A Strong Candidate.

J. F. Boyd, candidate for congress in the Third district, was born in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, August 8, 1853, and is 53 years of age, in the prime of life, and with the wisdom and experience that is only gathered by the lapse of time. His parents were of German-Swedish descent, a race that in its rugged integrity and force of character has filled many of the brightest pages of American history. With his parents he removed to the vicinity of Galva, Illinois, in 1857, and remained on the farm, assisting in its operation until 22 years of age. In addition to attending the district school, he had the advantage of two years' higher study in Abington college. Commencing the study of law at the age of 23, in the office of T. E. Milohrist, who was afterwards United States attorney for the northern district of Illinois during President Harrison's administration, he was admitted to practice by examination in open court by the supreme court in 1878, and immediately thereafter entering the office of his preceptor as a partner, remaining five years. In 1883 Mr. Boyd removed to Nebraska and located at Oakdale in the precinct of the profession for which he had been fitted by well directed study and practice in court. Mr. Boyd has been prominently identified with the growth of Antelope county and has been active in all public enterprises which have come within his sphere of influence. While not an office seeker, and not an office holder in the common acceptance of the term, he has frequently been called upon to fill positions of trust and responsibility. Twice he was elected county attorney of Antelope county. In 1888 he was nominated for this position and elected and was re-nominated by acclamation in 1890 and ran 600 votes ahead of his ticket. In 1892 he was again nominated, and elected in face of a majority for the populist ticket, that ran into the hundreds. In 1890 he was nominated for judge of the 10th judicial district and was elected by a majority of 291, running 300 ahead of President McKinley in Antelope county, and being the first republican ever elected in the district. He was re-nominated in 1903 and was elected by a majority of 2700. In all of these terms the affairs of the office were conducted in a manner satisfactory to all law-abiding citizens. While elected upon the populist ticket, on taking charge of the office its affairs were placed on the high plane that raises the interest of the public and Boyd sold and party. At the end of the second term as county attorney he was pressed to again become a candidate, but realizing that there were other men in the party worthy of recognition, he graciously declined in their favor. A man's worth and popularity should in a manner be measured by the regard in which he is held by neighbors and associates. Gauged by this standard, Mr. Boyd is in every respect a model candidate. In Oakdale and adjacent townships he has always received the endorsement of a handsome majority. Always easily approached by the great body of the so-called common people, this characteristic has been retained on all occasions. Poverty in his eyes is neither a crime nor a bar to friendship, but always rather an added reason for help and assistance when required. No poor man ever appealed to him in vain for legal advice or assistance in a meritorious case. Often he has delayed the expense of litigation from his own resources. Money for the sake of it was never allowed to defeat the ends of justice. Starting in life without a dollar, Mr. Boyd has been successful in all his business enterprises and now owns and successfully operates one of the largest stock farms in Antelope county. Not in the least of his business ventures which have proved remunerative, is an experience in the newspaper business. In connection with his brother he published a paper at Gal-

A man's worth ought to be judged by his standing where he is known. Judge Boyd has been on the bench of the Ninth judicial district nearly six years, and his decisions have been eminently fair and unprejudiced. He has served the people well, been impartial in trials held before him, and the man has yet to say that he has not received justice at the hands of Judge Boyd. If he will do his duty as judge of the Ninth district, party. It would lead one to believe that Mr. Bryan was the apostle of arbitration and not of free silver in that celebrated campaign of 1896. But the republican convention in 1896 was held two weeks before the democratic convention, and it had an arbitration plank almost identical with that in the democratic platform. In ordinary affairs the credit for advancing the idea would be given to the party first adopting it. More than that, the republican congress enacted an arbitration law in harmony with the republican platform, providing for arbitration in railway labor disputes, authorizing the interstate commerce commission to first attempt to conciliate and then provide for a board of arbiters. That law was passed by the 55th congress, soon after McKinley's inauguration. Mr. Bryan made a brilliant record as an orator in that campaign, and free silver was the burden of his song. Who remembers hearing him tearing passion to tatters over arbitration, as he did over the "Crime of '73"? And what became of his arbitration enthusiasm in the campaign of 1900, when he absolutely dominated the Kansas City convention and made the platform on which he was willing to stand? That democratic platform is silent on arbitration. Mr. Bryan's claim might also be embarrassed by the state laws, creating boards of arbitration in fully one-half the republican states of the Union, while there are barely two democratic states that have such laws. The trouble seems to be that Mr. Bryan is finding it difficult to land a democratic issue that has not been discarded by the American people.

"FUNETIC" SPELLING.

A Washington correspondent says: "Various department heads seem to be 'thoroly' aimed up, as the new spelling has it, over President Roosevelt's latest order, and Public Printer Stillings finds himself between the devil and the deep sea a good many times a day in consequence. On the one hand he has the president's instructions to use the new spelling in public documents; on the other, the howls of wrath from various persons who don't want it. The Navy Department is sore, because passed assistant surgeons are now called past assistant surgeons. That's the new spelling, but the surgeons in question object strenuously, since they find a world of difference between passed and past. They are glad to admit that they are passed, but they are not past, by a long shot, they declare. Likewise, the new spelling has it that comptroller shall henceforth be controller. But Comptroller of the Currency Nidegly says he is a comptroller and that he won't be a controller. Congress created his office as the former and he insists that it shall so remain until congress changes it. He won't be an ordinary controller for anything this side of congress. Incidentally, the whole situation has been further complicated by the discovery that congress has made a certain dictionary the standard of spelling. The naval surgeons and Mr. Ridge intimate that in departing from this standard Mr. Stillings is also departing from the law of the land—while the latter gentleman has not finally decided as to whether he must obey the president or congress. Meanwhile, the official documents look something like little Willie's latest composition."

Japan has invaded a new field and one which, while it does not come as a rival to home industries, does affect the people of the United States in that this country offers the best market for this new production—canned sardines. Of course, canned sardines are not a new product, but canned sardines from Japan are. This tiny member of the finny tribe abounds in great numbers in Japanese waters, and heretofore the surplus of the always heavy catch, after the demands of home consumption have been met, has been utilized as fertilizer on Japan's farms. Of late, however, numerous canning establishments have been started at various places with a view to competing with the Mediterranean product in far eastern and American markets, at least. As far as taste and quality go, it is said Japan's product is somewhat better than the European, and our sardine-eating citizens may soon expect to find their sardine cans covered with Japanese hieroglyphics instead of the more familiar and easily deciphered Italian labels.

In bolting Judge Boyd the editor of the Pender Republic evidently sees another opportunity of forcing himself into notoriety. He is the same fellow, it will be remembered, who has for several months been tied up in a sloop fight in his town. He is the same fellow who attempted to make a mountain out of a mole-hill in commenting on an article appearing in the HERALD some months ago, referring to the payment for announcements by candidates for nomination. It was he who attempted to arrange with a socialist for a "debate" recently and who, through his paper, challenged a personal enemy to a duel with state eggs a year ago last July. While admitting that the Pender man is possessed with considerable nerve, we consider him perfectly harmless, and doubt if his bluster is taken seriously by anyone acquainted with him or his newspaper. The source of wind-jamming of this variety is generally considered and we do not think Judge of his preceptor as a partner, remaining five years. In 1883 Mr. Boyd removed to Nebraska and located at Oakdale in the precinct of the profession for which he had been fitted by well directed study and practice in court. Mr. Boyd has been prominently identified with the growth of Antelope county and has been active in all public enterprises which have come within his sphere of influence. While elected upon the populist ticket, on taking charge of the office its affairs were placed on the high plane that raises the interest of the public and Boyd sold and party. At the end of the second term as county attorney he was pressed to again become a candidate, but realizing that there were other men in the party worthy of recognition, he graciously declined in their favor. A man's worth and popularity should in a manner be measured by the regard in which he is held by neighbors and associates. Gauged by this standard, Mr. Boyd is in every respect a model candidate. In Oakdale and adjacent townships he has always received the endorsement of a handsome majority. Not in the least of his business ventures which have proved remunerative, is an experience in the newspaper business. In connection with his brother he published a paper at Gal-va, Ill., and the two also successfully managed the Oakdale Sentinel for a couple of years. Mr. Boyd has always been a close student and to this fact more than anything else is probably due the high rank he has taken as a lawyer. While he has risen to high eminence in this respect, yet to all his old friends he is still familiarly known as Frank, a title more honorable and carrying with it greater respect than that which can be bestowed by kings. For the office of congressman the republican party has a candidate that is at once self made and a credit to his Creator.

BRYAN AND ARBITRATION. Mr. Bryan has been calling the railway men of North Carolina that it was his advocacy of arbitration in labor disputes that defeated him in 1896. He is quoted as saying in one speech that he wrote the arbitration plank in the democratic platform, was devoted to that plank, and that those who deserted him in that campaign did so because of his attitude on arbitration, and not because of his attitude on free silver. "I tell you," said Mr. Bryan, "it was not the silver plank but the clause for arbitration that drove them away." This is a remarkable statement, coming from the "peerless leader" of the democratic Nebraska does not want to surrender her place at the head of all the states in point of literacy. Iowa is at present tied with Nebraska for first place, both states having 2.8 per cent of illiterates among the population over ten years of age. As a matter of state pride if nothing more, public sentiment ought to support the compulsory education law without reserve. Nebraska had in 1900 the highest percentage of children of school age attending school of all the states—63.1 per cent—leading Iowa by a tenth of 1 per cent. This proportion and should be increased. It is not the boys alone that need attention. Illiteracy is shown by the census reports to be 50 per cent more common among females than among males in Nebraska, whereas in the country at large the female illiterates exceed the males by only 10 per cent.—State Journal.

Judge Boyd stands squarely on the policies voiced by the president. He has made an enviable reputation on the bench of this judicial district. His decisions in every instance have been fair and unbiased. On the bench he has shown justice to all and favors to none. Judge Boyd has gained popularity through his aversion to the dilatory methods of meeting out justice that sometimes prevail, and to all who have made his acquaintance he is looked upon as a man of exceptional ability and of unquestioned honesty and integrity. He will represent this district in congress as few men could.

The Elgin Review hits the nail on the head when it says: "The difference between the republican and democrat state tickets this year is that the democrats turned down the only candidate for governor that side had who stood squarely for the interests of the people and against corporate aggression, and nominated a candidate with strong railroad affiliations; while the republicans nominated their only candidate who stood squarely for the rights of the people and against corporate aggression."

At an investigation in Omaha recently it developed that it has been the rule of the Union Pacific Coal company to deliver Rock Spring coal to Omaha dealers at $3.75 per ton while dealers at other points were compelled to pay $4 to $4.50. The dealers did not dare to kick for fear of being denied the privilege of handling that kind of coal. Since the discrimination has become known it is to be hoped the public will demand justice at the hands of the company, and see that it is meted out.

What we want to do is to elect a legislature that will buck up the governor. If we succeed in doing this we will do much toward regulating railroads in this state and if we fail we cannot make much advance along this line.

President Palma, of Cuba, retires to private life a poor man. He evidently doesn't understand the game of politics as do the majority of office-holders of this country.

Those opposed to socialism could greatly aid their cause by compelling the representatives of the other parties in office to see that the masses get a square deal.

The Emerson Enterprise rises to remark that government regulation of railroads rather than government ownership would be more to the point.

Omaha's recent trouble with the least trust may have placed its citizens in a frame of mind that will worry the coal trust not a little.

Don't be too sure that this coming election will win itself. Get out the full vote, even if you have a few to spare.

The majority of the populists of Nebraska will vote for Sheldon as they did for Roosevelt.

"The republicans have nominated an excellent man for governor."—W. J. Bryan.

And now it is Japan that is bunking us. They have begun to can sardines.

Sheldon looks good to the rank and file.

A FINISHED ARTIST

Eugene Moore, who will appear at the Wayne opera house, October 16, in Alexandre Dumas' great romantic drama "Monte Cristo," is a sterling representative of the actors of the old school—a school in which the mania for starrng did not exist and where a player built up a great repertory of classic parts, and so in the course of years became qualified to interpret any role that suited his age. These actors knew very little about publicity of the kind in which people of the stage now bask, and know more about the art of acting than most of the fluster-budges now conspicuous on the bill boards ever will know, but steller exploitation was never a goal they struggled for; they were too busy acting to be occupied with the task of differentiating the hundreds of parts they played with making each one a definite, solid, enduring study of human nature. Most of them go on from year to year, serving their public conscientiously and delighting by their finished art the judicious observers in the play-going body.

FROM A GOOD SCHOOL

Eugene Moore, who portrays the part of Edmond Dantes in "Monte Cristo" which appears at Wayne, October 15, has had the training which gives him complete command of the technique of acting. It is said that so thoroughly has he mastered the mechanics of his art that any effect he wishes to obtain he secures with absolute surety and with the least possible expenditure of force. He has reached the point where a single line or word, or even a look or mere movement can be made to express an or produce a dramatic effect.

BIG BALLOONS RACE

MILLION PEOPLE SEE START OF CONTEST IN PARIS.

Event Made Endurance Contest Instead of Long Distance Race on Account of Lack of Wind—Seven Countries Are Represented.

Sixteen balloons, averaging over 2,000 cubic meters capacity each and representing seven countries, sailed away from the Hippodrome gardens, in the heart of Paris, Sunday afternoon in the first competition for the Gordon Bennett cup for international aeronautics.

The contest was primarily a long distance race. The date had been carefully selected when the prevailing winds are from the west in the hope of giving the aeronauts an opportunity to break the record of Count de la Vautte, made in 1900, when his balloon landed in Korostoffsk, Russia, having covered a distance of 1,182 miles in thirty-two hours and forty minutes.

But Sunday the wind was light, hardly more than eight miles an hour, and from the east.

Under the contest, however, provided that in case of unfavorable atmospheric conditions the judges could, at their option, make the test one of endurance to remain in the air.

The foreign military attaches are especially interested in the event, but were regarded as a great test for aeronauts and much more than a mere sporting event. Each contestant is an experienced aeronaut pilot, but contrary to expectations Santos Dumont, one of the two representatives of the Aero Club of America, proved to be the only one to inaugurate a novelty.

For the purpose of keeping aloft as long as possible he had equipped his balloon with a six-horse power portable motor with the object of lifting and lowering his balloon without discharging any of the precious ballast.

BILL OUTWITS HARRIMAN.

Great Northern magnate is to build line in California.

James J. Hill has taken a march on E. H. Harriman and is getting ready to build into California. Not only has the Great Northern magnate completed a survey of a proposed new line from Boise City to San Francisco, but he has secured a valuable point on the bay shore for railroad terminals and is securing on the spot of the construction work with the avowed purpose of having San Francisco bay on his own railroad map inside of the next six years.

It is known that Hill, through representatives sent there several months before the earthquake, tied up the bay farm island property in Alameda county, which will be filled in and extended for a ferry system across the bay.

Hill is coming to San Francisco by way of the Pitt river, which affords him the only means of entering this state and crossing the Sierran Nevada on an easy grade. His survey from Boise City carries his proposed new route into the southerly part of the state to Lake View.

HITS THE ROCK ISLAND.

Court accuses it of indifference to safety of traveling public.

Judge C. T. Irvine, of the district court at Kingfisher, Okla., Saturday sustained the proceedings brought against the Rock Island railroad by County Attorney Bowman to compel the railroad to put a substantial bridge across the Cimarron river to replace that destroyed by the recent flood, which caused the disastrous wreck at that point Sept. 18. Judge Irvine specifically enjoined the Rock Island from neglecting to repair the bridge on which it is crossing the Cimarron river, and said that it was a matter of common knowledge that the company is very careless in respect to the safety of the traveling public.

He ordered that the company begin at once the construction of a safe bridge and gave the road until Nov. 5 to report its progress on the permanent structure.

"POET LARIAT" DEAD.

Grain Reaper Claims Quaint Character.

Bloodgood H. Cutler, the joyable old "farmer poet of Long Island," is dead at Poets' hall, his farmhouse, at Douglaston, Great Neck, N. Y., where he was born on Aug. 20, 1817. His death was caused by a complication of ailments incidentally his extreme age, which were aggravated by an accident two weeks ago, when he fell and hurt his head while coming down stairs.

As the original of the "Poet Lariat" or Mark Twain's "Innocent Abroad," the farmer poet was placed among the immortal years ago. His other claim to fame is the collection of verses he has written for many years, doggerel fired at any object in sight at the drop of the hat and read with amusement all over the country. Also there was a romance in his life, but that happened so long ago that few are left to tell of it.

Almost seventy years ago the romance began when young Cutler fell in love with a pretty girl of the neighborhood named Emaline Allen. Because the young man had preferred the sea to the acres that he had inherited and had shipped on a sailing trading schooner, there was not enough opposition to "the sailor," even if he were wealthy, from Miss Allen's family to marry the troubled lovers. On the young couple were married at last, however, but Mrs. Cutler died while still a bride. Ever since, the old poet has revered her memory even to the extent of avoiding the society of women.

Mr. Schuster is a native of the city of Washington. He served in various branches of the government service and finally was appointed deputy collector of customs of Cuba during the American occupation of that island. In 1901 he received the position to accept the position as collector of customs in the Philippines, the salary of which was $7,000 per annum.

As a member of the Philippine commission Mr. Schuster will receive a salary of $5,000 per annum and $10,000 per annum additional as secretary of one of the departments of the Philippine government.

TROOPS SCATTER BANDITS.

Affair in Mexico Not a Revolution.

A courier just arrived says that the revolutionists and a force from Ciudad Porfirio Diaz clashed Wednesday night at Victoria, about five miles south of Jiminez, that one ranger was killed and that the revolutionists left behind a trail of destruction. They are being pursued by Mexican troops. Jiminez is now in possession of the latter. The affair is regarded as possessing but little of a revolutionary or political character.

An Eagle Pass special received late Thursday says:

"A government force of seventy-five cavalrymen encountered forty self-proclaimed revolutionists thirty miles above here and dispersed them, killing two. One hundred more soldiers are coming from Monterey."

The following telegram was received at the treasury department in Washington Thursday from the collector of customs at Eagle Pass, Tex.:

"Wednesday about thirty bandits and smugglers took possession of Jiminez, a small town in Mexico thirty miles above Eagle Pass. A fight ensued with Mexican soldiers. Several men were killed. Sensational reports were sent out, the press dispatches describing it as a revolution. Efforts may be made to induce the war department to send troops here. Nothing serious in the situation is reported up to the present time."

RICH MAN SLAIN BY BOY.

Tragedy Follows Armed Attack on Home in New York.

Clifford Bonnevillie, a wealthy resident of Linnthgow, N. Y., died Thursday from wounds from a gun fired by J. Foster Feller, a 17-year-old son of Deputy Sheriff John H. Feller. On Monday Bonnevillie, who had been drinking, it is said, drove his wife and five children out of doors and they sought refuge at the Feller home. He obtained two revolvers and went to the Feller house and pounded on the door. He had smashed in a panel of the door, when young Feller from an upper story window warned him away. Bonnevillie pointed a revolver at the youth, so the latter says, but Feller fired the contents of a double-barreled shotgun at him, fatally wounding him. Bonnevillie made a fortune through the discovery that the rocks along the Hudson produced cement equal to the best imported cement, buying up many acres of land.

Be very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it.

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sunbath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element.

STENSLAND IN CHICAGO.

Bank Wrecker Declares He Will Cooperate with Officers. Paul O. Stensland, the fugitive president of the Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of Chicago, who was taken off the Prinz Adalbert at quarantine at 5:30 o'clock Monday evening and passed the night in a cell at the Mulberry street detective headquarters in New York City, started for Chicago in charge of Assistant State's Attorney Harry Olson and other Chicago officials, by the Twentieth Century limited at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and arrived there at 8:30 Wednesday morning.

Stensland declared he would plead guilty and turn State's evidence. He promised to tell enough to convict the men who were his conspirators or who worked with their knowledge of his guilt to stack up forgery or forgery on the foundation of wrongdoing which he had built.

"I want to straighten out matters," said Stensland. "There is a good deal behind this case, and I want to show the public that I am not the black sheep I have been painted."

Stensland made a voluntary statement to Police Inspector McLaughlin in New York City. Trembling with emotion, and with tears falling down his cheeks, the ex-bank president said:

"I made some bad investments and they did not act as quickly as I thought they would. They were not paying. The man under me—the cashier, I mean—the look advantage of the situation, and he got more than I. All I got was $400,000, but I don't know what the other man got. The money I went away with was a few thousand dollars that I made in a real estate speculation last summer. I had been always in hope of paying the money back, but I suppose all is lost. I am suffering from asthma. I want to get back to Chicago just as quickly as possible."

Stensland said soon after leaving the Prinz Adalbert: "My transactions with the bank involve $100,000. All deficits, defalcations or losses over that amount have been the work of Herling, his co-conspirators and other men who can be proved guilty."

As the total amount involved in the bank failure is placed at over $2,000,000, Stensland's charge accuses the

TO RESTORE GREAT GAME.

Government Proposes to Establish a Natural Preserve. Nearly 60,000 acres in one natural game preserve. Such is the new enterprise which the national government is establishing in Oklahoma.

As far back as tribal tradition runs, the Wichita mountain region has been the favorite hunting grounds of the Comanche and Kiowa Indians, drawn thither by abundance of game and religious claims. But now game, like the Indians, is largely a thing of the past. It is proposed to reproduce in this splendid natural park all the best species of game animals and birds that once made the great West the hunter's paradise.

Deer, antelope, bear, the otter and beaver, quail and dove, prairie chickens and wild turkeys will be given protection and encouragement to increase and multiply.

Probably the most interesting feature of the undertaking will be an effort to have, in the course of years, large herds of buffalo again roaming the plains—within the reservation—as they did before the pitiless warfare upon them was carried so nearly to the point of extermination.

At present the preserve is tenanted only by such game birds and animals, pitifully few in number, as have escaped the horde of hunters who have overrun that region ever since Oklahoma was opened to settlement. The animals of importance are deer, antelope, small black bear, mountain lions, bobcats, wolves, coyotes, and other mammals. The deer country was opened for settlement, deer and antelope were plentiful but both have been slaughtered almost to extermination. The deer are usually found on the high ridges, while the antelope feed in the prairies. Both, however, can still be found in sufficient numbers to form a start for large herds, if they were given the necessary protection.

More Hippie Securities. The investigation of the affairs of the wrecked Real Estate Trust Company of Philadelphia disclosed more than $5,000,000 in bad loans outside of the Regal operations. These notes were part of debts worked solely by the late President Hippie. Receiver Earle made public his reorganization plans as follows: The depositors to receive one-third of their deposits in cash and to agree to accept preferred stock for the remaining two-thirds, this preferred stock to be redeemed by cash payments later on when the company declares the 8 per cent dividend; the directors to subscribe $2,500,000. This plan has been approved by the directors and waits the approval of the depositors and stockholders.

Homeopathic Antidote Absorption. When the international homeopathic congress began its sessions at Atlantic City Dr. William E. Green, president of the American Institute of Homeopathy, delivered an address, the keynote of which was "no compromise with allopathy." The appliance which greeted this address showed plainly that a majority of the congress was against the proposed amalgamation with the dominant school of medicine, Dr. William H. Diefenbach advanced the striking theory that many cases of cancer are due to the modern introduction of enamel ware in the kitchen. His argument was that chipping of the hard-coated dishes caused dangerous particles of foreign matter to become mixed with the food, and that they started cancerous growths in the stomach by abrasions made in the walls of the organ. The mortality from cancer was steadily growing. Dr. Henry E. Dean, the British army expert on preventing the spread of the bubonic plague, assailed the generally accepted theory that rats are the principal agency of spreading this disease.

CUBAN CRISIS ACUTE.

Taft Threatens Military Occupation. Hardest Steps to Be Taken if Plan of Mediation Fails—Turbulent Meeting of a Band of the Government's Followers.

Secretary Taft forced the hands of the moderates when they agreed to appoint a committee of six to negotiate terms of peace with a like committee of the rebels and liberals, leaving all points upon which no agreement is reached to the arbitration of the American commissioners. The moderates abandoned the condition that the rebels must first lay down their arms before negotiations should commence. The moderates declare that the appointment of a committee to negotiate with the liberals does not mean the conceding of new elections.

The moderates were brought to terms by a verbal ultimatum delivered by Secretary Taft in which he declared that unless they consented to a fair arbitration the United States would compel such a move by a temporary military occupation. Such occupancy, Secretary Taft said, would not mean American sovereignty. It would continue only until new elections had been held, a new government firmly established, and order restored. Within an hour after the receipt of Secretary Taft's verbal ultimatum the moderates capitulated and agreed to treat with the rebels.

In spite of the spirit of conciliation in which both the moderate and the liberal leaders approached the American commissioners, Secretary of War Taft and Assistant Secretary of State received confidential reports that the government officials were acting unsharply and that they had no intention to permit a settlement of the controversy along the lines suggested in Secretary Taft's proposals to President Palma. The commissioners felt that a crisis would be precipitated on the evening of the Cuban Congress.

Attention as Viewed by Taft. In describing the situation Secretary Taft made public a brief statement of the facts leading up to the present attitude. He said:

The moderates determined to force American intervention by the resignation of appointed officers, thus leaving affairs in our hands. President Palma chose to regard our suggestions as demands and he rejected them emphatically. We appointed Alfredo Zayas, the liberal leader, with the situation and he undertook to induce his associates to consent to the original proposition of the moderates—namely, that the insurgents lay down their arms and submit the entire controversy to the American commissioners, but the rebel commanders and men in the field insisted insistently on the part of the government and declined.

The negotiators especially insisted on retaining their arms until peace was assured. Zayas' report is indicative of future trouble with the lawless element and I feel certain that a settlement of the rat is possible only along the lines suggested by us.

After an exhaustive investigation we learned that the moderates and the liberals, that unless they were willing to listen to reason the United States must enforce a settlement. I told them that a proclamation would be issued establishing a military government in the island, but that this would continue only so long as

PIKE'S PEAK CENTENNIAL.

Anniversary is Fittingly Celebrated at Colorado Springs. The celebration at Colorado Springs last week of the centennial of the discovery of Pike's peak is a fitting tribute to an American worthy whose fame grew in his lifetime, then suffered a strange eclipse, but within the last generation has come again into its own.

It is only a hundred years since the eastern slope of the Rockies was explored by representatives of the United States. Zebulon Montgomery Pike was the favored one who led the expedition into the newly purchased Louisiana country.

The year before, during nine months of 1805-6, he had been assigned to conduct an expedition to trace the Mississippi to its farthest source. What he did in this connection is usually forgotten in the glories of the successful mission he undertook in 1806-7.

Jefferson was a firm believer in exploration. He sent Lewis and Clark off toward the northwest to see what that region might develop. He sent Pike toward the southwest to follow the line between the Louisiana country and Spanish possessions, a line not definitely established until after the treaty of 1810. These explorations made Pike's name famous. He was killed in the war of 1812 while leading an assault against what is now Toronto, a magazine exploding as he was standing on a redoubt. But his fame rests upon a war glory, although he was an army man, born to the service almost, considering his father's connection with the troops.

Pike's peak is not the highest of the Rockies, but it has had a prominent place in the history of the West. There was much of interest in Pike's account of its discovery, or rather rediscovery. The Americans liked to hear of the big mountains. They became enthusiastic when Fremont placed the flag upon a peak of the Rockies, actually doing what the word painting of Joseph Rodman Drake had portrayed years before. The tearing of the "azure robe of night" and planting "the stars of glory there" appealed to the sentiment of the country. So it was with Pike's peak. It was along the line of westward travel, when "Pike's peak or just" was the legend on many a wagon filled with "forty-niners," many of whom were afterwards known as "Pikers." Long before that, however, the geography of the country had paid its tribute to the explorer. Counties, towns, villages, townships were given his name. His fame is a certain tribute to the American love for the adventurer and explorer, who seeks new fields and adds to his country's glory by description of big things not before known.

There is just reason for the Colorado celebration, says the Chicago Tribune. The pioneer explorers of the West can not have too much honor paid to them. Their descriptions were often unscientific, their conclusions, erroneous, but they were the pathfinders for the tremendous migrations which, in later years, pressed forward to make the "great American desert" a home for thousands of settlers. The fortune of Pike was far better than that which falls to the lot of most explorers, for his own generation honored him. The laurels which come now are more in the nature of retrospectives over the wonderful progress that has been made since the year when Pike first tried to reach the summit of the mountain which bears his name.

Movement for Pure Drugs. Nearly all of the wholesale drug dealers of New York have responded favorably to the demand by Dr. Partridge, head of the city health board, that they cease selling adulterated, understandard and substituted drugs. After a careful analysis it had been found that 72 per cent of all the drugs on sale were not up to the standard prescribed by the pharmacopoeia.

Modern Laws for Finland. The ancient four-chambered diet of the grand duchy of Finland went out of existence Tuesday, after a nine months' session as a constituent assembly during which time the new form of government, wrested from the Czar was constructed. The diet is succeeded by a parliament elected by universal male and female suffrage. The governor general read the Czar's address, expressing satisfaction with the work of the diet and promising to take the initiative in reforms to improve the economic position of the industrial and agricultural workers.

Smoking Students Must Pay. According to a rule laid down by Chancellor Day of Syracuse university, students who are known to use tobacco and patronize the theaters will be required to pay the full tuition. The chancellor says that young men who can afford needless luxuries and indulgence will receive no concession from the faculty. He adds that such students need not expect to receive scholarships. It is his opinion that a young man who smokes is a fool, at least in that particular, as he ought to take better care of his nerves and present a cleaner habit of himself.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Interfering with the Simpel Spect. Other sections to be taken resort to force that the simpel specter ordered by the President may lead to considerable confusion. For the reason that the order will not in any way effect the printing of public documents originating in the houses of Congress.

When word of the departments sends printed matter to Congress opens it is printed in haste, and Congress orders it printed on the Record, it must be reprinted in the old and more difficult style.

As a consequence, many thousands of documents will have to be reset and reprinted, to be satisfactory to the branches of the government in which either the new kind or the old kind of spelling is preferred.

It is that in some quarters that the cost of the telegraph is being discussed in congressional circles, and many special laws are being introduced to amend the act of 1862, which gave the government the right to use the telegraph lines for military and naval purposes.

other looters of responsibility for at least $1,000,000. The defaulter made this statement through his son Theodore:

"Fear of my life, more than anything else, prompted me to run away from this country. I am sorry for the thousands of depositors, but unless others have looted the treasury more than I have they will be reimbursed when the bank's affairs are finally settled."

"I think I can upon my return to Chicago find a way of forcing others to make restitution of stolen bank funds and I am going back with that intention uppermost in my mind."

"I am not a forger in the exact sense of the word, though technically I may be guilty of that crime. I know that others were forging signatures. Some work of this sort was done under my direction, but from what I have heard from State's Attorney Olson there were others doing the same thing without my knowledge."

"With the hope of having the court deal leniently with me, I am going to plead guilty to such of the indictments against me as I am actually responsible for, and in other ways I am prepared to render every assistance in my power to aid in the prosecution of those more guilty than I am. In this way I believe that others may be forced to make restitution, as my son has done for me by turning over my property."

"I have not employed counsel. I have never attempted suicide and I have never signed a statement for newspaper publication since my capture at Tangier. I have told all the minute details of my negotiations to Assistant State's Attorney Olson. I have given the names of all persons connected with the bank wreck to Mr. Olson, but he is pledged not to reveal them until the proper time comes."

Castro Still a Sick Man. President Castro of Venezuela, who for several weeks has been in close retirement in account of a serious illness, was brought in a guarded special train Thursday to a suburb of Caracas, but the trip was made with utmost secrecy, and the official announcement was made that Castro would receive nobody until his health was completely re-established. With the support of a servant, he was able to walk from one train to another at the station, thus contradicting the rumor that he was suffering from paralysis.

GRAVES ASKED FOR PASS.

Write for Transportation After He Was Elected Judge.

Judge Graves, fusion nominee for congress from this district, who has made his whole campaign thus far upon the pretense that he has never accepted railroad favors, wrote a letter to Judge J. B. Barnes of Norfolk in the fall of 1901 and expressly asked for a free pass over the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad from Fender to Minneapolis and return for his wife and her mother.

The letter was sent to Judge Barnes because he was attorney for the railroad. It was forwarded to the head office and the pass for two was issued by the railroad to Judge Graves. It was used by Mrs. Graves and her mother, absolutely free, and for the sake of saving money to Judge Graves. The pass was not, as Judge Graves declared, issued "by Judge Barnes." The letter written by Judge Barnes, asking for the pass, came after Graves had been elected judge of the district court and after, as the democratic platform expresses it, "he was clothed in the robes of the magistracy."

This information was gained by the republican congressional central committee from Judge Barnes yesterday. In a letter written to O. A. Miller, editor of the Madison County Reporter at Newman Grove, Judge Graves recently stated that a railroad pass to Minneapolis and return had been issued to him in the fall of 1901 by Judge J. B. Barnes, of Norfolk, at that time attorney for the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, and that the pass had been used by Mrs. Graves and her mother. The letter carefully avoided to state whether the pass had been forced upon Judge Graves or whether it had been asked for by him. This question has been settled without the assistance of Judge Graves' memory. The republican congressional central committee, somewhat interested in the matter, took steps to learn just how it happened that Judge Graves had received these passes for his wife and mother-in-law.

As has developed, as a result of an interview with Judge Barnes by Chairman Ward, of the central committee, that the pass was not offered to Judge Graves, but that it was issued to him at his written request.

The democratic congressional platform declares, on this point: "The nominee of this convention is, in himself, the right sort of platform as touching the free pass evil. He takes the democratic position that there can be no difference between a free pass bribe and a money bribe and he has lived true to that position. During all the years of service as district judge, his pocket has never been polluted by a political or other kind of free pass." In his speech of acceptance before the democratic convention, Judge Graves gave out the impression that he had never accepted a pass from any railroad and that he considered it a crime for any judge to thus obligate himself to a railroad.—Norfolk News.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Prof. and Mrs. Buchanan moved from the dormitory this week to the house formerly occupied by the Mines' family.

Mr. Wilk of Platte Center, Miss Beth of Hartington, and Miss Hoffman, of Winfield, are new students who enrolled this week.

Miss Kingsbury gave an interesting talk to the students last Saturday on matters pertaining to her school experience of two years in Germany.

Rev. Ringer was a college visitor Tuesday. After conducting the chapel service, he made an excellent talk to the students. Many met him for the first time.

Mrs. Chase, of Chicago, is spending the week with her daughter. She visited the college several times during the five years Miss Chase spent here as student and teacher.

A social conducted by the officers of the Philo society last Saturday evening was well planned and quite largely attended by students and former students.

The mid-term examinations were held last Friday. Teachers report fairly good results but many are not accustomed to original study and such found the examinations difficult.

We are advised that our graduates with elementary state certificates, teaching in South Dakota, had the certificates endorsed for a term of six years. They are good for not more than three years in this state.

The laboratory work for this term is much in excess of any former term. Classes in chemistry and biology are more than twice as large as the largest ever had before. Both classes are doing the best of work in both class and laboratory.

Arrangements are being made whereby the plans now in use will be replaced with eight new ones, same style and make. The entire floor of the present building will be given over to the department of music on completion of the new building.

The brick work on the new building was commenced Monday and will be pushed. A long delay in getting material postponed the beginning, but the work will move along rapidly. Good weather for a month will give us the hearing completed. The boiler house is nearly completed.

Thirty-eight teachers of the Madison county list have been students of the Nebraska Normal during the past five or six years; ten of the number are graduates of this school, seven of whom are teaching in the country districts. This county has a splendid teaching body and a very practical superintendent.

More students have entered the classes in German this year than previously. The beginning class of about twenty-five will be kept together the entire year. Much progress in speaking, reading, and writing the language can be made in that time and receives two years' credit at the higher colleges and universities.

Several villages this year sought lady principals and the following report a good beginning with a good outlook for the year: Miss Van Vleet is principal at Waterbury; Miss Richardson at Hoskins; Miss Alton at Gross; Mrs. Sweeney at Cornelia; Maud Surber at Burkbank, S. D. These ladies are successful teachers and well prepared for the positions they hold. They are substantial, judicious women.

The experienced teachers of last summer's classes are pleasantly located in town schools: Miss Pilger, Hartington; Miss Hughes, Scribner; Miss Britton, Samburg, Ia.; Miss Simmons, Soodland, S. D.; Miss Anderson, Omaha; Miss Campbell, Strang; Misses Glassburn and McGee, Maguet; Miss Whitney, Waterbury; Miss Murphy, Gross; Miss Roberts, Dakota City; Miss Fenske, Harrison; Miss Reeves, Creston; Miss McGee Emeryon.

Prof. Mayer, with his son and daughter, came up from Hooper Saturday and gave a musical entertainment at the hall in the evening and a dance afterwards. It was such a success and the music so good that the committee engaged them to play on Sunday afternoon and evening again and old and young danced and had a good time.

When the tip of a dog's nose is cold and moist, that dog is not sick. A feverish dry nose means sickness with a dog. And so with the human lips. Dry, cracked and colorless lips mean feverishness, and are as well ill as a fever. To have beautiful, pink, velvet-like lips, apply at bedtime a coating of Dr. Shoop's Green Salve. It will soften and heal any skin ailment. Get a free trial box at our store, and be convinced. Large nickel capped glass jars, 25 cents. Felber's Pharmacy.

For bargains in wagons and boxes see O. W. Hiscox, The Bus Improvement Dealer.

The new Pure Food and Drug Law will mark on the label of every Cough Cure containing opium, chloroform, or any other stupefying or poisonous drug. But it passes Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure as made for 20 years, entirely free. Dr. Shoop all along has bitterly opposed the use of all opiates or narcotics. Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure is absolutely safe even for the youngest babe—and it cures, it does not simply suppress. Get a safe and reliable Cough Cure, by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's. Get the law be your protection. We cheerfully recommend and sell it. Felber's Pharmacy.

A CERTAIN CURE FOR CROUP—USED FOR TEN YEARS WITHOUT A FAILURE.

Mr. W. O. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much favored the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He has recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by Raymond's drug store.

The Farmers' Cream association have recently been discussing the advisability of procuring permanent quarters for their testing and shipping station. There was some talk of erecting a building for this purpose, but we understand that the company have decided to use the old feed mill building permanently and that it will be remodeled and improved. The business of the company continues to grow, the average amount of cream received being eighty cases per week. About $2,278.00 in cash was paid to the patrons during September.

A GRAND OLD PLAY

To those who have read Alexandre Dumas' masterful romantic creation "Monte Cristo," the dramatization of the story must be regarded as a clever piece of dramatic construction, as this all absorbing novel has been converted into an equally absorbing and entertaining drama and will be presented at the Wayne opera house, October 15. The story in its entirety is a masterpiece and when it is taken into consideration that all the stirring events narrated therein are so deftly blended and explained as to make every point clear during a two and one-half hours performance, it may be said without flattery that the present version as presented by Eugene Moore is one of the most notable given in recent years of this grand old play.

KRELL TONE

As a rule we have little to say about the tone of other pianos, which we leave entirely to the purchaser to decide. Tone is such an allusive, intangible thing, and there is so much difference of opinion as to tonal beauty. Some go into raptures over the tone of a certain piano, others say they do not like that tone. But it is surprising what an unanimity there is among artists and music loving people as to the tone of the KRELL. Not too voluminous, not too soft. Capable of great expression qualities. Not wearing down to a thinner tone through use, but retaining its pristine sweetness. That is the KRELL—a tone that has been admired for half a century. The most effective trap work yet introduced is the

G. J. Savage brought an apple to this office last Saturday that was a "peach." It was grown in Lincoln county, S. D., and measured 15 1/2 inches in circumference.

By a change of venue, a spiky and sensational case from Altona was to have been tried before Judge Lucas Monday but was settled out of court. Riley Rooth and two women who were tending bar in Altona's saloon got into a fracas which caused the difficulty.—Winside Tribune.

Someone, either with malicious intent or criminal carelessness, threw a burning handful of newspapers into the weeds between Cooklin's machine shop and J. L. Payne's feed store on Tuesday evening. The fire was discovered by John Harmer, who happened to be passing, and extinguished before serious damage was done.

A farmer near Ragan had a narrow escape last Saturday while out gathering roofing-ars. He was standing at the top of a thirty-foot ladder leaning against a stack of corn, when he accidentally fell, and when within ten feet of the ground had the presence of mind to cling to a rafter and hang there until a neighbor drove under him with a load of hay and saved his life.—Wausa Gazette.

Considerable building is going on throughout the country. Up in the Welsh settlement Dave Thomas is erecting a house, Dave Davis and Lot Morris each a large barn, and Howell Reese and Thomas James are each making improvements. John R. Morris, in the same neighborhood, is putting down new cement walks, etc. Farmers everywhere are unusually prosperous at this time and more building is being done than ever before.

The effects of the Sioux City, Homer & Southern Railway company were last Thursday sold at sheriff's sale by Sheriff H. O. Hansen to J. A. and Harry H. Foye, of Sioux City, Ia., for $16,700. Three bids were made, the first by the Foyes, of $15,000, the second by E. A. Burgess representing the Sioux City Bridge company, of $16,500 and the third bid of $16,700 by the Foyes. J. A. Foye states he bought the road in good faith and has the means to equip and put it in operation, which he intends to do if he can get the proper encouragement from Dakota countyites in making certain changes in the rights granted by the franchise.

An eastern paper spins the following: "There was once a funeral out in Nebraska—no runs the yarn—and the preacher who had been asked to deliver the eulogy was a stranger in town and did not know the departed sister very well. So after he had said all that he could he suggested that if anybody else could say a few words about the poor dead sister it would be a good thing to say them. Three or four of those who had known the deceased in her lifetime made appropriate remarks. Then there was a pause. At last one old brother rose and said: "Well, if we're all through speaking about the departed sister, I will now make a few brief remarks on the tariff."

The Norfolk Daily News of September 28, contained the following regarding the loss of a hand by M. J. Dendinger, formerly a resident of Wayne, notice of which accident was mentioned in last week's HERALD: "M. J. Dendinger, formerly of Norfolk and a commercial traveler well known in northern Nebraska, who recently removed to Wood Lake, Neb., to take a claim, accidentally shot himself through the hand and so seriously wounded himself that the member had to be amputated at the wrist. While unloading his goods at Wood Lake, Mr. Dendinger was handling a gun. The gun was accidentally discharged and his hand was badly torn to pieces. Surgeons cut off the member shortly after."

Ahead of the Times.
 "I'm living in the wrong age," grumbled the little old man who was sitting outside of the postoffice whittling a peach stone.
 "How's that?" queried the horse-shoe salesman.
 "Why, for gosh, I should have been living in an age when Ijar want' nothing but automobiles and airships."
 "Why so? Horses ever give you any trouble?"
 "Woe! Well, I reckon they have. While I went to the circus the old woman ran away with a boss doctor. If there hadn't been any hosses that wouldn't have been any hoss doctors and I would have had the old woman yet. No, sir, young man, I was 'born too early.'"

Too Funny.
 "Mister," said the bruised and battered man as he entered the newspaper office, "I want you to stop my paper. I can't stand the comic page."
 "Why," replied the clerk, in surprise, "our comic page is conceded to be the funniest out!"
 "That's just it, young man; it is too funny. Why, last night while I was reading some of the jokes in the kitchen, I started to laugh, and, by gum, I laughed so loud I tilted my chair too far back, upset six jars of gooseberry preserves, knocked down the stove and killed the cat. Then the old woman came near hitting me; so I reckon you better stop the paper."

There Are Others.
 "Say, Harrier, I heard you telling your wife the other morning that you were going fishing."
 "Sure, old chap. And I bagged some of the finest trout you ever saw."
 "Bagged? How improper! The expression 'bagged' belongs to hunters."
 "But it fits my case exactly. You see I didn't catch anything with my lines, so on my way home I bought a string of fish and put them in a paper bag."

Troubles of an Amateur.
 "I thought you had gone to raising bees," said the man from the city, "don't see any sign of them around here."
 "I had half a dozen colonies of the finest bees I could get," answered the suburbanite, "and a whole library of literature on the raising; but they swarmed one day, and while I was looking through my books to find out what was the proper thing to do when bees swarmed the blessed thing flew away, and I've never seen 'em since."

BEVERIDGE REPLIES TO BRYAN.
 Senator in Chicago Speech Denounces Bryan's Doctrine.
 The Hamilton Club of Chicago formally opened the congressional campaign with a big meeting in the Auditorium. Senator Beveridge proved a drawing card, and the large hall was packed to the doors. Interest was enhanced by the fact of the Senator's close relations to the administration. His utterances were regarded as wholly or at least in great measure reflecting the views of the President.

Therefore what Senator Beveridge said concerning government ownership may be regarded as a reply to Bryan's enunciations on that subject. The pith of the argument is contained in the following paragraphs:
 The people's government should do no business that the people can do better themselves; the people's government should own no business that the people can better own themselves.
 But the people's government should control and regulate industries owned by some of the people that are so great as to affect the welfare of all of the people. The people, through their government, should not permit some of them to practice business methods that will be unjust to all of them. But the people's government should not own any industry which private enterprise can efficiently manage and whose abuses government regulation can prevent.
 Government ownership of nation-wide business is the European theory of industry. Government regulation of nation-wide business is the American theory of Industry. I am for the American theory and against the European theory. Let Europe copy America, not America copy Europe. Government control of railways, but not government ownership of railways.

 The utmost truth is deeply implied that this country can regulate railways and other corporations and eliminate the abuses complained of. When that is accomplished, or when it is demonstrated that it can be accomplished, we assume that not even Bryan will hold fast to his theory of government ownership; until it shall be demonstrated that it cannot be accomplished, the people of this country are not going to stampede for Bryan and for the new Bryanesque doctrine. They have been attracted by the brilliancy of his electricatory before only to discover that he was leading them into dangerous and untold terrors, far from the highway of sane and conservative action.

The Senator discussed the development of American industries from the individual to the combination stage, the growing needs of the country making it imperative that men join capital and brains to meet the increased demand. But still the control remains with the people. We talk of millionaires and multi-millionaires as being in absolute possession of large corporations, and yet it is a fact that 75 per cent of the stock and bonds of these mammoth enterprises is held by hundreds of thousands of people. If they will, they can see to it that the government exercises reasonable supervision over the trustees who are managing their property. For Senator Beveridge says:

Government supervision means the intelligence and conscience of the people laying their restraining hands on the wings of railway management; government ownership means an American bureaucracy as much greater than any other bureaucracy on earth as the American railway system is as much greater than any other railway system on earth.
 Those who advocate government ownership admit that private management is more efficient, admit that American railway service is the best railway service in the world. But they say that the government ownership is the only way of keeping the railways out of politics. It is false that the railways would be more in politics. When they meddle at all they meddle too much, and they meddle a great deal. But government ownership is not the way to stop them.

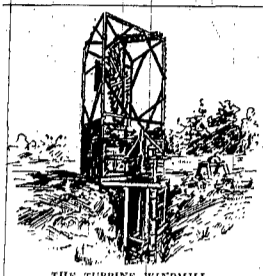

Criminal laws is the way to stop them. Prison bars for corrupting railroad lobbyists; prison bars for railway agents in politics and consorting with politicians; the railway representatives who try to influence the nomination and election of Senator, Congressman, Judge or any other public officer—that is the way to stop them.
 Let the railways attend to their own business just as every one of you is expected to attend to his own business, and no man will speak of government ownership. And their business is not to nominate and elect any public officer; their business is not to purchase, coerce or influence his election. Their business is to haul passengers and freight, and nothing else.

We are curious to hear Bryan's reply to that argument. If it is not truly American in every line of it then we mistake the Senator's meaning. If it doesn't breathe of courage and hopefulness, then we fall utterly to give it its correct analysis.—Toledo Blade.

 The West Presbyterian Church, on West Forty-second street, is valued at $450,000. St. Thomas's at $1,700,000, and the First Avenue Presbyterian Church, 9 and 11 West Fifty-fifth street, at $1,600,000.

FARMS AND FARMERS

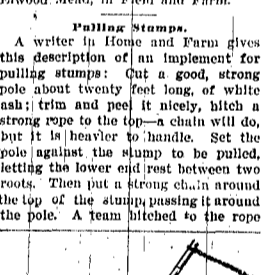

Turbine Windmill.
 In parts of the country subject to high winds there is risk of mills on high towers being overthrown especially if the diameter of the wheel is increased above ten or twelve feet. To overcome this difficulty it is expedient to build a mill inside of its tower rather than upon it. The turbine shown in the illustration has a diameter of twenty feet and is used to drive a feed grinder and other machinery. Its chief officer, however, is to operate two pumps which irrigate sixteen acres of land. The expense of erecting this mill was about one hundred dollars. There is no particular difficulty about its construction and a considerable part of the work could be done with ordinary tools and a little mechanical knowledge.

Lack of Mechanical Knowledge.
 The full benefits of farm machinery are not realized because the average farmer has not the mechanical training or the requisite skill to get the best results out of these complex implements. We are the greatest makers and users of farm machinery in the world, and it is owing to this fact more than any other single cause that we have been able to maintain our agricultural supremacy in the markets of the world. The cost of this machinery to the farmers is greater to-day than ever before. The character of this machinery every year becomes more complicated, requiring increased knowledge of engineering principles on the part of users. The traction engine, the steam plow, the combined harvester and thresher operated by steam power, the automobile, the growing use of electricity as a motive power on the farm, the machinery now required in dairies, in the growing of sugar beets and manufacture of beet sugar, are all illustrations of the momentous changes in the character of farm machines which have taken place in the last fifty years. The increase in skill and mechanical knowledge required by farmers to operate these complex and costly machines compared to what was needed to operate the primitive tools of half a century ago cannot be given in percentages.—Elwood Mend, in Field and Farm.

Pulling Stumps.
 A writer in Home and Farm gives this description of an implement for pulling stumps: Cut a good, strong pole about twenty feet long, of white ash; trim and peel it nicely, hitch a strong rope to the top—a chain will do, but it is heavier to handle. Set the pole against the stump to be pulled, letting the lower end rest between two roots. Then put a strong chain around the top of the stump, passing it around the pole. A team hitched to the rope will pull out more any stump. Place the pole close to the stump and cut the roots opposite the pole. Two men can best do the work—one to tend the horse, the other to cut roots as the stump is being hauled out.

Cutting Silo Corn.
 It is of primary importance to know at what stage corn should be cut to secure the best results. It is also necessary, it is pointed out in Farming, that a careful study be made as to how rapidly nutriment is stored up in the corn plant and when the maximum amount is reached. When corn is fully tassel'd it contains but eight-tenths of a ton of dry matter an acre, or one-fifth of what it contains when fully ripe. When in milk it contains nearly three times as much dry matter as when fully tassel'd. Only seventeen days were occupied in passing from the milk to the glazing stage, yet in this time there was an increase in the dry matter of 1.3 tons an acre. This shows the great advantage of letting the corn stand until the kernels are glazed. After this period the increase in dry matter is but slight.

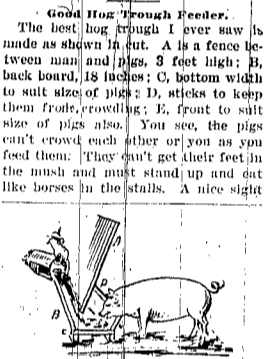

Storing Vegetables.
 To enjoy palatable and wholesome vegetables during the winter months proper care and attention are just as essential in harvesting and storing as in cultivation. Roots and vegetables, as they are often promiscuously thrown in heaps about the cellar, soon lose their freshness and flavor. Most of our house cellars are too warm for the proper preservation of vegetables, and it is therefore advisable to store only a limited quantity for immediate use in the house, while the main stock should be kept in a cool barn, cellar or outdoor pit.

The Great American Hen.
 Some one has figured that the American hen each year earns enough to buy all the silver and gold dug out of the mines, all the sheep in the country and their wool, and leave a balance equal to the entire year's crop of rye, barley, buckwheat and potatoes. Or, as a hen enthusiast writes in Farming, "she pays the interest on all the farm mortgages, pays the entire State and county taxes of the whole Union, and then leaves a balance large enough to give every man, woman and child in the United States a dollar."

Harvesting Potatoes.
 More or less judgment is required in doing any kind of work, and the digging of potatoes is no exception to the rule. In the first place, so many should not be dug out at one time that they cannot be handled readily. A good way is to dig during the fore part of each half day and then gather the tubers before quitting. As soon as dry they should always be picked up, and if the weather is reasonably dry the length of time necessary for drying depends almost entirely upon the nature of the soil. If sandy, an hour may be long enough, but if a moist clay it may take several hours. Potatoes, once dug, should certainly not be left out on the ground over night. If they are, the frost has every chance to get at them, and only a little freezing is required to spoil a good many bushels for market. It is a poor practice, too, to pick up potatoes without any regard to grading. Two classes, anyway, should be made of them; all those of good marketable size should be gathered first and the undersized ones left till later. It also pays to have crates or bushel measures in which to pick them up. Easy to distribute about the field, these, after being filled, can readily be placed on a wagon and drawn off. Furthermore, they prevent the tubers from being jammed and marred. Thirty or forty of them, or even a less number, may profitably be owned by every farmer who makes a business of raising potatoes and similar crops.—Fred O. Sibley, in Agricultural Epitome.

Good Hog Trough Feeder.
 The best hog trough I ever saw is made as shown in cut. A is a fence between man and pigs, 3 feet high; B, back board, 18 inches; C, bottom width to suit size of pigs; D, stakes to keep trough from crowding; E, front to suit size of pigs also. You see, the pigs can't crowd each other or you as you feed them. They can't get their feet in the mush and mud stand up and eat like horses in the stalls. A nice slight to see thirty or forty side by side, eating quietly and cleanly.—Farm Progress.

Selecting Seed Corn.
 The proper time in which to select seed is late in the fall or winter. The reason for this is because this portion of the year for seed is because there is then no hurry, and the work can be done better. The common practice of laying the seed corn aside to remain until spring has done great damage to the corn crop, as very often the excess of imperfect grains is such as to cause a failure of germination over the whole field. Every ear of corn should be examined and the inferior grain shelled off. Vegetable seeds also require examination, for insects, dampness and other causes interfere with their safekeeping. Of course, every farmer is supposed to be careful with his seeds, but very few farmers know the condition of their seeds until the time comes when they are required for planting, and then the farmers are too much hurried to do anything with them.

India's Largest Wheat Crop.
 The wheat crop of India this year is a large one. The area sown amounts to 25,225,240 acres, and the yield is estimated at 8,550,000 tons, as against 7,582,000 tons last year. The increase being 10 per cent. The Indian Trade Journal, which makes this statement, says that the government is taking a deep interest in the cultivation of the adulteration of dirt in the wheat exported. The government has consulted the chambers of commerce, some of whom, however, indicate a reluctance to depart from the present customs of the trade; but the chamber of commerce at Karachi, from which 70 per cent of Indian wheat exports are now shipped, strongly supports the government's proposal for 88 per cent pure wheat.

Shelter for Stock.
 The piles of stalks and straw which go to waste can be made to do good service in providing shelter if it is not considered fit for feeding. With a few posts and poles the stalks and straw will furnish a warm place of refuge for animals that cannot be accommodated in the barn or stable. With plenty of straw on the ground under the covering so formed, no better place could be arranged for sheep, and with care in making the roof only a heavy storm will cause it to leak.

Means in the Corn Shock.
 If when cutting corn you will place in one of your largest shocks about a dozen of your choicest watermelons, at Christmas, when the snow is on the ground and the frost is on the pane, you can sit by the roaring fire and eat one of your melons, which has kept all that time in the shock of corn.—Farm Journal.

The Apple Harvest.
 System in harvesting is essential. Care must be taken in picking thoroughly and without bruising the fruit. Apples should be partially sorted in the orchard. Apples should be left on the trees as long as possible, that the fruit may get color and weight.

Mica Axle Grease

Makes the Load Lighter

An ounce of grease is sometimes the only difference between profit and loss on a day's teaming. You know you can't afford a dry axle—do you know as well that Mica Axle Grease is the only lubricant you can afford? Mica Axle Grease is the most economical lubricant, because it alone possesses high lubricating property, great adhesive power, and long-wearing quality. Hence, the longest profitable use of your outfit is to be had, only when the lubricant is Mica Axle Grease.

Mica Axle Grease contains powdered mica. This forms a smooth hard surface on the axle, reduces friction, while a specially prepared mineral grease forms an effective cushioning body between axle and box. Mica Axle Grease wears best and longest—one greasing does for a week's teaming. Mica Axle Grease saves horse power—consequently saves feed. Mica Axle Grease is the best lubricant in the world—use it and draw a double load. If your dealer does not keep Mica Axle Grease we will tell you who does.

Don't.
 Here are a few helpful don'ts for a man who doesn't know anything about it:
 Don't. Just plain don't.
 Don't be reckless—especially in your lying.
 Don't give to the Lord and then go out and rob a widow.
 Don't acquire the borrowing habit, or the day will come when you will run out of friends.
 Don't marry an indolent man expecting him to brace up, or you may have to take in washing to pay for the brace.
 Don't be so mean-minded that you can see no good in a man. He may be the first to loan you money in time of need.
 Don't spread butter on both sides of your bread. An earthquake may come along and shake the change out of them.—Denver News.

The wrong way to select harness is the way it is usually done. Price is generally the first consideration. If that is very low the goods seem attractive, regardless of quality. Judge our goods the other way. Examine into the quality of this harness first. Then it will be seen that it is worth almost any price. But our prices are not high. Value considered they are remarkably low.
