DISSOLUTION SALE OF

Hereford Cattle and

Duroc Jersey Hogs

AT WEST POINT, NEBRASKA

Friday, November 11, 1904

Sale will commence at 1 p. m. sharp at Earl Reppert's barn.

The senior partner wishing to retire from active management is the reason for disposing of these Herefords. We are offering fifteen young cows, all bred to one of our unsurpassed herd bulls; fifteen young heifers, best quality breeding; fifteen bulls, the best we ever offered, including our famous Columbus 25th and four of his get, all good enough for herd headers.

COME AND LAY A FOUNDATION FOR A PURE BRED HERD

Your land is getting too valuable to raise scrubs of any kind. We bring our cattle to your section because it is known as the home of the most progressive and enterprising lot of farmers east or west of the Missouri river. A certificate of registration and transfer of ownership will be given with each Hereford on day of sale. Stock may be seen at the barn four days before the sale.

Parties wishing time on purchases can arrange on same before the sale. At 10 a. m. on day of sale we will offer twelve Duroc Jersey boars. Write the owners for particulars. Catalogue free on application.

SIGNS OF THRIFT

Improvements in the Vicinity of Wayne.

ONLY PORTION OF THEM GIVEN

Positive Evidence That this is a Good Country, Inhabited by a Thrifty Lot of People.—Citizens Apt to Overlook Home Industry.

People are apt to overlook what is going on in their immediate neighborhood by having their attention fixed on things foreign and for this reason we have taken a little trouble to look up some of the improvements being made in the country adjacent to the town of Wayne. These improvements are only a portion of what are being made and remember cover only the country near the city of Wayne and not the entire county: Wm. Damme, addition to residence; Peter Henkle, addition to house; J. C. Forbes, barn; Ang. Wittler, addition to barn; Wm. Luckman, double corn crib and wagon shed; D. Meyer, barn; A. J. Ferguson, barn; F. Haberman, barn; Mrs. Morrison, addition to house on farm occupied by J. W. Jennings; Carl Victor, corn crib; John Bannister, addition to house; J. L. Koob, addition to barn; Herman Frevert, corn crib; Charles Schotelder, barn; Claus Kay, barn; Adolph Brenolds, granary; Phil Sullivan, granary and corn crib; Mrs. McMartin, addition to farm house; A. N. Matheny, additions to houses on two farms; Max Moeller, addition to house; Geo. Spring, addition to house; D. Cunningham, barn; C. E. Gildersleeve, granary; Henry Frevert, granary; E. T. Reppick, corn crib and repairing two farm houses; Wilson Pingrey, addition to house on farm occupied by Frank Baker; Dan Bayer, granary and corn crib; Lage, large hog house; June Conger, corn crib; Fred Bargholz, corn crib; L. Knoll, corn crib; W. H. Gildersleeve, corn crib; Theodore Larson, corn crib; Charles Spahr, granary; Will Wester, double granary; Bob Melior, house and barn on 31, 27, 3; Geo. Bush, barn; John Horn, new house; John R. Morris, new house. This ought to be evidence to the most pessimistic that this is a good country and one that is peopled by a pretty thrifty lot of inhabitants.

THE LOCAL NEWS

Miscellaneous, Personal and Otherwise.

Hoskins people are planning for a republican rally on the evening of November 5.

Mrs. Maude Brown of Dakota county, was in Wayne last Friday, the guest of Mrs. E. W. Huse.

The first killing frost this year was October 23 and it is safe to say it is the latest in the history of the county.

Geo. L. Nelson has sold the Hartington Herald to Moran Smith, who has been foreman in that office since spring.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Berris who live near Altona, died Monday, and the funeral took place at Altona, Tuesday.

Major Delmar made a new world's trotting mark for unpaired animals at Memphis Tenn on Monday, going the mile in 1:01 3/4.

A great big boy arrived at the home of Will Rickabaugh Monday and expects to remain for sometime if everything goes all right.

The ladies of the M. E. church will hold aazaar the first week in December. Articles suitable for Christmas presents will be offered for sale.

Congressman Burkett addressed a large audience at Norfolk Monday evening. It is understood that he will discuss political issues in Wayne before the close of the campaign.

John M. Beale is building a great big barn on his farm just southwest of town and John Koefed a big hog house. It keeps a fellow bobbing to anywhere near keep track of the improvements going on.

The Modern Woodmen of this place are having quite an influx of new members just at present. There are some deputies and "hustlers" at work and they are meeting with very encouraging results.

S. R. Anker came in from the west Monday morning with about 400 head of fine cattle, largely yearling steers which will be sold at auction on his farm east of town tomorrow (Friday) afternoon.

Judge Norris arrived Sunday on his return from Washington where he was invited to speak in behalf of the republican party. He reports that that state is sure to roll up a majority of not less than 80,000 for Roosevelt.

James Alger sold his farm a mile north of the city on last Saturday to Mrs. D. H. Carpenter living southwest of Carroll. The price was $6500 per acre, a price that does not indicate very hard times in Wayne or any immediate prospect of prices being materially lower.

James Cook of Fontanille, Neb., stopped in Wayne last Friday to visit his cousin, the Rev. pastor. He was returning from a trip to Washington and Oregon where he had spent last

MR. BERGE'S TALK

Has All the Earmarks of a Genuine Pop.

HIS INACCURATE STATEMENTS

Makes the Erroneous Charge that the New Revenue Law More than Doubles Our Taxes.—Promises to Do Away With Passes.

Mr. Berge, the fusion candidate for governor, has all the populist earmarks and this is particularly true when it comes to dealing in actual facts. He is a juggler of words, phrases and figures that is quite apt to confuse his hearers. In fact he is like the old time populist—he makes some very bold and some very inaccurate statements and trusts to the ignorance of his auditors to escape detection. In his speech at this place last week he boldly charged the new revenue law with more than doubling our state taxes and assured his listeners that their taxes for the year 1904 would be more than double what they were for 1903 and then gave the names and amounts of taxes paid by several farmers in the county for the year 1903 and then told what the taxes of the same farmers would be for the year 1904, showing an increase of from 25 to 30 per cent. in the total taxes paid and trying to convey to his audience the impression that the increase was almost all due to the great advance in the amount taxes for state purposes. The intention of this showing was to demonstrate the maladministration of state affairs by the republicans and consequently a deficiency in revenues as compared with expenditures until the necessity for an increased assessed valuation was brought about and then followed the obnoxious revenue bill so much harped upon by would-be reformers. To show the fallacy of the gentleman's argument about the increased state taxes for the year 1904 as compared with 1903, the writer took the trouble to do as Mr. Berge advised—went to the court house and looked up the figures and found the following to very fairly represent the true conditions as the state taxes: In 1903 the state taxes of O. O. Lewis on S. E. 4, 25, 3, were $6.46, for 1904 they will be $9.60; the taxes of Dr. Williams on S. E. 3, 25, 2, in 1903 were $6.46, in 1904 they are $ 12; the taxes of E. T. Rannick on S. W. 8, 25, 3, for 1903 were $6.63, and for 1904 on same land $8.64; the taxes of Chas. Miller on S. E. 2, 27, 3, for 1903 were $6.46, for 1904 are $8.12; of J. N. Halladay, N. W. 3, 27, 3, for 1903 were $6.29, for 1904 are $7.56; of Estella Hansen for N. W. 4, 27, 3, for 1903 were $6.87 and for 1904 are $7.58. The above from the records demonstrates that the state taxes of O. O. Lewis are increased 48 per cent., Dr. Williams 25, E. T. Rannick 30, Charles Miller 25, J. N. Halladay 20 and Estella Hansen 20 per cent. While the increase is plenty yet it is not 100 per cent. and over as the gentleman tried to make his hearers believe. This argument is only a fair illustration of the entire speech and is just as near the truth as the rest of it and if you will take the above figures as a criterion you find that his arguments must be discounted about 66 per cent. His talk about the abuse of the pass system and how completely he will put it out of existence, when he becomes governor, reminds us of the great promises along this same line we heard the patron-saint of populism, Silas Holcomb, once make from the same platform and how in less than six days after we chanced to be on an Elkhorn train with Silas and when the conductor came around to collect tickets we put up a piece of cardboard that represented 3 cents for every mile of travel and Silas put up a pass and smiled. Oh, these reformers are long on demagoguery and brilliant promises, but elect them to office and then the horse is of an entirely different hue.

coast, he met so many grafters and fossils in the old settlements that he was not very highly pleased with his experience.

The new dynamo and engine for the city power house have been installed and were given their first trial Tuesday. The improvement adds 180 horse power to the plant and insures better lights and will accommodate all the new lights that may be connected with the system for many years to come.

The deadly use of kerosene to kindle a fire at Hartington where three young lives were sacrificed as a result, should be a lesson to people who have been in the habit of using oil for that purpose. If used at all, it should be done with the greatest caution. Really its use is seldom necessary and ought to be avoided entirely.

Hogwood vs. Dragon was a case in Squire Feather's court last week in which the former accused the latter of taking some corn out of a field that didn't belong to him. Six jurors listened to the evidence in the case and came to the conclusion that the charge was not sustained and rendered a verdict for the defendant.

It is reported that two lads who look a few years of having reached the voting age engaged in a pretty tough fight in front of John Kate's store Sunday evening and pounded each other until both were exhausted. It is fortunate for them that the marshal did not happen along while they were giving their performance or the probabilities are that the police court would have had some business and both of them paid a fine.

Any persons desirous of getting naturalization papers in order that they may become full fledged citizens entitled to all the rights and privileges of an American citizen should attend to the matter while court is in session week after next beginning November 9. Come in and attend to the matter at the proper time, because this is a matter that can only be attended to during the session of court.

CABBAGE AND SNAKES.

There it goes again, a man just thinks he has struck it rich in some good cheap food when some fellow with an investigating turn of mind comes along and knocks all our calculations "galley west." For Jo these many years we have looked on cabbage as the one staple that never failed to satisfy and this year when one can buy a head as big as a bushel measure for a nickel it did look as though we had struck an oasis in life's desert, but hardly had we got our feet firmly planted and our digestive apparatus in a fitting condition to take care of a ton or two until along comes a chap and finds that all cabbage grown this year is full of snakes, yes sir, real wiggly, crawling snakes. Lord how the shivers chase up and down our spinal region as we think that in all probability we will become a genuine snake incubator. We had heard many times there were snakes in whiskey, worms in pork, bugs in wheat, germs in beef, wigglers in milk, microbes in water, germs in potatoes, but we never dreamed of snakes in cabbage. If the announcement of our investigating friend be true then it won't be safe to smoke for fear of warming up the variegated and have them come wiggling and crawling right out of our cigars, and sour krant, that is a thing of the past.

RATE SLIGHTLY ADVANCED.

In view of the fact that the HERALD'S subscription list has been greatly enlarged, and the further fact that advertising rates have hitherto been unreasonably low and less than publishers receive in other towns where the service rendered falls far short of equal comparison, we have decided to make a slight advance November 1 in the rate for displays, fixing the minimum price of ten cents per inch per week. This need not materially affect those who advertise a specific amount each month. Readers will remain the same—five cents per line.

BEACH & BOWERS' MINSTRELS.

A full house was jollied into good humor by the gags and facial mobility of Beach & Bowers' "big black coon" last night. The curtain rose on as swell a row of ebony countenances as ever peered over the footlights of the Grand. The whole performance abounded in good specialties, and the singing was excellent.—Sioux City Daily Tribune. At opera house, Wayne, October 29.

W. L. Robinson, of Carroll, has three buyers for 80 acre farms near Wayne. Write him.

FOR SALE—Poland China boar pig, Inquire of W. B. Gamble, three and one-half miles south of Wayne. tf.

Two large audiences witnessed the performances presented by Beach & Bowers' minstrels yesterday afternoon and evening. Many praiseworthy things had been said of this company prior to its appearance here. It is one of, if not the best, minstrel companies ever seen in this city.—Denver (Colo.) Times. At opera house, Wayne, October 29.

St. Louis, Mo., April 30th, December 1st. For the above, excursion tickets will be sold daily via Omaha and choice of routes from there, as follows: Fifteen day tickets, $12.10. Sixty day tickets, $20.10. Children of five and under twelve, one-half above rates.

How Old Paul Lost His Thumb.
The left hand of Paul Kruger of the Transvaal was lost through his life exploding when he fired at a rhinoceros. He says: "Next day our people, guided by the track of my rhinoceros, went to the spot and there they found the rhinoceros still alive, and following the trail of blood, discovered the remains of the rifle and my thumb. The thumb was in a horrible state. The flesh was hanging in strips. I bled like a slaughtered calf." Kruger made his way to the wagons, where his wife and sister-in-law were sitting by the fire. The sister-in-law pointed to his hand. "Look what fat game! Brother Paul has been shooting," she said, and that was all. They went home. Kruger took out his knife and cut across the ball of the thumb, removing as much as was necessary. "Then they killed a goat, took out the stomach and cut it open. I put my hand into it while it was warm," and thus was the wound healed.

Harrowed City Folks.
Farrar Backed—'m glad I'm not in business in the city. I've had 'bout twenty summer boarders this season, and every one of 'em has to rush back the way they came. Not one of 'em came back either. Guess they must be in the poorhouse by this time. By the way, do you know where I kin git a man?

Neighbor—What sort of work?
Farrar—What sort of work of a job. I want a man to help me move the glass on a little, so as to make room for a side porch off the parlor.

A VOICE FROM THE PARLOR.

Rev. Jacob D. Van Doreh, of 57 Sixth Street, Fond du Lac, Wis., Presbyterian clergyman, says: "I had attacks of kidney disorders which kept me in the house for days at a time, unable to do anything. What I suffered can hardly be told. Complications set in, the particulars of which will be pleased to give in a personal interview to any one who requires information. This I can conscientiously say. Don't's Kidney Pills caused a general improvement in my health. They brought great relief by lessening the pain and correcting the action of the kidneys. Don't's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-McBurrin Co., Buffalo, N. Y."

Monkeys Eaten in Brazil.

The savage tribes in the interior of Brazil are exceedingly fond of roast monkey. Humboldt estimated that one small tribe of 200 Indians consumed over 1,200 monkeys during a year. It is said that until recently monkey meat was for sale in the butcher shops of Rio Janeiro. Mr. Wallace, when in the Amazon region, had a monkey cut up and fried for breakfast. The flesh somewhat resembled rabbit in flavor and had no unpleasant or peculiar taste.

THE LATEST IN SHOES.

Result of Years of Experience in Shoe Design and Constructed Models of Manufacturers.

"Honorbill" and "Western Lady" are the names of two new shoes which are conceded to reach the height of perfection in shoe making. The successful originator of these two lines of perfect shoes is the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., Milwaukee, Wis. This name will be sufficient to assure most of our readers of the quality of these goods. A great many are already familiar with the high standing and good wearing features of Mayer shoes, while thousands have been impressed by the delightful results of recent advertisements by this firm in all the principal publications throughout the country.

Mayer shoes have a high standing among shoe dealers and are recommended by them as giving the greatest satisfaction of any shoes in the market. They are made in a simple, yet durable and stylish style, and are distributed by the Mayer Boot & Shoe Co. have ever placed on the market.

In announcing these new lines, it is hoped that every reader will take careful note of the advertisements of "Honorbill" and "Western Lady" shoes, when next in need of shoes, make a request upon the dealer for one of these new brands.

The "Honorbill" for men is that substantial, nobby and fashionable kind that every man who is at all desirous of being well dressed will appreciate. Made to the order of a woman when she seeks the ideal shoe for her use. The beautiful design and graceful lines delight the fastidious taste of the fair sex. Made from the softest, select upper leathers and the most flexible and durable sole materials, they are well adapted to wearing and confer qualities that afford a world of satisfaction.

If your dealer does not persist in having the "Honorbill" or "Western Lady" shoes to show you write to the F. Mayer Boot & Shoe Co., Milwaukee, Wis., and they will inform you where to get them.

A Mean Trick.

Claim—Why in the world did you engage yourself to that Mr. Hardhead? He took me at such a disadvantage that I had to.

"Nonsense!"
"Oh, but you don't know." He proposed to me in an ice cream saloon, and I knew perfectly well that if I didn't accept, that he wouldn't ask me if I had another plate.

A doctor-chestnut in the Athenaeum Medical Dispensary, 2586 Ross Building, Cincinnati, Ohio, has discovered what proves to be a positive hair-grower. This will be welcome news to the thousands afflicted with bald heads as well as those whose hair is falling out. It is a simple, safe, and effective remedy. It is a new discovery for the hair, and a new package can be had free by enclosing a recent stamp to Athenaeum Medical Dispensary, 2586 Ross Building, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Time Meaning.
"Papa," said the romantic girl, "Percy Pink placed the stamp in the lower left corner of the envelope. Does that mean anything?"
"Sure," granted her practical boy, "what does it mean?"

Bound by a Spell

I begged her to let me know what it was, as I was so anxious for any suggestion that might help me.

"Well, there's no harm in telling you, at all events. You see that Mr. Montgometry? Well, you see, although he's a queer broken down, he's a wonderful clever man, with heaps of learning, knows everything, and was once, I say, a rich gentleman. Well, now, I was thinking that you could make up your mind to tell him a certain portion of your history, he would be the very man to advise you and help you."

No, I did not like the thought of taking Mr. Montgometry into my confidence. I could not tell why, but I was not agreeably impressed with him. Another of my strange instincts was at work. "Well, perhaps you're right, Master Silas, for he's a strange man, I can't make him out at all. He's the quietest man that ever breathed when sober; but he drinks hard, and then he mutters to himself, and tells stories about himself that makes your flesh creep. I could never recognize him, regularly frightened at him when he's got out of his fits on him. He's come down here after they've gone to bed slaking with fright, saying that he could not step in the room with him."

No, I was determined I would put no confidence in Mr. Montgometry. Martha now pressed upon me the necessity of making some change in my attire. She took me to a second-hand clothes shop, where, for a few dollars and my old coat to boot, I procured one "like what civilized people wear," as Martha phrased it. I bought a hat and beanie at the same place. Then she took me to a barber's.

When I looked in the glass I found myself completely metamorphosed. I could hardly recognize my own face and figure. The kind-hearted girl was in raptures.

"There! I don't believe old Porter himself would know you," she cried.
While my money lasted I insisted upon paying so much for my board, I day by day my money dwindled down, until I had not a penny left. Martha tried to cheer me with the assurance that something would "turn up," and that when things came to the worst they were sure to mend, and such like bits of homely wisdom; but I was almost hopeless.

At one time I thought of writing to Mr. Jonathan Rodwell, to ask him if he could assist me in any way; he had told me to do so if all else failed; but then, he had made an express stipulation that I was to tell him everything. How little did I know myself! And even that that little there was much that I did not reveal. Besides which, the nearness of his neighborhood to Bury St. Edmund's would make any confidence dangerous. For what would he have to say when he would apply to the Rev. Mr. Pater for a verification of my statements, and thus give that contemptible man a clue to my recapture?

Day after day I walked through the streets, seeking employment. I applied for a clerkship, for the situation of light porter, for that of messenger, or even errand boy; but no person would engage me without reference, even in the humblest capacity. At times, I almost fainted with heat and lack of food. I felt such a poor, wretched wretch among all that busy life, that eager crowd; every one seemed to have a purpose, work, or some end in view, and only fit to creep into a corner and die—a mere useless incubus upon the world. I have stood upon the bridges, as many poor wretches have done before me, and will continue to do while this stony-hearted city exists, and looked down upon the turbid stream below me, and while a voice whispered in my ears, "There you may find peace! Why do you hesitate? You have neither father, mother, nor friend to weep for you. Death will give rest to you, and do no wrong to any living being."

Thus did the tempter tempt me, and only by prayer could I outside the temptation. My length I avoid the neighborhood of the river, which began to exert such an irresistible fascination over me—a fascination that I felt must overpower me at last, if I did not fly over my head. I now took to wandering about the streets, and was once again an incident occurred to me that changed the whole current of my thoughts and actions.

CHAPTER XII.
It was about 6 o'clock on a fine bright evening, at the latter end of September; I had been walking the streets since 10 that morning, making a last effort to obtain employment. I might as well have asked those I applied to for their purses. Where had I been last? To whom could I refer for a character? I had never worked before—I knew no one who could give me a character. Their names changed, they looked upon me as a suspicious individual, and I could perceive that watchful eyes followed me until I was clear of the premises. I had made up my mind that I would return to Martha's no more. I could no longer depend upon her for any assistance.

I dragged my weary limbs along a road, meeting happy looking couples and well-dressed people at every step, but no one like myself. It seemed as though all the misery had been swept off the face of the earth, and I alone had been forgotten. I passed a fine bridge, and a second; just beyond a portion of the hoarding that separates a park from the banks of a canal was broken away. Upon that spot I threw myself down and gazed upon the dark, sluggish waters.

I turned round and held my breath, and I was startled by the finding of my body the next morning. How it would be dragged out of the water by hooks; how they would search for papers; or other means of identification. The tears were streaming down my face, and I was weeping bitterly. Suddenly I was startled by a light touch upon my shoulder, and a soft, woman's voice sounding in my ears. "What is the matter—are you ill?" it said.

tion now and then. Mr. Fitzwilton seems to have told him all he knows." It was 11 o'clock before I got down to my work. I soon understood what I had to do, and set about it with a hearty good will.

"There! didn't I tell you, Master Silas, that when things come to the worst they're sure to mend?" cried Martha. "You did," I said, pressing her hand. "I was a heathen to doubt it!"

"The little knew how fatal that doubt had like to have become. When Joseph and Mr. Montgometry returned at night my task was completed."

COULD NOT SMOKE THEM OUT.

An American naval officer who was a student at the Naval Academy with Commodore Matsulla of the Japanese navy, recently wounded on the bridge of his ship, describes an experience during their student days, when the young Japanese got the best of a hazing party. The New York Sun prints the story:

A plucker fiercer than Matsulla, a more lively and dapper I never met. He was graduated in 1873. Part of the time his friend, Sartorius, was in the academy with him.

At the academy "Mats," as he was called, was very popular, and he was a middle-class man when hazing was at its worst. The Japs had never heard the word hazing, and had no conception of its meaning.

One night, hearing a good deal of noise in their room, I went over, and when I opened the door all I could see was a dense smoke out of which came several Japs. I was jerked into the room and the door closed. The Japs were being treated to a smoked. The windows were all closed, and even the keyholes and crack under the door were stuffed.

On the narrow mantelpiece stood the future Japanese hero, Matsulla, looking like one of his old-fashioned idols, but as smiling as a basket of chips. He was ordered by the hazers to sing a song in Greek. Of the language he knew but two words, Alpha and Omega, and those he worked on so cleverly and with such good nature that he was lifted down.

Both the Japs took the medicine with a pluck that was their salvation. In half an hour the air in the room was unbearable, and even the hazers began to weaken. Two of them found it convenient to get out. Then Mats spoke up.

"We sorry you third-class men have engagement," he said. "We like you stay and smoke another pipe. Not a word was spoken. Most of the third-class men were at that stage when they did not dare to open their mouths. I don't know how long we could have stood it. I confess that I did not feel altogether happy myself when Mats said:

"Any third-class gentleman like an other pipe? There are plenty." The mere suggestion drove one of the hazers out. Then one of them cried out that the officer of the day was coming, and they all tossed their pipes into the chimney-place and ran.

It was a subterfuge to enable them to get out. Mats had smoked them out. "Third-class men not smoke pipe," he said, with a laugh, as they disappeared.

What clinched his popularity was that when the officer of the day did come along Mats' room was still full of smoke, and Matsulla took all the blame for the violation of the rule against smoking, and did not give the hazers any.

BUYING RUBIES IN BURMA.

A Peculiar Method of Bargaining for the Precious Stones.
The peculiar business methods of Oriental merchants are illustrated by the manner of buying rubies in Burma. In the examination of rubies artificial light is not used, the merchants holding that full sunlight alone can bring out the color and brilliancy of the gems. Sales must, therefore, take place between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m., and the sky must be clear.

The purchaser, placed near a window, has before him a large copper plate. The sellers come to him one by one, and each empties upon this plate his little bag of rubies. The purchaser proceeds to arrange them for valuation in a number of small heaps. The first division is into three grades, according to size; each of these groups is again divided into three piles, according to color, and each of these piles, in turn, is again divided into three groups, according to shape.

The bright copper plate has a curious use. The sunlight reflected from it through the stones brings out, with true rubies, a color effect different from that with red spinels and tourmalines, which are thus easily separated.

The buyer and seller then go through a very peculiar method of bargaining by signs, or rather grips, in perfect silence. The grips are based upon the fairness of the classification. The buyer's right hands, covered with a handkerchief or the flap of a garment, and by grips and pressures mutually understood among all these dealers; they make, modify and accept proposals of purchase and sale. The hands are then uncovered and the prices are recorded. Jewelers' Circular Weekly.

They Stand Fast.
"Anybody" said the Philadelphia man, "our ball players are no cowards."
"Oh, there's not, eh?" sneered the New York man.
"No, sir," replied the Quaker. "You can't make 'em run."

FARM AND GARDEN

A subscriber of Iowa. Homestead sends that journal a sketch of a convenient two-row corn cutter. He says: "I think it sells easier than a sled cutter. I used this home-made cutter one season and it works to perfection. I use a 4x4 for an axle, and bolt a 2x4 to this axle two and one-half to three feet apart, and let it run out twice inches on the rear side. Round this over for a platform. For runners at the front end I took runners from an old Keystone plow and fastened them from the bottom so as to have them run about six or seven inches from the rows of corn. For knives, I took two blades of an old stalk cutter. The platform may be either nailed or bolted down. The wheels are old planter wheels. On the corn crop is often cut too green. It is so green on the ground that it is practically wet all the time. It is not a difficult task so to handle both fodder and corn as to have a fine-fodder grain that is in every way equal to standing corn.

Table I have a hunk fastened to the platform so one can sit or lean upon it when tired. Below this I had a pall large enough to hold a half binder of corn. As soon as I have an amount of corn it is compressed with the device shown and tied ready for putting in the shock.

Knowledge Increases—Crops.
During the past two or three years the increase in the yield of grain crops in Denmark per acre has been over 11 per cent for barley, 17 per cent for oats, 25 per cent for wheat. Potatoes have increased 50 per cent in yield per acre. Danish agriculturists credit the increase largely to government instructions and teaching in the best methods of agriculture. The Hungarian government also is coming to the front in its encouragement of agriculture. The state institutions include a great academy for the higher branches of agriculture, four farm colleges, twenty-one village farm schools, and winter schools for farmers, a great agricultural museum and eighty model farms. Twenty-five state orchards have been established, and during the past three years 378,000 grafted stocks and over two million seedlings have been distributed. Hungarian agriculture has grown at a surprising rate, the export of poultry and eggs having increased 80 per cent in five years, and dairy products having gained at an even larger rate.

Make the Cows Comfortable.
Most farmers think they know how to care for their cows without the advice of anyone, and the majority of them do give them food and shelter, but there are many more little comforts which cost but a trifle, but which go far toward increasing the value of the milk production. Sunshine, which little there is in winter, is as welcome to animals as to the human family, and the man who will contrive to give his cows all the sunshine possible will have better-natured cows and more milk. Then see to it that all cracks and crevices through which drafts of air can come are closed. It is not meant that ventilation be dispensed with by any means, but simply that drafts be shut out. Make the beds heavy with straw and keep the stalls clean; then with a well-ventilated and sunny stable and something to chew on between regular meals, the cow will be happy and comfortable, and will surely repay you by a fuller milk pail.

Feeding Condiments.
If there is any value in feeding red pepper to fowls it is mainly in furnishing a seasoning to the food which might otherwise be flat, and in thus stimulating the appetite. Chopped onions will have the same effect and are certainly better for the fowls than too much pepper. The red pepper, in moderate quantities, is good for the moulting hens, acting as a stimulant and strengthening their rather debilitated vitality, but the pepper should not be made a regular part of the ration. It is not only unnecessary when the ration consists of good grains in variety, but is actually harmful if much of it is fed.

The Cabbage Worm.
The worms have begun to eat the leaves of the late cabbages. Before they begin to head up the best preventive of their ravages is to dissolve one ounce of white hellebore in two gallons of water, or a pound of it to thirty-two gallons, and sprinkle the leaves well with the solution. After they begin to head get the common insect powder or pyrethrum and mix with about four times its bulk of flour, then, with the bellows usually given or sold with powder, blow this well down among the leaves on the under as well as upper side.

Don't Protect Plants Early.
If one has a lot of shrubs and plants that are hardy, no protection for winter should be given until the ground freezes, else there is danger of the twigs making more growth by reason of the warmth at the roots and for the protecting material. If the plants are not entirely hardy, of course protection must be given earlier. It is rarely necessary to use more than soil in protecting the roots about hardy plants and vines, although an application of an manure free from straw will, of course, benefit the soil and plant later, as its strength works down to the roots.

Shocking Corn.
One of the great objections farmers have to harvesting corn fodder is that the grain is seriously damaged by the operation. In fact, they say oftentimes it will not germinate, and is always more or less chaffy, light in weight, and otherwise not equal to corn permitted to remain in the field, or until after several frosts. A casual examination of the way the shocks are made on many farms would convince one that complaints made about getting an inferior grain might be expected, for the shock will not turn water, will not let water that happens to get in to the shock out quickly, and is, in fact, so green on the ground that it is practically wet all the time. It is not a difficult task so to handle both fodder and corn as to have a fine-fodder grain that is in every way equal to standing corn.

Four Thousand Godfathers.
Princess Irene of Russia is better provided for in the matter of godfathers than any other woman in the world. She has about 100 fewer than 1,000 godfathers, and how she came to obtain so many is a pretty story. When she was born the war of 1865 was drawing to an end, and peace became proclaimed just at the time of her christening. Her father, Prince Henry of Hesse, invited all his officers and men of the regiment under his command to stand godfathers to his little daughter. There is a named from (peace) in commemoration of the end of the war.—London Tatler.

Six Doctors Failed.
South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24.—(Special.)—After suffering from Kidney Disease for three years; after taking treatment from six different doctors with out getting relief, Mr. J. O. Laudeman of this place found not only relief but a speedy and complete cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills. The breaking of his cure Mr. Laudeman says:
"Yes, I suffered from Kidney Trouble for three years and tried six doctors to no good. Then I took just two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and they not only cured my kidneys, but gave me better health generally. Of course I recommended Dodd's Kidney Pills to others and I know a number now who are using them with good results."
Mr. Laudeman's case is not an exception. Thousands give similar experiences. For three never yet was a case of Kidney Trouble under Backache or Bright's Disease that Dodd's Kidney Pills could not cure. They are the only remedy that ever cured Bright's Disease.

Storm Caution.
The storm caution now in use along the southern side of the Alps, where damage from hailstorms during harvest time is imminent, look like huge megaphone, such as boat-crew conches use, and they are set, with their wide mouths gaping skyward, beside little houses that look like sentry boxes. When they are fired they sound like "sure enough" cannons, and send reverberating, echoing, boom-booms carolling about among the hillsides; but instead of a ball or shell, or other similar projectile, they emit a ring of smoke which grows larger and larger as it ascends, until at last, before it breaks, it is big enough to surround a ten-acre field. What the effect of a smoke ring upon a mischievously intent cloud is I cannot exactly say, but instead of hail, only rain falls when the guns are used, and damage to crops is prevented.

Device for Holding Hogs.

German butter makers have a process of glazing butter with a coat of melted sugar. It is stated that the butter so treated keeps fresh for a much longer time than ordinary butter. It is carefully worked and washed and put up in one-pound lots and placed in a cool room. It is then glazed by painting the surface with melted sugar, using a soft brush and performing the operation very quickly. The hot sugar melts the surface of the butter, and with it forms a kind of varnish, which protects the surface against the air.

New Use for Sweet Potatoes.
The low price of sweet potatoes has directed attention to a new market for the vegetable. The glucose makers have discovered, it is claimed, that their product can be made profitably from sweet potatoes and are proposing to contract with farmers in the Southwest for their crops at $20 to $25 per acre.

Farm Notes.
Note the changes which you intend to make for next winter.
Have all live stock ready for market before you market it.
The appearance of things about the house is the first that attracts attention, good or bad.
Prepare to winter the young stock well. Don't be afraid. People will need beef next year the same as this.
See that all necessary repairs are made, not only upon the home buildings, but upon the outbuildings also. Winter is coming.
If those March and April pigs had clover and peas to run through the summer they are now just about ready for a corn diet.
A cheery, comfortable family room and plenty of good things to read rob winter of about all of its terrors, cement family ties and lays a foundation for pleasant memories in after life.
Poultry Pickings.
Roup is produced by a bad cold being neglected.
If eggs for hatching are desired, use 2-year-old hens.
Grated lime is the form in which to supply bone to poultry.
To make poultry business a success it must have attention.
All perches should be on the same level, none higher than the others.
It is very essential that the poultry house should be well ventilated.
Whole wheat is an excellent food for the hens, but should not be used exclusively.
Bone meal contains lime and also animal matter which is of value.
Some green food is indispensable to ducks after they are two weeks old.
The use of food is to sustain life and maintain warmth and good condition of body.

Rhyhome—How was the weather where you were this summer?
Outer—Cool enough for blankets every night.
My, I've never seen that.
"Yes, but we had the blankets."

Hard to Explain.
A lawyer who appreciated a District-class joke on himself was at the Club House last night. Phil B. Nelson, of Koonok, Va., is his official title.
"When a barrister of only a few months' experience," said he, "I had occasion to examine a negro witness. I was sitting along fairly well until I asked the negro what was his occupation."
"I use a carpenter, sah," he said.
"What kind of a carpenter?" I asked.
"They call me a jack-leg carpenter, sah."
"What is a jack-leg carpenter?"
"He is a carpenter who is not a fast-class carpenter, sah."
"Well, explain fully what you understand a jack-leg carpenter to be," I insisted.
"Boss," said the witness, "I declare I dunno how to 'splain any mo', 'cept to say it am 'jest' the same difference 'twixt you and a fast-class lawyer."

A Crushing Blow.
Felled like an ox and dizzy and sleepless for weeks.
Rough Experience of E. C. F. Ward, of Girard, Kansas, a Veteran of Co. H, 55th Indiana.
A reporter who was seeking for Mr. Ward to get his confirmation of a statement that had been made concerning him by a fellow-townsmen, found that stalwart carpenter engaged in putting a new window frame in an old house. In response to a query, the robust workman dropped abruptly to a seat on the window bench, and said:
"Yes; I owe my recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I am always glad to tell the story for the sake of others. In fact, I think there are only two kinds of medicine worth buying—at least, only two kinds that ever did me any good—and one of them is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.
"You see, it was this way: I was at my work in 1893 when I felt as if I had been struck on my head by a hidden bolt. My head seemed to stop with the doctor. I dropped nearly as dead as I did, not through the bottle of Richmond, Kentucky, but I never had been through anything like this before. I thought surely I was going to pass in my checks this time.
"After that I had very trying dizzy spells. I had to give up work altogether and spend every other day in bed. For two months I did not leave the house. I could not concentrate my eyes on any object; I was in a state of extreme nervousness all the time. I would lie awake at night, and my back would aching all night. My circulation was bad, and my feet always cold. The doctor admitted that his medicine was not doing me a bit of good.
"Then I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, about which I had read in an advertisement. After three or four days use I realized that they were helping me. I began to take them in January, 1893. By the middle of February I was out and in March I resumed work as usual. I sleep without difficulty, my feet are always warm, my circulation is good. You may say that I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can't be beat for nervousness and difficulties of the blood. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

THE WAYNE HERALD.

Official paper of Wayne and Wayne county Published every Thursday.

E. CUNNINGHAM, Publisher

Subscription, $1.00 a Year in Advance.

Goddie says: "I'd like Berge first rate but he is a d--d populist."

Pat McKillip did a little talking here as a contributory feature to the Berge meeting, and to the amazement of the audience omitted repetition of his remarkable calf story.

The fact that betting offers of 5 to 1 on Roosevelt are made in New York with few takers, shows that even in the east the president is regarded almost sure of re-election.

Congressman McCarthy addressed a good sized audience at Altona Thursday night and presented political issues in a logical, forceful manner, giving evident satisfaction to his hearers.

Will some of our good fusion friends be pleased to stand up and show us how much the railroad assessments in Nebraska were raised during the six years that Silas Holcomb and William Poynter were governor of the state. They had the power to raise the assessments, did they do it, and if so, how much?

In what respect has Mickey as governor of Nebraska failed to perform his duties? What act of maladministration is or can be charged up to him? Until our reform friends can show up specific instances, they have no right to ask a republican to give his support to the fusion candidate. Glittering generalities bought not and do not count with men of good hard sense.

Aside from his tongue-splitting calf story the revenue law is the chief element in McKillip's political talks. What would he do about this state law if by some foolish error of judgment the people should elect him? Of course he would be entirely removed from local conditions and become interested in national politics? Then, why does he not try to win votes on national issues.

The Stanton Register announces that Roosevelt will not get a majority in Nebraska. Being the only paper in America that takes that view of the result in this state, and being contrary to the expressed opinion of Bryan and everybody else, it is worthy of note. However, the Register's forecast on the presidential ticket is probably as nearly correct as its opinion on other political phases.

The political foresters are getting in their work in great shape. From the republican prophets' view Roosevelt is going to carry out everything except Texas and the sears of the other faith claim the solid south, Indiana, New York, Wisconsin and a few of the mountain states, with Illinois, Nebraska and some others in the doubtful list. You can get almost any kind of prediction you want.

There can be no valid reason given why you should vote for the ascendancy of democracy in any place this fall. Remember we were prosperous, and happy in 1892 and some of us thought a change could do no harm and the votes were cast in sufficient volume to elect Grover Cleveland and a democratic congress, and did we suffer or not for that lapse of good judgment? Don't try any more experiments along that line—they are too expensive.

William F. Bryant, a leading democrat of the state, formerly residing at Harrison, now living in Lincoln, has a column and a half article in Monday's Lincoln Journal, attacking the new revenue law. In the course of his article he says: "I am a republican and I am on your side as a republican."

were $3,467,443.15 due in delinquent taxes and that if they were paid the state would have a large surplus in its treasury instead of being in debt.

Our friends, the fusionists, are always loud in their professions of reform but very short in performance as can be readily ascertained by anyone sufficiently interested to take a look at the bills of some of the deputy assessors presented to the Board of Commissioners for assessing last spring. In several cases the bills presented were so outrageous that good partisan that he is, Jake Zeigler could not and would not approve the bills, and yet these are among the fellows who talk most and loudest about republican extravagance and extortion. Consistency is not one of the jewels in the collection of the average reformer.

If the present revenue law does not suit you and you believe it needs modifying remember it is better to have the modifications made by your own party than to trust it in the hands of men whose sole object in its denunciation is to again foist a reign of populism and discredit onto our fair state. It would be just as safe and sane to vote for democratic candidates for congress because you are disgusted with features of the existing tariff law and trust its revision to their vandal hands as to vote for fusion candidates for the legislature with the expectation that they are safer to trust with matters of legislation than candidates of your own party.

In all the years of our recollection we cannot recall one in which a presidential campaign aroused so little interest as the one now in progress. Business is good, men are prosperous and consequently contented, hence they take but small interest in politics. It is during panicky times, when business is nil or when they believe some change is about to be wrought that will disturb good conditions that men become aroused and enter into the fight with a vim now entirely lacking. It is not well to be too sure, too careless as to whether a full republican vote is cast this year or not; it may be that the morning after election you may receive a vote that will last for sometime. Vote and see that your neighbor does; don't trust it all to the other fellow.

If you vote for Theodore Roosevelt because you want to see republicanism prevail as the policy of the nation, don't kill that vote by casting one for the fusion candidates for the legislature in your district, because if these should be elected their vote will most certainly be cast for the election of a democrat or fusion United States Senator from Nebraska. This is not simply a matter of personal preference but the governmental policy of the nation is at stake and the only way to be assured that a blasting change will not be brought about and the experience of '98 to '97 repeated is to vote not only for Theodore Roosevelt for president, but also vote for J. J. McCarthy for congress and J. J. Williams for state senator and Charles McLeod for representative.

Democracy always preaches non-partisanship when their party is a hopeless minority in a county, district, or state, and they are at their old game in Wayne county in the commissioner's fight. While the fusionists had a majority vote in Wayne county no man has any recollection of that party ever saying anything about any office being non-partisan. The man or party that attempts to make you believe that a democrat or populist is abler or better fitted to fill the office of county commissioner than a republican reflects on your intelligence and deserves to be turned down cold. The republican candidate for this office is as well qualified in every way for the office as his democratic opponent and there can be no valid reason given why you should vote for the ascendancy of democracy in any place this fall. Remember we were prosperous, and happy in 1892 and some of us thought a change could do no harm and the votes were cast in sufficient volume to elect Grover Cleveland and a democratic congress, and did we suffer or not for that lapse of good judgment? Don't try any more experiments along that line—they are too expensive.

man who always gives aid and comfort to the party with which you are in no way in sympathy.

When a fusionist attempts to make you believe that the floating indebtedness of the state of Nebraska, a debt that has kept increasing for years because the income of the state from taxes levied was less than the necessary expenditures, was brought about by republican expenditures, just refer him to the report of John F. Cornell the last fusion auditor for the state which was made in December 1900 and is as follows: "At the close of the biennium ending November 30, 1898, the liabilities of the state were $1,729,613.47; at the close of the business November 30, 1900, the liabilities were $1,782,485.11. To this should be added the deficiencies created during the biennium and not yet provided for by appropriation, estimated at about $126,000, making a total of $1,907,485.11. Notwithstanding the fact that state funding bonds amounting to $153,267.35 have been paid off, the indebtedness of the state shows an increase of $178,370.71." When the legislature met and came to make the appropriations for deficiencies that occurred during the last two years of fusion rule it found that Cornell's estimates were short of the actual amount and instead of the amount set forth by him it proved to be about $285,000.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.
A startling incident, is narrated by John Oliver of Philadelphia as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for two weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Wayne Drug Store.

PERILS OF LAND AND SEA.

Captain Willner's Remarkable Escape Shows What to do in Time of Trouble.

For many years, Captain Willner, says the Times of Gloucester, Mass., was one of the best known seamen in the Gloucester Fleet. The sea and its dangers had no fear for him, but the catarrhal troubles with which he suffered for fifteen years made him dread the nights at sea, for he had to walk the cabin deck, being unable to lie down and sleep on account of the constant catarrhal droppings.

Captain Willner went to two different hospitals for treatment, but could get no lasting benefit. He constantly raised yellow and green phlegm and his trouble became so unbearable and annoying that he was ashamed to go out in company. When de-pairing of ever getting relief, his wife purchased a Hyomei outfit for him, and trying it before going to bed, he enjoyed the first whole night's sleep for ten years. Captain Willner says "I have used less than two bottles of Hyomei and have been cured by the remedy. My friends ask me what is responsible for my improvement, and I tell them Hyomei, which has given me full and complete recovery."

A THOUGHTFUL MAN.
M. M. Austin of Winchester, Ind., knew what to do in the hour of need. His wife had such a usual case of stomach and liver trouble, physicians could not help her. He thought of and tried Dr. King's New Life Pills and got relief at once and was finally cured.

PROGRESS OF THE WAR

The great battle of last week took place on a line between fifty-five and sixty miles long, and the line of battle proper, where the fighting was most severe and continuous, was twenty-five or thirty miles long. The Hun river on the north and west and the Schill river on the east and south mark the field in a general way. The Schill river, frequently mentioned in the dispatches, bisects this field on an east and west line, and most of the fighting thus far has been south of it. The battle may possibly be known as the battle of the Schill river.

Gen. Kuropatkin brought into play every pound of military strength that Russia has available in the East. Since the battle of Liaoyang he has been reinforced by the First and Sixth corps, and possibly also by the Fourth and Cossack divisions. A low estimate of his strength is 200,000 men. It may be 250,000. With all that he has been gradually but surely beaten back, and the chances are greater now than they were at a corresponding stage of the battle of Liaoyang that his army will be partially disintegrated. Then his divisions were closely concentrated for mutual support. Now they are much more widely spread out.

On the last day of September correspondents at Mukden made note of great military activity, but this preparation of a movement southward was not completed. Gen. Kuropatkin issued his famous order for the advance, though it was not till a week later that Europe learned of it. In the meantime the Russians had been engaged in pushing in the Japanese outposts. This preliminary stage of the struggle culminated with the driving of the Japanese outposts out of Bent-sai-pu.

The small map gives a roughly accurate idea of the battle field strategy. Three heavy black lines are to be seen on the map marked "Oct. 8 (day of battle)," "Oct. 10," and "Oct. 11."

EVOLUTIONS OF THE BATTLE OF YENTAI

These lines indicate the respective positions of the hostile armies at different stages of the battle. The jagged triangle including Yentai, Liaoyang and Sikyuan marks the heart of Oyama's position, the three points being heavily fortified and garrisoned. North of his triangle Oyama had advanced a heavy line of outposts at the position indicated by the line of Oct. 8. But he was not north of Yentai in front of the Japanese advance from Mukden began on Oct. 5. Two days later it came in contact with the Japanese outposts. In two days' fighting the Japanese scouts were forced back toward their main positions. At the same time reinforcements were sent forward from the triangle. The retreating outposts and reinforcements met at the line marked "Oct. 10." On the following day the heavy fighting began.

We can most easily get an idea of the fighting by considering the Kuroki, Nodzu and Oku armies separately. Kuroki has the right, occupying the region at the head of the Taishu, where that river curves from a southerly to a westerly course. Oku is in the center, holding the region from the Yentai station on the railroad. Oku is west of the railroad, holding both sides of the Hun river.

Monday Kuropatkin in full force crossed the Hun river where it flows easterly just south of Mukden. His advance guards on the same day crossed the Schill and attacked Yentai, but were driven back in the evening. Tuesday a larger force crossed the Schill, and the fighting that day was very severe to the north of Yentai. Gen. Daniloff receiving his wounds in that engagement. Gen. Nodzu took the offensive that same day and began to force the Russians back. The struggle was extremely fierce here every day. It was probably the great part of the fighting in this region.

Farther to the east Gen. Kuroki met the main force of the attack at his chosen positions near Benishu. The Russians attempted to outflank him, however, or at least made a feint of that nature, by sending several thou-

War News in Brief.

Gen. Biberling lost nearly a whole brigade out of his corps.

The Japanese have withdrawn troops from Newchwang and south to Liaoyang.

The central question reached an acute stage at St. Petersburg, but has eased up.

The Baltic fleet was inspected by the Emperor at Revel, and will sail in a few days for the Pacific.

Japs are reported to have crossed the Hun river ready to attack the Russians in the rear, when they are driven across it.

The Russians are supposed to have lost from 20,000 to 30,000 in the six days' fighting. There were 4,000 dead in front of one Japanese army.

A mail pouch for the English Cincinnati was read by Russians from California and opened and afterwards returned. The government will make a strong protest.

Over in Japan they call the war dispatches from Chong-chow-choo-lee. Those that come from Shanghai they call "Shanghai dispatches," meaning that the news is created on the bund, or river front, of Shanghai.

sand men across the Taishu farther north to work around to the Japanese rear. Gen. Kuroki seemed to expect to bring this expedition bodily, but if he did it no report has yet arrived. The country here is broken with small hills, and there seems to have been a large number of separate engagements on Tuesday and Wednesday. On Wednesday Kuroki received reinforcements, and Thursday he sent a strong force under Prince Kanin to cut off the Russians north of Benishu. This force formed a wedge between the Russian left and center, but the left seems to have escaped from it, and the center was too hard pressed itself to strike a counter blow.

West of the railroad the fighting was more distinctly favorable to the Japanese. Here it was that thirty-five Russian guns were captured. West of the Hun Gen. Oku seems to have cleared the country of Russians to a point within ten or twelve miles of Mukden. In the number of men engaged, in the casualties of both sides, and in the decisiveness of the Japanese victory the battle at Yentai surpasses that at Liaoyang. But it does not anywhere equal the first conflict in interest. Liaoyang was the first square stand up fight on a big scale with equal numbers and modern weapons between the yellow men and the white. When the Japs won that fight the great lesson was taught—that education, study, training and patriotism will achieve just as great results for a yellow man as for a white man.

OVER 60,000 FALL IN BATTLE.

Appalling Slaughter Leads to Demands

Field Marshal Oyama, in a report to the Mikado, estimated the number of Russians killed in the battle south of Mukden at 10,000. Other reports from the Japanese headquarters in the field estimate the total number of killed and wounded on both sides at 60,000, but this is considered too low.

The railway yards at Mukden are congested with the trains bearing the wounded from the battle field to the Warned by the Wireless.

When the Vladivostok fleet destroyed the Kinshu Maru in Cossak harbor, they came nearly being caught by Mr. Kamimura and his fighting ships. Fortunately for the Russians, a heavy fog settled down while they lay peacefully off the town. The fog was so dense that one could not tell where your ship was located or out. Presently the Russian wireless instruments began to "click," and the words were Japanese. That warned the Russians that Kamimura was somewhere in the neighborhood, and they yanked up their mud boots, which is nautical for "make ready," and disappeared in the neighboring fog. If the Japanese fleet had not used their wireless at this time the Russians would have had no warning of impending trouble, and might have gotten into a fight.

To Enunciate Jap Words.

If you want to be absolutely correct in the pronunciation of certain Japanese words and names, you may be interested in following these instructions:

We worked two days trying to say "ginbu." In approved Japanese, and then we found that a "u" at the front and of a word was just plain "u," without any trimmings. Ginbu means "bank."

The Japanese observance of the rules of war was absolutely correct. In this respect it has been the pleasantest war I ever engaged in.—Gen. Kuropatkin in Mukden interview.

The Russians are now fighting as a matter of pride. Manchuria is forgotten. They feel that they cannot stop—absolutely—with one battle.—From a Russian correspondent at Mukden.

hospitals at Harbin, and it would not be surprising if Kuropatkin had lost nearly one-fifth of his army in killed and wounded. Complete figures are lacking on the Japanese losses, but they will be large, although smaller than those of Russia.

The extent of the slaughter has shocked both Japan and Russia. In Tokyo the appalling tragedy is considered to be a strong appeal for peace. The Japanese, usually quick to celebrate victory for their army, are receiving the news in a subdued spirit, although it contains the report of a sweeping success for Oyama's forces. A member of the diplomatic corps makes a strong argument in favor of an adjustment of the conflict.

In Russia the defeat of Kuropatkin's armies is making the war more unpopular than ever, and fears are expressed openly that Japan's success will cause China to abandon her neutrality and come out openly in favor of the Japanese.

RUSSIANS LOST 25,000.

Almost Routed by Japanese in First Battle with Conditions Equal.

The seven days' battle north of Yentai was the heaviest blow yet struck the Russians by the Japanese, so far as loss of life is concerned. The left Japanese army during the week buried 4,100 Russian dead left in front of its lines. A village in front of the left wing contains many Russian dead, but the shell fire of the retreating Russians prevents the Japanese from reaching them. Conservative estimates place the Russian casualties at not less than 25,000. Probably many more dead are on the field in places yet to be searched. The Japanese report their total casualties at a little over 4,000 killed and wounded. The principal Russian casualties occurred in determined counter attacks on each village captured by the Japanese. The Russian attacking parties were in many cases entirely annihilated.

For the first time the Russians met the Japanese on an equal footing, not having strong defensive positions to depend upon, and for the first time they attacked the Japanese in their own trenches. The Russians everywhere fought bravely, but they were unable to drive the Japanese out or to hold their own positions.

Almost in every case the Russians retired from their positions at the first charge, then made repeated attempts to recapture them. The Japanese left army, with a front of nearly ten miles, moved forward about five miles, fighting over every inch of ground. The final retreat of the Russians was almost a rout. The Japanese extreme left advanced, driving the remnant of Russians ahead. The Russians covered their retreat well with artillery and carried away much baggage and many wounded.

The Japanese soldiers were practically the same that fought before Liaoyang. Chinese reports that heavy work is already for the Russians along the Hun river. The Japanese are undecided where the next stand will be made. Details of the operation of the right and center armies are not obtainable.

Baron Hayashi sees no probability of anything being done towards peace in the event of a victory for the Japanese, but thinks when Port Arthur falls there may be some hope.

THE WREST EVER.

The Bologna sausage makers employed in 105 worst shops in Chicago agreed the other evening to strike for recognition of their union. Eleven hundred men, expert in separating sausages from their bark, joined in the movement. The meeting decided on linked action against the manufacturers, whose trade agreement with the union has expired. The employers decided to run open shops. The union wants the shops closed tight as the Bologna. The strike is yet to come.

Needed Horse Sold for $750,000.

One of the largest sums ever paid for a horse in this country was that given for Harry Payne Whitney at the sale of the stable of his late father, William C. Whitney, in Madison Square Garden, New York, Monday night. The price was $750,000. The horse, a bay, was the finest stallion, Hamburg, James B. Keene, the famous horseman and Wall street operator, was Whitney's only competitor in the bidding, he offering $500,000.

The Vote in November.

It is estimated that 35,000,000 votes will be cast for President in November. This is 15,000,000 more than were cast in 1900. It was 15,961,568. If the estimate of 15,000,000 votes should prove correct, over a million more votes will be cast this year than were cast four years ago. There has been a large increase in the number of the voters of the United States, but no larger number of stay-at-home voters this year than there was in 1900.

BLAME IS FIXED.

Commission on Steamship Horror Makes Report.

The national steamship committee has spared nobody. It has struck at the head of the steamship inspection service. Pre-emptory orders have been issued to discharge from the service of the United States these officials:

Robert S. Rodie, supervising inspector of the Second District, with headquarters in Albany.

Gen. James A. Dimont and Thomas H. Barrett, local inspectors in charge of the port of New York.

They are held directly responsible for deadly laxity and neglect.

It is ordered that their successors in office at once conduct a thorough examination of the entire inspection force of the port of New York, with the object of weeding out all incompetents. A full examination shall show to be unfit to perform the very arduous and responsible duties of their positions.

Changes in the regulations of an extensive nature must be made (for it is so ordered) designed to prevent a repetition of the General Siamon disaster in the port of New York. Captains and 175 were hit out of 1,258. Construction of flimsy steamboats of the Siamon kind will be guarded against. The owners of the Siamon and their executive agents are declared to share largely in the moral responsibility for the wholesale destruction of life. Captain Van Schuik and the pilot are also condemned. The commission declares: "The commission, therefore, believes that the master had knowledge of the fire before the steamer passed the eastern end of Ward's Island. The commission, therefore, believes that the master knew of the fire and to have ordered the vessel either in Little Hell Gate, to the westward of the Ranken Meadows, or in the Bronx Kills, to the eastward of the Ranken Meadows."

A fearful rebuke is given to the owners and crew, says Assistant Engineer Bradford and Chief Engineer Conklin, who are recommended as heroes. "Pilot Van Wert showed bad judgment and lack of skill in reaching the vessel, giving little opportunity of avoiding ships to those who could not swim. The fire-fighting apparatus is sharply criticised, and as to the matter life preservers the commission is surprised to find no greater power on the inspection service to enforce its commands are strongly urged.

All the regulations must be enforced by order of President Roosevelt, who has written a letter to Secretary Victor H. Meyer, and to the Department of Commerce and Labor directing him to carry into effect the regulations of the commission.

CAMPAIGN WARMING UP.

Its Last Days May See Some of the Old Time Enthusiasm.

The remaining days of the campaign of 1904 will occupy the public mind pretty much to the neglect of everything else. The voters and those who read the newspapers, the Union Globe says, believe in the campaign as a great thing. It has been impossible to arouse enthusiasm at an earlier stage and a herculean effort has been put forth to start it ever now.

This campaign differs from others in the absence of accessories—the uniformed marching clubs, the bands, the things which contributed to movement and color. When the spectacular feature is omitted, the distinguishing mark of the presidential canvasses since the 60's, the life is gone. When it is left to the press and the speakers to importune support for the candidates, the platform becomes a mere department in the old days the cost of carrying on a campaign was small compared to now. In 1899 the Wild Awakes and the Little Giants wore an oil cloth cap and carrying 40 cents and this placed it within the reach of everyone. Now the uniforms cost all the way from $10 to $25 and only a few are able to make their campaign. A 200 dressed this way in one month expended from $4,000 to $7,000. The old fashioned torch has been superseded by an expensive lantern, and musicians who received $1.50 per night now ask $4 and $5. The increased cost has had a good effect in making the campaign less popular. In the old days the cost of carrying on a campaign was small compared to now. In 1899 the Wild Awakes and the Little Giants wore an oil cloth cap and carrying 40 cents and this placed it within the reach of everyone. Now the uniforms cost all the way from $10 to $25 and only a few are able to make their campaign. A 200 dressed this way in one month expended from $4,000 to $7,000. The old fashioned torch has been superseded by an expensive lantern, and musicians who received $1.50 per night now ask $4 and $5. The increased cost has had a good effect in making the campaign less popular. In the old days the cost of carrying on a campaign was small compared to now. # FIRE SALE BARGAINS BETTER THAN EVER

Thousands of dollars worth of Furniture, Carpets, Curtains, Rugs, Etc., damaged by water and fire in the Albert Lindholm building still to be sold—and they must be sold at once without regard to condition or cost.

Up to $37.50 High Class Dressers

About 40 fine dressers, scarcely damaged at all; these were on the second floor of the Albert Lindholm building and were not near the fire, but were wet by water from the third floor. Here are birds-eye maple, curly birch, mahogany and oak dressers, with finest beveled plate mirrors of various sizes. The actual damage to them is nothing—you wouldn't know they had been through the fire unless we told you. Pick them out at $6.75. $11.75

$16.75

Every trace of fire sale goods must be disposed of at once. We've again carefully gone through the entire damaged stock and where certain articles are slow in moving, we've put a new price on them. Here are goods so little marred, disfigured or begrimed, that you would know they'd been through the fire only by the prices they're marked. The most wonderful bargains you could imagine are now awaiting your decision at this store. Furniture of every kind—Carpets of many kinds—Rugs of a few kinds—Curtains, the kind you want. Don't wait and figure the prices will be cut still deeper, they won't, they're so ridiculously low now that we can hardly take care of the crowds that daily flock to this sale. The choosing this week will be just as good as the first; our big ware is still burdened with fire sale stocks that are moved onto the salesfloors as fast as possible, and are marked for quick selling.

Up to $8.00 Chairs and Rockers

A big miscellaneous assortment that was stored on the third floor of the Albert Lindholm building where the fire was fiercest. All sorts, kinds and descriptions of chairs—oak, mahogany, bird's-eye maple, with leather, wood, cane or upholstered seats. Charred, burned, disfigured, warped and blistered—some badly, some but little—on sale at

TO THOSE WHO ARE SUFFERING

From Weak Eyes From Poor Sight

DR. M. ERSLER...

the well known expert optician of Sioux City, Iowa, will again be at the UNION HOTEL, WAYNE, NEBRASKA SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1904

His 7th visit to Wayne, Nebraska. Since Dr. Ersler has been visiting Wayne he has demonstrated to his patrons that he can fit eyes with glasses where others utterly fail. He can refer you to hundreds of people in Wayne and vicinity. My examinations are thorough, painstaking and scientific. I use no drugs or medicines in my methods. My instruments are the best known to science. Most headaches are caused by defective eyes and can be cured with glasses. My lenses positively cure headache, nervousness, granulated lids and all pains in and around the eyes, give perfect sight and relieve all strain of the eye muscles. If you have children whose eyes are crossed either constantly or occasionally, or who complain of having any trouble whatever with their eyes at school, bring them to me and have their eyes corrected. If you have any trouble whatever with your eyes, it matters not if you tried others and they failed to give relief, give me a trial. I cost you nothing to find out whether or not you can get relief. I have fitted thousands and can fit you too. Take Notice—I give a written contract in every case I undertake. I guarantee to give results or refund the money. Union Hotel, Wayne, Nebraska, October 29.

ORDER OF HEARING.

The State of Nebraska, ss In County Court, Wayne County, ss In County Court. At a County Court, held at the county court room, in and for said county of Wayne, on the 13th day of October, 1904.
Present, E. Hunter, County Judge. In the matter of the estate of Gustav B. Miller, deceased.
On reading and filing the petition of Minnie Miller praying that the instrument filed on the 13th day of October, 1904, purporting to be the last Will and Testament of said deceased, may be proved, approved, probated, allowed and recorded as the last Will and Testament of said Gustav B. Miller, deceased, and that the execution of said instrument may be committed and that the administration of said estate may be granted to Minnie Miller as executrix; Ordered, That November 5th, A. D. 1904, at 2 o'clock P. M., is assigned for hearing said petition, when all persons interested in said matter may appear at a county court to be held in and for said county, and show cause why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted; and that notice of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, be given to all persons interested in said matter by publishing a copy of this order in the Wayne Herald, a weekly newspaper printed in said county, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing. (A true copy.) E. HUNTER, County Judge.
