JUDGE BOYD ENDORSED

He Is Unanimous Choice of Convention.

ROSEWATER WINS INSTRUCTIONS

Only Contest Grew From Senatorship—A. R. Davis, B. F. Feather and Ed. Owen Nominated.

The republican convention of Wayne county was held in Wayne Saturday and resulted in the endorsement of Judge J. F. Boyd for congress and Hon. E. Rosewater for United States senator, and the nomination of A. R. Davis for county attorney, B. F. Feather for clerk of court and Ed. Owen for commissioner.

The only lack of unanimity in the convention was manifested over the question of endorsing a candidate for United States senator. Those who voted against instructions for Mr. Rosewater, were opposed to endorsing any candidate for senator. A majority of the Wayne city delegates were against such instructions, but delegates from outside districts were generally in favor of Mr. Rosewater and their will prevailed.

The convention was called to order at 3 o'clock by A. R. Davis, chairman of the special committee, and A. A. Welch was chosen temporary chairman, and Grant S. Meares temporary secretary. Delegates present were authorized to cast the full vote of the different precincts, and then the temporary organization was made permanent.

Immediately following the permanent organization, A. R. Davis introduced a resolution in support of Judge J. F. Boyd's congressional candidacy and it met with unanimous and enthusiastic approval. Here is the resolution:

"We, the republicans of Wayne county, in delegate convention assembled, recognizing the signal ability, excellent qualifications and consistent advocacy of Rosewater republicanism of Judge J. F. Boyd, hereby pledge our united support to him as candidate for congress and instruct our delegates to the congressional convention to use every honorable means to secure his nomination."

The following resolution was then introduced by M. S. Moats and finally carried by a vote of 40 to 10:

Resolved, "That the delegates to the state convention are hereby instructed to vote for the Hon. Edward Rosewater of Omaha, Neb., for United States senator."

A motion to refer the foregoing resolution to the committee on resolutions failed to carry.

A committee, appointed by the chairman and consisting of Dr. J. J. Williams, Richard Olsson and E. W. Hase, reported the following resolutions which were unanimously adopted:

"We, the republicans of Wayne county, in delegate convention assembled, reaffirm our allegiance to the principles of the republican party as enunciated in the republican national platform and heartily commend and endorse the wise, courageous and statesmanlike administration of President Roosevelt, especially approving of existing, and to be and his earnest endeavors to place all on an equality before the law; and we endorse the state administration.

"We favor the adoption of the constitutional amendments submitted by the state legislature, providing for a railroad commission and the enactment of such laws as will clothe the commission with power to fix and regulate both freight and passenger rates within the state.

"We approve of the anti-pass law enacted by our national congress and endorse the adoption of a similar law by our legislature prohibiting the issuance of passes within the state."

"We commend the efficient and businesslike administration of public affairs by our present republican county officials. Be it

Resolved, further, That we are in favor of a state-wide primary system for the choosing of all elective officers throughout the state, believing it to be the best way of securing the will of the electors.

A. R. Davis, W. F. Sears, Fred Phigson, Ed. Owen, R. E. Smith and August Ziemer were appointed a committee to choose delegates to the different conventions and their selections were approved by the convention, being as follows:

State convention—Dr. J. J. Williams, Rodney Merrill, Gus Schroeder, R. E. Smith, E. W. Hase, I. W. Altier, W. H. Gildersleeve, J. T. Bressler, Frank Tracy.

Gildersleeve, Harry Prescott, L. E. Peterson, Bert Brown, M. S. Moats. Senatorial convention—W. H. McNeal, Charles Beebe, C. D. Jones, A. Bohlander, C. Templein, Peter Kantz, F. M. Northrop, J. J. Williams, O. C. Lewis.

District representative convention—S. E. Anker, Frank Benson, Louis Owen, Joseph Jones, Henry Boy, Harry Prescott, E. H. Wright, John Haeister, Luther Swanson.

A. R. Davis for county attorney, B. F. Feather for clerk of the district court and Ed. Owen for commissioner, were nominated by acclamation.

Hon. Edward Rosewater, candidate for United States senator, and Judge J. F. Boyd, candidate for congress, were present and responded to invitations to address the convention. They expressed gratitude over the endorsements received and pledged their best efforts in behalf of the state in the event they are successful in winning the high offices to which they aspire. Their addresses were well received and elicited hearty applause.

Members of the republican county central committee were chosen as follows: Brenna, O. C. Lewis; Chapin, Wm. Prince; Deer Creek, Ohas. Beebe; Garfield, D. E. Francis; Hoskins, Peter Kantz; Hancock, Otto Miller; Hunter, W. F. Sears; Logan, Dave Long; Leslie, Amos Long; Plum Creek, A. E. Gildersleeve; Strahan, Geo. Porter; Sherman, M. S. Moats; Wilbur, H. E. Hanson; Winslow, F. S. Tracy; Wayne, First ward, E. W. Hase; Second ward, A. T. Witter; Third ward, H. B. Jones. The committee was authorized to elect a chairman and secretary, and did so, naming A. A. Welch for chairman and A. E. Littell for secretary. Messrs. A. R. Davis and Grant Meares who have officiated faithfully and efficiently for two years as chairman and secretary respectively, concluded that the offices should be passed around and therefore declined an invitation to serve again this year.

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The republican electors of the several counties of the Third congressional district of the state of Nebraska, are hereby called to meet in convention at Fremont, Neb., on Tuesday, August 16, 1906, at 8 o'clock a. m., of said day for the purpose of placing in nomination a candidate for representative to congress from said congressional district, and for such other business as may properly come before the convention.

The basis of representation is one delegate at large from each county, and one for each one hundred votes or major fraction thereof, cast for the Honorable J. J. McCarthy at the election held 1904. The several counties are entitled to delegates as follows:

Antelope, 17; Cedar, 17; Dakota, 9; Boone, 15; Colfax, 11; Dixon, 15; Bart, 20; Cumby, 14; Dodge, 23; Knox, 19; Nance, 11; Stanton, 9; Madison, 21; Pierce, 11; Thurston, 8; Merrick, 12; Platte, 15; Wayne, 18.

It is recommended that no proxies be allowed but that the delegates present cast the full vote of the delegation.

JACK KONIGSTEIN, F. D. PALMS, Secretary, Chairman, Columbus, Neb., July 18, 1906.

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

Republican electors of Logan township, Dixon county, are requested to meet in the Wischof school house on August 4, at 8 o'clock p. m., to select delegates for the Dixon county convention to be held at Emerson on August 7, and to transact any other necessary business.

HENRY LEHMAN, Committeeman.

INCUBATOR FACTORY.

Arrangements have been completed for an incubator factory in Wayne with John Kate at the head of the institution. Dr. Porter's invention with the addition of recent improvements, has more than met expectations, and there is every reason to expect that great and growing success awaits the effort.

The building owned by the local I. O. O. F. and formerly occupied by a laundry, has been rented, and a car load of incubators, ready to be put together and given the necessary fixtures, will arrive within a few days. Fifty of them have already been sold by Mr. Kate to local people. An Indiana manufacturer of incubator supplies will be here soon to make a contract for the furnishing of equipments that cannot be made here. The machine is to be known as the X-Ray and the name is being copyrighted. Two sizes of the X-Ray will be put on the market, No. 1, 118-egg weighing 45 pounds and No. 2, 212-egg weighing 60 pounds. Weight is less than one-third that of other makes. It is the lightest and most attractive incubator on the market. It has nickel-plated corners, beautifully painted frame and glass top, through which the internal works are always exposed. It requires but one gallon of oil to produce a hatch, while other machines consume from five to seven gallons. The reason for this advantage lies in the fact that no heat is wasted, the lamp being turned down or up automatically in accordance with the temperature within the incubator. The lamp is filled only once during a hatch, and the eggs do not need to be taken out or disturbed.

The X-Ray is sold for about one-half the price of other first-class incubators and is warranted to give satisfaction, ninety days' trial being allowed purchasers. It is undoubtedly a superior machine, and the demand for it is sure to grow.

Stories of the big wages paid to harvest hands in South Dakota wheat fields should not always be believed. We think they are exaggerated a good deal, and when the boys leave home and get away out to the harvest fields they find they have been badly fooled. In a recent daily paper we read that harvest hands were getting $30 a month and bankers and merchants were looking their doors and flocking to the wheat fields. Now this story has a too unreasonable to be true and the young man who goes seeking after this golden plum is apt to get left.—Randolph Times.

Rev. Geo. I. Sampson of Wayne was in Stanton several days this week in the interest of the Nebraska Children's Home Society. Rev. Sampson spoke at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and at the M. E. church in the evening in the interest of the society. He called at the Picket office Monday evening. He informed us that Rev. Cantwell who conducted Evangelistic meetings at the Baptist church in this city several months ago, has disappeared and his friends in this part of the state are very anxious about him. He left Hoskins some time ago for Pilger and intended going from there to Omaha where he was to meet a party. He has never been heard from since then and his friends near Hoskins are quite anxious as to his whereabouts.—Stanton Picket.

Monday's Omaha Bee gives the following unbiased reference to the congressional situation in this district: "In the Third district, Congressman McCarthy is encountering opposition in the form of the candidacy of Judge J. F. Boyd of Neligh and former State Senator W. W. Young of Stanton. Boyd has already captured instructed delegations from Antelope, Madison and Wayne, while Boone and Cedar, the other two counties whose delegations have been named, are unattached. The contest between McCarthy and Boyd is acute in several places, especially in Dodge county, where Ross Hammond is championing McCarthy and L. D. Richards and C. E. Abbott opposing him. Should McCarthy lose in Dodge county he could hardly hope to win his re-nomination, although even a victory there would not make it certain. Young's hope is to come in as a compromise candidate. It may take the congressional convention, which meets in Fremont August 16, to settle the question."

CHAPTER XXII.

"Morning," said the Englishman. "These papers are almost ready to be handed over to you. All my stores are on board."

Tyars looked up sharply, and as sharply returned to his occupation. "Easton was grave, and Tyars knew that he had come with news of some sort. He waited, however, for the American to begin, and continued to fold and arrange down and up the papers, folding and unfolding and making up in packets his receipted bills.

"Which will make a difference in your account," he said, "is the difference in the value of the goods."

"On the contrary," returned Easton, "there is everything to be gained by your people. I have noticed it since I have been in this country. You take too much for what you give. You give things that are worth nothing, and you take things that are worth a great deal."

"What are you driving at?" asked Tyars, curiously. "In a singularly lifeless voice, he said, 'I have discovered a sweetheart.'"

"You throw the papers in a heap and rise suddenly from his seat. He walked to the mantel piece."

"Of course," he said, "your discovery can only relate to one person."

"You say you know who I mean?"

"Tyars nodded his head in acquiescence and continued smoking. The little American set looking in a curious way at this large, impassive, high-bred Englishman, as if gathering enjoyment and edification from the study of him."

"Well," he drawled, at length, "you say nothing is to be said."

"On the contrary," returned Easton, "there is everything to be gained by your people. I have noticed it since I have been in this country. You take too much for what you give. You give things that are worth nothing, and you take things that are worth a great deal."

little pause, Grace went on, in measured, thoughtful tones, carrying with them the weight of deliberation.

"There is one point," he said, "upon which I think there must be an understanding."

"Yes," said Tyars anxiously.

"Any risks extra risks, such as boat-work, night-work or a fall—these must be mine. From what you have said, I gather that your intention was to be skipper, and yet do the rough work as well. When anything hazardous is to be done, I shall do it. You must stick to the ship."

"I have no doubt," said Tyars, seating himself at the table and beginning to open his letters, "that you are all constructing a very fine mountain out of materials intended for a molehill. I, for one, have no intention of leaving my bones in the far North. There is no reason why we should not all be back home by this time next year."

"I am at all, agreed Owen somewhat reluctantly, with a suspicion of doubt, the next minute: "Suppose we succeed?"

"Well, what then?"

"Suppose we get these all right, rescue the men and go on safely; we get over the elemental danger, and then we have to face the political, war and the economic conditions, and if the truth ever comes out, it will be impossible to prove that you did it better."

"But it will not be easy to keep the newspapers quiet."

"We shall not attempt to keep them quiet. It will only be a local matter. The San Francisco papers will publish their reports of our contentions, and a column or two purporting to be biographical, but the world will be little the wiser. In America such matters are interesting only in so much as they are personal, and there is in reality nothing easier than the suppression of one's personality. There is no difficulty in kicking an interview out of the room, just as there is no difficulty in kicking a newspaper out of the room, and whether the American newspapers abuse us or not after having been kicked. As to the details of the voyage, I shall withhold them from the view of publishing a book, which is quite the correct thing nowadays. The book shall always be in course of preparation, and need never appear."

In this way the two men continued talking, planning, scheming all the morning, while they worked methodically and prosaically.

The eleventh of March was fixed for the sailing of the Argo, exploring vessel, and Easton's chief thought on the subject was a wistful one as to what he would do with himself after she had gone.

The Argo was to pass out of the tidal basin into the river at one o'clock, and at half-past twelve Easton drove up to the dock gates. He brought with him the last issues of the ship's outfit in the shape of a pile of newspapers, and a launch of hot-water was for the cabin table, for there was to be a luncheon party on board while steaming down the river.

He found Admiral Grace strolling about the dock with Tyars, conversing in quite a friendly way, and endeavoring honestly to suppress his contempt for seamanship of so young a growth as that of his companion. The ladies were below, inspecting the ship under Owen's guidance.

"She is," he said, addressing himself to the admiral, with transatlantic courtesy, "a strange mixture of the man-of-war and the yacht—do you not find it so, sir?"

"She is," answered the old gentleman, "one of the most complete vessels I have ever boarded—though her outward appearance is, of course, against her."

"One can detect," continued the American, looking round with a musing eye, "the influence of a naval officer."

The old gentleman softened visibly. At this moment he had a glimpse of Grace, who was standing by Owen's Grace—Miss Winter first with a searching little smile in her eyes, Easton saw that she was very much on the alert.

"I feel quite at home," he said to him, looking round her, "although there are so many changes."

"So do I," he said the more so because the changes have been made under my own directions."

They walked off, leaving the rest of the party standing together. As they walked, Owen Grace watched them with a singular light in his clear grey eyes; singular because they were rarely glances, they only darted at times.

Presently the vessel glided smoothly between the slimy gates out into the open river. The tow-line was cast off, and the Argo's engines started. The vessel swung slowly round on the greasy water, pointing her bows toward the harbor, and the admiral's Grace did not think very much of the scene as she watched with a doleful resemblance, like a farmer's mare on the outward road.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Had an acute but unilluminated observer been introduced into the little cabin of the Argo during the consumption of the delicate breakfast provided for her officers by a certain recklessness among the party assembled. Admiral Grace was the only one who really did justice to the steward's maiden and supreme effort, and in consequence was singular in failing to notice the fact that the officers and their Mark Easton and Owen Grace. This was, perhaps, owing to the fact that when we have passed the half-way milestone in life, we fail to appreciate the most brilliant conversation. It is just possible that Admiral Grace did not think very much of the scene as she watched with a doleful resemblance, like a farmer's mare on the outward road.

One or twice Easton's words, referred to Miss Winter; "I intend to be impudently funny, and I guess you will have to laugh." This was her cue, and she acted upon it.

"The meal came to an end and a move was made. There was nothing else to do but to go on deck. The moments divided with the slow, dragging monotony which makes us almost impatient to see the end of the day, which we shall perhaps never look upon again. The crew of the Argo were in sight, and all on the quarterdeck of the Argo gazed at it as they might have gazed on some unknown Eastern city after traversing the desert. And then, after all—all the waiting, the preparation, the counting of moments, and the calculating of distances—the bell in the engine room came as a surprise. There was something startling in the clang of gong as the engineer replied:

"Helen was the last to rise! She stood holding the shawl which Owen had spread over her knees, and looked round with a strange, intense gaze. The steam-er was now drifting slowly on the tide with rising engines. There were two boats rowing toward her from Gravesend Pier, one a low, green-painted wherry for the pilot, the other a larger boat, with stained and faded cushions. The scene—the torpid, yellow river, the sordid town and low riverside warehouses—could scarce have exceeded for pure, unvarnished desolation."

Already the steps were being lowered. In a few moments the larger boat swung alongside, held by a rope made fast in the forecastle of the Argo. A general move was made toward the rail. Tyars passed out on the gangway, where he stood waiting to hand the ladies into the boat. Helen was near to her brother; she turned to him and kissed him in silence. Then she went to the gangway. There was a little pause, and for a moment Helen and Tyars were left alone at the foot of the brass-bound steps.

"Good-by," said Tyars.

"There was a slight prolongation of the last syllable, as if he had something else to say; but he never said it, although she gave him time."

"Good-by," she answered, at length; and she, too, seemed to have something to add which was never added.

Then she stepped lightly into the boat and took her place on the faded red cushions.

The Argo went to sea that night. There was much to do, although everything seemed to be in its place, and every man appeared to know his duty. It thus happened that Tyars and Grace had not a moment to themselves until well into the night. The watch was set at 8 o'clock. For a moment Tyars paused before leaving his chief officer alone on the little bridge.

"What a clever fellow Easton is!" he said. "I never recognized it until this afternoon."

ROUNDUP OF WILD HORSES.

Range in State of Washington to be cleared of Grass Consumers.

One of the most exciting phases, if it may be so called, that has taken place since the era of the grand buffalo hunt ended on the great plateau, is the proposed roundup of 18,000 wild horses in Douglas County, Washington. As scheduled, 400 cowboys will take part in the ride after these wild creatures of the range. The purpose is to rid the range of this great band of grass consumers and the effort, presumably, will be to dispatch rather than capture the horses.

These untamed and practically unmanageable animals are the product of nature left to itself on the great range for thirty years. The stock is interbred and, of course, underbred, and has no place in the economy of civilized life. While its extermination will be a gain to the legitimate stock-breeding and raising interests of the section over which the horses have so long roamed at will, the instincts of humanity are shocked at the cruelties that will be inflicted through the means by which a purpose is to be accomplished.

Perhaps this is the best that can be done at this stage of affairs to rid a wide section of the country of a veritable pest to the stock industry. Like many other scourges, the remedy for this plague of wild horses lays in prevention. The careless settlers of thirty years ago who allowed their ponies to run uncurbed on the range year after year were culpable in this matter. The result has been a multiplication of unprofitable animals that have eaten out the grass on the range for years to the detriment of the interests of a legitimate stock industry. Now comes the necessity of repairing the consequences of the settlers' carelessness and a "roundup" looking to the extermination of thousands of these wild creatures, with such cruelties as will be necessary to accomplish that end. The chase will be an exciting one, no doubt, and the ultimate result will be beneficial.

While fully recognizing the value of corn crop in all sections and particularly in the West, where it is so largely grown, the fact remains that more of it is wasted than should be. Western farmers wear out themselves and their horses plowing under cornstalks which could be put into the ground much more easily and inexpensively by cutting the stalks, shredding them and feeding them to the stock, so as to have the manure for the soil. If manure is needed than by plowing under cornstalks. Farmers of the East cannot understand why their brothers of the West follow corn with corn; perhaps, in the East, it is realized that the time has been when the changes were forced on them, as it must be, eventually, in the West. We may follow corn after corn now and for some years to come successfully, but we'll have to stop it sometime. Further, why should we continue to plow for stop, either in the West or elsewhere?

If sections have found the rotation of crops profitable is there any reason to assume that it will not be equally successful elsewhere? On the other hand, if a soil is able to grow crop after crop of corn with success, is it not fair to assume that a short rotation, say three years, would give crops which would be more profitable and leave the soil in much better condition? Think it over, or, better still, experiment a little on small plots, and see what the result is.

Bone and Saw.

"Do you see that distinguished-looking man over there with glue-colored whiskers? Well, he furnishes the bone and saw at the mill."

"You don't say. Is he the head of a physical culture college?"

"Nope."

"Recalling station?"

"Why, he runs a 3-cent lunchroom."

Sewer and Tunnel Miners' Association at Chicago has a membership of 8000.

The bridge and structural iron workers by a vote of 2,852 to 1,877, have decided to affiliate with the Structural Building Trades Alliance.

The mayor of Boston has notified the Electrical Workers' Union that the men employed in the fire alarm department will be put on the eight-hour basis.

It has been figured that the strike of the Wall street messenger boys cost the street $1,000,000, and that $100,000 would have paid the increase demanded for 101 years.

The latest union formation is the Marine Drivers and Tenders' Union, recently organized at Cleveland. Branches are to be established in other port cities on the lakes and the seaboard.

The Foot and Shoe Workers' National Union, headquartered at Boston, has upwards of $100,000 in its international treasury and has within the past few years expended $300,000 in sick and death benefits.

Many German concerns own dwelling houses and rent them to workmen at actual cost. They provide restaurants and meals at cost price; furnish fuel at equal cost, and give transportation in whole or part.

Differences between the Master Painters' Association of Pittsburg, Pa., and the unions of the Brotherhood of Painters over the payment of car fare have culminated in the declaration by the master painters of a general lockout against their employees.

New York, New Haven and Hartford machinists, about 750 in number, have been granted an increase in wages averaging about one cent an hour.

The Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America has decided to establish a mutual benefit business Oct. 1. A mortuary fund will be maintained similar to those of the railroad brotherhoods, from which death claims will be paid. The officers of the organization believe that the insurance department is the most attractive feature for non-members as they can procure cheaper insurance through it than they could in any of the old-line companies.

Details of the settlement of the Ohio coal miners' strike have reached Washington. In the settlement the miners receive better than the 1903 scale, despite the declaration that no increase would be granted. This increase amounts to 5.58 per cent. On their part, the miners themselves make concessions in matters of detail. The district meetings held recently to consider the Columbus agreement were warmly interested, and it is stated that all the striking miners will be back at work soon.

Organized labor in New York took advantage of the deficit of popular sentiment the other day in a novel way. At Coeymans and Glasgow, there has been intermittent warfare for twenty years between the employers and the unions, with the unions a poor second. Recently the employers appealed to the International Brick, Tile and Terra Cotta Workers, who, in turn, engaged former State Senator and Governor William C. Clegg, manufacturer of violations of the anti-trust laws, whereupon the latter capitulated, signed an agreement with the union and discontinued the alleged illegal practices.

During the first quarter of this year the average earnings of 333,000 workmen in New York State, according to the bulletin of the labor department, were $2.33 a day, or $212 for the quarter. No women or miners are included in this statement. The average wage for fifth period was $3, as compared with $2.88 for the same time last year. The demand for labor is not confined to the building industry, where it is most marked, but is felt in all lines. The membership in labor unions now aggregates 394,270, an increase of 11,034 in the half year. The estimated cost of new buildings in New York City alone during the first quarter was $50,000,000.

Reports from officers of international unions of the American Federation of Labor, made to President Gompers, show favorable conditions for the coal miners, blacksmith carriage and cement workers, elevator constructors (the latter having secured a new agreement in Pittsburg) and the trades generally. In Alabama the printers' demand for an eight-hour day was won without a strike; carpenters have received an increase in wages in Hot Springs, Little Rock, and the same day in St. Louis, Granite City and Tappan, Mo.; Portland, Me., and other points. Increases in wages are also reported in the other building trades, a generally higher rate paid everywhere to union than non-union labor and plenty of employment.

The United Cloth, Hat and Cap Makers of America have placed a per capita tax of 10 cents per year for support of the benevolent sanitarium conducted by the organization at Denver, Colo., for the benefit of its members.

The cotton manufacturers of Fall River, Mass., put into effect Monday the wage scale of 1904, which was cut 12 1/2 per cent in July of that year. The increase concerns 20,000 mill operatives, and it is said that the mill owners hope this will bring back the families of skilled operators who migrated to Rhode Island, New Hampshire and Canada in 1904.

The western farmers are not the only people to suffer from a scarcity of labor this summer. According to the Iron and Allied Industries are in great difficulty to find men enough to meet the demands of the season. Many of the iron workers are inclined to insist upon a vacation period at this season. In the meantime orders for the heavier class of finished materials continue to roll in.

M. Pollard, of Paris, not satisfied with his usual grafting of floriculture, has started to transform vegetables. It is said that he has succeeded in turning a radish into a potato.

PLERS BY THE PEOPLE

DRIFTING TOWARD EVIL.

By Juliet V. Strauss.

People think comparatively little of morality. It is thus that things grow. Things are done that one disapproves of, but he sees that other people are not criticizing, that they seem to be commended by the majority, so he quietly goes ahead, neither praising nor condemning. The truth is, each is waiting for the other to denounce the evil, and so it waxes strong and fourishes. I think it is our duty to speak out clearly when we think things are wrong; it may seem useless to disagree with the majority, but it is well enough to put yourself on record in view of the time when people will come to their senses and see the evil.

We have yet to learn what evil is; it is much easier to understand good. The great trouble, however, is in our not pausing to consider. We allow other people to set the pace, and put the labels on things. We let them tell us what is good and what is bad, and we try to accept their judgment. I often think that is one reason why women dress so ridiculously. Each waits for somebody else to lead the opposition, and the result is nobody does it, and all meekly subside into a sort of fashionable slavery.

There is a very fine sense of distinction in moral questions, and most people are lacking in it. Hence the gigantic amount of immorality among us. The immoral publications and the decidedly immoral tendencies of modern entertainments. The nudity of women in pictures and on the stage, the decline of the stage into what was once the abhorred variety show, the lack of appreciation of the really good, the prostitution of religion, the disintegration of the family, and the lack of domestic qualities in modern women. All of these are immoralities, though we haven't mind enough as a race to realize it.

Will Women Vote as Husbands Wish? By Edith S. Crossman.

It must be admitted that a large number, perhaps the majority of women, in England, still vote under the influence of their husbands or fathers. Perhaps this is not altogether an evil. But there is a considerable minority, which gradually is increasing, which thinks and acts for itself. The franchise has been a political education for women and has roused them to an interest which they could not feel while it seemed outside their sphere.

The agitation already had given birth to some women's political societies. These increased until there was one in every town of importance. Some of these societies united to send members to the women's national council, a sort of unrecognized and self-elected parliament, meeting annually at one of the chief centers and discussing in detail an extensive program of reform. The subjects discussed may serve to show what direction political women are likely to take. Many are concerned with their own sex—regulations about shop girls' labor, the economic independence of women, and equality of wages when both sexes are doing equal work. Other subjects deal with children—especially their education and the care of poor and destitute children. They have proclaimed themselves a peace society.

The increased political activity of women has not led to the dire results prophesied by the anti-suffragists. Domestic life has not even been disturbed. The married people who quarrel over politics are those who are bound to quarrel over something. Where the two are agreed, or where the husband's influence predominates, they vote alike. Where the wife thinks and decides for herself she generally is strong enough to have her judgment respected by her husband. Homes have not been neglected. The time spent in recording a vote every three years is a negligible quantity. Political women certainly spend some considerable share of their time in public work. But even with them it is not nearly so absorbing and so destructive of home life as the common round of social gayeties. Politics is regarded by many of them as a more effective means of philanthropy than charity has yet proved.

RUSSIAN REVOLUTION WILL RESHAPE WORLD.

By W. T. Stead.

The French revolution dominated the nineteenth century. Will the Russian revolution dominate the twentieth? As the Japanese war was the prelude of the Russian revolution, so the Russian revolution may be the prelude of the reshaping of the world.

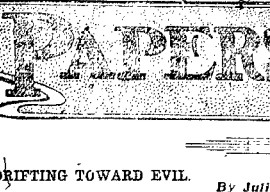

The most immediately pressing question is whether the Russian revolution will lead to the resurrection of Poland. The Poles, who had a literature a thousand years before their Russian conquerors, are an indomitable race. Poland was buried in the eighteenth century. Germany, Russia and Austria were constituted keepers of the tomb. But nearly the sentiments exceeding fear and quakes for there is an ominous stirring within the sepulcher, and one who knows but the Russian revolution may be the angel of the resurrection.

Out of the welter of blind and bloody anarchy late which Russia is drifting, peace and order may come. After an unexampled slaughter of human beings by famine and sword, Russia will emerge in some more or less recognizable shape, and slowly begin to find her new place in the community of nations. If the new Russia should forswear militarism, abandon the fond dream of reconstructing her navy, and abolish the monstrous protective tariff which has choked the life out of her industry, then the world may witness a scene of redemption and of development such as may parallel the industrial progress of the United States after the Civil War.

LIVE UP TO YOUR POSE. By William Wesley.

If every person would try to live up to his or her photograph things would go better by much more than half. There would be vastly less reason for bitterness in social rivalry, and resentment in professional ambition; vastly less reason for matrimonial revolt and domestic brookings; vastly less reason for the breaking of friendships and recurrent acid regrets.

Suppose we frame our "posest" photograph and hang it up where we must look at it when we rise in the morning. This would be a prodigious of what we are expecting ourselves to do all day. Whenever we look back into the bad ways of doing things suppose we go look at the photograph just as if a neighbor had wanted to look our best when folks gaze upon the inmate, uncontented—and then, perhaps, will experience a mental twinge of truth that our attitude commends puts up its worst appearance when we forget to live up to our photograph.

THE LUSTANIA AND ST. PAULS.

The Lusitania, now "on the stocks" on the Tyne, is the most wonderful creation of the shipbuilder and marine engineer ever yet evolved, and will presently be plying regularly between Liverpool and New York. The total cost of the vessel is $6,500,000. The Lusitania is expected to reduce the Queens-town to Sandy Hook voyage to four and a half days.

Here are some comparative figures:

	ft.	ft.	knobs.
Great Eastern	11,650	83	10,000
Kaiser Wilhelm	11,700	72 1/2	9,000
Lusitania	11,750	80	32,000

If the Lusitania was placed on end she would be more than twice as high as St. Paul's Cathedral, which has a height of 395 feet.

The horse-power of the Lusitania is something stupendous, being 68,000.

THE LUSTANIA AND ST. PAULS.

over 60 per cent in excess of that of the Kaiser Wilhelm. For the past nine years Germany has held the Blue Ribband of the Atlantic, but it is confidently expected that in a few months time that coveted and lustrous distinction will revert to the British mercantile marine.

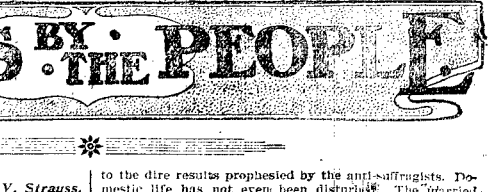

As an illustration of the immense size of the new steamer, it may be mentioned that down each of her four huge funnels two passenger locomotives could roll abreast. Regarding the hold, of course, she has eight hatches, and has accommodation for 500 first, 500 second, and 1,300 steerage passengers, while her crew will number 800—a total of 3,150 persons. The vessel has four propellers driven by turbines. The boilers are twenty-five in number, with 192 furnaces. She will be lit by 4,600 electric lights.

Unavoidable Delay.

"The enemy is in great confusion and this is the instant to attack, sir" the dusty and breathless aide reported.

The senatorial nomination for this district is conceded to Madison county.

The Pennsylvania railroad has reduced passenger fare to two and a half cents per mile.

County Attorney Siman and Rodney Merrill are candidates for representative, and as there was no expression of choice by the republican convention the question of making a selection rests wholly in the hands of the delegates.

The Cummins faction of the republican party in Iowa won a decisive victory in the convention at Des Moines yesterday. Gov. Cummins was renominated and all the nominees with one exception—railroad commissioner—are Cummins men.

It is reported in New York City that the Union Pacific is borrowing great sums of money with which to make extensions and improvements. It is hoped the company will not forget to order an improvement in place of the combination freight and passenger train which leisurely drags itself from Columbus to Norfolk every day.

Roger Sullivan, national committee-man of Illinois, firmly refuses the request of W. J. Bryan that the former should resign his position at the head of the democracy of that state. Bryan alleges that Sullivan was connected with corporations and had received his political trust through fraud which latter imputation is hotly resented.

Aside from the question of instructing for United States senator drawing out a slight contest, Saturday's republican convention in Wayne was united in action and gave general satisfaction. Endorsement of Judge Boyd's congressional candidacy met the unanimous wish of the people of this county, and the several nominees and delegations were judiciously selected. A. E. Davis, nominee for county attorney, is eminently well qualified for county attorney, and is assured of election. B. F. Feather who is filling the office of clerk of court by appointment, is highly satisfactory as the party's choice for that office. Ed. Owen who is before the people for re-election as commissioner, has ably and carefully attended to county business during his first term and citizens of the county will see that he is made one of the three to be intrusted with public affairs during another term.

Nebraska prohibitionists held a state convention in Lincoln Tuesday and nominated a complete ticket with the exception of United States senator. Following are the nominees: Governor, Prof. H. T. Sutton of Bethany; lieutenant governor, Rev. J. D. Forsythe of University Place; railroad commissioner, J. S. McClary of Beatrice; E. A. Girard of Monroe; Samuel Lighty of Falls City; secretary of state, J. M. Bell of York; auditor, W. E. Nichol of Minden; treasurer, W. H. Maddox of Falls City; school superintendent, Bert Wilson of Humboldt; attorney general, J. D. Graves of Peru. Report of the convention says that the platform reasserts adherence to the principle of no traffic whatsoever in liquor, but insists that the people have the right to vote out the saloon by state, counties or municipalities and to that end declares for the enactment by the next legislature of a county option law. Declaration is made for the initiative and referendum; election of United States senators by direct vote; for a law prohibiting railroad passes and the granting of rebates; for a reduction of freight rates and government ownership of railroad, telegraphs and telephone services.

CONTENTMENT.

When the ancient king ordered his realm searched for a happy man, that his shirt might be procured for the king to wear, the only really happy man who could be found was a simple peasant who had no shirt. The incident perhaps overstates a fact, but it remains to be said that wealth and station do not necessarily create happiness. Contentment does not come from them, though their attainment may be the result of an ambition. The law of compensation is so unerring in its operation and so exacting in its provisions that one who achieves what is called success is sure to pay the price. It may come in broken health; it may be in the loss of friends. Mankind are so envious and so filled with jealousy that the one who rises from poverty to opulence is certain to provoke the enmity of those who before might have been friendly. He is likely to discover his circle of friends narrowing as he rises in the scale of financial success, and as friends are worth more than money it may sometimes be doubted if success is really worth while. But there is more than one kind of it. There is such a thing as honorable success, and the number who are alienated by reason of jealousy is not likely to exceed the number attracted by achievement. Mr. Rockefeller, who is perhaps the richest man who ever lived, and many times as rich as the famous Croesus, is now being scourged through the world and hunted as a criminal. Such a success cannot be desirable. In proportion as he fills his chests with gold so is he despised.—Fremont Tribune.

ALTONA NEIGHBORHOOD.

Geo. F. Thies returned Tuesday from a trip to South Dakota.

Adolf Shack, the Cedar county stock food man, was in town the first of the week.

Moritz Damme was the first one to thresh in this neighborhood, having a nice piece of winter wheat.

Will Erxleben is building a new crib and granary. Orlaf Holst and John Jensen are doing the carpenter work.

Joe Smith was thrown from a pony Sunday night and hurt his hip. Dr. Leisenring was out and fixed him up.

Three young fellows came to Altona Sunday afternoon and at once proceeded to fill themselves about three-fourths full of beer and loaded the other one-fourth in their buggy. Upon starting for home they lit out at such speed that caused them to upset at Bergh & Panning's corner and let the team run away. They were captured later at Onas Erxleben's.

(Omitted last week)

Will Stetinger is working for August Mather.

Rev. F. Shallor has purchased a splendid new carriage.

Geo. Thies departed for South Dakota Tuesday morning.

The 3-year-old son of Walter Glaubins accidentally caught his hands in the pulley of a hay stacker and had some of his fingers badly crushed.

Mrs. D. H. Albers of Beemer visited John Jensen's family Wednesday.

Gus Seelmeyer put up some lightning rods for Fritz Von Seggern Tuesday.

The Altona blacksmith visited his family in Hooper from Friday until Monday.

Harvest has begun and a number of fields of barley and oats are already in the shock.

Fred Panning and sister, Mrs. J. G. Bergt, left yesterday for Hooper to visit the old folks at home.

August Thies had one of his fingers dislocated as a result of upsetting a heavy stacker while moving it.

To every farmer or teamster in Wayne county who has a horse with a sore neck or shoulder or gall of any character, I invite you to come and get a 25c box of Security Gall Ointment. If you are in doubt as to the result come and get a box and pay when you are satisfied. This remedy is now in use by about 100 farmers of Wayne county, and not in one instance has it failed to effect a cure. Don't work the faithful horse with an inflamed neck or shoulder. Try the humane way, use Security Gall ointment; it will cure and you work the animal as usual. RALPH RUNDLELL.

lmer, three miles east of Pierce. After they had departed found a letter addressed to Elijah Stephens. It contained much to infer that the parties were horse thieves or cattle rustlers. Mr.
Kollmer turned the letter over to the authorities and County Attorney Van Wagenen sent copies of the letter to Fay, Oklahoma. Today the Pierce county sheriff received a telegram to arrest all of them saying they are wanted in Oklahoma. The people are traveling under the name of Stephens and were headed for the Rosebud country but the telegram states that their real name is Rooster.

CELEBRATION AT PONCA.

A report from Ponca says that at a mass meeting of the citizens it was agreed upon and steps taken to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the settlement of Ponca and to make a two days' cer-nival of the occasion, on September 27 and 28. Mayor F. P. Davey is chairman of the executive committee, with Dr.
Young, John Mikesell, P. W. Barker and J. R. Pomeroy as associate members.

The committee propose to make the first day a "pioneer and old settlers' day." A large parade, consisting of twelve or fourteen yoke of oxen hitched to a large sod plow will be in the parade to illustrate how the early settlers used to till the soil. Following this will probably be a steam plow of several gangs, illustrating the most up-to-date method of the progressive farmer of Dixon county today.

An Indian fight, ball games, foot races, balloon ascension, basketball, etc., will be some of the other sports that will be arranged by the amusement committee.

It is proposed to get one of the best speakers in the west and one thoroughly familiar with the state and the national history to deliver the principal oration.

1911 Fish, alive and kicking, may now be received at any distance from the water in which they are captured, says the Philadelphia Record, thanks to a German scientist, Dr. Eugene Erdwich of Berlin. In his laboratory a method has been found to keep live fish indefinitely in cases lined with a thick layer of damp cloth and supplied with a current of pure oxygen. The fish has now retained its oxygen for six days, an advance on the old principle, but with a slight variation. The fish are kept in a little water, into which pure oxygen is constantly injected.

NATION NEAR TO WAR

Great Empire Now Seems on the Verge of Bloody Revolution.

Nicholas Invites Strife by Surrender to Policy of Grand Dukes—Members of the Disbanded Douma Flee to Viborg, Finland, Where Parliament Assembles and Plans Rebellion—Troops Are Massed at Danger Points and Martial Law Is in Force.

Russia's first experiment in parliamentary government came to an ignominious end Saturday night with the promulgation of two imperial ukases, the first dissolving the present parliament and providing for the convocation of its successor on March 5, 1907, more than six months hence, and the second proclaiming the capital of Russia and the surrounding province to be in a state of extraordinary security, which is only infinitesimally different from full martial law. This measure of safety is to provide for the outcasts which undoubtedly will be provoked by this, during measure. It is now but a step to dictatorship. A large part of the Province of Kiev, where armed uprisings are expected in consequence of the dissolution of parliament, was placed under martial law.

The Emperor has surrendered completely to the grand dukes. For hours Saturday night at Peterhof he conferred with General Trepoff, "the most hated man in Russia," and the bitterest of the ministers. When the conference ended Nicholas has had fully made up his mind to seize the helm by the horns and plunge the country into bloodshed. All the severities and brutalities which have characterized the rule of the czars in the past will be again brought into

FRENCH AND RUSSIAN UPRISINGS PARALLELED.

French Revolution.
Causes, poverty of the people; high taxes; no voice in the government; oppression by the nobles and church.
Third estate, representing the lower classes, organized under royal edict, but the nobles were excluded.
Necker, minister of finance, looked upon a regenerate France, dismissed by the king.
Louis XVI, entered with royal family to Versailles, just outside of Paris.
Masses called on Louis XVI, to save them from captivity of the nobility, proclaiming him a slave.

Russian Revolution.
Poverty of the workmen; excessive taxation; little voice in the government; oppression by the grand dukes, bureaucracy and holy guild.
Douma, representing the peasants and workmen, demands more liberty.
Prince Mirsky, former minister of interior, who suggested many reforms, discredited. M. Witte resigns.
Nicholas II, retires with the royal family to Tsarskoye Selo and Peterhof, a few miles from St. Petersburg.

ness, the abolition of capital punishment in political cases and other reforms on the ground that the revolutionists are using terrorism as a political weapon. An important factor in bringing affairs to the present acute stage is the refusal of the constitutional democratic leaders to take places in a reorganized cabinet.
The emperor, discouraged by his failure to form a coalition ministry and the distinctly revolutionary paths which parliament has chosen, was persuaded, after much characteristic hesitation, to risk a final appeal from the assembly to the people and to order new elections. This course probably will strengthen the cause of the revolutionists, or at any rate bring about the chaotic conditions that will give them an opportunity for an effective demonstration.

RUSSELL SAGE IS DEAD.

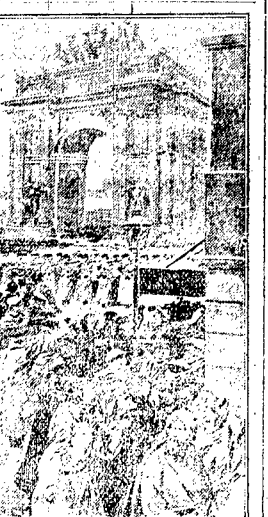

End Comes Suddenly to Aged Neighbor of Wall Street.
Russell Sage died at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon at his summer home in Lawrenceville, N. Y. He had been for the last few years by the infirmities of old age, he passed away after a rapid final decline of several weeks.
He was preparing with great pleasure for the celebration of his ninetieth birthday on Aug. 4, an event which was made memorable each year by the visits of the old residents of Lawrenceville and other intimate friends, to whom the aged financier was always known as "Uncle Russell."
"Everybody will be very much surprised to learn what I have done with my money," Mr. Sage said a year or more ago to an intimate friend, "but they will never learn until I am dead."
It is rumored that the $75,000,000 or $100,000,000 which are the generally accepted figures of the financier's fortune, is to be distributed mostly among charities could not be confirmed.
Mr. Sage's death came very peacefully. For six hours preceding his death he was unconscious and there was no rally in his final moments. At his bedside were his wife, son, brother, Joseph J. Shoenberger, Dr. Theodore Janeway of New York, Dr. Carl F. Schumaker of Lawrenceville and Rev. Robert G. Leitch.
The principal facts of Mr. Sage's long life are given in brief as follows:
Aug. 1, 1807—Born at Shenandoah, Va.
1831—Employed by brother Henry in grocery store at Troy, N. Y., at salary of $4 a month.
1834—Goes into grocery business with Eliza Sage, a brother.

Benjamin E. Barnes, the new postmaster of the city of Washington, has been attached to the government civil service for nearly twenty years. He was born in Maryland, an American patriot, age 60, 3, 1846. He was educated in the public schools of New Jersey and graduated from the law department of Georgetown University. After serving in the Postoffice Department for a long time he was appointed to a similar post in the White House during the administration of President McKinley. He was advanced to assistant secretary of the post office when he held under President Roosevelt at the time of his appointment as postmaster. Mr. Barnes has brought into public notice through the forcible objection of Mr. Minor Morris from the White House on his order.

WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS.

It is said that William Dean Howells, the author, has made such a careful study of the dialect and expressions of the various sections of the country that he can tell by their accent what city a person comes from.

Clarence Eddy, the organist, played the wedding march for his own wedding and at its conclusion took his place as bridegroom, and was married to Mrs. Grace Marie Dickman, formerly soprano in the Rutgers Presbyterian Church, New York. The wedding took place in the apartments of Mr. and Mrs. William MacDonough. In New York. The playing of the wedding march by Mr. Eddy himself was in accordance with an antinuptial agreement. Mrs. Eddy is a San Franciscan, and is, perhaps, best known in London, where she was a protegee of Mrs. Ronalds. She is a beautiful woman with blonde hair and striking figure. Both Mr. Eddy and Mrs. Dickman are divorced.

Mr. Lloyd-George was recently re-elected from the Carnarvon district, England. When the returning officer ascertained the figures the town hall clock showed 12:21 p. m. The majority was 1,224.

REIGN OF TERROR ON.

DESPERATE CONFLICT OCCURS IN ODESSA.

Downsacks Plunder Houses and Shops After Their Owners Are Massacred—Jews Armed with Scythes and Pitchforks Shot Down.

Anti-Jewish outbreaks have commenced at Odessa. A number of persons have already been killed or wounded. Serious disturbances took place in the remote quarters of the city. Cossacks and rowdies plundered the deserted Jewish houses and shops. On Srednia street Jews were killed and wounded in attempting to defend their property, with the police looked on. Many of the looting Cossacks were drunk.

The Jews, driven into a corner, were armed only with scythes and pitchforks, but they made a brave stand before the troops, only to be shot down needlessly by the soldiers.

Details received in regard to the mutiny at Warfaw are to the effect that two officers were killed and six wounded in the attack made on the Officers' Club by mutineers.

The mutineers belonged to the military corps. They set fire to the Officers' Club and then shot down the officers as they rushed from the burning structure in their night clothes. A detachment of infantry was called out and quelled the mutineers.

At the meetings near the Narva gate and in the Viborgski district, across the Neva, the Cossacks sent to disperse them refused openly to do so and fraternized with the workmen. This is partly confirmatory of the revolutionists' boast that the troops will not fire again on the people.

On top of news of revolutionary rioting in all the big cities of interior Russia come reports that appeal the revolutionists who are administering martial law. The situation in Sebastopol is so critical that the citizens are fleeing by hundreds to the interior of the peninsula. The entire fleet and the garrisons

From Warsaw disaffection among the troops is reported. The Socialists have issued inflammatory proclamations, urging refusal to pay taxes or furnish recruits and calling for a revolution.

St. Petersburg and Odessa are twin hotbeds of disaffection in southern Russia. In Odessa the Jews are in a panic, fearing a massacre as the first outbreak of popular anger aroused by the dissolution of parliament. At midnight masses of citizens were moving through the center of the city.

Proclamations announcing that the death sentence has been imposed on the Emperor, General Trepoff, M. Pobolotnostoff, who was procurator general of the holy synod; General Groff, the "pacifier" of the Baltic provinces, and others, have been scattered over part of Peterhof.

TEXT OF DOUMA'S MANIFESTO.

"Citizens, Stand Up for Your Rights!" Is the Ringing Appeal.

The address of the exiling Douma to the Russian people is unmistakably a call to arms. It goes on further openly flout to advise the people to withhold money and soldiers from the government; but between the lines it does see the threat of revolution. The following is the text of the parliamentary manifesto adopted at the meeting held at Viborg:

To the People from Their Popular Representatives—Citizens of All Russia! Parliament has been dissolved by ukase of July 21. You elected us as your representatives and instructed us to fight for our country and freedom. In execution of your instructions and our duty, we draw up laws in order to insure freedom to the people.

We demanded the removal of irresponsible ministers who were infringing the laws with impunity and oppressing freedom.

First of all, however, we wanted to bring out a law respecting the distribution of land to working peasants and to the expropriation of the estates of the crown appanages, ministries and lands belonging to the clergy, and compulsory expropriation of private estates. The government held such a law to be inadvisable, and upon parliament once more presenting the bill, the government dissolved parliament.

The government promises to convolve a new parliament seven months hence. Russia must remain without popular representation for seven whole months, at a time when the people are starving on the brink of ruin, and industry and commerce are paralyzed, when the whole country is suffering with unrest and when the ministry has definitely shown its incapacity to do justice to popular needs.

For seven months the government will act arbitrarily and will fight against the popular movement in order to obtain a pliable, subservient parliament. Should it succeed, however, in completely suppressing the popular movement, the government will couple no parliament at all.

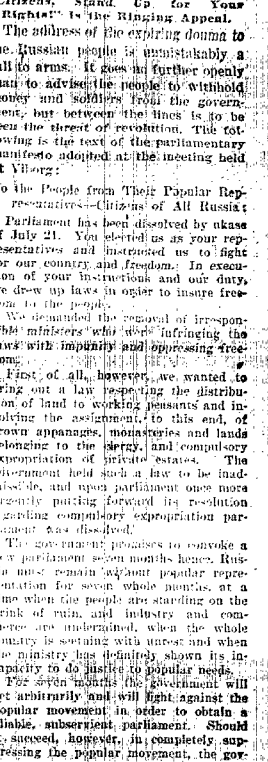

Citizens, stand up for your trampled rights, for popular representation, and for an imperial parliament.

Russia must not remain a day without popular representation. You possess the means of acquiring it.

The government has, without the assent of the popular representatives, no right to collect taxes from the people nor to summon the people to military service. Therefore, you are now the government.

The dissolved parliament was justified in giving notice to the government. Should the government, however, contract loans in order to procure funds, such loans will be the debt of the government to the people.

Professors to Get Penalties.
The executive committee of the Carnegie foundation for the advancement of teaching has announced a list of forty-six colleges which are to receive gifts for the benefit of deserving professors. From this list are omitted all institutions having formal denominational connections, or which require their trustees to belong to a particular church. It omits also all institutions controlled and supported by a State or municipality, and which fail to meet the academic standard which the trustees have adopted.

St. Louis Sues Ice Trust.
After an extended investigation, the city of St. Louis, through Circuit Attorney Sauer, has begun suit against the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Company and the Merchants' Ice and Coal Company, alleging that they were in a combination to restrain trade and to fix the price of ice. Judgment is asked for $71,490 against the agreement is alleged to have been in existence, and that the charter should be declared null and void. The price of ice has advanced from 20 cents to 40 cents a hundred.
