Funeral of Luther E. Peterson

The funeral services of Luther E. Peterson, who was accidentally shot while out hunting Thursday of last week, was held at the Presbyterian church Friday afternoon and was one of the largest funerals held in Wayne for years. As a mark of respect the business houses of the city were closed during the hour of the services. The funeral sermon was preached by Rev. Osborne after which Rev. Reibel, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran church at Wakefield spoke in the Swedish language for the benefit of the number of Swedish people present. Rev. Reibel was a former pastor of the Peterson family's church at Red Oak, Iowa. The large audience present, fully 500 people and the floral offerings all attested the esteem in which the young man was held by all who knew him. After the services at the church the body was taken back to the Masonic hall and in the evening the Masonic funeral services were held. He also was a member of the Eastern Star, Saturday morning his father and two brothers who were here accompanied the remains to Red Oak, Iowa, where funeral services were held and interment made.

Luther E. Peterson was born near Red Oak, Iowa, October 15, 1874 and for the past fifteen years has been a resident of this locality, being in business here for several years and at the time of his death was the junior member of the hardware firm of Marsteller & Peterson. He leaves a father, mother, four brothers and one sister together with many friends to mourn his tragic and untimely death.

Bad Case of Blood Poisoning

What was at first a trivial matter has developed seriously for Fred Philleo. About two weeks ago he got a splinter in the third finger of the right hand, which at first was hardly noticed, but later caused him much pain. He had the felon lanced but blood poisoning had set in and the trouble grew worse.

Sunday Dr. Knott of Sioux City and a professional nurse were called and Monday the finger was amputated at the knuckle. Fearing that the blood poisoning would spread to the arm, he went to Sioux City. Dr. Williams returned from there yesterday and says he is getting along nicely. Everybody here hopes for his speedy recovery.

PHILLEO & SON

PERUNA EDITORIAL NO. 2.

Dr. Hartman has claimed for many years that Peruna is an EXCELLENT CATARRH REMEDY. Some of the doctor's critics have disputed the doctor's claim as to the efficacy of Peruna.

Since the ingredients of Peruna are no longer a secret, what do the medical authorities say concerning the remedies of which Peruna is composed? Take for instance, the ingredient HYDRASTIS CANADENSIS, OR GOLDEN SEAL. The United States Dispensary says of this herbal remedy, that it is largely employed in the treatment of depraved mucous membranes, chronic rhinitis (nasal catarrh), atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), chronic intestinal catarrh, catarrh of the bladder, catarrh of the liver, and in diseased mucous membranes of the pelvic organs. It is also recommended for the treatment of various forms of diseases peculiar to women.

Another ingredient of Peruna, CORYDALIS FORMOSA, is classed in the United States Dispensary as a tonic.

CEDRON SEEDS is another ingredient of Peruna, an excellent drug that has been very largely overlooked by the medical profession for the past fifty years. THE SEEDS ARE TO BE FOUND IN VERY FEW DRUG STORES. The United States Dispensary says of the action of cedron that it is used as a bitter tonic and in the treatment of dysentery, and in intermittent diseases as a SUBSTITUTE FOR QUININE.

ELL OF COPAIBA, another ingredient of Peruna, is classed by the United States Dispensary as a mild stimulant and diuretic. It acts on the stomach and intestinal tract. It acts as a stimulant on the genito-urinary membranes.

Useful in chronic cystitis, chronic dysentery and diarrhoea, and some chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys. These opinions as to the ingredients of Peruna are held by all writers on the subject, including Bartholow and Schödder.

OF HYDRASTIS, BARTHOLOW SAYS it is applicable to stomatitis catarrh of the mucous surfaces of the mouth, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), chronic coryza (catarrh of the head). This writer classifies hydrastis as a stomachic tonic, useful in atonic dyspepsia (chronic gastric catarrh), catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the gall duct, catarrh of the intestines, catarrh of the kidneys (chronic Bright's disease), catarrh of the bladder, and catarrh of other pelvic organs.

BARTHOLOW REGARDS COPAIBA as an excellent remedy for chronic catarrh of the bladder, chronic bronchitis (catarrh of the bronchial tubes).

BARTHOLOW STATES THAT CUBER, an ingredient of Peruna, promotes the appetite and digestion, increases the circulation of the blood. Useful in chronic nasal catarrh, follicular pharyngitis (catarrh of the pharynx), increasing the toxicity of the mucous membranes of the throat. It also relieves heartiness. Useful in atonic dyspepsia (catarrh of the stomach), and in chronic catarrh of the colon and rectum, catarrh of the bladder, prostaticitis, and chronic bronchial affections.

MILLSAUGH, MEDICINAL PLANTS, one of the most authoritative works on medicinal herbs in the English language, in commenting upon COLLISONIA CANADENSIS, says that it acts on the pneumogastric and vaso motor nerves. It increases the secretions of the mucous membranes in general. In the mountains of Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee and Carolina, collisonia canadensis is considered a panacea for many disorders, including headache, colic, cramp, dropsy and indigestion. DR. SCUDDER regards it highly as a remedy in chronic diseases of the lungs, heart disease and asthma.

These citations ought to be sufficient to show to any candid mind that Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Surely, such herbal remedies, that command the enthusiastic confidence of the highest authorities obtainable, brought together in proper combination, ought to make a catarrh remedy of the highest efficacy. This is our claim, and we are able to substantiate this claim by ample quotations from the HIGHEST MEDICAL AUTHORITIES IN THE WORLD.

An old horse can stand neglect better than the colt.

The horse needs daily exercise, and like a variety of food.

Watch the feet of the colts. See that the hoofs are kept even.

As a rule the offspring of immature and pampered animals are predisposed to disease.

Hawks have been known to follow a train to prey on the small birds starved by the sudden gale.

A building free from draughts and having a dry floor is absolutely essential to the health of poultry in the winter time.

One snow-bird began his gait away from the flock that hoots like a crow and must have to prosper. He sweeps out his pens every day.

When a horse gets to gnawing at a manger the best thing to do is to cover everything gnawable with tin. Better do it before the habit is formed, however.

Breeding is not an exact science, however it is painstaking study and observation rather than guess work which produces improved strains of animals.

Did you ever try to hang soap on a wire chain over the wash bowl instead of keeping it in a dish? If you haven't, just try it. It saves soap, and washes and best of all, dirts hands.

If you had fixed that hole in the floor of the pen, you would have saved the broken leg of that hog. As it is your neighbor is done for. But be like the boy that is getting a good whipping, say, "I won't do it again," and mean it.

Some of the curryscoms and brashes used on the farms of this country are a sight to behold. Better throw them over the fence and get new ones. The cost is slight, and you will do a great deal better job. Think how much better the horses will feel about it, too.

The proper dimensions and arrangement for a farm kitchen is a subject which will probably never be exactly settled from the woman's standpoint. A few things, however, must always be borne in mind by the lady of the house, and the privilege of having a place to deposit boots behind the stove to dry wet gloves over the dishcloth rod, or make a foot-warmer of the kitchen oven cannot be denied the folks who weather the blizzards.

Every load of clover consists of about sixty flower tubes, each of which contains an infinitesimal quantity of nectar. Bees will often visit a hundred different heads of clover before retiring to the hive, and in order to obtain the sugar necessary for a load must, therefore, thrust their tongues into about 6000 different flowers. A bee will make twenty trips a day when the clover patch is convenient to the hive, and thus draw sugar from 120,000 different flowers in a single day's work.

A test was made several years ago to ascertain the effect of stabling on stock as compared with allowing the animals access to the open yard with sheds adjoining. (The test was carried on during November, when the nights were cold and frosty. The parties making the experiment state that they found in this short test that in every instance where the cows were compelled to sleep in the barn stalls they did not give as large a yield of milk as when allowed the open air. We were quite surprised about this, for the nights were very cold, though dry. The barn was well ventilated and the animals had plenty of good, dry bedding and were in clean stalls. Nevertheless, a stall is not an equivalent for an animal's ground, providing it is not muddy or disagreeable.

Before the Trees Bud. While the trees and shrubs are bare is the time for working to prevent any sprout of the San Jose scale. If you report about this pest call in some expert neighbor and hire the spraying apparatus for such is rather an expensive affair for a small place owned to be equipped with a tank or two. The insects are only good for a finish or top job in a yard, and seldom and bothersome at night. The larger ones are mounted on wheels, while for very tall trees a wagon with gasoline power to force the spray is required. For insects that suck the life juices of plants kerosene emulsion is needed. For the kinds that chew the foliage powdered poisons must be applied, such as Paris green and London purple, while if bugs keep on increasing we shall doubtless soon have Vienna brown and Berlin azure, and so on through the geography and color list. While plain arsenate of lead sprays readily enough without Sodom or Gommorah or Tophet to give it distinction.

Save the Alfalfa Leaves. Save your alfalfa leaves for the hay-bens this winter. On every farm where alfalfa is raised large quantities of the leaves collect on the barn floor. This should be gathered up daily and put away in barrels or boxes for future use, for these leaves are the choicest part of the hay. The hens will eat large quantities of this dry if it is supplied in conveniently arranged boxes, so made as to prevent the birds from wasting it. The best way, however, to feed it is to scald it with hot water and put some cornmeal with it. The fowls relish it exceedingly, and it goes far toward taking the place of green food, which is not always obtainable in the winter months. Besides it will save a considerable portion of the grain ration, for the fowls that have plenty of alfalfa will not need so much grain as those that are deprived of it. —Kansas Farmer.

Millions in Drainage. It is estimated that the swamp, overflow and marsh lands of Texas cover an area equal to 2,240,000 acres. Those are sections that would be suitable for cultivation after they were reclaimed, and after reclamation such lands usually become the most productive of any in the territory in which they are located. Upon reasonable estimates, let us see what the reclamation would do toward increasing the wealth of Texas, besides improving the health and destroying insect pests in the localities which need drainage. In their present condition for losses of agriculture, the value of these sections, according to estimates, ranges from $1 to $2 per acre, but, accepting $2, the present value would be $17,280,000. Now, planting the cost necessary for draining or leveling at an average of about $10 and the value in present shape at $2 per acre, or $18 per acre for the lands and the improvement which would make them suitable for farming purposes, and the difference ($42) between $18 and $60 per acre would be a fair estimate to make for the enhanced value produced by such improvement. If we were to get such similar results in Texas as have been produced in other States by such improvement. Now if the value of these 2,240,000 acres of unproductive and unutilized lands can be enhanced $12 per acre and the lands made to class among the most productive and desirable in Texas, and thereby adding to the increased value of $24,000,000 to the taxable value of the State, a Dallas News.

THE CLIMATE IS IDEAL. There is Only One, "Bromo Quinine" Laxative Bromo Quinine. USED THE WORLD OVER TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY. Always remember the full name. Look for this signature on every box. 25c. E. W. Grove.

Writing from Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan, Canada, W. H. Ellwanger, who was formerly a resident of Green Mountain, Iowa, says: "The climate in similar is ideal for growing grain. Long, clear days of sunshine, no bad storms. We never need to guard against frosts. I never saw a better climate in my life. We made more money during the season of 1906 than any previous five years in Central Iowa. One of the best districts in the State." But Mr. Ellwanger was a resident of the town, and it might be more interesting to read what a farmer has to say about Western Canada. From hundreds of letters, all filled with words of praise, requesting success in Western Canada, there has been one selected. It is as follows: Paynton, Sask., Canada, Dec. 10th, 1907.

To Whom It May Concern: I moved to this address, Feb. 3, 1907, from Montgomery, Iowa, and took a homestead 55 miles north of Paynton. It was when I moved here but it did not stay cold long. It broke up the 20th of February, and was not so cold after that, but the spring was late. At the end of the heavy snow fall, but in spite of the late spring, I saw better grain than I ever saw in the States. I raised this year, 1 helped a man, and he sawed off the 4th of July, and they made fair cuts. In a good year oats will go 100 bushels to the acre, and wheat to 25. All good crops did well here. I saw prairie wheat 7 and 8 pounds. I raised potatoes this year that measured 11 1/2 inches one way and 1 1/2 the other in circumference. This is a fine stock country; hay is abundant, good water, plenty of fuel, and plenty of building material, the government gives us timber to saw into lumber, and we can get it sawed for about $500 per thousand. All small fruit grows well here. There they are, ducks, geese, grouse, pheasants, deer, musk, and all the rest in abundance. It was over to Turtle Lake, yesterday, where there is lots of fishing being done this winter. I saw about a carload of white fish in one pile. I gave 25 cents for 50 pounds of fish. What do you think of that? Brother Yankee? I think this is a fine place, both in this money, and to live. There was an old man up here, writing his brother-in-law. Now this man owns land close to Des Moines, Iowa, and is in good financial shape. He took a homestead and says he will be contented if he can only put in the rest of his days in Canada. He would get up in the morning and look out of the door and say: "Well, who would live in Canada?" Now I have been in 11 different States in the United States, and I never saw the chance that there is here for a man that has a little muscle and a little brains.

Finishing Hogs for Market. Pork production is one of the most profitable farm industries in Georgia, especially when conducted in connection with dairying and upon land where plenty of cheap range, forage and root crops can be secured. The most salable kind of pork is that which contains a large proportion of lean meat, as the lard and fatty portions of the hog are cheaper in price and troublesome to handle, says a Georgia bulletin. The type of hog that produces a large share of lean meat is rapidly becoming the most popular in America, and is known as the "bacon type," examples of which are the Yorkshire and Tamworth breeds. All the present breeds of hogs, however, can be fed in such a manner as to produce the same results, by a proper combination of protein or nitrogenous feeds which produce lean meat, and starch or carbonaceous feeds, which produce the fat.

There is no question that the cheapest method of growing a pig from weaning time until ready for the final fattening or finishing period, is to use good range or pasture, supplied with acorns, mast or Bermuda grass, and in addition some root or forage crop, such as rape, peanuts, chaffs, cowpeas, artichokes, potatoes and sassafras, with perhaps a small quantity of grain. This the usual feed of stockmen, when taking up pigs weighing 125 to 150 pounds, for the purpose of hardening the flesh and making for market, is to feed them in pens almost entirely on a diet of corn for six or eight weeks. This practice will invariably produce more of the soft fats than by feeding upon a properly balanced mixture.

Need More Protein. A station bulletin says: "It is now clearly recognized that dry feed alone, especially where corn is the exclusive ration, does not provide the most satisfactory combination of nutrients for the hog. The fact that corn is so generally cultivated has led to its almost exclusive use as a fattening ration for hogs in many localities, which is unfortunate in the light of investigations made in the last few years, as the results distinctly show that much better gains would be obtained were the corn combined with some other food which would supply the needs of the growing animals to better advantage.

For fattening purposes corn stands supreme, but it is not a complete and perfect food for either growing or fattening animals, and this statement applies to all classes of live stock. From the standpoint of the hog feeder, corn is deficient in both protein and mineral matter, especially the latter. Since the uniform and rapid development of the animal depends on the maintenance of the skeleton or bony framework, the utilization of the muscles and the formation of fat, it is essential that such foods be fed as will provide for the needs of the body in the cheapest form. As other grains are rich in some of the constituents in which corn is deficient, it appears that a combination of them will prove effective, and such is shown to be the case by the results presented.

The common practice of feeding corn alone to hogs would be corrected, were some well known truths more generally recognized. For instance, it is stated on competent authority that the ash of corn is entirely indigestible by swine. Moreover, the withholding of mineral matter from the hog not only impairs the skeleton, but the whole nutritive process is disturbed as well, and the growth of the animal is seriously retarded if our results are to be relied upon. The fact that gains two or three times larger than those normally obtained on corn alone follow the proper adjustment of the ration is a matter of such far-reaching and economic concern to hog raisers as to command their most respectful and earnest consideration.

Writing from Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan, Canada, W. H. Ellwanger, who was formerly a resident of Green Mountain, Iowa, says: "The climate in similar is ideal for growing grain. Long, clear days of sunshine, no bad storms. We never need to guard against frosts. I never saw a better climate in my life. We made more money during the season of 1906 than any previous five years in Central Iowa. One of the best districts in the State." But Mr. Ellwanger was a resident of the town, and it might be more interesting to read what a farmer has to say about Western Canada. From hundreds of letters, all filled with words of praise, requesting success in Western Canada, there has been one selected. It is as follows: Paynton, Sask., Canada, Dec. 10th, 1907.

To Whom It May Concern: I moved to this address, Feb. 3, 1907, from Montgomery, Iowa, and took a homestead 55 miles north of Paynton. It was when I moved here but it did not stay cold long. It broke up the 20th of February, and was not so cold after that, but the spring was late. At the end of the heavy snow fall, but in spite of the late spring, I saw better grain than I ever saw in the States. I raised this year, 1 helped a man, and he sawed off the 4th of July, and they made fair cuts. In a good year oats will go 100 bushels to the acre, and wheat to 25. All good crops did well here. I saw prairie wheat 7 and 8 pounds. I raised potatoes this year that measured 11 1/2 inches one way and 1 1/2 the other in circumference. This is a fine stock country; hay is abundant, good water, plenty of fuel, and plenty of building material, the government gives us timber to saw into lumber, and we can get it sawed for about $500 per thousand. All small fruit grows well here. There they are, ducks, geese, grouse, pheasants, deer, musk, and all the rest in abundance. It was over to Turtle Lake, yesterday, where there is lots of fishing being done this winter. I saw about a carload of white fish in one pile. I gave 25 cents for 50 pounds of fish. What do you think of that? Brother Yankee? I think this is a fine place, both in this money, and to live. There was an old man up here, writing his brother-in-law. Now this man owns land close to Des Moines, Iowa, and is in good financial shape. He took a homestead and says he will be contented if he can only put in the rest of his days in Canada. He would get up in the morning and look out of the door and say: "Well, who would live in Canada?" Now I have been in 11 different States in the United States, and I never saw the chance that there is here for a man that has a little muscle and a little brains.

Finishing Hogs for Market. Pork production is one of the most profitable farm industries in Georgia, especially when conducted in connection with dairying and upon land where plenty of cheap range, forage and root crops can be secured. The most salable kind of pork is that which contains a large proportion of lean meat, as the lard and fatty portions of the hog are cheaper in price and troublesome to handle, says a Georgia bulletin. The type of hog that produces a large share of lean meat is rapidly becoming the most popular in America, and is known as the "bacon type," examples of which are the Yorkshire and Tamworth breeds. All the present breeds of hogs, however, can be fed in such a manner as to produce the same results, by a proper combination of protein or nitrogenous feeds which produce lean meat, and starch or carbonaceous feeds, which produce the fat.

There is no question that the cheapest method of growing a pig from weaning time until ready for the final fattening or finishing period, is to use good range or pasture, supplied with acorns, mast or Bermuda grass, and in addition some root or forage crop, such as rape, peanuts, chaffs, cowpeas, artichokes, potatoes and sassafras, with perhaps a small quantity of grain. This the usual feed of stockmen, when taking up pigs weighing 125 to 150 pounds, for the purpose of hardening the flesh and making for market, is to feed them in pens almost entirely on a diet of corn for six or eight weeks. This practice will invariably produce more of the soft fats than by feeding upon a properly balanced mixture.

Need More Protein. A station bulletin says: "It is now clearly recognized that dry feed alone, especially where corn is the exclusive ration, does not provide the most satisfactory combination of nutrients for the hog. The fact that corn is so generally cultivated has led to its almost exclusive use as a fattening ration for hogs in many localities, which is unfortunate in the light of investigations made in the last few years, as the results distinctly show that much better gains would be obtained were the corn combined with some other food which would supply the needs of the growing animals to better advantage.

For fattening purposes corn stands supreme, but it is not a complete and perfect food for either growing or fattening animals, and this statement applies to all classes of live stock. From the standpoint of the hog feeder, corn is deficient in both protein and mineral matter, especially the latter. Since the uniform and rapid development of the animal depends on the maintenance of the skeleton or bony framework, the utilization of the muscles and the formation of fat, it is essential that such foods be fed as will provide for the needs of the body in the cheapest form. As other grains are rich in some of the constituents in which corn is deficient, it appears that a combination of them will prove effective, and such is shown to be the case by the results presented.

The common practice of feeding corn alone to hogs would be corrected, were some well known truths more generally recognized. For instance, it is stated on competent authority that the ash of corn is entirely indigestible by swine. Moreover, the withholding of mineral matter from the hog not only impairs the skeleton, but the whole nutritive process is disturbed as well, and the growth of the animal is seriously retarded if our results are to be relied upon. The fact that gains two or three times larger than those normally obtained on corn alone follow the proper adjustment of the ration is a matter of such far-reaching and economic concern to hog raisers as to command their most respectful and earnest consideration.

THE WESTERN METALURGICAL COMPANY,
BY E. P. Welch

A TELEGRAM from President Dinsmore received Sunday states that the high grade ore on vein Number 2 is becoming wider as the men sink on it, and that he sent 200 lbs. to Denver for test and that it assayed $265.82 which is by far the best assay ever had. The largest assay ever had previous to this was $158.00. This is proving the statement so often made, that the deeper you go on the veins the richer they are.

Two Other Mines Are Now Shipping Ore From the Extension of Our Tunnel

Superintendent O'Flaherty, of the Excelsior mine which is working on the eastern extension of our second vein and who by his able management has made the Excelsior one of the best paying mines in Summit county, is very enthusiastic over the King Solomon, and secretly made the statement that a few months' work on our property would put us among the big shippers. As soon as we are shipping as much ore as the Excelsior our stock will be taken from the market. It is a matter of but a few months.

Now Is the Time to Buy Stock

Because we are an assured success. Because we are are now blocking out high grade ore for shipment. Because we will soon be among the producers. Because the management is composed largely of Wayne business men.

The republican state convention, was about as harmonious a state gathering as the party has held in years and the platform is of the Roosevelt style all right.

Bryan is going to entertain the democratic and populist editors of Nebraska at a feast in Lincoln March 31. That's where we don't get in.

It makes some of the Nebraska democrats horrified to think that Governor Johnson, of Minnesota should have the temerity to seek the Democratic nomination for president as against the "peerless" leader. However it looks as though Johnson would "go some" even at this late stage of the game.

Town caucuses will be held tonight and tomorrow night to nominate men for the various city offices for the ensuing year. The progress a town makes depends largely on the kind of city government it has and it is to the interest of every citizen that men are named who have a real interest in the welfare of the town both in a moral and material way. Therefore voters should turn out to these caucuses and help to name men whom they know will work for a larger Wayne and who will carry out the wishes of the majority in the way of law enforcement whatever the result of the referendum vote is.

Frisco Mines Coming to the Front

An article appearing in the Daily Mining Record of this week gives the above heading and also mentions two properties that adjoin the King Solomon that are now among the producers. In fact both properties are shipping from the Eastern extensions of the King Solomon mines. The President of the Victoria, adjoining the King Solomon on the East, is negotiating for extensive machinery and electrical equipment which will be installed in less than sixty days. Much high grade ore is being mined.

The Excelsior on the extension of the King Solomon's second vein, is a steady producer, and is shipping many thousands of dollars worth of ore each month, besides having blocked out enough ore of milling grade to keep a 100-ton mill going full capacity for two years.

This mine is owned by Frank B. Wilberg, a manufacturer and multi-millionaire of Cincinnati and Mr. O'Flaherty who has been an expert ore tester for five years with the Guggenheims, the smelter and mining magnate is Superintendent. It was Mr. O'Flaherty who is so enthusiastic over the King Solomon and says that it will rank with the larger producers of the west. The late strike of $265 ore in the King Solomon is looked upon with a great deal of interest and satisfaction. It is certainly coming to the front and the large number of stockholders of Wayne and vicinity are rejoicing.

Yankton bachelors are sore. They consented to being auctioned off at an entertainment and expected to be gobbled up by eager bargain hunters; but the bidding was spiritless, and the old maids got their choice very cheap. Two extra choice specimens brought a dollar, but most of the bachelors sold for less than thirty cents.

Winside has a novel fight on and may go "dry" in the least end of business men in that a saloon draws trade, will not sign a petition for a saloon unless one is located in their section. A compromise might be brought about by having one in each end if the license tax. The board reduce the fee that way and the one does not feel that way and the one school of the town, which may $2,000 a year for the privilege of running, may have to close. The town is about equally divided on the saloon question, anyhow, and the split in the ranks of the saloon element puts them in the hole.

TRADE AND INDUSTRY.

Minnesota brewers, at their convention in Minneapolis, voted to continue their war on catgut houses. The bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal church have joined in a campaign to the interstate commerce commission of unjust discriminatory and unlawful treatment at the hands of several interstate railroad companies. If the commission is requested to issue an order putting an end to the unjust discrimination and to compel the railroads to provide first-class accommodations for negro passengers.

Twenty-five million tons is the general estimate of Lake Superior ore shipped during the coming season, as compared with more than 42,000,000 tons last year. Some of the estimates for this year are as low as 20,000,000 tons, but this figure is believed to be too low. The iron ore of the Minnesota electric railroads will pay their Minnesota taxes this year on the basis of the assessment of their property in the various communities through which their lines run and not on the gross tonnage basis. Their property has already been assessed, and there is not time to make a report on gross tonnage.

The result of the shipper investigation by the factory inspectors of Michigan shows that in a majority of the cases employment permits to children under the age of 16 years are used to enable the children to earn a few dollars, and not for the purpose of enabling them to learn a trade. Counsel representing the transcontinental railroads appeared before the Interstate commerce commission to present arguments on the lumber tax case, and on the issue of increasing rates for the Pacific coast. The shippers have succeeded in holding up the rate temporarily.

TERRORIZED BY WOLVES.

Large Region in Texas Where They Have Become a Serious Menace

The rawhide around Ennis, Tex., are making a desperate effort to eradicate the wolves which infest their pastures. Notwithstanding the fact that wolves have been known to attack man for many years, their numbers show an annual increase. They seem to thrive with the settling up of the country. They are not only in contact with the live stock but of late years rabies has struck among them to an extent that is alarming.

Many instances are known of the death of one of these animals of the wolf. Since the establishment of a State Hygiene Institute at Austin three years ago more than 100 wolves have gone there for treatment and have been killed.

The wolves are of the coyote species. They stalk around at night and kill young calves and make away with lambs and kids. Many of the ranchmen have hunters constantly employed to kill the wolves, which are other than killing wild animals. This method of extermination is slow and very expensive.

Many wolves are such a menace to the settler that many ranchmen have built corrals about their homes as a means of protection for their wives and children against attack by the animals. When afflicted with the rabies a wolf does not hesitate to enter the open door of a house or to boldly find a sheep where men are sleeping and attack, whenever they happen to run across.

THREATENS TO BLOW UP BANK AND KILL.

Stranger Demands $5,000 of Vice President of the Merchants' National at Omaha.

SHOWS ALLEGED EXPLOSIVE.

Apparently Demented Man Is Lured to Restaurant, Where Officers Quickly Disarm Him.

An unknown anarchist entered the Merchants' National Bank of Omaha, demanding a large sum of money, and displaying a bottle believed to contain nitroglycerin. Threatened to blow up the bank if his request was not complied with. He was captured by a guard. The man entered the bank, took a chair and the doors were thrown open and he was seen by Vice President Luther. He then talked to the stranger, who began talking in a rambling manner about having had $5,000 in the National Bank of Commerce in Kansas, City when that bank failed.

"And since all my fellows are in together, you had just better hand me over my money, or I'll blow you and this bank and all of us to —" suddenly said the anarchist, producing a three-ounce bottle containing a thick yellow liquid.

"Don't you make a move," he said. "This is filled with nitroglycerin. If you move you are a dead man." "You don't want to die, do you?" he asked. "Oh, yes, I want to die, but when I die I'll tell everybody in this building what you've done."

Nothing that the man seemed to do and pinched. Mr. Drake asked if he wasn't hungry. "I have been studying over this matter for several days and have not eaten a thing for forty-eight hours," answered the man with the bottle.

"Well, here go some breakfast and eat this over," pressed Mr. Drake. "All right, but don't let any money business of you are a dead man," replied the anarchist.

"President Hamilton of the bank entered the next room during the conversation and heard enough of it to enable him to know what was going on. As Mr. Drake and the stranger left the room together Mr. Hamilton followed the police for detectives and followed the two men to a nearby restaurant.

Mr. Drake and the stranger were on opposite sides of the table when three detectives, accompanied by Mr. Hamilton, entered the room. Stepping up behind the stranger, the detectives pinched his arms and seized his bottle before he knew what was happening.

A MARCH ALLEGORY.

BRADLEY GETS THE TOGA.

Former Governor of Kentucky Elected to United States Senate.

After a contest remarkable both for its length and its pollable bitterness former Gov. William O'Connell Bradley, of Kentucky, was elected to the United States Senate, defeating former Gov. Beckham, who was the Democratic candidate.

The balloting in the Legislature had been going on for weeks and the struggle attracted national attention. Bradley's election was effected by the defection of four Democrats, who refused to support Beckham.

Senator Bradley is one of the best known politicians in the State and has gained wide distinction as a political lawyer. He was born in Garrard, Ky., in 1847, and was admitted to the bar by special act of the Legislature in 1870, being under 21 years of age.

Senator Bradley has long been prominent in Republican national politics and at one time declined the appointment by President Harrison, of minister to Japan. He is an unorthodox story teller.

In view of the success which has attended the Junior Republic system in isolated cases, a movement is on foot for the formation of a National Junior Republic Association, for the purpose of advancing the idea in the various States.

FIVE YEARS FOR WALSH.

Convicted Chicago Banker Sentenced to Fort Leavenworth Prison.

John E. Walsh, the Chicago banker, convicted of the misuse of depositors' funds, was denied a new trial by Judge A. B. Anderson in the Federal Court and was sentenced to five years in the government prison at Fort Leavenworth.

The sentence was five years on each count on which the president of the old Chicago National Bank was convicted but it is to be unconditional. All the points raised by the attorneys for the defense in their plea for a new trial were overruled by the court.

In overruling the plea for a new trial the court commented on the new record of guilt shown in the hearing asserted that the trial had been fair.

FUTILE ATTEMPT TO KILL KING OF NORWAY

Supposed Lunatic Fires Fusillade of Shots Into the Royal Castle at Christiania.

IS ARRESTED BY THE POLICE.

Bullets Are Embedded in Walls, but Norse-Monarch and Queen Maud Are Absent.

An attempt Tuesday to kill the King of Norway failed. A Swede, apparently insane, bombarded the royal castle at Christiania with a rifle. He fired a dozen bullets, several of which crashed through the windows and embedded themselves in the interior walls of the castle. The man was seized by the police and disarmed. At the police station he declared that it was his intention to kill King Haakon. He still had forty or fifty cartridges in his pockets. King Haakon and Queen Maud were not in the castle at the time of the shooting.

Her statement shows there would be nothing left of the castle and an entire population. The man was arrested by the police and disarmed.

King Haakon VII. of Norway, who has occupied the throne of that country since Nov. 18, 1905, is the second son of King Edward of Denmark. He was born Aug. 2, 1872, and shortly after the dissolution of the union of Norway and Sweden was elected ruler of the former country by the Norwegian Storting. He received the crown of Norway through his grandfather, the late King Christian IX. of Denmark.

King Haakon married Princess Maud, the third daughter of King Edward of Great Britain, July 22, 1896, and they have one son, the Crown Prince Olaf, who was born July 2, 1903.

WHEN CHINA'S EMPRESS DIES

Then, It Is Said, Japan May Fight the United States.

So long as there is the danger of a war between the United States and Japan, the Japanese will not become a nation. The Japanese will not become a nation. The Japanese will not become a nation.

With Evans' fleet in the Pacific, Uncle Sam will have sixteen first-class battle ships and eight cruisers available against Japan's entire navy. No one believes Japan will precipitate hostilities. In the event of war, Japan could take the Philippines. She is only seven days sail from Manila, and no navy in the world would be able to patrol the 10,000 miles of stand-off line.
