THE NEW LAW

The Object of Unreasonable Attack.

MISLEADING CIRCULARS ISSUED

Fusionists are Careful to Send Letters to Only Persons Whose Taxes are Higher for 1904 Than for the Previous Years.

Our brethren of the fusion faith have made quite a campaign of attack on the new revenue law and the candidates for the offices of state senator and representatives on that ticket have jointly signed comparative statements of taxes for the years 1902, 1903 and 1904 and have sent these circular letters out to many taxpayers throughout the district and in that circular pledge themselves to do all in their power to get the law repealed. These circulars are very careful to send only to persons whose taxes are higher for the year 1904 than for the preceding years and charge that the cause of this increase in the taxes of the party to whom the circular is sent, is due to "the extravagance of public officials and the relaxation of railroad taxes which correspondingly increased yours." We do not wish to charge either of the gentlemen with being dishonest, but if honest, then they are woefully ignorant. In answer to the charge of official extravagance, if by this they mean the officials in charge during the regime of Holcomb and Poyater we will agree with them, because it is a fact that without expending any money for permanent improvements during the four years referred to the states floating indebtedness increased more than a quarter million dollars. But if they mean to assert that the increase is due to the last four years of republican administration we enter a vigorous dissent. During the four years last past, in which the state has been controlled by the republicans over a half million dollars has been spent for permanent improvements, among these being the rebuilding and refurbishing of the penitentiary, the rebuilding of the Norfolk asylum, both of which were burned, and several other state institutions, among which is the asylum at Hastings, soldiers and sailors home at Millard, the State Normal at Peru had large sums spent on them for improvements that were absolutely necessary, and yet after laying out the vast sums that were demanded in order to preserve these institutions and provide adequate places for the care of our unfortunate we find the republican administrations for the four years referred to have only charged up a deficiency of $151,000, so if the states money has been squandered it was surely done during the four years of Holcomb and Poyater. Now as to the charge of the gentlemen regarding reduction of railroad taxes. The records disclose that the railroad assessments, under the action of a republican board of equalization, administering the new revenue law as they believed justly and fairly were raised to $46,000,000 an increase of 60 per cent while farm values over the entire state were increased but 51 per cent, the railroads being increased 18 per cent more than farms and farm utensils. This statement of the exact conditions as now prevailing brands the statement of the gentlemen as either willfully falsifying the records or else as being ignorant and either demonstrates their unfitness for the places they seek. Then again as a further illustration of the unjustness of the statement as issued in which they seek to convey the impression that all increased taxation, wherever it occurs is due wholly to the new revenue law and republican officials, when the facts are that in most instances the increase is due in a large measure to county and school districts making excessive levies and is chargeable to local officials and not to state officials. We have taken some trouble to gather a few statistics along this line and we believe it is worth your while to read them and see whether we are right or not in the statements we make. You will notice that in nearly every case cited the increases are largely school taxes. These cases were chosen because they bear out neither the contention of republicans or democrats, but are taken indiscriminately and are fairly representative of the conditions as they exist. The first S. W. 1/4 sec. 1-25-1: Total tax for 1903, $30.00, divided as follows: State $5.89, county $10.16, school $4.45, for 1904, total tax $32.25 divided as follows: State $5.64, county $13.63, school $7.20, road $2.78, being an increase of $12.25 of which $5.25 is state, $3.53 county, $3.76 school and $2.78 road. The next is S. W. of 7-25-1 tax for 1903 $24.09 divided, state $4.59, county $5.64, school $10.80, for 1904 tax $24.88 divided state $4.90, county $11.78, school $8.18 an increase for 1904 of $0.89 in the total, in this case the state tax is increased $1.04, county increased $5.14, school decreased $2.93, of course the owner of this land won't get any statement from the gentlemen showing his taxes for the two years. Here is another that in all probability will not have his attention called to how the law affects him. N. 1/4 25 1, 1903 taxes $39.84 divided state $12.24, county $23.04, school $30.24, school bond $4.32, 1904 state $14.40, county $23.80, school $24.00, school bond $3.90 total $64.40. Here is one who doubtless has received a comparative statement, N. E. 3-27-1 1903 state $5.18, county $11.53, school $3.64, school bond $7.90 total $28.25; for

HELD TO ANSWER

In the District Court to Serious Charge.

HIRSH, THE RESTAURANT MAN

Charged With Assaulting His Wife With Intent to do Great Bodily Injury—Bound Over With Bond Fixed at $300.

Harry Hirsh, the restaurant man on South Main street, who has been twice before the county court for assaulting his wife, was arrested last week on the more serious charge of assault with intent to kill, his wife being his victim. It seems that Mr. and Mrs. Hirsh drove to Winside Friday and while on their return engaged in a usual altercation with somewhat extraordinary results. It is charged that Hirsh, having aboard his normal cargo of alcoholic chain-lighting, seized his wife with violent hands and pushed her out of the buggy into the road where he abused her and, it is alleged, drew a pen knife on her with the apparent intention of using it. Shortly afterwards, a passerby found the woman by the roadside and brought her to Wayne. Later Hirsh was picked up by a traveler and on reaching here disappeared. A complaint was entered at the instance of Alice Humphrey and a warrant issued for the arrest of Hirsh and the sheriff found him at Wakefield Saturday. The prisoner waived examination and was bound over to the district court with bonds fixed at $300, in default of which he remained incarcerated in the county jail. County Attorney Siman says he expects to have the charge changed from "intent to kill" to "intent to do great bodily injury." The case will come up for trial at the session of district court next week. From long and excessive drink Hirsh has gotten himself into a pitiable condition physically and mentally.

A subscriber of the Herald enters complaint against persons throwing empty beer bottles along the public highway and says the practice is a very dangerous one and that great injury is liable to result to horses or other domestic animals by getting the broken glass in their feet. The Milwaukee railroad, it is reliably reported, is going to build two lines to the Pacific coast. It is expected the line will cross the Missouri at Chamberlain, S. D., and then one will take a northwesterly course and terminate at Seattle or some of the northern ports, while the other will go southwest and connect at a point in Utah with what is known as the Moffatt line now being rapidly built to Los Angeles.

Attorney Davis and Albert Berry are scheduled to go up against each other in a corn-husking duel, to settle the international championship. The contest is to be pulled off immediately after election and will be worth a day's travel to see. The loser agrees to dish up a big banquet to which everybody will be invited. In case Attorney Davis is unable to enter the duel, from gold and sufficient cause, the agricultural end of the HERALD has pledged himself as a substitute.

The matter of asking the railroad company to maintain an arc light near the depot was considered favorably at the council meeting Monday evening, and an effort is to be made to bring about such desirable result. An arc light at the depot would be a great accommodation to the traveling public and would render accidents less likely to happen. The HERALD understands that the city would furnish the light at special cost, and it would seem that the railroad could well afford to undertake the expense for the convenience and safety of its patrons.

CHAPTER XIII.
It was the day that I was to visit Clara. I woke with the dawn. For the first time in my life, I took pains with my toilet. I carefully brushed my hair in different ways, trying what was the fairest becoming. But with all my pains, I cut but in very sorry figure.

"Dear me, how spruce you look this morning!" said Martha, as I came down to breakfast. "And quite elated, too!"

Before 10 o'clock I was in the neighborhood of her house. It was too early to think of her, so I lingered about for some time. I had very good reason for this. I had no knowledge of her name! I had quite forgotten to ask it. As the time drew near I began to feel nervous. A church clock struck eleven as I timidly knocked at the door. It was answered by a stout, good tempered looking old lady.

"You have a young lady staying here," I began, in a hesitating tone.

"Oh, you are the young man that Miss Clara expects, I suppose." Saying which, the old lady deliberately drew a pair of spectacles out of her pocket, and adjusting them, carefully scrutinized me. My eyes were somewhat irritated by the glare of the spectacles. "Walk in, young man; Miss Clara will be with you directly."

She showed me into a neat little parlor. Upon the table were several water-color drawings, some finished, some unfinished, also some Berlin wool work. Bouquets of flowers were everywhere upon the table amidst the work, upon the mantelpiece in two vases, upon a little stand facing the window, and upon the cottage piano that stood in a corner. The air was laden with their perfume. In a few moments the door opened and Clara came into the room.

"You have a young man," she said, with her sweet, melancholy smile.

As if aught but death or imprisonment could have kept me away!

She painted water-color pictures, and did Berlin wool work for the shops, she told me. She sat down at once and began her work. Her brushes, ground her colors, adjusted the blind, and between those little offices I watched her busy fingers; but often my eyes were upon her face, gravely as every lineament upon my face. Never have I looked upon another face so full of so many qualities. It was one of those heads that the old Italian painters loved to give to their Angels and Madonnas, so perfectly serene, so utterly free from human passions. The fair wavy hair, untrammelled by art, the full face, neither full for thin, neither full for stout, the blue eyes, the blue eyes, the straight Grecian nose, the small mouth; the swelling, gracefully arched neck; the skin so delicately white, tinted upon the cheeks with the faintest carnation. Her figure was of about the middle height, exquisitely graceful, with dark hair, which she wore a black dress, made high to the neck, with a small, plain white collar.

We talked very little; she was too busy with her work, and silence was more congenial to our mood.

At 3 o'clock Mrs. Wilson called us to dinner, which we took in a breakfast table. The conversation was very chatty and very curious, and asked me a great number of indirect questions, those I did not care to answer I contrived to evade.

"You must excuse my questions, sir," she said; "but although Miss Clara is in a relation of friendship with you, I know nothing about her, still I get very interested in her as though she were my own child, she is so innocent, and knows so little about the world, that it's quite necessary that she should have some one to look after her. Now, you are the first man I have ever had, and she has been with me for nearly seven years. But, when she came home last night she told me that she had met an old acquaintance who was coming to see her; that he had come to the city in search of employment, and had no friends nor acquaintances, and was so dreadfully needy, that she had to get my help to get her to see him. At first, I set my face against it, but she soon convinced me over, and I compromised the matter by saying that you should come this once, but that if I did not approve of you, it was to be the first and the last visit. But I must not detain you, she is quiet, modest and very interesting. What sort of employment might you be seeking?"

I told her I had been usher at a school, but that at present I was doing copying. I did not say of what kind. The old lady remarked that an usher was a very good kind of employment. Although she seemed very well satisfied with me.

In the evening Mrs. Wilson brought her sewing up into the parlor, and proposed that I should read to them. And so the evening glided on, so rapidly, until I could no longer see in the darkness of twilight. I sat at the window, Mrs. Wilson chatting to me and Clara silent. She gazing into the street, with that absent look so common to her; I watching every motion of her face, as it grew more and more indistinct in the darkness, until her lights were brought, and then we went down to supper, and then it was time to go.

"You will come and see me again, won't you?" she said, as she gave me her hand at the gate.

I wanted no pressing, and arranged that I would call on Monday. She wished her good night, and then she closed the door, and the day was ended—the day whose blissful memories will never fade from my heart.

That day was the precursor of many like ones, until, in a short time, I could perceive that she looked forward to my coming with expectancy, and that my presence had become a thing almost necessary to her. She looked for me to hand her the printing materials, to grind the colors, to select her skins or of a future, and to both the past was hideous, the future ominous. Thus I knew nothing of her past life, nor did I wish to know. Little did I do with the happiness of the present to be married by one painful instant.

She had lived with Mrs. Wilson above two years; yet even she knew nothing of her life for a single day before she came to her. "I have always had good relations with her," she said, "especially young ladies without friends; but she said she could give me none, and she looked so innocent and good that I took a fancy to her upon the spot; and I have never had cause to regret it, for a dear, pure creature never existed since, and I feel for her quite as if she were my own child. But I must say preferred to go to bed, but I did not dare do so, expressing, instead, a great desire to hear what Mr. Montgomery chose to relate.

"Don't be frightened," he said, wiping the perspiration from his face, and growing calm under this judicious flattery. "I am not likely to harm you, or anybody else except her. But when I think of all she has made me go through, and not only me, but you, also, if I were to think of that long, I should go mad in earnest."

He went on smoking his pipe in silence for a time, seemingly lost in thought.

"I wonder if I were to write my life, if I could get any bookseller to publish it? It would indeed be a marvelous story! But I don't believe that half the people would credit it. I could write half a dozen sensation novels without inventing a single incident; but, then, novel readers would say, 'They are so far-fetched!' A man who began his life as a gentleman, and who, for a matter of twenty years, has passed through every phase of vagabondism, must have some strange stories to tell."

"Of course he must," said Josiah, again wiping at his face. "I have often wondered what you have not set about publishing your reminiscences, or your auto-biography, or something of that sort. But it isn't too late, you know. But come, now, give us one of your regular starters; we are all attention."

Egyptians Beat Harvey.

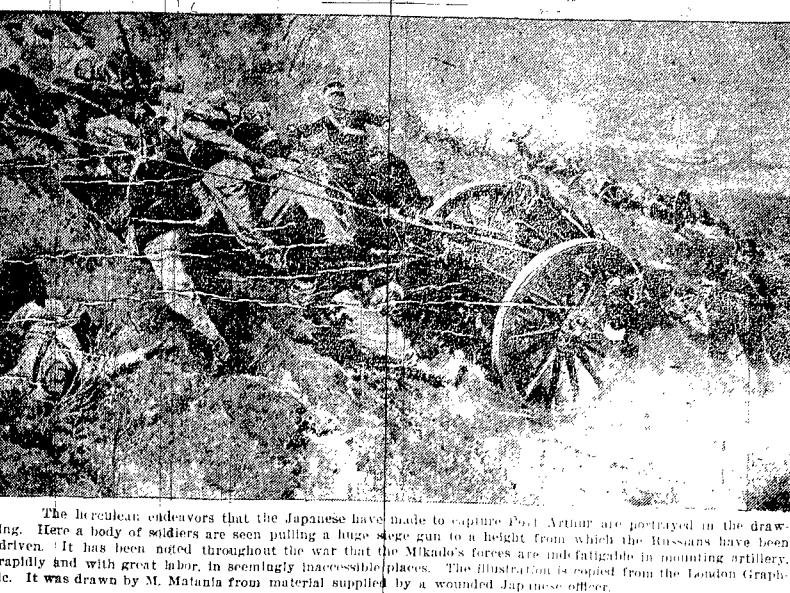

Circulation of the Blood Known to Their Doctors 5,000 Years Ago.

The Harveian oration, held at the Royal College of Physicians, London, was delivered this year by Dr. Richard Caton, F. R. C. P. In the course of his remarks he said that Harvey was almost anticipated 4,000 years ago by the priest-doctors of Egypt in his momentous discovery of the circulation of the blood.

As far back as 4600 B. C. Egypt had works on medicine and anatomy, and one brilliant genius—forgotten nowadays and omitted from the cyclopedias—had discovered the circulation of the blood. JAPANESE POSSESSING A COMMANDING HEIGHT NEAR PORT ARTHUR.

The Japanese soldiers near Port Arthur are shown in the drawing. Here a body of soldiers are seen pulling a large siege gun to a height from which the Russians have been driven. It has been noted throughout the war that the Mikado's forces are not fatigable in mounting artillery, rapidly and with great labor, in seemingly inaccessible places. The illustration is copied from the London Graphic. It was drawn by M. Matania from material supplied by a wounded Japanese officer.

—Luxuriant Sprites.

The Avenger.

THE windows of the grill room were open, and through them came the grateful coolness of the salt breeze and the less welcome clatter of the streets below.

In one corner, at a table, under the great stag's head, Thomas Weldon listened with a smile more or less cynical to the eager voice of young Fenton Tisdale on the other side of the table.

Presently Tisdale's most pleading tones ceased. Weldon coolly lighted a cigar and took several whiffs before he essayed a reply.

"Fenton," he said, looking at the other sharply, "are you sure this is not the purely personal enmity?"

Tisdale regarded his interlocutor steadily.

"I'll admit, Tommy," he said, "I was one of the first to succumb, and I may as well confess I was pretty hard hit; but the enormity of the thing didn't strike me until Jonesy started pleading to have been an all-around genius—physician, architect, astronomer, alchemist—so illustrious that after death he was reputed the son of the supreme deity, Plat—all this and yet nearly lost to fame."

WOMEN AS WORKERS.

Some Figures that, After All, Are Not So Encouraging.

A statistician has gone to the trouble to ascertain that 55 per cent of all the divorced women, 52 per cent of the widowed and 31 per cent of the single women are engaged in manual pursuits, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Only about 6 per cent of the married women are similarly situated. While the great body of married women are at home attending to the domestic duties which are naturally set down for them, there is some hope still that the old order of things is not going to be completely overthrown. The figures will not be without homes. The figures indicate that 94 per cent of the married men are supporting their wives, though the women are, of course, doing their full share in maintaining domestic establishments which are bulwarks of morals and good order and which keep the race from dying out.

On surface analysis it may seem wonderful that 94 per cent of the married men find enough to do to support families, when so many women are in men's occupations, but the earth is big and the ordinary attempt at comprehending the things to be done and the number of people to do them is puny indeed. In the long run there appears to be room for everybody—the home woman, the "new" woman, etc., like wise for the womanish man and the man who depends on the labor and shrewdness of their wives to keep them going.

The mixture of the sexes in the active business affairs of to-day would have scared writers on political economy twenty-five years ago. It seems plain enough, for example, that when a man on a salary gets work for his daughter in the same occupation at perhaps smaller compensation than he receives, he is saving the foundation of his own employment and prosperity; that in the long run, he will be sending people to do them is puny indeed. In the long run there appears to be room for everybody—the home woman, the "new" woman, etc., like wise for the womanish man and the man who depends on the labor and shrewdness of their wives to keep them going.

THE DREAM OF THE AGES THAT WILL NEVER BE FULFILLED.

The other day we received a copy of a book entitled "How to Live Forever." While not pinning for continuous longevity, we glanced through its pages, and, as expected, found a compilation of well-known rules for hygienic living, with a brief dissertation concerning the influence of mind on body. There were no new or startling ideas toward "eternalism." We had scarcely laid down the book when it news item with glaring headlines attracted the eye: "Perpetual Youth Possible. The Microbe of Old Age Discovered. Elixir of Life at Last Within Our Grasp." And the item read: "Dr. Metchnikoff, the bacteriologist of the Pasteur Institute, has discovered the microbe of old age. There now remains only the discovery of a serum which shall set upon this microbe and senility will be annihilated. Several days have elapsed, but nobody seems to have found the much-desired serum, and we fear the fountain of perpetual youth will prove as elusive to the present generation of investigators as it did to the ancient optimistic voyagers.

There are few better ways of fooling Father Time than following the old advice to "keep the heart young." It is astonishing how young a fellow can look and feel who maintains a fresh and lively interest in sports and pastimes or has some hobby which he can ride in leisure moments. Anybody who has his health can "keep young." Ill-health is the only excuse for age, and even this handicap in life's race can be overcome in large measure by a cheerful, contented mind.

That the length of human life is gradually increasing statistics show. It is not increasing by leaps and bounds, nor is there any indication that perpetual youth shall ever be our portion. As we learn better how to live, we shall live longer and happier lives. We cannot hope to live forever, and time spent in planning this impossibility is time wasted.—Robert Webster Jones, in Time.

PORTRAITS OF ANCESTORS.

Where Many of the Pictures Come From.

"Some enterprising and aspiring people in this city recently had a splendid opportunity to add to their family portrait gallery," said an artist of local renown to a Washington Star writer. "There was a sale of the effects of a portrait painter and it included scores of portraits in oil of men and women with distinguished looking features. A great many people wondered what value such portraits could have to people who had no personal interest in them and who did not even know who they were.

"But they had a value that was known to some of the wiser ones. They were bought up at cheap prices and already adorn the home of some of our citizens who were a little shy on family portraits. A dozen or so portraits in oil of distinguished looking men and women do not go begging when their value in adding to the social standing of people is considered.

"I once heard of a funny instance of a family that had a liberal display of family portraits. A friend of mine was visiting their home and glancing around the room he spied a portrait that he had painted of himself, but which he had declined to accept because it failed to portray his likeness well enough for his most intimate friend to recognize it.

"Whom does that portrait represent?" he asked his friend.

"Well, you see," he replied, "our family portraits are so old that I cannot now tell who they all are. They have been in the family a long time, you know. But they are all numbered and noted on a list that is filed away somewhere. That, I think, however, is a picture of my great-great-grandfather on my mother's side of the family. The picture was painted when he was 40 years of age by a celebrated artist."

By that time the guest was so greatly interested in another portrait that he heard no more. Later he learned that the rejected portrait of himself well enough for his most intimate friend to recognize it.

"Whom does that portrait represent?" he asked his friend.

"Well, you see," he replied, "our family portraits are so old that I cannot now tell who they all are. They have been in the family a long time, you know. But they are all numbered and noted on a list that is filed away somewhere. That, I think, however, is a picture of my great-great-grandfather on my mother's side of the family. Good Place for Tobacco.

Foreman—I see tobacco is going to be purty cheap this year.

Foreman—I was wondering if it wouldn't be a good idee to put a little in our cigars.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

All the tiny cripples in the neighborhood of the settlement house, together with a few able-bodied children, had been feasted on cake and lemonade. When one of the deformed mites was ready to go home he missed his coat, which search failed to find. The young woman who had been ministering to the wants of the company had seen one of the able-bodied girls go out with something under her shawl too bulky to be secreted cake.

"Hun, my dear, to Jenny," she said to one of the lads. "In picking up her shawl perhaps she got hold of something else by mistake."

"The boy moved off on his stumpy crutch and when he returned he held the coat in triumph. The 'accident' had happened; Jenny had picked it up with the shawl.

The two small children crowded close around the young woman in great perplexity. Their disappointment had been wounded and they looked dismally at the two small children among them. Flinny one of the lads said:

"Miss Marlin, ain't one of us that did it. Jenny ain't a cripple; she's only a Sunday schooler."

Cured For Rheumatism.

Deep Valley, Pa., Oct. 21.—(Special.)—There is deep interest in Green county over the cure of the little daughter of I. N. Whipple from Rheumatism. She was a great sufferer for five or six years and nothing seemed to do her any good till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. She began to improve almost at once and now she is cured and can run and play as other children do. Mr. Whipple says:

Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for my daughter; they saved her from being a cripple perhaps for life.

Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved that Rheumatism is one of the results of diseased Kidneys. Rheumatism is caused by the acid in the blood. If the kidneys are ailed there can be no relief until the blood and consequently the Rheumatism is cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the Kidney right.

INDIAN PHYSICIANS OF OLD.

Cold Water, Sweating, Purgings, Vomiting and Bleeding Were Remedies.

Undoubtedly the American Indian in his primitive state was a fine specimen of physical manhood. Dr. E. J. Kempf, who has made a careful investigation into frontier history, has found that before the Indians were contaminated by the white race they never were afflicted with smallpox, measles, tuberculosis, gout, scurvy, insanity, nervous diseases nor any other of the ills and blood affections which have in late years made such terrible inroads upon the numbers and vitality of the red men of this country.

The only bodily afflictions which Dr. Kempf reports to the Medical Record that he found among the aborigines were fevers and diseases produced by cold, such as pleurisy, pneumonia, rheumatism, dysentery and wounds from accidents or battle. Naturally the remedies of the Indians were simple and few in number. When sick an Indian refused all kinds of stimulating ailments, but drank profusely of cold water. In addition to this, in proper cases the Indian resorted to sweating, purging, vomiting and bleeding, and finally, when all remedies failed, he was called in to try his amulets and incantations on the patient.

These methods are now still resorted to among blanket Indians who are removed from the influences of civilization. But before we smile or condemn these practices we should consider our own history. It was only a few generations ago that our ideas of medicine were almost as crude as those of the Indians. The more intelligent of the white people then, of course, did not resort to magic and incantations, but the concoctions which they manufactured to cure diseases almost pass belief. Oliver Wendell Holmes, in his "Medical History of Massachusetts," has made a permanent record of some of the practices then prevailing among the colonists. Governor Winthrop was a devout believer in the efficacy of sowbills, while the Rev. Cotton Mather used upon his sick friends such absurd and foul pellets and medications as no Indian ever dreamed of.—Kansas City Star.

BY PROXY.

What the Baby Needed.

I suffered from nervousness and headache until last August a year ago it suddenly occurred to me what a great coffee drinker I was and I thought may be this might have something to do with my trouble, so I shifted to tea for a while, but was not better, if any thing worse.

"At that time I had a baby four months old that we had fed on the bottle, until an old lady friend told me to try Postum Food Coffee. Three months ago I commenced using Postum, leaving off the tea and coffee, and not only have my headaches and nervous troubles entirely disappeared, but since then I have been giving plenty of nurse for my baby, and all have a large, healthy child, and I have not had any of the troubles I had before, but Postum and know it has benefited my children, and I hope all who have children will try Postum and out for themselves what a really wonderful food drink it is." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Both tea and coffee contain quantities of a poisonous drug called caffeine that directly affects the heart, kidneys, stomach and nerves. Postum is made from cereals only, scientifically blended to get the coffee flavor. We don't desire to drink anything but Postum and know it has benefited my children, and I hope all who have children will try Postum and out for themselves what a really wonderful food drink it is." She Fought for a Life.

Nurses are among the heroic fighters of the world. The Congitons Hospital at North Brother Island, New York, has recently been the scene of a brave sacrifice on the part of a young nurse who displayed that love than which no man hath greater. She gave up her life to save that of a child. The New York Sun tells the story:

At the Polyclinic Hospital a little girl developed an alarming form of scarlet fever. It was necessary to remove her to North Brother Island, and Miss Mahler, a graduate of the Rochester University and the City Hospital Training School, volunteered to go into exile with her. At the island diphtheria developed and the case seemed hopeless. For two weeks, night and day, the untiring nurse fought, single-handed, and through her wonderful skill and unselfish devotion, at the end of that time the little patient was out of danger.

Then the two grim diseases attacked the faithful caretaker, and worn out by the long and ceaseless vigil, she had no strength with which to resist them.

She refused to be removed to better quarters, and there, in the very place where she had conquered for the little, unknown girl, she fought another battle, and this time was overcome. Like every brave nurse, she had taken the risk, knowing and counting well the cost, and she accomplished her purpose, for the child was saved.

"Have you read that new novel everybody is talking about?" asked the first dear girl.

"Only the last chapter," replied the second girl.

"I wonder how it begins."

An Ancient Strike.
Probably the oldest strike on record is that of the bakers engaged in baking the showbread for the Temple, which took place two years before the destruction of the building by Titus. The Temple authorities engaged a number of journeymen from Alexandria to take the place of the strikers, but the newcomers had been initiated into the secrets of the trade; the demands of the Jerusalem bakers had to be conceded.

Greatest Depth of the Pacific.
The soundings made in the Moser Basin and in Tongareva Deep were accompanied by great excitement. It was on a beautiful clear day, the 20th of February, that the Albatross approached within a little more than one hundred miles of Guam. The vessel lay to and preparations were made for one of the frequent soundings. At length the silence was broken by a brief order and the striking of a bell. Slowly the machinery of the great engine began to work and slowly the tough wire rope began to sink beneath the water. Foot by foot, fathom by fathom, it slid from the ship. One thousand, two thousand, three, and then four thousand fathoms disappeared. The record was passed. Five miles of rope!

It was an anxious moment for the strain caused by the immense length and weight of the wire rope on the machinery was tremendous. But everything held firm; and at length, when the mark recited four thousand eight hundred and thirteen fathoms, or 23,878 feet, practically the height of Mount Everest, bottom was touched. It was an added triumph for American geographical science.—Leslie's Monthly.

A Crying Shame.

Mrs. Mary E. Meserve, of Salisbury, Mass., was cured of Anemia, a disease in which there is an actual deficiency of the blood, by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

She says: "The first symptom was an unusual paleness. Later the blood seemed to have all left my body. I had shortness of breath and fluttering of the heart; was depressed, morose and peevish. I suffered for two years. Physicians did me little good but I am now a well woman because I took twelve boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

These pills really cured my blood and have cured obstinate cases of rheumatism, scrofula and erysipelas. They are especially useful to growing girls.

Mrs. Fairbanks tells how neglect of warning symptoms will soon prostrate a woman. She thinks woman's safeguard is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ignorance and neglect are the cause of untold female suffering, not only with the laws of health but with the chance of a cure. I did not heed the warnings of headaches, organic pains, and general weariness, until I was well nigh prostrated. I knew I had to do something. Happily I did the right thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound faithfully, according to directions, and was rewarded in a few weeks to find that my aches and pains disappeared, and I again felt the glow of health through my body. Since I have been well I have been more careful. I have also advised a number of my sick friends to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they have never had reason to be sorry. Yours very truly, Mrs. MARY FAIRBANKS, 216 South 7th St., Minneapolis, Minn." (Mrs. Fairbanks is one of the most successful and highest salaried travelling saleswomen in the West.)—$2000 for sale. A Bantam to the Rescue.
One day a flock of sparrows were noticed flying excitedly around a house, and on going near I saw that a young sparrow had fallen from a nest under the tiles and was too young to fly back.

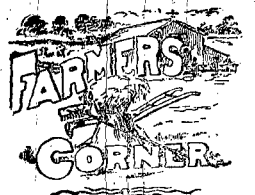

Suddenly a bantam cock stepped forward. He evidently quite understood the state of affairs, for he picked the little mite up very tenderly in his beak, mounted an empty cart that happened to be conveniently near, flew from it on to the tiles and, stretching his neck out over the edge, placed the sparrow in its nest.

In doing so, however, he overbalanced himself and tumbled to the ground. But after pinning his feathers for a minute he strutted about the yard none the worse for his adventure, and evidently very proud of his exploit.

The Royal Color.
Purple has always been considered the royal color. The ill-fated Charles I. was, however, at his own desire, crowned in a robe of white. Although he was seriously convinced that of the two exceptions to this rule, Richard II. and Henry VI. who wore white satin robes at their coronations; both had come to a violent end, one at Pontefract castle and one in the Tower, Charles I. was resolute in his decision, and, when, twenty-three years afterward, almost to a day, his body was conveyed to its grave through a heavy snowstorm, the superstitious could not help remarking that the third "white king" had suffered a violent death.

A Soft Answer.

"I did. I hit him with a chunk of mud."—Chicago Tribune.

Feeding Sheep in Troughs.
The design of a sheep trough, illustrated herewith, is one which has been found entirely satisfactory, all things considered; it is but little trouble to make it, but its superiority over the average trough is so great that the labor spent in its construction will be well spent. As shown the trough is 12 feet long, 10 inches wide, 22 inches high tapered as shown. With the exception of the slats which are 3/4-inch thick and 2 1/2 inches wide the trough is made of 1-inch lumber. The sides, which are nailed on the edge of the bottom are 6 inches wide. The end pieces or legs are 3 inches wide and extend 6 inches below the bottom of the trough as shown.

These legs, are, of course, fastened securely to the trough after the latter is built and are independent of the trough itself. The rack is built by nailing the slats one foot apart on pieces 3 inches wide and 12 feet long and are then hinged to the side of the trough so that they rest on the edges of the trough when closed. Two hinges on each side (strap hinges of course) will be sufficient. At about the middle of the racks a bent hasp is fastened so that when the racks are in place they may be held so by turning the hasp over to the other side over a staple and holding it in place with a bit of wood. In this arrangement either rack may be let down and the trough thus filled from either side.

FEED TROUGH FOR SHEEP.

About the Back Yard.
This item will be found quite as useful to the farmer as the man in town with the typical town back yard, for the former is quite as often given to using the space back of the house (his back yard) for the accumulation of ashes and rubbish as is the town man, who, perhaps, has no other place for his refuse. In planning for an attractive space at the rear of the home, first see that there is a liberal expanse of level sward kept cut close during the summer. If this lawn runs back to a row of trees, one has a natural and most attractive background, so don't spoil it by placing a row of chicken coops between. Let these useful little houses be kept near the out-buildings like the barn and the sheds, where they belong.

A little to one side, in this space of green, cut a circular bed, make the soil rich and set it to flowering or foliage plants of some kind. Have nothing else in this space unless it is of considerable size, when it may be broken a little by massing some shrubs to one side. Get some vines about the back porch and some handy benches under the inclosure so a portion of the work of the women of the household may be done out of doors and in the shade. Do these things and others will occur to you, and, moreover, you'll have a back yard to be proud of.

Keep Chickens Growing.
Whether the chickens are being raised for the market or for winter layers, it is essential that they make the best possible growth from birth to going into winter quarters or to the market. The range, to a large extent, solves the question of food and of healthy growth, but it is necessary that the chicks have some food other than that picked up on the range, or they will wear themselves out trying to get enough to eat.

Then, if they roost under cover at night, and they should by all means do this, there is the question of lice which must be given proper consideration, for a few lice will cause the chick to lose more weight in a month than can be made good by two months of feeding. Everything possible must be done to keep the chicks growing during the summer; keep them making a strong, steady gain, and then they will be profitable, and not otherwise.

Feeding Value of Alfalfa.
It is within a few years that special attention has been paid to alfalfa and farmers have been slow in testing its benefits. The undisputed statement that a ton of alfalfa properly cured has nearly the same feeding value as a ton of wheat bran will convince farmers that the crop is worth their attention. Unlike clover it is not difficult to get a catch of alfalfa and it does not readily winter-kill. One cannot put to better use a portion of the leisure days than in finding out all possible about alfalfa and its culture.

Better Dairymen Needed.
A writer says: "When I see a cow with a good, sharp back, a deep body, a clean head, and prominent bright eyes, two large milk wells and a double extension milk vein, and those about the size of a finger, I say at once: What a pity that this cow did not have an owner as well bred as she, in order that her bodily functions might have been developed and her full powers given play. Her capacity is from 8,000 to 10,000 pounds of milk yearly; her production does not exceed half this amount."

Corn Long Grown in the West.
Corn, which is one of the staple products of Kansas, has been grown on the soil of that State for hundreds of years. Perhaps the first mention of Kansas corn is found in the chronicles of the famous Coronado expedition of 1541. How long it was cultivated, therefore, that time is not definitely known.

Poultry Hints.
Young geese are not good breeders. Goose eggs do not hatch well when slipped quite a distance.
As an egg-producing grain oats has not as equal among cereals.
Best results are not obtained by permitting poultry to roost in trees.
Pure refined charcoal is one of the best disinfectants for the poultry yards.
Young ducks should be kept away from swimming water until they are well feathered.
Ducks may be advantageously raised on many farms where they have never yet been tried.
A goose yields about $1 a year in feathers, the market price being about 40 to 50 cents a pound.
Soft-shelled eggs are seldom found where hens are supplied with cracked bone or small bits of oyster shells.

Poultry is raised on 88 per cent of the farms in the United States. It would be interesting to know what per cent use high grade fowls.
Chicks raised in late spring and midsummer can be made to lay by February if they are given some meat in their daily ration.
Cleanliness is the keynote of healthy fowling. It will breed sickness so quickly as to ruin a flock, and it is very easy to have the henhouse become filthy.

nces of America from a very primitive period, and Kansas has been occupied by man from an extremely remote time as the famous Lausht skeleton well attests. DeWitt found the Kansas Indians, from whom the State derived its name, raising corn and other vegetables at their villages on the Missouri River nearly two centuries ago.

Prof. Thomas Say, the naturalist, of Major Long's expedition, visited this same tribe in their village near the present site of Manhattan in 1819. Col. Zebulon M. Pike, in the journal of his expeditions in 1806, refers to the Pawnee Indians, who were raising a sufficient quantity of corn and pumpkins. Their pumpkins were cut into thin slices and dried by the sun.

Skim Milk for Pigs.
Relative to an inquiry concerning skim milk and pigs, will say that when two weeks old the young pig will begin to take skim milk from a separate trough. Of course, only a little will be consumed at that time, but it should be supplied two or three times daily at first, and twice daily later. At first skim milk alone may be given, but later cornmeal, barley meal or middlings should be added. Allow the young pig to eat practically all it will of the combination. Often it is best to have the trough from which the pigs feed in a special inclosure where the pigs will gradually wear themselves when about ten weeks old, or at least there will be no trouble in finally separating them from the dam.

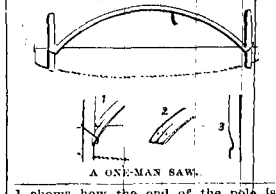

Carefully conducted experiments at this station have shown that to get the largest returns from both milk and meat, not over three pounds of skim milk should be given for each pound of cornmeal or other grain. Where one has large quantities of milk he may feed as much as from six to nine pounds of milk with each pound of grain, but in that case the returns are so economical as where the milk does not run over three pounds for each pound of grain.

There is no better single feed for pigs than skim milk. Often where large numbers of pigs are handled there are runts or pigs of condition, undersized, etc. Always separate these from the main lot and feed them separately, giving special care. One will be surprised to see how the unlikely specimens will improve with a little care and extra allowance of milk and grain.—Prof. W. A. Henry, in Hoard's Dairyman.

One-Man Cross-Cut Saw.
When one man operates the cross-cut saw the blade is apt to wobble more or less, making it difficult for one man to get good work from the tool. An excellent way to straighten the blade is to take a hickory pole about a foot longer than the saw, slaying down the end rather flat so that it will be about one-half inch thick. Saw a slit in this end of the pole, slip it over the saw blade close to the handle and wire it to the handle after making two holes, one on either side of the slit in the pole. The other end may be treated in the same manner or a notch may be cut in the handle of the saw and the shaved end of the pole go up against this notch and be wired to the handle.

If the pole is a good one this device will materially stiffen the saw blade so that one man can operate the saw with good results. The illustration shows the details as follows: Figure 1 shows how the end of the pole is split and slipped over saw blade and wired; figure 2 shows split end of poles ready for wire and figure 3 shows one of the handles of the saw with a slight notch cut in it to receive the end of the pole.—Indianapolis News.

School for Training Farmers.
American farmers are the most intelligent tillers of soil in the world. An example of this is shown in the improved agricultural machinery of this country as compared with that of other countries. A large part of this machinery is due to the inventions of the farmers themselves. In selling farm machinery in foreign countries, the greatest drawback to the development of the trade is the ignorance of the farmer classes. One American firm's trade has been so hindered that it has decided to start a school of training for farmers' sons at Orpus, Russia, where the principles of mechanics as applied to farm machinery will be taught.

Happy Women.
Mrs. Pare, wife of C. B. Pare, a prominent resident of Glasgow, Ky., says: "I was suffering from a complication of kidney troubles. Besides a bad back I had a great deal of trouble with the secretions, which were exceedingly variable, sometimes excessive and at other times scanty. The color was high, and passages were accompanied with a scalding sensation. Doan's Kidney Pills soon regulated the kidney secretions, making their color normal and banishing the inflammation which caused the scalding sensation. I can rest well, my back is strong and sound and I feel much better in every way."

Battle of Santiago, Where Admiral Schley Made History.
ONE of the greatest naval battles in the world was the Battle of Santiago. Never since the dispersion of the Spanish Armada has there been a more important naval battle. Admiral Schley, in the command of the United States fleet, defeated the Spanish fleet led by the ill-fated Viscaya. His words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he has said them. Like the Battle of Santiago, the thought was sprung upon him without any warning, and he disposed of it with the same vim and decision as he did with the Spanish fleet led by the ill-fated Viscaya. His words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he has said them. Like the news of his victory over Cortez, his words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he has said them. ADAM'S OPINION OF PE-RU-NA.
A man must think quickly in these days. There is no time for slow action. New enterprises arise in an hour. Old ones pass away in a moment. A multitude of great things clamor for notice. A man must take sides for or against by intuition, rather than logical deduction. One day this fighting admiral, Schley, happened to be in a company of men who were talking on various topics of popular interest. The subject of Peruna was introduced.

Her Big Feet.
A respectable old gentleman, somewhat tight, on entering an omnibus, got his feet entangled in a lady's dress and fell headlong. He struggled to his feet, and looking round indignantly demanded who struck him. A gentleman present remarked sotto voce: "You fell over that lady's feet; nobody struck you."
The indignant citizen turned round and surveyed the cause of the accident a moment, and then, as if by no means satisfied with the cause of his mishap, said: "Madame, you have got the biggest feet I ever saw."
"Sir!" responded the lady, flushing with anger.
"Pray, don't apologize; if I ain't your fault, but take my advice, sit sideways in the future, and give them the full range of the bus."

Fish Wears Gold Ring.
There is at least one fish in the north branch of the Susquehanna River that is worth catching. It is a black bass which wears a gold ring in its mouth.
Recently W. B. Rhodes, of Danville, and his two daughters, were fishing in the river above that place, and his little daughter, Dorothy, caught a good-sized bass. The child pined for its life so eloquently that her father would not kill it. The fish was placed in a tank of fresh water to keep it alive, and after Mr. Rhodes had a gold ring made which he had fastened to the mouth of the bass, somewhat after the fashion in which a ring is fastened to the nose of a pig, he threw it back into the river. Mr. Rhodes hopes that whoever may catch the fish will report the matter and throw it back into the stream.

A Good Match.
Old Lady—"Then you are not married?"
Modern Miss—"No, indeed. I am one of the bachelor girls you hear about so much nowadays—have a profession, some of my own, and dine at the club, you know."

Work for the Lawyers.
There are 2,400,000 civil suits brought in this country every year. If the plaintiffs were different in every case, one in eight of the voting population could be said to be a litigant. As it is, the actual number of different litigants is not in excess of 800,000; 400,000 plaintiffs and 400,000 defendants—which is 1 per cent of the total population of the country, now about 80,000,000.
The number of lawsuits brought in a year in France is 800,000.
In Italy—Italians are much inclined to litigation—it is 1,400,000, and in Germany it is 3,000,000, a very much larger number, both actually and relatively, than the number in the United States.
Civil actions of all kinds begin last year in Great Britain and Ireland numbered about 1,500,000, or one for nearly every tenth male or female adult in the United Kingdom. In 1902 there was an increase of nearly 82,000 over the previous year, and 472,041 actions were heard out of 1,410,484 that were begun.
Of the number of appeal cases heard, one in every three was successful, against one in four or five, years ago. The total cost of British litigation in 1903 was placed at $7,809,875.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- For President, THEODORE ROOSEVELT. For Vice President, CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS. For U. S. Senator, ELMER J. BURKETT. For Governor, JOHN H. MICKEY. For Lieutenant Governor, E. G. MCGILTON. For Secretary of State, A. GALUSHA. For Auditor, E. M. SEARLE. For Treasurer, PETER MORTENSEN. For Commissioner Public Lands and Buildings, HENRY M. BATON. For Attorney General, NORRIS BROWN. For Superintendent Public Instruction, J. L. MCBRIEN. For Congress, Third District, JOHN J. MCCARTHY. For State Senator, Eleventh District, DR. J. B. WILLIAMS. For Representative, 17th District, CHAS. MCLEOD. For County Attorney, H. E. SIMAN.

The assessor of Wayne county for 1904 was a democrat and it makes the county 81 per cent heavier state tax than she ought to pay.

It is up to you. The press and orators are about through with their campaign work and it remains for you as a voter to do your whole duty.

The increased assessment under the new revenue law is 51 per cent on farms and farm utensils and on railroads 69 per cent. Does this look like railroad dominance?

If Mr. Berge is elected governor Nebraska will be regarded a fusion state and every employe of the numerous state institutions will be a fusionist. Republicans should see that this does not happen.

It is not the revenue law that democracy wishes to repeal that makes them urge you to vote for their legislative candidates. They desire to elect a United States senator from Nebraska. Will you help them to accomplish their end?

Some of the school districts have levied taxes enough for the year 1904 to run their schools for two years and because of this, fusion candidates for the legislature seek to make voters believe the high tax is entirely due to republican state officials.

If Ed Jones is your choice for county commissioner the way to express it is to get out and vote yourself for him and see that your neighbors do likewise. There is no excuse for the election of a democrat to any office in Wayne county this year.

Vote for Siman for county attorney if you are a republican. No man is old enough to remember the time when a republican was ever elected to an office in a democratic county. Democrats vote their party ticket straight without a wink, blink or scratch.

McKillop's calf story and plea for schooling at Washington will not justify voters in turning down a capable and efficient congressman like McCarthy. The latter has already done much to his credit and can do more. McKillop, out of sympathy with the administration, could do nothing if elected.

Henry Kloppe should examine the records for himself in the future, or else get someone of reliability to do so, before he again signs his name to a statement that is absolutely misleading and untruthful and that brands him as the dupes of men not very careful as to the truth or falsity of what they say. Henry is certainly a pretty easy mark.

Do you know that if you, as a republican, vote on next Tuesday for either or both of the fusion candidates for the legislature you are voting to send a democrat or populist to the United States senate to represent the state of Nebraska. That is the whole aim of the present vigorous fight being made by the fusionists for the election of legislative nominees.

The reform editor, orator or office seeker who tries to make you believe that under the new revenue law your increase of taxation is much greater than that of the railroads of the state is either a knave or an ignoramus. The increase in railroad assessments in the state is 69 per cent and that of all other property is 54 per cent. Give them the figures and observe them wiggle.

Did you ever stop to think how much property that has heretofore escaped assessment and taxation has been brought to light and made to pay its proportion of our taxable burden under the new law? Would you repeal a law that places the burden of taxation equally on all property and go back to the law that burdens the farm and allows the money lender to escape.

Mr. McKillop, the fusion nominee for congressman from this district, has sent out a lot of letters asking each recipient to go to the polls and work all day and get at least one republican to vote for him. Don't allow yourself to be worked to cast a vote for him and a democrat instead of a republican for congressman from the Third district.

This is the last time the HERALD will come to you before election and it desires to urge you to leave your work or business to exercise the right of franchise. As a true American citizen you cannot afford to neglect this duty. You owe it to yourself, your family and your country to go to the polls next Tuesday and cast a vote for good government and prosperity. Don't neglect to perform your duty.

On your ballot you will find right above the presidential electors the following: "A joint resolution relating to revising, amending and changing the constitution of the state of Nebraska." Now it is absolutely necessary that this measure should carry for Nebraska's best interests and if you wish to vote for it don't fail to put a cross in the square to the right of the word "For." If you fail to do this, your vote will be counted as against the measure.

Nebraska can't afford to do anything that will aid in turning either branch of congress over to democracy, and the way to surely prevent anything of the kind occurring is to vote for McCarthy for congress and then vote for Williams for state senator and Chas. McLeod for representative. The two latter named gentlemen, if elected, will vote for a republican United States senator from Nebraska. Elect the opponents of Williams and McLeod and they will vote for a democrat or populist United States senator.

Do you believe that Dr. Williams is dishonest or that he can be induced to lend his influence or vote for anything but your best interest if he should be elected to the state senate? He has lived in our county for almost twenty years and in all that time his life and daily acts has been an open book and no man has ever accused him of an unmanly or dishonest thought or deed. Will you trust him, or one whom you do not know and whose campaign methods do not point to a man who is as true worthy as your own neighbor. Wayne county ought to give Dr. Williams a majority of 500 votes and we candidly believe it will.

Instead of farmers and tradesmen being the persons who are hard hit by the new revenue law, it is another class entirely and that is money loaners and people who have been successful in covering up property under the working of the old law and who have heretofore escaped their share of taxes and thus cast a heavier burden on property that was easily accessible to the assessor. Under the new law the loans of the man doing a chattel loan business are brought to light and are listed just the same as all other property. The appeal being made by the fusion press and orators is the worst kind of demagoguery and ought to meet with the rebuke at the press so justly deserved.

Talking of railroad assessments under fusion and under republican administrations as a basis for what can be expected in the future taking the past as a criterion, we find as follows: 1895 $25,499,513.08 1896 25,476,868.57 1897 25,619,101.82 1898 26,175,287.80 1899 26,106,450.10 1900 26,442,294.91 1901 26,557,081.81 1902 26,774,975.37 1903 27,284,946.00 1904 46,287,764.00 The years from 1895 to 1901 were the years of fusion control and from 1901 to the present the republicans have controlled. How do you like the record.

FEW POPULISTS NOW.

Populism is a barometer of the times. When there are few populists, as at present, plenty and prosperity prevail. When populists multiply, as during the memorable democratic reign of '96, the country is suffering from commercial stagnation and money stringency. Drouth and short crops aggravated conditions at that time and shared responsibility with the democrats for the excess of populists. During those melancholy times, there were so numerous that the democrats had to do some smooth signing to work up a coalition with them. Since then, with the restoration of republicanism and the return of prosperity, they have greatly diminished, and most of those who were in line as pope during the gloomy days of '96, will now vote the republican ticket from top to bottom.

The voters of Wayne county are being misinformed by the opposition to Mr. Siman for the county attorneyship. The charge is being made that the county has been put to extra expense in employing counsel to assist Mr. Siman in the prosecution of county business and the trial of state cases. This charge is entirely groundless, as not a dollar has been paid by the county in any case begun since Mr. Siman has filled the office. The only case in which any outside help has been employed is that of Soboc vs Wayne county, a case started at least a year before Mr. Siman became an incumbent of the county attorney's office. This case was begun during the administration of A. A. Welch and has been continued in his charge. It seems that it is utterly impossible for our opponents to be just and fair in any political contest.

Dakota County Herald: Fred S. Berry, citizens and republican candidate for county attorney, then made a happy little speech at the republican meeting at the country house. He said he had been brought up a democrat, his father and grandfather were democrats, that he had written in an apologetic way to his father, that he would have to leave him—his father—politically and vote for Roosevelt. His father wrote back: "Good boy, you are doing right. If I was any such an old democratic fool, I would vote for Roosevelt myself." The gentleman referred to in the above is a former Wayne county boy having lived at Carroll for some time. He is a brother of our townsman, Frank A. Berry, and like him a candidate for county attorney, but unlike Frs k, Fred has seen the error of his way and has got into the ranks of the party that stands for progress and genuine Americanism.

The democratic State Committee in 1903 planned to elect democratic or fusion assessors in as many counties as possible and they made extraordinary efforts to carry republican counties and in many instances they succeeded and among the rest was our county of Wayne. The reason for this was that they would thus be enabled to make the assessment under the new revenue law and make it in a way that would make the law as obnoxious as possible. In this county the program was carried out to a dot and the assessment was made by Jake Ziegler and his deputies. While the state got an increase of 51 per cent, this county got an 83 per cent increase and while the state as a whole pays on a 51 per cent increase we are paying on an 83 per cent increase. In other words we are paying 30 per cent more state tax for 1904 than for 1903 caused by an increased assessment of 81 per cent over the state as a whole. Had our increase been in proportion to the rest of the state we would be paying less state tax in 1904 than in 1903. Are you going to endorse this fusion scheme to make a revenue law obnoxious that if properly administered will distribute the burden of taxation equitably.

Speaking of the new revenue law and its critics we are reminded that the governor of the state had no voice in its construction or passage, that while he, as did several of his predecessors, among them being Governors Holcomb and Poynter, call the attention of the legislature to the crying need of some legislation that would enable the state to raise a revenue equivalent to its necessary expenditures, it was the legislature that passed the measure. That legislature was composed of men chosen by the votes of a majority of the people of the state and were men who were presumed to represent their various constituencies and as such were supposed to know the desires of the people they represented. Wayne county was represented by F. M. Gregg a man in every way above reproach and one whom the county would gladly have renamed as his own successor if he would have given his consent. Mr. Gregg voted for the law and did it conscientiously, believing he was doing his duty to his district and the state and we believe the majority of that legislative body was honest and that while the law as drafted and passed may have defects that need remedying yet it is far from the vicious measure that the outs are trying to make it appear. The increase of state taxes was an absolute necessity in order that the piling up of deficiencies should cease and so far as the increase of other taxes is concerned the fault is not with the law or with state officials, but is a matter wholly chargeable to county and municipal authorities, who either through ignorance or design have insisted on l-views that are unnecessarily high, and to them as municipal and county officials should these shortcomings be charged and not to state officials. In Wayne county one of the commissioners who is chargeable with an excessive levy, if one has been made, is again asking for an election and asks it as an endorsement of his past acts, and he is a reformer, one of the fellows who are crying so loudly against the law. Charge up your excessive taxes to the wrongful acts of your county and municipal boards, they are the parties responsible for the great increase in taxes wherever it has occurred. A higher assessed valuation should not and does not increase taxes. It is the making of excessive levies that increases taxes. Your county and municipal boards are the sole parties onarguable with the higher taxes and they are the parties to hold to a strict account for the manner in which they burden you unnecessarily.

Observe His Style

He is a representative in appearance of hundreds who have sought us in selecting their Fall Suits, Overcoats and Furnishings. Every line, curve and detail of his suit is correct as you'll admit. It is what is known as a ready-to-wear suit. Formerly this man had his suits made to order and paid three times as much for the style, the pattern, the effect, as he paid here for this very fashionable suit. Could anything be neater or nobbier? And, combining all these elements of fashion which this suit presents with a low price, the question naturally arises:

The new German Lutheran church was formally opened and dedicated last Sunday. The building erected at a cost of over $4000 with a seating capacity exceeding 300 is one of the most delightful and beautiful of its kind, and would do credit to a town of much larger size. Some idea of the crowd that gathered from far and near to join the dedication may be formed from the fact that there were 200 teams in town and dinner was served in the old building to over 800 people. The ministers attending and assisting Rev. Gruber in the services were, his father, R. V. Gruber of Milford, Rev. Brauer of Hader, Rev. Witt of Norfolk, R. V. Ceremba Seigler of Stanton, Rev. COLLEGE NOTES.

Mr. Folken of Colefax county enrolled Monday.

Mrs. Davidson of Randolph visited her daughter Jamie over Sunday.

The first winter term begins one week from next Tuesday, November 14. The college girls indulged in an enthusiastic game of basket ball last Saturday.

Edgar Taylor of Hoskins was a college caller Saturday. He expects to be in school later on.

Prof. Pile lectured at McLean Friday evening. A. B. Rightmire is principal of the schools there.

Mr. Thompson came over from Allen Saturday and placed his daughter in school. She will remain throughout the year.

Miss Tucker, the prize winning eighth grade student, of near Carroll, enjoyed a visit from her father and mother Saturday.

Dr. Mullen, the Bloomfield dentist, called at the college recently between trains. The doctor is an old student of the N. N. C.

Prof. Wolfe goes to Bonesteel, South Dakota, Saturday to deliver an address before the Gregory county Sunday school association.

Miss Mabel Sears is reported to be meeting with splendid success in the Lyons schools. She was one of the ablest members of the teachers' class last year.

Miss Joyce Frye who has been teaching near Wayne will spend the coming vacation attending the Normal. Her home is near Spearfish, South Dakota.

Material improvements still continue at the college. The painting of the dormitories is progressing nicely and workmen are engaged in building a stable for the dun pony and the college king.

Rev. Lloyd Cunningham, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Cando, North Dakota, who has been visiting friends and relatives in and near Wayne, spent Monday at the college. Mr. Cunningham is one of the strong members of the N. N. C. alumni and a son whom the institution is proud to own.

Foot ball has broken out among the college boys and the infection has spread to quite a few. Although one of the boys, Mr. Wisdom of Spring Valley, had the fibular bone of the left leg broken, last Saturday, the chances are that disease will have to run its full course, unless in the meantime some more serious casualty occurs.

On Saturday evening Prof. and Mrs. Pile entertained the members of the Acme club and their husbands with a few other guests in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Crook of Ohio, who have been guests in the Pile home for a few weeks. At the appointed hour the company of over forty sat down to a dainty but bounteous repast, interrupted by the intrusion of a body of students who had anticipated hallowe'en by a night or two, and who in ghostly regalia marched through the house pausing long enough to present Prof. Pile with a fine Morris chair as a birthday present. After a supper the company made an inspection of the fine new home with its well planned distribution and connection of rooms, and its elegant woodwork in oak and all the conveniences of modern house construction. The pleasant social mingling of the company was followed by bipersal in which the acknowledgment of a pleasant time was not, we venture to say, purely conventional. Mr. and Mrs. Crook, who were the guests of honor, came to Wayne as a side trip on a tour of the west, expecting to remain for a few days only, but so warm has been their reception and so delighted have they been with the country, the town and its people that last days have lengthened into weeks. They have spent a part of this week in company with Mrs. Pile visiting Bloomfield, Friends and the Santee Indian agency, and expect to leave on Friday for a stay of some time in Denver, after which they will go to spend the remainder of the winter in southern California.

WHY HAVE UNION MEETINGS?

For two weeks Rev. Lyon has held union meetings in Wayne. It may seem strange to some that the churches of Wayne find it necessary to unite and employ an expert to hold revival meetings. Wayne ministers are good christian gentlemen and we think they are above the average in education and ability to preach the gospel. In this enlightened age it is found necessary to train men for special work in order to get the best results. We also find it necessary to unite, to combine, or, if you please, form a trust to succeed in business. Why not combine to lick the devil? Don't forget that you must have an expert at the head of any combination you undertake. Right here is where we come in. We are experts and have been trained especially for the clothing business. We have had nearly thirty years' experience as the head of a combined clothing store. Everyone here is united to make this store a great success. We have the largest crowd and the most goods, and like salvation, it is free—to look at. Come and look and we will do you good. Our prices are always pleasing and we offer the best clothing made for men and boys. When we are through with you you will look so well that you will be glad to attend the union meetings. We will do you no harm and Staley underwear will keep you warm. Rev. Lyon can't convert a man that is cold. We will have no trouble to convert you to buy clothing of us if you will give us a chance. You are invited to this store and you are invited to the union meetings. Attend both and you will be happy, and so will we.

Health and Education Govern the World

The Weak, Sickly and Emaciated Can Hope for But Little Success.

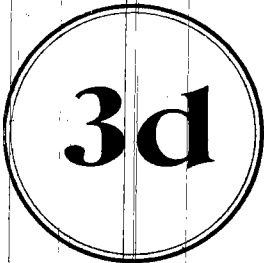

BY DR. O. M. CALDWELL

In compiling the statistics of the different races of people of the world, it is of interest to note the article of diet, the manner in which it is taken and the extent of medical attendance as practiced in the civilized world. It has been demonstrated conclusively that the meat-eaters are the strongest, healthiest and the best educated people in the world; therefore it is reasonable to believe that they are the people who govern the world. As demonstrated by Dr. Caldwell, the American people consume an average of six pounds of meat per week, the English, four; the German, three; the French, two, and the Italian, one-half. Statistics prove that the prevalence of contagious diseases more largely prevail among those people whose diet partakes of less meat and more farinaceous foods. Good meat is the most wholesome of all foods to be taken. True, it is not as fattening as the cereals or farinaceous foods, but it is more strengthening and contains more blood and nerve producing elements, so necessary to strength and good health. What is required especially for perfect health is good digestion, plenty of oxygen, exercise, and special care as to hygiene and all the laws of nature. Dr. Caldwell, a specialist of many years' experience, has devoted much of her time to the study of diseases of the stomach, diseases of the brain and diseases of the nervous system. From conclusive proof it has been demonstrated that a little food properly served and well digested is far better than a great quantity of an unwholesome character improperly digested. Dr. Caldwell has been afforded special advantages in studying the characteristics of the people, their diet, their hobbies and the special conditions governing medicine as a specialty. She has been awarded, in contests with the greatest schools of the world, the highest prize and a number of medals. She has been making a specialty of chronic, nervous and surgical diseases, diseases of the eye, ear, nose, throat, lungs, diseases of women, diseases of long standing character. No matter how long such patients have suffered or how has treated them, she never failed to cure these ailments. In a quarter of a century in the experimental study of a country in the profession in the diseases of men and women, she has cured thousands who have been pronounced helpless by other physicians. People come to her from far and near to receive her treatment and her offices are crowded at all places of her appointments and she speaks in the highest praise of her treatment. By permission we are pleased to publish some of the cures she made throughout the state of Nebraska. These are only a few, as time and space will not permit us to publish more. Mrs. Sloan, Akron, Neb., cured of consumption and nervous trouble. "The treatment she took improved her in one, and she was soon cured of all her ailments." O. A. Lundson, Grand Island, Neb., was troubled with muscular rheumatism and dyspepsia. These troubles soon disappeared. Mrs. R. McBeth, Harder, Neb., cured of female and nervous troubles, was told by doctors operation would be necessary. Cured in four months' treatment. Mrs. J. Dobbins of North Platte, Neb., writes "she had been doctored for years without relief for kidney trouble, female and general debility." Mr. Michael McCabe of North Platte, cured of cancer of the face with two injections. Oscar Emmitt, Columbus, Neb., cured of what other doctors called incurable blood disease. Mrs. J. Johnson, Grand Island, Neb., cured of chronic eye trouble and cataract. Mrs. John Connelly, Akron, Neb., cured of cancer. Mrs. E. Zurig, Bluevale, Neb., cured of female trouble, diabetes and stomach trouble. Mrs. S. E. Fuller, York, Neb., cured of stomach and bowel trouble and kidney trouble. Lonie Herper, Columbus, Neb., cured of Bright's disease, heart trouble, and nervousness. Mrs. S. Jurgensen, Cozad, Neb., had endured many years from nervous disease, loss of vitality and general weakness. She now feels healthy and like a new woman. Mrs. J. H. Sommer, Craig, Neb., cured of female trouble, general weakness and loss of flesh. Cured in three months. Mrs. Summers had doctored with many doctors. W. H. Larson, 65 Nebraska St., Newark, N. J., says: "Dr. Caldwell: After suffering for 30 years I have found no treatment equal to yours. I write you these few lines to speak of the excellency of your treatment and I think it due you." Mrs. Mary Collins, Wayne, Neb., cured of chronic rheumatism, swollen limbs, heart trouble, headache and general debility. Had almost given up hope, when she heard of Dr. Caldwell, her treatment soon cured her and she is now thankful. Mr. Charles Shum, Pender, cured of rheumatism, almost had consumption. Mrs. Nelsa Ward, Wayne, Neb., cured of gall stones of liver. Joe Carlson, Ft. Wayne, Ind., cured of large cancer of breast. S. J. Blesson, Platte Center, Neb., cured of stomach trouble of long standing, nervous debility; was treated by many doctors. Nebraska's most popular specialist, Dr. O. Caldwell, registered graduate of the Kentucky School of Medicine, will make her next visit to Wayne, Wednesday, Nov. 28.

Three persons were killed and twenty-three injured in a rear-end collision between section No. 2 and section No. 1 of train No. 3, Missouri Pacific World's Fair special, at Tipton, Mo., early Sunday.

Train No. 3, on account of the heavy World's Fair travel, was made up in two sections, the first leaving St. Louis for Kansas City Saturday night at 10:10 p. m. The second section left a few minutes later and when it reached Tipton section No. 1 was taking on passengers.

The engine of the second section struck the Pullman car 'Topaz' squarely, splitting it for two-thirds of its length, and all of the fourteen passengers in the car were either killed or injured.

A Sedalia, Mo., special says: The engineer of this county held an inquest here Thursday on the cause of the wreck on the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Tipton, Mo., in which three persons were killed and twenty-three injured early Sunday and the following verdict was rendered:

The collision was caused by neglect of engineer of first No. 3 in not properly signaling second No. 3, and also by engineer of second No. 3 for coming into station in a careless manner, in not having his engine under control.

AWFUL MINE DISASTER.

Terrific Explosion Occurs at Terio, in Southern Colorado.

A terrific explosion occurred at mine No. 3 of the Rocky Mountain Fuel and Iron Company, at Terio, forty miles due west of Trinidad, Colo., at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, and the number of dead is variously placed between thirty and sixty men.

The number reported as having gone into the mine in the morning was seventy men and four company men. Friday afternoon many more miners are known to have gone into the mine, and the exact number of dead may never be known, as the mine is burning and in all likelihood the bodies will be cremated.

A large number of mine officials left Trinidad as soon as word of the accident was received. Company doctors were picked up all along the line, as well as all other available physicians.

United States Government Stock Inspector E. J. Foreman was at Terio when the explosion occurred. He gives the following account of the affair:

"I was standing not more than 300 yards from the mouth of the tunnel when the explosion occurred. The explosion was preceded by a low, rumbling sound resembling an earthquake, which made the earth tremble and started the whole ramp.

"I looked toward the mine, and out of the mouth of the tunnel and the two air shafts came a great volume of smoke and dust, which continued for nearly a minute. Out of the two air shafts, each of which is seven feet in diameter, there were two jets of fire from two to three feet in diameter were shot into the air and broken to splinters. Rocks were thrown over the camp for a distance of a quarter of a mile. In fact, it rained rock, broken timbers and all kinds of debris for fully a minute, and many people were injured by being struck with these missiles. Immediately after the explosion, which was for all the world like a volcanic eruption, there was the wildest excitement.

"Women and children rushed to the mouth of the tunnel, and women whose husbands were in the mines had to be brought away by miners to keep them from being killed by the deadly fumes coming from the mouth of the tunnel.

"The works employ eighty men, and it is believed that sixty men were in the mine at the time.

It will be impossible to secure names of the dead and injured. Nearly all the miners employed are Slavs. The mine was opened only a year ago and extended 2,000 feet into the hill.

The explosion is supposed to have been caused by dust.

But one body has been recovered.

DO NOT BELIEVE IT.

British Public Scouts Rejection of Russian's Story.

According to London advices, Admiral Rojstevsky's explanation of the attack of his squadron on British travelers, while it is received with incredulity by the people and press of Great Britain, has probably turned the current of diplomatic negotiations into a new channel.

The British foreign office is in consequence obliged to accord an investigation into circumstances narrated by the Russian admiral, reinforced, as it is, by the testimony of subordinate officers of the squadron and by the report that vessels were known to have been chartered in Hull and in Sweden by the Japanese for the purpose of attacking the Baltic seafarers during its passage of the North Sea and the English channel.

There are no one side stories of Russian ships bring upon vessels of several neutral nations, and on the other incidents tending to establish Admiral Rojstevsky's report that there were armed hostile vessels in the vicinity of at least of the Hull fishing fleet. Pending developments in diplomatic exchanges, the British admiralty is showing the utmost activity in bringing fleets within the course of the Russian squadron. The Russian ships at Vigo, Spain, it is promised, will depart as soon as necessary repairs are completed.

France and Germany may be regarded as throwing the weight of their influence in the scale for a peaceful conclusion of the controversy.

While up to the present the government has maintained an attitude of almost complete silence with regard to the progress of the affair, it is regarded as almost certain that Premier Balfour will, after a conference with the entire cabinet, be in a position to make some definite announcement. Public sentiment, which hitherto has been kept under remarkable control, will hardly stand the passage of another day unless some satisfactory explanation is made.

SPECIAL TRAIN WRECKED.

James Speyer, New York Banker, Has a Narrow Escape. Word has just reached Laredo, Tex., that the special which just left over the Mexican National Railroad, bearing Jas. A special train later reached Laredo, bearing the members of the party who started out with Mr. Speyer early in the evening.

Mr. Speyer is uninjured. One of the party, J. Davis, of New York, received painful cuts about the face, but otherwise is uninjured.

The wreck, it is stated, was the result of the condition of the roadbed and the speed—seventy-five miles an hour—the train was going at the time, it having been the intention of the railroad officials to endeavor to establish a new record between Laredo and Mexico City.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

Winnago Is the Worst—Conditions at Indian Agency Shock Inspector—Immorality Runs Riot There—Worse Than Other Reservations.

A Homer special says: "Ten times worse than any other reservation in the United States," is what A. O. Wright, government Indian inspector, said about conditions at the Winnago reservation, after spending the day listening to testimony regarding the moral conditions there.

"I never heard anything like it," said Mr. Wright. "I could tell you things that would raise your hair, but I don't suppose you would want to print them. I am convinced there is no other Indian reservation in the United States where the conditions would compare favorably with those I have found at Winnago. A system of organized free love seems to have prevailed over there, and not very well organized at that."

"Because of the character of the testimony Mr. Wright said he would not make public the names of the white witnesses.

"Four different cases of rape on young Indian girls were reported by one witness to the inspector. He testified that he had seen a great number of boys on the Indian girls in the open highway." Dr. E. S. Hart, physician at the agency, testified as to the deplorable condition of the Winnagoes as to venereal diseases. He said he had had experience among three tribes, the Sioux, the Cheyenne and the Kiowa. The Sioux were the cleanest of the three, the Winnagoes by far the worst. Mr. Wright said the evidence had disclosed that about one-half the Indians were afflicted.

"The Indians of this reservation have had almost no contact with the outside world, and the conditions are nothing short of frightful. Few couples take the trouble to go through the marriage ceremony, and the men and women change about from one to another as it suits them. I have seen several of the reservation men who have had many women. I would not brand all the men and women on the reservation as such. I am speaking of general conditions."

The evidence which was offered at the investigation Monday only served to make the conditions more determined to recommend radical measures in the case of the Indian on the Winnago reservation.

THE SUPREME COURT

The supreme court finds void a tax sought to be imposed by the city of Omaha on the collection of state and municipal insurance for municipal purposes upon the gross premiums received within the city for the preceding calendar year under section 58 of the new revenue law. The city commissioner of Omaha was made defendant in an action for the purpose of preventing the collection of the tax. The court holds that the levy of taxes explained is void because the assessment was not made pursuant to any ordinance of the city of Omaha, but under the supposed direct authority of section 58 of the revenue law. The court therefore is a violation of sections 6 and 7 of article 9 of the constitution. Other suits, differing only in the kind of insurance involved, were decided in the same way, the judgment of the district court being affirmed.
