We don't like to laugh at the ladies, but we must say that some of the prevailing styles in hats this season would almost make a horse laugh. It seems that the idea aimed at is to get as startling an effect as possible. In order to do this, the most violent methods have been used, the most extreme riot of color has been allowed to prevail. A bunch of green straw as big as an umbrella is taken and rolled under a steam roller. After it has been smashed into the most impossible shape attainable, a big ball of red shavings is perched on top and the deed is done—"$7.53, please."—Ex-

A plainview man registered the growth of his corn daily, measuring it by having a stick set in the ground beside the hill. The average growth was a trifle over two inches a day. Roy Ross, north of Laurel, says there were a few days when his corn grew almost twelve inches daily. There is no denying the fact that corn made an unprecedented growth during the past three weeks. Laurel Advocate.

George Marshall of Dodge county has invented a grain shocking attachment, and the Fremont Herald says of its initial trial:

"George Marshall returned yesterday from his farm near Scribner, where he went Monday to give his new shocking machine a practical trial. The trial demonstrated that the machine was built on the right lines, but it was defective in part. Mr. Marshall will at once seek to make the necessary improvements in the way of a larger box and other changes. He states that he has been told that the big manufacturing companies have been at work for years on similar inventions and that none has yet been successful."

An Exchange's idea of the candidate: "His life is not all of smiles, hand-shaking, and candidate cards. He is the victim of grafters and everybody can say what he pleases about him. He travels day after day looking up the voters, everywhere from the town to the cornfield. His fool friends torment the life out of him and he is constantly running down rumors. But he goes on day after day. Then when the election comes he is scared nearly to death. He hangs around nearly all night awaiting the returns and if he is defeated he goes home kicking himself because his many friends urged him to make the race and he wouldn't have thought of running only 'at their earnest solicitation.' If he is elected everybody thinks he ought to be shown favors."

Hot weather notes from the Topeka Capital: Mrs. Mehitabel James of 741 Lincoln street, intent on baking a cake, broke half a dozen eggs into a cake tin yesterday morning. Then she set the tin on a table on the back porch and went into the house to answer the telephone. When she returned to her cake making she found that the sun had not only crept round the corner of the house and scrambled the eggs, but that it had also strewn a few sprigs of parsley over the top of them.

The large diamond which Colonel Richard Travis, proprietor of the Bon Homme Richard livery and sales stables, has worn in his shirt front for many years, melted when exposed to the intense heat yesterday afternoon and ran all over Colonel Travis's cravat. He hastily tore the cravat from his neck and dropped it, flaming gem and all into a bucket of ice water that happened to be standing near, but not until he had been severely burned about the chest and abdomen. The cold water cooled the diamond, but it had flattened to the thickness of thin glass and had attained a diameter of two inches. Colonel Travis will have the gem cut and polished and set into a moohole.

A fire which broke out in the refrigerator in the home of James Malden at 1818 Buchanan street yesterday afternoon, destroyed about 100 pounds of ice and a lot of vegetables, butter and other provender. The fire department made a quick run and saved the building. Chief Wilmarth thinks the blaze was due to a spontaneous combustion.

With two pages, about $600 worth of legal notices—and room for more, the O'Neill Frontier editorial columns breathes an air of optimism.

Talk about the million dollar rains, the warm days the past two weeks have been of equal value in pushing the corn crop.

Wakefield authorities have a standing reward of $25 for evidence that will convict bootleggers.

MONTANA'S BREAD BASKET—THE JUDITH BASIN

MARVELOUS NEW FARMING REGION

Prof. Thomas Shaw Visits Judith Basin in an Automobile and Tells What He Saw There. Greatest Grain Section in Montana.

Fine Homes For Many People. Big Yields of Small Grain and Alfalfa. Flocks and Herds Numerous. Volcanic Soil of Great Richness

THIS COUNTRY NOW OPEN

The now famous Judith Basin, coming to be recognized as one of the greatest of the grain producing areas of Montana, if not indeed of all the west, is in Fergus county. This country is bounded on the north by the Missouri river, on the south and east by the Musselshell, which runs into the Missouri, and on the west by Cascade county. It thus lies almost in the center of Montana. The Judith Basin is so named from the Judith river which, along with its tributaries carry its waters into those of the Missouri.

THE JUDITH BASIN PROPER

The Judith Basin proper contains 2,000,000 acres of land, of which one half is capable of being tilled. The basin is practically encircled by mountain ranges. These are known as the Belt, Highwood, Moccasin, Judith and Snowy ranges, and on the brows of some the snowy garland of purity remains throughout the year.

The surface consists of what are termed benches. These are wide level or gently rolling areas separated by the unending flow. The waters in these, shallow during much of the year, but always pure, fill their respective basins brim full when the hot summer suns of June and July dissolve much of the snow that fell upon the mountains. The valleys of these streams are narrow and banks that hem them in are rather bold. Thus it is that the processes of agriculture will be but little disturbed by broken lands throughout the entire Basin.

EARLY SETTLEMENT IN THE BASIN

Some old timers came into the Judith Basin more than 40 years ago. At that time the buffalo and the badger disputed with Uncle Sam the right to the ownership of the land. These men saw that then, as now, on the unbroken benches the grass produced was unusually abundant. It covered the benches with a dense sward, and crystal waters flowed on through the streams.

Why would not such a land be a paradise for herds and flocks, they justly reasoned, and in due time they covered it with herds and flocks. They prospered greatly. Some of them who did not own even a staff when they went into the country eventually became the owners of holdings that ran into the hundreds of thousands. Their business was quietly conducted, remote from other men. Why should they want it otherwise? The more who knew about the happy character of the land, the more came. So it came about that the steadings of the old timers were located on the streams.

LATER SETTLEMENT IN THE BASIN

Not very many years ago another class of settlers came into the Basin. Some of them pastured lands, the larger the number who would come to dispute with them the right to the product of the public domain. They were 100 miles away from civilization. Why should they want to be nearer? Thus it was that for years and years but few outside of the basin knew about its grazing capabilities, and thus probably hardly knew why they came, but as a rule they wanted a home. Most of them had a cow and a horse or two and a strong pair of hands. In some instances there were two pairs of hands. They were going to farm in a small way, in part with the aid of water and in part without. Those who began by the latter method were watched by the old timers. The only question with the latter was how long could they stay. They would certainly have to go, in the judgment of the ranchmen. These old timers, splendid men in many ways, were peculiar in one respect, in fact so much so as to resemble Scotchmen in their positiveness. They were sure that those dry land farmers would have to go. By they did not. They got astonishing yields and began to sell their products to the ranchers. The latter began to realize that during all the years that they had followed their flocks and herds over the Judith Basin they were treading over

THE RAILROADS TO THE RESCUE

Those who grew grain secured such yields that soon more grain was grown than would supply any local needs. Why should they grow more? What would they do with it? This fact alone would have restricted production had not the railroads come to the rescue. There would be no incentive to grow grain where it had to be driven 100 miles and more to market. Those men who are forever hammering at the railroads for the short comings would do well to ask themselves betimes what the conditions of the country would be without them. About 1902 the Montana railroad reached Lewistown, the principal town in the valley. It is a bright and thriving town of more than 4000 people. It is built in the valley of the Spring creek and right under the shadow of the Moccasin mountains. I was told that just before the advent of the railroad one man near Lewistown had 1000 bushels of wheat. He was unable to realize on it $20.00 in cash. There was a surplus of wheat in the Judith Basin market.

HOW THE BASIN IS REACHED

The Judith Basin is reached by what is known as the Montana railroad when it was built. It was an independent road that began at Lombard on the Northern Pacific railway and eventually reached Lewistown, the length being 157 miles. When the extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway began, it absorbed the Montana line, from Lombard to Harlowton in its re-constructed form it is now a part of the main line of the Milwaukee road. The Basin is reached therefore by rail from Harlowton, which is 61 miles from Lewistown, and Harlowton is reached from the east and the west by the main line of extension of the Milwaukee road.

THE SCRAMBLE FOR THE LAND

The scramble for the land began with the advent of the railroad. Homesteaders came trooping in from far and near. That rush for homesteads still continues. In Fergus county no fewer than 175 entries were made for homesteads in April of the present year. It has been stated that now not more probably than 100,000 acres in the Judith Basin proper are open for entry. Much more than the area named is still open for entry, however in Fergus county.

In former years many of the ranchmen had acquired in various ways large holdings. When a market had been opened for the output, and it had been demonstrated to the ranch men that their grazing lands could virtually beat the continent in yields and in the quality of the grain, it became evident that ranching must be supplanted by farming. This made them willing to sell many of the holdings, which went into the hands of land companies and others, and are now held for sale.

THE COST OF FARMS

I asked S. S. Hobson, a banker and ranchman of Lewistown, what men who came to farm would have to pay for land. He said all the way from $10 to $25 an acre, according to the location. I put the same question to David Hilger, president of the First National Bank, and also the loan and realty company, and he answered: "Our company has 16,000 acres formerly owned by ranchmen that we will sell in farms of any size that will suit the purchaser." This land is virtually 12 miles, more or less, from Moore, on the Milwaukee road. The location is known as the Rock Creek bench. I also put the same question to T. W. Harper, a farmer who was unloading turkey red wheat into a car at Moore. A twinkle came into his eye and his manly, weather-beaten face lit up as he answered: "Let me tell you about one of my wheat crops, and you'll know what land is worth here." "In 1907," he continued, "I grew 52 acres of turkey red winter wheat, which yielded on an average 46 bushels per acre. The price paid to me per acre for that wheat, when delivered at the shipping point, was $40.17 per acre."

The Savidge Bros show troupe came in Monday morning from Marysville, Kansas. There are twenty-six in the company and they expect to be kept busy in northern Nebraska and South Dakota during the fall, playing county fair dates. They are already planning on the next season's output of machines and the campaign for selling the same. The business will be conducted on a much larger scale than formally.

Little Clara Hause the thirteen-year-old sister of Mrs. Wollert died Monday forenoon after a week's illness of appendicitis. The little girl came here from Council Bluffs some time ago for a visit with her sister and about a week ago was taken sick. The case had gone so far however that the chances of recovery was against the little one from the first but it was the only hope of recovery. The body was taken to Council Bluffs, Iowa, Tuesday morning for interment beside her father and mother who are buried there and the funeral will be held today. Many friends deeply sympathize with the relatives in this their hour of sorrow.

Stanton's Candidate.
From Stanton Pickett.
In its issue of last week, the esteemed Newman Grove Reporter intimates that there is considerable opposition among Stanton county republicans to the candidacy of R. Y. Appleby for the state senate. We do not know where brother Miller gets his information, but we hasten to assure him that he has been greatly misinformed. Not a single Stanton county republican has as yet announced his opposition to the candidacy of Mr. Appleby and we do not think that there are any who will do so. Of course, like any other man, Mr. Appleby has a few personal enemies, and some of these, not having the courage to openly express their enmity are stooping to the lowest and vilest methods in an attempt to damage his candidacy.
A sample of their work is contained in the following letter from Stanton, published in the World-Herald some time ago:
"Stanton, Neb., May 25.—To the editor of the World-Herald: I would like to know why is one Joseph Crow, formerly postmaster of the city of Omaha, going over Nebraska hunting out and developing candidates for state senator and representative?
Who, what interest or interests, does Mr. Crow represent, taking so great a concern in the next legislature so early a date?
Why is Joseph Crow taking it upon himself to come out into the various districts and seek to secure the promise of certain men to announce their candidacy?
Why is it that Crow, who in the past, if common report is reliable, has been closely allied with the railroads, calls on none of the rank and file of the republican party, but seeks out only those who are known to be favorable to the railroads and their interests?
How is it that in Stanton county Joseph Crow called only on a few railroad republicans and secured the promise of one of them to announce himself a candidate for the state senate which promise has since been fulfilled?
Is it of any importance or significance that the candidate thus brought into the field by Joseph Crow not long in a republican convention, openly flaunted his railroad pass, saying that he carried a pass and wanted the people to know it.
Shortly after Joseph Crow secured the promise of R. Y. Appleby to announce himself a candidate he went to Norfolk, and that mouthpiece of the railroads, the Norfolk Daily News immediately came out in an editorial endorsing Appleby.
Mr. Crow continued his travels to Neligh. What he did there or elsewhere the writer does not know, but would like to be informed."
Such an underhand, dishonorable attack from the pen of one who is too cowardly to sign his name, would not merit a reply in Stanton county where Mr. Appleby is to well known to require any defense against a slanderous screed of this kind. And the author of it, it was well aware of this fact. Therefore, instead of having it published in the democratic paper at Stanton, he took care to place it where it would be scattered over the entire district, knowing that it would have no effect except where Mr. Appleby's character was unknown.
As for the statements contained in it, anyone who is acquainted with Mr. Appleby and his record, both in politics and private life, knows that they are cowardly insinuations put in such a way as to create prejudice against Mr. Appleby in those sections of the district where he is not so well known as in Stanton county. Mr. Appleby had never spoken to, or seen Mr. Crow until nearly two weeks after his candidacy was announced in the Pickett and the Norfolk News. Mr. Appleby is not, and never has been a railroad republican. His candidacy was not brought about by Joseph Crow. All of these things were well known to the author of the above, and he deliberately and maliciously misstated the facts when he wrote it. That any railroad or any agent of a railroad is in any way, directly or indirectly, connected with Mr. Appleby's candidacy, is an unqualified vicious falsehood, a lie of the blackest kind, and the author of that letter knows it. He knew it at the time the letter was written and for this reason he had not the courage to sign his name. The unknown champion of the people's rights (too diffident to allow himself to be brought before the public eye) professes to know that Joseph Crow visited Mr. Appleby previous to the announcement of his candidacy for the senate. Mr. Appleby's candidacy was announced in our issue of April 23rd and this letter was dated May 25th. Why did its over-modest author allow a full month to elapse before making public these things? Why, if they are true, does he refuse to openly assert them at home? Possibly he may answer these questions in another letter to the World-

Herald, since his extremely retiring disposition forbids him to permit the mention of his name. The letter is a tissue of vile, cowardly falsehoods from beginning to end, and we defy its author or anyone else to prove otherwise.
"Bob" Appleby is Stanton county's candidate. The people of this county have faith in him because they know him. They know that he has never betrayed a trust, whether public or private; they know that he has never broken a promise; they know that he can be relied upon to do as he says. They know that he is one of them—that their interests are his own and that he will faithfully look after them, wherever placed. They know that no railroad or any other corporation can dominate him and it would take more than the pusillanimous falsehoods of one who is to base and cowardly to fight in the open, to shake their faith in him.
Stanton county republicans are for Mr. Appleby and if Brother Miller will take the trouble to look over the situation in this section of the district, he will find that they are for him in an uncertain manner."

EDUCATIONAL, ENTERTAINING

Magnificent Live Stock, Agricultural and Horticultural Display. Fine Race Program—Amusements.

One of the great fairs to be held in the northwest this season is the Interstate Fair, which will open at Sioux City, Iowa, September 7th and close September 12th.

Everything Ready on Monday. The opening day, Monday, September 7th, will see everything on the grounds in readiness for visitors.

Excellent Race Program. Wednesday has been set aside for the great Derby Day. Some of the best and most interesting races will be pulled off in the afternoon of this day.

St. Elizabeth and Presbyterian hospitals, with Dr. James Nevels Hyde, head of the Nebraska South Dakota and Minnesota. Not only are these four states represented by exhibits, but also by visitors.

Thousands of people living within 150 miles of Sioux City have yet to attend the Interstate Fair for the first time.

Prize winning horses, cattle, sheep and swine from the Iowa state fair, the Nebraska state fair and the Minnesota state fair will be on display at the Interstate Fair.

But the exhibits alone do not constitute all that is to be seen at this fair; there will be many other things of interest. Some of the races have attracted the attention of the nation.

"Well," said the customer, as he paid the butcher and bowed toward the door, "I feel like congratulating myself on getting safely out of a mighty bad scrape."

For Over Management

The safest guide for the novice with regard to the heat of an oven is that provided by M. Gouffe, once the royal chef.

Tear up a sheet of kitchen paper into not too small pieces, and lay the oven by placing in it one of these every eight or ten minutes. (All you obtain the desired temperature.) In case of putting into the oven the paper blazes up or burns the paper turns a dark, almost chocolate brown, the oven is a "hot" one, fit for patties and small pastry.

If after the same time the paper becomes a Havana or cigar brown, the oven is "quick" and ready for turts, vol-au-vents, and such like. If the paper in the same time only turns a yellowish brown (the color of a good fair plunk), the oven is "moderately quick" for "soft" things, oven, ready for bread, large mounds of game pies, pound cakes, etc. If, finally, when left in for this time, the paper is barely tinged with a yellowish shade, sponge cakes, meringues and such like may be safely put into it.

Potato Pudding

Parboil and slice four medium-sized potatoes and cook in six cups of boiling water. Put one level tablespoon each of sugar and salt into one round table spoon of butter into a mixing bowl, and into this press the potato through a ricer. Add the potato water, stir and let stand one-quarter of an hour. Stir in two cups of flour, and when lukewarm add one yeast cake dissolved in one cup of lukewarm water and sifted flour enough to make a drop batter. Cover and let stand four hours, or until light. Now add three flour to make a dough that can be kneaded, keeping well covered. Then mold into four loaves, let rise nearly twice in size and bake.

Gooseberry Preserves

A North country recipe of unusual excellence. Weigh equal quantities of fruit and sugar; put the former into a preserving kettle, boil and break it, stir constantly, and let it boil very quickly. When most of the juice is wasted add the sugar and simmer one hour. The gooseberries should be very ripe; if not, add to the fruit in putting over the fire a fourth of a cup of water. Use loaf sugar which has been pounded, or, if available, shaved maple sugar. The boiled sugar makes a delicious preserve for serving with game in the winter. The recipe has been in use fully 100 years in the maple sugar country.

To Corn a Small Piece of Beef

Sometimes it is difficult to get good corned beef, or it is desirable to save a piece of fresh beef in this way. The easiest method is to stir coarse fine salt into cold water until a brine is made strong enough to float an egg and expose a spot as large as a potato slice. Put in the beef, lay a plate on it, and a stone to hold it down. After two days, or four at the most for five or six pounds, the beef will be ready to use, and is often relished better with early vegetables than fresh meat.

White Patty Cakes

Cream one-third cup of butter with one cup of sugar, add one-half cup of milk, one and three-quarter cups of flour sifted twice with two and one-half teaspoons of baking powder, and flavor with a mixture of one-third teaspoon of lemon flavoring and two-thirds teaspoon of vanilla flavoring. Bake in little plain patty pans and cover the top of each with white icing. Garnish with two little leaves cut from angelica and a bit of red candied cherry.

Corn Dairy

Open a can of corn, run the corn through a meat chopper to grind fine all the whole and coarse grains. Place a baking dish on the stove, put in two spoonfuls of butter; when hot add the corn, a tablespoonful of sugar, salt and pepper, cook and stir for a few minutes, and add still in well three beaten eggs and place in the oven until slightly browned; remove, fold a napkin around the dish, set in a pretty plate and place upon the table.

Retain Color of Potatoes

When peeling sweet potatoes or parsnips place them in water in which a teaspoon of vinegar has been mixed and they will not turn dark. Sprinkle a pinch of salt over apples before putting into pie and it will be improved greatly.

Store Suggestions

Newspapers may be used to pad the fronting board, just as well as an old blanket or muslin.

Soup tins applied to drawer slides will keep the drawers in furniture and closets from sticking.

If you will varnish your linoleum floor every three months it will last much longer than without the coats of varnish.

When washing floors or scrubbing windows always put a few drops of paraffin in the water and this will keep away flies, moths and other insects.

The skin from a helled ham will be more easily removed if as soon as being taken from the boiling liquor the ham be plunged into cold water for a moment.

Cheese may be kept from molding by wrapping it in a cloth dipped in vinegar and wrung nearly dry. Cover the cloth with a paper and keep in a cool place.

THE TAFT HIS NOMINATION

Republican Nominee Covers Wide Ground in Accepting Commission as Standard Bearer.

Cincinnati, Ohio, July 30.—Senator William Warner, chairman of the republican nomination committee, in the enforced absence of Senator Lodge, said, officially notifying Mr. Taft of his nomination.

Mr. Taft, you are, of course, not under any obligation to accept the nomination of the United States will expire on March 4, 1909; that the political situation is such that the republican party is in a position to present to the people at the general election to be held in November, a strong and able candidate for the high office; that the republican party in national convention, called to meet in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, and the outlying possessions of the United States, assembled at that place, have elected you as their candidate for the high office; that you have accepted the nomination, and that you have accepted the nomination, and that you have accepted the nomination.

Some of the suggestions of the democratic platform relative to the subject of which I have referred. Take, for instance, the so-called physical valuation of railroads. The clear revenue of railroads, less proper expenses should be limited to a fair profit upon the reasonable value of the property. The sum exceeds this measure, it ought to be reduced. The difficulty in enforcing the principle of this measure, is that the reasonable value of the company's property, and in fixing what is a fair profit, is a matter of great difficulty. The Indianapolis speech and the supreme court have pointed out, the value of the property of a railroad, is not the value of the land which it occupies, but the value of the service and many other circumstances, may be taken into account. The value of the property and it is the former that measures the investment on which a fair profit should be made.

Physical valuation properly used will not generally impair securities. I am convinced that the principle of physical valuation, if properly applied, will not impair securities. The principle suggested above would not impair the present market value of securities. The value of the property of a railroad, is not the value of the land which it occupies, but the value of the service and many other circumstances, may be taken into account. The value of the property and it is the former that measures the investment on which a fair profit should be made.

The administration is an epoch in American history. To no other period since the American republic was founded, has there been such mighty progress in those departments of government which make for justice and peace, and in which the highest aspirations of the American people have found voice. Their most exalted and noblest purposes of all his countrymen, American men and women, have been lifted up to a higher plane, and the nation has been brought to him at all times their unqualified and earnest support. Another suggestion in respect to subordinate and ancillary machinery necessary to carry out republican policies is the incorporation of a national law or the licensing by national license or enforced registry of companies engaged in interstate commerce. All corporations doing a commercial business, and engaged in interstate commerce, should be required to file with the federal government a statement of their financial condition, and to be subject to the supervision of the federal government.

It is necessary therefore to devise some means of supervising and ensuring federal supervision of such corporations as have the power and temptation to effect a consolidation of their interests. Such corporations could be engaged in a very small percentage of all engaged in interstate commerce.

What is Unlawful Trust? When, however, such combinations are made merely for the purpose of controlling the market, to maintain or raise prices, to create artificial barriers to the public, the public derives no benefit and we have a monopoly. There must be some protection against such combinations.

It should be a classification of that very small percentage of industrial corporations having power and opportunity to effect illegal restraints of trade and monopolies, and to compel them to subject themselves to registry and to proper public regulations and supervision of the department of commerce.

Issue of Injunction. I come now to the question of notice of a writ of injunction. It is a fundamental rule of general jurisprudence that a writ shall be granted by a judge only after a hearing. This rule, however, has sometimes been an exception in the issuing of writs of injunction. Such a process is not a hearing, and it is not a trial. The writ of injunction is a summary proceeding, and it is not a trial.

Mr. McKinley and Mr. Roosevelt and the republican party have constantly advocated a policy of respect for the army and navy that will keep this republic ready and able to defend her territory and her commerce, and to maintain her position in promoting permanent tranquility and peace in the world. The republican party has always been in the forefront of the movement for an adequate navy, and we hope that in the next platform the sense of the present platform will be carried over to the maintenance of the point of efficiency in the navy, and the use of the best equipped militia, and the use of the best equipped militia, and the use of the best equipped militia.

MONTANA'S BREAD BASKET, THE JUDITH BASIN.

The yields of grain obtained from year to year are such as to tax credulity. Certain of the business interests of Lewistown gathered information furnished by approximately 100 farmers in different parts of the basin. These reports tabulated show that on 83 of the farms reporting, the average yield of wheat was 36.69 bushels per acre. On 91 ranches the yield of oats was 56.40 bushels per acre. On 17 ranches reporting the yields of barley averaged 43.91 bushels per acre. The rye crop for 1907 averaged 22 bushels per acre, and the potato crop 225 bushels. Be it remembered that these crops are grown without irrigation. But the above figures by no means tell the tale. The wheat weighs all the way from 60 to 66 pounds per bushel, the oats in the neighborhood of 40 pounds per bushel, and barley and rye equally well. Wheat has been grown that produced 60 bushels per acre and oats 100 bushels.

HOW SUCH YIELDS CAN BE OBTAINED

My interest was much aroused as to why such yields could be obtained from the brown loam soil that covers much of the basin. I wanted to ride over the basin and investigate. Mr. Hilger came to the rescue with an automobile, and accompanied by J. M. Croft, the secretary of the commercial club, we took a spin of 75 miles in an irregular circle over the basin. This ride was made on May 6. In several places steam outfits were at work breaking up the prairie. They were plowing, harrowing and rolling by the one operation. This work is made entirely practicable by the immense quantities of coal stored away in the adjacent mountains. Much of the soil broken was of a brown clay loam, easily friable. Over much of it lay little pebbles, like white stones of small size. Some of it was black, but the soil of the benches was mostly brown. How could a brown clay loam produce such crops of grain in a climate with but 15 to 19 inches of normal rainfall? That was the question of questions. An examination of the soil of the sub-soil and of the Montana weather bureau's report all served to throw light upon the question.

THE BROWN SOIL

It is at least an open question if the brown soils of the west, volcanic in many instances in their origin, are not superior in both producing and wearing power to the black soils that are largely composed of humus. The clay element is so abundant in these brown soils, and it is so rich, that they furnish the materials of growth for every long period. They are especially rich in phosphoric acid and potash, the abundance of the former element being largely responsible for the great yields of the grain. My own preference for cropping would be for the brown soil, but in the absence of analysis it is not possible to be quite sure.

THE PEBBLY SUBSOIL

Before coming into the valley I was told much of the land was shallow; that it was underlaid with gravel, which, in some instances, came within a few inches of the surface. I was puzzled to know how a few inches of soil, underlaid with gravel, could produce such crops, with a rainfall of not more than 19 inches. In the automobile we carried a pick. The subsoil was carefully examined on the roadsides, where men were grading in the grades cut by the railways and for irrigating ditches that are no longer used. I found that between the small stones usually spoken of as gravels there was a plentiful supply of rich clay. The ragged edges of the pebbles were calcareous in character. As these were by decomposition and attrition, caused by cultivation, they supply the soil with an abundance of lime. They also produce that mechanical condition which enables the roots of plants to go far downward in search of food. It is unfair to the Judith Basin to speak of the subsoil as gravel. It should rather be called a calcareous clay gravel subsoil. In many places the soil and subsoil have so much white, earthy matter as to make it resemble marl. If this should prove true it will furnish another reason for the extraordinary fertility of the soil.

THE TEMPERATE CLIMATE

The temperate summer climate, especially when the grain is maturing, gives the ripening process time to make bright, plump kernels. The nights are cool at the ripening season, and this is especially favorable to such ripening of the grain. These three reasons therefore, the rich soil, the splendid subsoil, and the temperate climate, account for the extraordinary yields, in spite of the poor character of the farming. This reference is meant as testifying to a fact, rather than as meaning any stigma, for only during recent years has farming been conducted at all, and under such conditions it would not be reasonable to look for high-class farming.

CROPS THAT HAVE BEEN GROWING

The crops whose growth has been proved, beyond all question, include winter wheat, spring wheat, winter rye, oats, barley, speltz, timothy and alfalfa, and without irrigation. The growth of these is wonderful. In 1906 the Rev. Quickenen sowed spring wheat on spring wheat, breaking on May 22 in a certain area in this county, and reaped 24 bushels per acre, practically without rain. That was an unusually dry year. In 1907 the wheat crop on the same land was 50 bushels per acre. Senator Hobson grew 40 bushels per acre of macaroni wheat in 1907, of which I saw a sample. It was perfect. He has alfalfa which was sown 25 years ago. It gave two cuttings every year, but water was used on it, although live stock was grazed on it every winter. He has another field which has given two cuttings without irrigation.

CROPS NOT FULLY PROVED

Among the crops in reference to the successful growth of which I failed to get information such as I would consider fully adequate, were clover, in its different varieties, the Canada field pea, flax, buckwheat and corn. I believe that all of these can be successfully grown. My expectations will not be met if the growing of clover seed and alfalfa seed do not become important industries. As far as I could learn the normal season, without frost, covers more than 100 days, which means that certain varieties of corn will mature. I would expect, however, that the pea crop would prove relatively more important, as the natural conditions for growing peas are relatively higher than those for growing corn.

THE GROWING OF TREES

I saw no trees growing on the benches without water. I believe that certain kinds can be grown successfully under the proper care and on every homestead. Small fruits grow well, although as yet they have not been much grown. I saw red raspberries uninjured by the cold of winter. Some apples have been grown. I see no reason why certain varieties may not be generally grown.

THE FUTURE OF THIS BASIN

There is something bewitching in the very thought of the future of the agriculture of this basin. See the wearing power of the land. W. B. Shiel, 24 miles from Straw, grew oats for 11 successive years without water on the same piece of land. The minimum yield was 75 bushels per acre and the maximum was 100 bushels. The average weight was 40 pounds. When legumes are introduced in some kind of rotation they will increase the production of the crops, large as these are at the present time. I saw on the farm of C. M. Goodell, near Philbrook, Chester White brood sows nursing fine, large litters of pigs that had been wintered on no other food than fine alfalfa hay until within three weeks of farrowing. These young pigs will be grown chiefly on alfalfa pasture. Grow peas on which to fatten the swine, the latter doing the harvesting, and see what this would mean to the Judith Basin in swine production alone. The growing of winter wheat will doubtless prove a leading industry for many years to come. It is the great money crop. One half the arable land in the basin may be made to grow from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels annually. The great yields of the coarse grains will mean that live stock will soon be fattened in this valley in large numbers. The experiment farm is going to do much for the farming interests. This farm, the gift of Senator Hobson, covers a quarter section, and is to be operated by the United States department of agriculture and by the state. It is admirably chosen for the purpose which it was intended to serve. Why should not the farming lands in this basin get away beyond the $30.00 mark per acre before many years go by?
