CONTRACT WAS NOT LET

MANY BIDDERS PRESENT

Notice For Bids Not Entirely Legal

Monday evening at eight o'clock was the hour set at a special meeting of the city council of Wayne for opening the bids and letting the contract for the sanitary sewer system, but it did not take place. It was not because there were no bidders nor bids presented, as there were about twenty interested men from abroad in attendance and there were fifteen separate bids submitted, but it was found at the last moment that the notice of publication calling for bids was not entirely legal, as it did not entirely comply with the requirements of the Nebraska law. The blame, primarily, must rest with the engineer who drew the plans and specifications as the published notice was exactly as he said it was necessary to publish it, but as he resides in Sioux City he evidently overlooked the fact that the Iowa and Nebraska laws are not the same on this point, and he failed to insert in the notice of publication the engineer's estimate of the cost of the sewerage system, and on this little seeming technicality it was deemed best to re-advertise, hence the bids were not opened but were returned to the bidders. This slight irregularity did not make any difference to the bidders, nor essentially any difference to the city, as both parties knew what the engineer's estimate was, and the bidders have been engaged in their line of work long enough to know that they must get below the estimate if they wish to secure the contract, and the city would surely not allow any bid above the estimate as they fully know it would not have been legal to do so, and the notice specified that the council reserved the rights to reject any or all bids. The difficulty, as we understand it, lay in the fact that some of those who were opposed to the sewerage system made their threats that they would go in to court and secure an injunction. This they could undoubtedly have done on the technicality mentioned above, thus tying up the work until the matter could have been threshed out in the courts. It seems too bad that there should be any one opposed to such an improvement as the one under consideration, but there always is, so it is best to be on the safe side, and the surest, quickest and best way out of the dilemma was the course taken by the council. It is unfortunate in several ways. It puts off the beginning of the work for at least a month. It is very probable that the city will not again get as large a number of bidders as there were at this meeting; and the increased number competing for the work has a tendency to lower the bids. One man was here from Wisconsin, and bidders were present from Dubuque, Cedar Rapids, Indianola, Harlan, and other places in Iowa, besides some from our own state. The council will at once take steps to re-advertise for bids and will endeavor to get the matter in such shape the next time that there can be no question as to its legality, and the large majority of our people will wish them success.

Regarding Estrays

This is the season of the year when much stray stock is taken up by the farmers. Very few people understand the proper legal method to pursue in dealing with strays, and in very few cases is the law complied with. The requirements of the statutes is as follows: Estrays can only be taken up when trespassing on your property and 48 hours after they are taken up it is the duty of the person so doing to send a brief description of the animal and the date of taking up to the justice of the peace of the township, for recording, for which the justice of the peace is entitled to a fee of twenty-five cents. If the animal is not reclaimed within ten days after that the law requires the sending of another description to the county clerk with a fee of twenty-five cents for recording. After ten days more have elapsed the estray shall be advertised for five weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county. Six months thereafter if the animal is a hog or a sheep, a calf or a colt under one year at the time of taking up, it becomes the property of the party taking it up. If the animal be a horse or a cow over one year old then at the end of six months the justice of the peace appoints two disinterested appraisers to appraise it and it is advertised and sold to the highest bidder. The proceeds above the bill for keeping the animal and the cost incurred go into the public treasury. It might be well for farmers who haven't access to the statute to cut this out and preserve it.—Ex.

Resolutions

Hall of Wayne lodge A. O. U. W., Wayne, Nebraska, March 18, 1909:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God in His divine providence, to take from our midst Brother J. M. Pile, Therefore, Be it Resolved by Wayne lodge No. 103, A. O. U. W., in meeting assembled, That we, as a lodge, miss from our midst our beloved brother, and be it further resolved that we deeply sympathize with his family who have lost by his death, a beloved father and husband and we recommend that they look to the Giver of all good for comfort and consolation in this their hour of trial.

Be it further resolved: That these resolutions be spread on the minutes of the lodge, a copy sent to bereaved family and published in the home papers.

Parsonage Invaded.

On Tuesday evening the Methodist parsonage was invaded by a large company of young people belonging to the Epworth League headed by its president, Mr. Weldon Crossland, who, in a brief address expressing the appreciation of the company of the interest taken in them by the pastor and their good wishes for his future welfare, presented him with a beautiful bouquet of roses and carnations and a box of gold coin. The parson, though taken completely by surprise, managed to articulate his thanks for the loyal and hearty manner in which he had been supported by the League members in all his ministry.

Too Much Graduation

"Too much graduation" is the theme of an article in one of the popular periodicals which treats the shortcomings of the modern educational system. It is pointed out that high school students are prepared, not for practical things in life, but for commencement. The writer charges that the course of study in the grades is merely a preparation for high school, and that the high school course aims at little more than to fit candidates for entrance into universities and colleges. As there are many pupils who drop out after reaching the eighth grade and as the great majority of high school students never pursue their education any farther, he thinks that the curriculum should include more English, political economy, manual training and domestic science and less Latin, Greek and technical mathematics. There appears to be a great deal of truth in these observations. It is within the knowledge of nearly everyone that high school boys and girls pay small attention to studies and a great deal to class functions and commencement affairs. Why not have more good old fashioned work and less giddiness in the high school.—Lincoln News.

Mrs. Chas. Beebe and Mrs. Rollie Ley returned from their visit at Fullerton, Nebraska, Tuesday morning.

Mayor Ley went to Lincoln Tuesday morning to try and help along in the Normal School project under consideration by the legislature.

Not having brains enough in the entire legislature to draft a bank guaranty law, and going outside to secure a lawyer to draft a bill, and agreeing to pay $300 for the work, it now looks as if no effort will be made to compensate the man for the work of drafting the bill, as there has been no mention of it as yet.

In spite of all the blow and bluster and proclamation of the "insurgents" as to what great things they were going to be able to do, Speaker Cannon was easily elected at the first meeting of the extra session of the sixty-first congress Monday. When a man once gets in, it seems a hard task to get him out.

Seal of Minnesota Flour

Is not bleached. Flour made from inferior wheat requires the bleaching process. The highest authority in U. S. says bleached flours are injurious to health. The millers' association dispute this authority.

If you desire to evade injury to yourself and family, use "Seal" flour made from wheat and wheat only. Costs no more than common flours.

You will soon need feed for your small chickens. I have it in three sizes. It's all food, every grain of it, and in sizes suitable for feeding from the chick's first meal until he is ready for market. It's worthy of a trial and it's the kind you will buy again.

Why Not Move
It seems to us that it would be a good thing if the railway company could be induced to move the depot from its present location to the north side of the track. As it is now passengers coming off from the trains and very often those who are going to the depot to take the train must needs stand and wait for ten or fifteen minutes while the branch train unloads its passengers and express. It would be much better all around. In stormy weather or when it is extremely cold it is not a very nice thing to have to stand and wait for a train to get out of the way. We believe that if the Commercial Club would take the matter up with the railway company an arrangement could be entered into that would be satisfactory to all concerned. Why not try it at least?

You needn't be afraid.
One day a lady who had been reared in the careful luxury of the old-fashioned Virginia home was invited to visit the kitchen of a great Chicago hotel. She wanted to go, but was afraid. When asked why, she replied, "I'm afraid I'll see something that will forever destroy my appetite for hotel food." She went, and found everything delightfully clean. Good housewives consider cleanliness and purity first of all; that's why Quaker Oats is their choice among all oatmeal. In making Quaker Oats the grain is sifted and resifted passing through more than fifty processes of cleaning before it is cooked and rolled.
If you took a handful of oats and scrubbed and polished and wiped each separate grain, it wouldn't then be nearly as clean as Quaker Oats. No human hand ever touches a single grain of Quaker Oats from the field to your kitchen. The best advice on foods you could have is: Eat Quaker Oats every morning for breakfast.
You'll find Quaker Oats put up in two size packages, the regular size and the large, family size for those who are not convenient to the store.

lence of his sermon, which appealed to the intellect as well as to the hearts of his hearers, the friends here has made throughout the community testify to his congeniality and standing as a citizen. Our church has taken a long step forward since his coming among us. We do not forget, neither do we wish to leave unspoken our appreciation of the work of our pastor's wife. Mrs. Sharpe has ably seconded the efforts of her husband and has taken her place in the work of church and community with equal success. While it is with feelings of true regret that our relations with our Pastor and his family must now be severed, we the Official Board, representing the entire church membership at Wayne, congratulate any church to which Brother Sharpe may go, and we predict for him the same success which has followed his pastorate in our city.

Wrong Measurement
He who measures the success of his fellows by the amount of this world's goods they accumulate is taking an extremely narrow view of life. Prosperity is one evidence of success, but only one of many. The prosperous man may not have a happy home, for he may become so absorbed in the process of dollar-getting that he loses sight of the higher and better things of life. His children may scarcely know him, his home is only a place to eat and sleep. He has no time to guide his children over the pitfalls of life and they stumble and go down, and he awakens to find that he has succeeded in his business, but failed in his duties as a father, and all of his dollars cannot heal his broken heart nor instill in the mind of his child the lesson of upright living that should have been learned in early childhood. That father may be counted a success in the business world. From a higher point of view he has been a most dismal failure, and as he approaches the evening of life he realizes his mistake and it makes him miserable.—Howells Journal.

EXECUTING MAZEPPA.
Peter the Great's Odd Way of Punishing a Deserter.
Peter the Great, czar of Russia, punished a traitor on a notable occasion in a way that the numerous victims of the present czar's wrath might well wish were still in vogue.
Mazeppa, chieftain of the Cossacks, had deserted to the king of Sweden, with whom Peter was at war. Mazeppa was at once tried by court martial and found guilty of high treason. Sentence of death was passed upon him.
Mazeppa, however, was safely in the camp of the Swedish king, but this fact was not permitted to stand in the way of the carrying out of every part of the sentence. A wooden effigy of Mazeppa was made, and the punishments were inflicted upon the Cossack chieftain's substitute.
The effigy was first dressed in Mazeppa's uniform, and upon its breast were pinned all of the medals, ribbons and other decorations that the real culprit had worn.
While the commanding general and a squadron of cavalry stood near an officer advanced to the wooden man and read the sentence. Then another officer wrenched off the effigy's patent of nobility and his other decorations, tore them up and trampled upon them. This done, he struck the wooden gentleman a powerful blow in the pit of the stomach, knocking him over. Next a hangman appeared. While the soldiers shouted he threw a noose over the imitation Mazeppa's head and dragged the effigy to a nearby gallows, where it was hanged by the neck until it was dead.—Scrap Book.

Could Handle a Showel.
The foreman of a Chicago iron mill once employed a tramp who had been a college baseball champion. Their acquaintance began in a way that showed the tramp still to be game and cleery. It was a cold autumn dawn, and the tramp had slept in front of a furnace on a warm stone. The foreman, being short of laborers, on his morning tour of inspection spied the fellow and thought he would give him a job.
"My man," he said, "can you do anything with a showel?"
"Well, I could fry a piece of ham on it."—Minneapolis Journal.

Got What Was Coming to Him.
Tuesday evening a number of W. F. Ramsey's old soldier friends took conveyances and went out to his farm home and invaded it without ceremony. The boys sat up so, a few weeks ago when they surprised Jake Roush; that on this occasion their better halves insisted that they must be taken along, hence there were no "high dikes" on the part of the visitors. Jake Roush and wife bravely brought up the rear guard on the way out and were the first on the retreat. In the main the roads were very good except a quarter of a mile near the Ramsey home where it was feared that the commissary wagon with the refreshments would get stuck fast in the mud. Fortunately this sad fate was averted so there was an oyster supper at a late hour, which together with music by a phonograph, on an organ, and social conversation served to pass the hours away so that it was after the midnight hour before the last comrade was tucked safely away to dream of tented fields, hardtack and coffee.

Teachers Association.
The twenty-third annual session of the North Nebraska Teachers' association will meet in Norfolk, April 1 and 2. No pains or expense has been spared to make this meeting all that it should be to furnish help and inspiration to the teachers of the district. We have on the program men of national reputation including many of the best educators of our own state. The spirit of the age is "onward and upward." Lawyers, doctors, bankers and merchants all have their organizations and associations for increasing their efficiency. The men who neglect this means of improvement soon find themselves in the rear rank of their profession. The people of every community have a degree of pride in their schools. They want the best teachers and the best service their money will procure. A meeting of this kind will give new life and energy to your teacher and send her home with her teaching power sufficiently increased to more than compensate for the time lost.
