While hoeing in his potato patch Monday afternoon W. H. Boling found the lower jaw of a man. Examination proves that it has been in the ground for years, and how it came there is what is puzzling Mr. Boling. He says he will not search farther for the rest of the man to whom it belonged, as the jaw is only the lower half of a set of false teeth. Nevertheless, it's an odd find. Mr. Boling turned the find over to Dr. L. M. Nielsen, who regards it as quite a curiosity. — Laurel Advocate.

Work on the Logan

In an interview with W. J. McEhron, supervising drainage engineer of the agricultural department he states that there is some opposition to the proposed plan to relieve the Logan Valley from overflows. As the department is soon to put a party of experienced engineers in the field to make a thorough survey, in order to work up detail plans and estimates which will be furnished free of cost, (except for the cost of two or three helpers, he advises those who are talking against it to wait until the report is made. There is no question but what some form of relief will be done in Dixon, Burt and Thurston counties above here and this will compel the people in vicinity to co-operate in furnishing a complete drainage system and protection from overflows. A great many farmers who are the ones that reap the greatest benefit from a thro system of drainage, imagine that the cost will be prohibitory, and he wishes to inform them that this will not be the case, as the cost generally is considerably below that estimated by promoters of the movement. Two or three plans of relief will be investigated thoroughly and when the report is made it will be accompanied by maps and profiles and will have many points of interest. The intention of the department is to aid the farmers and owners of wet and swampy lands in every way possible. It invariably increases the value of the lands increases the yield and revenue from the land, and at the same time helps to build up the towns. After the report has been received by the people then it will be time enough to discuss the matter and decide whether to go on with the work or not.—Uehling Press.

Resolutions

Resolutions of respect adopted at a regular meeting of the Tribe of Ben Hur held in their Lodge Room on the evening of June 4th 1908.

Whereas, it has seemed good to the Ruler of the universe to remove from among us our beloved sister, Nancy Garwood, therefore in view of the loss we have sustained, and the still greater loss to her loved ones,

Resolved, that we sincerely sympathize with the husband and children of our late beloved sister, and that we respectfully command them for consolation to that Divine Power which, though somewhat inscrutable in its dispensations, yet doeth all things well, feeling sure that to them as to us there is comfort in the knowledge that the deceased was a devoted and consistent christian.

Resolved, that the Secretary of this meeting is instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the husband and children of the deceased as a testimonial of our grief and sympathy and that a copy of these resolutions be published in the Wayne Herald and Nebraska Democrat.

CHAPTER I.

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Glaxo is the thioner remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and acts as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

For nine years Mr. Cleghorn had been the bookkeeper and confidential man of business for Scramble & Company, a firm of rich manufacturers in the middle West, and had served them faithfully fifty-two weeks in the year, with no days of excess Sundays. One day in July he surprised the friend of the firm by saying:

"Mr. Scramble, I shall want a vacation of two weeks this month."

"What?" exclaimed his employer.

"I shall want a vacation of two weeks this month," repeated the bookkeeper, "and the two weeks will begin next Monday."

"But I can't possibly spare you, Mr. Cleghorn."

"I think you can. Anyhow, I am going to take the vacation—and I shall expect my salary to run on as usual while I am away."

"There's no use in talking, Cleghorn. I know it, Mr. Scramble. That's why I thought I would have it over with as few words as possible. But I am going to take the two weeks off, just the same. Furthermore, I expect to have a vacation for the same length of time every summer hereafter as long as I work for you."

The head of the firm was astonished. Such brazen assurance took his breath away.

"If you go away from here next Monday, Cleghorn," he gasped, "you haven't come back!"

"That will be all right, Mr. Scramble," coolly answered the bookkeeper. "I have an offer of a permanent position with Dodson & Company, at five dollars a week more than you are paying me, including a regular summer vacation. I would rather stay here, of course, but if you insist on my—"

"You can take your two weeks off, Cleghorn," hastily interrupted Mr. Scramble.

It requires a sudden shock to awaken some employers to a realization of the value of a trusted employee, but it behooves the employer to be sure of his ground before he attempts to administer the shock.—Youth's Companion.

Life of the Common Eel.
The life history of the common eel just completed by Dr. John Schmidt is mentioned as one of the most fascinating ever worked out by the naturalist. The spawning ground for Europe proves to be the Atlantic, where the depth is about 500 fathoms, along the coast from Norway to Spain, and to this deep-sea region the eels make a long journey from the inland fresh waters of the continent.

"This is a nice room you've got, Walter. Yes, you know I am to stay here for two years, and I might as well be comfortable."

"It's a good deal better than my room—twice as big, to begin with. Then, my carpet looks as if it had come down through several generations. As for a mirror, I've got a seven-by-nine looking glass that I have to look into twice before I can see my whole face. As for the bedstead, it creaks so when I jump into it that I expect every night I'll fall to pieces and spill all on the floor. Now your room is so well furnished."

"Let it be now, but father furnished it at his own expense. He said he was willing to spend a little money to make me comfortable."

"That's more than my father said. He told me it wouldn't do me any harm to rough it."

"Perhaps he's right," said Walter. "Of course, I don't object to the new carpet and furniture, but I shouldn't consider it any great hardship if I had to rough it, as you call it."

"Wouldn't you? Then I'll tell you what we'll do. Let's change rooms. You can go round and board at Mrs. Glenn's, and I'll come here."

"I am not sure what my father would think of that arrangement," said Walter, smiling.

"I thought you'd find some way to crawl out," said Lemuel. "For my part, I don't believe you'd enjoy roughing it any longer."

"I don't know," said Walter. "I've sometimes thought I shouldn't be very sorry to be a poor boy, and have to work my own way."

"That's very well to say when you're the son of a rich man."

"So are you."

"Yes, but I don't get the benefit of it, and you do. What would you do now if you were a poor boy?"

"I can't say, of course, now, but I would go to work at something. I am sure I could earn my own living."

"I suppose I could, too, but I shouldn't want to. Some people are born lazy, don't they?"

"Perhaps you are right," answered Walter, with a smile. "Now suppose we open our Cozar."

Lemuel Warner was a pleasant looking boy of fourteen, the son of a prosperous merchant in New York. Walter Conrad was from a small country town, where his father was the wealthiest and most prominent citizen. Lemuel had a handsome mansión house, surrounded by extensive grounds.

Nobody knew just how rich he was, but he was generally supposed to be worth two hundred thousand dollars. Mrs. Conrad had been dead for five years, so that Walter, who was an only child, had no immediate relation except his father. It was for this reason, perhaps, that he had been sent to the Essex Classical Institute. Being a boy of talent, and well-grounded in Latin, he was easily able to take a high rank in his class. Lemuel Warner had become his intimate friend, being in the same class, but inferior to him in scholarship. They usually studied their Latin lessons together, and it was owing to this circumstance that Lemuel made a better figure in his recitations than before, Walter came to the school.

"There, that job's done," said Lemuel, closing his book with an air of satisfaction. "Now we can rest."

"You must do the Latin exercise. You know the doctor expects each boy to write a letter in Latin, addressed to his father, not less than twelve lines in length."

The boys started on their new task, and finished by nine o'clock. Lemuel's letter was written with a brilliant disregard of grammatical rules, but it was considerably revised in accordance with suggestions from Walter.

"I've a great mind to send my letter home," said Walter. "Father expects me to write home every week, and this would save me some trouble. Besides, he'd think I was getting on famously, to write home in Latin."

"Yes, if he didn't find out the mistakes."

"That's the rub. He'd show it to the minister the first time he called, and then my blunders would be detected. I guess I'd better wait till it comes back from the doctor corrected."

I received this telegram twenty minutes since.

Walter took the telegram, with trembling fingers, and read the following message:

"Dr. Porter—Please send Walter Conrad home by the first train. His father is very sick. NANCY FORBES."

"Do you think there is any danger, Dr. Porter?" asked Walter, with a pale face.

"I cannot tell, my boy; this telegram furnishes all the information I possess. What is the housekeeper. I can't recall that father is so sick. He did not say anything about it when he wrote."

"Let us hope it is only a brief sickness. I think you had better go home by the first train to-morrow morning."

The principal shook hands with Walter and withdrew. When his tall form had vanished, Walter sat down and tried to realize the fact of his father's sickness. But this he could not do, for he was being and was not to sleep, but at length he did sleep, waking in time only for a hasty preparation for the homeward journey.

He was so occupied with thoughts of his father that it was not till he was well on the way home that it occurred to him that this was his fifteenth birthday, to which he had been looking forward for some time.

The seat in front of Walter was for some time vacant, but at the Woodville station an animated gentleman got in and sat down next to him. Walter did not at first pay any attention to it. He was looking out of the window listlessly, unable to fix his mind upon anything except his father's sickness. But at length his attention was caught by some remarks made by one of the gentlemen in front, and from this point he listened languidly.

"I suspected him to be a swindler when he first came to me," said the gentleman sitting next the window. "He hadn't a honest look, and I was determined not to have anything to do with him. Mining companies are risky things at times. I once got taken in to the tune of five thousand dollars, but it taught me a lesson. So I was not particularly impressed with the brilliant prospectus of the Great Metropolitan Mining Company, and its promised dividend of thirty per cent. Depend upon it, James Wall and his confederates will pocket all the dividends that are made."

"Very likely you are right. But it may be that Wall really believed these were good investments," said Walter.

"Of course he did, but he was determined to make the money for himself, and not for the stockholders."

"It might have been tempting to invest, but all my money was locked up at the time, and I could not have done so without borrowing the money, and this I was resolved not to do."

"It was fortunate for you that you didn't, for the bubble has already burst. There will be many losers. By the way, the gentleman in front of you was largely interested. He is a rich man, but for all that he may have gone in for his own sport."

"I am sorry for him, but that was reckless."

"Yes, he was completely taken in by Wall. He's a smooth fellow."

"When the gentleman left the cars Walter saw one of them had left a morning paper lying in the seat. He picked it up and examined the columns until his eyes fell upon the following paragraph:

"The future of the Great Metropolitan Mining Company proves to be a disastrous one. The company will have to pay more than five per cent of the amount of the sums invested by the stockholders, possibly not that. There must have been gross mismanagement somewhere, or such a result could hardly have been reached. We understand that the affairs of the company are in the hands of assignees who are employed to wind them up. The stockholders in this vicinity will await the result with anxiety."

"That looks rather discouraging, to be sure," thought Walter. "I suppose the mine will need a good deal of money, but I shall not mind being poor, even if it comes to that. As long as he is left to me, I won't complain."

The time passed until the cars stopped at Willoughby station. Walter jumped out and took his way across the bridge to his father's house. By the road it would be a mile, but it was scarcely more than half a mile to the foot path.

road it hastily, and it confirmed his suspicions. It was from a lawyer Mr. Conrad had asked to make inquiries respecting the Great Metropolitan Mining Company, and was as follows:

"William Conrad, Esq.:

"Dear Sir—I have at your request, taken pains to inform myself of the present management and condition of the Great Metropolitan Mining Company. The task has been less difficult than I anticipated, since the failure of the company has just been made public. The management has been in the hands of the honest and respectable men, and it is doubtful whether the stockholders will be able to recover anything."

"ANDREW HOLMES."

Walter folded up the letter, and put it into his pocket. He felt that this letter had cost his father his life, and in the midst of his grief he had very bitter thoughts about the unscrupulous man who had led his father to ruin. Had it been merely the loss of property, he could have forgiven him, but he had been deprived of the kindest and most indulgent of fathers.

"I should like to see my father," he said.

An hour later he came out of the death chamber, pale but composed. He seemed older and more thoughtful than when he entered. A great and sudden sorrow often has this effect upon the young.

"Nancy," he said, "have any arrangements been made about the funeral?"

"No, Walter, we waited till you came. My father had no near relatives. There is a cousin, Jacob Drummond, who lives in Stapleton. It will be necessary to let him know. It will be best to telegraph."

Jacob Drummond kept a dry goods store in the village of Stapleton. He had the reputation of being a very mean man. He carried his meanness not only into his business, but into his household, and there was not a poor mechanic in Stapleton who did not live better than Mr. Drummond, who was the rich man of the place.

NOTHING LIKE LEATHER

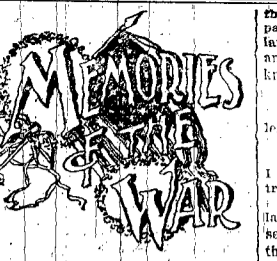

No Satisfactory Substitute Has Yet Been Discovered.

One of the most promising fields for the experiments of the inventive genius, whether he be chemist, mechanic, agriculturist or naturalist, is the search for a substitute for leather, says the Boston Transcript. On this day when the supply of leather seems to have reached its utmost record, and its many uses are steadily increasing, the balance of the law of demand and supply must be preserved by the production of some substitute which combines attributes of leather. The old expression, "There's nothing like leather," has never been contradicted, but now research must be made till something like leather is found suitable to take the wear-and-tear of the feet of millions, and endure as leather has.

The Japanese present their mitsumata tree, the bark of which has some of the qualities of leather, but the Japanese are buying leather for America, so that their bark is not likely to be produced in sufficient quantities to be practicable. The most natural substitute is some textile fabric of such a material, or so chemically treated, as to be impervious to water, and able to withstand severe strain and wear. Already the cotton canvas has become a popular substitute for leather summer shoes. But so far it is not water-tight, nor durable beyond a certain short limit. Its use is confined to the vamps and uppers of the shoe, the old-fashioned leather being depended upon for the sole. The heel of leather has been crowded out in many instances by the rubber heel. The wooden heel figures prominently in Cuban boots, common sense or military styles for women's shoes. But the artificial leather is still imperfect.

Some Kansas genius proposed to press a substance from corn stalks which he avers would serve the purpose. Another wizard of the Middle West desired a stone sole of a substance composed of marble dust, sawdust and glob. The ingenious Japanese have pressed a substance into a substance which is passable as an inner sole, and still the secret is unsolved. Building on the cotton canvas has produced substances made of canvas treated with rubber, but the porosity of leather is not provided for and rubber is becoming itself a scarce substance.

A Yankee genius has proposed the shredding of old leather, then mixing it with some binding substance, and so procuring a built-up leather, but the life of the original has been destroyed. Numerous paths have been blazed out, it will be seen, but the field is still to be traversed in the right direction, and the use of cotton, treated and woven in some way, seems the most promising.

In many of the posts of the Grand Army the custom of a weekly paper or two by members, giving personal experience in the service, has been established. It ought to be the custom in all of the posts, for in no other way can so much valuable history or so many good stories be brought out. There is not a man who was at the front who has not a page or more of unwritten history and a cluster of good stories, both of which the public would be glad to be presented with.

I sat for an hour a few evenings ago, with seventy-five others, and listened with absorbing interest to a paper a soldier had taken a year to get in shape for presentation. Up to that time no one in the society suspected that he could hold much less than a camp, that grizzled body of men. Some of them knew how good a soldier he had been in a regiment that escaped none of the battles of the Army of the Cumberland, but they did not think he could turn himself into a Chauncey Depew; but he could, and did.

Let me tell something about this new entertainer. I heard from a member of his company before giving a few of the stories in his paper. "Tom Ford went into a fight just as a hustler goes into the harvest field—to do the best and all he could. Our first battle was Perryville, Oct. 8, 1862. Ford was sick the day of the fight. Going to the surgeon he said: 'Fix me up for the fight, doctor.'

"Yes, I'll put you in an ambulance." "No, I'm going with the regiment; and he did, allowing the ambulance to carry his knapsack and coat. He was too weak to carry them. He wore a red shirt. We were ordered to charge to a place of ground to support a battery. When reaching the point we were right lively, and we were ordered to fall back. All but Tom Ford obeyed in quick time. He stood by himself, in his red shirt and blue trousers, and loaded and fired as if the rebel depended on his service. The colonel at the top of his voice called: 'You men with the red shirt, fall back.' Tom was too busy to hear. Then the adjutant was ordered to go out and bring the fellow back to the line. Without a word he took his place in the front rank and resumed firing. He was that kind of a soldier—the best type in any army."

In his paper Tom Ford told of a young fellow who had been remembered by a friend with a $12 package of choice fine cut tobacco. It was more than he needed or could carry, so he got a chum to help him, and they put it up in small packages and sold it. The paymaster was paid due and most of the boys were out of money, and the tobaccoist had to give time. This was on the eve of the battle of Stone River. The slaughter in the tobacco merchant's company was great. At a moment when the fight was the hottest and four or five of his comrades who had bought his tobacco on time were lying dead or mortally wounded, the young fellow rushed to the captain and in an agony of spirit exclaimed: "My God, captain, who is going to pay me for the tobacco those dead men got trusted for?"

"Go to the devil with your tobacco; get into line and go to shooting!" Tom Ford had two brothers in the Army, and his father was a member of Briggs' Chicago battery. He did not know that two of his boys were in the Twenty-fourth Wisconsin until after Stone River. When he learned where they were the father lost no time in visiting them. Going to Colonel Lawrence he said: "Colonel, I have two boys in your regiment. I want them with me in the Chicago battery. Will you show them to be transferred?"

"No, sir; they are good boys, and I want them in my command."

"But, colonel, they are my boys."

"They are not your boys, sir—they are my boys, and you can't have them until the war is over."

through camp the men in Ford's company barked like so many Newfoundland dogs. It nettled the Kentuckian, and he demanded of the captain to know what it meant.

"I can't tell you, general."

"Then call out one of your men and let me question him."

"One of the foragers was trotted out. 'What do you mean by barking as I came into this camp. Tell me the truth.'"

"Well, general, you remember that last sleep you had taken from us and sent to your mess, and that you and the staff feasted on, don't you?"

"Yes, but what has that to do with this infernal howling?"

"Everything, general; that wasn't a sheep at all; it was a Newfoundland dog."

For half a minute the proud-spirited Kentuckian looked hard at the man. Then he laughed and rode away.

"The night we captured Missionary Ridge I saw a dead Confederate colonel," said Ford. "After dark I went to him and took his handsome overcoat, and when I laid down for sleep put it over me. Tired and sleepy as I was, and I was never more so, I could not sleep. I kept thinking of that dead man. About 1 o'clock I got up, took the coat to the colonel, replaced it just as I found it, and went back and slept soundly. I've always been and I didn't keep the colonel's coat."—J. Watrous in Chicago Times-Herald.

Acquire Bravery.

"I would like to let young men know," said an old soldier, "that bravery, like almost any other attribute, can be acquired. I would like to let them know this, because there are some poor fellows who are brought into the world with a timid nature, that causes them much suffering. While having an admiration for brave men, they feel that they are cowards, and, accustomed themselves to this belief, they never attempt to fight against their weakness. Do you know I really believe that most of the noted brave men of the world have become brave simply by systematically overcoming cowardice. I did not know Napoleon's most dashing general said: 'The man who says he never felt fear is a fool and a liar.' But while Lannes thus acknowledged to the sensation of fear, he never allowed himself to show it, and that is the point. Moreover, by practice such things become easy. Now, if there is any young man who is a coward and wishes to become brave, let me say this to him: Make up your mind first of all that it is much preferable to suffer death than to be trampled upon or humiliated. From what you have experienced you know the disgust, the suffering, acute and degrading, that results when you back down in an unmanly fashion. Say this, then, I much prefer to die than to experience such feelings again. Impress it upon your mind, and then, as a test to your spirit, force yourself to face those things that you have been avoiding from fright. If a man has been overawing you, bludgeoning you, plain terms, lay for him deliberately, bluff him back double, and if he wishes to fight, throw yourself upon him with a vim and punch hard; he cannot do more than kill you; and as you have made up your mind that it is better to die than to submit to humiliation, your death, as it were, is a thing already programmed. And, if you whip him, the sensation is very agreeable and frees you from any further fears of falling a victim to cowardice."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Begin Service as Home Guard.

On April 22, 1861, I with about fifty other boys, neighbors of mine, and some old men, organized and went to drilling," writes James Malone in the National Tribune, and before many days we had the successists to contend with. We made our own flags and drums. Some of us had squirrel guns, some single-barrel and some double-barrel shotguns, while some had no guns, but had big knives made out of plover files. This was April 22, and, of course, we were only Home Guards, but it was necessary to organize in order to hold old Missouri in the Union, which we did in the shape. I served in the Home Guards until Jan. 20, 1862, when I enlisted in the Twenty-first Missouri for three years. I enlisted near Vicksburg on March 27, 1865, and served until April 10, 1866. In all I had over four years' service. My Home Guard service was just as hard as the United States service. My first battle, after enlisting in the United States service, was Shiloh, and I think I know when the battle opened. Our regiment and the Twenty-fifth Missouri were the first engaged. A part of my regiment and a part of the Twenty-fifth were sent out before day—I think about 3 o'clock in the morning—to see what was going on, and we found considerable boys who are living and who were there know the rest, so will just say that my first big fight was Shiloh and my last one was Fort Blakely, and here I am, way out in California, living in that land of sunshine and flowers. Would like very much to hear from some of the comrades who were with me from start to finish.

Attitude of Some Southerners.

A curious and striking illustration of the attitude of some Southerners of to-day toward the Union comes from Dallas, Texas. A slain battle had been planned as a part of the attraction of an agricultural fair. The participants on one side were to be the Confederate Guards, and on the other a body of the National Guard. The commander of the Confederate forces informed those in charge of the plans that on no account would his troops take part in the national guardsmen take part in the American flag. "We will not fire on the Stars and Stripes even in a sham battle. We stopped doing that in 1865," he declared. This is the spirit that prompts the patriotic disputes among boys who are planning a battle of the Revolutionary War: "Well, who's going to be the British? We ain't."

followed his orders. President Hadley, of Yale, coming back to New Haven late one night, got onto one of the cabs at the station, and, taking it for granted that the cabby knew who he was, said:

"Drive fast, cabby."

"All right, sir," replied cabby. The horse started off with a plunge and kept up his rapid rate for half an hour, going up one street and down another. Finally the cabby, seeing that he was being taken in the wrong direction, stuck his head out of the window and asked: "Are you not going in the wrong direction, cabby?"

"Hanged if I know, mister," was the astonishing reply: "where do you want to go?"

COFFIN WOOD MINES.

John Chinaman Digs for Material Most Prized for Caskets.

There exists no object which the average Chinaman exhibits more regard for than the narrow box which is destined to contain all that is mortal of a man," says the Grand Magazine. "He is never happy until it is in his possession. It occupies a conspicuous position in his house, and the richer he is the more he expends on its acquisition and adornment."

The coffins most esteemed by the Celestials are manufactured from a peculiar resinous wood, possessing quite extraordinary preservation properties, and four only in one small district in Tonkin, buried in the earth, no living specimens of the tree now being in existence.

The natives search for it quite as eagerly as elsewhere gold and precious stones are run after; and, indeed, the deposits for such they are, are to all intents and purposes mines of wood, the origin of which has never been satisfactorily explained.

Local legends have it that in a far distant past vast numbers of these trees existed in the dense forests with which the whole region was covered, and that as a result of some tremendous cataclysm they were uprooted and precipitated into the ravines. Whether this account is true or not, the buried trees are to-day a source of quite considerable wealth to the lucky person who finds them. For a coffin made of this special wood a Chinaman does not cost less than $50 or $100 at all too high a price to pay.

A remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves. The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and nervous debility is the result.

Perrina is not a nerve tonic or a stimulant. It benefits the nerves by benefiting digestion.

Perrina frees the stomach of catarrhal congestions and normal digestion is the result.

In other words, Perrina goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the distressing symptoms disappear.

"I was troubled with my stomach for six years. Was treated by three doctors. They said that I had nervous dyspepsia, was put on a liquid diet for three months.

Improved under the treatment, but soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again.

I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine, being cured by Perrina, so I thought I would give it a trial.

I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured."

DO-NOTHING SESSION ENDS 'MID GREAT JOY

Currency Bill is Passed by Congress in Its Closing Hours.

NATION LIABLE TO WORKER.

Employers' Bill and Public Buildings Measure Among Last Ones to Become Laws.

Washington correspondence: The first session of the Sixtieth Congress came to a spectacular end ten minutes before midnight Saturday night. The last legislative day of the session was marked by a spurt of action which, continued a little bit farther, might have put a crimp in the relative "do nothing" program which the leaders set out to fulfill some months ago.

After adopting the currency conference report the Senate went ahead Saturday afternoon and passed the bill providing compensation for injuries to civil employees of the government engaged in hazardous work. Several amendments adopted by the Senate were accepted by the House unanimously, and thus the Roosevelt percentage in the contest with Congress over the policies of the administration went up several points.

One of the last measures to get through was the public buildings bill, which was held back to the last moment for the purpose of keeping members here until the currency bill became an act. A message from President Roosevelt, read to the House at 10:20, told of the signing of both the currency and public buildings bills, and a wild tumult of applause followed.

The end was spectacular. With that freedom from dignity that always characterizes the breaking up time in the House of Representatives the recesses between the receiving of messages from the Senate and the President were given over to wild hilarity. There were singing contests between the members on the floor and the newspaper men in the press gallery. Every member of the floor had an American flag. They waved the flags and sang all the old melodies and a lot of songs of brand-new construction set to the old tunes.

Aside from the regular supply bills making appropriations for the support of the government during the next fiscal year, the achievements and failures of Congress during the session may be summarized as follows:

What Congress Has Done.
Enacted an emergency currency law.
Prohibited child labor in the District of Columbia.

Prohibited race track gambling in the District of Columbia.

Increased widows' existing pensions from $8 to $12 a month.

Granted pensions of $12 a month to practically all widows of Mexican and Civil War soldiers.

Authorized expenditures of $30,000,000 for public buildings.

Authorized general appropriations amounting to nearly a billion dollars.

Ordered a currency commission to report on revision of financial and banking laws of the country.

Reclassified the consular service.

Passed employers' liability law to take place of the one declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Permitted free operation of foreign vessels in trade with Philippines.

Passed administration bill authorizing passage to sue the government for personal injuries sustained while in the line of duty.

Established a range for breeding American buffalo.

Started the machinery for tariff revision by the appointment of an investigation commission.

Authorized the construction of two battleships with the promise of two next session.

Raised the pay of all officers and men of the army and navy, marine corps and revenue cutter service.

Passed a militia law making every able-bodied man between 18 and 45 years liable to service.

Adopted arbitration treaties with nearly every country in Europe and with Japan.

Continued the work of the waterways commission.

Provided for the defense of the Philippines and Hawaiian ports by submarine mines and fortifications.

Appropriated $1,500,000 for participation by the United States in the Japanese exposition of 1910.

What Congress Has Not Done.
Refused to place wood pulp on the free list.
Declined to accept President Roosevelt's four battleship proposition.

THE SIXTIETH CONGRESS.

Met Dec. 2, 1907.
Appropriated $1,008,804,804, exceeding total of last session by $88,008,750.

Passed currency bill after delay in Senate by filibuster lasting twenty-seven hours and fifteen minutes, in which 110,680 words, equal to thirty columns of newspaper space, were uttered.

Adjourned May 30, 1908.

Failed to adopt postal savings bank plan.
Passed up until next December the bill to reauthorize discharged colored troops.

No national child labor law, but date set for its consideration next December.
Granted no increased powers to prohibition States over interstate shipments of liquors.

Enacted no law requiring publicity of campaign expenses.
Made no provision for the "spanking" of Castro, the Venezuelan president.

Failed to put wireless telegraphy under government control.
Failed to give interstate commerce commission authority to pass upon proposed increased railroad rates before they go into effect.

Failed to relieve the coal-carrying railroads from the necessity of disposing of their mines.
Failed to consider bills regulating dealings in options.

Other Important Bills that Failed.
Administration Civil Federation bill to amend the Sherman Anti-Trust law.
Bill for the reduction of the tariff on the products of the Philippine Islands.

Anti-injunction bill. [There are ten or fifteen measures of this nature before Congress.]
Bills for revision and codification of the laws of the United States in accordance with the report of a commission which put in seven years at the task.

Bill to make Porto Ricans citizens of the United States.
Bill for retirement of superannuated federal clerks.

Bill to provide embassies for representatives of the United States in foreign countries.
Bill to establish forest reserves in the southern Appalachians and in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

CURRENCY BILL PASSES.

Measure Is Forced Through Despite Filibustering Tactics.

Washington correspondence: With the end of the most remarkable filibuster in the history of the Senate and the passage of the Aldrich-Vreeland emergency currency bill by both houses and the winding up of other business, the Sixtieth Congress adjourned sine die at 11:50 o'clock Saturday night.

At 4:30 o'clock the Senate adopted the report of the conferees of the two houses on the currency bill by the decisive vote of 43-22, and thus was taken the last congressional step necessary toward the enactment of emergency currency legislation, toward which Congress has directed its principal effort since it convened last December.

The result came unexpectedly soon, but not until the Senate had been well worn out by a filibuster which, while not largely supported, made up in intensity what it lacked in numbers. The obstructive tactics were begun by Senator La Follette (Republican) of Wisconsin when the report was taken up by the Senate, Friday, and being prosecuted by him all Friday night, was continued Saturday by Senator Stone (Democrat) of Missouri and Senator Gore (Democrat) of Oklahoma.

Mr. La Follette broke the record as a long distance speaker, talking eighteen hours and forty-three minutes; Mr. Stone held the floor for six hours and a half, almost without interruption, and Mr. Gore spoke for something more than two hours.

When Senator La Follette ended his record breaking speech at 7:03 a. m. Saturday he was still in strong voice, and said that he was "reluctant" to yield the floor, but realized that other Senators wished to speak.

Many of the Senators were routed out of bed Friday night and early Saturday morning and brought into the chamber to make a quorum. Among these were Senators Stone and Gore, the Senate leaders deciding that it would not be good policy to allow them to enjoy an uninterrupted night's rest and be fresh for the task of continuing the filibuster begun by Mr. La Follette. Many of the Senators were brought in partly dressed by the deputy sergeants-at-arms.

President Roosevelt was summoned to the Capitol to sign bills during the last hours of Congress at 9 o'clock. He was waited upon by a committee comprising Representatives Payne, Hepburn and Williams, and Senators Hale and Teller. Shortly before 10 o'clock he signed the compromise currency bill. Previous to his signature of the currency bill the President had handed it to Secretary Cortelyou, who carefully read its provisions. Two other members of the Cabinet were present—Secretaries Root and Garfield.

Case Against the Buttercup.
Dr. W. N. Chaffault, who recently announced the theory that many of the cases of meserles are due to the poison contained in the common field buttercup, now adds to the indictment against this flower of hitherto good reputation by asserting that it is probably the origin of cancer and other maladies. He has found that it contains a number of active poisons, one of which, if taken internally, may cause death.

Girl of Three Poisons Eats Sister.
Elizabeth Hopersten, aged 18 months, was instantly killed in Cincinnati by strychnine powder given to her by her sister, Annie, aged 3. Mrs. Hopersten, mother of the child, got the powder for herself from Dr. Edward Johnson. Annie saw the powder, and thinking them candy, gave them to her sister.

AGRICULTURAL

two per day. Now she has hatched one of thirteen eggs fifteen healthy chickens. Mrs. Bush can not account for the extra number except that there must have been two pairs of twins.

Fruit and Truck Farms.
The man who has not capital to purchase a large farm must be satisfied with small holdings. Ten acres in fruit and truck garden will furnish occupation for one man all the time, and during fruit harvest extra help will need to be employed.

If the husbandman can realize as large returns for his individual labor devoted to the cultivation of ten acres of land as he could from operating a quarter of a section it would be great economy to work the smaller farm and place the residue of his capital at interest.

Truck gardening and fruit growing have become established branches of agriculture. The farmer raises his own supplies of fruit and vegetables, but the multitude of residents of cities depend on the professional fruit grower and market gardener for their supplies of fruit and vegetables. Small farms are multiplying annually and become profitable investments when operated to truck gardening and fruit growing.

An acre of citrus in average seasons will return a gross income of $300 to $700 and fruit will average $250 to $300 per acre. An acre of apple trees have sold as high as $1,200 on the trees, the purchaser furnishing the packages and harvesting the crop.

The land can be so operated as to produce a crop of early peas and followed by turnips or late cabbages. Small farms are particularly adapted to men in moderate circumstances and who depend on their labor to support their families. The small farm not only yields a large cash income when properly managed, but it furnishes a home for the family and guarantees steady employment to the owner two months in the year.—Goodall's Farmer.

A Farm Dairy.
The accompanying plan for a farm dairy will give a general idea of the requirements for such a building. Accommodation is made for handling the milk of thirty cows and making butter. A cement floor is in every way superior to a wooden floor for a creamery.

When properly put in, a cement floor will last indefinitely and can be kept clean and sanitary, whereas a wooden floor is short lived, quickly rots out and is always a source of contamination.

Spraying for the Codling Moth.
The apple trees should be sprayed for codling moth as soon as the blossoms have fallen. For this the Colorado Experiment Station says arsenic of lead or Disparuren, should be used in the proportion of 3 to 4 pounds to 100 gallons of water. The merits of this poison are—it will not injure foliage and it adheres better to the foliage than other poisons. The second application should be made from seven to ten days later.

Raising Corn.
Making every hill contain at least two stalks, and each stalk contain at least one average sized ear, is the secret of successful corn raising. As soon as the corn is an inch high, replant every hill that contains no plants. While this may be a little later than the first planting, and some may not get out of the way of frost, it will make good cattle feed if nothing more.

Calves with Scours.
A dairyman gives this remedy for white scours: Carbolic acid diluted 1 to 5; keep a vial in my pocket and just as soon as the calf was dropped I poured some on the navel next to body and some on the nose, and every calf that I got before dry I raised, but when dropped in the night, and the cow flicked dry before I got them, they died.

A Few Farm Hints.
Alfalfa or clover makes an excellent pasture for hogs.

Keep the water sprout growths rubbed off the fruit trees.

Oats make one of the best horse feeds grown on the farm.

Cow peas are to the South what clover and alfalfa are to the North.

Angora goats have been found exceedingly profitable on many farms.

Borlengh mixture is the best all-around spraying material in existence.

In renting land be sure to make a contract with the tenant and then both live up to it.

No one is quite so much out of place as the farmer who retires to a white-clothed place in town.

All the corn growing land is taken. Cheap corn land is no more. The price of corn must stay up.

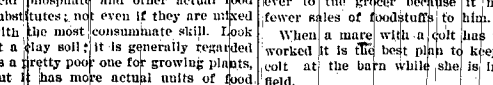

A farmer's garden is not a joy forever to the grocer because it means fewer sales of foodstuffs to him.

When a mare with a colt has to be worked it is the best plan to keep the colt at the barn while she is in the field.

Change pastures as often as possible, especially with sheep, as they are apt to become contaminated with some disease.

The atmosphere contains in unlimited quantities one of the most essential plant foods, Nitrogen, but the farmer must grow legumes before he can get any benefit from this vast store.

Connecting of Drain Tiles.
It is difficult to cut large tile with a view to fitting small tile to connect latrines with main drains. There is a great deal of danger of the tile breaking, and one is likely to lose two or three large tile in attempting to form a junction, and, at the best, the junction is likely to be a poorly formed one, unless considerable care is taken in covering the openings and cementing the joint. I have, therefore, found it advisable to recommend the use of a connecting box or basin, built in the main drain at points where laterals connect. These basins may be made of plank or brick or cement, according to convenience or fancy. Of whatever materials, the box should be from twelve to eighteen inches square, according to the size of the main tile. The best time to build the box is when the main tile is laid. Two sides of the box, namely opposite sides, will be used for the main tile, the other two sides when the box is built should be fitted with the first tile of the laterals, which may be humpilately or at some subsequent time completed. This basin of box should extend six to twelve inches below the line of the drain, and besides serving for connecting the basins will serve for a silt basin. That is, it will collect any sediment which may happen to get into the various lines of the discharging into it. Also, the box may be continued to the ground surface and be provided there with a tight cover, or if it is not desired to have a box exposed thus in the way, it may be covered with plank about fifteen inches below the ground surface and then covered over with soil—the position of the box being carefully marked on the drain map or its distance measured from two points near at hand. Such a basin is an excellent device to use where two or three lines of drain unite.

Of whatever material the box is built, the tile on the four sides should be carefully fitted in so as to allow nothing to enter the box except what goes there through the tile.

If the main drain is to be built of plank, it certainly would be better to spike the plank for two reasons: First, to prevent displacement, and secondly, to prevent entrance of solid matter. It has been found that the joints of the box will afford sufficient means of ingress for the water even if the planks

Dueling in Old Creole Days.

When dueling was an actual factor in the social order of this country, it had many worthy and notable exponents, including no less distinguished personages than Henry Clay, Andrew Jackson, Alexander Hamilton, De Witt Clinton, Stephen Decatur and others of the same type, but nowhere on this continent was it so much an established institution as in that peculiarly romantic old city of New Orleans. It was woven into the very fabric of the life of the community, and many a crumbling tombstone in the antiquated creole cemeteries bears grim and silent witness to the fact, though to understand the situation more clearly one should breathe, so to speak, the atmosphere of the period.—Louis J. Meander in Century.

Some Succeed Where Others Fail

In looking about you may not understand why some are successful and others fail. There is not very much difference in humanity and the only difference there really is, some think they are wise and understand everything, others believe they know a few things, and are willing to use the experience that others have, to their advantage. The wise usually fail because life is too short to learn everything. The successful learn a few things and take advantage of the expert knowledge that others have for their benefit, and succeed.

We take for a sample the fact that you must buy shoes, and it is not possible unless you have had years of experience in the shoe business, that you can know much about shoes. Now we have gained that knowledge by being in the business for more than 30 years and you can take advantage of what we know, by patronizing this store, or you can buy shoes of some one that has but little knowledge of the shoe business and you may fail, to get the full value for your money. Why not see us before you buy shoes for men or boys? We have more to show you, and have shoes that we have sold the same make for more than 20 years. You will not fail to get the best if you trade with us, you take no chance here of making a mistake in buying shoes. Our "Bad Boys" shoes will outwear two pair of any other make, and no boy can wear them out. Better try a pair on your boy if he is hard on his shoes. Now you may have trouble in fitting your feet. Come to us and see how nice we can do that for you. Your feet will not hurt and you don't have to wait until your shoes are old before you get any comfort wearing them. We can fit your feet so you will get comfort at once, just give us a chance. Work shoes should be just right, and we have them. Better see us for the next pair you need. Fine Shoes, we beat them all in both style and quality. We have more of them and beat them all on prices.

For small boys we have the Educator Shoes, these shoes have room for the feet to spread and grow. Just see them and you will understand why your boy should wear them. Our prices are as attractive as our shoes and our experience is longer than any merchant's in the county.

If you want to be successful you surely will try this store for shoes. Let us show you before you buy the next pair, no matter if you are satisfied with the shoes you have been buying of others, it will do no harm to see what we have, and we know you will find better satisfaction wearing our shoes. Any shoes we sell we warrant them to give satisfaction. Give us the next chance at your feet.

Funeral of Wm. Wright

The funeral of Wm. Wright who died at Long Beach, Cal., last week was held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the family home in this city, conducted by Rev. T. C. Osborne.

Mrs. Wright and son arrived here this morning from California with the body of Mr. Wright after a long and tedious journey they having been delayed considerable by floods in the west.

William Marion Wright was sixty-four years, seven months and two days old. The immediate cause of his death was intestinal obstruction, although he had been in poor health for some time. The funeral services this afternoon were largely attended by the many friends of the family and among those from out of town present were Mr. and Mrs. R. H. James, John Wright, a brother; of Monmouth, Ill., and a sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Graham of Alexis, Ill.

The family have the sympathy of all in their sorrow.

Announcement for Senate

I hereby announce that I am a candidate for the nomination for senator in this Eleventh senatorial district subject to the will of the republican voters at the primaries to be held September 1, 1908.—C. A. Randall.

Announcement for Senate

I desire to announce to the republican voters of the Eleventh Senatorial District, that I am a candidate for the nomination for Senator of said District at the Primary Election to be held September 1st, 1908, and hereby earnestly solicit the vote of every republican in the District.—R. Y. Appley.

Senatorial and Legislative Affairs

Nebraska elects a new legislature this year and fortunate will the people of the state be if the "make up" of the next General Assembly is as good as the last one. The work of the last legislature stands out as having accomplished more remedial legislation than any of the preceding ones as far back as runs the memory of the people and there is a disposition to require that the standard of the last legislature must be repeated in the next. The wave of reform which swept over this state was not merely a temporary spasm, as some have tried to believe, but was a genuine earnest demand for a change in conditions and most of the newspapers in the state are giving due and timely notice that they will support no candidate who is not pledged to the square deal policies.

In this the Eleventh Senatorial district comprising of the counties of Wayne, Madison, Stanton and Pierce there are two aspirants for the republican nomination, Senator C. A. Randall of Newman Grove and R. Y. Appley of Stanton.

Senator Randall represented this district in the last legislature and it is to be said to his credit that he invariably lined up with the progressive element and was not only in harmony with the reforms pledged by the republican party but in his activity initiated some legislation. He did special good service for Wayne and Wayne county which is appreciated.

R. Y. Appley is one of the substantial republicans of Stanton county and while he has no legislative record to stand on the republicans of Stanton county vouch for his progressive ideas, and they furthermore contend that in the unwritten law of alternating the candidates from one county to another that Stanton is entitled to present the candidate this year and that the custom should not be made obsolete simply because of the enactment of a new way in naming a candidate. There is a fear however, that the rank and file of the party do not attach as much importance to this feature as have the old time conventions. Be that as it may the Herald believes that the selection of the voters will be made on what the candidates stand for more than any other reason and in the time intervening between now and the primary election in September the voters will expect to have a pretty good idea as to where the candidates stand on important matters.

The state platform will not be formulated until after all nominations are made but somehow or other the people have lost sight of platform declarations and pay more attention to the individual—what his record is—with what element he has trained in the past and whether or not he is frank enough to take the people into his confidence and tell

A. King, Supt. of Home Dep't, Mrs. Gay Wilbur, Supt. of Teacher Training Dep't, Mrs. Dan Harrington; Supt. of Adult Bible Class Dep't; Rev. Parker Smith, Supt. of Primary Dep't, Mrs. C. J. Ringer.

Dan Harrington returned Sunday from Twin Falls, Idaho, where the Wayne party went to the drawing of the Salmon river irrigation lands. The lands were disposed of by lottery and the fortunate ones were required to pay $3.25 per acre down and other payments for irrigation coming later as the land is furnished with water. Messrs Harrington, Snyder and Robbins bought a 500 acre tract of land near Ashton where E. Cunningham has his ranch and members of the party also bought quite a block of city property at Twin Falls which will be one of the coming towns of that section. There were 5000 people at the drawing and all the members of the party are enthusiastic over that part of the west.

The Dixie Carnival company which has been holding forth in Oakland the past week, has been having a hard time to get a crowd to their shows, owing to the rainy weather. They have good, clean shows and places of amusement, there being nothing immoral or vulgar about them. The Golden City is well worth 25 cents, and it costs but 10 cents. Their moving pictures are some of the best we have ever seen, and are true to real life and strictly up to date. Mr. Dana Thompson, the general manager of the carnival, is a good entertainer and wants everybody to have a good time and will see to it that they do. The Ferris wheel is another good feature of the company and is a source of great pleasure for both old and young. If this carnival ever returns to Oakland they will be assured of a liberal patronage and a hearty welcome, and we sincerely hope they will return some time, and if they should, we will hope for better weather—Oakland Mail. The company will be here to and including Saturday.

Over 200 Sacks of Wayne Flour Sold Last Week

This speaks for itself, as one man said, "It makes me smile to sit down at the table and cut the bread made from Wayne Flour." Another said, "I am afraid you will not be able to make it fast enough, it makes such elegant bread." Human nature is much the same the world over. The fact of an article being manufactured in your own city, Chicago, New York or Germany does not weigh with the average consumer. He wants a first class article and wants it cheap. We are making that article and are selling it cheap. It makes white bread. It makes a flaky loaf. It makes sweet bread without being tough. In fact the flour is neither too fine or too coarse. It sells for less money. It saves you from 15 to 25c a sack and it gives splendid results. Superlative, $1.50 per sack; Snowflake, $1.35 per sack, by all merchants. It is an "Ideal" housewife's flour.

 The Winside saloon matter is not yet settled. The council granted licenses but the remonstrators appealed to the District court. The saloons were allowed to re-open and now the remonstrators have brought mandamus proceedings asking that the licenses be revoked until the controversy is settled by the District court.

British General Who Lost Fine Military Reputation in Africa. General Sir Redvers Henry Buller died in London after an illness of several weeks. He was born in 1833. Gen. Buller, for many years a famous soldier, was obliged to retire from the army with a discreditable record because of the successive defeats suffered during the Boer war. He was a "federal" soldier and had won the Victoria cross for gallant deeds in India, Egypt, and other parts of the world where Great Britain had fighting to do.

Death Takes Buller. The action which finally led to his untimely end was connected with the siege of Ladysmith in the autumn of 1899. Buller was commander in chief of the forces sent against the Boers and

PAPERS BY THE PEOPLE

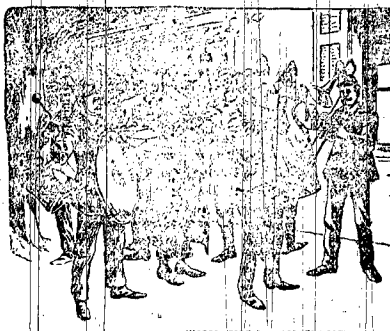

THE YOUNG MAN IN PUBLIC LIFE.

By United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge. The man who stopped thinking ages ago and who therefore believes that all questions are spurious at those about which he is thinking in his prime, but which have been settled long ago cannot even grasp the meaning of public life today. Indeed, the latter is a real obstacle to the solving of our present-day problems.

Such a public man is not understood that the constantly revised intellect of the nation is yearning with new ideas, born of new conditions, and so he thinks that all new questions are really old questions at all, and would dismiss them altogether if he could. Public men must take their stand on public questions while those questions are up for debate, not after they are decided.

Sanity Before Prosperity. By Ex-Gov. Black of New York. This is a splendid country. Not one in history has equaled it in its past achievements or in the glory of its future promise. But it must turn in its leadership and reorganize its scattered resources if it would realize the wonderful future which its past accomplishments foretell.

The Village Band. Its Delights Are Unknown to Boys and Girls Brought Up in Cities. "When I was a little shaver and didn't have anything to do in the daytime but go down and see that the 3-40 train got in all right and had never else to go at night except on Thursday, when the Jonesville Cornet Band met in the village square room for weekly practice, I used to envy the city clubs and think I was having a pretty rotten time of it."

Character in Walking. Traits Which are Readily Disclosed by One's Gait. "There's a conceited man coming down the streets," said the girl in the group on a corner. "How do I know? By his walk. I can tell the chief trait of any person's character by watching him or her walk. For instance, if a man walks with a heavy lift to his hips he's sure to be obstinate. If he sinks down a little on his heels he has a comfortable attitude toward wife and the world in general—in fact, he's a bit lazy."

From Far and Near. A Federal grand jury has begun its investigation of alleged land frauds said to have been committed by Unattached Co., Oregon. Lieut. Archibald Tazart, biggest policeman in New York, is 6 feet 6 inches tall and 300 pounds in weight, has retired at the twenty years to become a butcher.

ALLISON WINS IN IOWA.

Returns Indicate Nomination of the Hawkeye Senator. Returns from more than 800 precincts Wednesday indicated that Senator Allison had defeated Governor Cummins in the fight for the Republican Senatorial nomination, as a result of the State primaries. The Allison men claimed at least 10,000, but the Cummins leaders would not concede this.

Reincarnation—Its Meaning and Proofs. By Annie Besant. To many people the word of reincarnation carries with it an ideal aim, almost grotesque. Even men who in their youth studied "the humanities" and were familiar with the many allusions to it in Greek and Roman authors, never regarded it serious the belief on which the greatest classical authors based their views of life and framed their canons of morality.

Winside

From Winside Tribune.

The question of "Where are we going to spend the Fourth" is about as much discussed now days as the school question.

P. A. Panabaker of Omaha was transacting business in Winside a couple of days the latter part of last week.

Sheriff Mears came over from Wayne Monday night and drove eight miles out in the country on official business. It rained and the sheriff was well soaked before he got back to town which was about four o'clock Tuesday morning.

Last Friday evening at about nine o'clock, Mrs. Frank Perrin and Hazel came screaming from their home to the Clayton home, which is just a block below, and reported that there was a man in their house. Mrs. Clayton telephoned for the Marshal, and a dozen men were soon on the scene, but no man could be found. It seems that Mrs. Perrin and Hazel were gone all day but were in the house most of the evening entertaining Mrs. Clayton and the children, and when they went home Mrs. Perrin and Hazel accompanied them, leaving the lamp burning. They were gone but a short time, when they returned to the house and commenced to get ready for bed. When Hazel opened the door to her bedroom and reached in, she said that something touched her arm and she was sure a man was standing at the foot of the bed. As there had been a tramp in that part of town that day, the supposition was that he had gone into the house while the folks were out and concealed himself in the bedroom. The story made considerable excitement among the female population, and now every woman in town is very careful to look under her bed before retiring.

Carroll Notes

Quite a number of Carroll people are having the measles, but in a very mild form.

Owing to the every-day rains the farmers are enjoying a rest from the fields.

Laverne Garwood of Wayne has been visiting Gladys Francis the past week.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Carroll have certainly made an improvement in the M. E. church, a new coat of paper has just been put on by Williams & Son.

John Goodman was in Sioux City Monday.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Francis June 6.

Frank Sasmann of Scribner visiting his brother and sister, Harry and Mable, the past week.

The past month has certainly been one of weddings, four having taken place, the last one being that of Mr. Mirle Roe and Miss Elenor Buck.

The young men of this vicinity who were a little shy about popping the question are being taken up fast by the young ladies who have been patiently waiting for "leap year."

Mrs. H. A. Moler, the music teacher of Wayne is here every Monday. She has established a very nice class in both instrumental and vocal.

Rip Van Winkle

Rip Van Winkle returned from his long sleep looking as fresh as a daisy and made his way to the village bar-keep, not only because he needed a shave and a hair-cut but also because he wished to catch up on the news.

"Let's see," he said to the barber, after he was safely tucked in the chair, "I've been asleep twenty years, haven't I?"

"Yes," replied the tonsorialist.

"Have I missed much?"

"No, we've been standin' pat."

"Has congress done anything yet?"

"Not a thing."

"Jerome done anything?"

"Nope."

"Platt Resigned?"

"Nope."

"Panama canal built?"

"Nope."

"Bryan been elected?"

"Nope."

"Carnegie poor?"

"Nope."

"Well, say," said Rip, rising up in the chair, "Never mind shaving the other side of my face, I'm going back to sleep again."—Ellis O. Jones.

Chautauqua

The Wayne Chautauqua will open on the high school grounds July 23 and continue eight days. The morning programs will be given to Bible study and Sunday school work. Below we give the afternoon and evening programs. Students' tickets good for the entire Chautauqua will cost only $1.50. All classes which recite after the first period in the afternoon the first five days of the week will recite on Saturdays till the Chautauqua opens, thus getting full class work for the term. No classes will recite in the afternoons after 1:45 from July 23 to July 31 but all other classes will recite daily. This arrangement affords a splendid opportunity, without any loss from the school, to hear some of the best lectures and musical organizations in the country. All of the faculty and more than 500 students attended last year's chautauqua.

Thursday July 23 to July 30, Chautauqua afternoon and evening program.

July 23—Wayne Band Concert, Ex-Senator Carmack, Tennessee, two lectures.

July 24—Jubilee Singers, Virginia, Father J. M. Cleary, Hiawatha entertainment (Illustrated.)

July 25—Jubilee Singers, Governor Hanly of Indiana, A trip to Oberammergau (Illustrated.)

July 26—Jubilee Singers, Dr. Wilbur Crafts, Washington, Dr. Frank Bristol, Washington.

July 27—Wayne Band Concert, Dr. Frank Bristol, Alton B. Packard, New York.

July 28—Wayne Band Concert, Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, Alton B. Packard.

July 29—The Dunbar Co., (Music) Robert S. Seeds, Ralph Parlette.

July 30—The Dunbar Company, Dr. Waters, Ralph Parlette.

In the District Court of Wayne County, Nebraska

In the matter of the application of May House, Guardian of the persons and estates of Grace House, Abbie House and Charlie House, minors, for leave to sell real estate.

Order to Show Cause

On reading the petition duly verified and filed with the Clerk of this Court, by May House, Guardian of the persons and estates of Grace House, Abbie House and Charlie House, minors, for license to sell the following described real estate, situated in Pierce County, Nebraska, to-wit:

The North Half of the Northeast Quarter and the East Half of the Northwest Quarter of Section Twenty-six (26); also the Southeast Quarter and the South Half of the Southwest Quarter of Section Twenty-three (23), Township Twenty-five (25), North of Range One (1) West of the Sixth Principal Meridian, subject to the dower of May House therein.

And it appearing to the Court from the said petition that it would be beneficial to the said wards that said real estate be sold and the proceeds thereof applied in payment of debts and incumbrances on the whole of said lands of said minors it is therefore ordered that the next of kin of said minors and all persons interested in their estate and in said real estate appear before me, the Judge of said Court at Chambers, at the Court House, in the City of Wayne, County of Wayne and State of Nebraska, on the 8th day of June, 1908, at 9 o'clock, A. M., to show cause, if any there be, why license should not be granted to the said May House, guardian of said minors to sell the said described real estate, of said minors, for the purpose above set forth.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks once a week in the Wayne Herald, a newspaper printed and published in said County of Wayne, and that it shall not be necessary to make personal service of said order upon the next of kin or other persons interested in said estate.

Done in open Court at Wayne, Neb. this 25th day of April, 1908.

ANSON A. WELCH, Judge.

No Need of Suffering from Rheumatism

It is a mistake to allow rheumatism to become chronic. As the pain can always be relieved, and in most cases a cure effected by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The relief from pain which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. It makes sleep and rest possible. Even in cases of long standing this liniment should be used on account of the relief which it affords. 25 and 50 cent. sizes for sale by Raymond's Drug Store.

Board of Equalization

Notice is hereby given that the Board of County Commissioners, the County Assessor and the County Clerk will sit as a Board of Equalization commencing Tuesday June 9, 1908 for the purpose of reviewing the Assessor's books, and hearing any and all complaints regarding the assessment of property, both real and personal.

The Board will continue in session for not less than three nor more than twenty days, and all complaints must be made at this time.

Dated at Wayne, Nebraska, this 11th day of May, 1908.

[Seal] Chas. W. Reynolds, County Clerk.

Badly Sprained Ankle Cured

Three years ago our daughter sprained her ankle and had been suffering terribly for two days and nights—had not slept a minute. Mr. Stalling, of Butler, Tenn., told us of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We went to the store that night and got a bottle of it and bathed her ankle two or three times and she went to sleep and had a good night's rest. The next morning she was much better and in a short time could walk around and had no more trouble with her ankle.—E. M. Brumitt, Hampton, Tenn. 25c and 50c sizes for sale by Raymond's Drug Store.

Probate Notice to Creditors

In the County Court of Wayne County, Nebraska.

In the matter of the Estate of Thos. H. Jones, deceased.

Notice is hereby given, That the creditors of the said deceased will meet the Executrix of said estate, before me County Judge of Wayne County, Nebraska, at the County Court Room in said county, on the 18th day of June, 1908, and on the 18th day of November 1908, at 2 o'clock P. M., each day, for the purpose of presenting their claims for examination, adjustment and allowance. Six months are allowed for creditors to present their claims and one year for the Executrix to settle said estate, from this 18th day of May, 1908.

This notice will be published in the Wayne Herald for four successive weeks prior to the 18th day of June, 1908.

Witness my hand and seal of said court, this 18th day of May, A. D., 1908.

E. Hunter, County Judge.

If one feels dull and spiritless, in the spring or early summer, they call it "spring fever." But there is no fever—usually. It is the after effect of our winter habits. The nerves are mostly at fault. Tired, worn-out nerves leave us languid, lifeless, and without spirit or ambition. A few doses of Dr. Shoop's Restorative will absolutely and quickly change all of these depressing symptoms. The Restorative of course won't bring you back to full health in a day or two, but it will do enough in 48 hours to satisfy you that the remedy is reaching that "tired spot." Druggists everywhere are advising its use as a splendid and prompt general tonic. It gives more vim and more spirit to the spoonful than any other known nerve or constitutional tonic. It sharpens a failing appetite, aids digestion, frees sluggish livers and kidneys, and brings new life, strength and ambition. Test it a few days and be convinced.

Superintendent's Notice

Teacher's examinations will be given the third Friday and Saturday following of each month.—A. E. Littell, Superintendent.

Born in Iowa

Our family were all born and raised in Iowa and have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy (made in Des Moines) for years. We know how good it is from long experience in the use of it. In fact when in El Paso, Texas, the writer's life was saved by the prompt use of this remedy. We are now engaged in the mercantile business at Narcossee, Fla., and have introduced the remedy here. It has proven very successful and is constantly growing in favor.—Elmer Bros. This remedy is for sale by Raymond's drug store.

"Health Coffee" is really the closest coffee imitation ever yet produced. This clever coffee substitute was recently produced by Dr. Shoop of Racine, Wis. Not a grain of real coffee in it either. Dr. Shoop's Health Coffee is made from pure toasted grains, with malt, nuts, etc. Really it would fool an expert—who might drink it for coffee. No 120 or 30 minutes tedious boiling. "Made in a minute" says the doctor. Sold by Ralph Rundell.

"I never could understand," said the man who delves into unusual subjects

"why it is always a tropical or semi-tropical ruler who has an abundance of wives. We never hear of a ruler in a cold country having 200 wives."
"Well, I should have not," replied his friend. "Imagine 200 wives going downtown to select their winter furs. The bills would bankrupt a nation."

Lawyer—On what ground, madam, do you base your action for divorce?
Client—On the ground that my husband has what they call the artistic temperament. That's sufficient, isn't it?
Lawyer—Yes, that is ample, but to comply with the legal forms we specify it as incompatibility, neglect, and extreme and repeated cruelty.—Chicago Tribune

The Afghans.
Native Afghan historians assert that the inhabitants of their country are the lost ten tribes of Israel. According to these chroniclers, the Afghans are descended from Afghana, the son of a certain Jeremiah, who was the son of King Sabe. The eastward removal of the seed of Afghana is attributed to Nebuchadnezzar.

The Making of India Ink.
The manufacture of so called India ink has remained a jealously guarded trade secret for centuries. The name of the article itself is a misnomer. The center of its production is situated in the Chinese province Aghu. The raw material is lampblack obtained by the burning of a mixture of oil of sesame with varnish and hog's lard. The slower the combustion the better and more precious is the product. The lampblack is mixed with a certain amount of glue. The dough thus formed is then beaten with steel hammers on wooden anvils, and two laborers working together at this task can finish about forty pounds of the dough per day. A small addition of Japanese camphor and musk gives it its peculiar smell. While still pliant the mixture is slumped in wooden forms and dried during fair weather. In order to be perfect each cake must be exposed to the air for twenty days. Thirty or thirty-two of the ordinary sticks weigh a pound, and the price in China varies, according to the quality, from 50 cents to $35 per pound.
