A rural telephone line is being built from B ga in Stanton county, to Hopkins in Wayne county.

Banner Morris, J. A. Jones, Alex. Lurie and Jim Shannon were a few of the Carroll people in the city Saturday.

The first snow of the season came last Saturday morning Dec 8, and it was so light as to scarcely be classed as a snow. A very pleasant party of young folks were entertained Friday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Ned Lloyd at their home north west of town.

Charley Hostetter returned to Bette, Mont., Saturday, after a very pleasant visit with his parents and other friends in and about the city.

Ed Stevens and wife leave today for Salinas, California to make their future home. Mr Stevens will enter the employ of our former townsman Wm. Nothing.

Lewis Owen is making the old Everingham place just northwest of the city look very much better, by building new barns, outhouses and a general overhauling of the place.

Apton Lirner and family request us to thank their friends who in proof of their friendship and sympathy through the illness and at the death of the beloved wife and mother.

It is reported that as high as $300 per acre has been offered for single acre tracts adjoining the village of Oakland in Bart county. That is a pretty stiff price for Nebraska real estate.

Next year will see a large number of modern houses built in this city, and with the miles of new cement walks to be constructed will add very materially to the desirability of this as a residence town.

Ben Patrick, the man charged with raising Asher Harber's check from two to fifty dollars, had his preliminary hearing Monday morning in Judge Hunter's court and was held to the district court which convenes again December 19.

The Wayne Gazette suggests that if you are stuck on yourself—think you are popular, a good way to ascertain the truth or falsity of the thought, is to run for office and after it is over, you can come much nearer forming a correct estimate of how you are held in the esteem of your friends.

J. T. Roland, Jim W. Orthen and Ed. Krane were litigants in Judge Hunter's court Saturday. The two first named parties dug a well for Krane and he refused for some reason or other to pay for same and as a result a lawsuit for $42.65 was instituted and the jury gave a verdict for $37.30 and costs against Krane.

E. A. Beckenbender left S. Oax City on Monday for Aberdeen, Washington, to become the stenographer of W. W. Bauer, who is now a successful attorney at the place named. Mr. Bauer is a brother-in-law of Miss Etra and will be remembered by many of our readers as a former principal of our city schools.

Talking of personal taxes of this as compared with former years we find that for 1904 the personal tax is of the county amount to $35,676.26, as against $16,796.26 for 1903 and $15,346.31 for 1902. This is an increase in the personal tax of the county of about 41 per cent for 1904, over 1903 and 55 per cent for 1904 over 1902.

prised at the depot Saturday when he stepped from the Bloomfield train to have his brother, John, from the old home in Canada, whom he had not seen for twenty years, step up, extend his hand and greet him as only a brother can do. John had arrived a few days before and was visiting Jim McIntosh.

The merchants of Wayne are showing splendid stocks of goods in all lines this winter and there is less occasion than ever before for buyers to go elsewhere to make any purchases. You can't beat the selections to be found at home and when it comes to a matter of price they are ready to meet all competitors and better than all else they stand ready to make all guarantees good.

The Herald got its foot into it last week when it attempted to run an "ad" for the Jones book store that savored somewhat of lottery business and it leads us to wonder why "Uncle Sam" in his desire to protect the gullible public against investing their money in things that have an element of chance in them, does not prohibit the publication of the issuance of marriage licenses.

Peterson & Berry have been purchasing oil of the Standard for a good while and one day last week their pump in the xerosome tank refused to work and on examination found it frozen solid. For a good many years according to Ida M. M. Tarbell, the Standard oil company has put in most of its "freezing out" on competition and now it appears they have started in on the dealers and indirectly the consumer.

Advertise your auction sales in the columns of your local newspapers and don't try to save a few cents by neglecting this method of getting what you have to sell before the buying community," is the advice of one of the best auctioneers in the state. We notice by our exchanges that this method is being resorted to in all the surrounding territory and it must pay or men wouldn't follow it.

If you want to make a sale date with E. Cunningham, it would be well to come to the Herald office where the dates can be obtained. Mr. Cunningham is in the country crying sales most of the time at present and will be for several months to come, consequently it will be pretty difficult for you to see him personally and all arrangements can be made at this office just as well as with him.

Mrs. Burle Craig, formerly Miss Rebekah Ellison, of Wayne, was agreeably surprised by a lot of her friends Sunday evening, November 28, the event being the anniversary of her 25th birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Craig were spending a quiet evening when their friends and relatives came in unannounced and took possession and a very pleasant evening was spent. Mrs. Craig was the recipient of a handsome silver fruit set.

We notice by some of our exchanges that merchants of their towns are resorting to a new scheme to draw the attention of the buying public to the towns in which they do business. The merchants make special sale days at which time they put goods at low figures and advertise the fact widely. By this means they attract people from territory not usually contributing its trade to the town and they find it a very profitable venture in the increase of customers who become regular buyers. Wouldn't it be worth trying in the best town in northeast Nebraska?

Extract from a letter of J. E. Bennett of Birmingham, Ala. "Hurrah for Roosevelt. I voted for Parker because he liked me better than white trash better than negroes, but I can assure you the south is happy over the result. We don't like Roosevelt, but we are fraidier of the democratic party, so we vote one way and pray the other." The writer of the above is a former resident of Wayne and during the late unpleasantness contributed some advice to the people of this community through the medium of the Democrat advising them to vote for Parker.

It comes down to us from our forefathers that the "melt" in a hog is a weather prophet of great accuracy. If it is thick the winter will be very cold, but if it is thin the winter will be mild. A hog just butchered in Hartington contained a "melt" as thin as a wafer. We've never known this sign to fail for thirty years. The "melt" is found close to the hog's liver, and looks like the liver.—Hartington Herald Our own A. B. Clark is somewhat of an authority on the "hog's melt" as a winter prognosticator, but we are unable at this writing to give his version of it. Ask him about it.

Sometimes merchants get the impression that advertising is a useless feature, an expense not justified by the returns in dollars and cents. In some cases this view is correct, but in cases of this kind the fault is the way in which the advertising was done or in the treatment the merchant gave the prospective customers the advertisement brought. It is necessary to have the advertisement properly written and properly placed and then when the customers are attracted to the store or place of business to have the goods with which you can do exactly what you promised in the advertisement. There is another feature of this branch of the business that many do not take into account and that is to keep everlastingly at it. We have in mind a merchant in our own city, who so persistently advertised one line of goods as to have that line of goods become a by-word in the community and the merchant himself has been nicknamed by the wags of the community with the brand of goods so advertised, but the result has been to give this merchant a trade on that particular line, never dreamed of by him when he began to push them. We could cite other cases where trades men, who from a very small beginning have built up a fine business by properly advertising and pushing their business in this way while others who thought their reputation in the community was such as to make them invulnerable have fallen behind and with whom business is always dull.

This is a day when men in trade cannot afford to put their candle under a bushel but have to put it in the front window where it must be kept brightly burning and the only way to do it is to keep live ads in live up-to-date newspapers that go into the home and are read by old and young. The day of flashy bills spotted broadcast is passing, as in the merchant that thinks he can do business as did his fathers.

TO SELL CORN OR TO HOLD. Discussing the question as to whether it was better to sell corn at present or to hold it until next summer, Wallace's Farmer says: "Corn husked now and kept until next summer will likely shrink about 20 per cent in weight. Thirty dollars will now buy about 100 bushels of corn. He could not figure on having more than eighty bushels next May. The corn, therefore, would be worth 37 1/2 cents per bushel. Counting the expense of cribbing, interest on the money, storage, and other expenses, we would regard 20 cents now as good as 40 cents next

May. Whether it would sell for that we do not know.

"The corn crop in the country is estimated at from two to two and one-half billion bushels. We think two billion bushels is nearer the correct estimate. It has an unusually large amount of water, and it will not look as big by the first of December as it does now. Sample ears of corn which seemed to be perfectly sound brought into the office last of September and the first week in October have shrunken about 10 per cent in weight and about 10 per cent in length. These, however, are very dry and would increase in weight if left in the open air. Hence we look for a decreased estimate in December on account of the shrinkage in the ears.

"Some of this corn will be exported, but not much. Farmers will be careful after this year's experience in getting short of corn. Hence, the prospect is for a good price next summer. Beyond this statement of what we take to be the facts in the case, we cannot advise."

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, it has pleased the Almighty to take from our midst through death our sister, Mrs. Margaret Lerner, we bow in submission to his divine action, and

Whereas, the family and relatives of the deceased are by this providence sorely afflicted, we tender them our heartfelt sympathy, and

Whereas, the deceased was highly esteemed and respected and her Christian character and devotion to the cause of the church were exemplary and her loyalty to the work of extending the kingdom of God in our midst was inspiring, we will long cherish her memory.

A Chicago man has stirked a crusade for legislation that will prohibit football playing. He is up against a pretty hard proposition, for while the public generally condemns the brutality exhibited in the game, it recognizes that all sports that really prove attractive have in them an element of danger whose elimination would take all the interest from the sport.

A dispatch to Monday's dailies from Norfolk reports that Thomas B. Ayer and his wife, old settlers of Madison county, were killed by a Northwestern freight train near a little bridge west of Meadow Grove last night and their bodies, together with the body of a dead dog, were found. The engine on train No. 64 was covered with blood. Their bodies were horribly cut and mangled, the limbs being off and feet stoves mashed. Each was fifty years old. They leave five children. Both carried insurance. An inquest was held today.

Down in Thurston county a vacancy existed in the office of county judge and the county commissioners appointed a man for the place and the legality of the appointment is to be contested in the courts. In the meantime those who have transacted business with the office during the incumbency of the appointee are wondering where they are at. Especially are the couples who performed the marriage ceremonies for and those who have had estates probated anxious to know their exact status provided the ruling of the courts should be an adverse one.

A boy was required by his teacher to write an essay on "The Month", and this is what he wrote; The month is in front door of the face. It is the opening to cold storage of our anatomy. It is the hot-bed of toothache and the birth-crie of arthritic. The month is the prison aisle to the liver; it is the foundation of patriotism and the tool chest for pie. Without month the politician would be a wanderer on the face of the earth and go down to a dishonored grave. It is the good friend, the dentist's hope. It is the temptation lunch counter when attracted to a pretty girl.—Emerson Orestes.

This week will see the greater part of the corn raised in Stanton county in the crib. There is a lot of corn yet to pick and some large fields are practically untouched, but generally speaking the big end of the work is done. The yield is extra good. Taking the county as a whole the average per acre is 40 bushels. The largest yield is reported from Maple Creek precinct where one field yielded 90 bushels. Other places second with C. Schmidt where the corn off one acre and getting a yield of over 80 bushels. The price of corn (Tuesday) is 30 cents for car and 25 cents for shelled.—Stanton Record.

During a mistake in the Norfolk (Istoria) Saturday there came near a panic. The insulation of one electric light cord was defective and a whole lot of stage fixtures came in contact with the wire and caused a small blaze. Some alarm was given and quick as thought was on and has for the cooling of the show people might be suited seriously. As it was the women and children in the audience were pretty roughly jostled and received a few slight lacerations. The fire was quickly extinguished and the show proceeded as usual.

He left me. Several minutes elapsed, and he did not return. I was becoming uneasy at my absence from my companions. Then I heard the curtain fall. I was just going to leave, when Mr. Montgomery came up to the stage, dressed for the street.

"What's the matter now, Miss? I will bring her home with me and you can do it to-morrow."

vexed and annoyed at this trifling, I ran round to the front of the house. But to re-enter the pit was impossible. The people were crowding out in the dense stream; so I was obliged to stand inside until my companions should appear, or until the passage was sufficiently cleared for me to go back to seek them.

I had not stood there many seconds before I saw Mrs. Wilson forcing her way through the crowd, and looking wildly about her. She caught sight of me in an instant.

"Where is Clara?" she cried, gasping for breath. "I have lost her in the crowd. Some men pushed between us, and I was obliged to stand in that moment I have lost sight of her. Look about you. She must be in the street."

The audience were now dispersing in all directions. Up and down, in and out of the crowd, here, there and everywhere, I eagerly looked for her, but she was nowhere to be seen. Mrs. Wilson stood in a doorway, trembling and wringing her hands, soon collected a small crowd round her.

"Had they seen a young lady, in a black dress, with long golden hair?" she never ceased asking.

At last I was asked that the policeman who had been standing near the door during the latter part of the performance was the most likely person to have seen her.

"Yes. He had seen a young person answering the description. She had been one among the first of the crowd to come down the passage. She looked as if some one had come out of the street a young man touched her upon the arm and said something, and she walked away with him. Then he lost sight of her."

"What was the man like?" I asked.

"Oh, he was a youngish, smooth-faced fellow, with a rap on," she replied.

The very man who had beckoned me out of the pit. It was a plot, then, but by whom originated, and for what purpose?

"Take a cab; go to Bow street police station at once, and I will follow you in a few minutes," I said to Mrs. Wilson.

"Back I rushed to the stage door. Had Mr. Montgomery left the theater? He had followed out at my heels, was the answer.

Suddenly I thought me of the public house frequented by Josiah and Mr. Montgomery. Away I ran thither. No; they had not been there that evening. Then I went down to Bow street, where I found Mrs. Wilson, more dead than alive, giving her deposition.

"I am quite certain that the young lady has not gone off by her own free will—some sweetheating case, perhaps—only for a little walk—met some one she knew, and finding that she had missed you, he has taken her home?" suggested the functionary who was taking the depositions.

"Pray disabuse your mind of such an idea; the young lady in question has no friends except those you see here—knows no others—associates with no others."

The solemn earnestness of my tones seemed to convince him of his error, for from that time he gave us a more serious attention.

"A description shall be sent to the different beats and police stations, and you had better issue bills, and if you care to go to the expense, advertise in the daily papers. If we hear anything, we will let you know. But you can make your mind easy upon one point—at least, I think so. I have had a talk with Clara, and she has gone with her own free will, and has no accounting for the vagaries of girls."

Both myself and Mrs. Wilson felt very angry at the light and skeptical manner in which a subject so momentous to us was treated; but the officer only smiled at our wrath.

Mrs. Wilson expressed her intention of issuing bills early the next morning, offering a reward for her discovery. There was nothing there to be done in that place, for the cab was waiting, and I persuaded her to return home immediately. She implored me to accompany her, but I would not leave my dear old home; I might chance to get some tidings.

Finding that all her entreaties were in vain, the old lady reluctantly departed.

Mr. Jonathan was standing upon the doorstep when the cab drove up. Before she could get down from the box, she had the door open.

"Where is she—where is Clara?" he asked, seeing but one person within.

"Too utterly terrified and bewildered to think of the oddity of such a question, I sat at a distance from him, and he never saw before. Mrs. Wilson could only gasp, "She is gone—run away with."

Ten minutes afterwards, Mr. Jonathan jumped into the cab that had brought her home, and which he ordered to stay. To the Bow street police station as fast as you can drive," he cried.

All that night I wandered about in a frenzied state up and down the streets, drowsy by the river, I know not where. He came out to rain, and I was soiled to the skin. Still, hour after hour, I lingered about the same spot; the dawn broke and merged into broad daylight, and still the tent of the day began, yet still I could not tear myself away, the presence of a trunk from me—my must have thought me an escaped lunatic. At last I felt that nature could hold out no longer; that I must fall down upon the pavement if I walked any longer.

I can remember fraying myself down the stairs, finding my way in my wet clothes upon the bed, and then all is a blank.

With grotesque phantasms—a sense of things, and an awful oppression upon the brain. And then I seemed to awake from a long, troubled sleep, and to arise beyond my power to describe.

I made an effort and succeeded in leaving a little part of the curtains at the side of the bed, and entered the room, which I had a moderate lamp burning low, a jug, a comb and some bottles.

The faint rays of the lamp showed me a large, gloomy oak-paneled room, with a table, a chair, and a window, the window being covered with heavy curtains, and the furniture was dark and very old-fashioned. On one side was a huge fireplace, decorated with oak carvings; in the grate burned a cheerful fire, and there, sitting beside it, leaning with her face half towards me, was an elderly woman, a stranger to me.

"I have finished my supper, I crawled back to my pillow and lay still for a time, feeling very much exhausted with my slight exertion. Presently the woman awoke up, came to the side of the bed, drew the curtains, and looked at me.

"You are better," she said, kindly. "You have had a long sleep, and now you are all right. I will get you some more tea, and you will have a relapse."

If I had asked for the Emperor of Russia, I believe she would have told me that he was coming to see me as soon as I was better. Her answers were by no means satisfactory, but I could not ask questions, and I was obliged to extract others from her.

Several days passed, and I saw no person except the nurse and the doctor. I put some questions to the latter, but he answered evasively, that if I wished to get well, I must keep my mind calm, and not ask questions. "You ought to see some of our fruit. Why, man alive—"

"I was sitting in a large easy chair, with my back towards the door, and I did not see him for a time, although he was standing at my feet. I did not see him until he started at the sight of Judith, as though he had not expected to see her, exclaiming, "You here!"

"Pray, walk in, and allow me to introduce you to my husband," she said, with a smile, and I saw her mother, unexpected pleasure, no doubt!"

Mr. Rodwell advanced into the room, looking somewhat bewildered; but when he saw me, he started up with indignation.

"What is the meaning of this? Who has dared to bring this fellow here?" he cried. "This is too much, Judith. How come you here? How did you know of this place? I cannot understand all this." He spoke in a more modified tone, but still looked very angry.

"It is very easily explained. My husband was seized from his loving wife, was seized with brain fever in some wretched lodging; the parish doctor, who was attending him, said that it would not be safe to remove him any great distance. In this dilemma, Mr. Montgomery, who lived a door or two off, proposed that he should be taken to a house of yours, of which, for certain reasons of your own, you had given him the keys. As my husband's life is very precious to me just now, I thankfully accepted the offer."

"Cense this mockery, Judith, and tell me the meaning of all this."

"Do you wish me to be serious?" she asked, menacingly.

"I wish to know by what right you have brought this fellow into my house?"

"By the right of my own will, John Rodwell; dispute it at your peril."

"If you desire a scene, it had better be of the presence of witnesses," he said, quietly.

"What I have to say shall be said here. I have no secrets from him, and what I have to say I would have him hear."

"I decline the conference," He was moving away.

"Like a panther she bounded past him, and placed her back against the door. "You do not leave this room until you have heard all I have to say! Disobey me, and I will show you no mercy. I will ruthlessly crush every plan and hope of your life!"

"You?" he sneered.

"Yes, I, Susan. I were to send information to Bow street of the whereabouts of a certain young lady, for whose discovery a reward is offered, where would be the fortune you have been scheming and sinning, and favoring by no means satisfactory, but I could not ask questions, and I was obliged to extract others from her.

"What is the meaning of this? Who has dared to bring this fellow here?" he cried. "This is too much, Judith. How come you here? How did you know of this place? I cannot understand all this." He spoke in a more modified tone, but still looked very angry.

only for a moment, though, when on he came, flinging the foam from his gleaming teeth. But Lillian saw her advantage, and, setting her teeth hard, she reached out and grabbed the child by her dress as she dashed by. The shock almost unseated her, but with a grim determination to do or die, on she sped.

She could hear the panting breath of the maddened brute behind her; she could almost feel his hot breath. And then, O heaven! with an ugly growl, he leaped forward and sank his teeth into the tire. Quick as thought, then, she jumped from the wheel, just as a quick shot rang out, and she saw the dog, with one convulsive shudder, drop dead.

The excitement proved too much for her, however, and she sank to the ground with a low moan. When she recovered kind faces were all around, and bending over her, gently bathing her sprained arm was a richly dressed lady, who, in answer to Lillian's faintly murmured "Is the child safe?" burst into tears and in a broken voice tried to thank her for her child's life.

Six months later there was a grand wedding. The bride was Lillian, and the gentleman standing beside her, looking so brave and handsome, was the little child's big uncle, who fairly worships the little heroine who saved his pet's life; and in the little page, looking so well and rosy, we recognize little Bertie. And so, to the chime of wedding bells, we leave them.—Boston Post.

HEROISM WINS REWARD.

A BEAUTIFUL summer day was drawing to its close in the pretty City of B—. The sun, as it slowly sank to rest, cast a rosy glow over the earth, while the clouds floating slowly overhead caught its radiant glory and shone so dazzlingly bright one would think heaven's own gates were open, disclosing a glimpse of its splendors.

Leaving on a gate of a modest cottage, apparently absorbed in the beautiful picture before her, was a fair young girl, with a face too sad and careworn for one so young. Suddenly a look of pain crossed her face, and her sweet lips trembled as the voice of her little brother reached her, saying in plaintive tones: "Mamma, does heaven look like that, and am I to go there soon?"

Folding back the tears which would fill her eyes, she turned to the window where the little orphan lay, and said in gentle voice: "What, Bertie, dear! Would you leave mamma and me all alone?" And the child, seeing the griefed look on his sister's face, smiled sweetly and answered:

"Oh, no, Lili; but it does look so pretty, and papa is there, you know."

And she knew that unless they could procure the necessary medicine for him, he, too, would be there with papa.

Soon her thoughts went back sadly to the time, only a short year ago, when, surrounded by everything a father's loving care could suggest, she had not one thought or wish ungratified; then of the dark days which followed so swiftly on her father's death, and the struggle with poverty since; but she resolved that in some way she must save her brother's life. To resolve was to do with Lillian, and entering the room where her mother sat sewing, she said cheerfully:

"Mamma, I think I will take Mrs. Brown's dress home to-night, and if you do not object I will take my wheel and go for a spin afterward, may I?"

"Certainly, dear; you are not looking well, and it may do you good. I can't have my little daughter ill," and she looked with love and anxiety at her daughter's pale face. Bending over, Lillian kissed her on both cheeks, and said laughingly: "Well, then, I will go, but do not worry if I am a little late."

And this is what she intended doing: Her father, just before his death, had given her a high grade bicycle, and, although she had wished to sell it, her mother absolutely refused to let her part with it. Now, however, she must sell it, she thought, even though it nearly broke her heart; for she was an expert wheelwoman, and it formed her sole enjoyment.

She delivered the dress, and was riding slowly along, wondering how she could dispose of her wheel to the best advantage, when a shrill scream startled her, and glancing up, she saw a dainty child walking slowly along, while pushing down the street behind her was a huge black dog. The people were hurrying in every direction, and cries of "Mad dog!" were heard, but no one paused to help the little one, who stood in helpless bewilderment.

With a cry of "Cowards!" Lillian turned and rode with all her might toward the spot. Would she get there first and could she save the child? were the thoughts that filled her mind. For the dog—as though divining her object—had sprung forward faster than ever. Now only a block remained between them. Could she do it in that space?

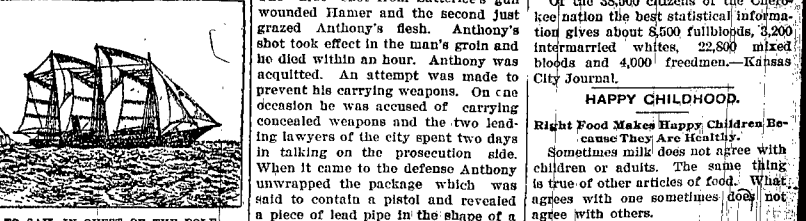

Gripping the handle bar firmly with one hand, she breathed a low "God bless me!" and sped on with all her strength, and, as though in answer to her prayer, the dog stumbled and fell

PEARY'S NEW VESSEL.

Ship Which Will Sail in Quest of the North Pole.

A vessel is being built in the old yard upon Verona Island, off the coast of Maine, which is not destined for purposes of trade. She is to force her way as far as possible into the ice covered seas of the far north, carrying Lieutenant-Commander Peary in order that he may make another dash for the pole. In the Peary ship, the stern, stern-post, keels, keelson and frames are of carefully selected white oak. The massive frames will be only two feet apart from center to center, and they will be enclosed in a cage of steel made of diagonal straps and covering the inner fabric of the ship from stem to stern. Over the straps will be a double course of five-inch planking of yellow pine and white oak, and between these two courses will be tarred hemp or tarred canvas.

A guard strake of white oak surrounds the vessel at the level of the main deck, projecting outward for such a distance that when the ice presses against her sides and is forced upward by the resistance, the ship will actually rest upon the guard strake. More than that, should she be frozen in, it would be possible to break the grip of the ice by the use of hydraulic jacks placed under the strake. Naturally, so important a part of the vessel's protection is securely fastened to the hull, and in addition it is strengthened by an angle bar of steel on its under side.

The interior of the ship will be almost completely filled with heavy timbers. Starting at the center of the decks, these braces will extend diagonally downwards and outwards, the lower ends resting against the frames and helping them to withstand the pressure of the ice. With a hull thus filled with timbers, provision must be made for living quarters above decks and here there will be two houses, so constructed that they may be removed and set up on shore. For the rest, the vessel will be rigged as a three-masted schooner with an exceptionally large spread of canvas and will also be provided with steam power. She will be of about 1500 tons and will be ready for service early next summer. It is the explorer's plan to go in the vessel to the northern shores of Grant Land, winter there and make his dash for the pole during the following summer.

A Mild Adventure.

He was telling a thrilling story of his hair-breadth escape, says the Chicago News, and the young girl leaned forward and hung upon his words breathlessly.

"And they were so near," he said, "that we could see the dark muzzles of the wolves."

"Oh, how lucky!" she gasped. "How glad you must have been that they had their muzzles on!"

Apoplexy, Not Cramp.

A long-distance swimmer, correcting popular errors, stated that accidents to swimmers are seldom due to cramp, but to apoplexy resulting from sudden cooling. The sinking three times is a curious error, as some persons swallow water and strangle on the first immersion, sinking at once, while others may sink and rise fifty times. The author has saved sixty-five lives, and he has found that the drowning person cannot be revived by a blow on the face, but that he can be revived by pressing the thumbs under the ears and ducking his head until manageable, this being done from behind.

Greatest in the World.

Arlington, Ind., Dec. 3.—(Special.)—Mr. W. A. Hirsch, the photographer, who moved here recently from Sapp, Ky., is firmly of the opinion that Dodd's Kidney Pills are the greatest. Kidney Remedy the world has ever known.

"In the years 1901 and 1902," says Mr. Hirsch, "and for some time before I was afflicted with Kidney Trouble. My joints were sore and stiff and I finally got so bad I could not turn in bed without assistance. In the spring of 1903 I was induced, by a friend, to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and after using one and one-half boxes I was and am still completely cured. Several of my neighbors, too, used Dodd's Kidney Pills and in every case they did as recommended."

Cure the early symptoms of Kidney Disease, such as Backache, with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you will never have Bright's Disease.

A Hopeless Case.

"Has George ever hinted that he has thought of you as a possible wife?" asked the anxious mother.

"No," replied the fair girl, with a faraway look in her eyes, "and I'm afraid he never will."

"Why," said the mother, "I thought—"

"Never mind what you thought, mamma dear," interrupted the daughter. "Only last night he complained of feeling weary, and it wasn't 9 o'clock."

Beware of Quinins for Catarrh that contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous membrane, such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the danger of it is too great to be trifled with, and can possibly derive from them. Lilli's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is a purely natural and safe remedy, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is the only Catarrh Cure that has been so long a success. Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

EACH COLOR TO ITSELF.

How the Cherokee Nation Gets Over the Race Problem.

The race problem in the Cherokee nation is solved to the general satisfaction of the three races concerned and the intermediary mixed bloods. In the location of homes the Cherokee fullbloods and negroes are mostly in settlements. The intermarried whites largely are in towns and territory contiguous to each other. The Cherokee-speaking citizens much prefer to associate together.

In the nation there are thirty schools attended by fullblood Cherokee children and seventeen by negro children. The negro blood schools are not so by legal requirement, but as a corollary of their preference to live near each other. The Cherokee and negro do not intermarry or socially mingle. Two seminaries and an orphan asylum are attended by fullbloods and mixed bloods only, the colored high school by negroes only.

In the incorporated school districts whites and Indians attend the same schools, and race prejudice and undue feeling on either side are being lost in fellowship and friendship cultivated in the class room and on the playground. Both sides are better satisfied in the combined schools than they were when they were kept separate. Fullbloods seek mingling as freely with white renters and their families of good character as they do with mixed bloods.

Of the 35,500 citizens of the Cherokee nation the best statistical information gives about 8,500 fullbloods, 3,200 intermarried whites, 22,800 mixed bloods and 4,000 freedmen.—Kansas City Journal.

HAPPY CHILDHOOD.

Right Food Makes Happy Children Because They Are Healthy.

Sometimes milk does not agree with children or adults. The same thing is true of other articles of food. What agrees with one sometimes does not agree with others.

But food can be so prepared that it will agree with the weakest stomach. As an illustration anyone who mistakes his way in the stomach can get ill, and digest a nice hot glass of Postum coffee with a spoonful or two of Grape-Nuts poured in, and such a combination contains nourishment to carry one a number of hours, for almost every particle of it will be digested and taken up by the system and made use of.

A lady writes from the land of the Magnolia and the mockingbird way down in Alabama, and says: "I was led to drink Postum because coffee gave me the sour stomach and made me nervous. Again Postum was recommended by two well-known physicians for my children, and I feel especially grateful for the benefit derived."

"Milk does not agree" with either child, so to the eldest, aged four and one-half years, I give Postum with plenty of sweet cream. It agrees with her splendidly, and she is a healthy, happy child."

"Perfectly" although she is of a constitution habit.

"For the youngest, aged two and one-half years, I use one-half Postum and one-half skimmed milk. I have not given any medicine since the child began using Postum, and she enjoys every drop of it."

"A neighbor of mine is giving Postum to her baby, lately weaned, with splendid results. The little fellow is thriving amazingly." Name given Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Postum agrees perfectly with my baby and supplies abundantly with the finest of cereals, and is a nice food. I like it better than any other I have been helped out of, and I have never known of any child being afflicted with any disease by leaving out of using Postum. Little Postum is the pig for the little boys."—The Wellsville.

A REMARKABLE TEST

APPLIED BY A TEACHER IN A LEADING UNIVERSITY.

Demonstrates the Power of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to Restore Vigor to Shattered Nerves.

Mrs. Leander Leve, wife of the minister of the Christian Church, of No. 2010 T street, South Omaha, Neb., tells how her daughter has been enabled to resume her professional work as a teacher after suffering for nearly three years from severe nervous prostration.

"When she was passing from girlhood to womanhood," says Mrs. Leve, "she suffered from a condition peculiar to her sex. The physician did not help her, but a few boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills brought about the perfect restoration of her system."

"While she had escaped from one grave trouble, she unfortunately began to overwork, first as a student and then as a teacher in a large Iowa institution for orphan boys. She enjoyed her work and was very enthusiastic, but the strain finally told on her. She became pale, weak, nervous, unable to sleep; she had no appetite and also suffered from severe headaches. Then came a complete breakdown and her work had to be given up."

In this emergency we again tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Improvement came so slowly and we sometimes doubted whether she was gaining, but we noticed that whenever she stopped taking the pills she fell back, and whenever she resumed the use of them she revived and so we kept up the treatment until she recovered her usual health and was able to take a position in one of our universities where she is happily at work. My mother, my daughter and myself have a well-founded confidence in the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and are always ready to recommend them."

This is simply one more proof that these pills seek disease at its source and effect fundamental cures. They cure various diseases because these have a common origin in impaired blood or nerves. They put the entire system in a healthy condition, because they introduce vigor into the blood and to every part. They arrest physical decay when it seems inevitable and find a way to restoration when the doctor misses it. They are sold by all druggists throughout the world.

Refreshed Air from Caves.

Hemiplegic, victims of pulmonary complaints have been obliged to make inconvenient journeys to the higher altitudes in search of the pure rarefied air which is known to be so beneficial to them, but this is no longer necessary. It has been discovered that the air from limestone caves has all the characteristics of that of the mountains. This discovery has just been made use of in the location of a sanitarium near one of these caves, and the air for the institution is supplied from the underground caverns. This establishment is at Luray, Va., and the system of ventilation is arranged so that each room gets its own supply direct from the cave. The air of these caverns is of a very uniform temperature and remarkably pure and free from all germs and dust particles. In the warmest weather the doors and windows of this institution are kept closed, and a comfortable temperature of 75 degrees is maintained in spite of a wind of 90 or more encountered outside.

MONEY HIDDEN IN BOTTLES.

Oscar Freak of Two Brothers Who Owed an English Lun.

An interesting little treasure hunt is causing some excitement in a Staffordshire village, says the London Mail. The treasure hunters are not rushing round with surveyors' chains and pick axes, but they search very patiently, and very persistently in old boots and stockings, pieces of newspapers, behind wall paper and wainscoting and in black bottles. They are searching for the accumulated wealth of one Joseph Atwood, who, with his brother, kept the Vile Inn at Delph, Brierley Hill. Joseph died not long ago, and his brother being unable to transact the business it was transferred.

The brothers Atwood had curious ideas as to the conduct of their business and the employment of capital—ideas which would commend themselves to no self-respecting economist. When the elder brother died there was a hunt for the money which it was known he had saved. In one of the rooms, which had not been opened for fifteen years, 5500 in gold was found, stowed away in corners of the room. Hundreds of silver coins were found corked up in gin bottles and beer jars. Half a hundredweight of coppers was found hidden in nooks and crannies, old gloves, stockings, paper bags and envelopes and rolled up in tea lead. Clocks which had never been presented; a woman's watch and a very old hunting watch were also discovered.

Altogether 4500 has been found in various parts of the house. When the treasure-seekers have torn down the walls, ripped up the floors and searched under the soot in the chimneys claims will be pegged out in the garden.

A Man of Resonance. A amusing and effective device was recently adopted by a prominent clubman to form the acquaintance of a beautiful woman to whom he knew no way to be formally presented. The lady was lunching in a fashionable restaurant, accompanied by her pocket. The dog was running about from table to table, picking up pieces and collecting morsels from other diners, and presently, when it turned to its mistress, she was astonished to see written on its back in red chalk, "Tell your mistress that she is simply adorable, and I love her exceedingly." The gentleman signed his name. After this a formal introduction was no longer necessary.

Every Walk in Life.

A. A. Boyce, a farmer, living three and a half miles from Trenton, Mo., says: "A severe cold settled in my kidneys and I was obliged to go to bed. I was unable to walk at all, and every makeshift I tried and all the medicine I took did not do the slightest good. My back continued to grow weaker until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and I must say I was more than surprised and gratified to notice the backache disappearing gradually until it finally stopped."

Doan's Kidney Pills sold by all druggists or mailed on receipt of price, 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

He Had Done His Best.

The point of the following story from the New York Tribune is not too fine for every-day economists to perceive. It carries a lesson which ought to interest purchasers as well as manufacturers.

A merchant who had a big trade in abattoirs decided that he ought to get them from the manufacturer at a lower price. The manufacturer, on the other hand, said that he could not make any reduction unless he put more lead into the composition.

"All right; use more lead," replied the merchant.

Before long he wanted a second reduction. The manufacturer made the same reply, and was again told to use more lead.

After a while the merchant wanted the spoons at a still cheaper price, but the manufacturer wrote that he could not possibly submit to a further cut.

"That is more lead," wrote the merchant.

"Can't," answered the manufacturer, "the last lot I sent you were all lead."

Opinions of Great Papers on Important Subjects.

The Failure of the Cossack.

ONE of the minor surprises of the war in the East has been the failure of the Cossacks to justify their reputation as a fighting force. The Japanese horses are inferior, and it was expected that the hardy little lovers of the steppe would do great execution. Instead, their failure has caused disappointment. Few of the Cossack regiments have distinguished themselves, and the experts begin to call them "handicapped."

Big and Little Men in Time of War.

THE war in the East is a war between big and little men. And the little men are reaping the advantage. Big men for soldiering is an error that has come down to us from early times when men wore armor and fought with battle axes. In the present war the little brown men of Japan are outgunning the big soldiers of the East.

What is Success?

THIS is one of the great questions of the day, and naturally has received many answers. Attempt, however, to carefully define the term and it becomes a difficult task. But most people understand the term when they see it incarnated in a life.

In Paris a specially designed automobile-wagon frame has been made, on which a 1,250-gallon water tank is mounted, and the machine is used to sprinkle the streets.

Just when it seemed as if the pack of lions was about to charge the zebra, their attention was diverted by an attack upon them by a number of hyenas which came growling and snarling out of the forest.

The hyenas attacked the lions with great fury and bravery. In the excitement of the fight the ordinary howl of the hyena changed to a deep, loud roar, which Dr. Smith declares to be nearly equal in strength to the roar of the lion.

Catching Cold.

COLD, which is more properly a fever produced by cold, is one of the most dangerous ailments that human nature has to grapple with. It comes somewhat mysteriously, it sometimes resists all sorts of treatment, and when it cannot be checked it is as apt to cause death as any other malady whatever.

MISS CLAUSSEN SAVED FROM A SURGICAL OPERATION.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well."

"My heartiest thanks are sent to you for the great good you have done me." Sincerely yours, Miss MARGARET MERKLEY, 275 Third St., Milwaukee, Wis.

MISS CLAUSSEN SAVED FROM A SURGICAL OPERATION.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me after all."

"However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. The letters of Miss Merklely, whose picture is printed above, and Miss Claussen, prove beyond question that thousands of cases of inflammation of the ovaries and womb are annually cured by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Gradual loss of strength and nerve force told me something was radically wrong with me. I had severe shooting pains through the pelvic organs, cramps and extreme irritation compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor said that I had ovarian trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation. I strongly objected to this and decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found that my judgment was correct, and that all the good things said about this medicine were true, and day by day I felt less pain and increased appetite. The ulceration soon healed, and the other complications disappeared and in eleven weeks I was once more strong and vigorous and perfectly well.

MISS CLAUSSEN SAVED FROM A SURGICAL OPERATION.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It seems to me that all the endorsements that I have read of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound do not express one-half of the virtue the great medicine really possesses. I know that it saved my life and I want to give the credit where it belongs. I suffered with ovarian trouble for five years, had three operations and spent hundreds of dollars on doctors and medicines but this did not cure me after all.

However, what doctors and medicines failed to do, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did. Twenty bottles restored me to perfect health and I feel sure that had I known of its value before, and let the doctors alone, I would have been spared all the pain and expense that fruitless operations cost me. If the women who are suffering, and the doctors do not help them, will try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, they will not be disappointed with the results.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Twenty-seven new students have come in since last week's report. Miss Vaughn is at present confined to her home with an attack of influenza. Miss Palmer, of the Winside schools, was a guest at the social Saturday night. Mr. Van Buskirk came over from Pierce to spend Sunday with college friends. Miss Blanche Gaertner spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week visiting her sister in Sioux City. Among the new students there are representatives from Pierce, Platte, Colfax, Madison, Burt, Dakota and Dixon counties. Daniel Pearce, one of last year's students, from Genoa, entered school again Monday and exhibited his faith in the N. N. O. by bringing five new students with him. Ross Cunningham has been obliged to give up the thought of teaching for some time, though we are glad to report that he is improving. To regularly fill his place, Miss Stewart, who formerly had charge of the music department for a number of years, has been engaged. She began work Wednesday. Old students may be interested in the changes now being made in what are known as rooms one and two. The former is now used as a class room for the sciences and the latter is to be used almost exclusively as a laboratory. Workmen have added to the cases for the storage of materials and exhibition of museum specimens, and a door has been put in connecting the class rooms with the laboratory. The language classes are now taught in the room at the right on the ground floor. The senior class holds regular class meetings every Monday evening at which extemporaneous speaking is practiced and other literary efforts indulged in. At the last meeting each student related some significant experience in his life, and among these was one covering the experience of going away to school. The speaker advised declared that coming as she did from the "Sand Hills" she supposed that she would be an object of pity or ridicule, but that much to her surprise she soon felt perfectly at home. She had not supposed she could ever enter a graduating class but found herself admitted. She had never dreamed that she could ever stand up and talk to an assembly, but she had then been talking several minutes and was still feeling quite comfortable over it. Let every timid boy and girl take courage.

A stranger said to us the other day: "I don't see why there are not more widows living in Wayne." We informed him that since the 2 Johns sold Staley underwear not many men had died.

Subscription, $1.00 a Year in Advance.

Nebraska was present at the great international fat stock show in Chicago last week with a fat steer that was a candidate for championship honors, but this year the university failed to scoop the prize, Minnesota being the winner.

The HERALD is glad to see N. D. Jackson, of Neligh, in the field for the speakership of the Nebraska legislature and sincerely hopes he will receive the election. Jackson is a able, just and level-headed and as a presiding officer we feel that he would do honor to the state and himself.

General James N. Tyner, postmaster-general, during President Grant's administration, died in Washington Monday morning. His last office duty was in connection with the post office department as assistant attorney general from which he was removed last year on the charge of misusing his trust. He was indicted but acquitted by a jury.

When you come to die there will be some satisfaction in reflecting that you have done your best. It always pays even though it may not be fully appreciated at the time. A great many of the best and most generous things we do are not appreciated, but that cannot rob us of the satisfaction of having done them.

Commencing January 2, 1905, the University of Nebraska offers a course of instruction in the practice of agriculture and it will cover everything pertaining to the soils of the state, their culture and care and also the care of live stock, the various breeds, the dairy, in fact a complete course of instruction in the practical things that every farmer or farmer's sons should know. It seems this county should have a goodly number of students desirous of taking advantage of the opportunity here presented.

Wanted: A girl for general housework. Have killed off the children, will get the washing and ironing done by outside parties, husband will build all fires, carry out the dirt water and wife will do baking, chamber work and mopping of kitchen. Will furnish girl used of piano and allow her to spend her best fellow in the parlor six nights in the week, but cannot furnish electric lights later than midnight, because there is only half night service in the city. Wages $15 per week and finely furnished bed room with electric lights and bath. If there are any other privileges or accommodations required call us up by wireless telegraphy.

Patrick Hagerty, the much looked for co-sher of the defunct Elkhorn Valley bank of O'Neill, is one of the old settlers of the Elkhorn Valley and the writer well remembers meeting the old gentleman more than a fifth of a century ago and doing business with him in his old general merchandise store on the corner when "Pat Hagerty" was a name to conjure with in the then sparsely settled county around O'Neill. The old man's downfall comes to us in the nature of a surprise mixed with a feeling of sincere sorrow over the calamity that has overtaken him in the days when life's pathway ought to be one of ease and comfort for one who has faced the storms as we know he has done.

The Burlington railroad and the university of Nebraska will send a "sand train" through the corn belt next week giving lectures and practical demonstrations to the farmers of the best methods of selecting seed that will be certain to germinate and promote the growing of a maximum crop. The state owes to the far-sighted men that built the Burlington railroad west of the river an immense amount of its present prosperity, for they not only brought the people here, but they helped them in every possible way to learn to subdue the wilderness and make fruitful farms where it was once supposed nothing would grow but buffalo grass. The starting out of this seed train is an encouraging indication that the Burlington has lost none of its interest in the welfare of the farmers of this region.—State Journal. The Northwestern could follow suit and do a big thing for itself and incidentally for the country tributary to its lines.

While we thoroughly believe in the republican policy of protection, yet we are not a "stand patter". We do not believe the tariff schedule as at present constituted is in any sense sacred or infallible, neither do we believe the masses of the party look upon it as being such. Conditions in this country change rapidly, and a tariff schedule that was perfectly right and proper in 1897 does not meet the requirements of the business interests at present. The republican party owes it to itself and to the best interests of the country at large to at once proceed with the revision of the tariff along lines in harmony with existing conditions and to not put the master off until a wave of indignation will be created by popular sentiment that will sweep the party from power because of its failure to act, and the power be placed in the hands of the enemies of protection to completely wreck and ruin the great interests of the country. The people expect congress to act in this matter, and to act without unnecessary delay, and if it fails to do so, it will hazard the retention in power of the republican party.

It is not pleasant to be obliged to criticize those in authority, but sometimes it becomes absolutely necessary and the HERALD feels obliged to do this with the board of county commissioners. At the present and for some time past they have been extending aid to a certain family in this city, and while we believe that the aid in the case referred to is an absolute necessity, yet we do not believe in the manner in which it is being extended is right. We have very good reason to believe that this family is now existing in a nuisance and that its influence is one of contamination to the community, and that it should not be maintained as at present. The county has a place provided for the care of its people unable to care for themselves, and if there ever was a crying necessity for the removal of the head of a family to an institution of this kind, the one now in question should be placed there and the little children should be removed to places provided by the state to meet just such emergencies. The moral atmosphere in which these children are now being reared is one from which they should be rescued and that without any delay, and the question of cost in cases of this kind is not the only one to be considered. We trust the gentlemen composing the board will see that the good offices of the county shall not be longer used for the purpose of keeping this source of pollution wide open within our city or elsewhere. If there is any doubt in the minds of the commissioners as to there being any basis for what we have said, we are ready to furnish proof in substantiation of the statements made.

The International Harvester company which is the big combine that controls all the principal manufactures of harvesting machinery in the United States, is now gathering in all the leading manufacturers of plows, wagons, gasoline engines and many other makes of farm machinery. They are making contracts and attempting to force the retailers of these machines and implements to sign them, in which the dealer agrees to handle no line of goods that enter into competition with those of the trust. These contracts carry with them an agreement to pay large fines for violations. Wherever the dealers refuse to sign they are to be cut off from handling the goods controlled by the combine, and as this would practically put the dealer out of business many are accepting the conditions laid down by the combine. This monopoly does not stop here, but goes further and fixes the price at which the goods shall be sold and these prices are getting higher and higher with each year and the margin for the dealer is becoming less and less all the time—in fact the profit is so small and the conditions so hard that retailers find the business does not attract a living profit and dozens are being crowded out of the trade. This last condition is just what the trust is aiming at and in a little while the trade will be as completely under its control as is the sale of Standard oil today. Dealers are up in arms and many of them do not propose to be thus dictated to and have their business ruined without putting up a vigorous fight in self-defense, and meetings of the dealers are being called in various parts of the country to take action looking to some form of relief from the grasp of the big monopoly. Farmers need not think the fight is none of theirs and one in which they are not interested. If the trust obtain the complete control they are now aiming for, every user of farm machinery will find himself as completely at the mercy of this great monopoly as it is possible to be, and they ought to lend all the assistance in their power to the independent manufacturers and dealers.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.
"DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve" writes J. L. Tucker, of Cental, Ala. "I have used it in my family for Piles, Cuts and Burns for years and can recommend it to be the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it, as it is an invaluable household remedy, and should always be kept on hand for immediate use." Mrs. Samuel Gage, of North Bush, N. Y., says: "I had a fever sore on my ankle for twelve years that the doctors could not cure. All salves and blood remedies proved worthless. I could not walk for over two years. Finally I was persuaded to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which has completely cured me. It is a wonderful." DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures without leaving a scar. Sold by Raymond's Pharmacy.

IN MEXICO

ITS INHABITANTS AND THEIR MODES OF LIVING, MARRIAGE CEREMONIES, ETC. QUEER DOINGS OF ITS PEOPLE

The woman is a beast of burden; the child a wild little thing that gets barely enough water to drink and none to wash in; the man, dressed in rags and with the eyes in his gaudy mask, as usual and solemn as if the very violence of the desert had struck into his soul. His body is dwarfed and drawn and his mind runs into a very narrow channel. He has the most stunted growth of the poor surroundings. So that the man and woman may be irrigated and when the green fields stretch away before his eyes and the flowers bloom in his path and birds come to mate in the trees that will grow, it will freshen him and his children will have a better place among the sons of men.

It is customary for a couple to live together and get married whenever they have enough cash to pay the fee. The priest makes a trip among them each year and marries all who are ready. If times are hard the ceremony may have to be postponed for several years and sometimes it is never performed. If a native goes a distance of from fifteen to twenty miles away from home he is looked upon as a foreigner, a man who has come from afar off. The poor country people, that portion of Mexico lying in the southern part of the other desert natives. They have plenty of water and plenty to eat, their surroundings and all being in the pleasant, consequently they can muster to a high standard. They are not very fond of work, however, and get out of it whenever they have the opportunity. The average salary paid for men's work is about 25 cents a day in Mexican money and the Mexican's entire cost for clothing throughout the entire year would amount to only about 87 cents, as they need to wear but a cotton blouse and a pair of trousers and sandals home made of sole leather.

Their cooking is mostly done by two bricks or stones set up edgewise and a piece of sheet iron across the top heated by a charcoal fire. They bake and fry their meats on these with the utmost skill.

The Mexican as a rule does not live to an old age. They are subject to disease and when once disease or plague attacks them they die quite rapidly. Dr. Caldwell, in his recent work on the prevalent diseases in Mexico, states that a great many of the Mexican children die before they are five years old. In the city of Mexico there are three hundred deaths a day. These deaths are caused principally from neglect and the non-attendance of a physician.

The principal diseases arise from dirt and neglect. It is a common sight to see a child lying on the ground with a collar containing a corpse on its shoulder, carrying it down the middle of the street and the mourners following in the city of Mexico, which has a population of 500,000 people, the government has provided special funeral streets which are used for the conveyance of their burials. Dr. Caldwell has perhaps studied the habits of the Mexican more thoroughly than any other American physician. She has traveled among the plain people, has traced out the rich, studied their habits, and the action of medicines as different individuals and has translated a plain and picturesque from her long experience that rarely fail to cure disease.

Her practice in the last fifteen years has extended in a great measure all over Mexico and the United States. It has however been largely in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa and the two Dakotas. Thousands of people have consulted her and thousands have been cured. Her laboratories are the largest of any known physician's outside of Chicago, Buffalo or New York. Her ability to diagnose disease is, without question, one of the best of any living physician. Knowing quickly what is the matter with one she is not liable to doctor them for the wrong ailment nor is she liable to give them such treatment that would be of no value to them. It is claimed by Dr. Caldwell's friends that they can diagnose any disease without asking a question. She treats those diseases that have principally been neglected or that have been doctored by other physicians and have failed to have been cured by them.

She does not attempt to cure incurable diseases and if there are certain cases that she thinks are useless to treat and that nothing but death can cure, she will not promise to cure them. In palpitation of the heart, nervousness, confusion of ideas and loss of memory and the many diseases which afflict mankind Dr. Caldwell has perhaps had more experience in treating them than any other living physician. The medical profession seems powerless to understand why it is that Dr. Caldwell performs such wonderful cures, especially so when they so often fail. Her charges are reasonable and no one need be deprived of a cure, no matter how poor he is. She guarantees her treatment to be just what she claims for it and her patients can depend on what she says.

She is the originator and founder of the S. A. M. Medical Institute of Louisville, Ky., and has within the last three years established a large office in Minneapolis, Minn.

Her system for curing varicose, hydrocele and disease of men is the quickest and best known. Her cure for asthma, hard breathing and shortness of breath has never been known to fail. For blood poisoning, lost manhood and various other ailments she has been known to go away from her with out being cured when they once placed themselves under her careful treatment. Her treatment is free from humbug and you can, out of gratitude, contribute your recommendation to your fellow men.

In diseases of stunted development and slow growth, deformity, curvature of the spine, both in young and old, etc., her treatment is not unequalled. Dr. Caldwell is not a man who will cure you for nothing. If your home doctor can cure you she will not take the case. She has been given such high praise as an incurable case. She will promise to restore them to health, and their families and their friends. In bronchitis and all affections of the throat, lungs or any other organs, she can easily overcome these troubles in the shortest length of time. Paralytic paralysis, locomotor ataxia, dropsy and piles are quickly and permanently cured. Dr. Caldwell's treatment, and cure by absorption for appendicitis, gall stones, bowel tumors and other abdominal growths, is one of the most wonderful achievements and has never been known to fail. In female weakness, displacements, drags, ulcers and irregular menstruation there is no specialist, no matter where he is, that has anything so good.

Some people think that she has made her name with the liberty to publish. Mrs. Stone, Akron, Neb., writes: "I was cured of nervous troubles. The treatment she took improved her at once, and she was soon cured of all her ailments."

C. A. Lundeen, Grand Island, Neb., writes: "I was cured of rheumatism and dyspepsia. Those troubles soon disappeared."

Mrs. R. McBeth, Harder, Neb., writes: "I was cured of nervous troubles, was told by doctors operation would be necessary. Cured in four months' treatment."

Mrs. J. Dobbins of North Platte, Neb., writes: "I had been doctored for years without relief for kidney trouble, female and general debility."

Mr. Charles Schell, Fender, cured of rheumatism, almost had consumption.

Mr. Neph Wyndure, Beaver, Neb., cured of gall stones of liver.

Joe Carlson, Ft. Wayne, Ind., cured of large cancer of breast.

W. H. Larson, 65 Nesbitt St., Newark, N. J., says: "Dr. Caldwell: After suffering for 30 years I have found no treatment equal to yours. I write you these few lines to speak of the excellence of your treatment and I think it due you."

Mrs. J. H. Smith, Oriskany, Neb., cured of female troubles, general weakness and loss of flesh. Cured in three months. Mrs. Summers had doctored with many doctors.

S. J. Blesson, Platte Center, Neb., cured of stomach trouble of long standing, nervous debility; was treated by many doctors.

N. A. Drake's most popular apothecary, Dr. O. Caldwell, registered graduate of the Kentucky school of Medicine, will make her next visit to Wayne, Wednesday, Dec. 14.

Goshorn's paper that a Russian thistle scare is on in that section and the things said and warning given remind us very much of the scare this country had about ten years ago over the same weed, but which on better acquaintance did not prove to be as harmful as generally believed it would be. Western Nebraska and the Rocky Mountain states, have been covered with snow and otherwise suffering from the grip of genuine winter, while this territory has been enjoying weather akin to the falltime and is rapidly gaining a reputation as an enviable winter resort. However, there is no guarantee that we will not lose this reputation before spring and that people will not transfer their affections to southern California. A tribute such as never before has been paid to any breed of cattle comes from Britain to the Scotch Short-horn. The late season in Scotland has now closed for the year and completed returns show that since Jan. 1, last 1,105 Short-horns have been sold at public sale in Caledonia for an average price of $269. Last year the average price of 1,004 Short-horns sold in Scotland at public auction was $185. Considering the condition of the industry in the United States and Canada and the consequent fact that American orders were almost wholly eliminated from the Scotch trade the showing made by the cosmopolitan "red white and roans" is remarkable. History proves that while there may be some slight variation, pure bred cattle are seldom high in one part of the world and very low in another for any very great length of time and the upward tendency of prices in Britain may reasonably be taken as an index of the course of the pedigree market in the United States.—Breeder's Gazette. DO IT RIGHT

There is a right way and a wrong way to do everything. Some people find it hard to find suitable Christmas presents. One reason is that they don't go at it right. There is a right way and a wrong way to look for presents. If you want useful presents come to this store and you will be in the right place to buy them. Now don't come in and expect everything to be in sight for you to look at. If you can come in the forenoon or evening that is the best time. Then say: "I want you to show me something suitable for my husband or my boy or my father for a present." We will then tell you of the different things we have and show you the latest styles. Never buy anything out of style for a present. This is the right way and you will make no mistake in coming here. Our goods are all new and up-to-date and prices are lower than elsewhere. The nice things are not in sight, but in boxes on the shelves and if you want to see them all you have to do is to ask us to show them. Not every store is supplied with presents as we are, and as we have no old style goods to show you can feel safe in buying presents here. It is impossible for us to tell you of all the pretty, useful things we have in an advertisement. All we can say is that we have the goods that you want, and ask you to give us an opportunity to show them to you. Why not come now? Don't wait until the last day. Remember you don't pay fancy prices here. Everything marked in plain figures and sold at one price. Buy at the right price and at the right place and do it right away and you will be happy and so will we.

DR. CHADWICK CABLES FROM SOMEWHERE IN EUROPE.

Bays She is Greatly Wronged - Mrs. Chadwick Remains in a Nervous State - Her Attorney Makes Statement - Creditors Should be Patient

A New York special says: Dr. Leroy S. Chadwick, the husband of Jessie L. Chadwick, whose financial troubles have been undergoing the thrashing out process for the past week, has come out with a brief statement from Europe. Sunday he cabled to Phillip Carpenter, Mrs. Chadwick's counsel, from some place abroad, the name of which Mr. Carpenter would not disclose, requesting that gentleman to deny the published statements reflecting on Mrs. Chadwick's life and character.

"They are absolutely false," the cablegram reads. "I wish to have it understood that I stand by Mrs. Chadwick in every particular in her present troubles. I feel she has been grossly wronged by the publication, and I believe she is being persecuted by some of her creditors."

Dr. Chadwick explained that he had dispatched his cablegram just as soon as he saw the report of his wife's troubles.

Mr. Carpenter also made a statement Sunday.

"Dr. Chadwick," he said, "is abroad for his health, and the Newton bill was not brought until some three weeks after he sailed."

"Before going away Dr. Chadwick consulted me in regard to the Newton claim, and with him I met Mrs. Newton and his Boston attorney. The matter was then arranged seemingly to the satisfaction of all concerned, and the doctor sailed."

Mr. Carpenter said further that all the creditors would be paid this week, and that to push the bankruptcy proceedings would mean only to delay matters.

"All the members of the doctor's family are also standing by Mrs. Chadwick loyally, and are in entire sympathy with her."

"I knew that Dr. Chadwick would be by his wife's side look out for her if he were in this country. There is no doubt that all the claims against Mrs. Chadwick will be paid if her smaller creditors will only exercise a little patience. Bankruptcy proceedings and attachment suits do their promoters no good whatever, and creditors resorting to those and other harassing methods will certainly not hasten the settlement of their claims."

"Mrs. Chadwick has acted in the most honorable way in all her dealings that have come to my knowledge. One very good evidence of this is found in the unshaken confidence still reposed in her by her largest creditors and those who know her best."

Mrs. Gillett was in the rear Pullman, which was precipitated into a creek more than twenty feet below the bridge where the wreck occurred, and she was rescued from the wreckage after holes had been chipped in the top of the car with axes.

SHOT IN SELF-DEFENSE.

A Prisoner is Fatally Wounded at Sioux Falls.

While making an assault on Deputy Warden Cooley, of the Sioux Falls, S. D., penitentiary, Friday afternoon, Robert White, a prisoner, was fatally shot, dying in about half an hour.

White was the most unruly prisoner in the penitentiary and the dungeon, solitary confinement and other modes of punishment failed to break his spirit. He had frequently threatened the lives of the prisoners and members of the prison force.

For some time past he had been confined to his cell, where his meals were served to him. White was unusually ugly Friday and the deputy warden found it necessary to enter his cell, accompanied by two guards, for the purpose of handcuffing him.

White had torn his table to pieces, and armed with a club made from it and a steel bar which he had secured in some mysterious manner from the blacksmith shop, he made a vicious spring for the deputy warden, with the evident intention of killing him.

Guard Frank Hogan drew a revolver and shot White in the thigh. The wounded man fought like a maniac, but was finally overpowered. He steadily grew weaker until his death, half an hour after being shot. The bullet is supposed to have glanced upward and lodged in the abdomen. The coroner will hold an inquest.

White was serving ten years for a murder committed in Yankton County. He was only about 26 years old.

CLOSE OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

End of the Greatest Exposition Ever Known.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis has ended. The stupendous and magnificent exposition, whose territories have extended into every portion of the civilized world and even into aboriginal recesses, bringing within the gates of St. Louis millions of visitors from throughout the entire world, has run its course and now passes into history as probably having comprised the most representative collection of resources, industries, arts, peoples and customs of the world ever assembled.

From the inception of a project to hold an exposition to fitly commemorate the one hundredth anniversary of the purchase of the Louisiana territory, until the details were thrashed out and the world was invited to enter and enjoy the complete exhibition of the world's life, occupied a period of seven years. The duration of the exposition has been seven months, and during that time nothing has occurred to throw a dampening effect on the interest or to detract from the exhibition in any way. The best order has been maintained throughout; there have been a few fires, but all were of small moment with the exception of the destruction of the house of Ho-Hoo and the partial destruction of the Missouri building recently. The former was immediately rebuilt. No loss of life has occurred during the exposition from accident.

St. Louis has professed her most generous hospitality to the world, and it has been accepted. Throngs of visitors have poured in to attend the exposition with the expectation of being pleased and satisfied. They have departed amazed and gratified. The opinion has been expressed at all times on all sides, and without reserve, that the Louisiana Purchase Exposition has been a success. Congratulations messages were received in large numbers from all parts of the country and from abroad, conveying felicitations upon the success of the exposition.

Gov. Dockery and President Francis each made a speech during the evening. The latter was the recipient of a beautiful silver tea service from the exposition management.

COSTS FOUR LIVES.

Texas Wedding is Followed by Two Tragedies.

A sequel to the tragedy that cost the lives of Steve McKinley, his father and hired man, near Alvarado, Tex., Tuesday, came to light Thursday.

J. M. Williams, the triple murderer, barricaded himself in his home and defied the officers. He sent word to his daughter, the widowed bride of the man he had murdered, that if she did not come to him he would kill her. In fear and trembling she went to the house. There she found her father armed with a Winchester rifle and in a frenzy of rage.

The officers were afraid to fire into the house for fear of killing some member of Williams' family. Finally Williams fell asleep, and the police made her escape. The officers then opened fire upon the house and Williams was killed by a bullet through his brain.

The cause of the triple murder was the elopement on Sunday of Steve McKinley with Williams' daughter.

STATE OF NEBRASKA

NEWS OF THE WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

No Assets Are to be Found - O'Neill Bank Was Left Clean of Cash - Officers Accuse Each Other - Cashier's Statement Finally Made.

State Bank Examiner Whittemore, of Lincoln, who has been looking into the records of the Elkhorn Valley Bank at O'Neill, which failed a few days ago, has reported to the state banking board that he has found all the cash and $40,000 in notes missing and that nothing is left with which to pay depositors except the bank building. There are deposits of $58,843.

The statement left by Cashier Hagerly with his wife was given to the examiner Monday. It contains nothing that throws any light on the missing assets. Mr. Hagerly charges his partner, Bernard McGreevy, with cutting the bank's safe, and says McGreevy did not have the face to again meet the people of O'Neill, who had implicitly trusted him, in view of the failure. Mr. Hagerly is over 70 years of age.

Mr. McGreevy's statement, which was made public last week, charges Hagerly with systematic appropriation of the funds of the bank in his own use. Warrants have been issued at O'Neill for the arrest of both officers, Hagerly being charged with receiving deposits when he knew the bank to be in an insolvent condition, and McGreevy with embezzling the funds.

It is stated the bank was started with $10,000 of borrowed capital, and that the interest payments on this and the high interest paid depositors had gradually absorbed the depositors' principal.

An Omaha special says: The depositors of the Elkhorn Valley Bank at O'Neill, include few business men; they are mostly widows of aged persons, and there are many pitiful cases.

SHARP FIGHTS WITH BANDITS.

Bank Robbers Blow Open a Safe at Wabash.

Aroused by the muffled sounds of an explosion at 3 o'clock Sunday morning, citizens of Wabash tumbled from their beds and engaged in a running fight with two desperate bank robbers. The bandits escaped from the citizens and disappeared in the brush near Wabash, Mo.

The robbers blew the outside door of the safe and partially wrecked the building of the Bank of Wabash. A second charge was laid to destroy the vault where the money was kept. However, the explosion brought the citizens in from the brush and the robbers were compelled to give battle in order to escape, without any booty.

It was thought that the bandits made their way to Lincoln on an early morning train. A systematic but useless search was made for them.

Editor Wins Suit.

L. A. Wilson, editor of the Springfield Herald, has won his lawsuit against W. C. H. Green, publisher of the Commercial National Bank at that place and former publisher of the Herald. The jury, after being out for twenty hours straight, found a verdict against the banker. He had, it seems, agreed, when he held the paper to Wilson, not to re-enter the newspaper business in Iowa (Iowa City) within ten years and had a year ago established the Keya Paha County News, under the name of his wife, Pearl Skinner. He had agreed to forfeit $2,000 in case he did re-enter the newspaper business and the jury gave Wilson a judgment for that amount plus the costs, which amounted to $500.

BLAKEMORE FOUND GUILTY

Minister Convicted on Every Charge and Suspended from Church.

At 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon the jury in the Blakemore case returned a verdict finding that Rev. F. P. Blakemore, of the Methodist church, should be suspended until the next conference, at which time he will have another trial.

Mr. Blakemore was tried on five charges and ten specifications. The charges were falsifying gross obscenity, profane language, improper address, and a certain woman and solicitation of a local physician for malpractice. On all the charges and all but three of the specifications he was found guilty, but when the specifications were taken up he was given out.

While there is naturally some sympathy for the man who "drowns" the verdict for a popular one in Tecumseh. The gift of the man was generally believed in and the town was practically unanimous in awaiting the outcome, which had it been different, would have caused great surprise.

"JACK THE PEEPER" AT YORK.

Mysterious Man Annoys Unprotected Women and Girls.

"Jack the peeper" is a mysterious character who has a mania for prowling around private homes and following and peering unprotected girls after dark, again attempted Sunday night to catch three young women at York, and followed them to the door of the residence of Mr. Koch. From the description given on his arrest some men were taken to the York Jail, and the York Times, of the Selwidge, of the York Times, who was found lying unconscious near the door of the residence of Mrs. E. Joe Brown.

The mysterious man is described as being of medium height and weight, wearing a heavy overcoat and a dark hat. The officials of the city believe they have a clue to the identity and are following the same, hoping to learn beyond a question of a doubt the guilt of the party and an arrest will follow.

MESSANGER FIRES AT ROBBERS.

A battle with robbers in which a number of shots were exchanged, took place Wednesday night at the American Express office on Norfolk Avenue, Norfolk. Messenger P. P. Valentine, who was sleeping in the building at that time, heard the rattling of feet and the murmuring of the burglars. Rising on his feet he reached for a gun and opened fire in the direction of the burglars. Firing back, the robbers dived through a window through which they had gained an entrance. They carried away all the valuable packages that two men could carry, but they dropped the parcels, either from fright or enforced to do so by their wounds, in the rear alley.

FOUR HOLDUPS AT OMAHA.

Police Believe Same Men Were Engaged in All.

Four holdups netted two highwaymen who did the jobs about $100 in money Sunday night at Omaha. Three men held up a man at Sully Mills and secured $25 and a watch. One of the trio was later arrested, but the other two escaped. The holdups were carried out at First and O and Twenty-seventh and J Streets in South Omaha from which $55 was secured. Two hours later a street car while standing at the terminus of the Hanson Park line, just west of the park, was held up and the motorman and conductor and one passenger were robbed, the bandits securing $20. The police believe the same men committed all four of the robberies.

Treasurer Refuses Tax Tender.

C. H. Swiney, of Omaha, special tax commissioner, at Omaha, on the Pacific road, called on County Treasurer Wright at Beatrice and made a proposition similar to that of R. D. Pollard, tax commissioner for the Burlington, namely, to pay the same amount of tax as last year with 20 per cent advance. The treasurer refused to accept the tender and the result is that the tax of none of the railroads entering Beatrice has been paid.

Strabbed a Policeman.

RUIN IN THE DROUGHT

WOEFUL LACK OF RAIN IN MISSISSIPPI VALLEY.

Approach of Cold Weather Without... Moisture Means Vast Loss—Coal Mines... Are Crippled, Railroads Hampered, and... Cities in Danger from Fire.

The closing down of coal mines, the... ruining of crops, the tying up of rail-... roads and disastrous fires may follow... one of the worst droughts in the history... of the Mississippi Valley if cold weath-... er sets in without a rain. Illinois, In-... diana, Ohio, Kentucky, Wisconsin and... other States in the valley are now feel-... ing the effects of the lack of water.

Already several disastrous prairie... fires have occurred, railroads and coal... mines are having hard work to get... water, stock raisers are complaining... and farmers are counting their losses... by the hundreds of thousands of dol-... lars. In some of the cities in the Mis-... sissippi Valley States the water sup-... ply has been completely exhausted and... the first fire that occurs will sweep... unchecked through the towns. Farm-... ers, railroad men, mine owners and... stock raisers all predict serious conse-... quences if the drought continues. Not-... hing but a rain before the beginning of... real cold weather can save the valley... States, they say.

As compared with the rainfall for... the month of November in previous... years the precipitation is very small... The average rainfall has been from... two to three inches and it has run... over five inches. No explanation is... given by the weather bureau for the... remarkable conditions that exist.

One of the most serious results of... the drought is the inability of many... coal mines located in the Mississippi... Valley States to get water. The mines... need a large amount to run their en-... gines with and have been unable to... get it. The closing down of some of... the mines, among them being in the... district around Terre Haute, Ind., and... Danville, Ill., will follow within a... few days if there is no rain of the... mine owners do not haul water to the... mines in oil tank cars.

The railroads also are suffering as... the result of the drought. In Ohio it... has been found impossible to keep the... water tanks filled. All engineers have... received instructions to use water very... sparingly. At Bloomington, Ill., the... Chicago and Alton Railroad has been... forced to ask assistance from the city... officials and the city is furnishing the... railroad with 200,000 gallons of water... a day for its trains, as the Alton's... reservoirs have run dry. The conditions... in Ohio and Illinois are the same as... those elsewhere.

The exhaustion of the water supply... in many of the cities in the valley has... already resulted in an agitation for... the establishment of waterworks in... many of them. Jacksonville, Bloom-... ington, Danville and other cities have... joined in this agitation and the ques-... tion of obtaining better protection... from fire has been taken up. This... question is being agitated as the re-... sult of several of the cities finding... themselves without the means of stop-... ping a fire as the result of the drought.

In the country around Mount Ver-... non, Ill., sparks from passing engines... have set fire to grass and to the dry... corn which is standing in the fields... which is too dry to be shocked. These... fires have done considerable damage... to the crops and at times have threat-... ened to destroy farmhouses and to... sweep up to the boundaries of the... cities and villages.

All through Illinois and the other... Mississippi Valley States the greatest... difficulty has been experienced in find-... ing water for cattle. Those sections... which are on rivers or lakes, of course... have no difficulty at the present time... although some of the streams have... run nearly dry, but the cattle raisers... who are dependent upon wells and... reservoirs for water are badly off.

In the Wabash River Valley the... conditions are particularly bad. Water... is being holed for miles and the scar-... city is so great that a Clarke County... farmer was able to sell the privilege... of allowing cattle to drink from a... pond upon his farm for $100. Dairy... products have been advanced in price... as the result of the drought and in... Terre Haute the price of milk has gone... up 30 per cent.

Crops of fall wheat have been al-... most entirely destroyed by the drought... The wheat that is still growing is... making but little progress and small... hopes are entertained for the crop by... the farmer. Eye crops also have been... spoiled. The only benefit to the farm-... ers from the drought has been that it... has enabled them to gather their corn... crop with little difficulty and to get... into their barns corn which was laid... out by heavy storms early in Septem-... ber. The roads, covered with dust as... they are, have been good.

The amount of rain which has fallen... in the Mississippi Valley differs some-... what according to localities. It may... be said, however, that little or no rain... has fallen for seven weeks anywhere... in the valley. Columbus, Ohio, re-... ports that there has not been a rain-... storm in that vicinity for fifty-three... days. In Illinois a little more rain... has fallen than in Ohio. The rainfall... in Indiana also has been greater. Ken-... tucky vies with Ohio as a dry State... Wisconsin is in the same class as Ohio... and Kentucky, while Missouri is as... well off as Illinois, Kansas and Ne-... braska.

WORK BEFORE CONGRESS.

Left-Over Legislation that Will Come... Up in the Next Session.

Much important legislation left over... from the session of Congress concluded... last April remains to be settled at the... third session of the Fifty-eighth Con-... gress, writes a correspondent of the... Chicago Daily News. This winter much... of the work left undone must be done... or left to die in the committee rooms or... on the calendar. The work of the com-... mittees on possible legislation is prac-... tically finished in almost every instance... and they are ready to report to Congress.

Among the bills of national import-... ance left over were the two labor bills... The Grosvener injunction bill to limit... the meaning of the word "conspiracy" was... one of these and the other was a com-... plicated eight-hour bill for employers on gov-... ernment contracts. Both bills were dis-... cussed at length, but were postponed by... action of the respective committees to... which they were referred last spring.

Another important measure was the... one for the admission of Oklahoma, In-... dian Territory and New Mexico and Ariz-... on as States. New Mexico has been... an applicant for statehood for thirty... years. There has always been friction... among the representatives of the various... territories concerning the admission of... one or another. An agreement was... practically reached in the spring when... may permit these measures to come be-... fore Congress and be settled this ses-... sion by the admission of all.

Other measures in which Chicagoans... were interested which are likely to come... up for final action include the Hepburn... pure food bill, the Hepburn tariff bill... regulating interstate commerce in liquors... and the Lodge bill for the regulation of... the consular service; an appropriation for... changes in the new Chicago postoffice... for the betterment of the mail service; the... Mann drug bill, which permits patents... on the process of making drugs; only and... provides for the issue of such patents... between this and other countries, and the... labor dispute arbitration bill, which was... advocated by the late Volney W. Foster.

It is not unlikely that a public build-... ing bill and a river and harbors mea-... sure will be passed by the coming ses-... sion. The harbor bill is almost certain to... be passed, and the public building bill... will take his seat as Vice President on... March 4, will have the added prestige... of his new honor to enable him to push... the former bill.

Three other items of national interest... out of the regular run of legislation... are likely to be taken up at the session... of Congress before March 4. One of these... is the Swaine impeachment trial, the... principal being a federal judge in Florida... who is now resting under charges of un-... judicial conduct. The Senate trial will... be proceeded with by the Senate com-... mittee on ethics and elections and flut-... tered as soon as a possible. The third... item is the resolution introduced by... Congressman Crumpacker of Indiana pro-... viding for a reduction in southern rep-... resentation in Congress for States which... have practically disfranchised the negro... voters. All three of these subjects will... tend to lessen the interest of the country... in what might otherwise prove a routine... session of the national legislature.

BODY OF NISSEN FOUND.

Rash Attempt to Roll Across Lake... Michigan Ends in Death.

The body of the foolhardy Peter Nis-... sen, who attempted to cross Lake Michi-... gan in his aquatic balloon, was found on... the Michigan shore. The chill waters of... the lake were fatal to the man who had... succeeded in floating with air in his bal-... loon.

It was the aim of Nissen, the in-... ventor of that queer machine, the ill-... fated "Foolkiller," to devise an am-... phibian craft which would make the jour-... ney across sea and land to the north or... south pole. It is the science of psychol-... ogy rather than that of geographical sci-... ence to which Nissen's attention was... drawn.

Search of which was undertaken by... Nissen's men, but he was unable to... find it. It was the aim of Nissen, the... inventor of that queer machine, the ill-... fated "Foolkiller," to devise an am-... phibian craft which would make the jour-... ney across sea and land to the north or... south pole. It is the science of psychol-... ogy rather than that of geographical sci-... ence to which Nissen's attention was... drawn.

For years Nissen had experimented... with various strange boats, in one of... which he took a perilous trip through... the rapids of Niagara. His last inven-... tion was a boat which was intended... to roll before the wind, was obviously... of no utility for any practical pur-... poses. Apart from the subject of his... nautical devices, he appears to have been... an ordinarily industrious, common-sense... workman.

What aroused his ambition... to attempt such a feat was his impos-... sibility to say "No" to the "Foolkiller" at Chicago as nonchalantly... as another man might have set out to... test a new bicycle. In Nissen's case, un-... fortunately, there was no possibility of... any useful outcome from his experi-... ments.

Captured Giant Eel.

The entire catch, stretching four miles... to Miss Falls, N. H., has been drawn... out for the first time in half a century... and thousands of large pickered, horned... pike and eels were discovered. Oper-... atives at the pond of the city were given... the freedom of the banks, fishing ordi-... narily being prohibited, and with scoops... fished the fish in great numbers. Dump-... ing machines, brooms and baskets were... used to carry the fish to the city. Fish... were procured before the gates had... to be opened. The grandfather of the... eels was captured by Albert Provencher... it being about five feet long and weigh-... ing upward of seven pounds.

OUTWARD AND INWARD MAN.

By Rev. W. T. Milton.

The outward man perishes. There is... no help for it. The body should be... properly cared for. One has no right... to abuse it. We are in duty bound to... live in harmony with the laws of our... physical nature, so that we may con-... tinue the work of life to the end. But... with all the care we may take these... bodies will wear out. There is a vital... communion between goodness and... health, but goodness is no guarantee... of immortal youth.

Medical science has been a great... blessing to the race, but there comes... a time when the skill of the physician... is of no avail. One may seek the in-... vigorating influences of mountain at-... mosphere, or the stirring experiences... of a voyage at sea; one may get the... best there is in so-called Christian sci-... ence, magnetism or any other form of... suggestion, do this, and more, if you... will, but notwithstanding all, the out-... ward man will perish. The salut will... live longer than the slimmer, but yet... time will bring the same fate to both... alike.

But, when this is said, is all said?... is the whole story told? Alas, it is... the whole story in the case of many... The body is worn out; its work is done... The glory of former days is faded. A... physical wreck is all that remains. Pros-... pect there is none, and the retros-... pect is full of bitterness. Paul said... "Our outward man perishes," but that... was not the whole of his experience.

The cheering word was yet to follow... "Our inward man is renewed day by... day." There you have the secret of... his optimism. Some men glory in their... physical strength. They rejoice in... brassy muscles, which strengthen and... harden day by day. This, and this only... is their boast. They seem not to be... aware of the presence of the inner man.

This inner man, which Paul in an-... other place calls the hidden man, of... the heart, is our noblest possession. It... is, indeed, our very selves, the image... of the Eternal stamped upon us. But... it is a sad thought that oftentimes we... do not appreciate our highest gifts.

We treat them as the meanness of all... other possessions. We are careful for... our bodies and our minds—they must... be brought into subjection and rigidly... trained. But the soul is banished.

It is crowded into one obscure cor-... ner of our being and its claims are... wholly ignored.

God has planted within us the in-... stinct of eternal life. Indeed, it is... more than an instinct. This inner man... of which we are speaking was made... to endure. His desires and capacities... are not compassed by time. Why, then... do we crush and throttle him? It is... said that among migratory birds there... will be occasionally a bird hatched... that lacks the migratory instinct. When... in the fall of the year his mates... take their flight to the southland he... screams after them, but does not fol-... low. He lingers until the north winds... begin to blow and is lost in the wintry... blasts. Every man has the instinct... of eternal life. There is not one with-... out it. But how often is that instinct... cast out and trampled upon! Daily we... see about us friends and neighbors... taking their flight to the land of the... blest. We mourn for them, yet we re-... main unmoved. We set our affections... on the things of the present, we feed... and pamper the outward man, while... the inner man is neglected and stifled.

Paul's ground of rejoicing was the... inward man. Day by day he was be-... ing renewed. And why should he not... make this the ground of his rejoicing? We... confess that the present life is but... for the moment; that the tabernacle... which we now inhabit is passing away... and that we must shortly leave all... earthly possessions. We confess that... the soul alone is eternal and that it... alone is capable of infinite enjoyment.

If we are wise, if we are consistent... with our profession of faith, our boast... too, will be in the inner man and his... daily renewal. Our attitude toward... God, toward the truth and toward all... that makes for righteousness will be... such as to insure growth. They that... wait upon Jehovah shall renew their... strength; they shall mount up with... wings as eagles; they shall run and... not be weary; they shall walk and not... faint."

These followers healed the sick, cleansed the lepers, raised the dead... as Jesus did. They did greater works... than he did. Christ healed with the... hem of his garment. St. Peter healed... with his shadow and St. Paul healed... with the handkerchiefs which he had... touched.

THE POSSIBLE FACE.

By Rev. C. G. Wright.

"An example, that ye should follow... His steps."—I. Peter 2:21.

Strike a gait that will not kill your... horses and will bring your men in at... the week's end in good fighting trim,"... was the parting order of the command-... ing colonel to an expedition starting... out in hot pursuit of the marauding... Indians.

So when entering upon the campaign... of life it is of first importance to take... a stride you can maintain; the pursuit... is long and the way often rough and... weary. When choosing a calling, ven-... turing into place in the social and do-... mestic world, setting up moral ideals... and planning the religious belief, char-... acter and work because of the false... gait—it may be the lagging shamble of... failure or the impossible dash that... must end in disappointment and de-... feat.

Every man has his own gait, his... own peculiarities, that we call individ-... ualism. For this very reason the ath-... letic goes into training that he may... standardize himself physically, and... most men, by observing the laws of... the state and of good society, stand-... ardize themselves civilly and morally... without destroying their individuality.

It is the high office of the Captain... of our salvation both to direct us to... the discovery of ourselves and our in-... dividual gifts and to set the marching... step for us. Whereover our life may... be cast or our path laid, the ground... has been marked by the journey.

and is marked by His tracks.

Through... deathless conflicts, tremendous marches... long sieges, superlative, dark... watches, burdens, labors, trials and... victories. He has become identified... with every exigent phase of our life... You, our Lord knows our ways and our... capacity and equipment. With what... infinite compassion and solicitude must... He then behold the inexperienced and... untrained soul taking its survey of life... and beginning its first faltering steps... or reckless leaps in the way. And with... what tender care must He have marked... out the course and set the pace for... His people. To save us from mistake... misery and failure, He sets Himself... before us as a standard, as an example... to copy after.

His steps mark the course to be fol-... lowed, measure the rate of progress... standardize character and shape ideals... for all noble ambitions. He would stir... stimulate, help and train our feet to... follow in His own blood-stained tracks.

First, His is the pace possible. He has... adapted it to all the race; it is neither... too high nor too low, too hard nor too... easy. "It is spoken of as the "high calling"... the lofty walk. Strenuous, yes! But... the native nobility in us delights in... such a challenge as this. Difficulty... burden and glorious struggle make life... worth living and men worth saving... The pity and grief come only with... failure, and failure comes too often... from "the false pace."

The wise and loving apostle tells us... to submit to the Divine example and... to establish our steps by His and to... follow on in the golden mean that is... made surely possible to all the serious... and noble.

Again, His is a pace progressive. He... ever leads—even along the higher... levels of thought, development and en-... deavor, upward. He is ever calling us... on and upward.

And His is a pace that arrives. One... who follows in His steps needs duty... with preparedness and hails opportuni-... ty with readiness, fights his last battle... with increasing strength and strides... along the last march with hope and joy... unabated and faith triumphant.

In all the maze of systems and... creeds Christianity is the only practical... religion. It is workable in every hu-... man situation. It gets there in every... dark problem and splendid enterprise... if properly employed. When His... schemes have failed and devoted... weary feet halt by the way or go far... afield this golden course offers a way... out and on to success.

Taking leave of his sons, an old... Virginian said: "I have no estate to... leave you, my dear boys, but a good... name. Remember that behind you... stand seven generations of good wom-... en. Be worthy of them and go out in... the world and do something worth... while."

Behind us are fifty generations of... the faithful, who, by following in His... steps, "have fought a good fight, fin-... ished their course and kept the faith."

Let us try to be worthy of them and... of the Master whose disciples they... were, and let us go out into life and do... the things we can best do. These are... things worth while.

FAITH IN CHRIST'S WORD.

The Divine Savior and Redeemer... bodies and souls of men, being fully... declared that he who believed on... Him should do the works that he him-... self did and greater works should be... do after the translation of Christ to... heaven. There is no limitation to the... declaration. Faith in Christ should... bring about the wonderful results in... every age and in every land.

To understand this we must recog-... nize a God of love and power, who is... at the heart of the universe and im-... mediately present in the working of... every natural law or force—physical... mental, moral, spiritual. Christ Je-... sus is the manifested God. All power... is given unto Him in heaven and on... earth. Because of this power he com-... manded his followers to go, teach, preach, heal.

These followers healed the sick, cleansed the lepers, raised the dead... as Jesus did. They did greater works... than he did. Christ healed with the... hem of his garment. St. Peter healed... with his shadow and St. Paul healed... with the handkerchiefs which he had... touched.

His doubting, hesitating disciples... to-day must rise to the greatness of... their privileged and meet the respon-... sibilities rolled upon them by the Christ... of God. They, too, with the early... church must teach, preach, heal.

As soon as you are proud of your... humility it dies.

Burdens may be the ballast that... saves the ship.

Tickets in the pupil will not lead... the pews into truth.

Many are willing to lose this world... —by swallowing it.

A little sorrow may teach more than... many sermons.

Kickers hide the best things in... the dust they rise.

Canned charity may feed the body... but it cannot fill the heart.

The glory church is likely... filled

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of indigestion inflame the mucous membranes lining the stomach and expose the glands to secrete mucus instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.
