Atty. F. A. Berry was at Sioux City on legal business, Monday.

The Catholic Ladies will give a bazaar and supper, on Tuesday after Easter.

Mrs. A. A. Welch and daughter, Florence were Sioux City visitors, Monday.

E. W. Steele will occupy the farm that was held by E. H. Wright for several years.

Miss Richardson, who teaches in the Emerson schools, spent Saturday and Sunday at home.

Mrs. Jessie Fox is down from Randolph this week, visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Skites.

Si Dillon and W. S. Ebbesole, of Wakefield, and Frank Porter, of Lyons, were in town, Monday.

The Misses Mary Farr and Laurel Lundburg spent Sunday with home folks from their school duties at Wakefield.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Baumgardner, left for Kansas City, on Monday, called by the death of Mrs. Baumgardner's sister.

Sheriff Mears took Fred Henricks to Lincoln, last Friday where he will be subjected to treatment accorded inebriates.

John Loebrock has rented the old Graves farm northeast of town. It lately belonged to L. A. Keller, who intends to move to the northern part of South Dakota.

M. S. Moats and Theo. Davidson, of Shols, were through passengers, Monday morning for Herman, Nebr., to attend a big sale of Durocs. Mr. Moats tells us his sale of last week was more than satisfactory, the hogs bringing an average of a little more than $52.00.

E. W. Darnell, was down from Winside on business, Monday. He tells us that L. H. Philips near that place is moving to St. Lawrence, Kansas, this week, and also that Jerry Miles and Austin Darnell and wife will leave for Demhoff, N. D., shortly, where they will reside.

The fourth illustrated evening lecture at the Methodist church will be next Thursday, March 7th, when the country bordering upon Singapore will be presented, using 80 illustrations. This is the land of the Dyaks, pigmies, orang outangs, fakirs, and crocodiles. Some attention will be given to Borneo. To present the work and results of missions among wild people will be the chief aim of the evening. Admission free. An offering will be taken to cover expenses of light, heat and the costly colored slides.

The temperance element of Wayne are back of a movement to have the initiative and referendum adopted for use in Wayne, as the same is provided for in article 6, chapter 26, of the revised statutes of Nebraska. A petition has been circulated the past week, asking the city council to make due adoption of the system by ordinance. If the HERALD understands the purpose of the movement, it is to enable the voters at each city election to reject or adopt a proposed public policy directly and do away with the old plan of leaving every matter to the decision of the board of councilmen. If its a question of "license" or "no license" the elector will vote "for" or "against" and the officials elected at the time will have as their duty the due observance and enforcement of what the majority have willed. Principles and policies, advocated in view of the community's welfare, will stand or fall on their own merit, and will not be bolstered up or weakened by the personality of any man. When a question is settled directly and decisively its a deal more satisfactory, after all. Everybody wants a "square deal", and when the chances are even and the fight fair even the vanquished will quit the field with better grace. The good citizen always respects majority rule, and every law or ordinance should be the limit of every man's right and the measure of every man's duty.

Teachers Meet at Winside

The fourth meeting of the Winside section of the teachers' association was held last Saturday afternoon at the usual time and place.

The teachers were disappointed in as much as Mr. McElrath, who was to furnish the music, was unable to be present.

The first number was a paper on morals and manners, by Miss Trix Miller. She brought out the great importance of good conduct on part of the pupil, at home, at school, on the street and elsewhere, and advanced the idea that the teacher should set the example by seeing that she herself is without fault along this line. Miss Miller also emphasized the fact, that if children received only the best home training, their conduct at school would be an item of minor importance.

The work in psychology was taken up by the chairman and discussed in full, after which the teachers were given an opportunity to emphasize the points that appealed to them as being most capable of a practical application. In her paper on Essentials of Arithmetic, Miss Richardson of Hoskins covered the subject thoroughly, giving many very helpful suggestions to beginning teachers. Miss Richardson showed clearly that if the pupil thoroughly mastered the few fundamental principles of Arithmetic he would meet with but little trouble in any part of the work.

The program was very appropriately brought to a close by an address by Atty. H. E. Sman. In that easy, intelligible and forcible style so characteristic of the speaker, he held the closest attention of the teachers throughout his discourse. After noting the great improvements that have been made in methods of teaching during the last century, and even during the last few decades he mentioned some of the essential qualifications of the true teacher, and then dwelt for a time upon the great importance of the work. Among other good things he said in part, "We have the greatest nation on earth and it is largely because we have the best teachers on earth." "Teachers," said he, "You are moulding the minds and forming the characters of the boys and girls who are to be the future great men and women of this nation. A great work rests upon you. Be alive to the responsibility, and do not be discouraged in well doing, for while you are shaping character in others you are strengthening your own. Make use of every opportunity for self improvement, and finally of your glorious opportunity to do noble things, not dream them all day long, and thus make life, death and that vast forever one grand sweet song."

Amos Boeckenhauer moved onto the Chas. Lund farm south of town the past week. He has been occupying the old Barbour farm which was disposed of as a part of the Boeckenhauer estate. Geo. Peters who has been living on the Lund farm moves onto his own place since M. Moore vacated the premises for a South Dakota claim.

Banker Fred Volpp, of Scribner and Nels Grimsley, now of Washington state are planning a voyage across the Atlantic. They expect to leave the latter part of April and will spend about three months taking the sights of Europe, with Germany and Mr. Volpp's old home in particular. They hope to visit all the big cities, including Paris and London.

Hunter school dist. No. 19, observed Washington's birthday with due formality on last Friday night. The pupils of the school rendered a most entertaining program all to the great credit of their teacher Mrs. McManigal, who thru faithful, conscientious work has gained recognition as one of the strongest members of the corps of county teachers. Following the literary feature a box supper was put on. Mr. Auker acted in the capacity of auctioneer, and the boxes sold at high prices. About $22 was realized. It proved a most successful affair.

"STATE HIGH SCHOOLS."

Because the communities surrounding our State Normal schools have taken an undue advantage of their opportunities, Senator Chas. A. Randall, is championing a bill, which raises the qualifications of entrance to such schools from the eighth to the tenth grade. In replying to an editorial in the Lincoln News, Senator Randall shows up conditions as follows:

"I am constrained to believe that you have not investigated present condition, that exist or you would not have written as you did in regard to it. If you will take the trouble to obtain an educational directory of Nebraska for the years 1906 and 1907 you will find that there are twenty-two schools of the eighth grade, sixty-seven of the ninth, one hundred a sixty of the tenth, one hundred and seventeen of the eleventh, and one hundred of the twelfth.

There are only two state normal schools supported by this state, and the capacity of both combined is about twelve hundred, and as these normal schools are now being conducted they are nothing more than state high schools and should be so considered unless the standard of entrance is raised to at least the tenth grade. I had intended at first thought to make the requirements the twelfth grade, but upon investigation I found that the tenth would be just about one-half of the scholars in this state who had entered the High school course and would be more equitable and at the same time raise the standard so that the abuse that has been creeping in would be partially overcome.

Why sir! Do you know that Peru has not maintained a high school for years! While other districts in this state are being taxed to maintain schools of the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades, the good people of Peru are having their children educated at the expense of the state and with a school population of three hundred and eleven, only ninety-eight of that number are registered in the public school and with an average daily attendance of sixty-six.

The principal of their school receives the princely salary of $50 per month and it requires only two assistants to educate three hundred and eleven children. Wouldn't it be nice if every town the size of Peru could have a state normal? And what incentive is there for other districts to build and equip high school buildings? Do you believe that it is treating the taxpayers fairly to allow the small children who ought to be educated by the tax payers of the districts where normal schools are located to crowd out those for whom these schools were constructed and are maintained? I wish it were only possible for us to have a county high school in every county in this state where there are children enough to require it, and do away with these schools that are now called state normals, and are nothing more or less than county high schools maintained by the state, and largely for the benefit of the community immediately surrounded them. Should you need further information in regard to this subject you are at liberty to call on me or what would probably be more satisfactory to you, consult the records in the office of the superintendent of public instruction and I am confident you will be convinced that senate file No. 259 is fair and ought to become a law. Very truly yours, C. A. RANDALL. Senator from Eleventh District, Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 12, 1907.

Washington Doings

Washington, Feb. 26. For the first time in its history the United States government practically is pledged to the expenditure of what the National Rivers and Harbors Congress declares to be a sum sufficient for the successful development of the country's waterways. This organization, which is composed of commercial bodies, various State and civic associations, shippers and individuals throughout the entire United States, has insisted that not less than $50,000,000 a year should be appropriated for this work of internal improvement. Up to the present session Congress has turned a deaf ear to this petition, and while appropriating more than 40 per cent of government money for the army, navy and pensions, has conceded to waterway development less than 3 per cent each year.

It would appear, however, that a reformation has set in Congress. The rivers and harbors appropriation bill as reported from the State Committee on Commerce, carries an increase of $8,519,334 over the amount appropriated by the House. The bill now carries $92,720,472, of which $40,081,908 is immediately available, and the aggregate for projects authorized is $52,638,564. It will be seen that the present cash authorization, while nearly $10,000,000 below the sum asked for by the National Rivers and Harbors Congress is awakening to the widespread national demand for adequate appropriations for rivers and harbors.

It is altogether probable that much of Congress's attitude is due to the discovery that the railroads are not opposed to the plan of waterway development, but actually invite it. The fact that the steam transportation lines have been absolutely unable to care for the great increase in traffic, has brought upon them a storm of criticism and in some cases unfair abuse. As the result the railroads will welcome any auxiliary system that will relieve the present congested conditions, for it is an acknowledged fact that they cannot hope to keep abreast of the growth of commerce. The situation was summed up by J. J. Hill, President of the Great Northern, when he said that the railroads in trying to take care of the present traffic conditions were "trying to force a three inch steam through a three-quarter inch nozzle."

In its consideration of the measures reported from the House, and Senate accepted an amendment submitted by Senator Hopkins of Illinois which will be hailed by the middle west. The amendment provides for a report at the earliest date practicable on the condition of the Mississippi River south of St. Louis. This in reality gives the Lakes-to-the-Gulf deep waterway project more or less of advantage in agitating for further appropriations in the near future. It remains to be seen whether the conferees will agree to let it go through, but it is scarcely probable that the House conferees will make much objection.

Another important amendment that the Senate added was the appropriation of $294,700 cash for the building of lock and dam No. 7 in the Ohio River, and in addition the sum of $800,000 was authorized for increased cost of construction. The refusal of the House committee to provide for a continuation of work on this dam caused some stormy scenes recently when Pittsburg delegations visited the Capitol.

Humor in the discussion of the corporation question! It sounds almost incredible, but a little brochure of the same tenor as the ponderous warnings against hysterical treatment of the subject issued in the President's annual message and the reports of the heads of various executive departments of the government, has made its appearance as an addition to this class of literature. The article is the text of a brief address made before the recent National Convention for the Extension of the Foreign Commerce of the United States, which was held here. The Speaker was Dr. James Howard Gore of George Washington University, who is eminently well fitted to speak on the subject of foreign commerce by reason of his wide investigations abroad and the fact that he has made deep personal study of the question in foreign fields. Because of his interest in this question of foreign trade he has been decorated by thirteen governments.

Dr. Gore's address is based primarily on the condition of foreign trade. He declares that foreign trade differs from domestic merely in one vital respect—permanency of existing conditions. The manufacturer who creates a market in distant countries for his goods, he says must have an assurance that when he is called upon to meet the demands, the cost of raw materials, labor and freight will not be greatly in excess of what they are at present. In the face of the heavy increase in wages and greater cost in raw materials American manufacturing enterprises in order to realize this condition, have been forced into consolidations, that through economies in production their ends may be attained. This, Dr. Gore shows, is the beginning and the end of the corporation, a name political demagogues have used to scare the masses.

Another dangerous feature of the situation seen by Dr. Gore is the activity of individual states in enactment of legislation aimed at the corporation. In touching on this he says:

"This anti-trust sentiment, the outcome in a large measure of the dissatisfaction that some grow rich while others stay poor, is making itself felt in those states where the legislatures are helping us toward the logical conclusion that every family can support itself by 'taking in washing.'"

"When the rights of the states were granted to us in our constitution there was no dream of the present ramifications of commerce, which in order to achieve the best results must regard the boundaries of states, as well as of counties, as artificial. When the demands of a county are insufficient to support a factory, the patronage of neighboring counties is solicited and the people at home as well as those nearby profit by the benefits that come from the greater production."

"But if the attempt be made to go beyond a state line which is no more real than the line that delimits the county—the enterprising manufacturer is told that foreign-made goods are admitted only by courtesy and may be excluded under the provisions of a state law based on antipathy to trusts, the color of the hair of the manufacturer or the grade of cigars he smokes."

Dr. Gore contends that foreign trade is not growing as rapidly as it might were large manufacturers assured of fair and uniform treatment by the different states. He believes that the federal license plan for corporations would prove a solution for the difficulty, provided the states should consider an enterprise holding such a charter immune from their local restrictions.

Rest Room for Wayne.

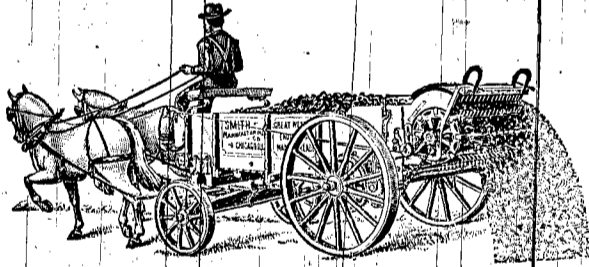

At a meeting of the committees appointed by the ladies of the Auxiliary to the Farmers' institute and delegates from the several ladies' clubs of Wayne, the financial committee appointed at the meeting during the farmers' institute, were instructed to send requests to prominent ladies in each school district in the territory tributary to Wayne asking them to circulate subscription papers in their respective neighborhoods for the purpose of raising funds for the renting and maintenance of a rest room in Wayne, for the convenience and comfort of the ladies of Wayne and surrounding country. It is proposed to hire a woman to take charge of this rest room, same to be kept open every afternoon and evening of the week except Sunday, during the year.

There will be a meeting of the officers and financial committee of the above named organization, and all ladies who wish to come, at J. H. Kate's incubator factory on Saturday, March 9, for the purpose of transacting any business that may properly come before the meeting. All officers and committees are urged to be present.

That's What a Spreader will do if Used as it Should Be.

The GREAT WESTERN SPREADER

Is Made for the Man Who Wants The Best.

If You Have 125 loads of manure to spread you can increase the value of your crop this year more than enough to pay for a spreader. We have a 64-page book which explains the whole situation. A Manure spreader will bring you bigger and quicker returns than any other three implements you have on the farm.

The Plan is not a theory, it is an actual fact backed up by 18 years' actual experience.

The Book is free. It is worth $100.00 but won't cost you a cent. If it does not do you any good, it won't do you any harm. It's brimful of valuable information.

A Manure Spreader Must Be made Extra Strong.

- DON'T buy a light spreader.
- DON'T buy a spreader that has a pine pole and pine frame.
- DON'T buy an experiment, a machine that has been on the market only a few years.
- DON'T let any manufacturer experiment at your expense.
- DON'T buy a spreader that has a narrow front axle. If you do you can't top dress corn successfully.

DON'T buy a spreader with the front axle set ahead of the front end of the body because practically all the load will be carried on the rear axle, making heavy draft.

The Great Western is a great big, heavy machine. The main frame is all oak, oak pole, hickory double-tram.

It Has a big, strong 16-inch malleable iron fifth wheel, double oak bolster, wide front axle, the wheels track,

It Has an endless apron that is always ready to load, no reverse gears, trips springs or contraptions to get out of order. Spreads all kinds of manure.

It Has a galvanized steel hood and end gate Keeps the manure away from the beater when loading. Prevents choking when starting. Acts as wind shield when spreading.

It Has light draft, because the load is nearly equally balanced on the front and rear axles; brings the team close to the load. Front and rear wheels track. Beater shaft runs in ball and socket bearings.

It Is so simple that a boy can handle it.

Don't let anyone sell you a cheap substitute because there is no other spreader just as good or nearly as good.

Wouldn't it be nice if every town the size of Peru could have a state normal? And what incentive is there for other districts to build and equip high school buildings? Do you believe that it is treating the taxpayers fairly to allow the small children who ought to be educated by the tax payers of the districts where normal schools are located to crowd out those for whom these schools were constructed and are maintained? I wish it were only possible for us to have a county high school in every county in this state where there are children enough to require it, and do away with these schools that are now called state normals, and are nothing more or less than county high schools maintained by the state, and largely for the benefit of the community immediately surrounded them. (Should you need further information in regard to this subject you are at liberty to call on me or what would probably be more satisfactory to you, consult the records in the office of the superintendent of public instruction and I am confident you will be convinced that senate file No. 259 is fair and ought to become a law.

Very truly yours, C. A. RANDALL,
Senator from Eleventh District,
Lincoln, Nebr., Feb. 12, 1907.

Washington Doings

Washington, Feb. 26. For the first time in its history the United States government practically is pledged to the expenditure of what the National Rivers and Harbors Congress declares to be a sum sufficient for the successful development of the country's waterways. This organization, which is composed of commercial bodies, various State and civic associations, shippers and individuals throughout the entire United States, has insisted that not less than $50,000,000 a year should be appropriated for this work of internal improvement. Up to the present session Congress has turned a deaf ear to this petition, and while appropriating more than 40 per cent of government money for the army, navy and pensions, has conceded to waterway development less than 3 per cent each year.

It would appear, however, that a reformation has set in Congress. The rivers and harbors appropriation bill as reported from the State Committee on Commerce, carries an increase of $8,519,334 over the amount appropriated by the House. The bill now carries $92,720,472, of which $40,081,908 is immediately available, and the aggregate for projects authorized is $52,638,564. It will be seen that the present cash authorization, while nearly $10,000,000 below the sum asked for by the National Rivers and Harbors Congress is awakening to the widespread national demand for adequate appropriations for rivers and harbors.

It is altogether probable that much of Congress's attitude is due to the discovery that the railroads are not opposed to the plan of waterway development, but actually invite it. The fact that the steam transportation lines have been absolutely unable to care for the great increase in traffic, has brought upon them a storm of criticism and in some cases unfair abuse. As the result the railroads will welcome any auxiliary system that will relieve the present congested conditions, for it is an acknowledged fact that they cannot hope to keep abreast of the growth of commerce. The situation was summed up by J. J. Hill, President of the Great Northern, when he said that the railroads in trying to take care of the present traffic conditions were "trying to force a three inch steam through a three-quarter inch nozzle."

In its consideration of the measures reported from the House, and Senate accepted an amendment submitted by Senator Hopkins of Illinois which will be hailed by the middle west. The amendment provides for a report at the earliest date practicable on the condition of the Mississippi River south of St. Louis. This-in-reality gives the Lakes-to-the-Gulf deep waterway project more or less of advantage in agitating for further appropriations in the near future. It remains to be seen whether the conferees will agree to let it go through, but it is scarcely probable that the House conferees will make much objection.

Another important amendment that the Senate added was the appropriation of $294,700 cash for the building of lock and dam No. 7 in the Ohio River, and in addition the sum of $800,000 was authorized for increased cost of construction. The refusal of the House committee to provide for a continuation of work on this dam caused some stormy scenes recently when Pittsburg delegations visited the Capitol.

Humor in the discussion of the corporation question! It sounds almost incredible, but a little brochure of the same tenor as the ponderous warnings against hysterical treatment of the subject issued in the President's annual message and the reports of the heads of various executive departments of the government, has made its appearance as an addition to this class of literature.

The article is the text of a brief address made before the recent National Convention for the Extension of the Foreign Commerce of the United States, which was held here. The Speaker was Dr. James Howard Gore of George Washington University, who is eminently well fitted to speak on the subject of foreign commerce by reason of his wide investigations abroad and the fact that he has made deep personal study of the question in foreign fields. Because of his interest in this question of foreign trade he has been decorated by thirteen governments.

Dr. Gore's address is based primarily on the condition of foreign trade. He declares that foreign trade differs from domestic merely in one vital respect—permanency of existing conditions. The manufacturer who creates a market in distant countries for his goods, he says must have an assurance that when he is called upon to meet the demands, the cost of raw materials, labor and freight will not be greatly in excess of what they are at present. In the face of the heavy increase in wages and greater cost in raw materials American manufacturing enterprises in order to realize this condition, have been forced into consolidations, that through economies in production their ends may be attained. This, Dr. Gore shows, is the beginning and the end of the corporation, a name political demagogues have used to scare the masses.

Another dangerous feature of the situation seen by Dr. Gore is the activity of individual states in enactment of legislation aimed at the corporation. In touching on this he says:

"This anti-trust sentiment, the outcome in a large measure of the dissatisfaction that some grow rich while others stay poor, is making itself felt in those states where the legislatures are helping us toward the logical conclusion that every family can support itself by 'taking in washing.'"

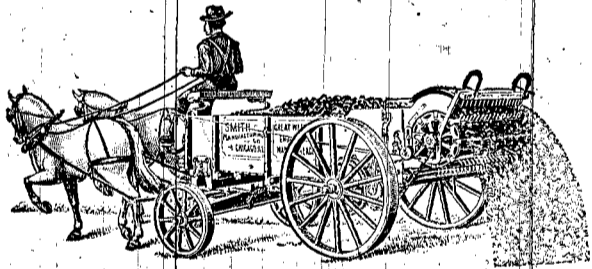

"When the rights of the states were granted to us in our constitution there was no dream of the present ramifications of commerce, which in order to achieve the best results must regard the boundaries of states, as well as of counties, as artificial. When the demands of a county are insufficient to support a factory, the patronage of neighboring counties is solicited and the people at home as well as those nearby profit by the benefits that come from the greater production."

"But if the attempt be made to go beyond a state line which is no more real than the line that delimits the county, the enterprising manufacturer is told that foreign made goods are admitted only by courtesy and may be excluded under the provisions of a state law based on antipathy to trusts, the color of the hair of the manufacturer or the grade of cigars he smokes."

Dr. Gore contends that foreign trade is not growing as rapidly as it might were large manufacturers assured of fair and uniform treatment by the different states. He believes that the federal license plan for corporations would prove a solution for the difficulty, provided the states should consider an enterprise holding such a charter immune from their local restrictions.

That's What a Spreader will do if Used as it Should Be.

The GREAT WESTERN SPREADER

Is Made for the Man Who Wants The Best.

If You Have 125 loads of manure to spread you can increase the value of your crop this year more than enough to pay for a spreader. We have a 64-page book which explains the whole situation.

A Manure spreader will bring you bigger and quicker returns than any other three implements you have on the farm.

The Plan is not a theory, it is an actual fact backed up by 18 years' actual experience.

The Book is free. It is worth $100.00 but won't cost you a cent. If it does not do you any good, it won't do you any harm. It's brimful of valuable information.

A Manure Spreader Must Be made Extra Strong.

- DON'T buy a light spreader.
- DON'T buy a spreader that has a pine pole and pine frame.
- DON'T buy an experiment, a machine that has been on the market only a few years.
- DON'T let any manufacturer experiment at your expense.
- DON'T buy a spreader that has a narrow front axle. If you do you can't top-dress corn successfully.

DON'T buy a spreader with the front axle set ahead of the front end of the body because practically all the load will be carried on the rear axle, making heavy draft.

The Great Western is a great big, heavy machine. The main frame is all oak, oak pole, hickory double-trees.

It Has a big, strong 16-inch malleable iron fifth wheel, double oak bolster, wide front axle; the wheels track.

It Has an endless apron that is always ready to load, no reverse gears, trips springs or contraptions to get out of order. Spreads all kinds of manure.

It Has a galvanized steel hood and end gate Keeps the manure away from the beater when loading. Prevents choking when starting. Acts as wind shield when spreading.

It Has a light draft, because the load is nearly equally balanced on the front and rear axles; brings the team close to the load. Front and rear wheels track. Beater shaft runs in ball and socket bearings.

It Is so simple that a boy can handle it.

Don't let anyone sell you a cheap substitute that he says "is just as good"—Because there is no other spreader, just as good or nearly as good.

WEAK KIDNEYS

MAKE WEAK BODIES

Kidney Diseases Cause Half the Common Aches and Ills of Humanity

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking-down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when the activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ailment. The cures are the proof.

W. A. Tracy, printer, living at 1123 7th street, St. Joseph, Mo., says: "For eight or ten years I suffered at times severely with pain in my back, and although I used doctor's prescriptions and various advertised remedies, I received little relief. I scarcely knew what it was to be without a plaster on my back, and at night, after standing all day at my work, suffering was always worse. As Doan's Kidney Pills were advertised and recommended by people right here at home, I procured a box and obtained such relief that I kept on using the remedy until all the pain and lameness in my back had left me. I soon felt as strong and well as I ever did. I was so surprised with the results obtained that I gave a statement for publication, advising the use of Doan's Kidney Pills by kidney sufferers. During the six years that have elapsed I have had no indication of a return of the trouble, except when a cold settled in my back or I feel slightly tired or lame in the back, and then I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and the trouble is always removed. I am pleased to re-indorse Doan's Kidney Pills.

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

County Clerk.

A young book-keeper who had been but recently married, carefully laid down a piece of bread, the other night, and said to his wife: "I wish you could make such bread as mother used to make." The young wife smiled and in a voice that did not tremble said: "Well John, I wish that you could make the 'dough' that father used to make." A hush as silent as death fell so suddenly that John almost lost his breath, and the bread and dough question hasn't come up for family discussion since.—Ex.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life

(From the Chicago Tribune)

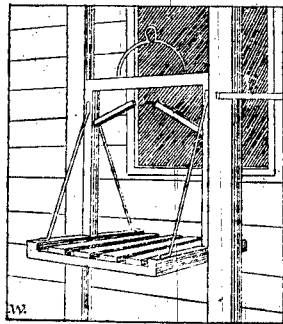

"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter, and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is the germ of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold." Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by Raymond's drug store.

FARM-FIELD AND GARDEN

HORSE ELEVATOR.

An Efficient Device For Lifting Blocks of Ice.

The filling of an icehouse, even the small one on the farm, requires a great amount of heavy lifting when done by hand. A simple and efficient horse elevator is shown in the cut as described by a writer in Rural New Yorker. Two upright posts of the height of the house and about three feet apart are set in front of the doors and securely fastened in place. Each has a groove on the inner side, within which the elevator travels up and down. The rope attached to the frame of the elevator passes over a pulley near the top of the house and thence around another pulley near the ground. A horse is hitched to this, and the device works much in the same way as does a hayfork. The secret of the successful operation of this elevator is in the mechanism of the trips. They are little irons placed in the side frame of the elevator in such a way that they will, automatically, hold it in any place. A trip rope is attached by which the trips may be raised and the elevator allowed to descend when it is desired. It is always free to move upward, but it can never fall unless the trips are sprung by the trip rope. This elevator can be made by any one handy with tools and with a blacksmith to make the trips and a few iron braces necessary.

Growing Cucumbers.

A number of methods of propagation are followed by successful cucumber growers, all of which have some advantages. Three of the more common practices are as follows: To plant the seeds of cucumbers in the soil of the bench where the plants are to grow and mature; to plant the seeds in three inch or four inch pots filled about half full of soil and after the seeds have germinated and the stem of the seedling has elongated to fill the pots well up to the seed leaves with soil, and to plant the seeds in cups similar to those used for harvesting strawberries, except that the cups for this purpose are usually made of pine.

In the first case, where the seeds are planted directly in the soil on the benches cucumbers are usually employed as a crop to follow lettuce, seeds being planted in the lettuce benches before the crop is entirely removed, the heads of lettuce being taken out at proper distances to allow for the correct spacing of the cucumber plants and the seeds of cucumbers planted in the areas so left, says Denver Field and Farm. In the other two cases the rearing of the plants for forcing purposes can be carried on in a small house specially designed for this purpose or in a general propagating house, thus obviating the necessity of heating and maintaining normal conditions in the growing house during the period previous to which the plants begin to run.

Fruit Notes.

In Connecticut we took 3,000 apples of one tree. When we picked that tree in the fall we took off 7,000 apples, or over seven barrels of No. 1's and two barrels of inferior ones. That was the result of thinning, says Professor Gully in American Cultivator. Too tall trees are bad. We have picked eleven barrels of Suttin apples from a tree by standing on the ground. That is better than using ladders.

Don't plant plums or anything else among apple trees as filers. Better plant apple trees more closely and then cut out part later on. They can also be taken up and replanted. The McIntosh or Wealthy will answer as this tree to remove.

Keep your trees in the nursery row till they are ten years old and then plant. Set the nursery row five feet apart and there is no trouble. We do it in Connecticut at the university farm. It is not difficult to transplant, but the trees should be grown at home.

Boxes must soon be used to pack, as barrels are becoming too expensive. Experiment fruit farms are good, for the ordinary farmer will not spend eight or ten years in working out some result.

Farm Brevities.

Be careful of the sheep this winter. They need good sheds.

All the dead wood should be cut out of the orchard.

The overhead carrier puts the manure pile where it's out of the way.

A barn that is covered with frost on the inside is a poorly ventilated barn.

Farming conditions can be improved by better tillage easier than by more land.

Barnyard manure alone can't make a crop, but it will help a lot if put on right.—Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Teachers' examinations will be given the third Friday and Saturday following of each month. A. E. LITTELL, County Superintendent.

It's a pleasure to tell our readers about a Cough Cure like Dr. Shoop's. For years Dr. Shoop has fought against the use of opium, chloroform, and other unsafe ingredients commonly found in Cough Remedies. Dr. Shoop, it seems, has welcome the Pure Food and Drug Law recently enacted, for he has worked along similar lines many years. For nearly 20 years Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure containers have had a warning printed on them against opium and other narcotic poisons. He has thus made it possible for mothers to protect their children by simply insisting on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Sold by Felter's Pharmacy.

Don't miss the fourth number of the Epworth League lecture course Tuesday evening, March 5th. Dr. Horn will give his illustrated lecture "Around the World." A splendid entertainment assured.

Ole Lyngen went to Sioux City, Tuesday to visit his neighbor Steve Petersen, who is a patient in the hospital. Mr. Petersen lately underwent an operation for cancer and is reported recovering nicely.

Jens C. Jensen went to Omaha, Tuesday, and will likely enter the hospital for treatment. He is suffering a stomach disorder together with consumption. Misfortune seems hard after Mr. Jensen, besides poor health himself, his wife and child died during the past four months.

That the farmers can form an organization that will stand the test has been proven by the Carroll Cream Association which has certainly grew and prospered in the 6 months it has been organized. The farmers can congratulate themselves that they have some of the best men at the head of the organization that can be secured to look after their interests.

A very interesting Teachers' Meeting was held at Carroll last Saturday and was largely attended. A duet by Edna and Jennette Jones was much enjoyed by the teachers. A paper on Physiology written by Miss Lela Olmstead, who was unable to be present, was read by Miss Jostie Carter. The 7th and 8th chapters of Putnam's Psychology were very thoroughly reviewed by Miss Jennie Nennerberg, and a most pleasing address delivered by Rev. Carter.

CLUBS AND SOCIETY.
 The Acme Club met with Mrs. Orr Tuesday afternoon. There were ten members present and it proved to be a very interesting meeting. Mrs. Jacobs gave character sketches of the lives of Wendell Phillips, Chas. Sumner, and Wm. Lloyd Garrison. Mrs. Mines briefly outlined the War of the Rebellion; Mrs. Walter Weber had a nicely prepared biography of Lincoln. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Mines.

The Shakespear Club met with Miss Effie Buffington, Tuesday evening. They meet next week with the Misses Stocking and Olmstead at the Ralyea home.

The Monday Club met with Mrs. Eckert at the usual hour Monday afternoon. On account of the illness of the members on the program, the lessons were omitted and the afternoon was pleasantly spent in a conversational way.

Mrs. A. R. Davis was hostess to the Culture Club, Tuesday afternoon. The officers elected were: Pres. Mrs. E. B. Philleo, Vice Pres. Mrs. Buchanan, Sec. Mrs. Culler, and Treas. Mrs. A. R. Davis. The Club have decided to spend some time on the study of Nebraska. The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. R. Lundburg.

The U. D. Ladies received invitations from their husbands last Wednesday morning, notifying them that the "Unworthy Devils would entertain the Dishwashers at the sign of the U. D.," February 22, to which the ladies with powdered and fishes of old Colonial days responded. The Electric letters U and D were at last spied above the doorway of the spacious Mellor home. As the Colonial dames appeared at the door they were gallantly received by Genl. Washington, Hancock and other notable worthies. The rooms were artistically decorated in club colors of yellow and white in a profusion of yellow dafodils and white carnations. Partners were assigned by means of quotations and answers, after which the company was ushered into the dining room. The table was adorned with white carnations and yellow dafodils, the color scheme being in evidence in the individual candle sticks. Place cards were hatchet shaped and the favors were carnations and bonbon boxes decorated with cherries and hatchets. The menu cards also displayed the patriotic spirit, in the familiar picture of Geo. Washington and the cherry tree scene, but the menu itself was served in six courses and will long be remembered by the U. D. members. It was very ably served by the Misses Tucker, Kate and Feather. Following the banquet the guests were given cards and pencils and requested to draw a likeness of Geo. Washington in which all endeavored to excel. The judges decided that Mrs. J. G. Miller possessed the most skill in this line. The remainder of the evening was spent in tripping the "light fantastic" to the music of "Topeka's" harp. Surely Geo. Washington never had a more delightful birthday.

Dr. Gamble is director of the Presbyterian choir, and on Tuesday evening he entertained his singers and their friends at the home of his parents. Each attendant represented some familiar advertisement, which enlivened the evening with considerable fun and gained for Mrs. Morris the prize. All indulged in a delightful hour of music and a fine lot of refreshments were served.

Mrs. J. H. Jeffries, entertained in an elaborate was last evening. The home was prettily decorated, the chief feature of which was cut flowers in rich array of pink carnations with ferns. Cards were the source of entertainment, in which Mrs. E. Cunningham and Mrs. Skeen excelled on a tie for games. On a draw the latter secured the prize, a pretty hand embroidered sofa pillow, while the consolation gift was granted Mrs. R. D. Merrill, of Carroll, in the form of image salt and pepper shakers. The hostess was assisted in serving the refreshments by Mrs. Whalen.

Mrs. Huff was made the beneficiary of a surprise in honor of her 59th birthday by a number of her neighbors, Thursday evening. Their coming also served as a house warming, as she just recently got settled in her new home. Rev. Parker Smith, acted as spokesman and presented her with a beautiful rocker.

Postmaster McNeal was surely swamped with "male" on Tuesday evening. It was a surprise, indeed, all to the credit of his estimable wife, who had so nicely arranged for the occasion. Mac reached the honorary age of 44, Tuesday, and he is not likely to soon forget the fact. About forty men, the representative business life of Wayne, responded to the invitation by their presence. The McNeal home presented a most inviting aspect. Four rooms were arranged with tables, neatly spread and tastefully decorated, while several bunches of McKinley posies scented the air with their sweet fragrance. The men were glad they were there, and the good supper they were privileged to stow away, made them almost forget home. Four courses marked the limit, and then a box of Havanas came around for those who cared, and smoke and talk were in order. It was a rare treat, such an evening; and like John Kate said to the kind hostess, as he left: "If you have any more birthday parties don't leave me out." Mrs. McNeal was assisted in the serving by Mesdames Perry, Skeen and Sherbahn. Mr. McNeal was presented a rocking chair.

The Masonic lodge assisted by the ladies of the Eastern Star observed Washington's birthday in both an entertaining and instructive way on Friday evening at their hall. The Wayne Orchestra provided the best of music during the evening. Besides the ladies quartette, Mrs. Blair and Miss Mae Cunningham rendered vocal selections; while Dr. E. C. Horn and Atty. A. R. Davis made appropriate talks. Mr. Whalen excelled himself in the quality of refreshments provided. The promoters and their invited guests report a splendid time.

On Tuesday night about 60 of the Ben-Hur went out a mile, and a half east of town to surprise Geo. and Lida Wright before they moved farther away. Soon after their arrival Mr. Amos Wright, their father, said he was glad they had come and that he would turn the house over to them and for all to have a good time. It was plain to be seen, by the peals of laughter and merriment, that they took him at his word, for it was long after midnight before home was thought of. The crowd got quiet long enough to partake of refreshments brought along, as there was an abundance to eat and then some. Aside from a few minor accidents which happened in the game "Meditation" (which is not the kind of a game the name implies) everything went off fine and when the "good-nights" were said all declared it was the very best time of their life.

Wayne School Notes
 The pupils of the Ward primary are testing the vocabulary they have and find they can read a new reader through in three days as well as doing their regular reading.
 The pupils of Miss Cunningham's room gave a program last Friday in honor of Washington's birthday.
 Five new pupils were enrolled at the Ward school last week.

The 7th grade of the Ward school has begun the study of Algebra.

The pupils of Miss Mannings room have dramatized "The Three Bears."

The 8th grade have been learning a few sounds as a part of their music.

The pupils of Miss Pense's room gave a program last Friday in honor of Washington's birthday.

Two sets of Schouler's History of the United States, have been purchased for the High School library.

The 2nd and 3rd grades of the Ward school are weaving round raffir mats as their manual work this week.

The children of Mrs. Olmstead's room are to have a quarter holiday this week, having had no tardiness this month.

The story of Aeneas is being read to the pupils of Miss Pense's room by their teacher as a part of the opening exercises each day.

A set of music readers has been purchased for the pupils of the lower grades. The study of music is a fine addition to the course of study.

• OBITUARY
 Carl William Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Lloyd, was born February 6, 1904, died February 26, 1907. On February 14, little Carl set his clothing afire with matches burning the little body so severely that after twelve days suffering the little tired soul found rest.
 The blow seems harsh and unbearable but presently we shall see that it is well. On Wednesday afternoon at the M. E. church, Rev. Dr. Horn spoke words of comfort to the bereaved parents and friends. The little casket being covered with beautiful flowers and the body laid to rest in Greenwood cemetery. The sympathy of all go out to the family in their great sorrow.
 True, the little toys and playthings
 Once that strewed the floor, we know
 Will be treasured to remind us
 Of his presence days ago
 And the little chair at the table,
 Where he loved to sit and eat
 Will be a place, as the house is
 Of his as yet little feet.
 Still we love to think we see him,
 Waiting happy, there above
 Waiting, watching there, for mamma,
 In the Master's arms of love.

If half that has been said is true Gordon and Bennett's latest production is one of unusual beauty. It is generally conceded that the performances of "The Royal Slave" were superior, but there has been provided for "The Holy City" dramatic embellishment and stage accessories of even more remarkable magnificence. The powerful story voiced by one of the largest and most powerful companies traveling is so aided by allegorical and delight is manifested at every mention of the play.
 We are glad to note that a Wayne lawyer, Hon. A. A. Welch, a personal friend of this department, has been appointed by Governor Sheldon district judge to succeed Judge Boyd who resigns to assume his congressional duties. The governor could not have made a better choice. Nature did a great deal for Mr. Welch in fitting him for judicial responsibilities. Besides he has been a thorough student of law and a long and successful practitioner.—Beatrice Express.

Another Business Change.
 A change in C. O. Fisher & Son lumber yard is announced today Mr. C. O. Fisher selling his interests to W. F. Dickerson, of Rising City, Nebr. Harry Fisher still retains half interest in the business in partnership with Mr. Dickerson. The new man is brother-in-law of C. O. Fisher. Invoice is to be made the coming week.
Summons by Publication
 To Anton Jensen, Christ Thompson, James P. Jensen, Jim P. Jensen and H. A. McManus, Defendants.
 You, and each of you, are hereby notified that Frederikka Jensen, plaintiff, has filed her petition and commenced suit against you, impleaded with Wilhelm Larsen and Security Savings Bank, as defendants, in the District Court of Wayne county, Nebraska, the object and prayer of which suit and petition are to wholly exclude the defendants, Christ Thompson, James P. Jensen,

Jim P. Jensen, and H. A. McManus, from any interest in and to the following described real estate, situated in Wayne County, Nebraska, to-wit:—
 The Northeast Quarter of the Northeast Quarter of Section Twelve (12), Township Twenty-six (26), Range (2); that it may be decreed that all interests in said real estate of the defendants, Christ Thompson, Jim P. Jensen and James P. Jensen, has been conveyed by them to the defendant, Anton Jensen; and to determine the interest of the defendant, Anton Jensen in said real estate, and sell his interest therein upon execution levied thereon, issued on a judgment rendered by the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska, at the October 1906 term of said Court, in favor of the plaintiff, Frederikka Jensen, and against said defendant, Anton Jensen, and for such other relief as may be just and equitable.
 You are required to answer said petition on or before the 1st day of April, 1907.

Death From Burns

After more than a week of intense suffering from burns incurred as a result of playing with matches, the three year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Lloyd, died Tuesday. The little fellow was pitifully burned from his knees to his neck and had it not been for the prompt action of the mother, in covering her baby's face on discovering its clothes afire, death would likely have come sooner. Ever since the terrible accident happened his life was despaired of, as it remained unconscious with the skin nearly all blistered off. The funeral was held Wednesday and the remains laid in Greenwood cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd have the heartfelt sympathy of the community in their sorrow.

Sow Good Seed

In order to come quickly in touch with the many country districts and small towns where Sunday-schools have not yet been started, I am sending out this notice and asking people to write me of any place untouched by this great and important work for the children and young people. It is a good time now to plan for the country Sunday-school, and while you are planning let me help you. Our society has been doing this kind of work for 83 years and is in harmony with and helps the churches. Bibles at cost and free to the poor. Write today to E. B. Young, Missionary American Sunday-School Union, Wayne, Nebr.

Dislocated His Shoulder

Dr. Williams reports a painful accident as happening to Leon Lush on Friday night. While working in the hay mow of the barn he inadvertently fell through the opening in the floor and coming down almost head foremost he sustained a dislocated shoulder. He is getting on nicely, however, at present.

The King Solomon Tunnel and Development Company held their annual meeting in Chicago last month and re-elected F. C. Dinsmore president; Sam H. Alexander secretary and W. W. Theobald treasurer.

The financial condition of the company is first-class. They have $20,000.00 in cash and good securities in the treasury and steady work is assured in driving the tunnel ahead. The company decided to put in a large boiler and air-compressor and otherwise increase the efficiency of the plant. The tunnel is in over 1300 feet with a greatly improved look of the rock and a greater flow of the water. The rock is softer and more highly stained with iron, every indication of a near approach to another vein. Heretofore the rock has been very hard and has acted as a hard shell to be penetrated before the mineral zone was reached, and it was probable on this account it has taken longer to get to the point desired than it would otherwise have taken.

The company has shown itself to be a stayer and has been managed in a business way. The president has been on the ground all the time and looks after the business as he did when in business in Wisconsin when he achieved success and the business methods in his private affairs are applied to the management of the tunnel. It is our firm belief that the tunnel proposition will be a complete success for it is running towards a well known mineral zone and it is the heart of the mining belt of the county and the company deserves success as well as credit for the way it has kept the work progressing. To abandon the work would lose all and to double the capital, if necessary, will save the investment already made and assure success. The company deserves success. Sheridan and Dawes Counties, Neb.

Their Varied Resources, Crops, Soil, Climate, Rainfall, and Prospects

Rapid Rise in Land Values

Climate

The climate of Sheridan and Dawes counties is practically the same as of central Nebraska and Iowa except that the altitude is higher, and in the winter season the atmosphere is dryer and does not have that chilling effect that is experienced in a lower altitude.

In the summer season the days are warm and sunshiny and the nights cool and refreshing, so cool in fact that one requires a little covering to sleep comfortably. Here you will find no hot, "muggy" nights, no sultry days, but the air is fresh and bracing both day and night, and one coming from the east and experiencing a climate of this kind is at once invigorated and delighted.

Rheumatism, neuralgia and all forms of lung trouble are scarcely known in this locality, and in fact many people coming here with ailments of this kind, have either been cured permanently or been very much benefited.

Water

There is not a drop of poor water in Sheridan or Dawes counties. The most of the water is found in the gravel at an average depth of 4 feet and it is soft and pure and inexhaustible. Wind mills run day and night, and tanks overflow, and there seems no end to the supply. The government analysis of the water in Long Pine creek shows it to be 98 per cent pure, and is said to be the purest stream of flowing water in the United States.

There are many spring creeks flowing through these counties and they are pure and cold. Trout in abundance thrive in these creeks and in the Pine Ridge, where most of the creeks abound, much valuable pine timber can be had.

Crops

The crops grown throughout Sheridan and Dawes counties are wheat, oats, corn, rye, barley, speltz and potatoes. Wheat, both spring and winter, is a never failing crop and yields from 18 to 35 and as high as 40 bushels per acre, depending upon the care that is given to the preparation of the soil, seed, etc. Oats is a sure winner and yields an average of 30 bushels per acre and it is not uncommon for Sheridan county oats to weigh as high as 40 pounds to the bushel. While Sheridan and Dawes counties are not rated as a corn country, yet if care is given to the cultivation of this crop it is not an unusual thing to harvest 20 bushels per acre, and the corn is always matured and is much sounder than in eastern Nebraska and Iowa. All kinds of vegetables and garden truck do exceptionally well in these counties, and while there is no fruit grown to any extent, yet enough is grown to supply home demand, except apples, the country being practically new, many of the orchards are not yet in bearing.

Grasses

All kinds of tame grasses do well in these counties, especially is this true of alfalfa and timothy. Three crops of alfalfa is the rule for each season, but in some cases four have been taken, and the yield is from four to five tons per acre and it is worth $8.00 per ton on track the year round. Bromus grass is another variety that is always a sure crop although it is grown more for pasture than for hay.

The wild grasses are the buffalo grass or grama, and the wheat grass, the wild hay being made from the latter variety, which yields well and is one of the best wild grasses grown, having more fattening qualities than timothy.

Soil

The soil of Sheridan and Dawes counties is a dark gray loam from two to four feet deep, underlain with clay and being very porous, it readily takes up the moisture and as readily gives it up during the growing season.

This soil is absolutely free from sand, gravel, gumbo or hardpan, but is a decomposed limestone soil that is recognized by experts as being the most productive kind of soil in existence, and being so, it will stand a longer period of drought than any other kind of soil as it has a wonderful affinity for moisture. This is evidenced by the fact that the oldest settler in these counties has yet to see the first field of corn "fire" or the leaves curl during the driest period.

Stock

Ask any commission firm of South Omaha or Sioux City where they get the best grass cattle and sheep from and they will invariably say "Northwestern Nebraska." The Iowa and eastern Nebraska feeder has learned to buy his cattle and sheep from this locality for the reason that they are a better grade and are in better condition for the feed yards than those of any other locality; the reason is obvious, simply better grass pasture, purer water and healthier climate all of which is necessary for the proper growth of stock.

Rainfall

In order to afford a comparison of rainfall between the counties of the potato belt and of eastern Nebraska the following statistics prepared by the U. S. Weather Bureau are given showing the annual precipitation of Sheridan and Dodge counties for the past ten years. The latter county is located in the central part of eastern Nebraska and enjoys as great a rainfall as any county in the state.

Year	Sheridan 27.67 inches	Dodge 27.51 inches
1885	22.03	27.00
1886	21.58	21.67
1887	20.75	20.21
1888	20.74	20.03
1889	27.99	32.45
1890	26.12	27.31
1891	21.06	32.77
1892	25.11	32.42
1893	23.36	32.11
1894	25.11	—
1895	27.14	—

Railroads, Finances, Etc.

Sheridan county has two trunk lines of railroads, the B. & M. main line to Billings through the southern part, and the C. & N. W. main line to the Black Hills through the north central part.

Three thriving towns are located on the C. & N. W., Gordon, Rushville and Hay Springs, and each town is doing an immense business along all lines.

Sheridan county is free from indebtedness, having recently built a new $25,000 court house and paid for same in one year out of the treasury, and now has something like $20,000 in the treasury to the credit of the general fund. The per capita deposits in the hands of Sheridan county are greater than in any other county in the state. The tax on an average quarter of improved land will not average over $0.50 per year.

Dawes county is equally as well off financially as Sheridan and has both of the main lines of railroad mentioned above and in addition has the Nebraska and Wyoming branch of the C. & N. W. running from Chadron to Lander Wyo. These lines offer exceptional transportation facilities, not only in eastern connections but with mining districts of the west and farmers find a much better market for products of the farms in the western markets than the eastern, and being near the immense coal fields of Colorado and the lumber districts of the Black Hills and Wyoming, these commodities are much cheaper than through eastern Nebraska and Iowa.

Here is a bit of history that is worthy of consideration. See if it points a moral to you:

Endorsements

Rushville, Neb., Feb. 9, 1907.
Gentlemen—Answering your inquiry of today would say in the spring of 1906 I purchased of one of the Rushville elevators even ten bushels of White Fir wheat, sowing the same on ten and one-fourth acre of ground from which we threshed an even 30 bushels of wheat, which was of the very finest quality. Such wheat is now worth sixty cents in the elevator at Rushville, and is ready sale for seed at seventy-five cents per bushel.
Yours truly,
J. C. WOODS.

State of Nebraska, Sheridan County—ss.

Daniel Myers, being first duly sworn, deposes and says, "That I came to this county in 1888, and that I have farmed ever since that time, and that my potatoes in 1905 made me about $20, net, to the acre, and my wheat about $25, net, to the acre, and my potatoes in 1906 made me $25, net, to the acre, and my wheat went 30 bushels to the acre, and in 1905 I had 30 acres of alfalfa that made me about 30 tons, and in 1906 it made me 25 tons, besides I left 4 acres for seed and it made 6 1/2 bushels of seed, worth about $8 per bushel."

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 5th day of February, 1907.

DANIEL MEYERS.
Notary Public.

State of Nebraska, Sheridan County—ss.

John P. Limbach, being first duly sworn according to law, deposes and says as follows: "That I came to Sheridan county in 1885, and filed on a homestead. I arrived here with a span of horses. I have farmed ever since I have been here and have never failed to make a living, and have accumulated enough to buy 800 acres of land, making with my original homestead, which I am still living on, 950 acres of land. I have 50 head of cattle and 35 horses. In 1905 3,700 bushels of grain, my wheat going 25 bushels to the acre. In 1906 I raised 25,500 bushels (my acreage being less), my wheat going 28, and my whole crop making about $12 per acre, at a cost of not over $50 for hired help. I have also improved my place, having a good 10-room house, two stories, with modern improvements, such as bath, etc., besides good barns, wells and windmills."

Also, I have no desire to sell my place. Am going to put out $75 worth of fruit trees next spring, and farm over 225 acres. In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 4th day of February, 1907.

JOHN P. LIMBACH.

State of Nebraska, Sheridan County—ss.

Vaclav Dremisa, being first duly sworn according to law, deposes and says: "That I came to Sheridan county, Nebraska, in the spring of 1885, and filed on a homestead on which I am still living. At that time all I had was $200. I commenced to farm that spring and have continued to farm ever since, and have never failed to raise enough to thresh each year. In 1901 I raised 2,000 bushels of grain, my wheat going 20 bushels to the acre. In 1905, I raised 3,200 bushels of grain, my wheat going 25 bushels to the acre. In 1906, I raised 4,000 bushels of grain, my wheat going 25 bushels to the acre. I own at present 1,250 acres of land, 605 head of cattle and 1 head of horses, and all the machinery necessary to run my place. Also during this time I have built a good frame house, good large barn and other improvements, and have received no outside help of any kind, making every cent I have in this country, also I am entirely out of debt."

My address is Hay Springs, Neb., and would be glad to answer any communications addressed to me in the Bohemian language.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 4th day of February, 1907.

VACLAV DREMISA.
Notary Public.

State of Nebraska, Sheridan County—ss.

Chas. Anderson, being first duly sworn according to law, deposes and says: "That I came to Dawes county Nebraska, in the spring of 1885. At that time I was not worth more than $200. That I continued to live there until the fall of 1906, when I moved one mile south of Hay Springs, Nebraska, that I have farmed and raised cattle ever since I have been here. At the present time I am the owner of 2720 acres in Dawes county and 450 acres in Sheridan county, Nebraska; also I have 200 head of cattle and 35 head of horses, everything being free from mortgage. Also, I have received no outside help since coming here, everything I have made I made here in Dawes and Sheridan counties."

My address is Hay Springs, Nebraska, and would be glad to answer any letters addressed to me in the Swedish language.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand this 5th day of February, 1907.

A Typical Sheridan County Wheat Field

The above cut represents a harvest scene in Sheridan county. This tract of 160 acres was sold to an eastern Nebraska man in February, 1906 for $15 per acre, one-half down and balance on or before five years, at 6 per cent. He said he wanted "long time," so he could be sure to pay for it. He sowed 80 acres of Scotch Fife wheat, from which he threshed 33 bushels and 14 pounds to the acre, and same was marketed at 61 cents per bushel. He planted 20 acres of potatoes and dug 187 1/2 bushels to the acre, and soil same for 50 cents per bushel. He pastured 13 milk cows, 11 steers, 9 heifers and 5 horses and colts and put up enough hay on the balance of the farm to do him through the winter. He has recently paid off the mortgage on his farm and has sent in an offer of $16.00 per acre on a "raw" quarter adjoining his, $500.00 cash and the balance in three equal payments, at 6 per cent, but he was too late. A contract had just been closed on this same land to another party for $16.50 per acre, all cash.

This is by no means an exceptional case. Many similar instances could be cited, but we think this one will suffice. All conditions in Sheridan county are of the most prosperous nature. All towns, school districts and the county are free from indebtedness. In April, 1905, when money was scarcest, bank deposits in the banks at Rushville, Hay Springs and Gordon, amounted to per capita of $77.84. No failure of any individual has occurred since 1895, and practically every farmer is a landowner. Land is for sale at prices that will allow the man of comparative small means to become the possessor of land. A very advantageous condition of the soil is the scarcity of weeds. The price of land has doubled within the last four years, and present conditions indicate that this advance is certain to continue.

No Kick on Nebraska

Washington Post: The statement was published recently that "Uncle Joe" Cannon had sold a farm in Nebraska for a very snug sum, something around $25,000, and that he also owned several farms in that state. Some friends inquired of the speaker yesterday if the statement was correct. He said it was.

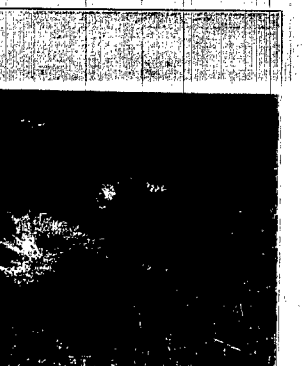

I made a trip to Nebraska several years ago with my friend Burket. He said, "and having faith in the future of Nebraska, I made a small investment and have added to it occasionally since. However at that time the most desirable land was thought to be what is known as bottom land. The land on the highlands was considered of little value, on account of the long droughts that occurred every summer. But, strange to relate, I do not think there has been a drought in Nebraska since I made my investment. In fact it has rained so continuously that most of my farms have been under water for a large part of the time."

I suppose I can take to myself the credit of having "broken the drought in Nebraska." "Uncle Joe" added, with a smile, "and what is perhaps equally gratifying, I have not lost any money in the transaction. The farms I have sold were disposed of at a fair profit." He declared that he had no kick coming against the great state of Nebraska.

The Mortgage Lifters

This cut represents the greatest money making industry in the west today. It was taken on one of our sheep ranches, and while but a small portion of the land was within the perspective of the camera, yet it indicates, in a measure, what Sheridan county ranches produce. A man with a section of this land and a band of a thousand sheep is as independent as Rockefeller himself, and much more contented. It beats "corn and hogs," and is a never failing source of revenue.

From this picture one can get an accurate idea of the lay of the land. It is, for the most part, gently rolling, although much of it is practically level.

We can point you to a number of men in Sheridan and Dawes counties who have become independently wealthy in the sheep industry in the last few years, and what has been done can be done again. If only one will apply himself to the sheep business with the same care he would in trying to pull through a bunch of hogs and save them from the ravages of cholera, etc.

There is no place in the United States today where sheep are less liable to disease than in western Nebraska and eastern Colorado, and especially is this true of northwestern Nebraska, where the climate is perfect, water pure and the land free from wild oats and other objectionable growths that are so detrimental to sheep.

Good grazing land for sheep is becoming to be recognized as valuable property, and he who anticipates this fact and secures a section or so of this land has taken a long stride in advance of his less fortunate neighbor and placed himself beyond the pale of want.

Educational Facilities in Western Nebraska

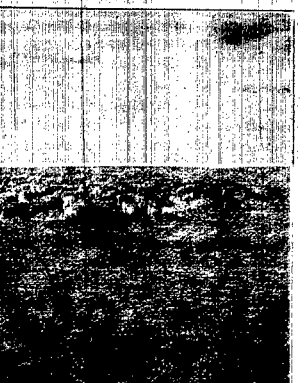

The public school facilities in western Nebraska are good. Regarding the same State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. L. McBrien says: "The educational advantages of western and northwestern Nebraska are a happy surprise to those who come from eastern states and even those from the eastern half of our own state. Western Nebraska is no longer a wild, ignorant, grazing country. There are excellent free school privileges. First class four-year high schools are maintained at Chadron, Rushville, Gordon and other places. In each school the instructors are men and women of scholarship, experience and integrity—men and women well known and approved educational opinion. They are among the ablest school men and school women of the state. County superintendents testify to the better work accomplished by these teachers in the respective schools of these western counties as a result of this professional training. The excellent service rendered the state by the principals and instructors make a record full of credit and honor. The educational outlook for the future in the western and northwestern counties of Nebraska is indeed very bright."

General Information

Another feature which is strongly in favor of Sheridan and Dawes counties over most new countries is the fact that the land is being sold to actual home-builders and not in large bodies to purely speculative people. There is no way to retard the growth of a new country so much as to have it held in large tracts by parties who have bought it purely upon a speculative basis and he is wise who invests his money in a community of actual home-builders where land values are steadily advancing by reason thereof.

Sheridan and Dawes counties have all the modern conveniences of older communities, telephones run hither and thither over the country, and rural free mail deliveries bring the daily mail to your door, in fact one hardly realizes but what he is living in an old settled eastern community.

The Guaranty, Title and Trust Company wishes to announce that it has for sale scattered throughout Sheridan and Dawes counties, something like thirty-five thousand acres of farm lands, mostly in quarter-section tracts, some in half-sections, and a few in section bodies which belong to or are controlled by this company, and these lands are priced in the market at the prevailing prices.

These tracts are all in settled communities and are all conveniently close to the main lines of transportation, and are well improved, and are well located for the purpose of investment and for the purpose of home building.

These lands are now being exploited by curbstone wild-jammers. Another feature which will at once appeal to the conservative investor is the fact that this country has never had a "boom" but its growth has been steady and gradual and land values are as fixed and stable as the value of a gold dollar, and its gradual and ever increasing growth in population is an absolute guarantee of increasing value of the lands.

It will be the purpose of the Guaranty, Title and Trust Co. to run semi-monthly excursions to Sheridan and Dawes counties during the spring, summer and fall of 1907, and we invite all those who have a desire to better their condition to join us on some one of these excursions. You will be treated gentlemanly and courteously and we can assure you that there will be no "wind-jammers" nor "hot air puffers" connected with this company.

We have automobiles with which to show you around the country, and while we will offer you the benefit of our judgment as to the best values, yet you will be left free to make your own selections.

Is it your purpose to buy land somewhere this season? If so, where?

If you are looking for adobe or gumbo soil, a variety that water won't soak into any more than it will a sack of flour, a country where you will have to have an artesian well that will not cost you less than $3,000, where you will have to fence your place "jack-rabbit tight" to save what little you do raise, where your nearest neighbor is probably five miles away and like as not a "Greaser" at that, you might investigate the famous "Big Red Apple" country of the southwest. Or, if you are looking for a country where you can go with a muffer around your neck and a pitchfork in your hand for nine months in the year, where the trains are blockaded for weeks at a stretch and people die from cold and starvation while their friends at home are powerless to render aid, then go northwest, but go northwest in the summer and southwest in the winter.

Don't reverse this order, or you will never buy anything.

Why not investigate northwestern Nebraska? Why not stay in your own latitude where there are no extremes of heat or cold? We will show you Sheridan and Dawes counties any month of the year and you will contract neither "greasers" nor "chill-bills."

You need have no fears of a blockade for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad runs trains 365 days and nights of each year and a blockade is unknown of on that system.

If you are interested in obtaining a home for making an investment, and desire to know any thing further about this country, take the matter up with some of our local representatives nearest to you, or write direct to the home office, and you will be supplied with all the information possible. You will find each of our local correspondents gentlemen in every sense of the word, and you will receive courteous treatment at their hands. Our local offices are located as follows:

A. C. Demary, Le Mars, Iowa.
J. H. Barker, De Soto, Iowa.
Eugene Sullivan, Panama, Iowa.
Jacob Slock, Avoca, Iowa.
Frederic & Brecher, Baltic Creek, Nebraska.

Chas. A. Smith, Tilden, Nebraska.
F. A. Courtman, Omaha, Nebraska.
Johnson & Johnson, St. Paul, Neb.
Information regarding rates, dates of excursions, etc., will be furnished by any of the above gentlemen or the agent in your community.

The Service Pension Bill

There are probably several hundred soldiers of the civil war and the war with Mexico in the state of Nebraska who are directly affected by the service pension bill recently passed by congress and approved by President Roosevelt. For their benefit the text of the measure is given below.

"That any person who served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late civil war or sixty days in the war with Mexico, and who has been honorably discharged therefrom, and who has reached the age of sixty-two years or over, shall, up to making proofs of such facts according to such rules and regulations as the secretary of the interior may provide, be placed upon the pension roll, and be entitled to receive a pension as follows: To each such person who has reached the age of sixty-two years, two hundred per month, or seven years, fifteen dollars per month; seven years or over, twenty dollars per month; and such pension shall commence from the date of the filing of the application, in the bureau of pensions after the passage and approval of this act. Provided that pensioners who are sixty-two years of age or over, and who are now receiving pensions under existing laws, or whose claims are pending in the bureau of pensions, may, by application to the commissioner of pensions in such form as he may prescribe, receive the benefits of this act, and nothing herein contained shall prevent any pensioner or person entitled to a pension from prosecuting his claim and receiving a pension under any other general or special act. Provided, that no person shall receive a pension under any other law at the same time or for the same period that he is receiving a pension under the provisions of this act. Provided further, that no person who is now receiving or who shall hereafter receive a greater pension under any other general or special law than he would be entitled to receive under the provisions herein shall be pensionable under this act."

"Section 2. That rank in service shall not be considered in applications filed hereunder.

"Section 3. That no pension attorney, claim agent or other person shall be entitled to receive any compensation for services rendered in presenting any claim to the bureau of pensions or securing any pension under this act."

"Section 4. That any person who is now receiving or who shall hereafter receive a greater pension under any other general or special law than he would be entitled to receive under the provisions herein shall be pensionable under this act."

"Section 5. That rank in service shall not be considered in applications filed hereunder.

"Section 6. That no pension attorney, claim agent or other person shall be entitled to receive any compensation for services rendered in presenting any claim to the bureau of pensions or securing any pension under this act."

THERE would seem to be no good reason why the state treasurer should not be authorized, by amendment legislation, also to buy school district and municipal bonds, when such bonds do not increase the bonded indebtedness of such school districts beyond a safe limit. It would keep much money at home, and would also prevent the great financial interest from holding monopolies in certain lines, or rather would check the tendency thereto. The limits of bonded indebtedness, however, should be kept absolutely safe—Grand Island Independent.

Potato Growing in Northwestern Nebraska

Quality and Quantity of the Crop is Attracting Attention of Dealers and Consumers all Over the Country

BY G. W. HERVEY

From the Twentieth Century Farmer of October 31, 1906—Printed by Permission.

Northwestern Nebraska

One of the most astonishing special features of production to be found in any one district of country is the recently developed potato growing industry in northwestern Nebraska, which is rapidly acquiring a reputation for quality that is attracting the attention of potato dealers and potato eaters from all over the country. Not alone has the superior quality of this product found favor among dealers and consumers, but the tendency to increase production over this district has made it an object with the commercial trade to look upon this locality as a supply point that can be relied upon.

This section of the state, which is commonly known as the potato country of northwestern Nebraska, comprises an area of approximately three and one-half million acres, the greater portion of which may be classed as lands of high producing quality. These lands are mainly in the counties of Sheridan, Dawes, Box Butte and Sioux and extend from a point about ten miles east of Gordon, in Sheridan county, in a westerly direction for about 110 miles in Nebraska. In width they are from thirty to seventy miles, widening gradually as they extend in a south-westerly course from their eastern border in Sheridan county.

Buffalo Grass Lands

This district has erroneously been termed the sand hills country, and the potatoes produced on it the sand hills potatoes of northwestern Nebraska. The lands mainly comprised in the area described are hard soil lands, and in their native condition are what is known as buffalo grass lands. They will bear the designation of dark, sandy loam soil, though much of it is almost free from sand and quite fine and ashy in texture. In color, a dark brown would be more expressive than black, sandy loam, a term so common and long in use in describing Nebraska's rich corn lands.

The country is comparatively level, at least there is not much of it that would be called broken or hilly. It is admirably adapted to farming and agricultural uses and readily and cheaply turned to cultivation. The special adaptability of these lands to the production of potatoes is strongly argued by many of the oldest and most intelligent citizens, but without other special evidence than that the potato crop has been a success, almost universally from the first settlement of the country and when all other crops failed. The quality of the potato produced has been, and is today, an argument set up in defense of the special adaptability theory that is hard to refute. The cooking quality of the potatoes produced in this potato growing district has endorsements from home and abroad that are uncompromising as to superiority of product over those produced in any other locality. The potatoes are also on evidence in piles, in wagonloads, in ricks, in carloads, and even trainloads, to testify to their clean, smooth, healthy appearance, as well as table quality.

The potato growing industry that has been steadily developing for the last dozen years throughout this district sounds big to those not accustomed to hearing potatoes spoken of by the hundreds of carloads. Yet the conditions of production over these lands, devoted to potato culture, warrant such expressions. At the one shipping point—Gordon, Neb., there will be more than 300 carloads of potatoes shipped out with the crop of 1906. For the last three years it has required not less than 300 cars per season to move the potato crop from this one point. Proportionate heavy shipments are sent out from Rushville, Hay Springs, Chadron, Crawford, Harrison and other stations along the line of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. There is not a flag station or siding so obscure along this line of railroad within the potato belt where a car can be switched but what potatoes by the carloads are being shipped. It is conservatively estimated that these shipments will aggregate 1,500 carloads per year, and yet the country has scarcely been touched in the matter of potato cultivation. The acreage devoted to growing potatoes is but a mere fraction of the area in farms and designated as improved lands.

Lands are Being Improved

This district of country, except in the extreme western portion, was homestead lands, filed on and proved up years ago, the owners becoming dissatisfied and discouraged with the agricultural prospects during the intervening period from 1887 to 1895, in which crop failures and hard times prevailed, driving out the greater portion of the settlers, who never returned. These deserted lands became the property of loan companies, land speculators and real estate traders, until during recent years of crop prosperity, when this entire district changed from its seasons of short moisture supply to that of abundant rainfall. As a result of these changed conditions, under which there has been produced large yields of all farm crops, these lands have gradually been falling into the hands of a very desirable class of homeseekers and farmers who are cultivating and improving them into beautiful farm homes.

The growing of potatoes in this section of the state holds the same relative importance to the farmer in farm industry as does the growing of corn in the eastern part of the state to the farmer of that locality. It is the crop best adapted to the agricultural conditions and consequently the best paying crop to raise.

The growing of potatoes as a business or farm industry is carried on much differently than with the farmer who raises his little patch of potatoes for home use. The cultivation of potatoes as a field crop demands special machinery and appliances for rapidly and economically carrying on the work and the labor of handling them. This is as truly so as that the grain farmer must have the assistance of the machinery peculiarly suited and adapted to the planting, cultivation, harvesting and preparation of his crop for the market.

Machines and Implements Used

The potato growers of the northwest Nebraska potato district are fully and properly equipped for the prosecution of this industry. The machines and implements found on the potato farm, independent of the usual soil tilling machinery—plows, harrows, discs, etc.—are as follows: The seed potato cutter, a machine that is operated by hand and cuts a potato into eight equal sections or parts ready for the planter, is esteemed an indispensable device. This machine costs $10 and is said to have a working capacity whereby one person can in a single evening, after his other work is done, prepare sufficient seed to keep a planter in operation for a full day.

The planter is a more costly implement, is arranged to plant at various depths and spaces in rows, at the discretion of the operator. The machine costs $65.

The plan of cultivation most generally in use is to harrow the field twice, once just before the plants are out of the ground and once after they are a few inches high. This destroys all weed growth that may have started and serves to keep the surface of the ground broken and in a condition to retain the moisture. These harrowings are followed by the cultivator set for shallow cultivation. The aim is to keep the ground at all times mellow and free from crusting. Frequent and thorough cultivation, as is the case in all other cultivated crops in all farming districts, governs in the yield. The best farmers produce the largest yields.

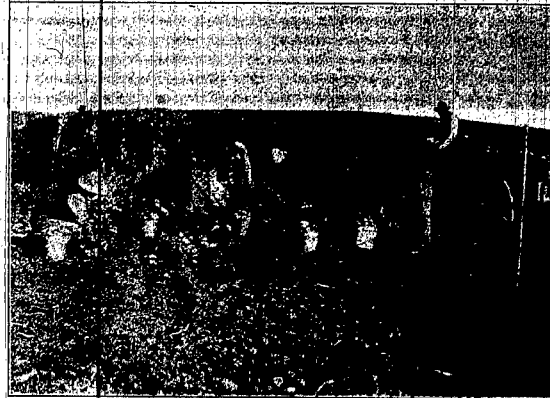

The Potato Digger

The potato digger is the machine of greatest value in the potato growing country. This is a wheeled machine, on which the driver rides, and with his four-horse team attached, straddles the potato row, lets the digger into the ground, which lifts the potatoes, dirt and all, onto a slatted endless chain carrier or elevator. This elevator carries the potatoes back to another similar carrier that drops the potatoes at the rear of the machine, on top of the ground, free and clear from all dirt, ready to be picked up and loaded into wagons and hauled to market or deposited in pits or ricks, where they may be temporarily covered with hay and dirt to protect them from frost or freezing. These machines have a working capacity equal to the teams and drivers that operate them, which is usually from seven to ten acres per day. The present cost of the machine is $100.

The harvesting of the crop is the critical period and demands activity, judgment and business management. The potato must be matured or ripe before dug in order to be marketable. The period during which the potato can be safely risked in the ground, after it is ripe, is only a few weeks at most and everything must be arranged for this rush season or heavy loss is the probable result. The usual plan is to secure a force of help sufficient to form what is termed a potato harvesting outfit. This usually consists of one man and four horses to operate the digger, two teams with wagons to haul the potatoes from the field or to pits or ricks and five to six persons to pick up the potatoes after the digger.

Indians as Potato Pickers

This work is mainly performed by Indians, who come from the Pine Ridge reservation, which borders Sheridan county on the north. These people come with tents and teams, and in little bands of a dozen or more, they locate along the public highways within the potato growing districts, and hire out to pick up potatoes at $1.50 per day and board themselves. They make good help, and at this kind of work are not excelled. They move about from one farm to another in a neighborhood until the potato season is over, when they return to the reservation. Under the present scarcity of farm sagacity of the grower, but nothing is so damaging and detrimental to the trade character of a load of potatoes as to contain a lot of little runts and gnarly dwarfs that are good for nothing but pig feed. The sorter in its compromising attitude stands between the buyer and the seller and moves all potatoes that are objectionable in size. It is constructed very much upon the principle of the grain separator or old-fashioned windmill, and resembles it in its make and style, except that it is less complicated in its manner of doing the work of screening.

The Sorter Determines Prices

At the various shipping points the buyers have their sorters, which they set in the card doorway and in the receiving of unsorted potatoes they are forked from the wagonbox into the hopper of the sorter; this carries them down and over the screen, which is made of heavy wire, with one and one-half inch square mesh, through which the small potatoes pass, and the larger ones are carried over the screen to be taken charge of in a second division. The seller gets the screenings, and under present conditions of demand for this class of potatoes, must find a market at home in his pig lot. This, however, will soon be remedied, as a company for the manufacture of the refuse potatoes into denatured alcohol has been organized, and is only awaiting a permit to be put into operation at Rushville. The potato sorter costs $35.

Another very important implement, and one that seems to be in use everywhere that potatoes are handled in small or large quantities, is the potato fork. These are made very wide, with many tines, and capable of handling potatoes without injury and free from dirt.

Varieties of Potatoes

The varieties of potatoes in most general favor are the Early and Late Ohio, Rurals, Mammoth Pearls, Rose Seedling and Green Mountain. The tendency to experiment with various breeds of potatoes has had its good results, in convincing most growers that it is cheaper to let the other fellow do the experimenting and in the meantime stick close to business producing, until he has made a discovery worth adopting. It is readily appreciated how "too many cooks may spoil the broth," but quite a slow process for a community of potato growers to understand how too many varieties of potatoes, especially when mixed, will spoil the price and trade in potatoes.

The usual plan of marketing is to dealers and traders from the east and south, who commence coming into the shipping points each season as soon as the harvesting opens, and remain as long as shipping can be safely conducted. When prices are good, as is the case at the present time, the greater portion of the crop is disposed of for immediate shipment. The hold-over stock remains in the hands of the growers and local dealers, who store in pits and cellars and commence shipping again as early in the spring as the weather will warrant without danger of freezing.

The building of large potato cellars and caves on the farms where the potatoes are grown is becoming a common practice with the enterprising potato farmer, who desires to put himself in a position to be independent of all force sale conditions that may arise during the early part of the marketing season. The storing in pits has also been successful, depending, of course, upon the knowledge and skill in building and covering to properly protect the potatoes.

Profit in Holding the Crop

The present prospect for profit in holding the crop over has never been more encouraging at this season of the year. Prices opened, in this district, at the beginning of the harvest at 30 cents and advanced to 33 cents before half the crop was out of the ground. The average price paid for potatoes for the last ten years at Gordon is said to be 50 cents. This is quite encouraging for the present crop. In the face of the shortage in so many districts now reported, there can scarcely be a doubt of a 50-cent price being realized for the bulk of the 1906 product.

There is great activity just now among dealers in getting shipments out. The scarcity of cars is the feature of greatest embarrassment. Freight rates are not so much a matter of complaint as in former years. The rate to Omaha from Gordon is 20 cents per hundred on carload lots; to Kansas City, 25 cents. The Chicago rates are considered prohibitive and no mention of that market is ever made by growers or dealers. Kansas City has a number of buyers in the field, likewise Lincoln and other Nebraska towns in the southern half of the state, where the potato crop has proven a partial failure. The mining districts to the west and north also take a large share of the crop produced.

The yield per acre is one of the most important questions in the mind of the inquirer, in seeking information as to the value of any crop industry. This varies greatly, owing to the numerous conditions that influence the yield. In the potato yields of northwestern Nebraska there is no exception. The yield per acre runs all the way from 100 to 300 bushels, depending mainly upon seed and cultivation. The good farmer, who is willing to give his land plenty of work, from the plowing of the soil to the final cultivation, will universally be in advance of his more careless neighbor in amount of crop obtained. It is safe to say that 150 to 200 bushels per acre is one of the easy possibilities with the average potato grower.

It is estimated by conservative persons, who have been engaged regularly for years in growing potatoes in this district, that the cost of the crop where the yield runs from 100 to 150 bushels per acre, is about 10 cents per bushel, and that the cost decreases with the increased production. This cost includes all expense from the beginning of the work to the delivery of the potatoes to the car for shipment. It may readily be estimated that under present conditions there would be a net profit in the potato business of $25 to $45 per acre on lands that can be bought now, unimproved, at from $8 to $12 per acre. Thus, at 150 bushels per acre, sold at 33 cents per bushel, there would be a gross income of $49.50 per acre; or a net income of $34.50 per acre, when the 10 cents per bushel cost of the crop is deducted. The 200-bushel per acre yield would at the present price leave a net income of $46 per acre. Thus, it is readily seen, the opportunities that are offered in this section of the country to the man of small means, with a disposition and will to work, makes it possible for him to earn a farm and home for himself.

Little Disease or Insect Pests

There has been no serious embarrassment of disease or insect pest to interfere with the potato growing industry in this district. There have been some slight evidences of scab, but not sufficient to cause any special damage, and since this is a disease that is within the control of the grower, no special alarm has been entertained as to its results. The crop rotation system adopted by growers generally has had the effect of killing out the disease where it did exist. Potatoes are not grown in the same ground two years in succession, these precautionary measures having proven effective. Potato bugs are discounted entirely as not belonging to this section of the country.

The importance of organization among the growers to influence in matters of uniformity in growing the crops, methods of cultivation best adapted to successful production, system and co-operation in marketing, etc., are matters that will sooner or later find favor among the more intelligent operators of this industry. Already the subject of seed selection, sorting of crops and preparing for market is being discussed by some of the progressive growers as of more importance than hunting up a superior quality of potato.

It is quite evident that the northwestern potato is a dryer, better flavored potato than the product of any irrigated district. Its fine cooking qualities are the basis of defense against all competitors and have won out on all contests.

The possibilities for extension of the potato growing industry in this district has no limits so great and unlimited as the area whose acres have never known the magic touch of the plowshare nor the transforming influence of the hand of the tiller.

While an especially well adapted condition of soil, and climate seems to exist in this locality for the production of potatoes, there are conditions of general agriculture and crop industry that merit the attention of those who are looking for cheap lands, either for investment or farm homes. While the potato growing district described in this article borders on the sandhills and rough lands on all sides, it is comparatively a smooth section of country and contains hundreds of thousands of acres of as nice lying lands as can be found anywhere.

As to the soil character of these lands and their ability to produce, the mention of a few items in crop production in the immediate vicinity of Gordon, which is no exception to the general character of these lands in other parts of this territory, will serve to illustrate what is being done in general farming.

Henry Sassenburg, one and one-half miles northeast of Gordon, from two bushels of seed wheat (winter variety) on one and three-fourths acres of land, threshed eighty-four bushels of extra fine quality of grain, or forty-eight bushels per acre. H. G. Lyon, who lives on a beautiful 60-acre farm, adjoining Gordon on the north, has raised on his farm thirty-six bushels of macaroni wheat per acre, sixty to seventy bushels of speltz per acre, and is one of the large potato growers of the county.

Fred Hoyt, T. M. Huntington and numerous citizens of Gordon and Sheridan counties, who have given special attention to farming and crop operations for a number of years past, say that the following estimates of yields have been produced in the county and are conservative as to general yield:

Oats, thirty to thirty-five bushels per acre; barley, as high as sixty bushels; corn, twenty-five to forty-five bushels; the various kinds of wheat in general yield from fifteen to forty bushels; speltz, from forty to seventy bushels; rye, both winter and spring varieties, a good crop every year. No special attention given to the cultivation of tame grasses. Alfalfa just being introduced and giving general satisfaction, acreage will be doubled next season. Three crops is all that can be depended upon. The third crop makes an excellent seed crop.

In fruits there has been but little effort made in planting. John W. Gealy, six miles northwest of Gordon, has an orchard in bearing, several varieties of apples, cranberries, gooseberries and currants. G. H. Ireland also has an orchard of various kinds of fruits in fine growing condition.

Instances of this kind are to be found in many places, illustrating that the effort controls the result in tree planting and fruit growing in this part of the state.

We wish to express to the publishers of the Twentieth Century Farmer our thanks and appreciation of their kindness in permitting us to publish the foregoing article. The fact of this publication giving so much valuable space to the potato industry of northwestern Nebraska ought to be sufficient evidence to convince the most skeptical mind as to the importance of this industry.

Five Big Ones

This picture represents George W. Hervey, of the Twentieth Century Farmer, speculating on the outcome of a rash proposition.

Rumor has it that he offered to eat five of the largest potatoes Sheridan county could produce, at three meals, and we here behold him contemplating the task. We understand that an "acute attack of dyspepsia" was offered as an excuse for not tackling the job; and that the boys have since been smoking "Chancellors" on the editor from "down the line."

Bridge Notice

Notice is hereby given that bids will be received at the County Clerk's office of Wayne County, Nebraska, for the building and repairing of all bridges required to be built or repaired in Wayne county during the year 1907; bidder to furnish all material therefore, according to the plans and specifications adopted by the county board of Wayne county, and now on file in the office of County Clerk of Wayne county, Nebraska. Said bridges to be built of wood or iron, or both, or with iron, cement or concrete sub-structure, according to said plans and specifications, and located in various parts of wayne county. Each class of bridges to be bid upon separately and at a price per lineal foot. Bridges to be built within ten days from notice by county to construct the same and in case any new bridge is to be constructed where an old one stands, contractor to tear down said old bridge and remove and pile all old lumber in such bridge safely near the site thereof, such lumber remain the property of the county. Said bids to be filed with the County Clerk of said Wayne county, Nebraska, on or before 12 o'clock noon, on the 12th day of March, 1907. Said bids will be opened at 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, March 12, 1907, by the County Clerk of said county in the presence of the Board of County Commissioners of said county at the office of the County Clerk of said county.

No bids will be considered unless accompanied by cash or a certified check for $200.00 payable to Chas W Reynolds, County Clerk of said county, to be forfeited to said county in case the bidder refuses to enter into contract with said county if same is awarded to him. Successful bidder will be required to give bond to County with two or more good and sufficient sureties, in the amount of $1000.00 conditioned for the faithful performance of contract awarded to him.

Also bids will be received for all of the above work at time and place and under all conditions as above set forth for the county to furnish all material delivered at nearest railroad station.

The Board of County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, February 5th 1907.

A MESSAGE FROM THE DEAD

Mr. Monkey of Cherry Street is Almost Persuaded by Experience that a Red Domino at A Garden Matinee during Idle Hours or In Happy Moments is better than A Lemon in the Garden of Love, although Jonah (He's a cousin of mine) while having Day Dreams thought The Bird on Nellie's Hat was singing Lullaby, but My Gal Sal, when brought Face to Face with The Poor Old Man, who is A Chip of the Old Block, said Arrah Wanna!—but Cheer Up Mary, My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice tells me to have Charity, and In the Language of Love, I ask Won't You Come Over to My House, and tell Susan Kiss Me Good and Hard, and I will Serenade Badine with Brooks' Triumphal March, or the St. Louis Rag, but When the Snow Birds Cross the Valley, to the Gate City, it will be Good A-bye John, Forward March, and Women and Men will sing Praise Ye or Gloria, I'm Sorry that the Maple Leaf Rag was played in Largo time and not as Soldier's March, but Don't You Tell, Cherry Hill Jerry and His Liz, When Tommy Atkins Marries Dolly Gray, or the Dream of the Rarebit Fiend will come true and My Treasur will be found in the Old Heidelberg, Then Horley Won't You Love Me As You Used To, and sing a Cradle Song, or is Marriage a Failure. O Rest in the Lord, For He Shall Feed His Flock, Noble Son I Salute You, and announce the above to be a full list of the January records for the Victor Talking Machine, and that the "up-to-date" dealer, Otto Voget has the above for sale; also a complete stock of Edison and Victor February records.
