TORNADO HITS THIS COUNTY

Friday Afternoon's Storm Does Some Damage.

MITCHELL HOUSE IS WRECKED

Pete Long's Place also Suffers, Demolishing Chimneys and Tearing off Shingles.

Friday afternoon's storm last week was a very severe one. It struck the county about 2 o'clock and from that point a cyclone of wind, hail and rain came in an abundance that ought to have suited all kinds of tastes. A cyclone did considerable damage to J. H. Mitchell and Pete Long, living east of La Porte about three miles. It seemed to originate in the vicinity of Long's and did considerable damage to his dwelling, tearing off shingles and porches, knocking chimneys down and twisting corn cribs and other light sheds out of shape. From Long's it traveled northeast striking the premises of Mitchell, where it made a pretty complete wreck of all his farm buildings except a new barn just lately built. It tore off shingles, chimneys and knocked windows out of the house and wrecked it completely. All his sheds and lighter buildings were completely destroyed, the grove was put entirely to the bad, farm machinery destroyed and chickens killed, but at neither place were any persons injured. Hail fell in many parts of the county and while little if any damage was done to growing crops, fruit in many places was knocked off the trees. The rain fell in torrents and in some places fields were washed.

EDITOR WAYNE HERALD:

The morning of the 19th of April dawned clear and calm, the promise of another beautiful day. The evening before I spent with friends, whom I have never seen or heard of since. We had a jolly time together and parted late in the evening, expecting to meet at a club gathering Wednesday night. At just 5:10 o'clock the next morning the earthquake jerked. For forty-nine seconds the house rocked, jumped, twisted, rattled, rocked and rolled until I thought surely it would go down. Everything on the walls and shelves was flying through the air. The effect was

CLASS SERMON

SUNDAY NIGHT

Rev. Thos. B. Osborne's Able Discourse.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FILLED

Twelve Graduates Attend in a Body. Choir Renders Excellent Music. Graduation Tomorrow Night.

The public schools are drawing to a close, and the annual graduating exercises are attracting attention at this time. The class sermon was preached by Rev. Thos. Osborne Sunday evening, and the class play is to be given tonight, with the address and presentation of diplomas tomorrow night.

Every seat was filled in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, by people gathered together to listen to the class sermon. The twelve happy and buoyant graduates occupied seats of honor, and were the objects of special interest on the part of their multitude of friends. A large choir, with pipe organ accompaniment, rendered musical selections in an attractive manner.

Rev. Osborne's discourse was very appropriate and practical, presented in an interesting style. He told the story of the separation of Abraham and Lot and quoted as his text a part of the words of the former in giving the latter choice of the ways to go—"All the land lies before you." Lot knew a few things about the value of good, well-watered lands, and being ambitious to get rich, headed for Sodom, surrounded by a wealth of material resources, but the center of growing, polluting iniquity. Lot sacrificed high spiritual and social ideals for sordid gain, and in the course of time found that in going to Sodom he had acted unwisely. All the land was before him, but he made a costly mistake in his choice. As applied to the young starting out in life, countless opportunities and avenues of endeavor are presented but serious results may follow the error of pursuing the material in life and the gratification of material desires. Rev. Osborne called attention to L. D. as a substitute for L. D. D. He spoke of the importance of labor, but would heighten it by plenty of dreaming and the restriction of adherence to duty. He dwelt separately and at length on "labor," "dreaming" and "duty," and gave emphasis to the fact that while America had made marvelous progress, it had not made the progress it should have made.

The agents of the Canadian Government, located at different centres in the States, will be pleased to give any further information as to rates, and how to reach these lands.

"Just now there is a keener interest than ever before on the part of the outside world in regard to the claims of the Canadian West as a field of settlement. At no previous time has there been such a rush of immigration, and the amount of information distributed broadcast is unprecedentedly great."

"In the majority of the States of the Union and in Great Britain the opportunities for home-making and the achieving of even a modest competence are at the best limited. Moreover, according to the social and industrial conditions prevalent in those communities, the future holds out no promise of better things. It is not strange, then, that energetic young men should turn their eyes to Canada's great wheat belt, where every man can pursue fortune without the hindrance of any discouraging hindrance."

"The inducements held out by Western Canada are powerful and made manifest by the great movement now in progress. That the prospects are considerably more than reasonably certain is borne out by the history of the country and its residents. The promise of gain is powerful, but when added to it there is the prospect of a corresponding social and civil elevation. It should prove irresistible to young men of a particularly desirable class for any new country."

"The Canadian West is alive with opportunities for the young man who aims at becoming more than a mere atom in the civil and national fabric. Some of the better young fellows who arrive on the prairies daily are determined to become more than merely prosperous farmers. In the near future great municipal and provincial development will be in the hands of the people. The stepping stone to both financial prosperity and civil prominence is, and will be, the farm. For every professional opening there are hundreds of agricultural openings. The Canadian prairies are teeming with opportunities for the honest and industrious of all classes, but they are specially inviting to the ambitious young man who seeks a field for the energy and ability which he feels inherent within him. The familiar cry of 'Back to the soil' is more than a vain sounding phrase when applied to Western Canada."

Speaking in All Cancers. Miss Peachley—Mr. Spoonham, have I ever given you good reason to think I preferred you to other young men and wanted to marry you?

Mr. Spoonham—No, to tell the truth, you never have. I learn from the other fellows that you kiss them good night when they go away, the same as you do me.

Ascum—Yes, I like your address, but I heard Crittich remark that you mean beyond your depth. What did he mean by that?

Brainard—Merely that I was beyond his—Philadelphia Press.

NOTICE.

In the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.

In the matter of the application of George F. Reinking, guardian of Mildred A. Jones and William C. Jones, minors, for license to sell real estate of said minors:

On this 11th day of May, 1906, this matter came on for hearing upon the application of George F. Reinking, guardian of Mildred A. Jones and William C. Jones, minors, for license to sell the real estate of his said wards, situated in Wayne County, Nebraska, to-wit: The undivided one-twentieth interest of each of said wards in and to the east half of section 28, (township 42, range 35, east of the sixth principal meridian, and to invest the proceeds thereof at interest or in some productive stock for that it would be for the benefit of his said wards and their estate, that said real estate be sold and so invested, and was submitted to the court.

On consideration whereof it appearing to me from said petition that said minors and said guardian are non-residents of the State of Nebraska, that said George F. Reinking was, on the 28th day of September, 1897, appointed guardian of the estate of said minors by the district court of Dallas county, Iowa, and is now such guardian.

And it further appearing that it would be beneficial to the estate of said minors that their said real estate be sold, and the proceeds thereof put out at interest or invested in some productive stock, it is therefore ordered that the next of kin and all persons interested in the said real estate of said minors, appear before me, the judge of said court at chambers at the court house in the city of Neligh, county of Antelope, state of Nebraska, on the 13th day of June, 1906, at 3 o'clock p. m., to show cause, if any there be, why license should not be granted to the said George F. Reinking to sell the said ward's interest in the real estate above described for the purpose above set forth.

TORNADO HITS THIS COUNTY

Friday Afternoon's Storm Does Some Damage.

Pete Long's Place Also Suffers, Demolishing Chimneys and Tearing off Shingles.

Friday afternoon's storm last week was a very severe one. It struck the county about 2 o'clock and from that time a black, wind, hail and rain came in an abundance that ought to have sent all kinds of tastes. A cyclone did considerable damage to J. H. Mitchell and Pete Long, living east of La Porte about three miles. It seemed to originate in the vicinity of Long's and did considerable damage to his dwelling, tearing off shingles and porches, knocking chimneys down and twisting corn cribs and other light sheds out of shape. From Long's it traveled northeast striking the premises of Mitchell, where it made a pretty complete wreck of all his farm buildings, except a new barn just lately built. It tore off shingles, chimneys and knocked windows out of the house and wrecked it completely. All his sheds and lighter buildings were completely destroyed, the grove was put entirely to the bad, farm machinery destroyed and chickens killed, but at neither place were any persons injured. Half fall in many parts of the county and while little if any damage was done to growing crops, fruit in many places was knocked off the trees. The rain fell in torrents and in some places fields were washed.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 19, '06.

EDITOR WAYNE HERALD:

The morning of the 18th of April dawned clear and calm, the promise of another beautiful day. The evening before I spent with friends, whom I have never seen or heard of since. We had a jolly time together and parted late in the evening expecting to meet at a club gathering Wednesday night. At just 5:16 o'clock the next morning the earthquake came. For forty-nine seconds the house jerked, jumped, twisted, rattled, rocked and rolled until I thought surely it would go down. Everything on the walls and shelves went flying through the air. With difficulty I made my way to the door and was met by falling brick and a cloud of plaster. I thought the house was breaking up, and closing the door awaited my turn, but it was only the chimney which fell through the roof and filled the hall. I went to the window and being up on elevated ground where I could look out over much of the city, I stood there and saw San Francisco go down. I supposed "of course" the world was coming to an end. Everything was on the move—steeples of churches dancing in the air, roofs tumbling off, and the smoke of the dust of the debris arising in a thousand places.

In my room everything was on the floor and all that could break was broken; everything that could spill was spilled. The furniture was moved a couple of feet out from the wall and a sorry looking place it certainly was.

Before seven o'clock I started down town to see what there was to see and saw the sight of a lifetime. I walked for two hours among the ruins that morning and assure you San Francisco had met her doom before the fire came. The streets were filled with brick, windows all broken, tops of buildings lying in the street, doorsteps and fronts all broken up, the sidewalks and pavements themselves heaved up and displaced, many buildings clear down and many more leaning and looking ready to collapse. I made my way in the middle of the street and at each crossing would stop and look in the four directions and as far as one could see it was the same story of destruction. Every face wore a look of dismay; all business was suspended; not a street car could run, no newspapers, no gas or electricity, no water; consequently no breakfasts, no telephones or telegraphs, not a store open in all San Francisco, and yet I can't tell it all, such as it was at seven o'clock that morning. I saw the smoke of a dozen fires yet the firemen were idle, a look on their faces that baffles description and heard some one say, "no water." I asked a small boy near me where the fire was and his answer was "everywhere," and looked at me speechless for a moment and moved on. The sun hung above the horizon blood red as we looked at it through the smoke. I went on down to the business center and stood at Third and Market streets and there the people seemed paralyzed. A terrible fire was raging on Mission street a block away. Peoples' faces were pale as they tried to grasp the situation, but it was beyond them. Not one of us ever dreamed it would take the whole city. My room was two miles away and I never thought it getting there. I saw some men working over a pile of brick and debris and asked some one what they were looking for and was told that that pile of brick had been a lodging house with many people in when the earthquake came and inside of one minute of time it was where I saw it. While I looked on I saw them dig out one man and throw him into an express wagon which drove away and I moved on. I went on down by the beautiful Palace hotel and it stood there all right. I crossed over on to Mission street where the fire was and there I met what I was not just prepared for. I stood on Second street and looking up as far as Seventh it was nothing but a burning seething mass until the heat was terrible and people panic stricken, half dressed and terrified, were rushing in a perfect melee to the ferry at the foot of Mission street. I got into the crowd some way and couldn't get out. For once I was so beside myself that I can't remember much of what happened. In one place several animals were lying dead in the street and some one raised the cry "live wires." Wires, live or otherwise, lay in a tangled mass everywhere. Smaller quakes kept following one another in rapid succession. About 8 o'clock quite a hard one came and I rushed for a place of safety and could not keep on my feet. I saw more buildings go down and among them some that were on fire. The whole burning mass tumbled into the street. We began to wonder what was before us, but no one could measure the calamity ahead.

I got to the ferry some how and took a boat for Oakland. Poor old San Francisco! Before taking the boat I stopped to take one more look at the city. So strong and active the day before, now we lay perfectly helpless in the clutches of earthquake and fire. The sight was terrible beyond description. I was in Oakland by half past nine. The quake was not so bad there and no fire. They let me back again to the city for over a week. Across the bay for three days we watched the flames ascending over our beloved city. We heard the blasting till it sounded like an army in battle. At night the whole of dear old San Francisco was one mass of flames and smoke. Friends 150 miles away saw the red sky hanging over the Golden Gate. Every few minutes train loads of people were let off at the Oakland depot in the most desolate condition. I spent three weeks in the heart of the catastrophe. I talked to the refugees and listened to the stories you read in the papers. They are all too true, and thousands more that never were in print. In the unburned district the destruction and suffering in those days can't be overestimated. All stores were confiscated by the militia, all horses and vehicles taken for public service and never returned; the soldiers filled the private homes with refugees as they saw fit, while thousands hastily packed their valuables and moved to the hills expecting to be burned out, and how much could be charged up to the lost, broken or destroyed, can never be known.

Going to Oakland early as I did that fateful morning I escaped the suffering thousands did not. But when I did get back again to the city what a sight met my eyes. Over ten thousand acres of black and smoking ruins were all that were left to us except the memory of what had been, and that is all that it ever will be, for when the city rebuilds it will be another city; it will never be the same. I made my way to where my room had been, but desolate, forsaken and silent was the place for miles around.

Last Monday I went to work again for my former employer. They operate in two places and one escaped the fire. As bookkeeper, an unprecedented situation lies before me. Only our main books were saved. All other records are gone and our customers scattered, burned out, and all business demoralized. The immense business of this large city went in a single day like a soap bubble. Street cars are just beginning to run, the city water supply is very imperfect yet, and no gas. The little quakes continue, people are living in the streets and parks in the most crude way, burn candles at night, and these must all be out at ten. Baths and laundry work are out of fashion. Because of a lack of water for fire protection, no fires are allowed in houses even when chimneys are repaired; no coal oil lamps or stoves. Every sidewalk in the unburned district is lined with small kitchens. Each family has a stove in the street with some improvised cooking and camp out as best they can. Small boys have written on these all manner of familiar signs such as "The Palace hotel," "Meals a-la-carte," "Cook wanted," "Music while you eat," etc., and grotesque indeed is the huge joke, for these are days when rich people are hungry in San Francisco. The people have suffered from thirst. Tubs of water set here and there for public use and placards tell the location of private wells. Water was shipped in by boats to meet the need. To be near my work I came back here and took a room and am living like the rest. I tell you, these are interesting times. Yesterday an unusually hard quake stopped all proceeding for a while, and I never close the door for fear I won't be able to get it open again. The quakes so twist the houses that the doors won't open.

I will only say further that I have no disposition to repeat the tales of horror and death which the newspapers have told. Altogether too true are they, but those who remain are bravely meeting the strange conditions and in consolation let me repeat a supposed conversation which appeared in a local paper; said one race track man to another, "where do you live now?" The answer was "Do you see that tree yonder, that big one? Well, climb that and my room is on the third branch to the left."

CLASS SERMON

Rev. Thos. B. Osborne's Able Discourse.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH FILLED

Twelve Graduates Attend in a Body. Choir Renders Excellent Music. Graduation Tomorrow Night.

The public schools are drawing to a close, and the annual graduating exercises are attracting attention at this time. The class sermon was preached by Rev. Thos. Osborne Sunday evening, and the class play is to be given tonight, with the address and presentation of diplomas tomorrow night.

Every seat was filled in the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, by people gathered together to listen to the class sermon. The twelve happy and buoyant graduates occupied seats of honor, and were the objects of special interest on the part of their multitude of friends. A large choir, with pipe organ accompaniment, rendered musical selections in an attractive manner.

Rev. Osborne's discourse was very appropriate and practical, presented in an interesting style. He told the story of the separation of Abraham and Lot and quoted as his text a part of the words of the former in giving the latter choice of the ways to go. "All the land lies before you." Lot knew a few things about the value of good, well-watered lands, and being ambitious to get rich, headed for Sodom, surrounded by a wealth of material resources, but the center of growing, polluting iniquity. Lot sacrificed high spiritual and social ideals for sordid gain, and in the course of time found that in going to Sodom he had acted unwisely. All the land was before him, but he made a costly mistake in his choice. As applied to the young starting out in life, countless opportunities and avenues of endeavor are presented but serious results may follow the error of pursuing the superficial in life and the gratification of material desires. Rev. Osborne called attention to L. D. D. as a substitute for L. L. D. He spoke of the importance of labor, but would highlight it by plenty of dreaming and the restriction of adherence to duty. He dwelt separately and at length on "labor," "dreaming" and "duty," and gave emphasis to the fact that while America had made marvelous forward strides and far outstripped other nations in all manner of achievement, everything is measured too much by the dollar. Such mad scramble for material things should be modified by more idealism and more thought of duty.

Memorial Sabbath was observed in Wayne by union services in the Methodist church in the morning when a large audience assembled and listened to an appropriate sermon by Rev. E. E. Dunley of the Baptist church. About twenty civil war veterans marched to the church in a body. Rev. Dunley spoke on the "Signs of the Times," and conveyed the idea that excessive optimism, regardless of prophetic signs, created indifference to dangers that were consequently made more likely to follow. He pointed with words of praise to the achievements of the old soldiers.

One hundred members of the Sioux City Commercial club visited Wayne Friday night and remained here two hours. They were met at the depot and welcomed by Mayor Piepenstock and a committee representing the Wayne Commercial club. The visitors were accompanied through the business section and formed the acquaintance of business men. The Sioux City people had their own brass band, which enlivened the occasion with stirring music. The idea of the trip to different towns in northwest Nebraska was to get in closer touch with business interests and draw increased patronage to the wholesale of Sioux City.

WHERE WILL SPOKANE STOP?

Those who have witnessed the phenomenal growth of Spokane since its disastrous fire in 1889 are wondering how long it will take this young giant of the west to reach the mark set for it by its "150,000 Club." That they will get there is undoubted. The only question is how long will it take them to do it, and judging by the rapid bounds they have been making it will not be so very long.

Nor is this to be wondered at, when its many advantages are taken into consideration. With its enormous water-power, it is not remarkable that it should attract to itself manufacturing enterprises of many varieties, and it can at the same time furnish, at a minimum of cost, power for the various electric lines which are being planned in different directions, and which will inevitably tend to bring the surrounding country into even closer relations with the parent city.

Spokane possesses the peculiar advantage of having tributary to it a rich agricultural country and a large mining territory, the one pouring into the city the wealth of the field, orchard and garden, and the other furnishing a ready and profitable market for all that can be raised.

The development of the Spokane Flats, east of the city, and extending almost to Rathburn, Idaho, has converted what was once a dreary waste into a country of fertile gardens and orchards, connected with Spokane by electric lines, and has materially assisted in advancing the prosperity of the city. In this stretch of country may be found the different districts known as "Opportunities," "Oils Orchards" and "Greenacres," which are assisting in no slight degree to supply the demand for garden truck, vegetables and early fruit that the city itself consumes, and which it also distributes to the mining camps lying to the north and south, from the famous Couer d'Alene mines, to the Republic mining region and even to British Columbia.

The Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company

Omaha, May 9, 1906.
REGARDING NEW BUSINESS
Dear Sir: We are just in receipt of advices from San Francisco that the Liverpool & London & Globe's liability in the burned district is $4,850,000 with $602,000 re-insurance, which reduces the amount to $4,248,000 net. Of course, they can give us no estimate as to the amount of salvage they may receive when adjustments are completed. As you have been previously advised by Chicago, this loss will be paid from the home office.
When we realize that more than twelve times the above sum would be available from the same source and still leave our American assets of $12,234,948 undisturbed, it would be pardonable if we should feel proud of the showing our company is able to make at this time.
The insuring public will be very critical during the remaining part of the year in placing insurance, and I believe the opportunity never was so great for securing new business for a strong and safe company, such as the "Liverpool" is at present.
With deepest appreciation of your past efforts, and bespeaking continued kind treatment of our good company's interests at your hands, I am,
Most sincerely yours,
W. E. HITCHCOCK, State Agent.

Man Needs Protection

From the cradle to the grave all men need to be protected. As civilized beings we stand helpless in this world if we are not protected. Take away our protection and in a short time there would only remain a few men on earth and they would be thieves as long as there remained anything for them to steal and then become a savage uncivilized tribe. We not only need the state and government protection, but need the assistance of our friends to reach a high state of civilization. We need our mother's care when small, our father's advice when a youth and our friends' assistance, together with our government's protection, to make life safe. We need our minister's advice and the protection of the church to Christianize us, and every other protection that we have to help us attain the position that man should occupy. We need protection when we invest our earnings in the necessities of life. Everyone is fully protected that does business with the Two Johns. When you enter this store you can feel that you are safe, and that every dollar you invest here will be well invested. We offer you protection that cannot be given by any other merchant in Wayne county. We employ no cheap help and you are waited on by an experienced clothing man who fully understands the goods he offers you, and who is interested in you as a customer. Should we make a mistake you are fully protected, for we will give you another suit for any one that fails to give you satisfaction. You are protected here as regards the price, for our prices are always right and universally lower than other merchants ask. No matter how rich you are or how poor you may feel, you need the protection we offer. Let us make you safe in your purchases of clothing. Give us a trial and you will enjoy the satisfaction of your security, and you will always get up-to-date clothing, giving you much pleasure in knowing that your clothing is right. Let us protect you, for we will do it for less money and do it better than anyone else. Try us and see.

The railroad rate bill, recently passed by the senate and now in the hands of the house, will, if it becomes a law in its present form, compel members of these two distinguished bodies to suffer the agony of paying railroad fare.

Another Omaha aspirant for senatorial honors has withdrawn his candidacy, being Mr. Green, the B. & M. attorney, who states, that while he does not altogether agree with Mr. Rosewater's views he believes he is consistent, in harmony with the president and the logical man to select for the place at this time.

In the coming congressional contest it is generally conceded that Judge Boyd will receive the united support of his judicial district. From all that can be learned he will have no opposition in Wayne county, and about the same feeling is said to prevail everywhere in his district. Such unanimity of support is due to his popularity and well known fitness for a place in the halls of congress. Wherever known he is recognized as a man of scholarly attainments, high integrity and affable manners. As his acquaintance extends to other parts of the congressional district, he is fast making new friends and firm supporters.

The Pender Republic attempts to quote from a last summer's issue of the HERALD to show that this paper expects pay for political services. The words attributed to the HERALD are of course incorrect and misleading. Something was published in this paper last July by the former management about candidates paying for formal announcements prior to conventions—a custom in vogue in some states—but the statement is misquoted and its meaning misconstrued by the Republic. The HERALD has never shunned the praises of candidates for the editor's political preference or pecuniary gain and never expects to do so.

The recurrence of Memorial day finds a diminished number of surviving veterans of the civil war and an increased number of mounds and marble shafts decorated with flowers and garlands in honor of the patriotic soldier dead. The remaining silvery-haired warriors are growing perceptibly weaker, and ere long all will have joined the silent majority and become subjects of memorial eulogy, filling graves to be distinguished and honored by the manual out-pouring of floral tributes. Though dead, memory of the valiant army that preserved the union and struck the shackles from the feet of four million slaves, will live forever. Their heroic deeds in a bitter struggle for a noble purpose will be recounted and praised by all future generations.

In discouraging the mail order business and urging people to trade at home, we are not merely directing attention to those who have acquired the unwise and unprofitable habit of buying groceries and dry goods from outside retailers. The argument in favor of patronizing home institutions applies to all lines. The dry goods man should purchase his clothing of a local dealer and the clothing man ought to buy his wife's dresses at the home dry goods store. All should get their stationery printed by local offices, especially if nothing is saved by ordering it elsewhere, and usually there isn't. The cry to buy of home dealers, because they will trust you and are always here to correct mistakes, and because prices are as cheap at home as abroad, is not wholly intended for the other fellow, but for everybody, and should be followed in the purchase of one class as well as another. Anything that can be bought at home without loss, whether a threshing machine, box of soap, collar or package of stationery, should be bought here.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

The Wayne county Sunday school convention held at Wayne on Wednesday and Thursday, May 23 and 24, was a success in every particular except perhaps in attendance. The schools outside of Wayne were well represented, especially those in the western part of the county and the interest manifested by those present was very encouraging.

On Wednesday morning at 10:30 the devotional service was conducted by Rev. C. H. Moore of Carroll, followed by an address of welcome by Rev. Osborne of Wayne and a response by Rev. Labaron of Winnside, after which came the enrollment and assignment of delegates. At the afternoon session the president, F. H. Jones, gave a very interesting address which was followed by the discussion of various subjects of interest to Sunday school workers.

In the evening Miss Mamie Haines gave her lecture on a "Trip to Jerusalem." In company with a large number of Sunday school workers Miss Haines attended the world's convention at Jerusalem about two years ago; so the lecture was made up from actual experiences and was a treat to the large audience present.

On Thursday morning Mr. H. M. Steidler, one of the state workers, addressed the convention and gave some excellent pointers for Sunday school workers. The remainder of the day was taken up in discussing subjects of interest to those in attendance. The main thought through all the discussions was the importance of good christian teachers in the Sunday school, teachers who had an interest in the work and who would devote some time during the week as well as on Sunday, to the Sunday school work.

The secretary's report showed that eighteen schools had reported with an attendance of 1,000 and an enrollment of 1,400.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: F. H. Jones, president; E. P. Wilson, secretary and treasurer; O. A. King, president of the home department; Mrs. E. B. Young, president of the primary department.

The county was divided into two districts and each district elected officers, the districts to hold semi-annual conventions.

The many excellent thoughts brought out during this meeting will be a great help to those in attendance.

MEMORIAL DAY DULY OBSERVED

Veterans of the Civil War Honored in Wayne.

SCHOOL CHILDREN TAKE PART

They Bring Floral Offerings in Memory of Deceased Soldiers.—Mr. Wilson's Address.

Notwithstanding the previous discouraging forecast, the weather yesterday was ideal for an observance of Memorial day, and many people poured into Wayne from the surrounding country to do honor to the memory of Civil war veterans and cover the graves of departed heroes with floral offerings. A profusion of flags and hunting along Main street emphasized the purpose of the day.

In the morning several hundred school children marched to the cemetery and scattered beautiful flowers and wreaths over the graves of deceased soldiers, and the silent city on the hill, with its closely cropped sward, spreading evergreens, stately monuments and wealth of flowers, presented a most attractive appearance.

In the afternoon the opera house was thronged with people, and at 1:30 the program was commenced. After music and invocation, the address was given by Hon. H. H. Wilson of Lincoln.

In speaking of the occasion, in honor of those who preserved our liberty, he said we could not add to nor detract from the honor of their achievements. The fact that surviving veterans were becoming notably less reminded him that more than forty years had passed since the civil war. As the events of that contest become more remote in history, their greatness is increased, with heightened appreciation on the part of mankind. This conclusion he illustrated by reference to the mountain peaks of Colorado which could be better distinguished at a considerable distance than when near them. He said characters developed by the Civil war stand out among the greatest heroes of the race.

The speaker maintained that the civil war was inevitable and came as the result of seeds planted before the Declaration of Independence. The constitution was a compromise between contending factions. Fault was found with the constitution, but it could not have been made better at the time. Parties were divided on the question of supremacy of the state or nation, and such differences continued from the time of Washington to that of Lincoln. Slavery was an incidental cause of the bitter strife. The great differences could be settled in only one way, and the conflict of arms had to come. The south now frankly agrees that the triumph of the north was a most fortunate thing for the south, and the time will come when southern people will celebrate the surrender at Appomatox instead of the firing on Fort Sumter. The trouble was settled as easily as it could be, and set right.

Mr. Wilson said he would have young people know that this nation stands for something unique—the dignity and honor of human labor. Across the waters it is considered among some classes dishonorable to work and to hold caste they think they must live on the inherited or stolen wealth of their fathers. He told a story of how President Lincoln blackened his own shoes, and emphasized the fact that the highest office in this country is within the reach of the humblest citizen.

The speaker said the wisest visionary among our forefathers could not imagine, in a nightmare, the wonderful progress that would be made by this nation. Then he told of how the constitution was stretched over the Louisiana purchase, the acquisition of Alaska and the Philippines. He spoke of this government's generous treatment of Cuba, and said the race in the Orient would in time heartily join America in celebrating July 4th.

He commended American citizenship and American achievements, and speaking to the old soldiers declared that "we have something worthy of your deeds of courage and bravery from 1861 to 1865."

After the address and after songs and recitations, the crowd, headed by the column of old soldiers, marched to the cemetery and, amidst appropriate services, decorated the graves of dead comrades.

COLLEGE NOTES.

A lawn social will be given by one division of the graduating class next Saturday evening.

No recitations were heard Wednesday afternoon in order to allow the students to attend the Memorial day exercises. The machine for manufacturing the gas to be used in the new gas range in the kitchen, is being installed this week. A joint meeting of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. was held Sunday afternoon. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Luckey.

Dr. R. B. Crawford visited the college last week and gave a very interesting talk, which was very much enjoyed by the students.

This week a large force of men began work on the laying of the foundation for the new dormitory. The disagreeable weather caused a brief let up in the work for a few days.

Mrs. Ernest of Boomer was visiting her daughter, Cora, the first of the week. While here Mrs. Ernest made arrangements for the young lady to be in school all next year.

Prof. Pile goes to West Point next Saturday where he will address the graduates from the eighth grade, and he will also speak at a meeting of the county school officers.

Among those who have enrolled during the past week are: Mr. Miller of Pierre, Misses Cassidy, of Iman, Fimpol of Hartington, Chilcoat of Winer and Jesp of South Sioux City.

The program given in the chapel last Friday evening was well attended and was a success in every way. A neat sum was realized, which goes to the basket ball association for the purpose of buying new equipment.

Friday morning, Rev. Osborne, accompanied by Mr. A. J. Ferguson, visited the college. Rev. Osborne spoke to the students at chapel, and as is always the case when he speaks, his talk was instructive as well as entertaining.

from Norfolk and we will show you the best time of your life in that grand trip through Platte Canon, across South Park and over the Continental Divide which is unsurpassed for grandeur. Around Frisco, the "beauty spot," the scenery is sublime. "A beautiful summer resort in a realm of glade and glen, of canon and crag, and cloud-piercing, snow-robed summits bathed in eternal blue—river and lake, and cataract, gushing springs as clear as crystal and as cold as ice all the year, sylvan aisles and sighing pines, and quivering aspen, flower-bespangled slopes and warbling song birds, and breezes fresh and fragrant, and soft as those from fairy land—a region of wealth untold, of picturesque grandeur, of bewildering beauty and undreamed of delights" is the description one man gave, and it is only a few hours' ride from Denver.

Remember we start Monday morning from Wayne, at 10 o'clock, by way of Norfolk and Columbus, and we want you to join us. "A word to the wise is sufficient," says Buster Brown. Efforts of the Wayne Commercial club have resulted in the organization of a brass band, with a guarantee of ample financial support from business men. The band starts out with fifteen members, all having had considerable experience, and additions to the number will be made from time to time.

The Wayne Literary club had a grand feast and social time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Phillee Monday evening. It was the final meeting of the club and preparations for it were unusually elaborate. It was intended to enjoy the rich spread on the lawn, but the cold weather prevented, and so the dining room floor, properly provided, was made to serve a picnic fashion. There were gazes, sociability, merrymaking and an ocean of viands and delicacies, ranging in taste from baked beans to ice cream and angel food. The occasion was one of huge enjoyment for all.

Tekamah special to Tuesday's Sioux City Journal: A few nights ago some persons tried to cut a hole in the big dam at the southern end of the ditch where it will empty into the river. It occurred while the watchmen were away from the dam for only a few minutes and it is supposed that the water was high on some person's land and that they were going to get it off, as there is about fifteen miles of water held in the ditch, which is 35 to 60 feet deep. If the dam should have been broken it would have taken months to repair it. The guards have been doubled, and a very careful watch will be kept to see that no persons tamper with it. If nothing happens the dam will be dynamited next week and the big canal will then be turned over to the county. Hundreds of people are planning on going down to see the big waterway opened and hear the ceremony of the transferring of it to the county. It has taken nearly a year and a half to dig the main canal, the branches having not yet been started.

THE PRESS.

It is that the press holds it will be a wise wife that knows her real husband. Count Witte is to be congratulated. He leaves office without the assistance of the military. The bookman contends that his business is not gambling. Chicago has been rebuilt twice since its fire in 1871. The conscientious school teacher gives daily to pupil and State far more than is paid for by the taxpayer. The Supreme Court handed down that justice is blind just as the Gorgias woman, foul language. The New Yorker who was arrested for kicking an American flag, must have imagined his legs in England. The fact that a number of policemen have committed suicide lately does not especially shake the aspect of power. A tidal wave was predicted to follow the San Francisco earthquake. It did not. A tidal wave of American dollars. Now the question will be up for general settlement whether the autonomy rules the Domain of the Domain the autonomy. It might be just as well to wait if the things were better than 315. The insurance company which denies its losses in San Francisco may expect a still heavier loss to gain new business. The President has appointed a number of Cabinet members. The ending of the coal mining from his pleas every day but the miners politicians who had expected to make use of a strike in their business. We refuse to credit the tale that Wall Street is behind a scheme to furnish New York City with water. Senatorial courtesy has caused the country a good deal of trouble. A Baltimore chauffeur who was arrested for a traffic violation, was fined $25. The San Jose scale refuses to yield to the efforts of the Department of Agriculture. The Bureau of Labor at Washington issues a bulletin to explain that the cost of living is the highest in sixteen years. The centennial gold medal will be glad to learn of the authority of Prof. Angelo Delipani that the man of science is hardly in a position to be more authoritative regarding the San Francisco earthquake than is the layman. A voter has no place among us, and will not be tolerated. If the Russian government tries to force Gorky extradited for a political crime, it may win him more sympathizers in the United States than he could ever lose by his domestic arrangements. Secretary Taft thinks three members should be for the Canal Commission. However, nothing less than reduction to a single individual would banish fiction and stop the influence expansion by a minority. An insurance company with $1,000,000 in San Francisco risks has a surplus of $80,000. That company must have had a whole henhouse of yellow dogs. English card sharpeners are in a bad way. One of them remarks as to three-card monte: 'Even the soldiers are getting too smart for us.' Between 1901 and 1914 the membership in British trade unions increased 74.1%. This, the British Trade unions due to the rise of the labor movement.

AMERICAN OFFICIAL SLAIN.

Vice Consul at Batoum Is Victim of Russian Assassins. W. H. Stuart, the American vice consul at Batoum, Russia, was shot and killed at his country place. The assassin was a Russian subject and one of the largest ship brokers and exporters of Batoum. Stuart was killed as a result of revolutionary excitement in that far-off portion of the Russian empire.

So far as known in the capital, Mr. Stuart had not been involved in any trouble at Batoum. While anarchists and revolutionaries secretly and openly propagated their ideas in the city, however, he maintained friendly relations with the Russian government officials. This may have angered the enemies of the government and brought about the assassination. A serious aspect has arisen over the affair. Russia is not so friendly toward the United States, and it is disconcerting to find a friendly and patriotic American in the event it is found the government officials at Batoum failed to give Mr. Stuart proper protection or in any way confined at his death. It is pointed out that Batoum has been in a state of great unrest ever since the revolutionaries began to spread their propaganda throughout southern Russia. The officials are confident that this movement is responsible for the murder.

All Night Bank Starts Well.

Within the first twenty-four hours after the opening of the new Night and Day bank at Fifth avenue and Forty-fourth street, New York, about $1,000,000 had been deposited.

Planning Religious Instruction.

The movement for so arranging the public school program as to leave a part of Wednesday afternoons free for religious instruction, which was started by the Interchurch conference, is being pushed by groups of Catholics, Jews and Protestants at New York, who held a meeting Monday night. It is proposed that the children be allowed to leave school at that time and go to their respective churches for systematic study. This appears to be a platform on which members of all churches can stand.

Torrey Admits Philanthropist.

During the farewell services conducted by Messrs. Torrey and Alexander, marking the end of their three months' revival in the city of Philadelphia, Dr. Torrey announced that Philadelphia was hereafter to be his home. This was greeted with a tremendous cheer from the great audience that filled the Second regiment armory. In announcing the result of the mission, Secretary Cass said that the number of converts was near 7,000, although the number who had already asked to be united to some church was almost 4,000. Dr. Torrey expressed himself as pleased. He felt that he had quickened the religious pulse of the city.

THE COMIC SIDE OF THE NEWS.

John Paul Jones is good and buried now. Lord help the clerk of the Russian domain who has to read the roll! How fast time flies! Here is the sweet girl graduate 'leaving' in our midst. The word of the day in the anthracite regions in Pennsylvania is 'Back to the mines'. That Russian official who caught a bomb thrown at him would make a valuable man for the Czar to have behind the bar. The creator of Vesuvius has enlarged from 100 to 4,000 feet. Getting a regular pipe mouth. Remarkable the number of papers compelled to go to the circus just to please the children. Plan on foot to pump the hot air out of New York during the summer. Made it permanent. In addition to its wares, San Francisco must now listen to the man who predicted it afterward. There is no amendment yet in the railroad bill touching the swinish passenger who takes two seats. If Congress doesn't settle the rate question pretty soon, the college commencement dinner at New York will be a valuable one. Mr. Shontz cannot build his canal unless he knows whether it is to be a subway or a skyscraper. Col. Walter Wellman has started on his undertaking to discover the North Pole via the hot-air balloon. Some of the hot-air balloons at San Francisco are selling freely as if a gun were crossed between a joke and a toy. Mme. Homer, the opera singer, in the reign of terror at San Francisco, escaped in her husband's trousers. Still, women have worn the breeches before.

PRESBYTERIAN UNION WINS.

Des Moines Assembly Votes for Merger with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The Presbyterian general assembly at Des Moines voted for union with the Cumberland Presbyterian church, thus consummating the merger of the two bodies. The assembly by a large majority refused to give its official sanction to the book of forms and prayers, especially known as the 'Anger book'. The action was taken after a long and spirited debate. The book of forms will continue to be published, but members on its pages will be found nothing to indicate that it bears any authority from the Presbyterian general assembly. An effort was made by the opposition to have the names of the committee who have prepared a petition from the book, but this was defeated. The action of the assembly virtually annulled the action of the preceding assemblies of 1903, 1904 and 1905, in which progressive steps were taken for an authorized book of forms.

From Far and Near.

Texas William Wadsworth, ex-vice president of the Shoe Store Company of Pittsburg, died in New France. Dr. Frank Williams of Chicago presided at a joint session of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and the Association of American Physicians held in Washington. Having first seen Miss Connetta Bocco, daughter of a wealthy Chicago City Italian, in St. Louis two years ago, but being unable again to find her here, a few months ago, Francesco Ferrullo, leader of Italy's band, was her love and married her in the city of Rome. Reporters from Salt Lake City that the Mormon church was to withdraw from business were proved to be without foundation. Doroferd Hope of London, England, who claimed to be at the head of a $25,000,000 corporation formed to take over the interests of the church, admitted he had been deceived by the fact that Alton Smith, 51 years of age, a prominent farmer living near Akron, Ohio, committed suicide by shooting. Smith's fortune is estimated at $100,000. The cause for the suicide is not known. President Deaton of Miami university recently visited the factory, owned by Whitlock Reid in London as a literary fund contribution. It was the fifth anniversary of Mr. Reid's graduation from Miami. Investigation is being made at Cripple Creek, Colo., of charges against Sheriff E. J. Bell, who is alleged to have been making a check for $5,000 from Alton Smith during the troubled times under Gov. Peabody.

Homer, the opera singer, in the reign of terror at San Francisco, escaped in her husband's trousers. Still, women have worn the breeches before.

THE COMIC SIDE OF THE NEWS.

John Paul Jones is good and buried now. Lord help the clerk of the Russian domain who has to read the roll! How fast time flies! Here is the sweet girl graduate 'leaving' in our midst. The word of the day in the anthracite regions in Pennsylvania is 'Back to the mines'. That Russian official who caught a bomb thrown at him would make a valuable man for the Czar to have behind the bar. The creator of Vesuvius has enlarged from 100 to 4,000 feet. Getting a regular pipe mouth. Remarkable the number of papers compelled to go to the circus just to please the children. Plan on foot to pump the hot air out of New York during the summer. Made it permanent. In addition to its wares, San Francisco must now listen to the man who predicted it afterward. There is no amendment yet in the railroad bill touching the swinish passenger who takes two seats. If Congress doesn't settle the rate question pretty soon, the college commencement dinner at New York will be a valuable one. Mr. Shontz cannot build his canal unless he knows whether it is to be a subway or a skyscraper. Col. Walter Wellman has started on his undertaking to discover the North Pole via the hot-air balloon. Some of the hot-air balloons at San Francisco are selling freely as if a gun were crossed between a joke and a toy. Mme. Homer, the opera singer, in the reign of terror at San Francisco, escaped in her husband's trousers. Still, women have worn the breeches before.

NOTICE.

In the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.

In the matter of the application of George F. Reinking, guardian of Mildred A. Jones and William C. Jones, minors, for license to sell real estate of said minors:

On this 11th day of May, 1906, this matter came on for hearing upon the application of George F. Reinking, guardian of Mildred A. Jones and William C. Jones, minors, for license to sell the real estate of his said wards, situated in Wayne County, Nebraska, to-wit: The undivided one-twentieth interest of each of said wards in and to the east half of section two (2), township twenty-two north, range two east of the sixth principal meridian, and to invest the proceeds thereof at interest or in some productive stock for that it would be for the benefit of his said wards and their estate that said real estate be sold and so invested, and was submitted to the court.

On consideration whereof it appearing to me from said petition that said minors and said guardian are non-residents of the State of Nebraska, that said George F. Reinking was, on the 28th day of September, 1897, appointed guardian of the estate of said minors by the district court of Dallas county, Iowa, and is now such guardian.

And it further appearing that it would be beneficial to the estate of said minors that the said real estate be sold, and the proceeds thereof put out at interest or invested in some productive stock, it is therefore ordered that the next of kin and all persons interested in the said real estate of said minors, appear before me, the judge of said court at chambers at the court house in the city of Bellevue, county of Antelope, state of Nebraska, on the 18th day of June, 1906, at 8 o'clock p. m., to show cause, if any there be, why license should not be granted to the said George F. Reinking to sell the said ward's interest in the real estate above described for the purpose above set forth.

And it is further ordered that a copy of the order be published at least three successive weeks prior to the time of such hearing in the WAYNE HERALD, a weekly newspaper published in said county of Wayne, and that it shall not be necessary to personally serve a copy of this order on each of the said next of kin, wards, or persons interested, in said estate. ### The wrong way to select harness is the way it is usually done. Price is generally the first consideration. If that is very low the goods seem attractive, regardless of quality. Judge our goods the other way about. Examine into the quality of this harness first. Then it will be seen that it is worth almost any price. But our prices are not high. Value considered they are remarkably low.
