TWENTY-NINTH YEAR.

BADLY SCALDED

Child of P. F. Pannebaker Injured.

PULLS PLUG FROM MACHINE

Let's Boiling Water Pour Over Its Arms and Breast--Mother Acts Promptly.

The 11-month-old child of P. F. Pannebaker was pretty severely scalded about its hands, arms and breast on Wednesday at the home of E. B. Chichester in Plum Creek. The family washing was being done in the room where the little one was and unnoticed by those present the child crept to the washing machine just after a boiler of hot water had been emptied into it and pulled the plug from the machine and the scalding hot water shot out over the child. The mother saw the child just as it was in the act of pulling the plug but not in time to prevent it, but by quick work saved it from probably being fatally scalded. As it was its arms and breast were pretty badly affected, but at last accounts was on the way to recovery.

CULLER-ADAIR

At 12 o'clock today at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Adair, Charles L. Culler and Miss Martha E. Adair were joined in wedlock in the presence of the family and relatives, Rev. J. G. Shick, of Blair, Nebraska, a former Methodist Episcopal pastor of Dakota City, performing the ceremony. The groom is a mail clerk on the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railway, and a former principal of the schools at this place and is well liked by his acquaintances. The bride is a lifelong Dakota City girl and has been prominently identified with church, society and educational work. For a number of years past she has been a teacher in the St. Paul City public schools, in the Hancock building, resigning her position last spring. The bridal couple left this afternoon for Wayne, Nebraska, where they will live.

The above is from Dakota City correspondence to the Sioux City Journal, October 13. Our readers will readily recognize in the groom our townsman, Charles Culler, who is one of the most highly respected of our young men and to him and his bride the best wishes of a wide circle of friends will be cordially extended.

PREACHER LOSES HIS CLOTHES.

Rev. Shiner, at one time pastor of the M. E. church at Wakefield, had an aggravating experience lately according to the following from the Sioux City Journal:

"Aided by the Sioux City police Rev. Elmer H. Shiner, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Dakota City, yesterday recovered a much needed portion of his wardrobe, which had been stolen from his home, and had the satisfaction of seeing the alleged culprit safely jailed.

"The reverend gentleman was compelled to deliver his Sunday sermon in a pair of old hunting trousers, which were about three inches too short for his elongated posterior limbs. He carefully shielded his extremities behind chairs and was careful not to make any unnecessary display of his physique to the gaze of the congregation.

"On Saturday night a bold burglar who had not a touch of veneration for the sacred calling, effected an entrance into the parsonage and deprived the pastor of several pairs of trousers. In fact, all the clothing which is wont to adorn his walking appendages and other articles valued at $100.

RAIN RECORDS SMASHED.

The Norfolk News, a paper that has been keeping tab on the amount of rain that has fallen this year, states that this has been the greatest year of rainfall within a third of a century. The News says: "The year 1905 will go down on the pages of Nebraska's history as that of the greatest rainfall known in the state within a quarter of a century. Already the records of all years within the past thirty-three years have been smashed to pieces by the water that has dropped during the first nine months of this year. More than thirty-four inches--34.98 to be precise--have fallen into the rain gauge during the first nine months of 1905. The greatest amount of moisture known in Norfolk during an entire year was 34.23. That was just two years ago. During the past September 6.14 inches of rain fell in Norfolk. Last year 4 inches fell in October so that if the same amount of moisture comes this year, there will be another addition to the already copious yield."--Percy Leader.

John R. Morris and wife returned home last Monday from Wales where they have visited the last four months. William Morris, a nephew of John R.'s, came with them. He will take up his home in the settlement.--Carroll Index.

Attorney Siman reports that there were four births in Winside last week. Mr. Closson of Carroll, declares that there were ten in his town during the same time. However, Winside is still conceded to be the more populous town.

Winside has not been able as yet to sell its water bonds of $10,000, which were voted to be issued some months ago. They bear 5 per cent and it seems as though investors would want them, and someone will probably gather them in before long.

A. E. Littell had to begin teaching school at Winside this week and consequently can give but very little time to the canvass for superintendent and will to a large extent depend on his friends to push his campaign from now until election time.

Frank Gordon who has finished his cement walk building in Wayne for this year, has gone to Winside where he has the contract to construct a long stretch of walk around the new school houses there. After finishing that work he proposes to take a trip to California.

Some crabbed, disappointed old German professor has declared the bite of a pretty girl is as poisonous as that of the most deadly reptile. Now boys it is time to saw off exchanging osculation or you are liable to get hitched for life to one of these awful dangerous critters.

Winside's new public school house, completed at a cost of $15,000, was opened yesterday for the admission of teachers and students. The building has four large rooms besides a recitation room and basement. The teachers are: A. E. Littell, Miss Ringer, Mrs. Wolfe and John Santry.

One of Wayne's bright little three-year-olds was out riding in the country the other day with an uncle and aunt, and after crossing several bridges with railings on the sides they finally came to one devoid of railings when the little one quickly said: "Why is it uncle Charley this bridge has no handles to?"

The writer was out in the west end of the county Monday and heard more county clerk talk in the one day than can be heard in Wayne in a week. The boys out in that end of the county are enthusiastic for Frank Benson and say they will give him a vote that will show that he is liked among the people who know him best.

There is a great deal of typhoid fever in different parts of Nebraska, due largely if not wholly to tainted drinking water. Municipalities should see that their water systems are kept pure and free from germ-breeding elements. Otherwise people will have to quit drinking water or migrate to the mountains where they can absorb snow water the year round.

County Attorney Siman was down from Winside Monday. He says the courts at Winside are kept busy these days dispensing justice to those who violate the peace and dignity of the community by frequent fistic encounters. When the town gets its water system built, more water will doubtless be drunk, resulting in less development of pugilistic proclivities.

Wayne is fast getting to be one of the best sidewalked towns in the state. Within the last eighteen months several miles of cement walks in the business and residence districts have been built. Next year promises to be another big year in this kind of improvement and it will only be a few years when, without a doubt, every sidewalk in the city will be cement, stone or brick.

Last Friday afternoon Marshal Miner met the train and arrested a young traveling salesman for an unpaid bill at one of the Norfolk hotels. Fortunately a friend in town loaned him the wherewith to square matters and he was permitted to go his way fully convinced that it doesn't pay to get too sweet on someone else's wife without having the money to pay all bills contracted.

L. C. Mettleton and family of Hoskins precinct, leave today for San Jacinto, California, to make their future home. Mr. Mettleton is one of Wayne county's good citizens and prosperous farmers who finds this more necessary on account of health. Mr. Mettleton and one of his sons are badly used up with rheumatism and believe the climate of the coast country will be beneficial.

An unusual attachment resulted in murder and suicide at Sioux City Sunday. An old rooster by the name of Darrow, hailing from Lead, South Dakota, was traveling with his son's wife, with whom he had evidently become infatuated. While in a hack going to the Northwestern depot, he drew a revolver and killed the woman and then shot himself. It was the unhappy ending of shattered marriage vows.

Have you noticed the smallness of the delinquent tax list as it has appeared in these columns for the past few weeks? Say, it's a bird with mighty little picking on its bones for the newspapers this year, but it looks good for the property owners of the county. Its smallness is an eloquent tribute to the prosperous conditions existing at this time. We hope its size will never increase even though we are obliged to go without tobacco or whiskey as a result thereof.

Frank Benson is making excellent progress in his campaign for clerk. Everywhere he meets a hearty welcome and is assured of the united support of the republican party. The same may be said of Bert Brown who is in the contest for the treasuryship. Both gentlemen have made gratifying headway in arousing republicans to the wisdom and importance of winning the two leading offices of the county from the minority party.

Mrs. Katherine Bill, mother of Mrs. F. A. Barry of Wayne, died at the residence of another daughter, Mrs. Conroy, in Carroll, Friday afternoon, aged 70 years. Her death was caused by infirmities incident to old age. The remains were conveyed to Mrs. Bill's former home, Morehead, Iowa, where the funeral took place Sunday. She leaves seven grown sons and daughters, five of whom live in Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Berry attended the funeral, returning home Monday.

W. W. Theobald, advertising manager of the King Solomon Mining Co., residing in Madison, Wisconsin, is in Wayne this week, having stopped here Monday on his way home from the mine. For several years Mr. Theobald was pastor of the Baptist church in Wayne and has many friends here who are glad to see him. He is guest of his brothers, S. R. and Horace Theobald, and is spending some time with O. A. King in promoting the interests of the King Solomon mine.

The funeral of L. L. Lush who died of heart failure at his home two miles southwest of town on Thursday of last week, took place Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock from his late residence, the sermon being preached by Rev. C. N. Dawson, former pastor of the Wayne M. E. church. Notwithstanding the rainy weather, a large crowd of friends attended the services and followed the remains to their final resting place in the Wayne cemetery. Mr. Lush was born in Indiana, moving from there to Iowa and coming to Wayne county eight years ago. He was about 62 years of age. He had been a member of the M. E. church for thirty years and was a worthy and highly respected citizen. He leaves a wife, three daughters and two sons to mourn his loss, besides many friends who will ever remember him with esteem.

The new room occupied by the Neely & Craven hardware firm is certainly a fine one and shows to wonderful advantage the great stock of that enterprising business firm. We doubt if there is a much nicer or better suited room for the purpose in any town the size of Wayne in the state and we know of no firm better deserving of a room of this kind than this firm. Their business is a splendid one and every customer is always treated in the most courteous and gentlemanly manner by the firm or its employees. Traveling men are loud in their praise of the appearance of their splendid stock as exhibited in the new, light, comfortable room they occupy and say they do not know of any firm that is more nicely fixed. If you have not already noticed the appearance of the stock and room just do so the next time you are in town.

HOG CHOLERA

Prevails in Vicinity of Wayne.

ALSO EXTENDS TO RESERVATION

Strip Three Miles Wide Said to be in the Affected District--Considerable Loss.

Hog cholera has for some weeks past been creating considerable havoc in the swine herds east of Wayne, and we also learn that a few herds in the north part of Wilbur precinct are pretty badly affected by it. East of the city John Koeford, Charley Niess, August Samuelson, E. Welbaum, Henry Ruback, Ed Samuelson and Mrs. Repine have lost very heavily on account of the disease, and it is said a strip about three miles wide, extending to the reservation, has the disease in greater or less virulence and the losses as a whole are pretty large.

There is no widows in Wayne county whose husbands wore Staley underwear. Women who love their husbands will govern themselves accordingly.

THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER.

This is the fourth season of that powerful melodramatic success entitled "The Convict's Daughter." So far it has repeated its yearly successful business, crowding the theatres to their utmost capacity. Surely there must be a reason for such large audiences. The secret of its success lies in the fact that both the author and manager have put forth their best efforts to please and supply the demands of a melodramatic-loving public. The box office returns show the wisdom of their judgment.

This is a pure American play depicting love and pathos, hate and passion, a play that touches the heart. There is one way, and only one way, to appreciate this play, and that is to see it. For nearly three hours intense dramatic scenes, laugh-provoking complications follow each other in rapid succession. An unequalled company of artists have been engaged, each one for his or her special character, and a wealth of beautiful scenery, startling mechanical effects has been provided. At the opera house, Wayne, Nebraska, Wednesday evening, November 8.

If Jack Cherry and Charley Reynolds have the lead pipe cinch on re-election to their respective offices claimed by the Democrat we do not see what causes these gentlemen to hustle and beg for votes as they are doing in the present campaign.

How much support did Jack Cherry or Charley Reynolds give the republican state or national ticket last year? Can you call to memory any good word you ever heard either of them utter in behalf of President Roosevelt, Congressman McCarthy or any other republican?

In politics as in other things, favors ought to be reciprocal, and can you call to mind any instance in which democrats have voted for republicans. Democrats are noted for their strict adherence to the candidates of their own party and republicans ought to bear this in mind when they vote this fall.

Don't be fooled by the cards of office seekers that do not tell what party they belong to, into believing they are republicans. That is a pretty old gag Jack and Charley are working. Why don't they say they are democrats, or do they think you are ignorant of their politics and can fool you into voting for them under the impression that they belong to your party.

Everywhere in the state democratic papers, realizing that their party is in a hopeless minority, are urging voters to disregard politics and vote for men. With just as good and often better men on the republican ticket, there is absolutely no reason in their plea. But they know they must have republican votes to win and in the effort to get them are covering up politics as much as possible.

Republicans who can be persuaded to vote to put democratic candidates into local offices are called good fellows until after election and then the whole thing is declared a democratic triumph and the republicans who have been persuaded to help out are labeled "easy marks" and secretly laughed at for being so easily induced to pull down their own party and its candidates.

The HERALD's editorials in support of republican candidates are not paid for by any man however loudly the Democrat may proclaim to the contrary. Neither does it ask you to vote for Judge Hunter or any other man because it will bring business to it. It asks you to vote for him because he has proven himself a fair and just judge, one whose decisions have been sustained by the higher courts.

The principal argument the Democrat puts forth in behalf of Jack Cherry and Charley Reynolds is that they are poor and need the offices and that Bert Brown and Frank Benser are well-to-do, thrifty fellows who don't need the places. According to its way of figuring the offices of the county should go only to the thrifless—men unable to meet their fellows in business and hold their own. In other words, to be frugal, industrious and thrifty is an offense and the man guilty thereof should be punished by his fellows and all favors withheld from him.

The election is not quite three weeks distant, and they will be busy weeks for the candidates and their aiders and abettors. Democratic candidates in Wayne county will be particularly aggressive and busy trying to show republican voters that they should cut out their own party's candidates and give their votes to democratic aspirants. Will their pleas for support get you to vote against the nominees of your own party and be instrumental in placing the candidates of the minority party in the best offices of the county? No democrat can be elected to a place in Wayne county without republican votes. Will they get them?

The HERALD is not begging you or any other man to vote for any of the republican candidates for county office because it sees in their election an opportunity for gathering dollars into its own coffers, but asks you to support them because they are all well qualified for the places for which they have been named and because as members of your own party are entitled to your support at the polls. The candidates are clean, capable men and Wayne county being republican is entitled to have members of that party fill the offices. The sympathy act has been worked in this county until it is worn threadbare and has become a stench in the nostrils of every right minded person and ought to be laid away and allowed to dry out.

The Democrat in its last issue gives much praise to Jack Cherry for the collection of delinquent taxes caused by careless county treasurers in the past. We have no fault to find with the implied criticism of Volpp, Kohl, Rayburn and Fisher; they were all democrats or populists and being of the same faith as our contemporary and considering the opportunities they doubtless offered Goldie to familiarize himself with their administrations, he doubtless knows whereof he speaks and it is fair to presume that if Jack is re-elected, that in two years, when he can hold the office no longer because of statutory limitations he will say about the same thing of Jack in order to help some other democrat to the place. This kind of talk must be highly pleasing to the past democratic treasurers of the county and their friends and doubtless will cause them to put forth extraordinary exertions in behalf of Goldie's favorite candidate.

Without casting any reflections on the predecessors of O. H. Bright, it is generally conceded that he was without a doubt the most effective superintendent of schools Wayne county ever had. Mr. Littell, the republican candidate for the office, is one of the successors of Mr. Bright in the Wayside schools and from all reports has given splendid satisfaction as such and by those best acquainted as a school man it is generally believed that he is well qualified in every way to take up the work as superintendent in the county and continue it along the lines mapped out by Bright. Mr. Bright assured us that Littell was one of the best men in the county for the position and we do not believe Charley Bright would have said that if he did not believe every word of it. In other words, if you want the work of Bright carried out Littell is the man you ought to vote for on November 7.

With the "standpatter," the fellow who does not believe the world moves, every statesman or newspaper writer who suggests a revision of the existing tariff schedules, is at once labeled a "tariff ripper." The republicans who are today advocating tariff revision are not "tariff rippers" in any sense of the word but are men, who know that conditions in the business world undergo such rapid changes that a tariff schedule that was just and right in 1887 is far out of date today and that a revision ought to be made that will bring the schedules into conformity with present day conditions. Ten years hence a tariff schedule that is right today will be out of harmony with conditions then. In fact no tariff schedule can be so fixed as to meet the constantly changing conditions and must of necessity be revised as occasion arrives. The "tariff revisionist" is up to date and does not want the matter postponed until an outraged public will suffer existing injustices no longer and in its mad determination to right wrongs will sweep the friends of tariff out of control and give us another dose of Wilsonism with the resultant evils and general desolation. Let us be wise enough to do the right thing at the right time, and now is the time to revise the tariff.

Cheaper than Cost!

That is what one of our best patrons tell us. He says: "I hear first of this store and then that store selling out at cost, and I've been fooled on them several times; but no more of it in mine. You're selling stuff cheaper every day in the year than these cost prices, and that's what I tell my neighbors." That's what the

THE FAIR STORE

Likes to hear, and our friend might have gone further and said that the Fair Store paid the biggest prices for produce ever paid in this city, and had made the farmers of this section thousands of dollars the past year in the prices of farm produce alone.

Make a Date at Once

To do a little trading at this store. Look over our prices and see what bargains we offer you, and what prices we are paying for Butter, Eggs, Cream and Chickens. The Fair Store is doing an immense business, built up on "low prices to all, and special privileges to none." Once a customer, always a customer. We give every patron a square deal and guarantee satisfaction.

You Can't Fool Them
All the Time.

It seems strange that some merchants continue to believe that all men can be fooled all the time. No merchant would ever think of advertising "A Closing Out Sale," "Selling Clothing at Cost," "Bankrupt Sale," unless he believed he could fool them all the time. Some men can be fooled all the time but it don't pay any merchant to advertise for so few people. In nearly every town you will always see a sign "Clothing at Cost," and it always means that some one has made a failure selling clothing and now has some old, moth-eaten, out-of-style clothing left, that he would like to get rid of. Every intelligent man knows that such clothing is not worth fifty cents on the dollar and can not be fooled. The clothing business can not be made a success unless conducted in an honest, straightforward manner, by a person that has had experience in that line. No matter how honest a man may be, if he has not been trained in the clothing business he will fail to make it a success. We are successful because we have had years of training in this line and we devote our entire time to make this clothing store a success. Don't it look reasonable to you when we tell you that it will pay you to investigate this store that has always been a success for more than twenty-five years and is today the most popular clothing house in Wayne? We don't believe men can be fooled all the time, and we never fill the sidewalk with special bargains or put up signs that mean nothing, to get people in this store. We have the clothing you want and more of it than any other store in Wayne. If our clothing fails to give you satisfaction you get another suit. Our prices are always satisfactory and often lower than "Clothing at Cost" price. Since the weather has changed we have been busy fitting out old and new customers with Staley underwear. Last week we sold a customer Staley that has now bought it of us for twenty-seven years. If you are not wearing Staley don't you think you ought to give it a trial? You may get sick. You may get rheumatism, and you may die if you don't wear Staley. Think of it. Can you afford to take the chance? We are quite busy these days selling men's and boys' shoes. If you have a boy that wears out his shoes too soon to suit you, buy him a pair of our Bad Boy's shoes, the kind he can't wear out. Why would you buy an overcoat or a fur coat before you saw what we have? Our stock is much larger and our prices lower than any merchant in Wayne county. It costs nothing to look at our clothing. Come in and see what we can do for you before you buy. No matter if you do not buy, we will be pleased to show you.

Baron Bros., Wakefield, Nebraska

Phil Johnson has gone the way of a number of other Wayne county men who had developed uncontrollable appetites for alcohol, stimulants. He was brought before the authorized jur commissioners Tuesday and returned a fit subject for treatment for habitual drunkenness in the Lincoln hospital. Such cases are pitiable and teach a powerful temperance lesson. Johnson bears the reputation of a good fellow, but had become a chronic drunk, nearing a physical and mental wreck. He will return from Lincoln in better health and happy over the result—a home-coming full of joy rather than grief to his family. Inebriates, usually excellent men at heart, but weak in resisting the allurements of strong drink and bar room conviviality, suggest the importance of a change in bettering the management of the liquor business. Let the state handle the traffic after the fashion of South Carolina, stripping it of competition, gorgeous attractions and the social feature and doing away with the temptation to adulterate the goods, and we would find less excess in drinking and a diminishing number of changes for the state to cure as the result of an authorized exchange of money for battered health. This solution would not satisfy either saloon advocates or extreme prohibitionists, but would be a practical means to good results, and they are what society needs. The 2 Johns inform us that their sales in Staley underwear far exceed any year since they came to Wayne, and that soon every man in Wayne county will wear Staley. To the many friends who so kindly assisted us in the days of our recent bereavement, we wish to extend our heartfelt thanks. May the Giver of all good abundantly reward them for their efforts to lighten our burden of sorrow.
Mrs. M. A. PHILLIPS.

BIGGEST TRADE YEAR

FOREIGN COMMERCE FOR 1905 BREAKS RECORD.

Largest Volume of Imports and Exports Ever Recorded—Revenue Showing Gain—Improvement Since Close of Fiscal Year—18th August Fig.

Washington correspondence.

Commercial activity indicated by current statements of the Department of Commerce and Labor suggest that, if business continues at the rate shown by August foreign trade statistics, the calendar year of 1905 will enjoy the largest volume of imports and exports ever recorded. Figures just published for August show that exports of manufactures during that month increased nearly $20,000,000 over the imports of August, 1904. For the eight months ending with August, there has been an increase of nearly $200,000,000 in imports, compared with the corresponding period of a year ago.

Imports amounted to $770,122,624 as against $847,292,291 for the same period last year, and exports to $930,412,007, as compared with $851,212,157 in the first eight months of 1904. The value of manufactures exported during the first eight months of 1905 practically equaled the total exports of manufactures for the entire calendar year 1904, being $930,412,007, as against a total of $828,282,891 for the entire year 1904.

Comparison of Figures. The government figures show that more manufactures are being imported from China than from any other country. A condition which has been brought about during the short period since 1897. Imports of manufactures (including in that term for this comparison manufactures wholly or partially manufactured for use in manufactures in the machine arts, and articles of machinery and luxuries aggregated during August $15,000,000, which is about a total of $54,000,000 for the eight months ending with August, 1905. Imports of manufactures for the same period in 1904 were $22,000,000.

Exports of manufactures for the same period in 1905 were $222,000,000, as compared with $182,000,000 for the same period in 1904. The value of exports of manufactures for the same period in 1905 was $222,000,000, as compared with $182,000,000 for the same period in 1904.

Weekly earnings of all persons employed in the United States advanced 41 cents in 1905 over the average of the years 1890 and 1899, according to a bulletin No. 59 of the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued by the federal government. The same bulletin shows that the price of food has advanced 14.7 per cent, and that the price of clothing has advanced 17 per cent since 1890.

WAGES ON THE JUMP. Advance of 41 Per Cent in 1904 Over the Average. Weekly earnings of all persons employed in the United States advanced 41 cents in 1905 over the average of the years 1890 and 1899, according to a bulletin No. 59 of the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued by the federal government.

Gain in Revenue. The total amount of duties collected from customs during the fiscal year 1905 that year having shown a 59 per cent increase in customs revenue as compared with the preceding year. The total amount of duties collected from customs during the fiscal year 1905 was $262,009,728, as against $202,013,729 in 1904, the increase being very slight, while for June the closing month of the fiscal year 1905 the total customs revenue was $22,000,000, as against $22,000,000 in the preceding year.

FACTS ABOUT THE CENSUS. The census bureau at Washington has issued an interesting bulletin on teachers and teaching in the United States. The number of teachers to every 10,000 persons of school age that is, between 5 and 24 years, in continental United States in 1890 was 140. In 1890 it was 140. In 1890 it was 140.

MOVING THE CROPS. A Problem of Astonishing Magnitude to the Railroad. This is the season of the year when the American railroads are taxed to their utmost for the autumn days are the time when the crops are moved. Few realize the extent of the railroad man's problem, yet some idea of its magnitude may be gained from a statement of the value of the country's agricultural products. This year the grain crops will approximate $4,000,000,000 in value, a gain of four times that of the national debt, and sufficient to give every man, woman and child in the country $50. Two-thirds of this crop will be fed to live stock or moved to mills by railroads in the districts in which it is grown, but the remainder will have to be moved to some part of the coast, and it is in the moving of this part that the railroad man finds his great task.

OLD AND ENDS. The value of the British crown jewelry is estimated to be about $3,000,000. In 1,000 cases of the morphine habit collected from all parts of the world, the medical profession constituted 40 per cent of the number.

This year will see crops of such size that that part which comes to the railroad will aggregate 1,500,000 carloads of freight for the moving of which at least nearly 78,000 locomotives will be required. These cars and locomotives, if placed in a single train, would reach the Atlantic coast in a week, and the supply of freight cars in the country is only a little in excess of 12,000,000, with some like 40,000 locomotives. One may imagine the work of the railroad men in moving a single item of freight amounting in volume to nearly the total quantity of the moving stock of all the railroads. To the railroad man, the grain is a great deal more than a mere commodity, and it is in the moving of it that he finds his greatest task.

The movement of grain each year is to the railroad what the conduct of the country is to the farmer. Each day during the early stages upon the reports of harvesters. Those of the railroad company form a large corps of experts who travel throughout the country, examining as closely as possible the condition of each district, and the number of cars necessary for its transportation. Having his plans upon these figures, the railroad man's mind is to get the cars to the region of the harvest with as little expense as possible. From the railroad man's point of view, the grain is a great deal more than a mere commodity, and it is in the moving of it that he finds his greatest task.

His father is its president. The younger McCurdy began his insurance career in 1881, after his graduation from Harvard, in the Metropolitan agency of the Mutual Life, and five years later he was made superintendent of the foreign department. In 1902 he was chosen general manager. Mr. McCurdy was born in New York City, May 2nd, 1859.

For years he has been an influential leader of the Hungarian independent party, and the champion of popular rights. Formerly he was a civil engineer, but abandoned that profession to enter politics, and for a long time has been a thorn in the flesh of the government. On several occasions it has been reported that Francis Kossuth would be made premier. For a time in 1849 the elder Kossuth was governor of Hungary, which had declared its independence, but he was compelled to flee from his native country and lived in exile many years.

JAPANESE DEATH ROLL.

Mikado's Government Reports 72,450 Fatalities During War. The Japanese report 72,450 fatalities during the war with Russia. Of the dead 49,199 were killed in battle, 10,370 died of wounds, and 12,881 of disease. No account is taken of those disabled by wounds or disease. In a war of eight months, in which five battles independent of the siege of Port Arthur and several naval engagements were fought, Japan lost by death 72,450 men. In the Civil War, in which operations extended over four years, the Union army lost 67,058 men killed on the field, 49,012 who died of wounds, and 249,458 who died of disease. The Confederate loss was 94,000 killed and mortally wounded and 59,297 by disease. The several armies were engaged in foggy-sight battles and in many long and exhausting campaigns, but in no part of the Civil War were half as many troops in action as were engaged at Liaoyang at Mukden. Satisfactory comparison between the battles of the Russo-Japanese war and those of our Civil War or those of the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 cannot be made, since reports in detail are not made of the Russo-Japanese war. It is apparent, however, that of the many wounded a larger per cent recovered than in any previous war. This was due partly to improvements in surgery, to well organized hospitals, and to a better emergency service in battle. It was due also in part to the fact that of wounds made by the modern rifle are not equal to the wounds of the rifle used at long range. The observation of surgeons during the war was to the effect that men recovered more rapidly from gunshot wounds than in our Civil War or in the Franco-Prussian war. It was also observed that, during a long range, the modern rifle was not the equal of the rifle in effecting permanent disability. All these observations seem to be substantiated by the report of the Japanese authorities. However, the most remarkable feature of the Japanese fatality list is the small number of deaths from disease. With probably 500,000 men in the field only 12,881 deaths by disease are reported. It is true that the campaigns were not long, but the 24th day of the campaign of the Union army in the Civil War included fatalities along all the short term and unseasoned recruits that entered into the composition of a total enlistment of 2,500,000 men. Yet, after all allowances have been made, the small death rate by disease in the Japanese army must be credited to the organization in hospitals for the treatment of camp diseases, and better methods in handling contagious diseases. It was the rate in the Japanese army to send the seriously wounded and the acutely sick to home hospitals as soon as possible, where they could receive the best surgical and medical treatment. The staff of the Japanese medical staff was directed to the sending of men, and in both the Russian and Japanese armies the wounded were so carefully and intelligently treated that the majority returned to the ranks in a short time. The wonder is not that Japan lost 57,000 men by death in battle, but that she lost only 12,881 by disease.

Thinking Out the Cities. Rural Delivery, Which is Expensive. Rural free delivery, which is a costly item to the government, is a Washington correspondent. Legislators are not sure of the necessity of appropriating this enormous sum, however, since they think that rural delivery tends to thin out the population of the cities, and that it is worth investing government money in. Senators and Representatives of State have large bills look upon this vast appropriation for rural delivery as an injustice to their constituents. They insist that a reasonable division of postal revenues shall go for pneumatic tubes and other facilities for quickening the mail service for the congested centers. A single building in New York City contains 5,200 persons during the day, and they are nearly all letter writers. Their average use of the postal service probably equals that of 62,000 people in the rural counties. It is necessary to make 33 collections a day in some of the New York buildings to get the accumulating mail out of the way. An inspector desirous of establishing a rural free delivery system for the most populous county in 100 families which could be served in a ride of 24 miles. There are hundreds of routes in operation to-day for the accommodation of a much smaller number of households, and in making rural delivery universal, within limits of practicability, which is the aim of Congress and of the department, it will be necessary to include a great many routes of 20 or 25 miles, and to make 100 families, it is generally agreed that rural delivery does not "pay," but this is a consideration over which the American people lose little sleep. They like an efficient postal establishment. The rural delivery service should be as complete as possible, with a constantly increasing population, it will ever be paid for by the government. It is estimated that it will take about 18,000 additional carriers to cover the available territory not now supplied, which amounts to 1,000,000 square miles. When the service reaches its limit it will cost $60,000,000 per year.

Broom Corn Output. Experts in the broom corn district of central Illinois estimate that the harvest this year in the United States will aggregate sufficient material for the making of 42,000,000 brooms, valued at $15,000,000. If placed in cars for shipment, allowing 4,000 per car, it would require 10,500 cars to hold them. These mean 200 freight trains of 50 cars each, or about 100 miles of broom corn. Central Illinois has just harvested material for 15,000,000 brooms. The aristocratic brooms which retail for 25 cents or more are the product of central Illinois. The cheaper grades come from Oklahoma, which has just harvested material for 21,000,000 brooms. Kansas produces a smaller amount, the estimate being about 4,000,000. Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas and other scattering broom corn districts will add a million to the supply. The whisk brooms come from Kansas; the big brooms from the other States. Former Judge Alton B. Parker will be one of the lecturers at the law school of St. John's college of Fordham, New York.

OFFICE WORK BY MACHINERY

This is a parable. He who runs may read; or, to use the modern version, he who travels per Merce-des will see the world. There was once a too-old-at-forty merchant. He had toiled-toiled until grayness. But fortune had not come. He pondered the point of a quill pen the remembrance of his father, using one in that very room, and gazed gloomily at an ancient inkstand filled with a viscous, brittle mass. And the spirit that was in him evaporated and died up like his ink, with only the dregs of gull and iron left behind. He thought of the days of fret and worry, the nights of crumpling pen work, when he had set till the small hours checking Biffel Tiggers of figures and writing letters, which an office boy had smuggled into gray indecipherability with the aid of a cymbal-book and a brush charged with solid sloppiness. He thought of the headaches and the restless nights in which he lived again through the petty annoyances of the day, and as he dispatched a boy with a message (he had always hated telephones) he decided to end it all. So he retired and lived economically in the suburbs, and another man reigned in his stead. This is the prologue. Six months passed. The too-old-at-forty merchant again visited his old office. It was in the same room, but the new manager was seated at a roll-top desk. Before him was a phonograph with a neat recording mouth-piece. Into this he was speaking quickly: "I want two thousand copies of the following letter posted to our regular customers in time for the four o'clock mail this afternoon. Take down 'Dear Sirs—Owing to our having new labor-saving machinery in all our factories, we are able to quote lower for all our goods, which you will note are now ten per cent cheaper than those offered by foreign competitors. A glance at the following figures will—'" For thirty seconds he continued to talk into the phonograph. Then he removed it and handed it to a boy who carried it into the next room where the patter of many typewriters sounded like hail on the roof. The too-old-at-forty merchant looked on with smiling toleration. "I think you made a mistake in that letter," he said. "I heard you state that you wanted two thousand copies. I suppose you meant two dozen." The return smile was of tender compassion. He was informed that two thousand was correct. "But you said they were to be sent off by the four o'clock mail, and it is one-thirty now. However, by your staff may I see you can hardly have two thousand letters typed and the envelopes addressed and stamped in two and a half hours." Little metal galleys, is then attached to one of these endless chains which pass through the machine. Each time an envelope is printed by the machine the chain moves round so as to bring another address into position for the next envelope. Simple, isn't it? "In my time it would have taken a man about four days to do what that machine does in one hour," said the merchant musingly. "But this isn't your day; it's ours," said the new manager. "What next?" asked the merchant. "Next comes the envelope sealing machine."

possess four chief cashiers is made of levers and sprockets and your confidential clerks is driven by a main spring. "Well, I think there are too many wheels and spurring gears in them, too," said the new manager. "Now, here is the book typewriter, with which we keep our ledgers, and in fact, all the books in our firm. We only use pens here as pipe cleaners. You lay the book on the table, set, draw the machine over it, and make your entries cleanly and neatly. "But bound books are now out of date. The loose leaf book is the modern idea. Dr. and Cr. sheets are of different colored papers, and the leaves can be removed and reinserted in the binder at a moment's notice. "Then all you have to do is to cast up the figures," said the old merchant. "Don't you do nothing of the kind. With calculating machines that will tell you in ten seconds what 9,750,834 multiplied by 47,873 amounts to, and which will extract the square root of 587,807,201 with a few turns of a handle, the human brain becomes too slow for present purposes. "Now, if you will look at this arithmometer for a moment, you will see that all you have to do is to place the pointers at the figures which you wish to multiply, divide, or add to, and then, then turn this handle, and the result will appear in that row of figures at the top. "An office boy now came up and reported that the two thousand letters had left the office at 3:30. "It seems to me that brains are quite obsolete," said the antiquated merchant. "And that is the biggest mistake of all," returned the twentieth-century manager. "Brains are what we want, and all we want. We are freed of the old grinding routine that business men used to break their hearts over; now we have time to think. Our clerks have shorter hours and are better paid, but those who do employ have brains, otherwise we should have no use for them. "No, brains are not at a discount, but brainless handwork is!"—Montreal Star.

LINCOLN'S WEAKNESS. He Was Justified with Alway's Temper. "Abraham Lincoln's weakness, if it can be called a weakness, was a tendency, in matters not involving great or general issues, to let his heart run away with his head. It was difficult for him to resist a plea for a pardon for a man who had been sentenced to be shot or hanged. His inclination to temper justice with mercy saved many innocent lives during the civil war," said William O. Stoddard, a representative of Success Magazine. "I remember one day when he was heels over head in work and had spent nearly all of the previous night at his desk, a delegation called at the White House to intercede for a certain notorious leader of a band of hard characters who had been carrying on a sort of guerrilla warfare and had done some needless killing. It was the president of the delegates to tell the President that the bloodshed had been due to zeal, and that the man had a mother and a family. "I had previously investigated the case and had laid the facts before Mr. Lincoln. He agreed with me that the man should be made an example of, and executed. I received the delegation, and to relieve the President from the pain the visit would cause him at a time when it was necessary to spare him in every possible way, I told them that the President had positively made up his mind not to interfere, and was expressed in a very important matter that made it impossible for him to be won. "I stood guard, and at last the delegation went away. Afterward I told the President of their visit. "Well, he said, with an almost imperceptible sigh, 'I suppose you did right. The man ought to hang, but he has a family. I believe that if I had met those people I should have signed an order for a pardon.'"

The Snorer's Retort. An irascible old gentleman who had the misfortune to travel with a man who went to sleep and snored loudly thought it to wake the sleeper and remonstrate with him, and, after addressing him in terms more forcible than polite, he savagely concluded: "If people would only keep their mouths shut they would make less noise." "Very true," replied the snorer, before retreating into slumber. "Why don't you try it yourself?"

Fully Enlarged. "I was surprised to hear the elder Miss Timmins propose a kissing game at the home party." "What would you? It was her own chance."—Cleveland Plain Dealer. When the waiters and waitresses around a restaurant work fast, the customers eat in a hurry.

Evenly Mr. Cleveland Never Expects to Run for U. S. Again—Chicago Tribune. "Next comes the envelope sealing machine."

STOVE ADVICE

A stove is used three times a day, 365 days in the year. Buying a stove isn't like buying a hat or a coat, or an apron. Consequently you should carefully consider before buying. Do not buy any old stove because it is cheap. Remember your stove had to warm your home and cook your meals, not for a day but for a lifetime. It is false economy to buy a stove that will worry you or your wife's heart out by getting out of repair and by cooking improperly and wasting fuel. Call and see our line before buying and be convinced that we have the right stove at the right price.
