STRUCK BY TRAIN

Anton Blick Killed Near Wakefield.
Brother Badly Hurt but May Live

MULE TEAM ESCAPES INJURY

Body of Blick Horribly Mangled.
Runaway Train Causes
Fatal Accident

Anton Blick was instantly killed and his brother Enoch was fatally hurt at 10 o'clock Saturday morning by being struck by an Omaha train three-quarters of a mile southeast of Wakefield.

"The accident was caused by the inability of the men to control the team of mules which they were driving and which pulled them onto the track. The two men were driving from their farm on the reservation and were on their way to town. They saw the approach of the train before they started to cross the track, but the mules became frightened and started to run away. The animals crossed the track safely, but the engine struck the wagon squarely, splintering it and throwing the two men out."

The body of Anton Blick was so badly mangled as to be unrecognizable. His brother was rendered unconscious, but most of his injuries are internal. The two men were taken to Wakefield, where the injured man was cared for.

When the train arrived in Wayne Saturday morning the whole front of the engine was bespattered with blood and eggs. The eggs were in the wagon when it was struck by the train.

Anton Blick who was killed was 29 years old and his brother, Enoch, 27, both were bachelors. They have no near relatives at Wakefield but have a brother-in-law in Omaha. At last reports the younger brother though in a serious condition was still living and hopes are entertained for his recovery.

THE RIGHT SPIRIT

Score one for Carroll. The citizens of that town are divided on the question of saloon or no saloon, but instead of reaching for each others' scalps, they are going to fight the issue out on the broad lines of the principle involved and are not going to allow it to interfere with individual or business affairs and in a signed statement by representatives of both sides they call on the citizens to do the sensible thing and not allow the issue to conflict with the business interests of the town. The statement as published in the index is as follows:

The undersigned, being residents of Carroll, and being much interested in the future welfare and prosperity of this town present the following for the purpose of promoting such welfare and prosperity.

It has come to our attention that there is a disposition on the part of some to boycott individual firms who are of the opposite opinion on the matter of licensing a saloon.

In regard to this we are of the firm opinion that first, that all such conduct is unbecoming to an American citizen for it is a guaranteed right of every citizen of this country to think and vote as he likes. Second that such procedure is bound to bring about no good, but is sure to bring about many evil results.

Internal strife is something that must be avoided. As individuals we personally feel that our causes are just and right and we will use all honorable means at our hands to further the success of the same. But with that, this matter will drop on our parts and we do urge for the benefit of all concerned that every fair minded man will exert his influence to promote and secure the object of this communication, viz: harmony in the business circles of Carroll regardless of the result of the coming municipal election.

THE NEXT LECTURE COURSE

The lecture course selected for Wayne for next winter is the best ever obtained for the city. The committee had the attractions of three Lyceum Bureaus to select from and chose the Ripath list. The numbers are all of the highest class and expensive but the committee felt that Wayne would not be satisfied with anything but the best obtainable. The list is as follows:

Judge Lindsay of Denver, who has achieved fame as Judge of Denver's Juvenile Court. Dr. Cadman of New York City, for many years pastor of the First Presbyterian church of New York and a pulpit orator and lecturer of note. Lincoln McConnell of Tennessee, another popular lecturer, and for the musical part of the program the Bargeet Concert Company and the Euphorium Glee Club. This is considered the strongest course ever selected by a local committee and each one are attractions that should draw a large attendance.

School Exhibit

Last Friday afternoon was school exhibit day in all the grades of the public school and the patrons were invited to call and inspect the work of "young America." It is needless to say that there were many visitors and while the work was supposed to be of special interest to the parents of the little folks it was of such a quality as to appeal to the interest of anyone. In the lower grades especially were the exhibits good and consisted of drawings, free hand waver colors, map drawings, written music, etc. What attracted the writer's attention as being very nice was the industrial work. In several of the grades both at the high school and the ward school was some very pretty loom work, yarn mats, little blankets, hammocks and carpet weaving that demonstrated the practical turn of mind of the children. The teachers in all the departments seemed proud to show the work of their pupils and well they might be for it showed an ingenuity both on the part of the teacher in preparing the work and on the part of the pupils in accomplishing it. Furthermore it is of practical good to the children and is a preparatory step for Manual Training, a department that will eventually be a part of every public school. Prof. Wilson and his able corps of assistants are to be congratulated on what is being done in the line of industrial work as well as mind training. With a new modern public school building to replace the antiquated structure that now serves that purpose Wayne will have every reason to be proud of its public school.

Winside

From the Tribune.
Miss Olga Johnson accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hodgson to Phillips, S. D., Tuesday, where she will remain with her mother until about the first of June, when Mrs. Johnson moves up on her claim, then both will return to Winside. Miss Johnson's school was taken by a young lady from Wayne.

Henry Miller went to Wayne Saturday afternoon where he visited friends until the next day when he started on his trip to his Oregon home. He went to Kansas City to visit a daughter and from there to Portland and then to Chelan.

Frank Perrin's father and mother were over from Wayne Sunday visiting their son and family.

Miss Edith Jones visited her parents at Wayne Sunday.

Word was received in Winside on Sunday of the death of H. A. Smith, of Sioux City. Mr. Smith is known in Winside by many, as about ten years ago he was president of the Wayne County Bank of Winside.

Here are two tickets from which the voters of Winside will elect three members of the village board on election day, April 7: E. W. Cullen, citizen; A. Woodward, citizen; Tom Lound, citizen; G. A. Mittelstadt, progressive; Frank Weible, progressive; C. E. Benschouf, progressive. The caucuses were held Friday and Saturday nights and both were attended by a large crowd. No platforms were adopted, but there is a little difference of opinion in regard to the operation of the Sunday closing law. It is the general sentiment that the meat markets and vendors of confectionery goods should be allowed, to open on Sunday and most of the candidates have promised so accede to the people's wishes in this matter. The saloon question is not much of an issue.

ASSASSIN WITH REDS

CONCLUSIVE EVIDENCE AS TO YOUNG NEW YORKER

Police, However, Fail to Secure Evidence Tending to Show that Berkman of His "Group" Had Anything to Do with Bomb Throwing.

Efforts of the New York police to connect Selig Silverstein, the Union Square bomb thrower, with the groups of anarchists have been successful but thus far they have been unable to prove that his sensational act of Saturday was prompted in any way by these associates.

The magistrate paroled Berkman on his own recognizance, the latter promising to appear when wanted. Berkman was taken into custody early Monday on the strength of the card and a couple of circular letters found in Silverstein's apartments.

HANNA RESCUERS DIE

Second Explosion in Wrecked Wyoming Coal Mine

Between fifty-five and seventy men lost their lives in two explosions in a coal mine No. 1, owned by the Union Pacific Coal Company, at Hanna, Wyo., Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The explosions were caused by gases and coal dust and each was followed by fire. The first occurred at 3 o'clock, when eighteen mine workers, including a superintendent and three bosses, were killed. The second explosion occurred at 10:30 o'clock at night, snuffing out the lives of from forty to fifty members of a rescuing party, including State Mine Inspector D. M. Elle.

When the explosion occurred appeals were telegraphed to all surrounding towns for assistance. One train was rushed west from Omaha, carrying officials of the Union Pacific railroad, and the Union Pacific Coal company.

The regular force of men employed at mines Nos. 2 and 3 were pressed into rescue work, which is extremely difficult and hazardous. The bodies of the eighteen men who lost their lives in the first explosion were located, but owing to the ever increasing volume of gas which threatened to explode at any moment, no effort was made to remove them to the surface.

Fire started in the colliery last Sunday, since which time attempts at regular intervals have been made to extinguish it. Saturday it was deemed unsafe to send the miners down the workings, and they were notified not to report for duty. Superintendent Briggs, with a team of picked men, the best and most experienced hands in the camp, went into the mine to fight the fire, but at 2 o'clock the flames had become beyond their control, and at 3 o'clock connected with the walls of gas and a terrific explosion followed.

The victims are all below the tenth level, and it is likely that the flames have consumed the corpses.

HUNDREDS DROWNED IN COLLISION AT SEA

Steamers Crash Off Japanese Coast and Majority on the Matsui Perish.

287, ALL TOLD, ON BOARD.

Survivors Saved by the Hideyoshi—Ten Are Lost in Ferry Boat Accident in Germany.

Two hundred and seventy-five persons were drowned in a collision between two large Japanese coasting steamships, one of them crowded with passengers. The collision occurred before dawn in a dense fog. The 8,000-ton Matsui Maru of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha line was the vessel sunk, being struck by the Hideyoshi Maru, and going down within a short time. It is definitely known that the Matsui Maru carried forty-three sailors and 244 passengers, and nearly all of these perished.

The scene of the collision was within a few miles of the reef on which the Dakota, one of the biggest of the American owned Pacific liners, was sunk a year ago. It is in a dangerous and difficult part of the Hokkaido straits, near the city of Hakodate, and just south of the northernmost of the Japanese group of islands.

According to advices from Hakodate, the passengers were all sound asleep when the crash came, and terrible scenes of panic ensued. The Matsui began to settle rapidly, and the boats were prepared for launching. Owing to the darkness and the wild panic among the passengers, however, little could be done. The Hideyoshi, though herself badly damaged, stood by and put out boats to save what survivors she could, but the Matsui sank within ten minutes after the collision.

The Hideyoshi's boats cruised around until after dawn, but succeeded in making few rescues. Another steamer stood by and gave what help could be given. When the naval authorities at Hakodate were notified they dispatched several fast destroyers at top speed for the scene of the wreck, in hope of giving assistance. The Hideyoshi was badly damaged, but she is believed to have been lost on that ship. The captain and all the members of the crew are Japanese.

A number of rich Japanese merchants are thought to have been on board the wrecked steamer.

Miss Ida Lewis, the only woman in charge of an American lighthouse, and who has been at Lime Rock lighthouse, in Newport (R. I.) harbor, for over fifty years, is thinking seriously of taking a vacation. When she considers the fact that in fifty long years she has never taken a night away from her lighthouse, it will be seen that the vacation will be quite a stupendous undertaking. Miss Lewis is suffering from nervousness and loss of sleep. Last fall she received from the American Cross of Honor Society at Washington its cross of honor and membership in the order. She is the first American woman to receive such an honor.

Since then Miss Lewis has received a pension from the Carnegie fund for saving eighteen lives. She celebrated her 65th birthday anniversary very quietly last month. She is assisted by her brother, Rudolph Lewis, in caring for the lighthouse.

The record of embezzlement, forgery, defaulting and bank wrecking continues long, though the total of 1907 is smaller than that of 1906, which was the heaviest since 1894. The total for 1907 is $10,424,820. Banks and trust companies are the worst sufferers, their losses being $1,088,005. Public officials have been comparatively honest, having abstracted only $787,406. The summary of embezzlements, etc., by years, from 1894 to 1908, is as follows:

Year	Amount
1894	$25,234,112
1895	$19,428,296
1896	$19,408,812
1897	$11,248,084
1898	$8,281,298
1899	$6,587,103
1900	$4,500,134
1901	$4,985,500
1902	$6,726,125
1903	$4,731,507
1904	$4,731,507
1905	$6,914,172
1906	$14,747,035

The New Uses of Concrete. The Cement Age says that the experiment of the Lackawanna railroad with concrete car bumpers has been attended with great success. They are of monolithic construction, with a granite block face to receive the blow of the car bumper. The rails of the railroad project into the concrete, so that the impact force reacts against the weight of the car. The same authority tells of the successful operation of an immense fly wheel, or rather two of them, made of re-enforced concrete, in a pumping station near Johannesburg, South Africa. Each weighs 6,000 pounds and is 14 feet in diameter. The difficulty with the Missouri river, near Greenwood, is a disast. The commission which has charge of the awarding of the Carnegie medals is investigating a rescue by a South Dakota young man named Earl Vascotter, who saved the life of John Flockhart, a companion, while the two were skating on the Missouri river, near Greenwood.

Disregarding the shrieks of warning from the locomotive whistle, and refusing to leave the track upon which he was walking, an unidentified lumberjack deliberately permitted himself to be struck by a switch engine at the junction of Tower, Minn., and was instantly killed. The farm home of John Donthoff, near Westboro, Wis., was destroyed by fire while the mother was outside. The store exploded and her three small children, one four years old, one two years old and a baby, were burned to death. The father was away from home working in a lumber camp.

Determined to convince his hearers that he was God, as he claimed, and that he was immortal, an unknown stranger deliberately sat upon the rails before an oncoming passenger train and was ground to death beneath the wheels before the eyes of a large number of people at Sagen, Wis.

Spauld St. Marie, Mich., people are divided by a bitter factional fight over the question as to whether the new federal building shall be erected this year with the $100,000 appropriated by Congress, or whether the building shall be delayed while an effort is being made to secure an additional $50,000.

STATES' POWER LOST BY HIGH COURT'S ACT

Rate Laws of Minnesota and North Carolina Knocked Out by Supreme Tribunal.

Federal Control Wideness.

Justice Harlan, Alone Dissenting, Predicts Disaster from Sweeping Decision.

A smashing blow at State's rights was delivered by the Supreme Court of the United States Monday when the tribunal knocked out the railway rate laws of two commonwealths. Dividing eight to two, the court, in a decision rendered by Justice Peckham, sustains the federal suit absolutely in the Minnesota and the North Carolina cases, in which the clash between the authority of the United States and the State courts formed an issue that was national in its interest attracted.

Justice Harlan was the dissenting member of the court in each case, expressing the opinion that the decision rendered marked a new era in the relationship between the States and the federal government and between the federal and the State courts, and predicting that the result would be disastrous.

The Minnesota freight and passenger rate laws are declared unconstitutional on their face by reason of the excessive penalties imposed. The opinion in the Minnesota case was declared to apply also to the North Carolina case, although the processes by which the two cases were brought before the Supreme Court were different.

The right of railroad corporations stockholders in such corporations to appeal to the federal courts to test the constitutionality of rate laws enacted by a State Legislature is clearly set forth. Beyond that the essential thing laid down is that when such laws made the right of injunction lies with the federal court to restrain administrative State officers from proceeding to enforce the provisions of the law through the machinery of the State courts, until the constitutional question has been finally determined.

In short, the federal courts are given what really amounts to the power to pass upon the reasonableness of railway rates fixed by a State for interstate traffic. The decisions greatly minimize the power of the States to deal with the regulation of railroads even within their own borders. The question of the constitutional right of the States to legislate at all on this subject was not brought directly before the Supreme Court, but, in view of the decision rendered, there is a strong possibility that once this question is raised it may solve the problem completely by denying absolutely the State's power to regulate rates in any degree.

Justice Harlan deemed the cases of sufficient importance to justify a 12,000-word dissenting opinion, taking strong ground in support of the theory that the proceeding in the Minnesota case was a suit against the State and therefore not permissible under the constitution.

BURT LITTLE BY PANIC.

Railroads' Net Income Larger in Last Half of 1907 than 1906.

Every indication points to an improvement generally in the railroad and industrial situation of the country according to reports made by the great railway systems of America to the Interstate Commerce Commission. These reports are to the effect that, while the railroads suffered to some extent by what has come to be referred to as the "October panic," the loss was by no means so serious as generally has been supposed.

It appears from the reports that the effect was felt particularly by the eastern lines and by the lines in the southern part of the country, while west and transcontinental roads had not suffered materially. The figures available to the Interstate Commerce Commission indicate also that the general condition of the country is improving materially, with a prospect that it soon will be normal or better.

NORTHWEST NUGGETS.

The Mile Lake, Chippewa Indians most of whom live on the White Earth reservation in Minnesota, will receive a $100,000 received from the government.

The commission which has charge of the awarding of the Carnegie medals is investigating a rescue by a South Dakota young man named Earl Vascotter, who saved the life of John Flockhart, a companion, while the two were skating on the Missouri river, near Greenwood.

Telephone No. 110

Funny, ain't it how much excitement some fellows can work up over a bowler election who are seldom ever heard from in a presidential election.

They are still trying to blow up the mine owners in Colorado. What would you rather be, a poor man working for two dollars a day or have a mountain of silver in Colorado and turn the chance of striking up some morning and finding yourself scattered over four counties?

It seems there is hardly a town in the state but that the license question does not play an important part in the spring election. Whether it is not a question of license or the license it is a question of reducing the number of saloons or of a more strict enforcement of the Starnes law. Takamah has a happy way of determining the question: At a mass convening of all the voters of the town names are selected for the different offices and are pledged to abide by the result of a referendum vote on license, and to enforce the law whether license or no license wins. In that way only a question of principle and public policy are involved. The trend of public sentiment everywhere is toward higher moral standards and better things in all branches of government.

The tide is running against Mr. Bryan for the presidential nomination and unless checked the Nebraska will not lead the deliberative hosts. The Johnson boom has assumed large proportions in the past two weeks and a couple of months ago what looked like a big ratification meeting at Denver is likely to develop into a fierce contest between the Bryanites and the old line element of the party.

The National populist convention will be held at St. Louis today. Gen. Coxey, father of "Coxey's army" will preside at the meeting and an emancipation proclamation will be issued to the effect that never again will they listen to the siren song of democrats pleading for fusion. They say Bryan has forsaken them and that henceforth and hereafter they will not give aid to the democrats. It will treat them as a demon enemy. The old guard of the populist organization is on duty and the straight and narrow path they will travel.

Next Tuesday is city election day and the prospects are that the voters will be out to express their opinion on the license question as well as to vote for local candidates of their choice. The way the license proposition will be put up to the people is rather a round about indefinite way but it is in accordance with law. A direct vote on the question of license or no license would have been much more simple and easier to understand. As it is the vote will be on the question of repealing the ordinance under which saloon licenses are granted. Those who desire that no license be issued for saloons will vote for the proposition which will be to be in favor of repealing that ordinance and those desiring that license be granted will vote against the proposition which will mean to be in favor of retaining that ordinance and the granting of license for the ensuing year. As to the candidates for city offices those who stand for no license are P. H. Jones for mayor, L. W. Alter for police judge and T. W. Moran, Jas. Bush and J. H. Marsteller for councilmen. Those who stand for license are Henry Ley for mayor, James Stringer for police judge and George Stricker, F. E. Strahan and J. W. Jones for councilmen. For city treasurer and city clerk H. S. Ringland and Martin Ringer have no opposition. For the school board there are four candidates for the places, Wm. Orr, P. H. Kohl, Dr. Leisenring and Dr. Heckert.

The Ballot Muddle

The representatives of the Independent and petition ticket in the local election object to the manner in which the official ballot has been made up. As we understand it their objections are based on the following reasons: First, that the law requires that the referendum proposition should go on the ballot by quoting the title of the proposed ordinance in full and that a place should be given below where each voter may make his mark in a bracket after which is the word "yes" or "no." They also object on the ground that one must vote against or in favor of an ordinance No. 165 while they claim there is no such ordinance and that should the ordinance carry it would not constitute a legal repeal of license ordinance. Further objection is made that the usual order is reversed in placing the negative proposition first on the ballot and that the referendum proposition should come first on the ballot and should be arranged in the same manner as constitutional amendments are submitted. The representatives of the city on ticket and officials who made up the form of the ballot contend that the same is legal and has been made up in as simple a form as is possible to comply with the law.

It is reported that a petition in mandamus will be filed before Judge Welch today for the purpose of having the matter legally settled as to the right form according to the election laws.

Good farming, based on sound principles of science and practice, was never more important or profitable than now. The Homestead, an agricultural and live stock paper published every Thursday at Des Moines, Iowa, is the best exponent of good farming. The Homestead is edited by farmers who live upon and operate their own farms right here in the middle West, so that their teachings are thoroughly practical. It has departments devoted to horticultural, poultry, sheep, dairy, veterinary, laws affecting farmers, current events, house and home Sunday school lessons, editorial comment, live farm gossip, etc.; and its contributors include able and successful farmers and experiment station experts throughout the West. Many farmers in this vicinity are already subscribers for the Homestead and all should be; as whatever adds to the practical knowledge of the farmer increases the value of his land and enhances the prosperity of the community. We take subscriptions for this splendid farm paper at this office; and by special arrangement with the publisher, can give you a low subscription rate for it in connection with the Wayne Herald.

Death of Mrs. Phil Greenwald

On Tuesday morning at ten o'clock Mrs. Phil Greenwald, living about 12 miles south east of Wayne, passed away after only a few days illness. On Friday evening of last week, she was taken suddenly ill with paralysis, and though the best of medical skill and most tender care was rendered, it was of no avail. She was unconscious from the time she became ill until death. She was a sister of Mrs. J. G. Dornberger of this city and was well known by Wayne county people. She was a living wife and a mother and a true friend, and loved by all who knew her. Always being ready and willing to help others in need or distress, she was a true mother in heart, her husband, two children, a daughter, two sisters, two brothers, have the sympathy of the community in this great sorrow.

The funeral services were held this afternoon at two o'clock in the Episcopal church ten miles southeast of Wayne. Many were present to pay their respect and the floral offerings were beautiful.

CREAM SEPARATORS

Always in the LeAD.

From the invention by DE LAVAL of the first practical cream separator in 1878 the DE LAVAL machines have been always in the lead.

The first "hollow" bowl cream separator; the first factory cream separator; all of the several first styles of hand separators; the first steam turbine separator; the first disc bowl separator; and the first "split wing" or distributing tubular shaft separator were each and all De Laval inventions, each marking periods of advancing evolution in the usefulness of the cream separator.

So too were the first "tubular" shaped bowl separator; the first bottom feed separator; the first vertical "blade" bowl separator; the first interior cone construction bowl separator; and numberless other types of construction each and all De Laval inventions, though found so impractical or comparatively inferior from one reason or other that they were never put into commercial use in the De Laval machines.

Every would-be competing cream separator on the market today merely utilizes some patent expired or abandoned De Laval construction, and if any one of them should make a pretense of denying it the patent evidence may be produced showing the falsity or evasion of such denial.

The new 1908 De Laval cream separators mark another great evolution in cream separator construction, being new and remodelled in practically every detail, and place a still wider margin of superiority between the De Laval and even the best of imitating separators.

The De Laval main factories in the United States and Sweden are the largest and finest of their kind and have ranked for ten years among the model shops of the world their equipment is the best that mechanical science and money can make it; the 20 smaller De Laval factories, assembling, and repair shops in as many different countries are relatively as superior; the De Laval inventors and experimental engineers are the best of the men who have shown practical separator genius in every country, and a large staff of them is kept constantly at the betterment of the De Laval machines, while the shop employees generally are the most competent and best paid men in their classes.

The great object ever kept before every member of the De Laval productive organization is the making of it better this year than last year.

These are the reasons why the De Laval machines began in the lead and have kept it from 1878 to 1908, exceeding all attempted imitation and competition in even greater degree today than at any past time.

The new 1908 De Laval catalogue, affording an education in separator knowledge, is to be had for the asking.

The brick from the front and north side of the building will all be taken off and pressed brick laid in its place. The front will be entirely remodeled being of pressed brick and stone work. When completed it will in appearance be an entirely new modern brick building.
The union temperance meeting at the Opera House last Sunday evening was well attended. The address of the evening was made by E. E. Bennett president of the Municipal League of Lincoln and a leading business man of that city. Mr. Bennett was well fortified with facts and figures and his address was one that would appeal to business men as he dwelt mainly on the economic phase of the question. Mr. Bennett is not an orator but he is very sincere in his convictions on the question. The vocal and instrumental music furnished for the occasion was good and very much appreciated.

No matter how often they may have previously witnessed it, there is in it something lacking in other plays that strongly appeals to humanity in general and therefore always succeeds on its own merits.
That "Ole Olson" the play with a Swedish dialect character is known from ocean to ocean, that it has been a favorite that we have welcomed year after year and laughed and cried in turn at the innocent fun and pathos he gives us, is also known, but that this favorite play, good old "Ole Olson" that delightful quaint comedy drama, which to witness you need not be afraid to take your sweetheart, wife or children, is full of new songs and laughs, is to be made known at Opera House Friday night where an excellent company of players will hold forth. Prices 25, 35, 50 and 75 cents.

If you can't go to church Sunday here is a bit of helpful philosophy which may do much good, says the Chicagoer. We scan the stars with telescopes, but wiser is he who becomes the astronomer of his own soul. We make chemical analysis of the soil of the field, but more difficult, though more desirable it is to make analysis of the soil of our own heart and find what flowers may grow there best, and what noxious weeds must be guarded against.
A new health food is being recommended to Philadelphians, according to the Record of that city, which quotes a physician as its authority. Bran—the common feed store kind—long known as a good thing for eating horses—is the latest breakfast dish in the Quaker city. Says the Record: "Bran is the outer covering of wheat, rye, oats and other similar grain, and has been used from time immemorial as a food for cattle. Its use as a food for human beings, however, is comparatively recent, but leading physicians with troublesome indigestion on hand are resorting to the bran cure. Bran bread had its origin as bran bread, being made from bran instead of flour. The color of the bread and the similarity in names gave the occasion for the change from bran to brown, and the great majority of the brown bread of today does not contain any bran. Doctors say bran is a step back to nature and consequently is healing to an ailing stomach. Within the last few months more physicians have been recommending the use of bran in many forms to their patients, and as the result of this boom advanced the price of bran from three cents to ten cents a pound since summer."

FARMERS' CORNER

Electric Farming.

Although agricultural machinery originated in the United States and the American farmer used patent mowers, reapers and threshing machines long before their European contemporaries in the same field of labor had put aside scythe, rake and flail, the possibility of introducing electric power in farm work was first recognized in the Old World.

This has probably been due to the fact that the farmers of America, thrifty and far-seeing, recognizing the economy and reliability of the small oil engine, failed to perceive how any saving could be effected by generating electric current and distributing to its motors in outlying positions.

When, however, the means from some large electric power company pass within reach of a farm or estate the conditions are much more favorable, and this state of things must already exist in a measure which will be largely extended in the future. Current German newspapers contain an interesting account of the application of electricity to a group of farms in Saxony. The electric current is brought from an adjacent town by overhead wires carried on wooden poles. Two receiving stations are arranged, from which the electricity is distributed to the farm buildings and to convenient positions in the fields for the purpose of driving threshing and other machinery.

Sixteen fixed electric motors are installed for chaff and root cutting, and crushing, pumping and for operating machinery used in the manufacture of potato spirit. In addition to this power equipment, six portable motors are provided, which may be used for driving pumps, circular saws, threshing machines, and so forth at any point where their services are required. The houses and buildings on the farms are all lit by electricity, and lamps and about 10,000 glow lamps being used for the purposes.

It must be pointed out, however, that this example could only be followed in the United States on a very large estate or a group of adjacent farms, and it is doubtful whether such a scheme could be made a commercial success for the operation of farming machinery pure and simple. It would appear that wood sawing, pumping and other operations requiring power must be in a model if the results are to compare favorably with those at present obtained by the use of oil or steam engines. But the Saxony experiment is full of interest, and displays a cautiously progressive spirit in a country where farm fences are almost unknown, and shepherds and cowherds are still living amid picturesque beauties.

COMPARATIVE FOOD VALUES

An English Journal, The Land, in discussing the comparative food value of roast beef and turkey, says that it may be said that, weight for weight, the flesh of the turkey is more nourishing than that of beef; but the latter is, generally speaking, cheaper than the former. The moisture in beef, however, exceeds the amount present in the flesh of the turkey, and the latter contains a better percentage of protein or flesh-forming substance. In other cases the percentage of moisture is seldom less than 70 per cent.

In lean beef the amount of fat is much the same as in a too well-fed turkey, but it must be pointed out that the flesh of poultry differs from that of beef and mutton in not having its muscular fibers permeated by fat, and, moreover, the fibers in the flesh of the fowl are short and rarely yield to the disintegrating action of the digestive processes. A large amount of fat in either case is apt to interfere with the digestibility of the meat. The fat of beef is more digestible than the fat of the turkey. The fat of birds, in fact, is harder and owing to its tendency to become rancid, is unsuitable for the dyspeptic patient.

The Lancet believes that the most important difference from a dietetic point of view between beef and turkey is that, whereas beef contains a high percentage of extractive matters, turkey contains hardly any at all. The extractive matters in beef account largely for its peculiar and marked flavor, and owing to their absence in poultry generally, and in the pheasant and partridge, the flavor of these meats is delicate. But there is no doubt that the extractives of beef, as well as mutton, are valuable, for not only are they flavoring agents, but they also act as perhaps the most powerful stimulant to gastric digestion.

Double-Edged Saw

To make one saw take the place of two, and at the same time preserve its durability, is the recent invention of an Indiana man.

Every carpenter includes two saws in his kit—one for cross-cut and one for cutting with the grain. He can now dispense with one saw, as it is possible to put the two blades, having different teeth on the two long, thin opposite edges. The handle is hinged to the blade instead of being rigid and can be reversed as it becomes necessary to use either blade. This saw is also an economical saw, as it saves the expense of purchasing two saws.

Quality of Grass Seed

The quality of grass seed requires that grass seed should be sold under a guarantee as to purity. Bulletin 138 of the Maine agricultural experiment station, which, doubtless, many of your readers have received, gives analysis of the seeds which were collected by the inspector and those sent to the experiment station by correspondence in 1905.

The dealers are very generally conforming to the law and the purity of most seeds is now guaranteed. The question naturally arises in the mind of a farmer, should a seed be strictly pure, and if not, how nearly pure should it be?

The purity of seeds varies greatly with their kind. It is possible to carry practically no foreign weed seeds. It is not as easy to grow any of the other grasses or clovers so clean. There is no need for the sower to ever buy anything seed that is much less than 95 per cent pure. Samples have been examined by the station the present year which contained not a single foreign harmful seed.

The best red clover seed will frequently carry as much as 1 per cent of foreign matter, although these impurities are usually comparatively harmless. It is, however, poor policy for the sower to buy a red-clover seed that is less than 98 per cent pure. The best grades of alsike clover will run about 95 to 98 per cent pure on the average. It is doubtful if the purchaser should buy a sample whose purity is less than 97.5 per cent.

Redtop is the most difficult seed of all. It will, of course, contain more or less chaff. It is difficult to grow red-top free from timothy, and the seed cleaners find it difficult to separate timothy seed from redtop after it has once been introduced. Samples of redtop carrying as high as 12 or even 15 per cent of timothy are not unusual. If one could be sure that the impurities were harmless like chaff and timothy it might be safe to buy a redtop even as low as 85 per cent pure. Unless one is assured of the character of the impurities, it is unwise to buy a redtop less than 95 per cent pure.

Items of Interest From Nearby Localities Boiled Down For Busy Readers

Now that spring has come and the jub-jub birds are singing in the whiffetrees, it is well to clean up the yard and plant things and tinker around generally; and it is also well to begin the work with moderation. The Garden Saws Editor of the Gazette, who is sawed off and fat, and soft in flesh and muscle, as the result of wearing out the cane seats of many chairs, blew himself for a nice rake yesterday afternoon, and when he reached his lowly abode, proceeded to rake up all the leaves and dead hens and things which have defaced the lawn. He raked away blithely until sundown, moralizing upon the benefits of honest toil and horny hands and such things. This morning he woke up feeling as though he had been used as a foot bridge. All day long a horse doctor has been squirting liniment on him with a garden hose, and he is still so sore and stiff that his folks had to put him on casters so as to move him around. Therefore, gentle reader, profit by this sad example, and begin the spring cleaning up a little at a time. Gather up one leaf today, two tomorrow, three on Wednesday, and so on, until you are hardened to the work. Emporia Gazette.

Did you hear of the boy at Wayne who blew his breath into a cat's mouth when he had the mumps? Well, he did, and in about a week the cat's jaws had swollen until its head had the appearance of a foot ball. Possibly you don't believe that, either.—Laurel Advocate.

Chamberlain has the Preference.

Mr. Fred Hanrahan, a prominent druggist of Portsmouth, Va., says: "For the past six years I have sold and recommended Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is a great remedy and one of the best patent medicines on the market. I handle some others for the same purposes that pay me a large profit, but this remedy is so sure effect a cure, and my customer so certain to appreciate my recommending it to him, that I give it the preference." ### Humor in Journalism

Next to a million dollars a hearty laugh is about as pleasant a thing as one can have. Everybody really wants to laugh. No man and no newspaper can be really great without a sense of humor. The Chicago Record-Herald regards the promoting of smiles and laughter as a part of the legitimate mission of the press. For years the "Alternating Currents" column of S. E. Kiser in that paper has been a daily source of delight to its readers. The cartoons of Ralph Wilder on the first page also are designed to make people laugh—and to make them think as well. In fact, the humor of the Record Herald, like its news columns is always clean and kindly as well as amusing and entertaining. It affords a striking example of the right way to "tell the truth laughing." Famous humorists contribute to the Sunday Magazine of The Record-Herald, with the popular novelists and celebrated writers on timely questions. Both text and illustrations are of the highest standard of periodical literature—the new idea in Sunday Journalism perfected.

That languid, lifeless feeling that comes with spring and early summer can be quickly changed to a feeling of buoyancy and energy by the judicious use of Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The Restorative is a genuine tonic to tired, run down nerves, and but a few doses is needed to satisfy the user that Dr. Shoop's Restorative is actually reaching that tired spot. When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly ailing may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm-hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale at Raymond's Drug Store.
