Lots are rapidly being sold on the site of the new town of Fordyce, nine miles east of Crofton, on the Northwestern extension. A bank has been opened and sites have been purchased for a lumber yard and a saloon.

More baggage was handled here for the westbound train on Saturday forenoon than ever before, according to the railroad men. The rush was occasioned by the closing of the year's work of the college and the return of teachers and students to their homes.

Hart Cunningham, of Bloomfield, and Jake Koush, of Elm Creek, Neb., veterans, were in town between trains Monday morning on their way to the national G. A. R. encampment at Minneapolis. On his return Mr. Roush will visit a few days with his brother Dan, of this city.

Miss Ora Dugger, primary teacher in the Nebraska normal college, and her brother, Alexander Dugger, who has been attending the commencement exercises, left Monday morning for their home at Stambury, Mo. They were accompanied by Gladys Whitney, one of the pupils of Miss Dugger.

We clip the following interesting item of news from the St. Helena correspondence to the Hartington Herald: "I think Harry did well by leaving that slow team for if you train with a slow team you will never get fast training with a faster team and you will soon get onto the way and be as fast as anyone, never mind a flinger or two."

J. Glasco, proprietor of the local electric light plant, informs us that he will build a dam across Tekamah creek at his mill and utilize the power to operate his dynamo. Tekamah Creek has more water in it now than for years and Mr. Glasco believes that there is natural power enough wanted to run his plant. He will begin operations at once.—Burt County Herald.

A man and two women, giving their names as Sam G. A. Mrs. Dollie Girt and Mabel Jones, were in police court Monday morning where they were fined $1 each and costs, amounting in all to about $8, and told to leave town. They were a "bad bunch" that Marshal Miner picked up Sunday evening. Another of the same element, a Wm. St. John, was taken in Saturday and was fined $3 and costs in police court on Monday.

Mrs. Porter and daughter of Wayne have taken charge of the Ball telephone. The switch board has been moved to the house formerly occupied by Oscar Moore where they will also live. Geo. I. Sampson, representing the Nebraska Childrens home in Omaha, was in Emerson this week in the interest of that institution. A local board was organized with Mrs. W. Y. McLaughlin, president, J. A. Olmsted, vice president; Mrs. J. A. Morande, secretary and treasurer. The Home is doing good work in looking after orphan children.—Emerson Enterprise.

A severe hail storm damaged crops in the country southeast of Wayne on last Friday afternoon. A heavy rain fell, accompanied by wind and hailstones as large as hen's eggs. Among the farmers who suffered are Messrs. Coulter, Dock, F. O. Martin, Bert Carpenter, Wm. Morgan, Nels Nelson, John Thompson, Herman Myers, O. S. Gamble and Wat Williams. Farther southeast, in the Bastian neighborhood, damage was done, but we understand the storm was less severe than in the territory nearer Wayne. The hail seemed to cover a strip about a mile wide and four or five miles long, beginning at Wayne and extending southeast.

Prof. Bruner, entomologist of Nebraska state university, made a visit to Winster last week for the purpose of conducting a personal investigation of the devastation wrought in that vicinity by the army worm. Prof. Bruner's theory accounting for the appearance of the caterpillars, for such they are, in the section partially devastated by hail some time ago, is that the female moth is attracted thereto by the scent of the decaying vegetation and deposits her eggs in great numbers. He adds that the hail may have destroyed the insect enemies of the young caterpillars or have driven away the birds that usually prey upon them. In any event, the hail is said to be responsible for the appearance of the pests and the same conditions may follow in the localities hereabouts recently visited by him.

THE DESIGNER FOR SEPTEMBER.

The woman who is planning an autumn outfit for herself or her young family will find The Designer for September a decided help; for, aside from the regular generous display of fashions there, is a four-page article on "Garments for School." The Millinery Lesson describes the making of an autumn hat for a miss, and a full-page plate pictures the latest styles in hair-dressing. "Points on Dressmaking" gives a lesson on the making of long coats. Among the literary features is "Our Children of Toil," by J. L. Harbour, describing the lives of the little people who labor in mill or mine to help fill the dinner pail. "The Village Improvement Society" continues its pleasant gossip and strenuous efforts, and two short stories are "Exhibit No. 42," by Charles Newton Hood, and "The Lesson of the Earthquake," by A. B. Fox. Bertha Hasbrook in "In the Interest of Bread-Winning," suggests "Favor Making" as a lucrative employment for self-fingered women, and Mary Kilsyth gives a little lecture on "Fireplaces New and Old." A dialogue in which humor and sentiment mingle is "Blue and White" by Van Tassel Sutphen, and is suitable for presentation by amateur actors. Grace Aline Luther gives a handsome design for a lace front to a princess dress, and Amy Moran begins a valuable series of lessons in Irish lace. The foregoing is but a part of the good things The Designer for September will contain, none of the regular departments being omitted, and many features added which cannot be enumerated in this limited space.

COLLEGE CLOSES YEAR.

The Wayne normal closed its fifteenth year Friday with a banquet to 200 members of the alumni association who returned for the annual alumni day program. The successful meeting was addressed by representatives of different classes, and by A. L. Tucker. At the banquet, toasts were given by class representatives, A. A. Welch and Prof. E. P. Wilson of the city schools. The commencement exercises began the third with the annual contest between the literary societies and continued with the concert program of the department of music, the bacchanalate services and union services of the Christian associations, the prize contests of the department of elocution, the prize contests for essays, orations, biography and debate. The various exercises were largely attended and were of very high order. The fourteen cash prizes offered by the business men of Wayne stimulated the students to their best efforts. Rose Wilderganz won the "King prize" for greatest improvement during the year and the "Phillips prize" for first rank in her class; Glen Powers won the "Heckert prize" for appearing most times on the honor roll; John P. Power, the "Dr. Leshner prize" for first rank in sentence class; Nellie Cash, the "Wilson prize" for first rank in teachers' class; Joseph Humpal, the "Tucker prize" for oration; Margaret Sullivan, the "Bressler prize" for essay; Bessie Eaton, the "Main prize" for biography; James Simons, the "Craven prize" for debate; Margaret Carroll, the "Theobald prize" for recitation; Celestine Grunwald, the "Harrington prize" for physical culture; Alice Williams, the "Loy prize" for commercial department; Eleanor Buck, the "Mines prize" for English. The graduating class from the teachers' courses numbered seventy-eight. Seventy-six received state certificates. The members of the classes have good positions to begin teaching in September.

The summer term enrollment reached 711 and the total enrollment for the year was more than 1,600. The outlook is for a large enrollment at the opening of the school year the 3rd of September. The new buildings will be occupied before winter. All of the present faculty continue next year and is increased by those members.

THE FUTURE OF THE DRAFT HORSE.

Those who have followed the trend of the horse market, and the tendency among farmers to take up the breeding of draft horses, must have been impressed with the unusually high prices for all kinds of horses, and the great demand for draft mares for breeding purposes. The advice of the agricultural press to farmers for the past five years has been, "Breed draft horses." Judging from the large number of inquiries from farmers, the number of draft stallions imported and sold during the last year, and the number of colts observed on the farms throughout the corn belt, this advice has been accepted by hundreds of men who have not been breeding horses for some years. Naturally the farmers of this country must always produce the horses for commercial use, and the breeding of such horses along conservative lines should be encouraged yet with all kinds of horses in demand at high prices, and every farmer who can do so raising colts, such questions as, "What is the future of the draft horse business?" "Will prices continue high?" and, "How long will it be before the business is overdone?" are frequently asked. Farmers are studying their business today as never before. Agricultural papers are giving them information on market demands and prices, while our great shows, as well as large markets where hundreds of horses pass under the hammer daily, are giving them better ideas as to the type and conformation demanded than have ever been in the minds of American farmers. We may, therefore, expect more successful horse breeding in the future than in the past, because the breeder has a better knowledge of what is wanted and is also better informed as to how to produce it. The future of the draft horse business depends on two factors. The country today is doubtless in a most prosperous condition and so long as the wheels of the manufacturing industry continue to turn out products for commercial use, it will hold firm. Doubtless the automobile will replace hundreds of horses, but new industries will call for more horses and the heavy horse will be in demand at profitable prices. Under present conditions the demand is so great that prices are almost prohibitive; so far as export trade is concerned. The day of extreme high prices may pass after a time, but even then the foreign demand will consume thousands of horses at profitable prices. It should be remembered that in a rapidly developing country like the United States there are many places where heavy draft horses cannot easily be replaced by motive power. The farms of the corn belt, in most cases, will continue to be operated by horse power for many years, and while we find those ready to argue that a 1,200-pound horse is best for the purpose, we find that the scarcity of labor and the use of heavy implements is rapidly doing away with light horses for farm work. This is not only true on farms, but in the smaller towns and cities, and throughout the country where railroads, interurbans and drainage canals are being built. The other factor to which attention should be directed, as it has an important bearing on the draft horse trade, is that of the kind of horses produced. It is well to remember that at present horses are exceedingly scarce, and any kind of a horse finds a buyer at some price. Farmers almost quit breeding for several years and the number of horses in the country has not increased in proportion to other industries. At the present time a large percent of the so-called draft horses go on the market as farm "chunks." Such horses have sold at extremely high prices during the past six months, because of the scarcity of strictly heavy draft horses. They are frequently light in bone, somewhat lacking in weight, but of a drafty type. The tendency to produce such horses, which, I believe, will in time find a market and poor sale, is strong. This is due to the original stock from which the brood mares on American farms came; the lack of discrimination among those producing stallions, and the indifference on the part of farmers in mating their mares. Many of the horses now selling for high prices would bring on the market under less prosperous conditions in the commercial world.

It is, therefore, very important that farmers use judgment in breeding draft horses during the next five years. No doubt the business can be overdone. Some believe that it will be overdone, but there is no question but what heavy draft horses which have weight, quality and action will always sell at a profit in America. Those who have a proper foundation in their brood mares need not fear the future of the business, if they use care and judgment in mating them with first-class registered draft stallions which not only have good weight and bulk, but plenty of bone, good feet, sound hocks, good action and proper conformation. All of these points are quite essential in first-class draft horses. We will undoubtedly see the day, before the present crop of colts go on the market when common horses, lacking in class qualifications, quality, etc., will be difficult to dispose of at a profit. Farmers who find out what is wanted, start right, and breed the best will make no mistake in breeding draft horses. It should be borne in mind, however, that more than simply the use of good blood is necessary. Care and management count for much in the proper development of a drafter, though the feed stuffs are available in the corn belt to make market toppers. The best pure-bred mares are none too good to use even by the man with common mares, and the grade should be passed by always.—The Farm Gazette, Des Moines, Ia.

RANDOLPH FAIR.

The Randolph races next week, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, will be the best ever seen in northeast Nebraska. The fast string of pacers and trotters that have been smashing track records on the Nebraska Speed Circuit, of which Randolph is a member, will be there. Three races every day for big money. The great rally race in which each rider uses five horses, changing every half mile, will be a feature.

I, A. Galusha, secretary of state of the state of Nebraska, do hereby certify that the foregoing proposed amendment to the Constitution of the State of Nebraska is a true and correct copy of the original enrolled and engrossed bill, as passed by the Twenty-ninth session of the legislature of the State of Nebraska, as appears from said original bill on file in this office, and that said proposed amendment is submitted to the qualified voters of the state of Nebraska for their adoption or rejection at the general election to be held on Tuesday the 6th day of November, A. ACCIDENTALLY POISONED.

Tim Hodgins, who has been stopping in Wayne for some time and sleeping down at the Miller feed yard, met with an accident Tuesday that came near costing him his life. It seems that Hodgins had a bottle, containing medicine that he had been taking, on a shelf in the barn beside a bottle of horse medicine containing deadly poison, and took a drink of the latter instead of his own dope. Upon discovering his error he hurried to the office of Dr. Natziger, who administered the proper antidote. Hodgins lay in a critical condition until evening when he began to get better and is now fully recovered. He will probably be more careful in his choice of drinks in the future.

The Advantages of Seeding All Kinds of Small Grain With A Disc Press Drill

A large number of farmers maintain that it does not pay to sow winter wheat, because of the expense of buying a Disc Press Drill. We find upon investigating this matter, that it DOES PAY. It will put the winter wheat into the ground in such a manner that it will all germinate. This is not all. It can also be used for sowing Oats, Barley, Speltz, Spring Wheat or any other small grain you might wish to sow in the spring. The advantages claimed by those who have used them for spring seeding, are these: Every grain is put INTO the ground, not ON TOP of it. It is thoroughly covered. It is pressed with wheels that follow each disc, thereby keeping moisture in ground around grain rootlets. A little dry weather does not stop its growth as it does when the seed is sown on the surface. The grain sprouts evenly, grows better, and ripens in a more uniform manner. This being the case, you get more grain per acre, because you get it all. There is no possibility of some being so ripe that it will shell out as soon as touched, while some of it is too green to cut, which surely is the case in broadcast or surface-seeding.

Henry Philips, who at an expense of about $500,000 yearly, has reared the Great Quinch deer forest in Scotland, holds next to Mr. Carnegie the largest interest in the United States Steel Corporation, of which he is a director, and he also is a director of the Van Norden Trust Company and of the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburgh.

He was born in Philadelphia in 1823, and while a boy worked in a book store. Subsequently he was bookkeeper for a spike manufacturing concern and later became a partner in a small iron mill. The amassing of his large fortune began after his becoming associated in iron and steel manufacturing with Thomas M. and Andrew Carnegie, and he has been for years one of the noted American millionaires.

Edward Rosewater, candidate for the United States Senate from Nebraska, is one of the honorees of that State, and has been one of its most vital forces in business and political life. He was born in Bohemia sixty-two years ago, and came to this country at the age of 17, and at once began to make his way.

He started in as a telegraph operator and served during the Civil War as a member of the military telegraph corps of the army. At the close of the war he was made manager of the Pacific Telegraph Company in Omaha, and in 1871, while holding that office, he founded the Omaha Bee, of which he has since been editor and proprietor.

Henry Clay Evans, nominated for Governor of Tennessee by the Republican party, is one of the most conspicuous public men in the South. He served in the Civil War with the Forty-first Wisconsin Volunteer, and at the close of hostilities left his battlefield in Pennsylvania and engaged in business in Chattanooga. He has been twice Mayor of that city and served in Congress from 1880 to 1887. President McKinley appointed him Commissioner of Pensions. He resigned in 1902 to accept the consular generalship at London, from which he voluntarily retired last year.

W. A. Patterson, a graduate of Rush Medical College, Chicago, and a specialist of otitis, who was arrested in Chicago for selling fraudulent certificates for $20, has attracted attention for his unusual methods for his crime. The judge in the interior of the Federal building had no chance of escaping once the institution was awakened by the laughs at Patterson.

Major Hugh T. Scott will, on Sept. 1, succeed General Albert L. Mills as superintendent of the military academy at West Point.

Major Scott is now on duty with the Philippine Cavalry in the Philippines. He was born in Kentucky in 1842, and served in the Civil War from 1862 to 1865. He served in the Ninth Cavalry for many years, and during the Spanish war he served in the Philippine general's department. At West Point he will have the rank of colonel. He is one of the best known and ablest officers in the army.

Carnegie's $20,000,000 fund to aid the poor professors who have spent their lives in the unimpaired work of the university, will be distributed in full to the faculty of the University of Chicago. The first beneficiary of the fund is to be announced by Dr. E. H. Merriam, one of the best known of the older educators of the Middle West, formerly president of Illinois and until 1901, chairman of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago. Dr. Merriam is the beneficiary of two of the Illinois faculty funds administered by the Iron master, the other being Professor C. H. Chandler, professor of mathematics. Both of these educators spent the best years of their life in the faculty of Illinois University.

The late Charles Stewart Parcell is to be a monument erected in his memory at Mount Auburn cemetery, Boston.

THE POPULAR PULPIT

PREVENTIVES VS. CORRECTIVES.
By Rev. W. J. Johnson.
Text: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." Proverbs XXII:3.

Our greatest weakness, perhaps, is in our knowledge of the child-soul. We have not taken time to study it. We are not sufficiently acquainted with its processes of development. We have not been careful to note the dominant state into the activities. Many parents are careless in the training of their children, regarding it as of little consequence. They look forward to the time when the child shall be put into the hands of a competent teacher who will train it aright. This is a serious mistake. The foundations of character are usually laid before the child is old enough for the kindergarten or school. The future life of many a child is determined by the first three years of its existence.

I shall not attempt to give any definite methods of training. It is a general subject. It has as many phases as there are children to train. God never made two souls alike, consequently no method will suffice for more than one child. The particular method must be evolved from a study of the particular child. However, there are certain principles of child-training that are pretty thoroughly established. This training should begin early. Prof. Felix Adler says that "moral training must be begun in the cradle." I agree with him, except that I should say that, for the moral good of a child, it ought never to be put in a cradle. I also agree with that other eminent scholar who says that the training of a child should begin when it is only one day old. "Perceps," the eminent writer on child psychology, says that a child six months old is able to know objectively, right from wrong. Another tells us that at the age of eighteen months the child is capable of adhering to its own will in defiance of its parents, and at the age of three years conscience shows itself.

To "train up a child in the way he should go" will require great labor, patience and judgment, and wisdom from above. But here is a comforting thought: "The blessed Jesus, who loves us, who died for us, who is with us at the right of the Father to make intercession for us, will likewise make intercession for the children, and the results of their training will be made more serious matters in the creation of a caste of character for our children, through our prayer and devotion, and faith in Him, who will correct it."

ECCE HOMO. By Henry F. Cope.
Behold the man! John xix:5.
The two words contemptuously spoken by the cynical Roman governor contained the highest tribute that had been given to Jesus. How easily appear all the high sounding titles, such as king and emperor, beside this significant one of Man. How sad and self-damning the bitter railing of his enemies in the light of that serene dignity. How piercing the befitting over words all ways of worship, and all the wrangling that blinded them to the heavenly radiance of that all-glorious manhood.

The name of Jesus is not in the deeds he did, but in the being he was. And the wonder of it is that he is not in a divine personality, but in that of a simple, clear, subtly perfect manhood. It is upon this perfection of personal character that his abiding claim to divinity must rest; it depends not on his birth, but on his being.

There is something strange about the jerry-built will which the church has perverted the least attractive aspects of its master's person. The preachers have scolded men for not coming to church, and when they did come they offered them platitudes of an unchristian, egotistical tone for their approbation. With them the painters have conspired to set on canvas and in church window representations from the reality of which we would turn with repulsion or on which we would look with pity.

If Jesus is to be the leader of men he must go before them. He must stand in the front, not set there by artificial arguments as to his right to rule over men, but there because he belongs there, first because he is first, and that makes manhood; he is king because he is man, and because he is man, he is king.

If he is to show us the way we should go to meet death, he must be flesh of our flesh, that we may know the full fellowship of our lives. If he was born with a halo; if he lived on angels' fare; if somehow he belongs to another world and his perceptions are not those of our nature, then, naturally as he may be a leader, he belongs to another world; as he has no halo to us.

But men have ever set aside the veils of things as absorbed in the wonder of their speculations that they could not see the truth. They have seen through the dreamings of poets, prophets, and preachers, who pictured only their sickly ideals. And, instead of their caricatures, men have held in their hands a man, one of their own. And this man, fellow brother and friend, has opened them to noble deeds and lofty living.

Perfectness is seen in strength, not in weakness, in vitality and not in torpor, in majesty, the majesty that is not of a man, but of a man, in the perfect man cannot come in a form that a child will pity; it will be admirable from all points of view. It is the heroic rather than the esthetic we must admire.

Nothing hurts the feelings of the stuffed martyr worse than letting him alone.
Too many sermons are attempts to feed the people on cook books instead of on bread.
Many a preacher thinks the world is wicked for lack of his sermons when it is only weary because of them.
There may be as much religion in a little asphalt here as in a whole lot of aniferous pavement over there.
The man who leaves his head in the office when he goes to church will be first to complain about the preacher's intellect.

Will be larger and better than any other fair in the history of all the Corn Belt states, and fairs given in Iowa City has anything on so colossal a scale as that of the great Interstate Fair of 1906 been attempted.

The fair will be given at the beautiful Woodland Park, Riverside, Sioux City, by the Interstate Live Stock Fair Association. It will be the largest fair ever given in Iowa, and the profits of former years and placed them in betterments. Twenty additional acres of ground lying between the park and the live stock fair have been partially cleared, and the fair grounds will be utilized in making room for farm machinery and like exhibits. New cattle barns and horse barns and pens for swine have been built this summer, and the plan of the fair grounds will be made in accordance with the plan of the Interstate Live Stock Fair Association.

White wonderful success in the number and quality of the cattle, hogs, sheep and pigs has been shown by the association in previous years. Never before have so many head of princely stock entered at this time for exhibition. Of course, from the very name it bears, the Interstate Live Stock Fair Association makes a specialty of live stock in the line of this great fair. The fair will be the largest fair ever given in Iowa, and the profits of former years and placed them in betterments. Twenty additional acres of ground lying between the park and the live stock fair have been partially cleared, and the fair grounds will be utilized in making room for farm machinery and like exhibits. COMMERCIAL AND FINANCIAL

Chicago. The season now is at hand when business generally attains more vigor in anticipation of fall and winter needs, and it is notable that the basic conditions are of the most favorable nature.

The season now is at hand when business generally attains more vigor in anticipation of fall and winter needs, and it is notable that the basic conditions are of the most favorable nature. While new demands are not conspicuous in any particular branch of trade, other developments furnish much encouragement. The excellent crops strength continues in a continued period of material prosperity, and this creates more disposition to enter upon heavy commitments in manufacturing, railroad extension and construction.

A fall in values of grain and provisions is entirely reasonable, but quotations for raw materials maintain their remarkable strength and the demands carry no sign of exhaustion. Consumers' needs pending including shipments of iron ore. Building materials remain in strong request, and new undertakings in future construction have not diminished. The market for lumber is more active and prices have an upward tendency.

Movements of commodities show expansion, and the earnings of the Western roads and like carriers steadily exceed those of last year. The total quantity of grain handled at this port aggregated 7,780,000 bushels, against 7,030,232 bushels last week. Live stock receipts were 297,542 head, against 208,000 head last week. Lumber receipts, 52,812,000 feet, exceed both the 40,032,000 feet last week and the 51,550,000 feet of a year ago.

Bank clearings, $212,883,882, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1905 by 10.4 per cent.

Failures reported in the Chicago district number 20, against 24 last week and 24 a year ago.

New York. The essential soundness of mercantile trade is testified to by the July and seven months' returns of failures to Bradstreet's, which point fewer failures and smaller liabilities than in any but the best of years.

Shipments of fall and winter goods are beginning. Some primary markets are being visited by country merchants, who, on account of crop conditions, are expected to buy liberally. But the general influx is not anticipated for ten days yet.

In retail lines clearance sales continue the feature, but business in the East has been considerably hampered by rainy or cloudy weather.

Wheat (including flour) exports from the United States and Canada for the week ending on Aug. 2 were 2,805,020 bushels, against 1,708,705 last week, 1,041,000 this week last year, 1,379,198 in 1904, and 831,150 in 1901. For the last five weeks of the fiscal year the exports were 8,877,098 bushels, against 5,424,287 in 1905, 5,305,372 in 1904, and 32,307,145 in 1901.

Corn exports for the week were 623,146 bushels, against 530,073 last week, 1,013,675 a year ago, and 278,305 in 1904. For the fiscal year to date the exports were 3,287,710 bushels, against 4,747,763 in 1905 and 2,583,900 in 1904.

He will have first choice of the 100,000-acre tract of the famous Wind River country, which is situated on the National Park. It is estimated that first choice is worth $20,000 to the lucky holder. It is also said that any number up to 20 is worth from $5,000 to $10,000.

The first twenty-five names drawn were as follows:

Hans Berling, Lander, Wyo.
Edward H. Bickel, Lander, Wyo.
Theodore F. Taylor, Wyo.

The fortunate ones were allowed several days to look over the homesteads to be allotted by the government and make their selections. Besides the agricultural lands there are valuable mineral sites within the region. Many thousands registered, all hoping to be lucky in the drawing.

The drawing was in charge of Commissioner General W. A. Richards of the general land office at Lander, S. Magnus of Billings, Mont., and Col. W. R. Schmitt of Cheyenne, Wyo., as referees.

It is with pleasure that I give you this unsolicited testimonial. About a year ago when I had a severe case of measles I got caught out in a hard rain and the measles settled in my stomach and bowels. I had an awful time and had it not been for the use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I could not have possibly lived but a few hours longer, but thanks to this remedy I am now strong and well. I have written the above through simple gratitude and I shall always speak a good word for this remedy.—SAM H. GWIS, Concord, Ga. For sale by Raymond's drug store.

To do this, you should go to Colorado where you breathe the purest air and see some of the grandest sights in the world. Here are to be found all the recreations of the east—golf, polo, boating, hunting, fishing, tennis, riding, etc., together with all the attractions of a new and mountainous country.

Very low round-trip rates to Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, are now in effect, via the Union Pacific, whose splendidly equipped trains and perfectly ballasted road-bed insure you a pleasant journey. For full information in regard to rates and Colorado literature, inquire of A. K. CURTS, T. P. A., Omaha, Neb.

CHAMBERLAIN'S COLIC, CHOLERA AND DIARRHOEA REMEDY BETTER THAN THREE DOCTORS.

Three years ago we had three doctors with our little boy and everything that they could do seemed in vain. At last when all hope seemed to be gone we began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in a few hours he began to improve. Today he is as healthy a child as parents could wish for.—MRS. B. J. JOHNSTON, Linton, Miss. For sale by Raymond's drug store.

Nebraska People Profit by the Great Earthquake and Fire at San Francisco.

Two of the largest San Francisco piano companies were forced by the catastrophe to forfeit heavy contracts with eastern factories. The Schmoeller & Mueller Piano Company, of Omaha, were successful in securing one hundred and twenty of these instruments at a price sacrificed by acting promptly and being the first to give the Nebraska people the benefit to their customers by disposing of them quickly at a slight advance over cost, as follows:

Five tone new upright pianos of the best and best manufacture in the world, made of dark Mahogany or French Burl Walnut finish (several makes to choose from, perhaps your favorite) and none made to sell for less than $306, will be given out at the remarkable cut price of $175. Do not delay. Call on us at our store and see the quality and complete satisfaction. Over six hundred plans in stock. Address The Schmoeller & Mueller Piano Co., 1150 Broadway, Omaha.
