Work For Some Good.

Work for some good, be it ever so slowly; Cherish some flower, be it ever so lowly; Labor, all labor is earnest and holy. Let your great work be your prayer to your God.

Speak a kind word, whenever it is needed. Give a bright smile, be it even unheeded; Uproot an evil before it is well seeded. God gives you courage and strength to do good.

Let not an angry word ever be spoken. Let not a promise be made and then broken. Let not your words, but your deeds be the token.

That you're at work in the vineyard of God. —Harold B. Adams

WAYNE ROLLER MILLS.

Something About The Recent Improvements.

It is said that a "Prophet is not without honor save in his own country." Whether this be true or not it too often happens that a home institution is passed by and no proper mention made of it or its extensive changes and improvements that have been made. In the Wayne roller mills our town has an institution that should, and no doubt does, command a position in the town and county commensurate with its importance, but some recent changes, especially in its motive power, have not been given the mention the mills or its owners merit. Owing to the high price of coal in this section the Weber Bros. have found the operation of the mills very expensive and have for some time been casting about for some other means than steam as a propelling power. They finally decided upon what is termed a vapor oil engine, something almost new in the west, there being only three of that class of engines in use west of Chicago. We were a caller at the mills Friday afternoon and were shown over the establishment and the working of the engine explained to us. During the dull season, harvest time, the old boiler was removed and the room repainted and otherwise fixed up for the reception of its new occupant.

The new engine is a 45 horse power double cylinder Hornsby's Akroyd, No. 3256, and its fuel is what is known as fuel oil, having somewhat the appearance of kerosene, but none of its smell. At some distance from the mill an excavation was made to contain an iron tank much resembling the tank cars run on the railroads, and the same size, as a car load of the fuel oil is bought at one time. This tank has been covered with a cement roof, it being elevated enough so that a person can stand upright in it. From this tank pipes run into the engine room, and there is pumped into a tank directly underneath the engine, which is large enough to hold two or three barrels. From this tank the oil is pumped automatically directly into the engine on the same principle as a gasoline engine, but it has no spark. On the front end of each large cylinder is a pan like receptacle, which in the morning is heated much like you would generate a gasoline stove, and when these are once hot that is all there is to it as the oil thereafter, as it comes in touch with the heated surface forms a vapor which not only explodes, providing power, but also furnishes heat for continuing the process. From 30 to 40 gallons of oil are used each day. The new machine has now been in use for about three weeks and has given the very best of satisfaction, producing a steady, continuous power at a minimum of cost. There is no smoke, soot or dust, and in this respect it is also superior to coal.

The proprietors are much pleased with the new motive power, and any one who likes to look at the motion of something really fine in the machinery line could not do better than to call at the mill and see it work. The mill has been in continuous operation for nearly a quarter of a century, is fully equipped with all modern machinery, and its product is of the very highest grade of excellence. The output of the mill at present is about 100 sacks of flour per day, besides a large line of custom work.

Badly Stricken

Last Sunday afternoon Ed. Anderson was taken from here to the Samaritan hospital in a seriously paralyzed condition. For the past two years the young man had been working for Lou Owen, a few miles west of town, and had always been strong and healthy, in fact had never been sick a day in his life. A week last Monday, the 14th, he did not get up as usual and an investigation as to the cause led to the discovery that during the night he had become paralyzed, having lost the entire use of both legs and his left arm. A physician was called at once and for a week all was done for him that could be, but seemingly without any benefit and so it was decided to send him to the hospital at Sioux City where it is hoped that care and treatment may prove beneficial. He has not seemed to suffer but little, but is entirely helpless. It is a strange case.

The story is told of a clergyman who, after he had finished his sermon, heard one of his congregation say, "Yes, it was a good sermon; but he stole it!"

A short time afterward the preacher called on the man, presented the accusation, and asked him to retract what he had said.

"I am sorry," answered the man, "like to take back anything that I have said, but in this case it will, for on returning home and rereading to the book whence I thought you had taken your sermon, I found that it was still there!"

Why He Slaved.

Senator Johnson of Alabama owns a beautiful home surrounded by several acres in Birmingham, and takes great delight in donning a pair of overalls and a split hickory hat and working in the garden. One day a fashionably dressed woman, who had resided in Birmingham only a short time and had never seen Johnson, called on his wife. No one answered the bell, so she walked out among the flower beds, where the ex-Governor was hoeing some geraniums.

He bowed and she asked him how long he had worked for the Johnsons. "A good many years, madam," he replied. "Do they pay you well?" "About all I get out of it is my clothes and keep." "Why, come and work for me," she said. "I'll do that and pay you so much a month besides."

"I thank you, madam," he replied, bowing very low, "but I signed up with Mrs. Johnson for life."

"Why, no such contract is binding. That is penning." "Some may call it that, but I have always called it marriage."—Chicago News.

He was a dyspeptic and ever cautious about his food. Therefore he looked searchingly at the waitress as she stood at the breakfast table the next morning to greet him.

"We have apple, squash and rice," said the girl, regarding him in kindly and sympathetic fashion. "You can take your choice, or have all three, if you like."

NORTH FORESTS BURN, TOWNS LAID IN ASHES

Flames Sweep Through Minnesota Woods and Leave Ruin in Their Wake.

PALL OF SMOKE IN CHICAGO.

Homeless Settlers and Wild Animals Driven from Raging Forest to Lake Shore.

Down more than 500 miles by gentle, steady air currents and kept close to earth by peculiarly favorable atmospheric conditions, the smoke from Northern forest fires blew over Milwaukee and Chicago Saturday and Sunday. In Milwaukee Saturday its density had increased until only the outlines of buildings four blocks distant could be made out.

This is the first time in many years that Chicago has seen and felt the effects of the forest fires that rage in the far north every summer. The fires about Hibbing, Minn., and the Michigan copper country are more severe than usual, and the country within a radius of 200 miles of the blazing districts is covered with a pall of thick smoke. The enormous cloud drifted southward on a gentle wind.

Peculiar atmospheric conditions permitted the light smoke to descend until it covered the whole city, allowing the rays of the sun to filter down as through a light fog. The smoke was thick enough to afford the spectacle of the sun hanging like a copper red disc in the heavens.

Lake traffic was badly hampered by the smoke, and the government fog whistles were put to work.

Rescued by Naval Reserves.

The dramatic story of the rescue of the north shore settlers and the citizens of Grand Marais by the Duluth naval reserves on board the steamer Gopher, is told by a correspondent who was aboard the vessel. The most heart-rending scenes were witnessed all along the north shore of the lake. Homeless settlers, with everything they possessed huddled up by the flames, fled to the lake shore for refuge, with little food and no clothing but what they carried on their backs. The Gopher coasted along the shore, picking up the refugees. The shore was alive with wild animals of all kinds, driven out of the woods by the fires. Three men had been forced to take refuge in the waters of the lake and were picked up by the Gopher. One woman with a pack of her baby and a sick baby in her arms fled three miles from her homestead to the lake and was picked up by the boat.

With Grand Marais, a town of 1,500 people on the Lake Superior north shore, partly destroyed, and Beaver Bay, 80 miles away, also attacked by the flames, and a dozen smaller towns in great peril, it was apparent Saturday that, unless rain came soon, the entire forest fire-swept district was doomed to total destruction.

Among the larger places in peril were Colerain, Bovey, Nashwanick, Warble, Hibbing, Duluth, Big Bay, Chicago Bay, Cotton, Aurora, Mountain Iron, Ontonagon, Fort William, Ont. Hymers, Ont. Fort Arthur, Ont., Cascade and Nutsom. The Great Northern, Northern Pacific and all State railroads had fire trains out fighting to save property along the lines and protect bridges and stations. It was a battle in which all able-bodied men throughout the threatened territory took a hand, and hundreds were near exhaustion as a result of the week's struggle.

Scene Was Awe-Inspiring.

The scene along the shore Saturday night was an awe-inspiring sight as seen from the water. For a distance of more than 100 miles the flames appeared to be almost continuous. The roaring of the fire could be heard for miles. Great trees were suddenly enveloped in flames, the fire rushing up trunks with a swish like a giant rocket. The great peat beds of northern Minnesota were all ablaze.

In response to Governor Johnson's appeal $15,000 has been raised by the Duluth relief committee for the homeless refugees. The supply of food and clothes now seems to be ample. Relief measures are being taken in all the cities throughout the State to help the fire sufferers. Along the north shore of Lake Superior the situation is critical.

The Fire Monster's Work.

Here's a summary of the fire monster's work:

Duration of fires, two weeks.

Cause of fires believed to be incendiary.

States and provinces visited by fires—Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ontario.

Towns and mining settlements destroyed, about ten.

Towns in imminent danger, twenty.

Total fire loss (estimated), from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

People homeless, about 30,000.

Another encounter between the Arabs in Morocco and the French troops was reported at Paris Wednesday, when the blockade at Boudenhach had been surrounded by a great horde of tribesmen. DRY LAND CROPS.

Alfalfa That Yields Twelve Cuttings a Year.

"The demand for better grass comes largely from the arid regions of the West and South," says Prof. C. F. Piper, chief grass expert of the United States Department of Agriculture, "and our work has been largely in these sections. Secretary Wilson is especially anxious to establish dry land farming on a permanent basis, and for this purpose crops must be found that have sufficient drought-resistance to be used profitably in rotation. With this end in view the department is making a thorough exploration of the dry regions of Manchuria and China for new grasses and legumes. Already we have secured many very promising things which we are testing out thoroughly."

Prof. Piper says the greatest success attended the efforts of the department with new varieties of alfalfa. Nearly every corner of the world was searched during the study of the crop, with the result that several distinct varieties were secured which will thrive where ordinary alfalfa will perish.

"We call it hardy alfalfa," says the professor, "and it is as certain of growth in Minnesota and the Dakotas as ordinary alfalfa in Kansas. There is a remarkable Arabian alfalfa found in the valley of the Euphrates is proving of enormous value in Arizona and California, where it has produced 12 cuttings in one season, three more than have been produced by the ordinary alfalfa. This result is due to its rapid growth and its ability to grow in cool weather, beginning earlier in spring and continuing later in the fall."

"Alfalfa is becoming a very popular crop in the Eastern States. Demonstrations of the department have already proved that with proper treatment alfalfa can be grown with great success in nearly every state east of the Mississippi river, and it bids fair to bring about important changes in the agriculture of these states."

DEATHS FROM BABIES.

Three Well-Defined Cases in New York in Two Months.

In the "dog days" of July and August this year in New York there were three deaths from babies. That is looked on as an unusual number. These cases were all well defined babies. In each instance the brain of the victim was examined by bacteriologists, and the result, in each case, was a positive indication of hydrophobia, was found in large numbers. In the last month the number of cases of dog bite treated at the Pasteur Institute fell off a great deal. Before the Board of Health ordered its death penalty enforcement of the law demanding a muzzle or leash on all dogs in the streets the institute had as high as 38 cases under treatment. There are now only 15 cases in the institute, and these soon will be discharged.

Nevertheless, the announced policy of the new ministry is the reoccupation of the country rather than aggression in any quarter.

When the House of Lords passed the old-age pension bill on second reading it was thought that would end the matter, but now the unprecedented thing has happened of having the bill amended in committee. This will bring the Lords in direct opposition to a large majority of the Commons and especially will stir up the ire of the Socialists. The action will be regarded as a breach of the privileges of the House, as the bill is construed as a money bill.

Generally speaking, the cow which has had her milk-producing capacity encouraged and developed will be very likely to transmit these traits to her progeny. Raise the heifers of your best cows and you will be on the road to improving your herd.

The farmers' cotton warehouse movement in the South, whereby it was planned to enable the farmers to hold their cotton until the price had gone up to 15 cents per pound, collapsed because the bank could not carry the load any longer. The farmers had borrowed $75,000,000.

A vicious goat, while browsing around a farmyard in Posey County, Ind., came across a heavy swing which the children had been using and which touched him as he passed. He immediately showed fight and butted away at the swing, which came back at him every time. Half an hour later the owner found the goat dead, but the swing was still swinging.

Build a Root Cellar.

In general feeding we often forget that the animal body is about three-fourths water, and that any animal requires a large proportion of water in the feed ration. Green feeds of some kind should be given at all times of the year for animals to do their best. If one has a silo then silage will fill the bill. Pumpkins can be fed from early fall till the middle of winter, and roots—carrots, turnips or sugar beets—should be grown and stored to carry the stock till grass comes.

As evidence of the value of water in feeds and green feeds we refer to the rapid growth and good health of animals on good pasture. Animals of all kinds will gain flesh and fatten on food grass pasture, and green grass is from 75 to 90 per cent water.

Now, if we will remember this in feeding and supply some green feeds at all seasons, our farm animals will make greater proportionate gains and turn all the feed to greater account. Every barn should have a frost-proof cellar or other room where the roots and other perishable green feeds could be kept through the winter.

Linsed Oil Meal.

Chemical analysis shows that old-process linsed oil meal contains an average of about 5 per cent of nitrogen, 2 per cent of phosphoric acid and 1 1/2 per cent of potash. Nitrogen may be purchased in nitrate of soda at 15 cents per pound, phosphoric acid in raw bone meal at about 5 cents, and potash in muriate of potash at 4 1/2 cents, these being among the cheapest commercial sources of fertilizing substances. New process linsed oil contain about 1 per cent more nitrogen than the old process. As it has been demonstrated that not more than one-third of the fertilizing value of a feeding stuff is lost in feeding, providing the manure be carefully saved and used, linsed meal offers a cheap source of fertility to the farmer.

Fattening Watermelons.

Yes, there are secrets in the trade just the same as there are tricks in everything else. If you want to grow a premium taker or a champion weight, all you have to do is to artificially feed it.

The melons are good nurses, and will take all nourishment given them. The favorite way of growing heavy weights is accomplished by inserting a flannel string in the stem of the melon and running this into an old quinine bottle into which sugar-sweetened water has been poured. In a single night a healthy melon, after having been heated where the stem was placed, will absorb over a pint of the syrup, and you easily can tell of its salubrity by the rich green color. All melons but the one that is desired to attain corpulent proportions should be cut from the vine, as the strength of the vine will then go to the one melon. That, aided by the sugar treatment, will be sufficient to grow a premium taker at the country fairs. Last year my largest melon, fattened on sugar and water, weighed 95 pounds. However, the eating qualities of the artificially fattened melons are not good, as the fiber is coarse and hard. But that does not matter when the judge at the fair looks at the melon. He never tastes the interior.—Carmel Correspondent Peoria Journal.

Unseasonable Blossoming of Trees.

It is not uncommon for fruit trees of all kinds to bear flowers in late summer or in the early fall. This tendency is more marked in the semi-arid regions than in the humid States, but the explanation is simple.

One writer reports an instance where a pile of weeds was burned underneath an apple tree. The heat from the fire was sufficient to shrivel the leaves to the top of the tree on the exposed side, but did not otherwise injure the tree. This was in August, and a month later the tree came into bloom on the parts which had been injured.

This result was probably due to the drying out of the buds by the effects of the fire, an effect similar to that produced by the low temperature of the winter months.

In a somewhat similar way a lack of water during the middle of the summer causes the buds to dry out and to become mature. Then, if water is applied later, second growth starts in and some of the blossom buds unfold. These unseasonable flowers do not often set fruit. However, fine specimens of the Red June apple were received at the Agricultural College last November. These specimens were picked in an orchard in Utah from trees which produced a normal crop in June. Some weeks later the trees put forth a second crop of bloom and a few fine specimens matured.—W. Padwick, Colorado Agricultural College.

Value of Experiment Stations.

In the address on the development of the experiment station and its work, Doctor H. J. Walters, of the Missouri Agricultural College, recently said, "It has been said that 'farming is a perpetual trying of experiments' with soils, manure, and crops; with cattle and cattle foods; with milk, butter and cheese; with plows and harrows; and harvesters; with an almost endless list of things. The most successful farmers—those who get the most out of their land, their cattle and their crops, their fertilizers, their implements and their labor—are those who experiment themselves most industriously, most skillfully and most intelligently, and who take the fullest advantage of the experiments of others. The best agriculture is that, which, in old countries, on the worn and untractable soils, has learned, by long-continued and varied experiment, to make the gain of farming sure."

"Yet the farmer finds that experiment on any considerable scale is a costly business in point of funds, time and patience, and that there are many problems that he cannot solve, even after infinite experimenting, on account of lack of suitable facilities, the necessary scientific training and funds. Besides, it is in the interest of economy to have the fundamental principles established once for all by an institution equipped for such work, and to this the experiment stations owe their existence."

"A little more than fifty years ago a company of farmers, joined themselves together in a little German village under the influence of the University of Leipzig, and organized the first experiment station, and called to their aid a chemist, and a little later on scientific assistance. This was the first organized effort along the line of scientific research as a necessary and permanent branch of agricultural industry. The seed there sown has brought forth many fold, for in 1893, five years after the organization of the first experiment station, there were five in active operation. In 1891 the number had increased to fifteen; in 1896, to thirty; and to-day there are over 500. If each of them from one to twenty investigators are engaged in the discovery of the laws that underlie the practice of farming, and the methods of applying them."

"The first experiment station in America was established in Connecticut in 1875. They grew rapidly in number, until in 1887 there were some seventeen such institutions, in fourteen States. In that year Congress made the enterprise national by passing what is known as the Hatch act, founding one such institution in every State and Territory in the Union."

Great Thoughts of the Ancients.

"Plato," said Socrates, "you have observed, I doubt not, that we have two ears and two eyes."

"Now that you mention it," quoth Plato, I have."

"And but one tongue."

"Quite so."

"Their nature doth teach us that we should hear and see twice as much as we talk. Is it not so?"

"But, my master," objected Plato, "we have two nostrils and only one mouth. Must we therefore smell everything twice before we eat once?"

"Plato," irritably rejoined Socrates, "anybody can make a flippant comment that will knock the jaws out of the wisest saying a philosopher, cut pull off. I wish you'd cut it out."

On preparing the stuff for publication, therefore, Plato prudently cut out his flippant comment.—Chicago Tribune.

DEEP CRACKS FROM ECZEMA.

Could Lay State-Pencil in One Hand and Dreadful Sins—Permanent Cure in Another.

"I had eczema on my hands for about seven years and during that time I had used several so-called remedies, together with physicians and druggists' prescriptions. The disease was so bad on my hands that I could lay a state pencil in one of the cracks and a rule placed across the hand would not touch the pencil. I kept using remedy after remedy, and while some gave partial relief, none relieved as much as did the first box of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and my hands were perfectly cured after two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap were used. W. H. Dean, Newark, Del., Mar. 28, 1907."

"Aw, me good man!" affably spoke the foreign tourist, putting his hand out through the car window as the train stopped at a station. "May I ask the name of this charming little village?"

"Rubberneckin'!" said the rude native on the station platform.

"Thanks," rejoined the foreign tourist, jutting it down in his notebook. "What remarkably odd names they have for towns in this country!"

The man at the desk had stopped the book agent in the middle of his handout.

"I've no doubt the work you are selling is all right, and a good one," he said, "but I'm quite sure I don't want it. I am sorry to have to shut you out, but this is my busy day and I haven't time to listen to you. You don't mind it, do you?"

"I don't mind being turned down," answered the book agent. "I'm used to that. You're the fourteen, straight, since I struck the building. But you're the first one that does it kindly, and that's all that breaks me all up, you know. Good day, sir."

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. EDITORIAL NOTATIONS.

It takes more than one Cannon to stop the wheels of progress.
"A rose by any other name would be as sweet," but all automobiles smell alike.
The Nebraska state supreme court has held that the anti-pass law is constitutional.
There is no good reason why any republican should cast his vote for a democratic candidate this fall.
The democrats appear to have, all of a sudden, got wonderfully interested in Taft's religious belief.
Mr. Taft's excellence as a Federal Judge is not to be over-emphasized; his high ideals of honesty and justice are valuable and commendatory. — GROVER CLEVELAND
A Kansas judge has decided that it is not unlawful for a man to swear at his wife. Perhaps it is not, but it is a mighty mean man that will do it.
There is one feature of the present campaign that is not at all commendatory. All the leading candidates are calling each other names. That does not prove anything. Any rowdy can say "You're another."
Walter Wellman, who is considered the best informed correspondent in the country, says that the sober facts of the case are, despite all of Bryan's campaigning in the east, and his apparent gain of some votes over four years ago, there is not the least show of his getting any of the electoral votes in the east, and without them he cannot be elected.
The Winside Tribune says there is no good reason why Latta, the democratic candidate for congress should not carry every one of the eighteen counties in the district. The Tribune is mistaken. There is one very good and all sufficient reason why he will not do it. The majority of the voters will not cast their ballots for him.

Here is optimism for you with a big O. The editor of the Winside Tribune has his glasses so focused that he says Pennsylvania is about the only state Taft is sure of carrying. That settles it. No use of any more work or worry over the matter.
For the past two or three years Dr. Bryan and everyone else has been singing the praises of Dr. Roosevelt and declaring that his diagnosis of the country's disease was correct, and the remedies he has prescribed were the very best that could be administered. Now, because he has issued a statement, that it is needful that Taft and a republican congress be elected in order that the treatment he has recommended for the evils existing may be carried out, Dr. Bryan has gone back on all his former assertions regarding the patient, as he always does, and declares Roosevelt to be a humbug and a fraud. In his Cincinnati speech on the 22nd, Taft said:—"If I am elected President of the United States I will devote every particle of my energy and ability to clinching the Roosevelt policies upon the nation." Could anything be more positive than that. What better assurance do you want that the Roosevelt policies, so loudly lauded will be continued.
Judge W. F. Norris, of the Philippine court of 1910, who is visiting the United States on leave of absence, is at the Elbitt. Judge Norris also entered his daughter in the Georgetown Convent School. According to the observations of the judge, the Filipino is becoming more and more Americanized and is not thinking so much about absolute independence.
"The last revolutionary movement, if you will call it by that name," continued Judge Norris, "was discovered about a year ago in Leyte, Samar, but it was of small consequence. Since then I have not heard anything in that line of agitation. There is one thing certain, and that is the Filipino has absolutely no desire to become a subject of Japan. The Filipinos hate the Japanese. They argue that the Mikado's people are non-Christians, and that they are governed by the monarchical system. There are two political parties in the Philippines. They are the party which aims at self-government under American protection, and the independence party, whose aim it is to be a sovereign republic. Aguinaldo is a peaceable farmer, and has again and again taken occasion to warn his countrymen to be loyal to the Stars and Stripes.
"Judge Taft is popular and beloved in the islands where he has worked with so much success. The natives hope to see him elected President of the United States. I am a citizen of Bryan's State, but I am convinced Nebraska will cast its vote for the Republican candidate. In fact, it is my impression Taft will be elected. He is without a doubt the best qualified man for the place, and would make an excellent President."

That New Ordinance.
The city council of Wayne has passed an ordinance against spitting on the sidewalk. It provides:

- Sec. 1.—Any person or persons who shall expectorate or spit on the sidewalks or crossings in the City of Wayne, Nebraska, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.
 - Sec. 2.—Any person or persons violating section one of this ordinance shall be fined in the sum of not less than One Dollar nor more than Twenty-five Dollars for each offense and stand committed to the county jail until said fine and costs are paid.
- This ordinance is now in force and will no doubt have the effect of improving the appearance of the cement sidewalks in some places.

Got Off Too Easy
Tuesday's Norfolk Daily News said: The fining of Herman Lochmund of Pender for mailing an obscene postal card to Hannah Albers of Wayne, concluded the business of the federal court Monday. We have been unable to find anyone here who knows anything about the case, so it may be that it was at some point in Wayne county and not in the town. At any rate Lochmund mailed the card, for he plead guilty to the charge. The postal authorities did not take kindly to Lochmund's portrayal of the nude in art on a postal card and caused his arrest. One glance of the judge at the card caused him to say $30 and costs, which the accused man paid at once. The fine was too small to fit the case, for the News says he went out of the courtroom with a grin on his face, though not enough to constitute contempt. He expected a prison sentence as well as a fine, and he ought to have got it. A man who has no more regard for womanhood than to send an obscene postal card to a woman through the mail ought to get as many stripes on his bare back with a good rawhide whip, as he gets dollars in fine. Then he would not think it was so funny.

Resolutions Adopted
The following Resolutions were unanimously adopted at the meeting of Niobrara Presbytery held at Emerson, Neb., Sept. 15th to 17th.

"Whereas, the Presbyterian church is greatly interested in Temperance Reform and
Whereas, one hindrance to the progress of this reform has been the failure of Congress to pass a bill making illegal the shipping of liquor into 'dry' states, and
Whereas, the speaker of the House of Representatives, Joseph G. Cannon, has persistently refused to permit such a bill to come to a vote, therefore be it
Resolved, that Niobrara Presbytery, sitting in regular session at Emerson, Neb., on Sept. 15th 1908, does emphatically condemn the action of said Joseph G. Cannon as arbitrary and unfair, and be it further Resolved, that Niobrara Presbytery protest against the re-election of Joseph G. Cannon to the speakership of the House, and that copies of this action be forwarded to the Hon. M. P. Kincaid of 6th Nebraska dist., and to the Hon. J. F. Boyd of the 3rd Nebraska district.
A committee was also appointed to introduce the same resolutions at the meeting of Nebraska Synod to be held in Wayne, Oct. 8th to 13th.

Get it for Wayne.

We see by the Wayne Gazette, that Rev. J. P. Borg is authority for the statement that it is the intention of the Lutherans of the state conference to build an orphanage at some good point in Nebraska. Although we are but a stranger here we understand that Wayne has a good live commercial club, and we would suggest that it might be a very good plan for the secretary to get in communication with the reverend gentleman as we understand they are looking around for something in the way of inducement to locate in some good town. There is no better location for an institution of that kind than right here in Wayne, and we should buckle on our armor and try to secure it. Act now.

On The Program.

The meetings of the state teachers' association and that of the superintendents' association will this year be held together the first week in November and it is thought the enrollment will be greatly increased in both. Many districts are already voting a short vacation to their teachers on salary for attendance at the meetings of these associations and a campaign will be made by the state and county superintendents to have every school in the state represented. With these meetings in November, teachers will have their holiday vacations for themselves. E. P. Wilson, superintendent of the Wayne schools, is on the program to lead on one of the subjects, that of history, on the afternoon of November 4th.

The republican state convention at Lincoln over-rode the wishes of Governor Sheldon and refused to put a plank in their platform on the bank guarantee question. The vote was 48 against to 15 for such a proposition. The Wayne delegate was against.

Bryan has caught the true southern style and in a grandiloquent style says to President Roosevelt, "As the candidate of the democratic party I shall not permit any responsible member of the republican organization to misrepresent the democratic party in the present campaign." From whence does the "Peerless" one derive his vaunted power?

Good Men Wanted.

Good men are wanted in every business and they are hard to find. You can find plenty of men who appear to be just right, and are satisfactory for a short time, but soon fall back to the usual average and then they are not wanted. You can not tell if a man is what you have been looking for, by trying him one day, but you can find out if you give him a fair trial. It is the average that decides. You can not judge this store by a single purchase, but if you will give us a fair trial you will find that we on an average will give you better satisfaction than any other store.
We have been in business longer than any clothing store in the state of Nebraska, and our trade is better today than it every was. Don't that look well to you? We are selling the same make of clothing (and at lower prices than our competitor) that we have sold for so many years. So you see the chances are we will please you better than any other store, if you will give us your trade. We don't change our way of doing business or sell any goods that have not been tested. So you can always feel sure that you take no chances buying clothing of us. We will be pleased to have you call on us and see our new method of showing every suit we have at one time. More new goods to show than we ever had and you can see them all in five minutes. Just drop in and take a peep, they look good and will please you.

Witter, Wayne county's genial assessor was a caller at this office Friday and we hope for a still better acquaintance.

BEAUTIFUL HOME WEDDING

The Ebert-Gamble Nuptials Place in Wayne

One of the most pleasing events of the early fall in Wayne was the marriage Tuesday evening, September 22, 1908, at the beautiful home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gamble, of their daughter, Miss Daisy to Mr. Ernest Ebert, of Northfield, Minnesota.

The home, artistic without any decorations, was made doubly beautiful by the liberal use of smilax, ferns, cut flowers and other tasty decorations, the prevailing colors being pink and white, all so arranged that the eye and senses were both charmed by the effect, which together with the blending of colored electric lights made a scene of lasting beauty for the large number in attendance. Much credit is due to Mrs. Link Neely who looked after the decorations.

Promptly at eight o'clock Mrs. Jas. Miller took her place at the piano. Miss Miriam Patterson, of Omaha, niece of the bride, sang very sweetly, "Because," by Gux D. Handel. Then began the beautiful strains of the Bridal Chorus from Mendelssohn, the words being sang by a quartette consisting of Mrs. W. E. Johnson, Miss Reba Nangle, Mrs. W. H. Morris and Mrs. Geo. Wilbur, who led the wedding procession to the library, followed by Miss Katherine Gamble, sister of the bride, who was followed by the ring bearer, little Miss Helen Felber. At the same time from the dining room the best man, Mr. Paul Stone, of Northfield, Minn., entered followed by the bridegroom, who took their places under a large bell. Last came the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who conducted her to her place beside the bridegroom. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. T. C. Osborne, who used the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony.

Fine Stock.
J. M. Coleman, one of the jolly stock raisers of this vicinity, was a caller at our den Saturday. He raises Poland China swine extensively and for breeding purposes almost solely, and therefore aims to keep the best. He has a herd that affords him much pleasure and no small degree of profit as well. He reports the sale of one choice animal last week and numerous enquiries. He also told us that he had just purchased a fine stock animal, getting it from the same herd from which Governor Sheldon has recently bought one. That ought to show something of its quality.

If you want anything on wheels see C. W. Hiscox. He's got it.

was served.

A matter deserving mention was the quiet and orderly manner in which everything passed off. There was no annoyance or disturbance of boys and outsiders, which certainly speaks well for the culture and refinement of the community.

The presents were many and beautiful. About eighty-five guests were present. Out of town guests were Mr. Wm. Ebert of Alden, Minn., father of the groom, Mr. Paul Stone of Northfield, Minn., Mrs. P. Martin and son of Sioux City, Ia., Mrs. D. C. Patterson and daughters and Mrs. W. E. Johnson of Omaha, Rev. and Mrs. Ernst of Macomb, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Ebert left on the Wednesday morning train for Northfield, Minn., where they will reside, and where the groom has a house furnished for his bride. The well wishes of a host of friends goes with the bride to her new home, and the Herald joins with them in trusting that their union, so happily begun, may prove to be what all such unions should be, and that many blessings of life may be showered upon them.

Gone to Conference.

Rev. Sharpe left Tuesday to attend the annual session of the North Nebraska M. E. conference which meets this year at Stanton. It is not a great ways from here by rail or across the country and it may be some of our good people will be inclined to go down. On Friday evening Bishop McIntyre will deliver his great lecture on "Buttoned-up-people," at a cost of only 50 cents each, and on Sunday morning he will preach the great sermon of the conference session. Saturday evening Dr. W. J. Davidson, the new Chancellor of Nebraska Wesleyan University will lecture. One feature of the conference out of the ordinary was a temperance address Tuesday evening by Father Wm. Murphy, a Catholic priest.

DRY ARMY IN ACTION

LARGE FORCE DESCENDS UPON INDIANA ASSEMBLY

Big Prayer Meeting in Hall—More Than 1,000 Enemies of Saloon Assemble in State House to Work for Passage of Local Option Bill.

The temperance forces of Indiana made a demonstration at Indianapolis, Ind., Monday when more than 1,000 assembled in the corridors of the state house and engaged in prayer for the passage of the county local option bill.

The meeting in the rotunda of the capitol was spirited, and at the same time deeply impressive. All the workers present were a piece of white ribbon pinned on the lapel of his coat and on this was pinned in large letters "We Want County Local Option."

Several ministers made speeches explaining their presence and saying that they came because Crawford Fairbanks, president of the Terre Haute Brewing company, and Albert Liber, president of the Indiana Brewing company, and others of like kind were at the head of a lobby to prevent the passage of a local option bill and it became the Christian duty for men of the church to counteract such influence if possible.

IN GRIP OF CHOLERA.

Deadly Potentia Sweeps Over St. Petersburg.

St. Petersburg is in the grasp of the Asiatic cholera, which already has extended in severity and numbers the visitation of 1893. The disease is increasing daily at an alarming rate, and unless the authorities show in the future a greater degree of ability to cope with the situation than they have in the past there is every reason to fear that it will get out of hand.

The government's threat to apply the provisions of martial law has driven the municipality officials to bend all their energies to clearing the city of the scourge.

The aldermanic council Sunday voted $250,000 to enlarge the hospital space, to purchase and distribute disinfectants, the supply of which in St. Petersburg is well nigh exhausted, and to expedite the interment of bodies, which has been notoriously slow. The dead houses are overcrowded and many corpses lie unburied.

A beginning was made when public schools were transformed into hospital wards. A number of the grammar schools were closed and 4,000 students sent to their homes.

The department of war has opened stores to supply immediate needs, and army field kitchens have been dispatched to the poorer quarters to dispense free food.

DROUGHT IN NEW ENGLAND.

Lack of Rain Seriously Cripples Many Industries.

Anxiety is filling the heart of the New England farmer for a drought, which is pronounced to be one of the severest in many years, has spread itself over the New England states, causing suffering to its people and cat-tle throughout the section.

On Aug. 16 the last general rainfall came to New England. In many places the wells are running dry. Water in the lakes has been receding at the rate of an inch a day. Numerous forest fires have started. Many mills have been crippled by the lack of water supply and others have been compelled to shut down.

Cattle have been suffering and the milk supply is becoming limited. In Vermont mills have been seriously crippled or shut down, throwing hundreds out of employment. Quarries about Montpelier were closed during the past week. For several days past the water has been the lowest since 1881 in Lake Champlain and steamers have discontinued touching at St. Albans Bay.

DEMAND FREE "NEAR BEER."

Georgians to Fight Action of Legislature in Imposing Tax.

The Georgia prohibition law, so far as taxing "near beer" is concerned, is under fire. The extra session of the legislature which adjourned Saturday authorized a tax of $500 on manufacturers of this product. Two hundred dollars is the amount proposed on dispensers of "near beer."

Shortly after midnight Saturday night Judge Ellis, of the superior court, enjoined the comptroller of the state, the sheriff of Fulton county, which includes Atlanta, and his deputies, from collecting this tax. The injunction was granted on the petition of 115 dealers in the "prohibition product."

The "near beer" dealers claim that the legislation was unconstitutional. The case will be carried to the highest courts.

The head of Young, Charles Kemp, Henry C. Schutte.

A pauper is not expected to live and Capt. A. Paulsen, E. Tisler, Geo. King and Mr. Penny are seriously ill.

All were taken sick Thursday afternoon, and evidence of poison was so great that an investigation was started, ending finally in a confession by Miss Arthur that she had neglected to throw out some water to which there was a quantity of atropine and that her patients had got hold of it for their medicine. She realized her mistake as soon as they became ill, but did not confess her error until the investigation had brought the deaths almost home to her. Young died about midnight, Kemp early Friday morning and Schette later in the day.

Miss Arthur is in a state of collapse, but is kept under surveillance.

The inquest has been postponed until the result of Paisler's case is known.

THIEVES VISIT MARK TWAIN.

Humorist's Unbidden Guests Tote Off Some Silver.

Two burglars who broke into the residence of Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain) in Redding, Conn., Wednesday night were captured early Thursday in a New Haven railroad train between Bethel and Redding after a desperate fight in which Deputy Sheriff Bark of Redding, was shot in the leg.

The prisoners are believed to be professional crooks who came there from New York for the express purpose of entering the Clemens villa.

Miss Lyon, Mr. Clemens' secretary, was aroused about midnight by the sound of breaking glass. She found the dining room lighted and that the sideboard, with its silver, was missing from its customary place. Through an open window she saw two men fleeing the sideboard, which had been carried out into the garden. Miss Lyon summoned Mr. Clemens and the butler and telephoned for the sheriff and neighbors. The burglars meanwhile had fled with the silver, but they were captured on a train after a fierce fight in which the sheriff was wounded twice and one of the men shot himself in the head. The silver was recovered.

MAINE IS REPUBLICAN; PLURALITY CUT DOWN

Bert M. Fernald is Elected Governor, but His Lead is Only 7,700.

LIQUOR LAW IS KEY FACTOR.

Plurality is the Smallest in a Presidential Year for Quarter of a Century.

Maine has elected a Republican Governor by a plurality of about 7,700. The victory for Bert M. Fernald, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, is seriously discounted in the eyes of the Republicans by the small size of his plurality over Obadiah Gardner, the Democratic nominee, and the Democrats are correspondingly elated. Along with the State ticket, the Republicans have won, probably, the four Congressional districts, although late returns seemed necessary to determine the result in two of them.

The plurality received by the Republicans was far below the average. It probably will not be much over 7,700, the smallest received in any presidential year in twenty-five years. Returns from 208 out of 519 cities, towns, and plantations give Fernald 72,117, Gardner 64,993. The same places in 1904 gave Cook (Rep.) 75,331, Davis (Dem.) 49,416. The remaining places in 1904 gave Cook 1,630, Davis 730. These figures indicate a Republican loss of about 4 per cent and a Democratic gain of 32 per cent as compared with the last presidential year vote.

Vote Largest Since 1888.

The vote was the heaviest since 1888, running well up to 140,000, within a few thousand of the record for the State. The Democratic vote gained over four years ago in nearly every county and city.

The fight as between the Republicans and Democrats was distinctly local, carrying with it the liquor question. An analysis of the returns, according to a correspondent, indicates that the heavy vote rallied to the support of the Democratic ticket came from the element in the State which desires a reversion of the prohibition law, which now stands on the statute books. The Democratic State platform denominated such a reversion.

The following figures show how Maine has voted in the September elections during the past thirty-six years:

Year.	Rep.	Dem.	Plurality.
1872.....	71,838	58,343	13,495
1876.....	75,807	60,423	15,384

WRIGHT FLYER FALLS; KILLS ARMY OFFICER

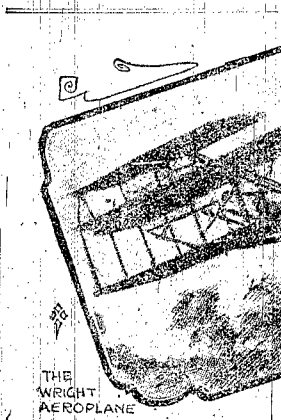

Aeroplane at Fort Myer Drops,
Causing Death of Lieut.
T. E. Selfridge.

INVENTOR'S LEG IS BROKEN.

Aviator's Condition Points to Recovery—Propeller Blade Breaks on Two-Man Flight.

After having drawn the attention of the world to his aeroplane ascensions at Fort Myer, near Washington, and establishing new world's records for heavier-than-air flying machines, Orville Wright and his partner, Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge, were killed in a crash on the morning of Sept. 17, 1903, while making a two-man flight. The aeroplane was accompanied by Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge of the signal corps of the army. In a fall of seventy-five feet Lieut. Selfridge was fatally injured and died soon afterward. Mr. Wright was seriously injured, but is expected to recover.

While the machine was encircling the hill grounds a propeller blade snapped off and, hitting some other part of the intricate mechanism, caused the airship to overturn and fall to the ground, enveloping the two occupants in the debris.

THE WRIGHT AEROPLANE

Soldiers and spectators ran across the field and assisted in lifting Mr. Wright and Lieut. Selfridge from under the tangled mass of machinery, rods, wires and shrouds of main. Mr. Wright was conscious. Lieut. Selfridge was unconscious. His head was covered with blood and he was choking when the soldiers extricated him.

When their wounds had been bandaged Mr. Wright and Lieut. Selfridge were taken to the Fort Myer hospital. It was feared that Mr. Wright was suffering from internal injuries. He had lapsed into a state of semi-consciousness by the time he reached the hospital. Lieut. Selfridge did not regain consciousness. He was suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull. After an examination it was announced that Mr. Wright was not seriously hurt. He is suffering from a fracture of his left leg and several ribs on the right side, but is expected to recover.

Mr. Wright announced several days ago that he would take Lieut. Selfridge, who was secretary of the Aerial Experiment Association and an aeronaut, on his next flight. At 5:14 in the afternoon the aeroplane was released, and it was noticed that it did not rise as quickly as on previous two-man flights. Lieut. Selfridge weighed about 175 pounds, making the weight greater than the machine had ever carried before.

After floating over the ground on its runners for thirty feet, the machine gradually, and had gained a height of forty feet when it passed over the starting apparatus for the first time. There was a six-mile wind, and the machine did not run as smoothly as on its former flights, most of which were made in calm weather. The aeronauts, however, apparently had control of the flyer, which rose to a height of seventy-five feet as it completed the second round. This height was maintained on the third round, while the machine was turning at the southern end of the field several thousand feet from the spectators, something fell.

Immediately all eyes were on the aeroplane and it was seen to turn over on its left side and, pausing a moment, made a complete turn and then came swooping to the earth in a cloud of dust.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.

A new industry in the western portion of the upper Michigan peninsula is a creamery which is being established at Escanaba. The plant, which is now being erected, will handle 10,000 pounds of milk a day, making 400 pounds of butter.

The executive committee of the National Wool Growers' Association is selecting locations for the central warehouses to be established by the association. St. Paul, Minneapolis, Denver, St. Joseph, Chicago and Omaha are each bidding for the national market.

Under an order from the United States Court the Pillsbury-Washburn grain elevators will be leased to parties who will keep them in operation during the recess.

During an electric storm near Crookston, Minn., lightning struck four stacks of wheat belonging to John Wagner and all were burned. The wind moved a granary on the Thompson farm at a distance of ten rods without damaging it at all, and Nick Welters' machinery shed was demolished entirely by the wind. Farmers were busy for two days moving wheat shocks from the low places where water was still standing.

AIR EXACTS HEAVY DEATH TOLL.

German Scientist Probably First to Die in Effort to Fly.

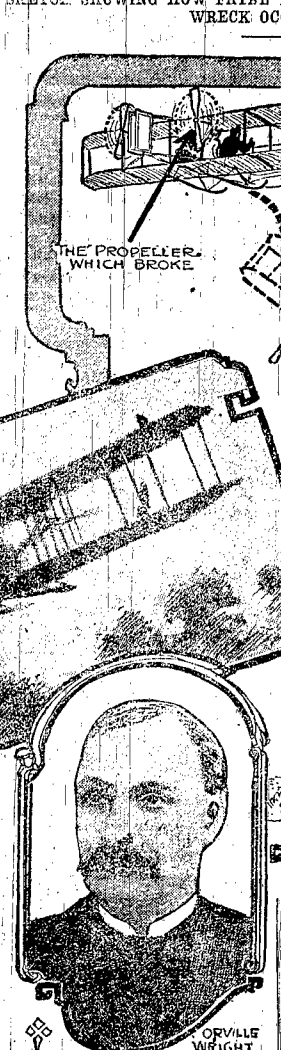

The tragical mishap which cost Lieut. Thomas E. Selfridge his life is the most recent of many resulting from man's persistent effort to conquer the air.

Lieutenant, a German scientist, and M. Pflieger, another student of aeronautics, probably were the first martyrs to the cause of the heavier-than-air type of aircraft. The former was killed in the summer of 1896 while experimenting with his "gliding machine," which is said to have furnished the first model for the Wright brothers. The latter met his death about the same time in a test of his own aeroplane.

On Sept. 3 last Charles Oliver Jones, the Hampton, Va. (N. Y.) aviator, fell to his death from his dirigible balloon, Bismarck, while giving an exhibition flight in Maine.

While it involved no loss of life, the destruction of Count Zeppelin's dirigible balloon by lightning at Linderhof, near SKETCH SHOWING HOW FATAL AEROPLANE WRECK OCCURRED, INVENTOR AND AIRSHIP.

Defective propeller blades broke when the aeroplane was seventy-five feet in the air. This destroyed the machine's equilibrium, and it plunged to the earth, burying the inventor and his companion under the wreckage.

Stuttgart, Germany, on Aug. 5 last, was one of the severest blows yet struck at aerial navigation.

A spectacular accident to a mammoth airship at Berkeley, Cal., on May 23 last resulted in serious injury to sixteen men, who narrowly escaped with their lives. The airship, the invention of Capt. J. A. Moerel, was on its trial trip. In full view of 10,000 people it ascended 300 feet, when it suddenly burst and dropped to the ground with its crew of sixteen men.

One of the most remarkable escapes from death in aeronautical history was that of Gall Robinson, who sails the Kamoeharui airship, at Springfield, Ohio, July 17, 1907. Robinson fell 800 feet, the only mark of his experience being a small scratch. As he neared the earth the machine slowed up and he reached the ground safely. When the people flocked to the wrecked balloon, thinking to find Robinson a corpse, he was coolly lighting a cigarette.

WRIGHT MADE RECORD FLIGHTS.

Ohio Aviator's Feats with an Aeroplane Scouted the World.

Orville Wright, before the recent accident put a stop to his feats at Fort Myer, startled the world by his feats with his aeroplane and established records for both one and two-man flights. His greatest flight was made on Sept. 12, when he remained in the air for one hour, fourteen minutes and twenty seconds, covering a distance of 51.3 miles. Leading up to this he had made the following flights:

- Sept. 5-57 minutes 31 seconds; 20 miles.
- Sept. 9-1 hour 2 minutes 15 seconds; 38.5 miles.
- Sept. 10-1 hour 5 minutes 52 seconds; 41 miles.
- Sept. 11-1 hour 10 minutes 26 seconds; 40.8 miles.

Wright's record for flights with a passenger were:

- Sept. 9-0 minutes 26 seconds; 4 miles.
- Sept. 12-0 minutes 9 seconds; 6 miles.

A Flier Without a Tail.

Members of the Aerial Experiment Association at Hammondsport, N. Y., have tried navigating the air in the June Bug with the entire rear portion, or tail, of the machine removed. There was some lack of stability, but greater speed of the machine with no air surfaces back of the riders. A speed of over forty miles was attained.

Radium Creator of Gems.

In a paper read recently before the French Academy of Sciences, Prof. Berthel said he had obtained remarkable results by placing crystals of corundum in contact with radium for periods varying from thirty to sixty days, the idea being suggested by the fact that the glass in which radium is inclosed takes on a blue tint. Thus treated, colorless corundum became yellow like oriental topaz. Blue corundum was converted into oriental sapphire. Neither heat nor electricity affected the radium-artificial gems, which experts could not distinguish from those of natural origin.

WAGES AND PRICES SOAR.

Purchasing Power of Labor and Cost of Necessaries Compared.

The average wages per hour in the principal manufacturing and mechanical industries of the country were 8.7 per cent higher in 1907 than in 1909, while retail prices of food were 4.2 per cent higher, according to the July report of the bureau of labor. The regular hours of labor per week were four tenths of one per cent lower, and the number of employes in establishments investigated by the bureau showed an increase of 1 per cent.

The purchasing power of an hour wage, as measured by food, was less in 1907 than in 1909, the decrease being one-half of 1 per cent. The report shows that as compared with the average for the ten-year period 1890 to 1899 the average wage per hour in 1907 was 28.8 per cent higher, the number of employes 44.4 per cent greater, with a decrease of 5 per cent in the average hours of labor per week.

The retail price of principal articles of food was 20.6 per cent higher in 1907 than for the period 1890 to 1899. Compared with the average for the same ten-year period the food purchasing power of an hour's wage in 1907 was 0.8 per cent greater.

The report adds that the greatest increase in wages per hour was in the manufacture of cotton goods, the increase being 12.0. In the paper and wood pulp industry there was an increase in wages per hour of 10.1 per cent; in the silk, woolen and worsted goods industry 6.4 per cent; in the glass industry and street and sewer work an increase of 5.8 per cent. The investigation made by the bureau covers those industries in which the wages paid in one year were $10,000,000 or more.

The report presents the retail prices of thirty staple food commodities as sold in sixty-eight localities in the United States by 1,014 dealers.

Retail prices of food in 1907 were higher than in any other year of the eighteen-year period above named, being 4.2 per cent higher than in 1906.

The average prices of twenty-nine of the thirty articles included in this compilation of prices were higher in 1907 than in 1906. The articles which showed the greatest advance in prices are flour, 8.0 per cent; butter, 8 per cent; evaporated apples, 7.8 per cent; milk, 7.3 per cent; corn meal, 6.8 per cent; cheese, 6.7 per cent, and potatoes, 5.4 per cent. The only article which showed a decrease is tea, the decrease being 0.2 per cent.

THE WEEKLY HISTORIAN

HOW THE HOBOS RIDE FREE.

They Have Various Ways of Traveling—But All Are Full of Danger.

Everybody knows that there is a class of people called hobos. Everybody has heard of almost unbelievable feats, completed in almost unbelievable time, considering that not a cent of railroad fare is ever paid.

In the first place, all railroads are classified among the fraternity of hobos as either good or bad.

On "good" roads the crews are lax in the enforcement of their orders relative to keeping men off their trains, and there are not many railroad detectives or "buddies" as they are called. On "bad" roads the crews attempt, in a measure at least, to keep the tramps off their trains, and there are a host of detectives.

The first move on the part of a man who wishes to beat it out of a town is to go down to the railroad yards and locate a freight made up to go his way, that is, of course, if he wishes to travel by freight. His further action depends entirely upon the classification of the road, the layout of the yards and the position of the train. If it be a good road and the yards are not hostile, then he is likely to climb into an empty box car, softly close the door and wait quietly until the train pulls out. This is the simplest and most desirable manner of riding, if time is not an object.

Should he, however, consider it unwise to make the train in the yards, or should there be no empty cars, his

Analysis of New York Crime. Police Commissioner Ringham of New York, in an article for the North American Review, says that 60 per cent of the city's crime is committed by Hebrews and 20 per cent by Italians. From these figures he argues that the only way to deal with this problem will be to create a secret service, the members of which are known only to two or three persons. His estimate is that 85 per cent of the population of the city is foreign born or of foreign parentage. In his opinion the Italian offenders are the greatest menace to law and order.

In the first place, all railroads are classified among the fraternity of hobos as either good or bad.

On "good" roads the crews are lax in the enforcement of their orders relative to keeping men off their trains, and there are not many railroad detectives or "buddies" as they are called. On "bad" roads the crews attempt, in a measure at least, to keep the tramps off their trains, and there are a host of detectives.

The first move on the part of a man who wishes to beat it out of a town is to go down to the railroad yards and locate a freight made up to go his way, that is, of course, if he wishes to travel by freight. His further action depends entirely upon the classification of the road, the layout of the yards and the position of the train. If it be a good road and the yards are not hostile, then he is likely to climb into an empty box car, softly close the door and wait quietly until the train pulls out. This is the simplest and most desirable manner of riding, if time is not an object.

Should he, however, consider it unwise to make the train in the yards, or should there be no empty cars, his next choice would probably be the "bummers." The "bummers" are the projections on the end of a freight car just above the coupling block. On some cars they are broad and extend the whole width of the car. On other cars they are barely three inches wide, scarcely more than a narrow ledge.

The hobo who intends to make the bummers walks down the track a few hundred feet ahead of the locomotive and waits for the train to pass him. He may see some cover for hiding, or he may assume an air of nonchalance to throw the crew off its guard. As the train approaches he steps alongside the track and waits for "his car," which he has previously sized up, to come abreast of him. As it passes he runs alongside, grabs for the handles, and swings himself up to the steps. Then he crawls up between the cars and stands with one foot on the bumper of each car.

It is a dangerous position, especially on fast freights, for the cars, unaccompanied by the absorbing springs with which passenger coaches are fitted, sway and jerk and bounce alarmingly, and there is no hint of union between them. Nevertheless a trip of 150 miles is looked upon as nothing by the seasoned hobo.

On bad roads, where the crews are particularly hostile against excursions of this nature, it is quite frequently necessary to ride the rods over a considerable stretch of country. When this mode of travel is used there is always an attempt to avoid the watchful eyes of the crews. This is comparatively easy under the cover of darkness, but in the daytime the "hobo" must take advantage of any strategically placed box car or pile of ties for concealment until the train comes abreast of him. Such a hiding place must not be too far from the track, for in such an event he could be seen from the top of the train as he stepped out.

As a car with good rods comes he steps out and runs alongside. When the car door comes even with him he clutches the handle in the middle and with a springing jump he lands with his feet upon the outer rod. From this position he stoops down and reaches underneath the car to grasp some of the mechanism of the air brake in order to steady himself while he crawls down beneath the car and stretches himself along the rods. This is probably the most dangerous of any way to ride. A man's position is cramped and uncomfortable. The constant passing of numbing ties and the monotonous click of the wheels over the rails make one careless and drowsy. And the chafers and dust are blinding.

The blind baggage is the most ridden part of a passenger train. On most fast trains there is a vestibule floor on the end of the baggage or mail car next to the tender. And this floor is invariably locked. To be sure, the crews have a key to the door and sometimes, if they see a man making the blind at a stop they open it and put him off—"ditch him" the hobo calls it. Some cars, however, are fitted up with one end made without a door, only a "blind" end. Both sorts of cars are ridden, but the hobo prefers the latter.

The hobo who wants to make the blind hovers about some stopping place of the passenger, either a station or a water tank, usually choosing a train which will arrive so that darkness may cover his movements. As the train starts he steps out from some cover up ahead of the train and climbs up between the tender and the first car by means of the step on the end of the tender. Then, if the car is vestibuled, he stands with his back against the door. If not it is a similar experience to riding the bummers on a freight train, only the car is fitted with better springs and runs smoothly. From the blind he may crawl up onto the tender and make himself comfortable over the water tank or in the coal.

Ancient Scotch Custom Which Involved Human Sacrifice.

Sir John Sinclair's "Statistical Account of Scotland" contains notices of many old customs, which still continued to be observed in the Highlands, though they were even then fast dying out. From the eleventh volume of that great work, which was published in 1791 and the succeeding years, we learn, on the authority of the minister of Callender, Perthshire, that the boys of the township assembled in a body upon the moors on May day and proceeded to dig a circular trench, leaving the soil in the center undisturbed, so as to form a low table of green turf sufficient in size to accommodate the whole party.

They lighted a fire and prepared a custard of milk and eggs and a large oatmeal cake, which they baked upon a stone placed in the cinders. When they had eaten the custard, they divided the cake into as many equal portions as there were persons in the assembly and dished one of those pieces with charcoal until it was perfectly black. They then placed all the pieces of the cake together in a bunnet, and each in turn drew one blindfolded, the holder of the bunnet being entitled to the last piece. The boy who drew the blackened portion was destined to be sacrificed and was compelled to leap three times through the flames.

Although the ceremony had degenerated into a mere pastime for boys, it is evident that it must once upon a time have involved the actual sacrifice of a human being in order to render the coming summer fruitful. Gentleman's Magazine.

SIX YARDS OF ROOSTER.

People used to doubt the existence of the hewi with a tail 18 feet long, but here is the evidence that it is not a creation of the fancy. This bird is a rooster with a tail fully six yards in length. It is Japanese and the species is known as the Omigadori. Fowl of this kind are not known now anywhere outside of Japan, though they had their origin in Corea, where they were known as the To-maru.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Coolidge and Chief Montgomery of the Customs Division of that department have presented to Senator Durrows, as the representative of the Senate committee on finance, the views of the department as to the charges believed to be necessary in the administrative features of the tariff law. Among the recommendations was one for an increase from $100 to $200 of the exemption made in favor of Americans returning from abroad. The department also would abolish the fee system now extensively employed throughout the customs service and put merchandise sent through the mails on the same footing as that sent through the regular customs channels.

President Roosevelt has made public a letter to the Secretary of State advising him of the postponement until 1917 of the Japanese Exposition, which was to have been held in 1912. The reasons given are that the short time between now and 1912 would necessitate a wasteful expense and that there is a peculiar fitness in holding the exposition, the first in Asia, in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of his majesty to the throne. The President's letter lays stress on the peculiar feeling of regard and friendship which this country has for Japan, and says that we should do all in our power to help make the exposition a success.

Major Gen. Wood, who held longer than any other officer the command of the American forces in the East, and who is now on his way home from Europe to succeed Maj. Gen. Grant as commander of the Department of the East, will suggest to the President, it is said, a plan for having a certain number of army officers sent to Japan and China to learn the languages of those countries. His plan contemplates the sending of four of the younger officers, not above the rank of captain, to take four-year courses in those languages, rigid examinations at the end of each six months to determine whether the men sent are peculiarly fitted to master them.

A report prepared by the Department of Commerce and Labor shows that the total imports for the month of July reached $36,444,639, against $24,621,803 for the corresponding month of 1907, and for the seven months ending with July, it showed $208,835,704, against $275,901,970 for the like period of 1907. The exports for the same period showed a similar remarkable falling-off, the total for July, 1908, being $102,190,529, against $128,540,535 in July, 1907, and for the seven months ending with July, $690,007,050, as against $1,068,009,007.

Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, predicts that the extra session of congress which is to be called after the fourth of next March for the revision of the tariff, will be of long duration, and that it will witness many stubborn contests over the various schedules which it is proposed to change. Mr. McCumber said that the West will demand that several articles which are now on the protected list shall be made free of duty, and he included lumber and coal as among those on behalf of which a strong fight will be made.

Orders have been issued by the War Department directing Col. William F. Stewart of the coast artillery, who several months ago was sent to the abandoned military post of Fort Grant, Ariz., on account of "temperamental incapacity," to proceed to Fort Huachuca, Ariz., to take the riding test prescribed for field officers. At the conclusion of the test he is directed to return to Fort Grant, Colo. Stewart is reported pleased with the order.

The outcome of the prolonged consideration of the appeal of the eight West Point cadets expelled for brutalizing is the announcement that upon the recommendation of the President, Secretary Wright had decided to let the dismissal of two, Rossell and Weaver, stand, but to suspend for one year the other six who are younger. The two who are expelled were members of the first class.

The retirement of Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans placed Rear Admiral Casper Goodrich, commandant of the navy yard at New York, at the head of the active list of rear admirals of the navy. Admiral Goodrich will be retired in January next. The position of senior rear admiral will in no way be a material advantage to him.

The summary of reports of the condition of the national banks at the close of business July 15, 1908, shows the total of the item "loans, securities, etc.," held by the banks to be $765,875,220.

That there was a net increase of 200,000 in the population of the country as the result of immigration for June, is shown by the report of the department of commerce and labor.

President Roosevelt has established a zone sixty feet wide along the Mexican border, the land of which is withdrawn from settlement. The purpose of this action is to render it more difficult to smuggle Asiatics over the line into California.

Secretary Straus has approved the action of the immigration officials of Boston in the so-called Mormon cases, wherein a number of immigrants were held upon the allegation of entering the country in violation of law.

HAPPY REUNION

The Lewis Young Family Have one of That Kind

Being a comparative stranger in these parts one item of interest to a large number escaped our notice last week, and as it is worthy of mention we gladly give it space in this issue.

On September 13th, 1908, near the beautiful little city of Wayne, Neb., a reunion of an honored family took place, at which a number of former Cass county people participated.

This reunion took place especially in honor of one of Cass county's pioneer women, Mrs. Lewis H. Young, born Feb. 22, 1825, and now in her 84th year.

Here at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rosa B. Phipps, and her husband, this loved and venerable pioneer lady, looked backward over two generations—her children and grand children; and but for sickness, another generation would have been present—her great grandchildren.

This family reunion was represented as follows: Mrs. Lewis H. Young of Carroll, Wayne county, Neb. Her sons, Jasper W. Young of Plattsmouth and his wife, Mrs. Mattie E. Young; Byron E. Young of Carroll, Neb.; Eddie Young and wife, Mrs. Emma Young, of Carroll, Neb., and their five boys, Jodie, Bennie, Bernard, Ernest and Edgar—Jodie and Bennie being twins, fifteen years old.

The daughters present were Mrs. Rosa B. Phipps and husband, Edward E. Phipps of Wayne, Neb., and their children—Harry, Gertrude, Herbert, Eva and Lessie. Mrs. Luella A. Olmstead and her husband, Wm. R. Olmstead, of Carroll, Neb.

All the children were present except one daughter—Mrs. Joanna Johnson, who died a number of years ago, leaving two children, a son, Harvey Johnson, residing at Murray, Neb., and a daughter, Mrs. Chas. Manners, residing at Plattsmouth, Neb.

Mrs. Manners' two children—Josephine and Harold are the only great grandchildren living, but were unable to be present at the reunion, and, likewise were Mrs. Manners and Harvey Johnson unable to attend.

At this beautiful farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Phipps, were assembled representatives of three generations, the venerable mother, grandmother and children and grandchildren.

Around the festal board, loaded with the choicest viands, loved, honored and venerable age with joyous, hopeful youth gathered to enjoy sociability and to partake of a bounteous dinner which Mrs. Phipps knows so well how to prepare.

A somewhat unusual variation from the ordinary of a family reunion was a feature of the happy occasion. From early childhood, the son, Eddie Young, had shown a marked talent for instrumental music and early in young manhood became an expert violinist. As years advanced he became a leader and teacher of instrumental music. Of Eddie's five sons three—Jodie, Bennie and Bernard—are likewise musicians, and on this occasion Eddie and his sons with band instruments and violin, delighted the participants with a number of choice selections.

Mrs. Young, the honorary guest and her husband, the late Lewis H. Young, were among the earliest pioneer settlers of Cass county, having located on a farm near old Three Groves in 1855, where all their children were born with the exception of Jasper and Byron, who were born in Mills county, Ia.

Another reunion of the Lewis H. Young family was a most enjoyable affair to all concerned and one that will long be remembered by the participants.

Contracts have been closed between the "Central State Bank," which is being organized in Omaha, and a construction company, for the erection of a twelve-story fire-proof building in the heart of the retail district of Omaha.

NORMAL COLLEGE

Mrs. Pile spent last Thursday and Friday visiting Madison friends and attending the county fair.

Several new students enrolled Monday and Tuesday. A number more will be in during the next two weeks.

Mr. Patrick of Wakefield came down Monday with his daughter, Lois, who will remain the year and complete the scientific course.

The men of the scientific class played a tie game of baseball Saturday with a picked team of students. Such games are of interest to the students.

Miss Sears of Lyons was accompanied by her father on Monday when she came over to enter school for the year. She enters the professional course and will prove a strong student.

The graduating classes organized Saturday afternoon and elected officers for the term. The classes are filling up splendidly and indications are that more than 100 will complete the scientific and teachers' courses this year.

President Pile has fixed his office hours from 8 to 10 and 1 to 3. He will be found at the office daily at these hours. His health has rapidly improved but he does not expect to do any teaching before the holidays.

Prof. Bright has splendid classes in didactics, civics, review arithmetic, review grammar and algebra. His long and varied experience makes him the very best kind of a teacher for this line of work. The popularity of these classes will be the same as they have been for years.

Miss Kingsbury has two strong classes in German. Those entering this work will continue during year. She has three good Latin classes. Most all the members of the scientific class are taking Caesar. She reports excellent work for beginning of the year.

The exercises of the literary societies will be held on Saturday evenings beginning at 7:30. Members of the graduating classes have been assigned to one of the two societies. Each member will appear once a term with an essay, an oration or debate. Other students appear on programs as assigned by society officers.

The Manual training department is proving popular with all classes of students. The bench work, lathe and forge work attract the young men while the basket weaving, drawing and elementary training interest teachers. Many inquiries come to the office concerning the nature of the work. We have the best equipped department in the state.

Fred Pile teaches the classes in trigonometry and the advanced classes in algebra and geometry. The first and second term classes in algebra and geometry are under Mr. and Mrs. Bright. Fred attends to a large part of the office business and will teach fewer classes this year than he has for the past three years.

All departments start out well. Prof. Sauntry's business practice and other classes in the commercial department are doing excellent work. Miss Bellows brings good reports from her classes in English and history. Prof. Puffer has good classes in chemistry, physics and biology. Miss Jennie Bellows has strong classes in the elocution. Miss Hewins has good enrollment in the music department.

The model school under direction of Miss Van Connert moves off nicely. She is an expert teacher and director. The children and student teachers will find every minute pleasant and profitable. A number of students are taking the observation term and later will assist in teaching. Members of the graduating classes are required to take 24 weeks of this work to secure a state certificate.

16 to 1 does not stand any show at all among the teachers of the state if the attendance at the Madison county institute is any criterion to judge by. At that institute there were 72 female teachers and only two men.

The Hastings Tribune, calling attention to the fact that the recent primary cost the people of Nebraska almost as much as a general election, says the expense in Adams county was nearly $1,000 and that the filing fees paid by the candidates fell $15 short of equaling the one item of polling place rental.
