formly a minority. There is always a minority within the party, although it is not represented in the platform of convention. It is common that a struggle is made to exclude the minority to the end that harmony may prevail in the councils of the party. This is an occupation that extends to the working up committees, on resolutions, to the end that the reports may emphasize certain things and minimize or ignore other things. No platform has ever yet been adopted that expressed what the whole party thinks. The more that can be hoped for the platform is that it shall ring true to the essential principles of the party and that it shall be broad enough in its treatment of issues to leave standing room, and sitting room, if you please, to all who are sincerely of the faith. The party creed has been declared under the exercise of delegated power, and under the exercise of delegated power the creed may be amended, taken from and added to. The people are free to choose their representatives, and the representatives chosen are responsible to the people. If the representatives are not held to responsibility the primary fault is with the people. There is much neglected activity in a public sentiment, is not controlled by precedent or by what a few select men, by the exercise of their power, have carefully submitted to writing. The paramount issue of the democratic party in the campaign of 1896 began speaking in importance following the election of that year. As the times brightened there was increasing indifference toward it. What was the plea of its interest friends? The plea was that it could not be set aside or properly considered until the party in national convention should take that step. But there were not many democrats who were simple in that view. They clung to the idea that this is a free country and they had the right of opinion and the right of petition. The Kansas City platform was saved through the personal exertion of Mr. Bryan, and in 1900 was made through four years of enforced allegiance to the free and unlimited coinage of silver. But within the party continued to spread and at St. Louis the majority was converted into a minority. The platform of 1896 was not accepted by the whole party; dissenters went on with their work for the next national, and they continued their work after Mr. Bryan's second race for the presidency. The fierce contest within the party was to its own hurt, but the right of contest belonged to one side as much as to the other. Opinion within such a body of voters as constitutes the membership of either of the great parties has wide range; environment is different and business interests draw men to opposing views. If party strength is to be preserved it is essential that considerable attention should be given to conflicting opinion. The platform expression, if it be prudent, is necessarily a compromise, stopping short of extreme statement. It must leave standing room for the minority. It must avoid the slamming of doors in the faces of men who for the time are unable by the strength of their votes to dictate phraseology. If wisely drawn the platform will be such as they can accept for the campaign and in behalf of the unity of the party. Such a platform was made at Chicago last year for the national republican party and Theodore Roosevelt took his place on it as the party candidate for president, and Charles W. Fairbanks took his place on it as the party candidate for vice president. It is not to be presumed that these men at that time thought precisely alike upon all questions; this is not to be presumed any more than that all the members of the committee on resolutions thought precisely alike on all questions. With the party at large, it may be assumed, President Roosevelt was the better platform; but it cannot be affirmed that the party voluntarily surrendered everything into the hands of the president. To do that would be to surrender popular right in the conduct of the government. The contest of opinion was to go on; and that is a contest the president wants continued, for he appreciates that the strength of the government is with the people, and that tendencies in government are directed by their will. The delegates who sat yesterday may not be the delegates to sit tomorrow. Whoever they are their responsibility runs to the majority they represent, and the responsibility of any majority all the time runs to the whole people. Platforms may be changed, laws may be changed, public officers may be snuffed out in the twinkling of an eye. If there is charge of inconsistency the charge lodges against the freedom of opinion. It is useless to proffer ways and means to suppress popular debate. It is of some consequence to separate the wheat from the chaff. He is a wise delegate who knows what his people want and will stand for, and he is not unfit for leadership if he gives his strength to the success of his understanding. — Sioux City Journal.

 Barley Averages From 15 to 25 Bushels per Acre.
 Corn Averages From 25 to 50 Bushels per Acre.

Read what the following well known men have to say:

I have made several trips to different parts of South Dakota and examined the lands pretty thoroughly in various counties and finally I bought a hundred acres through C. R. Munson and I believe the investment a good one for the money put into it. The soil is first-class and crops excellent and the farmers in a very good condition.
 H. KELLOGG, Retired Farmer.

I went to South Dakota last week with C. R. Munson and he had prejudiced against the country and didn't believe that I could be induced by anyone to buy any land there. After driving over, Beadle county and seeing the lands and crop conditions and the general prosperity of the farmers I became convinced that it was a good country for investment and I bought a quarter section and am fully satisfied I made a good purchase.
 HENRY HANSEN, Retired Farmer.

I was induced by C. R. Munson to go up into South Dakota and look it over and at the time of going had no intention of buying any land. After driving over Beadle county and seeing the lands and crop conditions and the general prosperity of the farmers I became convinced that it was a good country for investment and I bought a quarter section and am fully satisfied I made a good purchase.
 ED. A. JOHNSON, Furniture Dealer.

I went to South Dakota last week to look over that country and after taking a three days' drive over Beadle county and looking over the country I believed it to be a good country for investment or in which to buy a farm, because when properly farmed the crops are good, and I bought a quarter section and think it a good investment.
 HENRY STUMPF, Farmer.

My opinion of South Dakota is favorable. Went to 'look' and bought 400 acres on my judgment. You will find good grass and a healthy crop condition as good as Wayne county, considering the acreage.
 H. S. WELCH, Jeweler.

We have known C. R. Munson for the past ten years and it affords us pleasure to recommend him as a most careful and honest in all his dealings. We have known parties that have bought land of him without seeing the land and after seeing it found it fully up to his statement. We would not hesitate to take his word for any statement he may make.
 WAYNE, Nebr., July 3, 1905.

This is to certify that we have known and had business dealings with C. R. Munson for the past ten years and our transactions with him have been entirely satisfactory and we heartily recommend him to any one desiring to purchase land as we feel satisfied that everything will be exactly as represented by him.

THREE SHIFTS OF MEN AT WORK

New Sullivan Drill Now Installed

Word was received during the week that a large size Sullivan drill was put to work on the main tunnel and that three shifts of men went to work on July 25. They work while you sleep now. Day and night, like the great Niagara, the ponderous machine is driving its way through the rock-bound vaults that contain the yellow metal. WE ARE LIVING AT A GREAT AGE of advancement. Things that took months and oftentimes years to accomplish during our grandfathers' time are now accomplished in a week. New machinery has been invented that brings mining down to a science and to a business proposition. Ore valued at $100.00 per ton was thrown on the waste heap ten years ago and now all ore that runs $3.00 and better per ton is all saved at a profit by the modern improved machinery.

SOME MEN ARE SATISFIED if they make two or three per cent. on their investment but most men in the spirit of the age: men with energy and with an ambition to accomplish something seek other investments. Don't spend your life like a mud turtle. Either get in line with the Roosevelt idea of the strenuous life or step out of the ring. Last week a mine was opened up west of us that I am told has revealed between eight and ten million dollars in sight. Four months ago one of our business men had an opportunity to get some of that stock, but he put it off and today it can't be had at any price.

Make Money by Prompt Action

We have been informed that it has been definitely decided to advance the price of stock in the King Solomon Tunnel and Development Company 25 per cent. on September 15 if it has not advanced before. The directors hold the right to advance it at any time and it is not safe to wait as it is liable to go up "while you wait" and you will have to pay the difference. The stock is worth more than 20 cents and will soon cost more.

You have been THINKING of getting some stock. The time has come to ACT. If there is any point on which you are not quite clear, come in and I will talk it over with you, but don't wait until it is too late. THREE SHIFTS ARE AT WORK ON THE TUNNEL and that means that pay ore will be struck and the price taking more than one step upward. "Watch us climb," but while you do it, have your stock in the safe. You run no risk in buying the stock before you have seen the properties because we will refund your money if you visit them any time within six months and find that we have misrepresented.

I shall expect you to come and see me, or, if you cannot do that, to send in your order by mail.

Now is the time to subscribe. Where can you make 25 per cent. in so short a time?

O. A. King, District Manager

Office Over First National Bank, Wayne, Nebraska

Remember we take another excursion to the mines about August 30th. Lay aside your work through the hot month of August and spend a few days in co of Colorado.

Ashe Hurlbert and wife were down from Sholes on Monday. Mr. Hurlbert has 250 acres of flax up in that country and judging from the present price of flax it ought to net him a nice sum.

Miss Eva Hitchcock returned to this city from Chicago on Friday evening. Miss Hitchcock has been employed for the past year in Chicago and will spend a short vacation with her parents in this city.

Miss Edith Snodgrass left Friday morning for Ocala. Miss Snodgrass will visit for a short time at that place and then will join her parents at Kearney, where the family will make their future home.

Mrs. Jennie Kintz, who has been employed for several months at the Fair store in this city, returned to her home at Ft. Dodge, Iowa, Friday. Mrs. Kintz made many friends while here who will very much regret her departure.

The State Board of equalization did another fancy stunt before they quit. They increased the assessment in Wayne county, on horses 20 per cent, mules, jacks and jennets 30 per cent, cattle 5 per cent, pigs 80 per cent and sewing machines 25 per cent. Bound to make lots of work for the county clerk.

The Omaha Indians are having quite a squabble with the government over the payment of their trust fund. Through their lawyer, Hiram Chase, the Indians as a corporation have commenced suit in the district court of Thurston county to enjoin Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock, Gen. W. H. Beck, special distributing officer, and Supt. John H. Mackay from expending any more of the $100,000 set aside. It seems that the payment has been dilly dallying along without any apparent results and the disbursement has been slow and entirely unsatisfactory. Too much red tape has entered into the affair and the Indians firing of this have accordingly commenced suit for the injunction.

The Northern Pacific has a strike on its hands that involves about 2,000 operators. A large number of these operators also serve as station agents so that this makes the affair all the more complicated. The strike will be a nuisance not only to the railroad company but also to the people who wish to travel or ship goods. The issue seems to be simply this. For a long time the employers and employees have been working to get a satisfactory scale of wages and had it most completed when a disagreement arose in regard to pay for Sunday over time. This Sunday work involves only a comparatively few of the 2,000 operators, yet because of this few and because the company wanted to protect their treasury a little more, the whole works are ordered out. It is almost a safe bet that just as the Northern Pacific strike of years ago ended, just so this one will end. About 1,800 of this brave 2,000 will be seeking new jobs and greener pastures.

It will not be very long now until the first of September will roll around.

What trials and tribulations that first Monday in September does bring to a small town. The school bell rings again after its long vacation, and the unwilling youngster must submit to being hauled up before that grim tribunal of justice, his mother, who carefully scrutinizes neck, ears, face and hands for any speck of grime and even tries to scrub the summer's tan off a fellow's face with Bon Ami or hand Sapolin. What a mean, measly month September is anyway. A fellow can't get up from the dinner table and hike to the creek for an afternoon's stay, but he must needs put on his shoes and stockings and in a prim, precise manner take himself off to school. There to await, sweetener, yes, even swear at the close confinement and content himself with the thought that if he can sneak off from rakin' the yard or diggin' the potatoes after school maybe he and Pete Barnes can get an hour's enjoyment down at the swimming hole.

Joseph Holdobler, wife and children, who have been living on the Lowell Metcalf farm southwest of town, disappeared two weeks ago Tuesday from the farm they occupied and no trace of them has been found. They drove away with a team and buggy, leaving behind another span of horses, their live stock, chickens, crop and household goods. They had the rent on the farm paid, and aside from a small obligation which the First National bank held, their financial affairs seemed all right. At first it was thought something was wrong, as the house and granary were locked and a notice for people to keep out, but on Monday C. S. Samuelson and another man went through the house and granary, and found nothing wrong. The family are Germans. The head of the family having been in this country five years. He had been in the German army and had served this country in the Philippines. Of late him and her have been suspected of not being of right mind, as they always carried guns and drove people off the place. He also imagined that his wife had fallen heir to a fortune by the death of a princess in Germany, and that the money had been sent to Chicago and that other parties were trying to rob them of the money. There is no clue to their whereabouts, and neighbors are looking after the stock to see that it does not suffer. The parties who searched the house found letters from his brother in Germany and from them it appears that he and his wife did not get along well. People who were acquainted with Mrs. Holdobler say that she has been in the asylum twice. It is also said that the family has caused the sheriff of Wayne county considerable trouble before. -Wakefield Republican.

ORGAN FOR SALE OR TRADE.

A good second-hand organ for sale or trade at a good bargain. FLETCHER & JOHNSON.

The sad news is borne to Nebraska that the great seal of this state is to be a part of the embellishment scheme for the part silver service that is to be given the battleship bearing the commonwealth's name. Without showing least disrespect for official brand of this great state let it be said that a more beautiful ornamentation could be chosen for a punch bowl. Nebraska's seal, executed years ago, is, like other seals, neither well balanced nor appropriate. There is a sidewheel steamer, a blacksmith at work in the center of a wheat field and train of cars outlined against the Rocky mountains, which are apparently from the aforesaid river a distance of perhaps three miles and a half. It may be intirely proper to have the seal on the silver service. So perhaps the only cause for regret is that the seal is antiquated. -Lincoln Star.

THE BEST TIME TO DIP

It is advisable to dip cattle twice in the fall and twice in the spring, at intervals of ten or twelve days, during the summer when any skin disease is visible. Yet it is difficult to persuade owners to dip cattle at intervals of ten or twelve days. Experienced men say that it is best to dip twice in the fall regardless of the condition of the cattle.

I dipped 110 head of S. E. Auker's on the 12th. They were through in fine shape and he reports them doing splendid in ten or twelve days. I had a little bad luck with the first small bunch, so I cleaned my tank and charged it with different dip that is all right.

If you have any cattle to dip drop me a card or call me up on phone No. 190.

family a minority. There is always a minority within the party, although it frequently happens it is not represented in the caucus or convention. It is common that a struggle is made to exclude the minority to the end that harmony may prevail in the caucuses of the party. This is an objection that extends to the working up of committees on resolutions, to the fact that the reports may emphasize certain things and minimize or ignore certain other things. No platform has ever yet been adopted that expressed what the whole party thinks. The motto that can be hoped for the platform is that it shall ring true the political principles of the party and that it shall be broad enough in its treatment to include all who are loyal to the party. If you please, to all who are sincerely of the faith. The party creed has been declared under the exercise of delegated power, and under the exercise of delegated power the creed may be amended, taken from and added to. The people are free to choose their representatives, and the representatives chosen are responsible to the people. If the representatives are not held to responsibility, the primary fault is with the people. There is much negligence in electing representatives, but an energetic party is not controlled by precedent or by what a few solemn men, by the exercise of their delegated power, have carefully submitted to writing.

The paramount aim of the democratic party in the campaign of 1896 began in the campaign following the election of that year. At the time considered there was increasing indifference toward it. What was the plea of its interests? The plea was that it could not be set aside or properly considered until the party in national convention should take their stand. The party were not many democrats who were sincere in that view. They clung to the idea that this is a free country and that the right of opinion and the right of expression are free. The Kansas platform was swept through the national convention of Mr. Bryan and his friends was made through four years and enforced allegiance to the free coinage and unlimited coinage of silver. But opposition within the party continued to spread, and at St. Louis the majority was inverted into a minority. The platform of 1896 was not accepted by the whole party; dissenters went on with their work pending the next national convention and they continued their work after Mr. Bryan's second race for the presidency. The fiercest contest within the party was to its own hurt, but the right of contest belonged to one side as much as to the other.

Opinion within such a body of voters as constitutes the membership of either of the great parties has wide range; environments are different and business interests draw men to opposing views. If party strength is to be preserved it is essential that considerable attention should be given to conflicting opinion. The platform expression, if it be prudent, is necessarily a compromise, stopping short of extreme statements. It must leave standing room for the majority. It must avoid the slamming of doors in the faces of men who for the time are unable by the strength of their votes to dictate phraseology. If wisely drawn the platform will be such as they can accept for the campaign and in behalf of the unity of the party.

Such a platform was made at Chicago last year for the national republican party and Theodore Roosevelt took his place on it as the party candidate for president, and Charles W. Fairbanks took his place on it as the party candidate for vice-president. It is not to be

THE RUSSO JAPANESE WAR.

Notwithstanding preparations are reported for what may be a considerable battle in northern Korea all eyes have been turned on the movements of the peace envoys. M. Witte, Russia's chief envoy, arrived in New York on Wednesday. Saturday both the Japanese and Russian envoys, having first been received separately, were formally entertained by the president at Oyster Bay. In the matter of precedence in reception, Japan, as was expected, won another victory. Baron Komura was received in advance of M. Witte, not, as pains were taken to explain, because Japan was leading in the war, but because the Japanese peace envoy was the first to reach this country. The question of precedence at table was diplomatically dodged by a "bullet luncheon" so arranged that there was no question of precedence for anybody. The peace conferences will arrive at Portsmouth, N. H., which is to be the scene of the peace parley, today. The first important business session probably will be held tomorrow. In a very few days the world will know whether there is likelihood the negotiations will bring about peace.

Most of the stuff which has been printed as to the certainty or improbability of peace has been based on imagination or inaccurate information. The first thing M. Witte did after arriving in New York was to deny a report, alleged to have been received in Paris by wireless, to the effect that M. Witte believed Japan's terms would be "intolerable," and that he entertained practically no hope that the conference would be able to agree. The same report quoted the czar as saying he should be considered a "courier to ascertain Japan's terms" rather than an ambassador to negotiate peace. M. Witte now makes it plain that he comes as the authorized agent of the czar, fully empowered to sign a peace treaty, if Japan's terms shall come within the limits fixed by the czar. This removes all danger that the Japanese envoys will refuse to receive the Russian envoys on account of lack of competent credentials. There is, of course, the possibility that the czar might change his mind and refuse to accept a treaty after it was made or cable M. Witte to insist upon more liberal terms than were at first outlined. This possibility may be believed to be remote. It will be remembered M. Witte was not anxious to accept the mission. No doubt he has an iron-clad contract with his ruler that peace shall be agreed to if it can be secured on the terms outlined by M. Witte to the czar as about what Russia could accept with honor.

As to Japan's terms little is now discussed but the matter of indemnity. The most Almar Sato, the Japanese peace agent, can be induced to say on this point is that Japan will ask a "reasonable indemnity." In the same connection he talks of the cost of the war as approximating $1,000,000,000. That would fix the indemnity now incurred at about $300,000,000. If Japan were to add the expense of closing up the war and restoring affairs to a peace basis, the total cost would approximate $750,000,000. It is believed this is about the amount Japan may name. As to its reasonableness her envoys may point out that the figure named is a quarter of a billion lower than the indemnity France managed to pay without undue humiliation at the close of the Franco-German war. However, there is reason to assume Japan will not be arbitrary as to the indemnity total. If Russia should begin by trying to get off with the payment of only a nominal indemnity Japan might reduce her demand to $350,000,000, or even less, in consideration of the ceding of important warships and the island of Sakhalin, or the disarmament of Vladivostok.

In all probabilities the negotiations will not be prolonged. At the outset most of Japan's demands will be essential and irreducible. Most of the dickering is likely to be over indemnity. If at the start Russia is willing to accept Japan's essential demands including the principle of indemnity there will be bright prospects for a successful and speedy termination of the peace parley. If Russia shall balk on one of the main demands Japan probably would lose no time in withdrawing her envoys and instructing Marshal Oyama to get busy. If, for instance, Japan should demand the neutralization of Vladivostok and Russia should positively refuse to consider it, the peace parley might end abruptly. —Sioux City Journal.

Easy Pill

Easy to take and easy to act is that famous little pill DeWitt's Little Early Risers. This is due to the fact that they tonic the liver instead of purging it. They never gripe nor sicken, not even the most delicate lady, and yet they are so certain in results that no one who uses them is disappointed. They cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, headache, malaria and ward off pneumonia and fevers.

Good Lands! Cheap Lands!

In the very best part of South Dakota. As good, soil can be found anywhere, with abundance of water easily obtainable, either by shallow or artesian wells. Hand county is today the best place in South Dakota for the investor or the homemaker. We grow good corn, have an abundance of wild grass and wherever sown tame grass does excellently. Wheat, oats, flax, spelts, potatoes and all kinds of vegetables yield wonderfully. Our lands are low in price, but rapidly advancing. Don't put off going until prices get away up. We know every acre of land in this and surrounding counties and will gladly give you any information you desire. Miller is the county seat and is located on the Northwestern Pierre line, forty miles west of Huron. Call on or write us for information. You can get one-way rates plus $2 at Sioux City any day.
