AMERICAN FENCE FARM PROFITS

Every rod of good fence helps to cheapen the cost of your matured hogs, beves, sheep and horses.

The better and greater the quantity of efficient fence on the farm, the higher the price per acre.

If you do not raise stock, the good fence protects your crops and insures largest possible returns.

Thousands of investors are making fortunes by buying up so-called "run down" or "raw" farms, putting on a few buildings and good fences, then selling them for improved up-to-date farms. Good fences, well built, pay bigger dividends than good barns or good houses.

You want bigger profits per acre—build good fire-proof, stock-proof, time-proof fences. Now is the time to do it. American Fence is the best fence, fully guaranteed, always satisfactory. It is cheaper per rod today than ever before. The manufacturers propose to double the use of American Fence during the next twelve months. We are here to help them. In helping them we help you by offering you American Fence, the BEST in the world, at heretofore unheard of prices. Come and see us, don't delay—this opportunity is too good to miss. You know a good thing, and you know when a good thing is cheap.

It is not always best to buy cheap things, but when CHEAP and GOOD, in fact, the BEST, and the article will pay dividends for years afterward, it is clearly safe and good business sense to buy it, and buy all you can use to advantage.

Come and see us—we know we can save you money now.

METHODIST CONFERENCE

Begins Annual Session in Wayne Wednesday Morning.

PRESIDED OVER BY BISHOP JOYCE

Examination of Undergraduates Preliminary to Formal Opening—Interesting Lectures by Prof. O. S. Bronson—Next Sunday's Services.

The North Nebraska conference of the Methodist church convened in annual session in Wayne, Wednesday morning, September 14, 1904. The conference is presided over by Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, of Minneapolis, Minn., and is attended by about 150 ministers, several of whom are accompanied by their wives.

Preliminary to the formal opening Wednesday morning, was the examination of the undergraduates on Tuesday, and a lecture Tuesday night by Prof. S. O. Bronson, of Garrett Biblical Institute of Evanston, Ill., on the "True Notes of the Early Church." Prof. Bronson is a clear-cut, forceful and interesting speaker, and greatly pleased and edified his large audience.

He emphasized five traits as characteristic of the early Christian church:

district, made his report, which showed good progress in the territory over which he presides.

T. C. Dill, field secretary of the church extension society, was introduced and made an enthusiastic address in behalf of the cause he represents.

Adjournment was then taken until one o'clock when a session was held to receive statistics and moneys collected during the year. The indications are that when the statistics are tabulated they will show good advances along all lines.

At two o'clock the second of the series of lectures by Prof. Bronson was given. His theme was "The Pastor's Leadership." To be a leader the pastor, according to Prof. Bronson, must be first a well ordered man and second must know how to rule both at home

First, it was evangelistic; second, it was persistent under bitter persecution; third, it combined the healing of the body with the salvation of the soul; fourth, its members had a beautiful inner life; and fifth, it was benevolent.

The formal opening of the conference took place Wednesday morning at 8:30 o'clock with a devotional meeting conducted by Rev. C. M. Griffith, of Stanton, followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper, assisted by the presiding elders and Rev. Thos. J.

and in the church. There are four stages in the development of such a leader: First, the priest; second, the prophet; third, the pastor; and fourth, the leader. As a priest, he is to take mankind and lead it to the Infinite One. As a prophet he must teach and instruct those who are entrusted to his care. As a pastor he must care for the needy and relieve the distressed, and as a leader he must influence men to the highest possible type of manhood.

with supplies and in the spirit of the Master relieving their wants whatever they may be. The Christian may not be able to heal as Christ did, but he may heal as the Good Samaritan did and the command to us is, "Go thou and do likewise."

The Sunday School Anniversary was held at three o'clock, Rev. A. P. George, of St. Louis, Mo., traveling secretary of the Sunday School Union, making the address. He spoke on the qualifications of the coming Sunday school teacher. He is a fluent, forceful and witty speaker, and is always gladly heard by all.

This was followed by an evangelistic service conducted by E. S. Dunham, D. D., of Delaware, Ohio. Mr. Dunham is a common-sense, broad-minded and enthusiastic revivalist, and much good is anticipated from these meetings conducted by him each afternoon from four to five and on Sunday night. He has traveled with Bishop Joyce from conference to conference for several years and in all visited more than forty conferences and has been instrumental in accomplishing much good in this particular line of work.

CLUB DIRECTORS MEET.

The directors of the Commercial Club met Tuesday evening and finished its permanent organization by electing Chas. Craven secretary.

A committee consisting of Dan Harrington, Theo. Duerig and Jas. Miller, was appointed to consult business men in regard to agreeing on an early hour for closing their places of business in the evening.

Another committee was suggested but not completed, to further a project looking to the provision of a public building for Wayne. The proposed enterprise will be taken up and pursued with united energy.

The directors will hold a regular meeting every month.

SPEAKER CANNON AT NORFOLK

Speaker Cannon of the national house of representatives will present the political issues in an address at Norfolk on the evening of September 27. He is listed to give only three speeches in this congressional district, the two other points being Columbus and West Point. Mr. Cannon is a national figure, second only in importance to the presidential nominees, and he will attract large crowds wherever he speaks. Norfolk citizens have met and appointed committees to make due preparations for the event.

THIEVES STILL AT LARGE.

The thieves who stole the team, buggy and harness of Frank Orane and team of Jno. Sundell on Wednesday of last week, have not been located as yet. It is thought that they went northwest, and Sheriff Mears continued his search for them until Monday when he returned to Wayne. He went as far as Springfield. Mr. Orane also went in pursuit of the thieves, but returned Tuesday without finding them. It is hoped they will yet be detected and brought to justice.

DR. SISSON NOT HERE.

It is reported that Presiding Elder Sisson's recovery is slower than had been expected and he will therefore be unable to attend the M. E. conference now in session in Wayne. He is still in the Omaha hospital, and while it is regretted that he cannot be here, his friends rejoice to know that his condition is improving steadily, though slowly, and that his restoration to good health is only a question of time.

TEACHERS WILL MEET.

The teachers of Wayne, Dakota, Dixon and Thurston counties will hold a joint meeting at Emerson October 8 and have a program of educational interest. Deputy State Superintendent McBrion of Lincoln, and President J. M. File of the Wayne college will be the speakers and Emerson talent will furnish the music. In addition each county will furnish two features of the program.

JONES FOR COMMISSIONER.

Delegates from the third commissioner's district met in the Winslow 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, electing Dr. Cherry chairman and E. D. Merrill secretary. All precincts were represented excepting Sherman. Ed. T. Jones and F. E. Francis were pitted against each other for the nomination, the ballot resulting in seventeen votes for the former and six for the latter.

CHAPTER I.
Before commencing the narration of that strange, extraordinary incident which began in my fourteenth year, I must glance back at the earlier years of my childhood, and at those who influenced it.

My earliest recollections are of Tabernacle House; previous to those, all is dim and shadowy. Tabernacle House was an establishment kept by the Rev. Obadiah Porter for the reception of some half dozen boys.

The reverend pedagogue was a man whose satyr-like face greatly belied his professions of profound piety. I could not understand, child as I was, how it ever came into his head to set up as a tutor, or how parents or friends could be induced to commit the education of children to the care of a man deficient in the common rudiments of learning. His principal occupation was that of a shoemaker, and his hands still retained a coarse, grained look. His bullet-shaped head was covered with a thick mass of hair, which had a shaggy, ragged appearance, from being cut in irregular lengths, or rather chopped away in pieces. His forehead was very low. He had thick, shaggy eyebrows, and small, snake-like eyes. In stature he was short, thick-set, bull-necked; his arms were remarkably long; his feet sprang and ill shaped.

Obadiah Porter was a widower, with one daughter. So powerfully have terrible events engraven her after-image upon my mind, that I can scarcely recall its first impressions. I think she must have been about fifteen or sixteen. I being some five or six, when I first saw her. She did not bear the slightest resemblance to her father, except in her hair, which was bright red, her complexion pale, her eyes large, her features delicate, and sharply cut. To this young lady was handed over the tuition of her father's pupils.

There were five besides myself. There was a strange bond of sympathy between us all—none of us knew any thing of our parents. One knew an aunt, another an uncle, a third a grandmother, or a grandfather, or a guardian, but no father or mother.

It was a peculiarity of Mr. Porter's establishment that he did not take boys who had parents. His advertisement in the newspapers ran thus: "The Reverend Obadiah Porter undertakes the care, education and religious training of orphan boys from the earliest age. Unexceptional references as to piety and discretion will be given. N. B.—No holidays."

It is not my intention to linger upon the details of our interesting, monotonous life. The years crept on, and were almost wholly passed within the precincts of Tabernacle House. It had large gardens back and front—the latter being screened from the road by a high wall—besides an extensive orchard and a paddock. Altogether, it was quite a gentleman's home. But rents are wonderfully low in these parts. Mr. Porter was very well-to-do. His boarders alone brought him in a respectable income; his chapel was well attended, and he numbered many of the most prominent citizens of the town among his congregation, to one of whom—Mrs. Humphreys—this house belonged.

By and by there were changes. One boy left, and then another; but others took their places. Grim-looking persons came to take them away; but, except in one case, we knew nothing of their future destiny or destination, and they dropped out of our lives completely. It seemed as though we were interlopers upon the world, and ought never to have been born.

The exceptional case I mention was that of a boy named Josiah Cook, whom Mr. Porter had transferred from his care to that of a printer in the town, as an apprentice. I little thought that Cook's transference to Bury would so materially influence my own future life—that out of that event would spring an incident destined to shape its whole future course.

There was one large room at the top of the house, in which we six boys slept, two in each of the three beds. Cook was my bed fellow, and we were fast friends and companions. He was a bold, venturesome boy, and on the last night of his sojourn amongst us he proposed the daring plan of some night paying us a secret visit and relating all the "adventures" he should experience in his new home.

"I can easily climb over the garden wall from the next field," he said; "so look out, boys; if you hear a stone thrown up at your window, it will be me."

Six months passed away and we heard nothing more of Cook. He was really fading out of our thoughts, when, one autumnal night we heard a sharp crack at our bedroom window. The loud-rattle of our number gently lifted the sash, and peered out. It was a bright moonlight night, and he was standing in the garden beneath the well-known figure of our old companion.

At those words she drew back a few steps, and something of mistrust crept into her eyes.

"How strange that we should meet!" she said, in a dreamy voice. "I think I can show you your way. I would take you, but I dare not," she added, with a shudder. "But first look out in the street, and see if any one is about."

I went to the opening of the gateway, and looked out. Not a soul was in sight. I stepped to her and she guided to my side and pointed out the way I was to take.

"I think this is my way," she said, indicating an entirely opposite direction; then, added, in an anxious tone, "But you will not tell any one that you have seen me?"

I assured her I would not. She took my hand, and we stood in the silent street, with the full moonlight shining down upon us. I could not talk. I felt like one deprived of the power of speech and volition.

"I wonder if we shall ever meet again?" It is not likely," she went on, with a sigh. "That is your way. Good by."

She lightly pressed my hand, and with one more glance from those sad eyes she hurried away.

In less than half an hour I was in the garden. As I began to climb the tree the bedroom window was cautiously raised; my companions were sitting up for me. The clock struck twelve. My escape had escaped detection. I was overwhelmed with eager questions. I do not know what I answered. I had fallen back into my dream. I do not know whether I slept at all that night; my senses were steeped in a delicious languor, in which the play and the after-incident were inextricably woven together.

I was in Rome, and she whom I had so mysteriously met was Juliet. With her I acted all the scenes of love that I had witnessed; but mingled with them were new elements, shadowy, intangible; fitting too quickly to be grasped, but in which Josiah Porter's face was strangely mingled. And so these phantoms chased each other through my brain, until at the last a fair head, with delicate wavy features, wan and colorless, lay dead in my arms.

WARRING CATS SEEK TRUCE.

Presence of an Hereditary Enemy Recounts the Two Thomases.

Two Scotch Island Thomases cats were settling their difficulties the other day in the manner approved among Thomases cats, while the cause of the disagreement sat on a neighboring doorstep watching her fate and disinterestedly watching the fray. In the next yard a third Thomas lurked behind a tree, taking in the contest from a safe distance.

Finally the smaller of the combatants was broken and, with a last desperate yowl, he fled away from his enemy and darted for the back of the yard. The victor was not yet satisfied with glory, however, and immediately put out after his late rival.

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

ALL SCIENCES UNITE TO SAVE LIFE.

For the saving of life from premature extinction by disease, the freeing of existence from the aches and pains which illness implies, there is not a department of science which does not contribute.

From geology to physics, from botany to chemistry—all are laid under contribution for information and for aid. The nature of soils and of a water supply is an investigation of geological kind. The chemist analyses us of the purity of water and air; the biologist teaches the physician the history of the microbes to which we owe infectious troubles; and the zoologist works out the life history of lower animal organisms, such as malaria and kindred ailments. Physics, giving us electric light, and chemistry, yielding, in the hands of the doctor means for treating serious disease by means of the rays or waves given forth. Truly, there are many minds and diverse working daily in fields of research for the benefit of humanity.

It is curious to note how practical results may follow upon the philosophical consideration of already known facts. Of late days the daily journals have frequently mentioned the subject of cancer research in relation to what have been called new views of the causation of that terrible scourge of modern life. Biology shows us that from the original germ which gives origin to the animal body, a number of cells are produced in the ordinary course of development. Of these one practically becomes converted into the future frame. The others are outcasts. But they do not perish. They take up their abode in various parts and organs, and there lie dormant. If some exciting cause awakens these dormant cells, we can realize how, by their development, they cause a cancerous growth. Briefly stated, this is the so-called new theory of cancer. It is an old view, but, as a purely biological specimen founded on fact, the theory illustrates how medicine receives assistance not from one but from all her sister sciences.

PROMISE LITTLE, PERFORM MUCH.

It is not well to promise overmuch. Profuse promises are rarely necessary, still less are they prudent, even when intended only to purchase peace for the moment; as the man gave his note for ninety days and then drew a breath of relief with, "Thank heaven, that's paid." Sooner or later there comes a day when the promissory notes are due, when pledges must be made good or dishonored; when, if payment is not forthcoming, there is a sense of wrong and disappointment upon the one hand and perhaps an overwhelming consciousness of failure and shortcoming upon the other. It is a bitter experience to discover ourselves cheating by those whom we trust, and they who do the cheating rarely profit thereby in the long run.

In the first flush of ecstasy over love and returned, lovers are prone to believe confidently that whatever may be the case with ordinary people, they, themselves, are to dwell henceforth upon the heights, that for them the future is all but sunshine and happiness. Like Edwin asking Angelina to stir his tea with her fingers, in lieu of sugar, they are in a state of exaltation and exhilaration.

BAD NAMES, BAD LUCK.

War Vessels of All Nations Have Amply Proved It.

If one should be so bold as to characterize the superstitious sailor as entirely, he would at once declare that there is sufficient reason for his belief, and would proceed to prove that war vessels named after stinging and venomous things have been unlucky, and that the country should not, be so indifferent to the men who follow "a life on the ocean wave" as to organize a mosquito fleet. That Snake is regarded as an unfortunate name for a vessel is shown by the fact that two of that name have been lost, one in 1781 and the other in 1847; but no vessel bearing that name is known to exist now. Serpent, which is only a substitute name for Snake, is an unlucky one also, for the one wrecked in 1802 was the fourth British war vessel of that name to meet the same fate. Viper has been an unlucky name in the British navy. The first one was wrecked in 1780, but the admiralty would not give up, and so kept the name on the list, each vessel meeting its doom, and the fourth was lost only recently. The French navy has also been unlucky with vessels so named. The Viper, used in the British service after she became a prize from the French, was lost in 1798. The second was lost a year later, the third in 1707, and the fourth was recently lost in a collision off Guernsey.

The Cobra, another British war vessel, was lost recently at the same time as the Viper. Among other vessels similarly named and which met fates other than in battle are the Rattlesnake, in 1781; the Alligator, in 1782; the Crocodile, in 1784; the Adder, in 1840; three Lizards, two Dragons and one Basilisk. All of these were of the British navy. The list could be made larger by citing the records of other navies. The Norsemen, who were so fond of naming their vessels against the laws of superstition, and using hideous heads of dragons and reptiles on their high prows, were not less unfortunate and these did not meet with frequent disasters. They did have a battle, however, that it was unlucky and a challenge to select such a name as did Lord Dunraven for his first yacht, Valkyrie. And this belief was strengthened when she was sunk by the Saturnia. The second challenger, with the same name, gave trouble, and she was broken up after only a short existence.—Navy League Journal.

OLD TALES IN A NEW DRESS.

How They Are Worked Over Without Malice-Prospere.

"Are you sure this horse is safe?" asked the amateur driver. "Perfectly," answered the livvyman, "so long as you don't allow his tail to get mixed up with the reins. Keep the reins away from his tail and he'll be gentle as a lamb." The amateur accepted the assurance and drove away, returning some hours later in good condition. "Well, you had no trouble with the horse?" the livvyman suggested. "Not a bit," was the reply; "there was only one little shower and my wife held the umbrella over his tail while that lasted."

tion, which, like the fervor of an Indian devotee, renders them unconscious of the stings and thorns along their pathway. But death is in most cases stronger than spirit; the bird cannot keep upon the wing forever; the body is a clog which must and will assert itself.

There was a clever magazine story told, some years ago, of a prospective bride who devoted the year before marriage to qualifying herself for the duties of a wife and the mistress of a house. Her friends supposed her to be absent upon a foreign tour, but in reality she spent the twelve months in domestic service, as cook, housemaid and nurse, thus attaining practical knowledge how to serve her husband and herself satisfactorily later on. "This true," it is plied, "is true," that many American girls marry in ignorance, more or less total, of the things which every mistress of a family ought to understand. Even those who take a course in cooking, as a rule, imbibed but little practical knowledge for future application.

When two people marry, let each promise little and perform all which is possible, each making the happiness of the other the first object in life. Thus shall love, like God's loving kindness, be new every morning and peace and contentment dwell within their home.

STRIKES CAUSED BY DISPUTES, NOT WAGES.

Comparatively few strikes are due to disputes over wages. These are fixed by immutable laws. To my mind, where there is a suspension of industry the employer should be held responsible. He is the captain to whom all others must look. The man in charge of an industry, no matter what it may be, who lacks the skill to deal successfully with the men employed under him shows by his potency that he was never fit to have been placed in charge of it. I don't say that he lacks anything in morals or honesty, but he lacks skill.

The persons who employ men should have at least the same skill as those in charge of horses or mules. A man couldn't hitch a team of mules to a wagon with their heads where their tails ought to be and expect them to work well. Such a man might be a very moral person and proficient in the Scriptures, but I think that his employer would soon get some other man less excellent in morality, but more perfect in driving mules.

The responsibility for most of the strikes lies with our captains of industry. It is true that capitalists realize in a general way that they and the laboring men are partners, but in the breasts of many men still lingers the old prejudice imbibed into humanity in the early Roman and feudal days when labor was servile. They seem to forget that the term "service" doesn't apply to labor now, that there is a real partnership between the capitalist and the man who works and that together they must prosper or decline.

If we look over all these strikes we do not find that they have arisen through disputes over wages, but were due to disputes with the men whom the employer dealt with. I don't see what difference it makes whether the employer dealt with A. B. C. or somebody else. Yet against that we have seen whole industries paralyzed, conditions of society threatened, because the employer would not settle with some outside person. That is no reason for causing a disruption. What concerns the employer and the laborer is what should he pay and what should he be paid.

WORLD'S FAIR SCULPTURE.

Borglum's frontier sculpture at the St. Louis Exposition calls forth much admiration. His Indian and Cowboy groups being particularly true to life. "The Cowboy at Rest," pictured above, is one of the beautiful expressions of a phase of Western life.

GRASS BOATS OF BOLIVIA.

On the shores of Lake Titicaca, in South America, there is more life and bustle than in almost any other spot in Bolivia, owing to the fact that during the last century the English and Americans have gone there to develop the great tin deposits. A strange-looking boat, made of long grasses woven artistically into round braids, lends a pretty touch of color to the dullness of the scenery. These queer boats have the rare advantage of never leaking, and as they come down the stream they look more like overgrown ears of corn than river craft.

Most women buy their children's shoes by inches instead of by sizes, says the head clerk of one Chicago shoe store. Some do it in order to know what they are getting, because of slight differences that exist between sizes. Others do it because the size marks have been rubbed off the inside of the uppers. The practical mother does not take her children to be fitted. She knows that a trip downtown with them means soda water and candy. She saves time and money by using her tape measure and leaving it to the shoe clerk to do the rest.

A woman can always think of a dozen things at night that she wants her husband to do "while he is resting."

Stone Slingers of the Nile.
When the wheat is growing in the fields near the banks of the Nile, Egypt, great quantities of birds of every kind pounce down upon the tender grain and would soon destroy the whole crop were it not for the watchful "stone slingers." These are men who stand all day perched on little platforms here and there throughout the fields with slings and pebbles, shooting any bird that comes within reach. The work of a stone slinger is a regular profession in Egypt, though a poorly paid one, it being thought that slugs standing all day is not very hard labor. It is only for a few weeks twice a year that the stone slingers can find employment.—New York Tribune.

Man and Wife.
In Boston, Sept. 15 (Special).—Mr. B. J. Skrivvaeth (Special) has been added to the steadily growing following that Dodd's Kidney Pills have in this part of the country.

Mr. Skrivvaeth gives two reasons for his faith in the Great American Kidney Cure. "The first is that they cured his wife and the second is that they cured himself."

"I must say," says Mr. Skrivvaeth, "that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best remedy for Kidney Trouble I ever knew. My wife had Kidney Disease for years and she tried all kinds of medicine from doctors but it did not help her any. An advertisement led her to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, though at first she hoped her so much that she took eight boxes more and now she is cured."

"I also took three boxes myself and they made me feel better and stronger in every way."

One of his Kidney Pills has never yet failed to cure any kidney disease from Backache to Rheumatism, Diabetes or Bright's Disease.

The membership of the Church of Christ, Scientist, is now 48,930, says the stationer, Dr. H. K. Carroll. The increase during last year was 13,950.

$85,500 in Gold Coins.

Will be paid in prizes to those coming nearest at estimating the paid attendance at the St. Louis World's Fair.

The above amount is deposited with the Missouri Trust Company, as per the official receipt of the treasurer of that financial institution and published in the schedule of prizes announced elsewhere in this paper. The World's Fair Contest Company, Delmar and Adelaide avenues, St. Louis, Mo., are doubt of the prizes being in bank to pay the lucky winners. The contest closes October 15th.

An Insultation.

Stringem—Every time I call I find you with a pen in your hand. You must be fond of writing.

Bingham—Yes, I'm a regular pen-holder, as it were.

Stringem—It's wonderful how many sticks are converted into pen holders.

Greatest in the World.
When you talk about being the world's leader in any one thing you have established a wonderful standard of comparison. Nothing could be greater and in this day of tremendous competition it means more than you can really grasp without study to say "the greatest in the world." CASCARETS has, today, the largest sale of any similar medicine in the world. In obtaining this, judicious newspaper advertising has played a very important part, but all the advertising and push and energy would have counted for naught unless CASCARETS had the merit and would do all that's claimed for them. Nothing has ever attained such a large sale in the history of medicine. Over ten million boxes a year and the demand is growing rapidly, because the people take them, like them, they are cured and they recommend them to their friends.

The Only Safe Course.
The supervisor who was always giving the children instructions as to what to do in case of fire usually made his visits to the school alone; but one day there was a board meeting, and five supervisors descended on the class at once.

The children had been well drilled by their teacher, and from previous experience they knew just what Mr. Wales would expect. So after a painful period of hesitating answers and mistakes with the other visitors, it was a great relief to see Mr. Wales rise to address them.

"You have listened so attentively to the other gentlemen," said their friend, "and told them what you know of the subjects they have chosen, what would you do if I were to make you a little speech?"

"Form a line and march down stairs!" chanted the chorus, with bounding faces.

Laughing Incidents.

A popular general was once asked what little incident he had laughed most at.

"Well," he said, "I don't know; but I always laugh when I think of the freshman and the army mule. I was riding down the line one day when I saw an Irishman mounted on a mule which was kicking its legs rather freely. The mule finally got its hoof caught in the stirrup, when in his excitement the Irishman remarked, 'Well, begorrah, if you're goin' to get on I'll get off.'"

WHAT'S THE USE

To Keep a "Coffee Complexion."
A lady says: "Postum has helped my complexion so much that my friends say I am growing young again. My complexion used to be coffee-colored, muddy and yellow, but it is now clear and rosy as when I was a girl. I was induced to try Postum by a friend who had suffered just as I had suffered from terrible indigestion, palpitation of the heart and sinking spells."

"After I had used Postum a week I was much better; that I was a week it would not last. But now two years have passed and I am a well woman. I owe it all to leaving off coffee and drinking Postum in its place."

"I had drunk coffee all my life. I suspected that it was the cause of my trouble, but it was not until I actually quit coffee and started to try Postum that I became certain; then all my troubles ceased and I am now well and strong again." The circulation of Tom Watson's Lincoln speech galls the democratic end of fusion.

It should be a part of a man's religion to pay his debts and treat his fellowmen on the square.

Bryan's sincerity is apt to be questioned when he declares that Parker will be elected.

Democracy has been so disturbed by its flop from the hands of free-everything, live-easy fanatics to the clutches of gold-plated trust allies that it is as yet without a generally accepted leader.

President Roosevelt's letter of acceptance sets forth the accomplishments and purposes of the republican administration in clear and unequivocal language. He shows plainly that the right thing is being done and that the country is not suffering as a consequence.

The state election of Maine took place on Monday and resulted in a republican plurality of about 20,000. Four congressmen, (republican) were elected by large majorities, ranging from 5,000 to 10,000. Both branches of the legislature are strongly republican, thus assuring the election of a republican senator in congress. William Cobb the republican candidate for governor had a plurality of 25,000.

Warren Starr, the bellwether of the lingering remnant of populism in Dixon county, and who for a long time radiated calamity oration as editor of the Allen News, has been nominated for state senator in the eighth district by the fusion forces. While he used to sacrifice current English in his literary labors, he was always very profound. A man of superlative wisdom and transcendent statesmanship, he thoroughly understands the needs of his party and could advance and defend legislation that would make it easier to live without doing anything. He has finally received recognition which has long been merited and unjustly withheld.

POPULIST STRENGTH.

It is now said that the populists hope to show a greater vote for their presidential electors in Nebraska than the democrats for their's and this may give a basis for influence that must be recognized by the democrats in the future. With the years of fusion that have passed the democrats have been inclined to belittle the populist strength thinking that they had been almost entirely absorbed by the democrats, but now the populists have an opportunity to show just what their strength is and propose to make it a good one.—Norfolk News.

When one returns to northeastern Nebraska after an absence of several years, he will notice the many changes that have taken place during the time. New towns and rapid growth of old ones, many new people and the great improvements that are seen everywhere, speak most favorably for the country. Whether the people have been made happier by growing richer is a doubtful question, but that the towns and country look better and more inviting and that business and enterprises of all kinds have been greatly stimulated and improved, show that the presence of the wealth which has accompanied these results has been most beneficial.

The Platte Center Signal announces that Patrick E. McKillip graduated with high honors from Creighton university, won $100 in an intercollegiate oratorical contest at one time and later graduated from the Howard law department. The Signal says it can prove these assertions for the benefit of any who may doubt them. While people will not question the historic accuracy of the Signal's report, nor ask for substantiative evidence, the information will no doubt be received with surprise by those who have witnessed his mental evolutions on the rostrum. No one would have exactly suspected that he possessed such an amazing lot of lore, intellectual vigor and ferocious skill.

It is not so expensive or laborious a job to run for office in Nebraska as it is in Oregon where expenditures for the campaign are not limited by law. One of the customs of the inland counties is to hold what are called "candidate dances" at frequent intervals, and to bestow gifts on each of both parties to attend, make themselves agreeable and circulate their money with a lavish hand. Liquid inspiration is regarded a telling instrumentality in creating sociability and winning votes, and, therefore, during a campaign dealers in wet goods succeed in reaping an extraordinary harvest. The dances and other opportunities offered candidates to separate from their cash make the campaign a hardship for them and though there are usually plenty of aspirants for office, the prizes in sight do not often justify the effort and expense.

We naturally sympathize with the under dog in a dog fight. It seems to be a merciful order of nature that we should thus favor the oppressed instead of the oppressor, and that we should rejoice at the downfall of tyranny and the triumph of its victims. It is likely that this just and merciful spirit is the cause of our sympathy with the Japanese in their war with Russia. Nearly every man outside of Russia hopes for Japanese victories. We contrast the cruel and inhuman government of Russia with the just and merciful government of Japan, and though Russia claims to be Christian and the Japanese to be Buddhists, yet we scorn the former and our hearts go out to the latter together with our prayers and best wishes for their success. Whether this almost universal hope for their success helps in bringing success to them, and whether the telepathic influence of a world of sympathetic friends assists to nerve the little Japanese heroes to overcome their enemies are questions for psychologists to determine. At all events the Japanese are triumphant and the Russians are meeting disaster at every turn. As we see the daily Japanese victories and Russian defeats we begin to believe that Japan is not the under dog after all, and that Russia fills that place, still we need not change the direction of our sympathies at this stage of the game of war. For hundreds of years Russia has bullied and bluffed its way among the nations of the earth, claiming to be the greatest and strongest power of them all. The governing power, although assuming to be the direct representative of heaven, has cruelly persecuted, murdered or sent into exile thousands of its own subjects and has not failed with greedy hands to take possession of weaker nations whenever the chance offered. Russia thought Japan to be weaker, and expected to overwhelm it. On the contrary, Russia is being overwhelmed, and its arrogance is meeting a just reward.

Edward Jones who was nominated by a republican convention in Winslow Saturday for commissioner for the third district to succeed Edward Quinn, is a stock dealer at Carroll, and has the reputation of being a business man of excellent judgment and character, possessing just the qualities needed in the position for which he has been named. With a safe republican under-ity in the county, there is every reason to expect that he will be elected.

Among some stereopticon views exhibited by the theatre company in Wayne last night was one of Judge Parker and another of President Roosevelt. Parker's visage on the screen created no stir, but the subsequent appearance of Roosevelt aroused a storm of enthusiastic applause. This incident shows the local feeling, and we may reasonably accept it as an indication of how people generally regard the two men and two parties.

MICKEY AND BERGE.

The Omaha Record very properly remarks upon the contrast between the treatment of Mr. Berge by the republican press and the treatment of Governor Mickey by the fusion press, or a considerable portion of it. No contrast could be more marked. So far as we have seen Mr. Berge from the day of his nomination has been treated with fairness and courtesy by all the republican papers of the state. We know of no exception. This indeed is no more than his due. He is a reputable citizen, a man of high moral character and against him personally no reputable republican paper has had a word to say.

The attitude of many of the fusion papers toward Governor Mickey is exactly the reverse. From day to day and from week to week he is assailed with utmost piteous bitterness, lampooned, misrepresented and subjected to indignity and insult. Invention is strained to fabricate stories, no matter how preposterous, in the effort to belittle the governor and bring him into contempt. Yet, certainly Governor Mickey is at least the peer of Mr. Berge in character as an upright representative citizen and as a Christian gentleman. He is an old soldier of the civil war of honorable record, a pioneer of Nebraska, a representative business man and a citizen who has faithfully served the public in many important ways. This sort of thing is all wrong and to be deplored. It would be no excuse for the republican press to retaliate upon Mr. Berge. That would not injure him any more than the storm of newspaper abuse and insult will injure Governor Mickey. But the course of many fusion papers in this matter is a disgrace to the state and an offence against public decency.—Lincoln Star.

DR. WILLIAMS NOMINATED.

Dr. J. Williams, of Wayne, was nominated by acclamation at the convention in Norfolk today for state senator from this district. A. A. Davis and Grant Meany, both of Wayne, were chosen chairman and secretary respectively of the senatorial committee. Bains are coming. Better buy a good umbrella at A. Rosenberg's.

In the evening the anniversary of the Educational Society of the church was held. After a brief devotional meeting, Dr. Wm. Gorst, of Omaha, made a short address in behalf of the Nebraska Wesleyan university, urging the claims and needs of that institution on the conference. Following, Dr. W. F. Anderson, of New York, secretary of the Educational Society, made a stirring address on "The Christian Ideal in Education." Dr. Anderson was elected to the position he now holds at the recent session of the general conference held at Los Angeles, Cal., and this is his first official visit to the conference. He is a scholarly, brilliant and eloquent man, has served several leading New York churches, and his friends predict for him eminent success in his new field of labor.

The Thursday morning session was opened at 8:30 with devotional services conducted by Dr. E. S. Danham, after which the business of the conference was resumed. After some minor details were disposed of, Rev. Thos. Bithell, presiding elder of Neligh district, made his report. Dr. Bithell's report was received with enthusiasm and applause. Neligh district is considered the most difficult field in the conference, but the present incumbent seems able to meet every difficulty. Dr. Bithell's many friends in and about Wayne are glad to know of his success.

In the absence of Dr. F. M. Sisson, presiding elder of Norfolk district, Rev. J. F. Poucher, pastor of the Norfolk church, read his report.

Reports from the elders of the Grand Island, Neligh and Norfolk districts were presented. Adjournment was taken until afternoon. At two o'clock in the afternoon Prof. S. O. Bronson gave the third and last of his series of lectures on "The Pastor's Leadership." This series has been very helpful to all and especially the young ministers.

RECEPTION AND BANQUET.

An informal reception and banquet of former students of the Garrett Biblical Institute took place in the parlors of the Boyd Hotel last evening in honor of Prof. S. O. Bronson. Rev. F. A. High, of Randolph, was master of ceremonies. Twenty-two attended and after an interesting address by Prof. Bronson, surrounded a generously filled festal board.

Those present: Dr. David Marquette, Dr. Wm. Gorst and wife, Rev. H. H. St. Louis, Rev. J. G. Shick, Rev. F. A. High, Rev. J. N. Gorant, Rev. E. T. George and wife, Rev. G. H. Main, Rev. E. E. Hosman, Rev. J. R. Smith, Rev. W. W. Carr, Rev. L. U. McKee and wife and Rev. E. W. Wilcox. Guests of honor: Prof. Bronson, of Evanston, Ill.; Prof. Rapp, of G. B. I., and Dr. Wm. F. Anderson, of New York.

TRIP TO THE COURT HOUSE.

We made a brief business visit to the court house yesterday and could not fail to observe the beauty of the streets on the route there, the elegance of the residences, the splendor of the foliage and the perfection of the lawns. There is nothing in nature more beautiful than foliage and flowers, and nothing more attractive than well kept, grassy lawns. The elegant homes in Wayne and their surroundings are indeed the embodiment of good taste, and their owners will enjoy them with pleasure and contentment.

The spacious grounds around the court house are kept in the same elegant style. A level and grassy plateau with trees, vines and flowers, all carefully kept. In the center rises the court house, large, well built and with court room and offices as clean and nice as parlors. There, justly proud of the public spirit of a county which provides such fine quarters, the county officers take charge of the public business.

As to the officers themselves, we observed that they are invariably courteous and friendly toward all, and that they transact their duties with inflexible correctness and with the precision of clock-work. In that collection of officials there are republicans and democrats, but the politics of either did not deter them from being most worthy gentlemen and efficient officers.

We do not write this as a mere soulless puff of Wayne's streets, residences, court house and county officers. We went up there for a moment, and were so pleased with the clean, good taste and efficient management which we saw everywhere, that we deemed it no more than justice to mention it.

LECTURE COURSE.

A committee of business men have completed arrangements for a lecture and musical course for the season. WAYNE'S GHOST.

All towns of lawful age, and especially all towns of business experience and healthy imagination, are entitled to now and then to vary the monotony of life and raise crops of cold shivers on people's backs. Here in Wayne such a visitation was never dreamed of until late Wednesday evening of last week, when some boys who were returning home saw dimly through the darkness before them, a tall and stately figure clad in a spacious and well whitened winding sheet which flapped and fluttered in the breeze as he, she or it, walked along. The boys thought they saw a ghost, and with chattering teeth but with resolute hearts, determined to track it to its lair, and so, at a safe distance, followed after. It entered a church yard and walked for a little time in those solemn and consecrated grounds, then, as the city clock struck the hour of midnight, suddenly vanished. Whether it escaped into the church or descended to its home below, the boys could not determine. The sudden blotting out of this visible apparition, so that the place which knew it, knew it no more, frightened them more than it did when actually seeing it before them. And their teeth chattered worse than ever and the cold waves skimmed up and down their back bones with such vigor and persistence that they concluded it best to leave the ghostly presence and to judiciously go home. And they did so on a run, and safely arrived, though breathless.

Earlier in the evening a similar visitation occurred elsewhere in town. A man who had the pleasure of owning a cow whose excellence forbade him to forget the milking process, went out dark as it was, to pull out the rich lactated fluid which she had provided for him. As he was milking the cow and philosophically thinking how much butter per quart of milk would be the result, he happened to look up and saw a tall figure, clad in female garments over which was thrown the ever-present winding sheet, striding along through the barn yard. When it came to the fence it passed through it without climbing over or crawling under, and he too, began to suspect a hobgoblin, and to have a cold shiver, almost cold enough to turn the milk in his pail to ice cream. Hence he did not stay long enough to get the strippings, (the richest part of the milk for butter,) and quickly turned his footsteps toward his house and looked the door after he entered.

There was still another ghostly visitation, in another part of town, the particulars of which we have not yet fully obtained, but the ghost had the same description, viz: a tall figure, walking swiftly and noiselessly, and with a great white winding sheet fluttering and flapping about its heels.

The corroborative evidence of all these witnesses created some excitement and curiosity the next day. On talking it over there was quite a difference of opinion. Some maintained that it was no ghost at all but was a man in woman's clothes or a woman in man's clothes. Some thought it was Jack the Ripper, others that it was an unfortunate demented male or female.

To settle up the question the mayor and the sheriff went up to the church the next day and explored it from garret to cellar. They saw no blood-curdling sights, and no ghostly whispering or sounds betokening the presence of a goblin interloper. In the basement however, they found a woman's dress, and later they found footprints in the dirt, which were too deep to be made by a fragile and shadowy apparition, but were caused by a stout, able-bodied personage of flesh and blood. Afterwards it was claimed that the scare was founded on the effort of a few boys to frighten home those who stay out late. And they succeeded very well. This is probably a correct solution of the mystery.

WORDS OF COMMENDATION.

The Harrison, Neb., Sun has the following to say about J. E. Marsteller who succeeds Taylorville Bros. in the hardware business at this place:

J. E. Marsteller and family left Monday night for Wayne, Neb., where they go to make their future home. In the departure of Mr. Marsteller, Harrison loses one of her oldest, most respected and most substantial citizens. He was here before the railroad and located on his homestead one-half mile north of town in the spring of 1888. As a carpenter he helped to erect the first building in Harrison, then called Summit, and has ever since been closely identified with the history of our town. He first entered business in 1889 in partnership with D. E. Griswold, then conducting a hardware store, which was soon enlarged to a general store. From this Mr. Griswold retired in 1894, Marsteller Bros. conducting the business until last year when they sold to Bourret & Davis. Mr. Marsteller has been quite successful in business here, which has been fully deserved because of his integrity, upright business methods and accommodating nature. He still has his valuable ranch west of town, which is left in care of Frank Wright. The people of Harrison and Sioux county regret to lose Mr. Marsteller and his estimable family and will greatly miss them, but they take with them the best wishes of all. A large crowd gathered at the depot to bid them goodby.

VERMONT AND ARKANSAS.
The state election in Vermont took place on Tuesday. Owing to fair weather the voters on both sides turned out generally, and a large vote was cast. The republicans carried the state by from 25,000 to 30,000 plurality. It is reported that the returns show gains for the republicans over their vote last year and a democratic loss of about ten per cent. The vote as far as heard from up to date, indicates that the republican candidate for governor, Chas. J. Bell of Walden is elected by a plurality of over 30,000. The congressmen, Messrs. Hopkins of Brattleboro and Foster of Burlington, both republicans, were elected by large pluralities. Both branches of the legislature are safely republican, thus assuring the election of Senator Redfield for another term in the U. S. senate. This being the first election in an eastern state this year, the large plurality is regarded as prophetic of the vote in that and adjoining states at the presidential election next November.

The state election in Arkansas, also held on Tuesday, went as it always does, democratic, but by a smaller democratic majority than usual. In the Conway and Woodruff counties, the negroes generally voted for the democratic candidate, Jefferson Davis, for governor.

A POWER FOR GOOD.

The pills that are a potent in their action and pleasant in effect are De Witt's Little Early Risers. W. S. Phillips, of Albany, Ga., says: "During a bilious attack I took one. Small as it was it did more good than calomel, blue mass or any other pill I ever took and at the same time the effect was pleasant. Little Early Risers are certainly an ideal pill." Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Everything is in the name when it comes to Witch Hazel Salve. E. O. DeWitt & Co. of Chicago, discovered some years ago how to make a salve from Witch Hazel that is a specific for Piles. For blind, bleeding, itching and protruding Piles, eczema, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin diseases, DeWitt's Salve has no equal. This has given rise to numerous worthless counterfeits. Ask for DeWitt's—the genuine. Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

MORE RIOTS.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by either collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There is nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the Liver or Kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nerve and the greatest all around medicine for run down systems. It dispels Nervousness, Rheumatism, and Neuralgia and expels Malaria germs. Only 50 cents, and satisfaction guaranteed by Wayne Drug Co.

THE LOCAL NEWS

Miscellaneous, Personal and Otherwise.

A son was born on Sunday, the 4th inst., to Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hansen, who live twelve miles southeast of Wayne.

Blain Skeen and George Sherbahn played with the Elgin ball team against the Clearwater team at the Plainview carnival last week.

The Dixon Herald concedes superiority to neighboring towns in all respects excepting pugilism, in which it claims to have a man who is invincible.

J. R. Manning went to Carroll Monday evening to see his son, Phil, before his departure for Minneapolis where he goes this week to attend school.

Incident to the M. E. conference, it may be said that sympathy for the town's chickens should be tempered by the thought that they are being immolated for a worthy cause.

Saturday's trains were crowded with people going to Sioux City to attend the last day of the fair and see Barum & Bailey's circus. The weather was ideal and the different attractions did not fail to please all.

Rev. E. E. Duley returned Saturday from Plainview where he attended a very special meeting of the Northeast Nebraska Baptist association. He reports that the association will meet in Wayne next year.

Mrs. A. E. Clark and daughter, Miss Mable, arrived home last Thursday evening from the St. Louis exposition and report a good time. They were accompanied from Omaha by Mrs. E. P. Ellis, another daughter of Mrs. Clark.

Messrs. Reiffle and Baron closed the Fair Store last Saturday in order to observe the Hebrew New Year's day in Sioux City. Next Monday is another holiday—fast day—when their store here will again be closed, being for one day only.

Henry Bensenon who publishes a paper in a town not far from Pierre, S. D., was in Wayne Friday visiting his old friend and army comrade, J. R. Rundell. Mr. Bensenon knew Mr. and Mrs. Rundell in New York many years ago.

Miss Abbie Ross, teacher in the Chinese school, under Baptist auspices, in San Francisco, was here Sunday and gave interesting talks in the Baptist church morning and afternoon, detailing the work of her school and explaining many of the customs of the Chinese.

The wretch who assaulted and nearly killed a ten-year-old girl at Fremont a few days ago, mention of which was made in last week's issue of this paper, has been arrested and jailed, and has confessed his guilt. No quibble of law should be allowed to prevent the infliction of the severest punishment provided by law. He richly deserves hanging.

The HERALD received notice of the representative convention in time for last week's publication, but it was omitted with two columns of other matter because of lack of space, the date of the meeting being overlooked in the rush. Had we known the convention was to take place before another issue, we would have found room for the call.

A young man by the name of Inman, living with the family of A. E. Lamm, three miles east of town, had a painful and perhaps a serious accident Sunday, when a gas pipe, filled with powder, exploded, the fragments penetrating his right leg below the knee and making a wound four inches deep. Dr. Blair was called. Possible blood-poisoning is the only cause for fear.

A family reunion took place at the residence of James Hayes, three and one-half miles southeast of town, Saturday and Sunday. There were twenty-six present, comprising Dr. Love and family of Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Hancock of Ponder, Mrs. Caroline Fry and two daughters of Admah, Neb., Geo. Roberts and family, Misses Jane Cook and Jennie and Madge Bayer. With music, sociability and big dinners, the occasion was made enjoyable for all.

A party of neighbors and friends of Mrs. R. P. Williams gathered at her home in a body last Saturday afternoon in honor of her birthday anniversary and had a social time. Mrs. Williams had an inkling of what was going to happen and accordingly prepared a sumptuous feast for her guests. As a mark of esteem, she was made the recipient of a fine chair. Those present: Mrs. Zeman, Mrs. Koch, Mrs. Sund, Mrs. Len, Mrs. Piepenstock, Mrs. Kruger, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Dammeyer, Mrs. Ledtke and Mrs. Miltner. The Shorthorn exhibit of A. E. Clark, Wm. Lessman and H. H. Hart at the Sioux City fair accomplished all they expected in advertising their stock. The animals were not in shape to win prizes and were not entered for that purpose. Notwithstanding that fact, Mr. Lessman won first prize on a yearling heifer and Mr. Hart captured a couple of second prizes. They succeeded in interesting many Iowa people in their cattle and it is expected a number of them will be on hand at the sale on the 27th inst.

Miss Mary Jones entertained a party of invited guests at the residence of Frank Jones Friday evening. The festivities took place on the lawn and a merry time was had. Each lady brought a lunch. Guests: Mr. and Mrs. O. A. King, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Philson, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Ley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Craven, Mrs. Prudence Surber, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Ray Reynolds, Misses Van Meter, Temple, Gertie Weber, Mary Maso, Jennie Bayer, Edna Britton, Reba Nangle, and Messrs. Byron Holte, Chas. Reynolds, Thos. Holtz, A. R. Davis and Dr. Cosner.

The Bible Circle gave a reception at the residence of D. G. Rookwell Saturday evening out of respect to Mr. and Mrs. A. Jett who left Monday for Missouri. There was a large attendance and the evening was spent with music and sociability. In behalf of the Circle, Mrs. E. B. Young presented Mrs. Jett with a gold pen and a copy of the New Testament, and in behalf of the M. E. Sunday school in which Mr. and Mrs. Jett had been active workers for many years, Prof. F. M. Gregg presented Mrs. Jett with a set of silver spoons and a silver butter knife and Mr. Jett with a gold watch. Refreshments of cake, sandwiches and coffee were served.

Oh! Say, have you seen our new suitcases, valises, telescopes, and trunks? They are right; so are the prices.

CARROLL NEWS.

Mrs. W. R. Olmstead has gone to Plattsmouth for a two months' visit with relatives.

Guy Elder left last week for Des Moines, Ia., where he will take a course in osteopathy.

W. L. Robinson left Tuesday morning for St. Louis where he will take in the sights at the fair.

O. W. Davidson, a former pastor of the M. E. church in Carroll for three years, was here last week renewing acquaintances.

W. F. Richardson took in the ball game last Saturday at Winside and remained over to visit with Prof. Littell until Sunday afternoon.

At a district convention of the M. E. A. held at Norfolk last week, W. L. Robinson of Carroll was elected a delegate to the national convention of the lodge which meets at Minneapolis Oct. 12.

A baseball team from the local A. O. U. W. and K. of P. lodges went to Winside last Saturday to play a team from the same lodges there. Two and three baggers, home runs, sensational catches, daring base running, mystifying twisters, and Kelly slides were in evidence in every inning. The final score was 247 to 248 in favor of Winside.

A four act comedy entitled "A Crazy Idea" was given by home talent in the A. O. U. W. hall last Thursday night under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Club for the benefit of Carroll Public Library. A full house greeted the young comedians when the curtain raised. About $35 was taken in at the door. Considering the brief time in which the play was gotten up the young people did remarkably well, and are to be congratulated on their success.

James Hancock's traction engine went through a bridge two miles east of town last Thursday afternoon. Jim was on the engine at the time and went down with it but fortunately escaped with nothing worse than a badly sprained ankle which at this time gives evidence of not laying him up for any great length of time. The engine did not go into the water, but all the wood work was burned away, and some other slight damage done. It was raised the next day and is ready for service again.

Richard Reese and Miss Elizabeth Griffith of Shoes, were married at the Robt. Fritchard home Wednesday evening, September 7, 1904. Rev. E. O. Morris of the Welch Methodist church officiating. Mr. Reese is a prosperous farmer living in the Welch settlement west of town, and the bride is a splendid young woman. A Town full of Preachers

Wayne is full of Methodist preachers this week and no one can be mistaken when they see a preacher. Why does every one know a minister when they see him? Because it's the clothes that makes the man. If you think any suit that you can get on, no matter where it was made, will make you look like a well dressed man you are mistaken. A stranger is judged by his clothes and people who do not know you will form an opinion of you from the kind of clothing you wear. If you buy clothing of us you will get good clothing up to date and cost you no more than other merchants ask for old style goods. In buying a suit in this age you must know that it is made right and cut in style if you want to look like a man of good judgment. Our suits are up to date and the price is right. We guarantee them to give satisfaction. So you are safe if you trade here. We have more and better suits than any other store in Wayne county and you make a mistake if you buy a suit before you have seen ours. Our stock is now complete in every department and we have more goods than ever before. Give this store a look before you buy any clothing. It will pay you.

EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO

we began selling clothes to the people of Wayne county. During those years there has been a great improvement in the make of clothing. We have endeavored to handle only the best manufacturers. Our clothing has always given the best of satisfaction. Men who bought clothing of us eighteen years ago are buying clothing of us today, which speaks volumes for our store. Hardly a week passes but we hear some old customer remark: "I bought this suit of you boys seven years ago and the coat and vest are fairly good yet." Such statements as these make us feel good and go to prove that our goods must be right. It has never been our aim to see how cheap a suit we could sell, but to sell such suits as would induce a man to come back to our store when he wanted another. In this we feel that we have succeeded.

Why the Majority of Men are Still Buying Their Clothing Here

Many reasons could be cited, but these, briefly told, will suffice: We never abuse the confidence of the people. We never touch shoddy goods under any circumstances. We guarantee every garment as represented and stand ready to refund your money for the asking. We give you the largest assortment to choose from. Our buying in large quantities for our large, double-front store, occupying two floors (5,000 square feet), enables us to quote the lowest prices, quality considered. These are the principal reasons for this growing clothing business—by far the largest in Northern Nebraska.

Forging ahead is our maxim, and this fall we are better prepared than ever to serve you.

Special values in our new FALL SUITS at $10.00

Go to every clothing store in town, look at their $12 and $13 suits, then come here any day—you will be surprised to see the same value here at $10. We realize this is a popular priced suit for the majority of men, and we have made an extra effort to give you the best that can be made up for this price.

Our $15, $18 and $20 Suits are equal to any tailor-made suit costing $35.

TRAIN IS HELD UP

ROBBERS STEAL $7,000 FROM CANADIAN PACIFIC

They Fled to the United States—Bandits Now Believed to be Safely Across the Border—Robbery Was Planned to the Minute Detail.

A special from Winnipeg, Manitoba, says: At 9:30 o'clock Saturday night the Canadian Pacific westbound transcontinental express was held up by four masked men.

The holdup occurred four and a half miles west of Mission Junction, in a wooded district. Three of the men crawled over the tender of the locomotive, and at the point of revolvers ordered Engineer Scott to stop the train.

Messenger Herbert Smith at first refused to open the car door, but on being informed that the car would be blown up with dynamite, of which they had a quantity, he complied, was disarmed and forced to open the safe.

The mail clerks were similarly compelled to open the mail car, which was filled of the contents of registered mail sacks. The engine, mail and express cars were then run to a point east of Warrick, where the robbers took to the woods.

This is the first instance of train robbery reported on the Canadian Pacific in the last twenty years.

Later developments in the robbery of $7,000 from a Canadian Pacific train on Saturday night show that the robbers fled for the United States and probably are now safely across the border.

The robbery was planned to the minutest detail. After having robbed the express and mail cars the robbers forced Freeman Freeman to uncouple the engine and with it they started for a point which they named two miles down the track toward Vancouver.

When they approached the place the leader ordered a stop. The robbers covering the engineer with his revolver, they crossed Fraser River and started for the international boundary by the Mt. Lehman road, a distance of eleven miles. They may have had horses, and could have reached American territory by daylight.

They left nothing behind to give the slightest indications of their identity.

IMMENSE FORESTS ON FIRE

Flames Sweeping Great Tracts in California

A San Francisco dispatch states that forest fires are now raging in many of the principal timber sections in the northern districts of California and in the immediate vicinity of that city.

In the Santa Cruz mountains, the situation is serious. The fire, which is believed to have started in the big basin, which contains some of the finest redwood timber in the state, is doomed.

Down the mountains to the coast line the flames are sweeping everything before them, ranches, and property of all kinds. From Tehama, Butte, and other points up north, come reports of loss by fires, which have swept the mountains.

So far no loss of human life has been reported.

SAFELY AT MUKDEN.

Russian Army Made Retreat in Good Order.

It is established that the Russian army is safely at Mukden and that the retreat was accomplished in good order, in spite of the harassing Japanese, sudden roads and the fact that Gen. Kurapatkin was hampered by more than 12,000 wounded.

There is nothing yet to indicate the exact whereabouts of the three Japanese armies. When last heard from Kuraki's forces were on the Russian left flank and steadily pushing northward, but Viceroy Alexieff reports that railroad and telegraph communication between Mukden and Harbin is uninterrupted.

Gen. Sakharoff reports that there was no fighting during Thursday, and while the outposts are still in contact they are not exchanging shots.

A detailed list of Russian losses is promised, and it is said that these losses will approximate 20,000 as against 30,000 for the Japanese.

It is officially reported that Kurapatkin has not been wounded.

It seems to be definitely established that Field Marshal Oyama's tired troops abandoned Wednesday the attempt to head off Gen. Kurapatkin, whose army has arrived safely at Mukden after a frightful experience in negotiating through mud and mire over the Manchurian roads.

Some descriptions of the scenes along the line of retreat are almost incredible.

A BAD WRECK.

Train Goes Through a Trestle in South Carolina.

A local passenger train on the Seaboard Air Line crashed through a trestle at Catawba Junction, S. C., early Thursday.

Four women passengers and three train men were killed, and thirty-five persons injured.

The train consisted of an engine, five coaches and a sleeper. A freight train which followed the passenger train plunged in on top of the wrecked train.

The train had crossed a bridge over Catawba River and was on the trestle, when the trestle fell in. The train, with the exception of the Pullman car, fell twenty-five feet to the ground. A light freight, following close behind the passenger train, struck the Pullman, and all fell over on to the wreck, the engine of the freight and box cars piling up on the Pullman.

All the injured, sixteen of whom were negro laborers, were from the southern states. It will take about two days to clear the track and repair the trestle.

The government has offered Beck as compensation the sum of $10,000, which he refused, on the ground that it was not sufficient.

In both instances Beck was charged with obtaining money and jewelry from women under false pretenses.

Butcher Workmen Ready to Go Back to Work.

The strike of the Butcher Workmen's union, which has demoralized the meat packing industry throughout the country for the last two months, was officially declared off Thursday night by President Michael J. Donnelly of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America, at Chicago.

Thursday morning Mr. Donnelly telegraphed the members of the national executive committee asking their consent to the announcement of the end of the strike, and having received favorable answers from all he declared that the strike of the members of his organization would end at midnight.

The strike of the members of the affiliated unions at the stock yards who quit work in sympathy with the butchers will officially be declared off at a meeting of the conference held upon at the allied trades, held Thursday night. The general body was at first in favor of continuing the strike, but Mr. Donnelly, who was present, announced that the members were united, and that in order to save his union from being entirely disrupted he would order his men to return to work in the morning, no matter what course might be taken by other unions.

As the other unions had no grievances, but had gone on strike to aid the butchers, there was nothing left for them but to follow the lead of Mr. Donnelly, and they, too, decided to call off the strike as far as they were concerned.

When the packers were notified that it had been decided to end the strike they announced that they would give places as far as possible to the skilled men, but it was stated at the same time that many of these men would be unable to secure their old places, as in many cases the work was being performed in a satisfactory manner by men who had been secured since the commencement of the strike.

It is expected that the majority of unskilled men will be unable to secure their old places again. This was a question of wage scale for this class of men that brought about the strike, the packers refusing to sign an agreement with any class other than skilled workmen.

A DOUBLE WRECK.

"Flyer" Hits the Derailed Cars of a Freight Train.

Two persons were killed and nineteen injured, four of them seriously, in a collision between a Rock Island passenger train and cars of a freight train which had been derailed near Tishkiva, Ill., Wednesday night.

The freight was running on the east-bound track, when the air hose burst, and in an unexplained manner caused a number of cars to pile up on several of the box cars covering the westbound track upon which the passenger was running.

The fast train struck the wrecked freight cars and the locomotive, baggage car, smoker and chair car were derailed and seriously damaged. One of the sleeping cars left the rails, but was only slightly damaged.

A relief train was immediately made up and all passengers were taken care of as soon as possible.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Body Has Been Identified—Floater Near Dakota City that of Ed Wasem—Probably Murdered at Yankton—Last Seen Alive July 28.

A Dakota City special says: J. C. Wasem, real estate dealer at Wausonocket, S. D., and Wm. H. Wasem, banker at Harrisburg, S. D., brothers, in company with Conrad B. P. Sawyer and Dr. B. J. Leahy, physician, examined the body of the floater which was found in the Missouri River about a quarter of a mile south of Dakota City on Aug. 13, and was buried in the cemetery in Dakota City, and the two Wasems identified the body as being that of their brother, Ed Wasem, of Yankton, S. D. The body was taken to the city of Yankton, and was identified by the two men by a scar on the hand made a number of years ago by a buzz saw, one short index finger, the teeth and the general appearance thereof.

Dr. Leahy made a postmortem examination and found that the man had suffered a fracture of the skull below the right ear, and believes he met death by being slugged. The body was returned to the cemetery in a private plot.

The finding and identifying of the body will in all probability lead to some arrest, as the two men are determined to find out who killed their brother and put his nude body in the Missouri River with the hopes that their crime would forever remain a secret.

Ed Wasem was employed in the brick yard at Yankton, and in company with the foreman of the yards, Ed Martin, into Yankton on the evening of July 28 last, which was the last day of registration on the Roseland agency lands, to see the crowds and the excitement incident to the closing of the registration. The two men went into a saloon about 10 o'clock in the evening. Wasem was leaning on the bar watching the people, when he was hit a blow from behind which fell him to the floor, whether dead or unconscious no one seems to know. The two bartenders at work in the building dragged him into the back room and left him, and that is the last trace that could be found of him until his body washed ashore in the Missouri River at Dakota City about ten days later.

The man with Wasem at the saloon was afraid of his life and left his friend at the mercy of the next day, and not appearing for work the next day, reported the occurrence to Sheriff Bauman. J. C. Wasem, of Wausonocket, S. D., who at first was not investigated, is still in Yankton and conferring with the chief of police at that place. The two bartenders claimed to Wasem that some time after they had pulled the body in the back room they went out to see it and the body was gone.

It enraged Toler, and he said she would kill her. She then went to another room and saturated her clothing with coal oil and then struck a match and set fire to it. She then ran into the room where her husband was, with her clothing a mass of flames. He immediately tore all her clothing from her, and in so doing was fatally burned himself.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

Russian Retreat Was a Rout.

The retreat of Russians from Liao-yang, at first orderly, developed into a wild flight to Mukden. Kuropatkin did not stop at Mukden, but continued his flight toward Harbin. His rear guard was in continuous fighting since the retreat from Liao-yang began, men falling by thousands under the terrific fire of the relentless and tireless Japanese, who clung to the retreating army like leeches. The Russians, in dire panic, fled for their lives, abandoning their guns to lighten their burdens, and leaving their dead where they fell. So frantic was the despairing rush toward Mukden that the Russians were unable to care for their wounded, leaving men in thousands of anguish, lying in the roadways, to fall into the hands of the Japanese.

Many soldiers, losing their self-control under the terrible strain, attempted to seek safety by flight. The Russian officers, dashing among the men, used their revolvers freely, shooting down many of them in an attempt to keep the troops in some semblance of order.

The St. Petersburg authorities yesterday expressed themselves as confident that the critical stage of the Russian retreat was past and that Kuropatkin was no longer in danger of losing any part of his forces to the pursuing Japanese. It was also given out in St. Petersburg that the bulk of Kuropatkin's army was then near Mukden, where it was taking up prepared positions, but a dispatch to the Associated Press from Mukden, filed the same day, says that the main Russian army was then pushing northward and evacuating Mukden. While dispatches indicate that the Japanese are still harassing the Russian rear, Tokio has preserved an absolute silence regarding the recent operations.

Dispatches via London Thursday reported that the Russian army, again defeated in another terrific battle, fled in a mad flight toward Harbin, 265 miles northeast.

General Kuropatkin, leading the battered rear guard of the army, did

TIGHTENING THE LINES.

JAPANESE BLOWN UP.

Column of 700 Annihilated by Electric Mine Placed by Russians. A Japanese column numbering approximately 700 men, while marching along a road in the valley, met a frightful disaster through the explosion of an electric land mine. The mine was carefully laid by the Russians three weeks ago. It covered nearly a mile of available marching space. The explosive was placed at the bottom. Rocks were placed next and on top of these was packed so carefully that the ground gave the impression of not having been disturbed. The indications of Japanese activity in the vicinity put the Russians on guard. Near midnight the outposts rushed in and reported that the Japanese were approaching. The Russians withheld their

PREDICT LONG STRUGGLE.

London Papers Think the War Has Just Begun. What is termed the Japanese impetuosity reduces English comment on the events at the seat of war to a minimum. As dispatches to the Associated Press from St. Petersburg have continuously pointed out, every development now lies with the Japanese, in whose hands is the initiative. The fatalistic disregard for death displayed on both sides and the ability to keep an army in being, either from offensive or defensive point of view and under conditions considered to be prohibitive, has done more to convince the English press of the desperate character of the struggle being waged in the far East than all the dispatches that have emanated from Tokio or St. Petersburg declaring that

HOW THE RUSS'ANS DIE AT THEIR GUNS.

This spirited picture by R. Canon Woodville, the celebrated artist of the Illustrated London News, depicts a scene at the battle of Kailping, but fits with wonderful fidelity some of the incidents described in the stories of the sanguinary conflict before Liao-yang.

not delay in the ancient city. Leaving orders that the men should hurry on as rapidly as possible and still keep up a semblance of resistance to the pursuing Japanese, he hurried through the city to the north to gather his scattered forces. The line of the Russian retreat has grown longer and more straggling each day, covering twenty-five of thirty miles, with the Japanese sharpshooters on each side, sniping at them continually, and killing hundreds on their flight. It is claimed that more than 21,000 Russians have been lost since the flight from Liao-yang.

Five miles south of Mukden the fleeing Russians turned and again attempted to make a final desperate stand against their relentless foes. For hours the battle raged. The fire of the Japanese light artillery, which had not been left behind in the pursuit, was terrific and mowed down the Russians by hundreds. Corpses strewn the battlefield. For the length of time the fighting continued it was the most sanguinary battle of the war. The Japanese, seeing the awful effect of their machine gun fire on the Russians, charged with fixed bayonets, disdaining to use their rifles. Charge after charge they made with reckless bravery. The battle became a furious hand-to-hand conflict and degenerated into a butchery as the Japanese pushed the Russians back. Then the line of the Czar's troops broke, and they turned again in flight.

It is now apparent that Oyama's purpose by pressing the Russian positions in front of Liao-yang was to hold Kuropatkin's attention while the Japanese right wing was thrust around the Russian rear to block the Russian line of retreat. But Kuropatkin, at its very inception, had his eyes upon this flanking movement and countered by early withdrawal of his main army to the right bank of the Taitee river, changing his front to meet and hold Gen. Kuroki in check while Gen. Zarubaloff's corps, at Liao-yang, crossed, burning the bridges behind him and placing the river between him and Gen. Oku.

fire for some time. Suddenly they threw a searchlight up the valley. The Japanese opened with a rifle fire. The Russians waited until apparently the whole Japanese column was in the danger zone. Then the mine was exploded. The force of the explosion knocked a number of Russians down and the sight of Japanese rifles, water bottles, legs and arms burning through the lighted space made by a searchlight was an awful spectacle. Some rocks landed inside the Russian lines. There was one appalling moment during which the garrison itself was stunned, then a deathlike silence. The searchlights coldly lighted up the road and soldiers strewn with dead. The following day the Russians buried the dead, but owing to their dismembered and mangled condition the Russians were unable to accurately estimate the number of killed.

Estimates Czar's Forces. Revised estimates of the Russian force defeated at Liao-yang place the number as follows: One hundred and eighty-four battalions of infantry, 128 squadrons of cavalry and 572 guns. The Japanese compute their casualties for the ten days fighting around Liao-yang at 30,000. It is estimated that the Russians lost at least 30,000 men. The official figures at Tokio, says that a total of ninety-five naval officers have been killed to date.

neither the Japanese nor the Russians will ever give in.

In place of endeavoring to follow the main progress of the campaign, London newspapers somewhat hopelessly devote editorials preparing the English public to be witnesses that the war will be longer drawn out and more terrible in every respect than any within recent centuries.

Orloff's force, attacked by the Japanese from the shelter of fields of high Chinese corn, was routed with great slaughter, one regiment losing 1,500 men, or half its strength.

The spread of the revolutionary propaganda among the Russian troops alarms the officials, and a strict search of the clothing and quarters of the men at frequent intervals is ordered.

Witnesses of the battle of Liao-yang declare the struggle was a desperate and featureless fight. Fully 300 guns were engaged in the artillery duel, and shells to the number of sixty a minute were fired incessantly for twelve hours. Thousands of men fell in the struggle and hundreds of thousands of individual and collective horrors are declared to have occurred on the battlefield, which is described as a veritable inferno.

VERMONT RAISES PLURALITY.

Elects Republican State Ticket by a Margin of 31,000.

Cloudless skies and cool, bracing air brought out a large vote Tuesday throughout Vermont. Returns at midnight indicated that the Republican plurality would go over 30,000, an early record, and showed a falling off of at least 10 per cent from the Democratic vote of four years ago.

The State officers elected are as follows: Governor—Charles J. Bell. Lieutenant Governor—Charles H. Stearns. Treasurer—John L. Bacon. Secretary of State—Frederick G. Fleetwood. Auditor of Accounts—Horace F. Graham.

The two Representatives to Congress elected are J. Foster of Brattleboro and Kitred Hanks of Brattleboro. The makeup of the Legislature is overwhelmingly Republican, insuring the reelection of United States Senator Proctor. One hundred and fifty towns out of 246 in the whole State give Bell 20,000 plurality, which means his total plurality will touch 30,000 voters. Great efforts by the Democrats had been made to cut this plurality below 20,000. The high vote for Bell is inspiring to Republicans, who assert it indicates a Republican national victory.

The success before has there been a Republican plurality at September election exceeding that indicated by the returns, and that was in 1896. Since 1896 the pluralities in presidential years have been above 30,000, but never before.

There were four tickets in the field this year—Republican, Democratic, Prohibitionist and Socialist. The party leader of the Democrats is the late Mr. Bell, who is a farmer, got the full party vote of four years ago, and in addition held a part of the gold Democratic vote. It is probable also that 1,000 or more Democrats who are farmers voted for Bell. The Socialist vote did not exceed 1,000, though at the present moment some headway in the large towns. The Prohibition vote was about stationary.

Following is Vermont's September election vote for twenty years:

DIE IN TENEMENT FIRE.

Fourteen Persons Burned to Death in New York Blaze.

In a fire in a five-story tenement at 160 West New York street, New York, Sunday morning fourteen persons, children for the most part, were killed and more than a score were injured. Three men are under arrest on charges of criminal negligence.

The lower stories of the building had been almost entirely torn out to make room for an arcade which was to run through the lower part of the building and Ridge street, on the east. Thirteen Jewish families were crowded into the three upper floors, which still were untouched, and when they sought to escape they found a partly demolished stairway leading down from the third floor already wrapped in flames. When they turned to the fire escapes they found they had been torn away below the third floor, and descent was impossible. Some jumped from the lowest points they could reach and escaped with their lives, but many managed to rescue a number from the top floor, but in doing so six men of the department were hurt, one so seriously that he is not expected to live. The top landing of the rear fire escape was pulled loose from the wall while they were at work helping tenants and fell five stories to the ground below.

The fire was under control within five minutes after the men of the department arrived, but the ignorance and excitement of those who first saw the blaze delayed the sending in of an alarm, and before the first engine arrived eight of those in the house were unable to find their way from the building and lost their lives. Opening prayers for the Jewish new year celebration began at 1 o'clock Sunday morning, and that explains why so many of the dead were children. Their parents were all at the synagogue when the fire began at 2:40 in the morning. It is supposed that a candle left burning in the hallway of the third floor for those returning from worship caused the fire, which swept up the stairway in the center of the house, enveloped those sleeping in the three upper stories, and burst out of the roof.

DIE IN A FIRE PANIC.

Early Morning Blaze in New York Tenement Kills Fourteen.

OUR VAST SCHOOL ARMY.

Fully 18,000,000 Persons in Our Various Educational Institutions.

According to the bureau of education, the school enrollment for the year ending June, 1902, was 17,469,000. This is the latest complete total available; but, according to the normal rate of increase, it must now be well over eight million. Of this great total of school children proper—those in the elementary grades of public and private schools—numbered 16,479,177. Next in order came the 734,760 secondary students in public and private high schools, in academies and seminaries, in the preparatory departments of universities and colleges, and in the non-professional classes in public and private normal schools. The college boys and college girls numbered 246,003—this total comprising, in official language, all "students of higher education in universities and colleges, professional and normal schools."

The mind refuses at first to grasp the significance of these great totals, but a few comparisons will help. America's school enrollment exceeds by about a million the combined population of Switzerland, Norway, Greece, Bulgaria, Denmark and Serbia—all sovereign states. The elementary children alone equal the population of those six states.

In 1902 the children in the public schools cost Uncle Sam $235,208,465. The total value of the property possessed by the higher educational institutions was $147,295,234 in that year, and their endowment funds amounted to $185,944,608. Besides the income from these funds, they received many millions in the shape of fees and appropriations from the federal and State governments and from municipalities. It is safe to say that $300,000,000 a year is paid out for education—a sum little less than the combined output of Germany and Russia on their armies.

WILL MAKE A NIAGARA.

Great Engineering Feat to Be Carried Out in Southern Colorado.

Out in Colorado nature has given the people no Niagara to harness so as to get electricity for power and lighting purposes, but a little thing like that does not faze the energetic westerners. They are going to make an artificial Niagara. The first is now in course of construction.

As an engineering feat it has decidedly novel features. Two or three rivers are to be lifted bodily, so to speak, from their beds and transferred to canals, which will feed a tremendous reservoir. From this reservoir the water will pass through another canal and dropped through great pipes over the edge of a precipice 1,000 feet high. The power house in which the electricity will be generated will be situated at the foot of the precipice. Ultimately it will have a capacity of about 60,000 horse power.

The site is 24 miles from Silverton, in southern Colorado. The initial cost of the undertaking will approximate $1,000,000, while the ultimate plan will involve an expenditure of about $3,000,000. When the project is completed it is expected to revolutionize things in southern Colorado.

But few of the clambers have disappeared, probably during the past few years to have discoveries daily made of pearls in these clam shells, some of which brought as high as $50 in the New York market.

Unique Iowa Pearl Decline.

A well-known Iowa pearl buyer who makes regular trips up and down the Mississippi river and its tributaries by boat in pursuit of his calling says that the clamming industry is in a sharp decline. Where over 1,000 men, women and children were engaged in the industry of hunting clam shells and shipping them to the pearl button factories in Iowa last year, not more than 100 persons are working at this unique occupation at present.

LAD'S TROUT PRESERVE.

Discovery Made by Some Anglers in the White Mountains.

A little party of trout fishermen have been resting here for a few days after an excursion into the northern part of Maine. They had intended to try the White Lake and they were tired out, though not from landing fish. The fine trout served for breakfast at one of the hotels excited their curiosity not a little.

"Caught right here, gentlemen, brought in just about alive by a slip of a boy no taller than that," was the reply their questioning brought.

A careful watch was set and the lad was captured as he came to the kitchen door with a tin pail full of handsome and uniform three-quarter pound fish. Liberal offers of silver induced him to take the men to his stream that evening.

At his suggestion the anglers took their customary tackle with them, though there was not much sense nor any fun about fly-fishing in a two-foot-wide brook in the depths of the alder woods with nine-foot rods. However, by following directions, standing well back from the water, and using very short lines, a few little trout were taken, some of them as much as five inches long.

"That's the way it used to be with me," commented the young guide, "it was a good while before I got into the way to catch the good ones. You've got to kind of work up to it, guess."

Now, one of the anglers was up to most of the tricks of the trade, and he noted two facts which rather upset his faith in the good intentions of the guide. One was that the boy did no fishing himself and the other was that the fingerlings captured were in general appearance very unlike the crimson beauties furnished to the hotel.

This angler had a private interview with the lad before they parted, and by skillfully dangling a $5 bill before his eyes managed to exact a promise from him to furnish further information respecting the trout fishery next morning.

Accordingly, last Tuesday, found the old angler and the lad at daybreak in the heart of the woods, a mile or more back from the famous Notch, and a good half mile from the brook. Covered in by rank growing ferns and willow brush was an evidently artificial ditch, fifty yards long and three feet deep, fed by a mountain spring and trickling out through a stoutly plied dam of round stones.

Into this the youngster scattered handfuls of chopped liver and a pickle bottle full of smothered grasshoppers. The water was fairly alive with trout, which were seemingly accustomed to be fed by hand, as they were quite bold in coming to the surface after the hook.

Slipping back into the woods for a minute the lad reappeared with a square wire frame. This fitted into the sides of the ditch, between stones set for the purpose.

The young fisherman then stepped into the water a few yards below the screen, and walked up toward it. When about three feet from it he dug a scoop made like a square landing net with wire meshes into the water, and brought it up to the surface, half full of beautiful trout, similar to those sold to the hotels.

The righteous soul of the angler was mightily grieved for the moment, until the gutless lad volunteered the information:

"It was marm and me worked this thing out. It cost $15 to get the thing done, and then we bought the young fish from a traveling agent two years ago.

"There ain't such an awful lot of money in it as you'd think. Last year all we got was $45, because the fish was only little. This summer what you're going to give me makes us $80, and pop says maybe we'll git our 5 per cent out of it.

"Yep, 5 per cent, that's $30, you knoy. The whole thing cost us $150 all right enough. Pop says it's no sort of a 'vestment as don't give 5 per cent.'"

The lad was no poacher after all. He was simply an active partner in a fish preserving company of original ideas! respecting percentages.—New York Sun.

ELECTRICITY ON RAILROADS.

Experiment Tried in Great Britain Promises to Save in Cost.

Some interesting facts concerning the economy of operating motor-propelled trains upon the subsidiary and feeding sections of a trunk railroad, in comparison with the expense of maintaining and working similar lines of steam locomotives and short trains, have been furnished by the Taff Vale Railroad of Great Britain.

The running cost per train mile by motor car equals 4.18 cents, as compared with 10.62 cents by steam locomotive and four carriages of the ordinary British type. The cost of repair and renewals of the motor car is much less than that of the other system, being only 2.92 cents per train mile, as against 12.44 cents for the steam-propelled train. The wages represent 3.86 cents in the former case, and 8.94 cents in the latter instance.

Taken on the whole, therefore, it will be observed that the total cost per train mile of the motor car works out at only 10.94 cents, while the cost for the locomotive and carriages is 30 cents per mile, or the former of 184 cents, or some 60 per cent cheaper. The economy thereby effected is very appreciable, and represents quite a considerable sum in the course of a year's operation. This result is highly encouraging, and will lead to a more extensive development of the motor-car system of handling short-distance traffic.

Already several of the other trunk railroads of the country, impressed with the figures obtained by the Taff Vale Railroad, are completing arrangements for the introduction of motor-propelled coaches upon their systems in those sections where the capacity of the traffic does not sufficiently warrant the employment of a locomotive; and wherein the working of the latter at present represents a heavy loss.

On account of its smooth running and uniform pressure on track the balanced roller compound locomotive is likely to prove a more practical machine for high-speed traction than any other type of steam locomotives used heretofore.

FROM 148 TO 92 POUNDS.

One of the most remarkable cases of a cold, deep-seated on the lungs, causing pneumonia, is that of Mrs. Gertrude E. Fenner, Marion, Ind., who was entirely cured by the use of One Minute Cough Cure. She says: "The coughing and straining so weakened me that I ran down in weight from 148 to 92 pounds. I tried a number of remedies but no avail until I used One Minute Cough Cure. Four bottles of this wonderful remedy cured me entirely of the cough, strengthened my lungs and restored me to my normal weight, health and strength." Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

WHAT IS CATARRH?

Hyomei Only Guaranteed Cure for This Common and Disagreeable Disease.
Hyomei cures catarrh by the simple method of breathing it into the air passages and lungs. It kills the germs of catarrhal poison, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane and effectually drives this disease from the system.
If you have any of the following symptoms, catarrhal germs are at work somewhere in the mucous membrane of the throat, bronchial tubes or tissues of the lungs:
Irritative breath, dryness of the nose, pain in the eyes, pain in the back of the head, pain in front of the head, tendency to take cold, burning pain in the throat, hawking to clear the throat, pain in the chest, a cough, stitch in side, loss of flesh, variable appetite, loss of spirit, a rattling of fluid in the chest, expectorating yellow matter, difficulty in breathing, frequent sneezing, huskiness of voice, discharge from the nose, stoppage of the nose at night, itching of the body, droppings in the throat, mouth open while sleeping, itching back of the palate, formation of crusts in the nose, dryness of the throat in the morning, loss of strength, spasms of coughing, cough short and hacking, cough worse nights and mornings, loss in vital force, a feeling of tightness across the upper part of the chest.
Hyomei will destroy activity of all catarrhal germs in the respiratory organs and in a few weeks the cure will be complete.
This is a strong statement, but E. J. Raymond emphasizes it by agreeing to refund your money if Hyomei does not cure.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere. The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.
Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.
For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

Among its Improvements are:

A metal-covered hub, which will not check or split. A combination wood and steel axle, the wood and steel giving the whole length of the axle. This axle will stand twice the strain of an ordinary hickory axle. Also a bolster-plate made from heavy sheet steel.
The popularity of the MacKinnon Wagon rests not only on the above improvements, but every piece of lumber used in its construction is carefully selected from the best Wisconsin lumber. The parts are fitted and put together by skilled workmen, and nothing is left undone, even in the smallest detail, to make it a perfect wagon in every particular. We manufacture our own wood stock, from the log to the wagon, and as we have been twenty-five years engaged in the manufacture of wagon material, we have gained an experience in the selection of wagon wood second to none. Our factory is supplied with the most complete and latest machinery. We have at all times a large stock of lumber carefully selected and well seasoned.
