on his way to visit a sister and brother. His dead horse was found one-half mile below the ford, but his body had not been recovered at last accounts. Mr. Brugger visited relatives in Wayne about a year ago.

DR. Sisson's Condition.

Later reports from the bedside of Dr. F. M. Sisson tend to refute the statement that he would be home from the hospital at Omaha as early as a date as had been expected. He will be fortunate if his recovery is complete enough to permit of his attending conference at Wayne beginning on the 14th, and will be a week or more before he is able to come home. He is making satisfactory progress, but it will take some time to recover from the effects of the sickness and the operation.—Northfolk News.

MISS HUNTER PROHIBITED.

Yesterday Judge Hunter received a letter from his daughter, Miss Leona, who is teaching in Manila, P. I., and she states that she has recently been elected superintendent of the night school there at an increased salary. Having nine teachers and 250 pupils under her management. This is gratifying news to her relatives and many friends at this place.

THE CONVENTION

Republicans of Wayne County Meet.

PEACE AND HARMONY PREVAIL

Judge Hunter Chairman and Bert Brown Secretary—Dr. J. J. Williams Endorsed for State Senator—H. E. Siman for County Attorney—Speeches Made Arousing Enthusiasm and Urging Unity.

The Wayne county republican convention was held here last Saturday with as much enthusiasm as could be expected in a year when there are few offices to dispense, and with more harmony than has usually characterized conventions of the majority party in this county. The proceedings were interspersed with impromptu speeches by L. U. McKee, A. R. Davis, Edward E. Waltman, E. A. Lundburg, J. D. King and H. E. Siman. They gave their experience as republicans a little after the fashion of the devotees of the old-fashioned religious revival meeting, rejoiced that they were republicans and proclaimed their faith in the continuance of commercial and industrial development and prosperity under a republican administration. Each declared with emphasis the importance of unity and the dissolution of factional animosities that create party division and help democratic success. All were good speeches and aroused the plaudits of the convention.

Dr. J. J. Williams, chairman of the central committee, called the assembly to order and Bert Brown, secretary, read the call. Judge E. Hunter was chosen temporary chairman and Bert Brown temporary secretary.

A. A. Welch, C. E. Jones and Dan McManigal were appointed a committee on credentials, later reporting the names of those entitled to participate in the workings of the convention. Only a few precincts were found without representation. After this report the temporary organization was made permanent.

A committee, consisting of F. M. Gregg, Geo. Yaryan and Wm. Gilder, retired and prepared the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

"We, the republicans of Wayne county, Neb., in convention assembled, set forth the following as our declaration of principles:

"We affirm allegiance to the platform of the republican party as expressed in its recent national convention in Chicago.

"We heartily endorse the present national administration and pledge our enthusiastic support in the coming presidential election to that wise, judicious, alert, courageous executive and prince of clean men in American politics, Theodore Roosevelt.

"We reaffirm our faith in the present state administration and pledge our loyal support to the list of candidates named by the recent republican state convention.

"We recommend to our delegates to the senatorial convention that they present the name of Dr. J. J. Williams as Wayne county's candidate for state senator, and that they seek by every honorable means to secure his nomination.

"We recommend to our delegates to the representative convention the selection of a candidate for state representative who is a farmer and creditably represent his constituents in the coming session of the state legislature.

"We recommend that the central committee selected by this convention be instructed not to use their position as such to further the candidacy of any person for appointment as local postmaster.

"We further recommend that the central committee be instructed to call a county delegate convention for the appointment of delegates to all state and district conventions and previous to issuing such call that the chairman shall publish notice of such meeting therefor at least twice in republican newspapers of the county."

E. Cunningham, Mr. Ellis, Mr. Kendrick, W. C. Lowry, F. S. Tracy and Peter Kautz were appointed to select thirteen delegates to the senatorial convention and thirteen to the representative convention, their report, which was accepted, being as follows:

Senatorial convention: Bert Brown, E. Cunningham, Wm. F. Sears, H. E. Siman, R. R. Smith, F. E. Francis, Sam Davies, Wm. H. Gilder, F. E. Benser, Dan McManigal and F. M. Gregg.

Representative convention: Henry Bay, John Coleman, Thos. Evans, O. A. Chace, F. Kautz, F. S. Tracy, A. M. Jacobs, E. D. Mitchell, Chas. Boobe, J. A. Jones and Emil Hanson.

A motion prevailed authorizing the central committee to nominate for the county-at-large the candidate named by the delegates of the third commission-ers' district.

H. E. Siman, present county attorney, was re-nominated for the office by acclamation. He responded to his name with an appropriate speech.

A. B. Davis was elected chairman and Grant S. Mears secretary of the county central committee. Other members representing the different precincts, were selected as follows:

BATTLE IN A THUNDERSTORM.

JAPANESE AND COSSACKS BATTLE WHILE THE ARTILLERY OF HEAVEN MINGLED WITH THAT OF EARTH.

The battle of Wa-Fang-kau was one of the bloodiest in the Russo-Japanese war, with the possible exception of that which raged around Naushan hill, in which 4,000 Japanese fell, and was one of the most terrifying which the mind of man can well conceive. When the engagement was at its height and the Cossacks and Japanese were in deadly and desperate struggle a tremendous thunderstorm broke over the scene, and for a time the artillery of heaven mingled with that of earth in deafening and demoralizing confusion. The heavens seemed to be rent asunder with the awful reverberations and the play of lightning was vivid and blinding.

LIFE.

Give me the strength and height
Of glorious life—
The dazzling light,
The straining and the strife,
Love, passion, hope,
In their divinest scope.

High winds on mighty seas,
Not sheltered bay;
The storm that frees
Wild torrents, great and gay
With sudden power,
Not the soft spring-time shower.

And if the storm should kill,
The torrent drown—
So be it still,
Still let me snatch the crown
Life has to give,
And cry, but once, I live!

TIRZAH'S CHIMNEY.

FIVE years before, when Solomon Green had asked Tirzah Hitchcock to become the second Mrs. Green, she had tartly refused the honor. "I ain't much of a beauty," she had told him, "but no warmed-over affection for me, thank you, Solomon Green."

Solomon had reasoned all in vain. "Why, Tirzah," he pleaded, "it ain't no ways natural for wimmen to live alone. Every mornin' your chimney is the first thing I look at, an' if I wasn't to see the smoke a-comin' out of it, I'd be scared to death thinkin' you was robbed, or killed, or sunthru'."

"What's the us in us keepin' up two houses, when one would do just as well?"

Since that time the two had hardly exchanged a dozen words. Solomon had not married, neither had Tirzah, and now, on the night before her fortieth birthday, she sat looking around her orderly little home with the most desolate feeling at her heart she had known for years.

To-morrow would be her birthday. Mechanically she had gone through a few preparations for that rather dubious festival. The smallest hen from her flock was curled up ready for roasting inside the same pan in which her hens had been reared for the last fifteen years. A green apple pie sat on the pantry shelf beside a sour cream spice cake, while a plate of meaty terrapin was waiting patiently the filling of grape jelly to be theirs on the morrow.

Never before, at that season of the year, had Tirzah's hens been laying so well.

Her cow had never been known to give so large a yield of milk. There were three new kittens in the basket behind the kitchen stove, and her canary bird was the loquacious singer in all the village. But for all this Tirzah was not satisfied.

She had heard, that day that the widowed cousin, who usually kept house for Solomon Green, had unexpectedly married.

Of course, this was nothing to Tirzah, but still—here she snuffed two or three times, and then, without a particle of explanation to the astonished one who had come forth demanding her allowance of milk set down in her cane-seated rocker and burst out crying.

For five minutes she cried, and then she dropped her apron and looked guiltily about.

A thought intruded itself upon her which she considered in the light of a secret crime. Over and over again, despite herself, she rehearsed Solomon's proposal; each word as it had been spoken, until, suddenly, like the handwriting upon the wall, there stood forth these words: "Every morning your chimney is the first thing I look at."

Had he meant it? Did he still turn his eyes with the coming of the morning light down the little hill which lay between them? Did her lonely chimney still claim his thoughtful care?

Five minutes later the dark plot was formed, and Miss Tirzah was hurrying about her preparations for the night with cheeks that burned with fires she had thought long since gone out forever.

Half-past six, and still no fire in the kitchen stove. Seven o'clock, and no breakfast yet for the mistress and her indignant dependents.

Loud and angry rose the protest of Brindle from her snug stall, while the old cat and canary did their best to stir things up inside.

Meanwhile, hidden by the parlor curtains, crouched Miss Tirzah, wrapped in a huge red and green shawl, her heart fluttering between shame and dread, while her eyes watched with fevered anxiety the house just up the hill.

Oh, how pitifully foolish now looked her deep-laid scheme, when faced in the broad light of day.

Of course, he had forgotten, years ago, to watch her chimney. What was it to him now, whether she had a fire or not? She would go this very minute and build it. She—

Why, what was that? Some one was coming out of Solomon's front door. Some one—why, it was Solomon himself, creeping forth as if he had just been engaged in stalling his own spoons and was now making off with them to a place of hiding.

Where was he going?

The heart of Tirzah stood still for one long and nerve-destroying second, then it went on again with such a hammering and commotion beneath the red and green shawl that a less plucky woman would have fled for the canary bottle on the instant.

Solomon was coming down the hill straight toward her tiny home. Coming, it is true, not as the conqueror come, with bold and martial tread, but after a timid, silky fashion of a man who had had his last timid advances in that direction scorned.

When it was certain past all shadow of a doubt that he was coming into the house, Tirzah, the crafty creature, betook herself to the cane-seated rocker, where, wrapped to the chin in the big shawl, she waited with palpitating heart for the timid knock which at length sounded on the door.

"Come in," she then called, feebly, at which the door was opened cautiously, inch by inch, until the entire figure of the middle-aged lover was disclosed to view.

At the sight of Tirzah, bundled up and in the armchair, all of his hesitation vanished.

"Why, Tirzah, are you took sick?" came in the loud, cheery voice which had not sounded in the room for five years past. "An' it's cold enough in here to freeze the hair off a dog's back. Let me fix you a fire."

In a few moments a cheerful fire was roaring up the chimney. To be sure, there were more chips on the floor than Miss Tirzah would have scattered in a twelvemonth, and the cat was spitting out her indignation in a remote corner over an injury done her sleek tail by the heavy boot of Miss Tirzah's new fireman.

Tirzah, however, noticed neither the chips nor the anger of her cat. Not redder than her cheeks was the blazing fire, for Solomon had taken courage and was sitting beside her, inquiring kindly when she "was took," and if he shouldn't go and "fetch the doctor."

"You see, Tirzah," he said, with a guilty laugh, "I allers look at your chimney the first thing in the mornin'—I've kinder got into the habit. I know you don't like it, but—eh—why, Tirzah, wimmen, whatever alls yer—"

"Solomon," cried Tirzah, and she almost screamed it in her excitement. "I—I do like it. I—oh, Solomon—I didn't build a fire a purpose."

And Solomon—
He rose then and there and kissed her!—Housekeeper.

TONS OF BRIGHT GEMS.

The World's Supply of Diamonds Weighs 3,000,000 Carats.

It is estimated that the total world production of diamonds to date approximates 3,000,000 carats, says the Baltimore American. As we are not in the habit of weighing our diamonds by the ton, we are in some doubt concerning the proper system of collocation, whether tray or avoidance, long ton or short ton. According to the system used by those who do weigh their diamonds in ton quantities, the result would be in the neighborhood of twenty or twenty-five tons of sparklers now appearing as factors in the joys and miseries of a world which has substituted diamonds for the beads and wampum of its ancestors.

The regions contributing to this supply and the percentage of their contribution appear as follows: South Africa, 81.5 per cent; Brazil, 18 per cent, and the remaining 0.5 per cent divided among Hornoe, India, New South Wales and British Guiana, with come, with bold and martial tread, but after a timid, silky fashion of a man who had had his last timid advances in that direction scorned.

RAILROADS IN AFRICA

TOOT OF THE LOCOMOTIVE IS HEARD IN THE JUNGLE.

Iron Horse Now Goes Where a Few Years Ago Frightful Human Sacrifices Were Practiced—Civilization Being Extended in the Dark Continent.

One of the greatest works which civilization to-day is accomplishing is the opening up of blackest Africa by the railroad. Five years ago there were less than 9,000 miles of completed railroad in that continent. To-day there are over 13,000 miles. Very little of this railroad development in the past few years has been in the civilized lands like Algeria and Tunis, Egypt, Cape Colony, and Natal, which are fairly well supplied, but the tracks have been extended through the jungles, forests and deserts of the tropical colonies. In 1899 the length of these colonial railroads was only 1,226; to-day there are 4,475 miles of colonial railroads in operation, and thousands of native laborers are at work on over 1,700 miles, which will probably be added to the completed mileage within another year. The prospects are that within the next six years there will be 25,000 miles of railroads in Africa.

The brain of the whites and the brawn of the blacks are carrying on this wonderful work. The barbarous African has been enlisted in it. He has everywhere supplied the rough labor except on the Uganda Railroad, where sufficient hands could not be secured among the scattered herder folk of the interior, and so some thousands of men were imported from India. Not only in railroad building but also in all other industrial enterprises throughout Africa the barbarous African equipment, about the construction and fittings of these tropical railroads. White ants and other ravenous insects would make short work of wooden bridges and timber ties. All such things are made of steel. There are some stone bridges and they are excellent specimens of masonry; but most of the bridges are of steel that were cast in parts in European and American shops, giving skilled workmen a chance to see a bit of Africa while spending a few months at this or that stream where bridges are erected.

The locomotive, however, triumphs over one insect pest, and that is the tsetse fly, whose bite is fatal to horses and cattle. A stage coach company, can be the instrument that is being employed under white guidance, in the colossal task of transforming the continent. He is a powerful and necessary factor in the work, and on the whole he is doing his part well.

Man-Eating Lions a Hardship. All kinds of strange and unexpected experiences have marked the progress of this tropical railroad building. One day, as the Indian laborers were loading dirt on a train of flat cars on the Uganda Railroad, a lion sprang among them, seized a man by the middle, and plunged away with him into the jungle. His skeleton, stripped clean, and fragments of his clothing were found a day later. Lions seldom make these bold forays. As a rule, they see the presence of man unless they are brought to bay or enraged by a wound or an attack on their young. But if they ever happens that they eat human flesh they are likely to crave for more and include the human race among their prey.

The man-eating lion, as he is called, is not numerous, but he creates the utmost consternation whenever he appears. In the course of three or four days three other Indian coolies were dragged off into the jungle, and the whole force of laborers quit work, went into camp and prepared to defend their lives. It was nearly three weeks before another spadeful of earth was lifted. A large area of jungle was surrounded and a grand hunt organized, with the result that several lions were killed; there was no more trouble with the man-eating variety.

It is a somewhat novel experience for a traveler to find his train brought to a sudden standstill, and to see on the track in the rear the mangled remains of a half-grown cub which had stood on the track fascinated by the spectacle of the approaching train, and did not know enough to get out of the way. This has occurred on several occasions.

It is almost impossible in the jungle and forests to keep the rank growth of tropical vegetation from choking the track. It is continually being cut away from the sides of the roadbed and from underneath and overhead; but as the train jogs along at ten or fifteen miles an hour the traveler often hears the swish of the leaves and twigs brushing against the roof of the car. Sometimes the view of undulating savannahs, as the panorama unrolls itself from the car window is very beautiful; again the journey has, for scores of miles, and what is called a "high jungle" grows or abides the gloom of dense forests, and the journey is then oppressively depressing and monotonous.

No Night Travel. But one may see the whole country as far as it is revealed from the cars. There is no such thing as night travel on these roads. They are too new, the unexpected is likely to occur, and the stations are too far apart to run any risk of getting into trouble in the hours of darkness; so all trains spend the night at one or another of the stations.

They see no wood, except in the case

RECUMBENT STATUES OF QUEEN VICTORIA AND PRINCE ALBERT IN MAUSOLEUM AT FROGMORE.

In the royal mausoleum at Frogmore, near Windsor Castle, repose the remains of Queen Victoria and her consort, Prince Albert, in one tomb. When the prince died the queen had a recumbent statue of him made and placed upon the tomb. At the same time a statue of the queen was made by the same sculptor, and when she died this was placed alongside of that of her husband, in the space that had been reserved for it. A photograph of the statues has recently been made, for the first time since the death of the king. It is reproduced herewith. The statue of Queen Victoria represents her as much younger than she appeared to the present generation. The sculpture, of course, like that of Prince Albert, having been modeled when both were in the prime of life. The queen is depicted in regal robes, wearing a jeweled crown, and holding a scepter in her clasped hands.

Some of these placards are ready done. Some are set forth with care and with embellishments. One of them contains a bit of street car health food verse—all painted in red. No less than our own candidates of to-day, those of the year 79 were put forward by parties of supporters. There were the trades interests. There was the money power to be vituperated on the stump. The spellbinder addressed as "Friends and fellow-citizens of Pompeii," the woodcutters' union, the fishers, the performers and dyers, the barbers and porters. He explained to them what were the mere rights of man and what were their more glorious privileges as free and united advocates of the six-hour day.

And there were faddists in those days—persons to whom South Boston would apply the epithet "buncheon." These were the long sleepers, the deep drinkers. They ran a candidate in common who was solemnly pledged to the suppression of street noises and the chief plank in their platform was a club sandwich.

The heterogeneous religion of the city crept into politics. Venus was principally worshipped we know, but by the side of her temples were shrines to Isis and Horus and Anubis. And at this last election we hear of a minority party who in caucus assembled decided to call themselves the Isis passive registers. They seemed to desire most of all representation on the police force.—Boston Transcript.

Points Wherein They Differ. One of the Sex Contrasts American Women Unfavorably with English.

Despite all the loudly expressed opinions to the contrary, nothing can touch the really smart English woman as one sees her at the Carlton or at Prince's at the luncheon hour. There is a bewitching, graceful femininity about her that is in evidence in every detail of her costume and a certain something that, for lack of a better word, we must call refinement.

Our most charmingly gowned women in America have all a tendency to extravagance in dress and ornament.

The well-dressed English woman is simple in her style, despite her frills, and it is only in the evening, when she puts on her low-necked gown, that she allows any of the daring extravagance that one sees so freely displayed at our fashionable hotels on Fifth avenue where women meet for luncheon.

Then, the English woman's face is patrician even when she is far from beautiful. The finely modeled noses and chins, the long, slender necks are the rule, and, although good eyes and mouths are not so plentiful, the clear lines of the faces under the frilly hats are very satisfying from an artistic standpoint.

Our bifurcated girl and our gentlemanly young business woman, in her stiff collar and her four-in-hand scarf, have, of course, stood for something fine, vigorous and gloriously independent.

We have chummed with our masculine kind to an extent that has made the most popular type of society girl, the racy, washing woman who above all seems any suspicion of being an ingenue.

Many of our younger matrons have astonished restaurant groups by affecting the style of the most popular actress or opera singer in the manner of coiffure or of corsage. It has been absolutely impossible to detect the difference between the successful demimonde and the society leader, so far as either dress or manner is concerned.

And, at the same time, the English woman of society is inclined to be fast, but she is never unbecomingly so. For that reason she never suggests that under her baby face hat and its chin ties lurks the subjugation of man that first possessed Mother Eve and broke up the light housekeeping in Eden.—Life.

Wear Rings at Night. "Women are not wearing rings as they did several years ago," said a well-known gem expert when asked if rings are no longer stylish. "They buy more rings than ever before, but they use them only for full dress."

Why, as recently as five years ago the sex had a crazy for making pawnshop displays on their hands, and wore rings morning, noon and night, anywhere and everywhere. Even women in the deepest mourning did not discard their rings.

But it is not so now. The matron is content with wearing her wedding ring, even putting aside her engagement ring, while her single sister, if she wears even one ring, usually adopts a plain dull gold seal ring adorned with her coat-of-arms or somebody else's.

Rings are brought out with the stars, but it is now considered quite vulgar to burden the hands with them in the daylight.

A man always likes his mother-in-law among his most distant relatives.

A rich man never refuses the peaches offered him in charge.

Pompeii Had Some Politics. Remarkable Evidence Said to Have Been Found There.

Recently Joseph Orford read a paper before the Society for the Encouragement of the Fine Arts in which he described what must have been a municipal election in Pompeii shortly before, in 79 A. D., the ashes and lava of Vesuvius overwhelmed it and her ruins.

It is the claims of candidates that we read in these strange and long undecipherable inscriptions

Men System on a Man-of-War. The messing on board a big man-of-war is as complex and complete as the table service of a big hotel. The modern war-ship with its five or six hundred persons on board, must be a floating hotel and storehouse in itself. Every vessel of the navy is required by the regulations governing the navy, to have a general messing system. The enlisted men on ship are divided into squads of about twenty each, forming a mess. Chief petty officers and officers' servants are not included in this division. Every mess has one or two petty officers at its table, who fare like the men. Every mess has its special messman who brings the food from the galley and serves it at the table. It is also the messman's duty to see that the mess-table and mess-gear are clean and in order. The messes on board ship are under the direct supervision of the commissary department which is under the control of the pay officers.—Gunston's Magazine.

Cheap at the Price. It is told of Bishop Williams, of Connecticut, for many years a presiding bishop of the Episcopal church in America, who lived all his life a bachelor, that he was talking one day with a young man from the West about a tax a Western State was trying to impose on bachelors, the tax to be increased a certain per cent, for every ten years of bachelorhood. "Why, bishop," said the young man, "at your age you would have to pay about $100 a year." "Well," said the bishop, quizzically and in his old-time vernacular, "it's worth it to me."

Old Man's Secret. Alpena, Mich., Sept. 5.—(Special.)—Twenty-five years of age, but hale and hearty is Mr. Jerome K. Fournier of this place, and to those who ask the secret of his splendid health he gives the good advice, "Use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

When asked for his reason for so strongly recommending the Great American Kidney Pills, Mr. Fournier related the following experience: "I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills because they cured me of Diabetes. I suffered with my kidneys for a long time and suffered terribly from those Urinary Troubles that are so general among aged people."

"Then I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills and eight boxes of them cured my kidneys, regulated my water and made me feel like a hearty young man."

Dodd's Kidney Pills make the old feel young because they make sound kidneys. Sound kidneys mean health and health is the other name for youth.

The Theatrical Super Trust. The "supers" salary ranges all the way from twenty-five cents to a dollar a performance, but is generally about three dollars and fifty cents a week. His chance of promotion was formerly rare, though of late years a man with talent stands a very fair chance of climbing. There are several well-known actors who began as supers and they are always pointed out by the rest of the profession (super) as shining examples, but for everyone who succeeds, hundreds fail.

In olden times it was the custom in heavy productions to have six or eight men represent a vast concourse of people; then they gradually increased the number until sometimes a hundred were used at one time. It was at this period that the "super" entered the dramatic field. It was then that the "ads" in the papers for "supers" began to make their appearance, and nothing in the "Help Wanted" column was so well responded to. A call for fifteen men invariably brought a hundred and fifty, in all stages of dilapidation.

When a manager needs "supers" nowadays he simply goes to the phone and calls up the agency handling them, states how many and what kind he wants, and the agency fills his order.

For example, suppose the manager of a large production requires: "Two old men with full beards, six middle-aged Frenchmen, one Japanese with long drooping mustache, twenty well-built young men." He rings up the extra people's bureau and gives these items; and the agency, after selecting as many as they have on their books, sends out trained assistants to procure the rest.—Leslie's Monthly.

BUILDING FOOD To Bring the Babies Around. When a little human machine (or a large one) goes wrong, nothing is so important as the selection of food which will always bring it around again.

"My little boy fifteen months old had pneumonia, then came brain fever, and no sooner had he got over these, than he began to cut teeth and, being so weak, he was frequently thrown into convulsions," says a Colorado mother.

"I decided a change might help, so took him to Kansas City for a visit. When we got there he was so very weak when he would cry he would sink away and seemed like he would die."

"When I reached my sister's home she said immediately that we must feed him Grape-Nuts and, although I had never used the food, we got it for a few days and he was so strong, so quickly we were feeding him the Grape-Nuts, it was a wonderfully short time."

"That showed me soon knowing and, when late came, I raised her on Grape-Nuts, it is a strong, healthy baby."

You will see from this photograph I send you what a chubby youngster the boy is. This is the child I took anything like the Grape-Nuts, we found that nourishing Grape-Nuts nourished him back to strength when he was so weak he couldn't keep any other food on his stomach." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

All children can be built to a more sturdy and healthy condition upon Grape-Nuts and cream. The food contains the elements nature's demands from which to make the most vigorous of the nerve centers of the brain. Well-fed babies insure a sturdy body.

MOVING TARGET ADOPTED BY THE GERMAN ARMY.

German army officers have adopted a new moving target. In order to test the number of successful hits made by a force of riflemen upon a body of charging cavalry a target has been invented which consists of a number of life-size figures painted on a movable screen. This screen is connected with an immense beam securely fastened to the ground. By means of ropes passed over pulleys, inserted in the beam, the target is attached to a team of horses. The team is then set at full gallop, thereby drawing the target nearer to the beam, the infantry firing meanwhile. The troops have developed great efficiency in marksmanship.

Wife beating should be made a felony.

Nothing can prevent a sweeping republican victory in Nebraska this year. Even Gov. Mickey who is made the chief victim of democratic opposition cannot fall in the general triumph. A republican legislature, insuring the election of Hon. E. J. Burkett United States senator,—an able statesman in sympathy with the administration,—becomes more certain as the campaign develops and will probably be conceded by the most rampant democrat before election day rolls around. In return, republicans will concede Arkansas and Missouri.

As a general thing people do not believe in hades, especially a very hot one, as they think they get in this world all the heat they deserve. But there are exceptions, in which the hottest locality ever invented would be none too hot. Thus, a little 10-year-old girl at Fremont was on Monday seized and bound by a ruffian and dragged into a corn field and there brutally assaulted, from the effect of which she will die. The perpetrator of this crime escaped, but the authorities of Fremont are in hopes of soon capturing him. The wretch deserves no mercy. In such cases, people think of Lynch law, and though such thoughts are perhaps wrong they seem to be natural. In fact, a death which would in the most expeditious manner usher the brutal ravisher into the eternal fires of hades would to many not seem inappropriate. Such kind of crime as that above mentioned is, as the world grows older, becoming more and more frequent, and it is the duty of parents to their children to watch over them with constant solicitude.

The republican county convention last Saturday showed positive aversion to ring politics and by its action the party in Wayne county is more united than it has been before in many years. Speeches before the convention indicated a determination, the outgrowth of a general wish, to promote unity and make the selfish interests of rival factions subordinate to party success. To further the spirit of harmony and avoid leaders of both factions, it was unanimously decided to elect A. R. Davis chairman of the county central committee. He is recognized as a man who is free from factional entanglements and who will carry out his duties at the head of the republican organization faithfully, impartially and efficiently. The same idea—the dissolution of factions—was borne in mind in the selection of the secretary and the rest of the central committee. By the voting and speeches, it was very apparent that republicans of the county had grown tired of perpetuating factionalism and contributing to democratic success.

PAST AND PRESENT OF WAYNE COUNTY.

When the old settlers contrast Wayne county with what it was thirty years ago, they will be astonished to note the wonderful changes that have taken place. In those old days the county was an almost entirely unbroken prairie. The fine towns of Carroll, Hoskins, Winside, et al, were unknown and undreamed of. The only town was LaPorte, a town of three houses and a court house, where at long intervals district court was held. There were at that time about fifty settlers in the county. It was a great, fertile and beautiful tract of country, but it was rarely visited and hardly known, and its quiet solitudes and Sabbath-day stillness were seldom disturbed. Neighbors generally were miles apart and rarely met, yet when they did meet there were as much cordiality and friendship as now exist, indeed, perhaps more. Thus, through winter's storms and summer's heat, the handful of early settlers, with hardships and privations now unknown, lived and in a moderate way prospered. The land, rich as it was, was regarded as a drug in the market, and the settler, so far away from his neighbors, ruled if he wished, over all the hills and valleys he could see from his door—a principality, in fact.

We remember the time when people here and elsewhere began to awaken to the fact that this county, though undeveloped, was liable to become one of the richest in the state and that its land would soon be sought. It was when a railroad was talked of and especially when a railroad company actually made surveys through the county. The very thought that a railroad would be built and thus bring into being towns and nearby markets, quickened the pulses of the settlers and the price of land. Previous to that time land was unsalable—no man was so hard pressed for a home as to give even a dollar an acre for it. As an instance of its unsalability in Logan valley, one of the richest valleys in the state, a worthy man who had homesteaded a farm a few years before, offered repeatedly to sell it for a dollar an acre. This was less than government price. Fortunately for him, he could not find a purchaser, and was compelled to stay.

We remember that once a party of hunters camped on a rise of land three miles from where is now the city of Wayne. Captain Wilbur, who accompanied them and who knew something of the country, pointed out down a long valley, a railroad surveyor's shanty, and said that there was to be the coming town of Wayne. There was then nothing attractive about Wayne and its lone shanty; nothing attractive, indeed, in the land except its natural beauty, to draw a purchaser, especially as under railroad excitement land had risen from nothing to the exorbitant price of $2 per acre and for choice tracts $3 or more. Now how different it all is. The land now readily commands from $50 to $75 and $100 per acre and is well worth all it costs.

The lonesome shanty which Captain Wilbur pointed out was the nucleus around which the prosperous city of Wayne commenced and has since continued a vigorous and healthy growth in population, business and general prosperity.

Wayne county is said to be one of the richest counties in the state in its land, and there is no population anywhere more able to enjoy the luxuries and pleasures of life. Nor can there be found a class of people more intelligent and progressive than those of Wayne and the towns around it. Do old settlers, with their present regal surroundings and improvements, think of the pinching times they once experienced? Probably they do, and it is right that they should, as thereby they and their children will be made to realize the value of that perseverance which will in the end bring prosperity and independence.

BRYAN'S DUPLICITY.

(Sixty in the Lincoln Journal.)
It grieves me much that Bryan now, with manner unconcerned, is pressing down on labor's brow The crown of thorns he spurned. By which has he the truth denied, If truth he spoke of old, And all of us are crucified Upon a cross of gold. Denying former words and deeds, His footsteps trek amies; For Wall street now he daily pleads— Oh, what a world is this!

COLLEGE NOTES.

The college year opened Tuesday with an unusually large enrollment for the beginning, and the outlook for attendance through the term and year has never been brighter.

Prof. Wolf returned much refreshed from his three weeks' vacation which he spent at various points in Kansas and elsewhere. During his absence he delivered his lecture on the Philippine war and was listened to by interested and appreciative audiences.

Miss Neptune, new teacher in charge of the language department, is taking hold of the work with enthusiasm, and we predict that her department will easily sustain its previous excellent record.

Miss McLaughlin who takes Prof. Vaught's place as teacher of mathematics, spent her vacation visiting the St. Louis exposition. She is a well known student and will make a valuable addition to the corps of teachers.

Prof. Ross Cunningham who goes to the head of the music department, promises to make that branch more efficient than it ever has been in the past.

There will be a joint meeting of the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to be addressed by Miss Neptune, Prof. Wolf and Miss Evaalia Johnson. Special music will be provided. Public is invited.

STOMACH DOSING WON'T CURE.

Only Way to Cure Catarrh is by Breathing Hymel.

Ask any physician if catarrh is a blood disease and he will tell you that it is a diseased condition of the mucous membrane and that it cannot be cured by blood purifiers, pills, tablets, or other forms of stomach dosing.

The complete Hymel outfit costs $1.00 and comprises an inhaler, a bottle of Hymel and a dropper.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed.

FROM 148 TO 92 POUNDS.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure.

THE STOMACH IS THE MAN.

A weak stomach weakens the man, because it cannot transform the food he eats into nourishment. Health and strength cannot be restored to any sick man or weak woman without first restoring health and strength to the stomach.

TRAGEDY AVERTED.

"Just in the nick of time our little boy was saved" writes Mrs. W. Watkins, of Pleasant City, Ohio. "When pneumonia had played and havoc with him and a terrible cough set in besides, doctors treated him, but he grew worse every day. At length we tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and our darling was saved. He is now healthy and well."

Though Norris & Rowe have enlarged their new big shows until they have grown to the proportions of a huge circus, with two rings and an elevated stage, they have not neglected the trained animal acts which for so many seasons made the organization so full of picturesque incident and interest.

Among the multitude of animal acts there are several which stand out with startling prominence. Herbert Humly's school of educated seals, Herr Geisler's herd of comedy elephants, a quartet of cake walking horses, the enchanting pony ballet, the highly trained monkeys who perform dozens of amusing antics for the edification of the public, a May pole dance by boys and girls on ponies, the march, drill and evolutions of the regiment of Shetland ponies, who obey every order of their martinet of a leader with a promptness and a precision that is admirable.

Then comes the royal Roman hippodrome, the ancient Olympic games revived, the mammoth aerial encave, the immense new menagerie and museum, the antics of the twenty jolly, jesting clowns, together with the acrobats, gymnasts, equilibrists, tumblers, leapers, vaulters and athletes, all go to make up an intensely interesting display of varied features. Norris & Rowe's big shows will exhibit at Wayne Thursday, September 15.

REWARD OF MERIT. GREATEST PORTRAIT HOUSE.

O. S. Frigg, Nebraska Manager for the Chicago Portrait House, is in the city with a corps of solicitors who are showing samples and taking orders for enlarged work on a system that meets public approval.

The acme of perfection attained by this company commends them to our consideration. A new process to the trade permits this company to assure their patrons of an absolute reproduction of every feature the photograph contains; no feature is collected until the portrait is delivered.

A high standard of work is their aim, yet their prices appeal to all desiring artistic enlargements. A fully paid-up capital of one-half million dollars is a comfortable assurance to their patrons, this being the only concern of its kind whose financial and business methods are recognized by Dunn, Bradstreet and other financial agencies.

Ability to please—and fair treatment of the public has developed a business to such magnitude that an average of two thousand finished pictures are shipped daily from their studios.

Any young man of integrity and good character, who enters their services, can qualify for positions of responsibility and trust that yield handsome incomes. The ever increasing force of solicitors demands more managers, and promotions come rapidly. Mr. Frigg has established headquarters at the Boyd Hotel and can explain to those interested, the system of operation.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

Send for free sample. SCOTT & BOWNE, 4 Chemists, 299 413 Pearl Street, New York, N. Y. and in all druggists.

See the announcement of Bayer Slaters in this issue. They are preparing for a grand millinery display at their opening on the 15th, 16th and 17th inst., and the ladies of the city should not fail to call on them.

JEREMIAH HOPKIN'S VISIT. King Perkins Company—Frank G. King, "Chic" Perkins, the baby and dog, accompanied by players of more than common talent, will present "Old Farmer Hopkins" in the opera house Wayne, on Sept. 14. All will be welcomed. No theatrical company ever visits this part of the country with better reputation for making good. The play has been reconstructed for Mr. King and his Squire Hopkins is said to be the most artistic impersonator he has yet offered. We know how "Chic" Perkins is as a girl, but in this play she is both boy and girl, thus must be doubly fetching. The scenery and all accessories are elaborate, the singing and dancing specialties unusually good.

A POWER FOR GOOD. The pills that are a potent in their action and pleasant in effect are Dr. Witt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Philpot, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one Small as it was it did more good than calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. F. H. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered some years ago how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given Salve its name. Beware of cheap imitations. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

FARMER FRANK KING. King-Perkins Company in "Old Farmer Hopkins" is announced to appear in the opera house on Wednesday evening, Sept. 14. The play newly adapted to the company's performances, is bright and sparkling from start to finish. Squire Hopkins is a farmer, not the exaggerated character called a "Rube" and as presented by Frank G. King, is worth going miles to see.

Wonderful scenes of pleasure bright, wonderful animals nod and blink, visions of fairy joys. All of the dreamland through, wonderful dreams of rare delight come to small boys and girls. Do little folks' dreams come true? The dreams will surely come true for the announcement is made in flaring headlines that the new Norris & Lowe's greater shows, big circus carnival and congress of wild animals will give us two performances at Wayne, Thursday Sept. 15. So prepare then to rejoice, for the long cherished ambition of Norris & Rowe is now realized, the ambition to have a real big circus, replete with all the novelties that the greatest show that ever existed ever had and then some more. This season the show is made up of twenty special railway cars. Its mammoth new tents take up every available inch of space and it takes an elevated stage and two rings to properly give the complete exhibition of the various mid-air and ground performances of the many kinds.

We Don't Fish for Suckers

The kind of fish you catch depends on the kind of bait you use. Any old thing will catch bullheads, but wideawake game fish cannot be caught with rotten bait. No sucker or bullhead is ever caught by us. We don't use that kind of bait. They say there is a sucker born every minute and there is plenty of old rotten out of style goods to catch them with and the sidewalk is loaded with that kind of bait. No use to come here for that class of goods. We burn everything not sold the second season. Some merchants pile up old goods expecting to catch a sucker and sell out or trade the whole lot for a farm. They are not successful merchants. Why not buy clothing up to date, new and just received direct from the factory? It costs but little more and gives better satisfaction. Our fall and winter stock is now here and ready for your inspection. Come in and see the new styles even if you are not ready to buy. We have more goods this season than we have ever had, and better goods. You can make no mistake to trade here. No old goods to show and everything marked in plain figures and sold at one price. Everything guaranteed to satisfy. Step in and take a look at the fall styles. Try on a coat and see how they look. We are always glad to show our clothing whether you are ready to buy or not.

Chicago: President Donnelly, of the butchers' union, declared a meat famine would be forced and every man in the packing houses of all kinds would be called upon to declare a boycott.

The indications are that the five independent packers in Chicago will join with the big meat packers to fight the conditions with non-union crews.

Belleville, Ill.: As the result of the packing house strike in East St. Louis a large number of strikers have been cited to appear and show cause to the district court why they should be enjoined from interfering with the packers.

Citations were served on Patrick Moran, business agent of the packing trades' council and other leaders.

RINGS WITH CHEERS.

Japanese Rajotote Over Victory at Liao Yang.

Tokio: Tokio rings with shouts and cheers for the victory at Liao Yang. Lantern bearing crowds swing through the streets and surge around the staff offices, shouting "Banzai!"

The details of Thursday's fighting are scanty. It is only known that at dawn Gen. Rokun's army was hurled against the Russian right center on the southern line, and that the Russians were forced to abandon their line and positions and retreat.

The fight is now in progress. The result of this pursuit and the result of the fierce battle waged on the eastern line, where Gen. Kurolid is assailing the force which has long screened Liao Yang, together with the abandonment of the Russian right center on the southern line, suggests the Chinese situation. But here the Russian force is so heavy that it may possibly be able to protect and extricate itself.

The question of occupation of Liao Yang by Japanese is in doubt. The official dispatches do not make mention of such occupation. But it is assumed that the Russians are withdrawing their forces through Liao Yang and that the Japanese possibly occupied it later in the day.

No estimates are obtainable of the losses on either side.

Field Marshal Oyama describes his losses in the morning assault as heavy. The success of the attack was unexpected on account of the strength of the Russian defense.

It is confidently believed that Field Marshal Oyama will press the pursuit with vigor and indistinct prospect of success, if possible. It is believed his trophies will prove valuable. It is the opinion here that the Russians were not able to carry many guns with them, and they were forced to abandon or destroy vast quantities of stores.

St. Petersburg: A dispatch from the Associated Press correspondent, dated Sept. 2, timed 2:16, Friday morning, says that "the news of the evacuation of Liao Yang and the withdrawal of the Russian army to the right bank of the river Taitsai has caused intense excitement."

INTERSTATE FAIR—SIOUX CITY

Large Entries in All Departments—Exhibitors Planning for Space.

SioUX City, Ia.: One of the strong features of the Interstate Fair, to be held Sept. 5 to 10, inclusive, is the handsome appearance of the grounds, Woodland Park. A group of men for several months has been at work clearing away underbrush, trimming trees, and beautifying the forest, so that the grounds proper have the appearance of a large city park.

The buildings have all been painted white, and are handsomely decorated. The effect is very pretty. Hundreds of electric lights will be placed through the grounds and in the buildings, and the fair will remain open at night to allow visitors extra time in which to see the exhibits.

The secretary reports large entries in all departments and exhibitors clamoring for space.

The entries in the $3,000 state races are considerably over 75. Horsemen from Ohio on the east to Colorado on the west, and Arkansas on the south and Canada on the north, will bring their horses to Sioux City in the expectation of securing a portion of the stakes.

In addition to the regular trotting, pacing and running races, one of the interesting features of the fair will be the automobile races between machines from Des Moines, Omaha, Minneapolis and Sioux City.

The railroads have granted half fare rates, and the attendance will undoubtedly be very large.

MAKE A POOR HAUL.

Train Robbers Overlook a Thirteen Thousand Dollar Package.

Cheyenne, Wyo.: Upon the arrival of the Oregon express, on the Oregon Short Line, at Kemmerer, Wyo., at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, four men stepped out from the shadow of a building near the depot and as soon as the door of the express car was opened by the messenger two of them held him up, while two others stood off the station agent.

A package containing $900 to pay off the employees of the Kemmerer coal company was removed and given to the robbers, who disappeared.

A package containing $13,000 was not disturbed.

The scuffle attracted the robbery attracted the attention of the station telegraph operator and a number of switchmen near by. They rushed toward the express car, but were compelled to throw up their hands by the robbers.

After securing the money the robbers marched the express agent, operator and switchmen into the express office and locked them in and disappeared.

FATAL COLLISION.

Nine Persons Killed and Twenty-Two Injured in Quebec.

Montreal: Nine persons were killed and twenty-two injured in a head-on collision on the Grand Trunk Railway near Richmond, Quebec, Wednesday.

The trains involved were a special excursion from Montreal, bound for Sherbrook, and passenger train No. 3, running between Island Pond, Vt., and Montreal.

The collision, it is said, was due to neglect of orders on the part of the train crew of the excursion train, which left Richmond without awaiting the arrival of the passenger train.

The excursion train was running as the first section of the regular Grand Trunk and Portland express, which usually crosses the Island Pond train at Richmond, and was running on its time.

This makes it all the more inexplicable why Conductor Atkinson, in charge of the excursion train, did not make the usual crossing. Atkinson was cleared shortly after the wreck occurred.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Bad Weather for the Fair—Rain Keeps Crowds Away Opening Day, but Exhibitors Improve the Time—Race Horses the Center of Interest.

The Nebraska State fair opened Monday at Lincoln under conditions anything but favorable to a record breaking first day. The threats of rain nearly all day kept many away from the grounds, but otherwise would have gone out. The absence of a large crowd, however, gave exhibitors and others a better opportunity to get their work finished, and when the crowd begins to arrive almost everything will be good shape.

Monday there was nothing special done, though a few of the side shows opened up and put out their spictees, while Hagenow's band gave a concert. The center of attraction, however, was the stall in which Dan Patch, the famous pacer, is housed. Only a few favored by attraction, for only a few favored ones are allowed to enter and look at his excellency.

Transportation facilities to and from the grounds are ample and the crowd will be well handled.

The fair is not the only entertainment in Lincoln this week, and other amusement kept many of the more serious that visitors may take their choice.

A few members of the band which is with a theatrical company created some amusement while playing on the streets Monday afternoon by being the principals in an accident that might have been avoided, if the band members, dressed in the garb of the "robust rufes," occupied a hayrack on a wagon, and besides entertaining the crowd with their music, did a few clown acts.

In rounding a corner the front wheel fell down and dropped the bandmaster and his baton. He struck the ground so severely that he was unable to knock down two more players in the rear. None of the players was injured, though the music was safely out of harmony for some minutes.

Slips and Falls Into Fly Wheel While Starting Engine.

A boy by the name of Stout, who was in the engine room at the time, says that Pope turned on the steam switch and then took hold of the spokes of the fly wheel to start it. He slipped and his left arm went under the belt, drawing his body up against the wheel and breaking his neck. He fell back on the floor still breathing, but in seven minutes life was extinct.

Mr. Pope was 73 years of age.

PROGRESS OF THE EASTERN WAR

Reports from the scene of battle between General Kuropatkin and the Japanese around Liao-Yang are meager, but a study of the various dispatches shows it to have been one of the most sanguinary struggles of modern times. In the first two days of fighting it appears that 20,000 lives were sacrificed. The losses are about evenly distributed between the Japanese and Russians, according to all available accounts of an unbiased nature. Russian correspondents, however, agree in declaring that by far the heaviest losses have been suffered by the Japanese.

When darkness closed over the gory battlefield on the second night neither combatant, apparently, had gained a decisive advantage. General Kuropatkin's men on the south and southeast still held their trenches. On the extreme left flank, however, it was reported that General Kuraki had found a weak spot, that the Russian line was wavering and that the Japanese seemed about to get around it so as to strike the main Russian position in the rear.

All accounts agree in saying that all of Kuroki's, Oku's and Nodzu's troops participated in the renewed battle and that the fighting was continuous along the entire Russian line, a distance of about nine miles.

The Japanese opened their attack on the second day as soon as the eastern sky began to show the first gray streaks of dawn. The rain of the night had left the plain sodden with mud, but this did not cause the Japanese to falter. The sky was clear, and this fact gave the gunners on both sides their opportunity.

From their 1,000 cannon the Japanese poured a deadly shrapnel fire into

SCENE OF THE GREAT LIAO-YANG BATTLE.

The city of Liao-Yang is probably the oldest in Manchuria. It is situated on the Tai-Pai-Ho river, which runs into the Hun, a large tributary of the Liao. It is about forty miles in a direct line west-southwest of Mukden. The outer face and battlements of the high walls are of very hard brick, inner faces of stone. The walls have a circumference of over ten miles. The population is about 50,000, among whom are Mohammedans and many Chinese bannermen, with a goodly number of Manchus. The imperial highway from Mukden to New-Chwang and Port Arthur separates here from the old road to Korea. Liao-Yang was in ancient times a great Korean city, but was destroyed by the Chinese and became the first capital of the Liao or Iron dynasty. The railway runs east and west past the city; toward Mukden it goes northeast and from Shou-Shan south-southwest. The scene of the battle between the Japanese and Russians is on the plain east and south of Liao-Yang. Kuropatkin's trenches are eight miles from the city.

The battle was of the most desperate character. It raged continuously from dawn until midnight, and the slaughter must have been awful. Japanese assaults during the day had been directed principally against the Russian center, a little east of Maletung hill, near the railroad, and three miles southwest of Liao-Yang. Nothing approaching the severity of the infantry and artillery fire here had been before experienced in this war. General Kondratiev's division bore the brunt and suffered the most. Bayonet charges succeeded each other in rapid succession, while the artillery did never cease for a moment.

BALTIC FLEET GOING TO WAR.

Trials Prove Successful and Majority of Ships Await Unfinished Ones. The Associated Press is entitled to state authoritatively that there has been no change of plans regarding the Baltic squadron on account of the result of the recent sea fight off Port Arthur. The maneuvering and firing trials of the ships have been completely successful and the squadron has now returned to Cronstadt to await the finishing touches on the battleship Orel and the cruisers Oleg, Znamrud and Jemelch before sailing for the Orient.

The Japanese statement, on which Japan bases its demand that the crews of the Askold and Grozovi at Shanghai be interned until the end of the war, namely, that the officers and men of the Variaz and Goretz are on board ships bound for the far East, is untrue. The crews of these two vessels have been distributed among the school and training squadrons and on shore duty in the Baltic and Black sea, but not one man or one officer is on Vice Admiral Rozhdestvensky's vessels.

Japan's Gain at Port Arthur. News arriving in Chetoo from Port Arthur appears to indicate that the Japanese have practically ceased to attempt the capture of the fortress by assault. Much fighting is going on constantly, but it is a battle of artillery for the most part and the offensive operations partake more of the nature of a siege than of an attack.

GENERAL KUROKI.

the Russian intrenchments. As soon as possible after morning broke the Japanese sent up a big war balloon. This searched the plain in an effort to locate the Russian trenches. The Russian mortar batteries hammered away at the aerial craft, but were unable to wreck it.

The balloon remained immune from hostile shells, and when its mission had been accomplished it was lowered. Soon thereafter the Russians felt the effect of its service, for the Japanese cannon and mortars hurled a doubly effective fire into the Russian positions on the south and in the center.

Rifle-firing and infantry charges followed the shelling of the Russian lines and then the combatants clashed again and again with the bayonet and the sword. The onsets were furious, the resistance was no less deadly.

In one portion of the battle the Russians took the offensive. This was along the railroad south of Liao-Yang. The Japanese attempted to advance up the line, but the Russians charged them and by main strength and brute force in bayonet attacks pushed them down the track for considerable distances at a time.

Toward noon rain fell again, and this hampered the combatants on both sides. Through the mist, however, the conflict was kept up, and at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon it was reported that the Russian left flank was wavering, that Kuroki was getting around it, that he would soon be able to cross the Tai-tse river and be able to attack Kuropatkin in the rear.

The long-expected battle at Liao-Yang began on Tuesday and the armies of the Czar and Mikado engaged in what was expected to be the decisive battle of the campaign. The general advance of the Japanese began Monday at noon, the Russian outposts falling back upon the main lines. The heaviest fighting was taking place when the news dispatch was sent, from a point ten miles southeast of

GENERAL OKU.

Liao-Yang, where the Japanese seemed to be concentrating for their main blow. The Russians suffered principally from the shrapnel fire of the Japanese artillery.

The Japanese searched the whole countryside with their fire, selecting certain squares of territory on which for a few moments they massed a hail of shot and shell from all their guns.

ORDERS ALL TO QUIT.

Donnelly Tells 15,000 More Union Butchers to Lay Down Tools. In a final effort to render effective the strike of the butcher workmen in the packing industry Michael Donnelly, president of their national organization, has ordered on strike every union member in America, whether working for firms that have agreements with the union and have stood by it during the strike against the five large packing firms or not. In this extreme measure, Donnelly says, will be involved another 15,000 meat cutters and butcher workmen, 2,000 of them being in Chicago.

All stock handlers at the yards in Chicago quit work Wednesday in support of the butchers' latest move to make their strike of some avail. More than 1,000 employees of the company walked out.

All who quit work marched out of the yards as soon as the hour for striking arrived. There was a party of about 500 of them in Exchange avenue during the exodus and much confusion resulted. Independent packers with plants outside, who had bought cattle during the early hours of the market, were rushing their droves in order to be out of the yards early enough to avert any molestation and to get their animals into the plants and yards before the strike order went into effect.

Scenes of wildest confusion and disorder accompanied the departure of the live stock handlers as they emerged from the yards at the Exchange street entrance. More than 5,000 strikers were on hand to welcome them. The men came out in all sorts of conveyances. Some were standing in rows of cars, others in express wagons, some came on horseback, while many more were on foot. They made a rush for the headquarters of the Union Stock Yards and Transit Company, where they turned in their time checks. In the midst of the throng were farmers and cattle drivers of independent concern who were simply trying to get their herds out of the yards before the handlers quit.

Pandemonium seemed to have broken loose for a time and the police were powerless to check the disorder.

The national executive board of the butcher workmen, at its meeting in Chicago Tuesday evening, voted not to call off the strike at the stock yards. Instead the struggle is to be continued until the strikers are "accorded an honorable adjustment," according to a statement issued by President Donnelly as a result of the meeting.

Following futile efforts to induce the packers to grant another conference members of the executive board of the butcher workmen met Monday night to consider plans. Statements were made that the question of calling off the strike should be submitted to a vote of the union. Objection against this was made on the ground that it would take three days to secure the vote and that meantime a break in the union might result. Reorganization of the union would be difficult if a break occurred, it was said.

The anticipated break in the ranks of the strikers Tuesday was not as strong as the observing ones said it would be. In the language of one, "the barrel is leaking." In all 200 men and women returned to work during the forenoon. At 4:30 p. m. fifty men returned to work, and in the label, sausage and tanning houses forty women were taken on. At the Hammond plant forty men were given work. Swift & Co. got back from twenty to twenty-five old employees. Nelson Morris & Co. put fifteen of its former employees back at work. At the Schwarzenbach & Sulzberger plant thirty men returned.

With most of 7,000 men already left off because of lack of orders, announcement was made that the shops of the Pullman company, Pullman, Ill., practically will be closed for a period. It was said that 2,000 men now employed in the shops probably would be let off, and the shops may be kept shut until after the presidential election. Several weeks ago officials of the company asserted orders were so few that employees were being constantly let off.

War News in Brief. The first day of the desperate Liao-Yang battle ended in success for the Russian arms, according to St. Petersburg advices, the charges of the Japanese on three sides of the city being repulsed.

A Japanese supply steamer, said to have had $5,000,000 on board for the Japanese army, was stopped by a Cherfoo official, and a torpedo craft from Dalny rushed into port in the night and rescued the cash.

Russia has equipped two steamers, the Korea and the Kitai, belonging to the Danish-Russian East Asiatic Steamship Company, as auxiliary cruisers. The vessels will be attached to the Baltic squadron.

The Japanese have made some gains in their advance on the fortress at Port Arthur. They have destroyed the fort at Tungshin Tashan, mounted guns on an adjoining hill and are bombarding the inner defenses from this position.

Recently a Japanese officer tried to gain entrance into Port Arthur in a sack carried by a Chinaman. The mouth of the sack was filled with cabbage. A sentry stuck a bayonet into the bag and exposed the artifice. Both the Japanese and the Chinaman were shot.

Early Tuesday morning the Japanese appeared on the hills east and southeast of Liao-Yang. At 11 o'clock the Japanese infantry advanced very boldly from the south on to Mount Shoushan and took the villages nine versts south of Liao-Yang on the railway line. The Russian shells did great execution. There was a pile of about a score of black-clad Japanese bodies, the result of a single shell falling in front of Shoushan on a Russian trench. When this shell fell the Japanese infantry began fire.

From the beginning of the war all the land operations of the two belligerents have been leading up to the Liao-Yang conflict. The one question has been at whether or not Gen. Kuropatkin would be sufficiently strong when the the Republican campaign text-book has been printed. The Montana Republican State convention will be held at Billings Sept. 7. The Idaho Democratic State convention will be held at Rock Springs Sept. 6. The fusionist and middle-of-the-road Populists of Indiana agreed to a joint convention.

The People's party will place a full electoral State ticket in the field in New York.

Senator Ekins declares that West Virginia is as safe for the Republican ticket as Pennsylvania.

David B. Hill said the New York Democratic State convention probably would be held Sept. 20 at Saratoga.

Gov. Yates of Illinois has decided to make his home in Springfield, where he will wage his campaign for United States Senator.

Republicans of eastern Indiana will open the campaign Sept. 1 at Richmond, when Speaker Cannon will be the principal orator.

State Treasurer Kempf of Wisconsin has appealed to the Milwaukee courts to prevent his removal from the La Follette State ticket, alleging that he resigned under political coercion.

"People's Democratic" party is being organized in New Jersey by the former Hearst element. Its members will support Parker, but an independent State and congressional ticket will be nominated.

Quotations from President Roosevelt's books, criticizing former executives, have been gathered by the Democrats for use in a campaign pamphlet.

Plans for a tour of Massachusetts to effect a Democratic organization in every town were made at a meeting of the State executive committee.

The New York Herald says Democrats have a chance to secure control of the House by making gains in States regarded as certain to vote for Roosevelt.

The Texas Populist State convention nominated Dr. Pat B. Clark of Red Bluff, county, for governor and a full electoral ticket for Watson and Tibbels.

GENERAL KUROPATKIN.

crisis should come to risk a decisive battle at Liao-Yang. The fact that Kuropatkin engaged in battle demonstrates either that he could not fall back safely or that he was willing to take the chances of fighting a greatly superior force.

Points in Corn Growing. The art of raising corn is summed up in Indiana Farmer: The cut of corn plants in a row distance part is shown for the purpose of impressing the reader with the importance of better methods of cultivation than those formerly pursued; in other words, to show the necessity of shallow level cultivation after the corn plant is a few feet high.

This country has the only productive and profitable corn belt in the world. The demand and increasing price of corn in the last few years have raised the annual production to about 2,000,000,000 bushels, and yet the average per acre for the whole country is only 212 bushels. It is a rather remarkable fact that on the poor soils of New England the average production per acre is largest. This is doubtless due to the fact that better fertilization, cultivation and seed selection is practiced there. It is very well known that there is great advantage in seed selection. Many instances of this have shown that on the same quality of soils fifteen bushels per acre have been produced, more than where the work of selecting seed was neglected. Again, it has been shown that corn growing on lands the previous year in leguminous crops has greatly increased in production.

The best corn growers now begin cultivation with weedeers or harrows before, or by the time, the corn begins to appear above the ground, this both for the purpose of destroying the germinating weeds as well as to put the soil in better condition for corn growth. It is always important that the ground be stirred after rains, where crust forms and starts rapid evaporation of the moisture. It is well settled now that a good stubble of two or three inches' depth is one of the things necessary in corn cultivation.

Formerly deep cultivation was practiced, but it is now seen that this was a mistake. When the crop is three or four feet high the ground begins to mat with the fine fibrous roots which extend from row to row, as shown in the cut. When six to eight feet high these fine root feeders of the plant have made a complete mat between the rows. In deep cultivation, reaching down to five or six inches, these ever become broken by accident, there will still be left a firm roller of cement that has hardened to rock-like consistency.

Poultry and Small Fruits. The writer has been much interested in a fruit and poultry farm which he has visited yearly for the last five years, and the results obtained on this farm have been such that they are well worth attention here. The owner was over sixty years old when he took up this work. He had been a farmer all his life and had raised both fruit and poultry to a limited extent. As he grew older the soil left the farm and it became too much of a burden. He sold it and bought ten acres on the outskirts of a city of 25,000 people. At the end of the first year from chicks raised and fowls bought he had ninety-four laying hens. One acre of strawberries was also in good condition for a first crop the following summer.

At the end of five years he has nearly three hundred fowls and pullets for egg production, markets many broilers, roasters and fowls and has three acres in strawberries. With the help of one man all the work is done and our friend is making more actual money beyond the cost of his living than he had ever made on the farm of seventy acres and with a much smaller investment. There are possibilities in this combination in many sections of the country, and they are well worth looking into. Plenty of hard work in it, of course, and many disappointments, but under skilled management it will bring success.—Indianapolis News.

fine plant feeders are broken off, and growth toward maturity is checked. Of course, new fibrous roots will form from those broken, but less is sustained and never fully recovered. It is the same when a calf or pig has its growth checked by starving for food; it can never fully recover the loss.

Keep Up the Milk Flow.

Every dairyman knows that when a cow is allowed, through lack of succulent food, to fall off in her milk, it is impossible to again bring her back to the original flow, no matter how beautifully she is fed. Even if the food costs more than the milk during the summer drought, it is best to keep it up if it is intended to milk the cow through the fall and winter. To allow the milk yield to run down is to court a double loss. The loss of the milk is something, but if the milk is going to a creamery that is cooperative in any phase the lessened supply from all the patrons will increase proportionately the cost of making butter and thus force a further loss on the patron. Unfortunately on most of our farms it is looked upon as the regular thing to have the cows fall off in their milk at this time of year, and nothing is done to prevent it. This not doing anything is the hardest thing to overcome when we are trying to induce the adoption of methods that will insure the continuation of the flow of milk during early summer through the hot weather. This is a hard period for our creamery men, but the loss always gets back to the farmers in the end. This should be remembered and measures taken to insure different results.—St. Louis Republic.

Work Horse in Hot Weather.

How many drivers are there who think that a horse would be more comfortable if his harness is taken off when he comes in hot, tired and sweaty from a forenoon's work? Just as man likes to take off his hat, boots and sweaty stockings after a tramp behind the harrow, so the team is refreshed by being unharnessed. A horse is never so hot that a half-pail full of water will injure him, and it is a cruel custom to put the horse in a close stall without a sup of water to cool his parched mouth, while the driver goes to liquidate at the pump. It is considered unwise to allow a horse to drink a large quantity of water just before or immediately after eating. By giving them a pail full of water coming in from the field the horses will relish their hay, and by the time they are unharnessed another pail full may be given and grain fed. Then, before going to the field, allow them to drink as much as desired. And this will be more nearly the proper quantity than if permitted to fill up when first coming in from the field. A horse is so valuable to neglect, and careful attention not only pays in his increased usefulness, but an animal which stands so high in the scale of intelligence is entitled to humane treatment.—Exchange.

Making a Ga den Roller. Get a piece of two-foot squareware tiling about fourteen inches in diameter and set it on a board, as shown in the top picture. Place an iron rod exactly in the center, passing down through the board about an inch and projecting above the tiling about the same distance—that is, two inches. Now fill in the tiling to the top with cement and broken rocks, the cement being two parts sand to one of dry cement. Have the ends faced with the clear mixture of sand and cement—that is, with none of the broken rock appearing in view. Now arrange a handle upon the projecting iron bar in the center, as shown in the lower picture, and the roller is complete. Should the outer covering of tiling ever become broken by accident, there will still be left a firm roller of cement that has hardened to rock-like consistency.

The writer has been much interested in a fruit and poultry farm which he has visited yearly for the last five years, and the results obtained on this farm have been such that they are well worth attention here. "Homogenized" Milk. The latest thing we have now is "homogenized" milk. It is milk that has been heated to 185 degrees and then forced against a porcelain plate under high pressure. This breaks up the globules of cream until they are so fine they will not rise to the surface. It is said that milk treated in this manner has been kept for six weeks without getting sour or showing any cream on the top of the milk. Science is doing great things if this be true.

Largest Apple Orchard. The largest orchard probably in the world is in Missouri. It is the great Winans orchard, near Marshfield, in Webster County. There are eighty-six thousand apple trees, ten thousand peach trees and ten thousand pear trees. The acreage covered is 1,240. It is estimated that the orchard is now worth $408,000. There are to-day in the county one million bearing trees.

Farm Notes.

Close inbreeding is a short cut to temporary success. A poor appetite in an animal suggests some weakness. Hogs may be fed corn as soon as the grain begins to harden. All things considered, early plowing is best for fall wheat. A fattened old cow has a larger proportion of waste than a young animal. All animals require a variety in their food in order to make the best gains. Set the milk as quickly as possible after milking to get perfect rising of the cream. When fed dry, shelled corn is more economical than corn meal to feed to fattening hogs. If the conditions are favorable, August is the best time to set out strawberry plants. To obtain the best results the farm work must be done in the best manner and at the proper time. The temporary gate, or the makeshift fence, will often cause more trouble than making a good one. Quantity in clover hay counts for less than quality. Now is the time to arrange for quality by cutting it in the right time. As many as a dozen farmers have found out that it does not pay to keep hogs and poultry in the same enclosure. It is to be hoped that more will learn this fact by another year. Many a man who does not have any confidence in himself, or in God, has implicit confidence in an old, warped horse. It is strange how some people who are intelligent will act.

Twenty Years Ago.

The crew of the schooner W. W. Brigham, which founded and turned turtle in the middle of Lake Michigan, was taken from a raft made of lumber, on which it had floated for three days without food. King Humbert, visited the cholera stricken district of Piedmont. Thirty-eight deaths occurred, and seventy-eight new cases of cholera developed in Italy. Gov. Hoadly of Ohio ordered troops into Hocking county to suppress riots at the coal mines. Ten men were cremated in the burning of a circus train at Greeley, Colo. Fifteen persons were drowned by the overturning of the steamer Belmont in the Ohio river near Henderson, Ky. England closed a contract with a Chicago firm for 300,000 pounds of compressed beef for the Gordon relief expedition to Khartoum. A report that Queen Victoria had died suddenly threw London into a panic until the canon was disproved.

THE WEEKLY HISTORIAN

One Hundred Years Ago.

Commodore Preble made a fifth attack on Tripoli, capturing several vessels and prisoners. England ordered a blockade of all the northern ports of France. The treasury of Havana, Cuba, was robbed of $250,000 in gold. By treaty at Vincennes the Delaware and Piankeshaw Indians ceded their claim to all lands between the Wabash and Ohio rivers and south of the road from Vincennes to the falls of the Ohio. Margaret Shippen, wife of Benedict Arnold, died in London. England took possession of Cape Nicholas Mole, Port-au-Prince, mounted guns on the fort and fired on American vessels which passed.

Seventy-five Years Ago.

Instructions were given to American ministers abroad to make every effort to obtain redress for spoliation on our commerce. Two American vessels were captured off the coast of Portugal by Don Miguel's squadron, for which an explanation was demanded by the United States. The Queen of Portugal and her mother-in-law left England for Mexico. Educators from all of the States met at Boston to consult on public school work throughout the country. A new asteroid, named Euphrosyne, was discovered at the Washington observatory. An entire change of ministry occurred in the Buenos Ayres government.

Fifty Years Ago.

The United States minister at Madrid left that city in consequence of the feeling against him, as he was accused of general connivance in all the troubles. Maria Christina, queen mother of Spain, left Madrid for Portugal, under an escort of government troops, but against the wish of the people, as she was indebted to the State $8,875,000. Napoleon III. left Paris in order to take command of the army of the north at Boulogne. The fortress of Hango, Bormersund, was bombarded by the allied troops. The Queen of Spain with her husband and children was banished from Madrid. Cadix, having been made a free port, Gibraltar was reported to have lost much of its trade.

Forty Years Ago.

Indians were on the warpath on the upper Arkansas river, massacring families and running off cattle. Indians of six tribes were reported to be massacring settlers and stealing cattle in the Platte valley, and to be menacing Omaha and Council Bluffs. The Democratic national convention which nominated George B. McClellan for President and G. H. Pendleton for Vice President was held in Chicago. A report of the surrender to Admiral Farragut of Fort Morgan, at the entrance of Mobile bay, was confirmed by a bulletin from Secretary of War Stanton. Secretary of War Stanton issued a bulletin telling of the fighting at Bean's station between Gen. Hancock's forces and the Confederates. It contained a statement from Gen. Grant estimating the Confederate losses of the week at that point to be 10,000 dead and captured.

Thirty Years Ago.

Russia sent a circular note to the powers declining to recognize the republic of Spain. Six leaders of a negro mob that had threatened to sack Pickettville, Tenn., were taken from jail at Trenton and lynched. Three negroes were lynched by a mob at Brookhaven, Miss. THE FILIPINO CHARACTER.

The Filipino is commonly supposed to be of an extremely revengeful nature, like the oriental races in general. In my opinion the native of these Islands is not more revengeful than other races; in fact that certain Asiatic as well as European people are decidedly more revengeful and relentlessly cruel in satisfying their revenge than the ordinary Filipino. The Filipino is a child of larger growth, easily offended and in general easily appeased. The people are as a rule indolent and good natured, and when their good nature is ruffled, a little tact and conciliatory management will restore tranquillity.

The great proportion of the numerous murders and stabbing affrays coming before the courts are the result of quarrels, committed in the heat of the affray, though there are occasional instances of homicides perpetrated after long deliberation and for the purpose of satisfying the revenge of the murderer. An instance coming under my personal observation was a striking illustration of a murder of this nature. The circumstances as related by the accused was substantially as follows: He wished to kill a party named Pedro for a supposed injury that had been inflicted some days before the transaction. Taking his spear he proceeded to the house of Pedro's father, where his intended victim lived. He so timed his departure as to arrive at the house about dark. After the manner of the country the house was built on poles six feet from the ground, the floor being composed of bamboo strips laid parallel, so that a person walking under the house could look up between the strips of bamboo. It was night time and the room above was lighted, and the observer below was enabled to see the occupants of the room, himself being unobserved in the darkness below. Sexto cunningly considered the situation, he cautiously made his way under the house upon his arrival upon the scene after dusk. Peering through the cracks of the floor he saw the family crouched about the common center of a dish of rice from which all were eating after the custom of the lower class natives. As well as he was able from his point of view, Sexto made a careful survey of the family party, selecting the member he supposed to be Pedro and locating his position he inserted the point of his spear directly beneath his victim and gave a vicious lunge upward inflicting a wound from which he died in two hours. The victim, however, proved to be not Pedro, but his father, whom the assassin mistook for the son whom he intended to kill. Immediately upon the perpetration of the act the murderer fled into the outer darkness, escaping unobserved and might to this day have remained undetected had not his own garrulousness given the clue and set the avenger of blood on his track.

The above illustrates the recklessness of certain classes of the orientals in regard to taking human life. The trivial cause of the wanton murder was the refusal of Pedro to return on demand, to Sexto a bolo which the latter had entrusted to him for safe keeping some time previously. It appeared from the evidence that during the Spanish regime, Sexto, who appears to have been of a quarrelsome disposition, had been sentenced to a term of imprisonment for manslaughter. At the time of the uprising a general jail delivery was had, Sexto, being among the liberated prisoners. Shortly after his release, Sexto met Pedro and asked for the return of the bolo and said that he had turned over to him at the time of his incarceration. Pedro delivered the spear but not the bolo, stating that the latter weapon was in the hands of the civil authorities. The disappointed Sexto yearned for his trusty bolo and refused to be satisfied, and then and there meditated revenge on Pedro, whom he would have attacked on the spot but was withheld by the presence of bystanders. A week later Sexto fed his revenge by the unintentional murder of another.

The sacredness of human life is slightly regarded among a certain class of this people. A man killed a little child in cold blood that he might be revenged upon the father who, as he claimed, had borrowed an axe from him, which he refused either to return or pay the value thereof, amounting to seventy-five cents. In this case the murderer visited the house of the offending party with a companion, presumably with the intention of venting his spite on him, but not finding the father at home, killed the child with the blow of an axe. Another instance coming under my observation, was that of an elderly man lashing a female relative across the face with the ever ready bolo, leaving an indelible brand for life, the punishment being dealt to the young woman because she failed to treat the old man with proper respect addressing him with unbecoming words and using insulting gestures. Another party killed a woman on the spot, the provocation in this case being that the victim called the aggressor a fool. The native attorney, defending the murderer, urged that the word fool, in the Visayan tongue possesses an extremely offensive meaning, claiming that the court should consider the provocation as a mitigating circumstance in imposing the penalty.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Hymel's Only Guaranteed Cure for This Common and Disagreeable Disease.

Hymel's cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the air passages and lungs. It kills the germs of catarrhal poison, heats and soothes the irritated mucous membrane and effectually drives this disease from the system.

If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucous membrane of the throat, bronchial tubes or tissues of the lungs:

Offensive breath, dryness of the nose, pain across the eyes, pain in the back of the head, pain in front of the head, tendency to take cold, burning pain in the throat, hawking to clear the throat, pain in the chest, cough, stitches in side, loss of flesh, variable appetite, low spirited at times, raising of frothy mucus, expectorating yellow matter, difficulty in breathing, frequent sneezing, huskiness of voice, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose at night, pain in the body, dropsy in the throat, mouth open while sleeping, tickling back of the palate, formation of crusts in the nose, dryness of the throat in the morning, loss of strength, spasms of coughing, cough short and hacking, coughing hours nights and mornings, loss in vital force, a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest.

Hymel will destroy activity of all catarrhal germs in the respiratory organs and in a few weeks the cure will be complete.

This is a strong statement, but E. J. Raymond emphasizes it by agreeing to refund your money if Hymel does not cure.

Our Team Harness varies in style and finish according to price, but at all figures there's good value.

The stock used throughout is good oak-tanned leather. The trimmings, whether of nickel, brass, rubber or iron, are of excellent quality. The workmanship, visible and invisible, is first-class. This harness will wear out, but I won't break out.

A metal-covered hub, which will not chock or split. A combination wood and steel axle, the wood and steel going the whole length of the axle. This axle will stand twice the strain of an ordinary hickory axle. Also a bolster-stake made from heavy sheet-steel.

The popularity of the MacKinnon Wagon rests not only on the above improvements, but every piece of lumber used in its construction is carefully selected from the best Wisconsin timber. The parts are fitted and put together by skilled workmen, and nothing is left undone, even in the smallest detail, to make it a perfect wagon in every particular. We manufacture our own wood stock, from the log to the wagon, and as we have been frankly five years engaged in the manufacture of wagon material, we have gained an experience in the selection of wagon wood second to none. Our factory is supplied with the most complete and latest machinery. We have at all times a large stock of lumber carefully selected and well seasoned.
