NOW IS THE TIME TO MOVE

SIT UP AND TAKE NOTICE

A Little Pushing This Year Will Count For More Than Much Labor Later On.

The work that was done by the delegation of Wayne citizens at Lincoln during the session of the legislature, which culminated in the passage of the bill for the purchase of the Wayne Normal by the state, and its being signed by Governor Shallenberger, has done more to draw the attention of the state to Wayne than any other one thing in its history. It would seem that just now was a propitious time to keep things moving along the line of advertising our little city still further to the outside world. The victories already accomplished are not all that may be won. There are other avenues open for still further advances and progress and we should not be satisfied to simply sit and drift until the present interest in Wayne has died out and the memory of our present achievements is like a tale that is told and then forgotten.

Wayne is going to be quite active this season in the way of building and public improvements, and it would be well to let this fact go abroad, and each one can be a messenger for the carrying of the good news. There is the completion of our new $42,000 high school building, which is to be ready for occupancy when the fall term of 1909 begins. There is the construction of nearly four miles of a sanitary sewer system that is to be put in this season. Our Baptist friends are going to erect a fine new church building. H. C. Henney is going to put in a new brick business block. The X-Ray Incubator company has become tired of being copped up in their present small quarters and being compelled to rent storage rooms here and there so have decided to erect a large new factory and storage room for their business this season. This year's business has far exceeded their expectations and the outlook for the future is much better than it has ever been in the past.

In order to be able to meet all demands made upon them they will build and then engage in manufacture more extensively than ever before. Wayne is already a little city of beautiful homes and there will be several more of them added before the close of 1909. These and many other things can advantageously be brought to the attention of the outside world, and as there are always people who are looking for investments or a place to make their home much can be done to help in the town's advancement by keeping these things constantly before the public eye. Let us continue to demonstrate that Wayne is settled with a wide-awake, progressive class of business men and citizens that our future growth may be much more rapid and fully as permanent as it has been in the past. This can readily be done by everyone boosting a little all the time. This is the year to do it and now the time to begin.

Carroll - From the Index

James Baker has purchased the Claude Hancock home.

Mrs. Joe Garwood is seriously ill with kidney and liver trouble.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Woods have celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

George Edwards has gone to South Dakota where he will spend the summer running a steam plow.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Candor will regret to learn that they are expected to move to Laurel in the near future. Mr. Candor has been assured the appointment to the station at Laurel. This will be a promotion as the salary is some larger at that station.

On Monday of this week little Clarence Ward, the grandchild of Mr. and Mrs. B. Wineland, met with a severe accident. The little fellow was playing on the back porch of the Kinkaid home. In some way he fell to the ground, a distance of fifteen feet. The result was a fracture of the left leg at a point about six inches above the ankle.

Last Saturday afternoon a number of the farmers of this community met in the A. O. U. W. hall and assisted by Mr. Stewart, of Cherokee, Iowa, organized a local branch of The Farmer's Equity Society. The object of such an organization as laid out is to promote the market for farm products and the other diversified interests of the tillers of the soil. John R. Morris was elected president and B. P. Peterson, secretary.

A Place Beautiful

We do not know whether Greenwood cemetery is cared for by an association of ladies or by the city, but should think by the former method as our experience elsewhere has led us to observe that cemeteries thus managed are usually the best and most effectively cared for year by year. At any rate we desire to speak a word of commendation for the way in which it has been laid out and the manner in which it is kept. Too often very little care is given the silent city of the dead, but in Wayne the entire grounds, and they are extensive, have been and are kept with as scrupulous care as are the private lawns and grounds about the town. This is as it should be, and in this respect, as well as many others, Wayne is in the lead.

Stock Shipments

Monday was a great day for the stock raisers and shippers of Wayne and vicinity, twelve car loads being sent out on the afternoon train. Most of them were cattle. S. E. Auker shipped five car loads of cattle to the Chicago market. Henry Trevert, George Peters, Geo. Bewer, L. M. Owen and W. H. Benton, one car load of cattle each to Omaha, and Philip Damme one car load of hogs to Omaha. They were all prime stock and as prices continue upward they no doubt realized well from their shipments.

Off to School

Frances Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Jones, left Monday afternoon for Mount Herman, Massachusetts, where he will enter college with the intention of taking a classical and preparatory course. His father accompanied him to get him established and started in his studies, and will also visit his parents in that section before coming home. The young man does well to seek an education but it is a long ways from home where he has gone.

Fred Pile For President

By a recent act of the Legislature, the property of the Nebraska Normal College becomes the property of the state, for a state normal school. As this bill was passed late in the session, it was impossible to get an appropriation for a maintenance fund. The state leases the property to the present management for the next two years, the school to be run in the same manner as formerly. Therefore, until 1911, the policy regarding the school will be the same as it has been in the past. At the end of the two years, the records, etc. become the property of the state.

Fred M. Pile becomes the President, a position he is amply qualified to fill. The personnel of the faculty remains the same. An unusually large attendance is expected for the summer, as the practical courses in manual training, agriculture and domestic science offer superior advantages to those preparing to teach.

This explanation is made as many have the impression that hereafter only those having a tenth grade education or its equivalent could enter. This will correct any such impression. For further particulars, we would advise writing the president.

Easter Sunday

Appropriate services of this annual festival were held at all the churches last Sunday.

At St. Paul's Lutheran there was the administration of the Lord's Supper in the morning, a sermon by the pastor and other exercises. Decorations were appropriate.

At the Presbyterian church there was a liberal display of both cut flowers and plants of various kinds, all nicely arranged. Special services were held both at the preaching hour and at the Sunday school session.

At the Baptist church at the morning service the pastor preached a suitable sermon for the day and administered the rite of baptism, and at the evening session a fine concert of sacred song was given, the program being published last week. There was also nice decorations of plants and flowers.

At the Catholic church Father Kern held early Mass followed by High Mass at ten o'clock, and also services in the evening. There was a profusion of plants and flowers and the day was fittingly observed throughout.

At the German Lutheran church Rev. Karpenstine held special services and administered communion, there being twelve new communicants in the number. In the afternoon there was an interesting session of the Sunday school with distribution of souvenirs to the children. The decorations here as elsewhere were plentiful.

At the M. E. church, owing to the large amount of sickness, no special arrangements for the observance of the day had been made, it being deemed best not to have a program by the children. Rev. J. W. Kirkpatrick, the new pastor, preached his initial sermon which was listened to by a large audience and was well received.

In one of our exchanges the past week, we failed to make a note of which one, so cannot give definite and proper credit, we find the following, and what we deem a fitting article on the day:

It was a far cry from the gloom and bloody sweat of Gethsemane, and the agony of Calvary to the joy and sunshine of Easter, but the Nazarine traveled the way, albeit with trembling and with bleeding feet.

This was many years ago—as many as twenty centuries, more or less—but somehow the tale of the cross and the shame, the tomb and the resurrection has never been allowed to die and each year is celebrated anew in sermon and in song by people of every tongue and every clime.

The story of the resurrection is a beautiful one. That the Man of Sorrows should triumph over death and the grave was indeed marvelous and sweet and the faith which that tale has engendered has filled the breasts of men and women with immortal hope.

The conception of the resurrection is stupendous, incomprehensible, and quite surpasses the ken of mortal mind. Many foolish men, such as theologians and the like, have sought to prove the resurrection as one would prove a proposition in Euclid, but they have failed. Such reasoning is futile and drives many to infidelity.

There is the story of the resurrection. Take it or leave it. It requires no proof. Of its own beauty it standeth or falleth. The rose of Sharon, the lily of the valley, a mother's love, the story of the resurrection of our dying Lord—let us not speak of proof.

"And the third day he arose." The statement not only engenders immortal hope, as we have said, but likewise impinges upon life with fruitful lessons. It is a far cry from Gethsemane to Easter, but it is a path we all must tread. "Duty" was written over the garden and inscribed on the cross. Duty lovers do not travel an easy path, but, after the darkness, the glorious light; after the sorrow, joy; after the failure, triumph; after the cross, the resurrection.

Men seem to heed the story as they step out into the darkness, or kiss fond lips a sad farewell. Theories fly away, philosophies fail, science is dumb at the tomb. Faith sustains and aching hearts are comforted by the hope contained in the Easter song—else why has it lived so long?

New Residence

Fred Philleo has a force of men at work moving the residence off from the lots he bought last fall, east of the new high school building, to some vacant lots near the Foster home, where it will be fitted up to rent. Mr. Philleo will at once begin on that fine new $6000 residence he proposes to build this season on the site of the building moved away. The location is a good one and the residence will be one of the best among the many handsome ones in Wayne.

The Pirate of Alastair

By RUPERT SARGENT HOLLAND

Author of "The Count at Harvard," etc.

Copyright, 1903, by J. B. Lippincott Company. All rights reserved.

THE PIRATE OF ALASTAIR is a romance of love and adventure of great power and interest. There is a charm to this story that is manifest in every chapter. While the incidents deal with modern, every-day life, the author has brought in a glamour of the romantic that gives great spirit and variety to happenings along the Atlantic coast.

RUPERT SARGENT HOLLAND

Is the author of this entrancing serial, and his gifted pen has done fine work in depicting events that are stirring and entertaining. There is the mysterious Ship and the modern Pirate; there is beautiful Barbara Graham, a fine young girl to admire and love, and the gallant adventurer, who meets with some thrilling experiences. The air of the mystical about the story is warranted by an absorbing and well devised plot.

The Pirate of Alastair is essentially a story of the times, recently written, copyrighted, and is a serial having features that commend it to every reader as a capital romance. We bespeak for this narrative a very favorable reception, and do not hesitate to pronounce it one of the leading romances of its class—modern, interesting, and having all the elements of a splendid story.

CHAPTER I.

You know Alastair? No—how should you? Very few people know it, and I have done my best to keep the secret to myself. The place lies, however, not so very far from great cities on the Atlantic coast. You take a train northward from Boston, and when you reach the proper station you might climb into a countryman's wagon, and he drives you through the pines by a twisting, sand-built road to Alastair. You will know it because you can go no farther, unless you choose to drive into the waves.

Few people come to Alastair. Most of the travelers in this part of the world turn off about a mile inland from the beach and go on for another mile and a half to the Penguin Club. The latter is full of New Yorkers who come to the pines and the sea to hunt and fish and forget Wall Street and Fifth Avenue. They forget it by keeping close together, and dressing for dinner, and dancing every other night.

Alastair itself is only a beach, between two great headlands. From the end of the first headland a narrow strip of beach and a few pines on the edge of the dunes, the beach stretches smooth and white to a little land-locked harbor at the farther end. Sit on my porch and look down along the sands to the east and you will see a reef of rocks shaped like the letter U that closes in a little salt water lake with a lid of a distant cliff. It is not quite a lake, rather a small inlet, for the tides have room to ebb and flow. The ship is nestled into the arms of this U, settled upright, so that one may walk the decks, and I often go there of an afternoon when the tide is low and climb on board. It is a good place to sketch, and I can leave my palette and canvas in the cabin.

I stumbled across Alastair when I was looking for a quiet place in which to write. I found the dilapidated cottage, and it is for a week, and fell so much to love with the beach that I went to town, bought the house and part of the woods, and moved in. Chances, the man who had served my father before me, debarred at first, but finally gave in, and turned himself into cook, housemaid, and valet for my sake.

From my balcony I can see the distant rocks of the little inland sea and, standing up above them, the high sides of the ship and its single remaining broken mast pointing straight to the heavens. Sometimes the stars reached on to the beach, where the missing spars and sails should be, and on a bright night I can half close my eyes and fancy that I see the glowing lights and lanterns burning on the quarter-deck.

There is a history hidden in that battered hull. She is no ordinary vessel, and may once, for all I know, have been a pirate craft. She has the long clipper lines of swiftness, and her high, bulging bows are of a type long past. When I first came to Alastair I made inquiries as to her history, but the oldest farmer could tell me only that she had always been there so far as he knew, and dismissed the subject as of no importance. The people of the nearby country appeared never to be heard-by the castaways. I felt the joys of Cronus when I first climbed on her deck. The name was gone, long ago washed on to the sea, the deck was bare, and the top of the foremast choked with sand.

I brought a shovel and dug away the rampart drifted against the hatches. At last I could open the door and, clearing the steps of what little sand had sifted through, I descended into the cabin. It was moldered with damp and water, but in time, by bailing and fanning the sun in, I dried it out and found quite a habitable apartment, furnished with table and chairs and a row of bunks along the seaward side. Whatever there had been that was potable the first wreckers must have carried off. All that was left was a heavy oaken chest, studded with brass nails, now green with rust, and when I broke the lock I found the chest bare.

My fancy loved to play about the ship. Often I dreamed of her and of a man who should come up out of the sea and tread her deck again. He was always a magnetic figure, and I never could resist the call of mystery to fight beside him.

CHAPTER II.

It was the most beautiful August that I remembered. The air was clear as a bell, and day after day the sun rose on a tranquil world and smiled at it for joy. Every morning at breakfast I would say to Charles, "Did you ever know such weather, Charles?" and he would answer, "No, sir, I never did, sir," and every evening at supper I would say, "It has been a glorious day, Charles, hasn't it?" and he would answer, "It has, sir, indeed it has, sir." My family servant made a perfect echo.

The afternoon on which I finished the first half of my book I sat for some time on the porch outside my den, smoking. I was too serene to wish to watch the gulls circle and skim above the pine-crowned cliff, and the lazy waves ring, occasionally into sparkling white caps, lift their heads and duck again like playful dolphins. The tide was coming in; I could mark the great wet circles on the beach as it advanced, now receding for a moment, but quickly recovering the lost ground and marching on, steadily winding over the yellow sands. It would be high-tide by sunset or a little after; everything was settling in from sea to land; the salt smell was coming strongly on the east wind.

About 5 o'clock I shut the door of my cottage and started down the beach, conscious of no further plan than to board the ship and, possibly, catch something of the late afternoon color for my canvas. The deck and rigging I stopped to watch with a look of admiration. The sea was a wave recede and leave a path of opalescent pebbles in its wake. There were jewels for all the world and to spare as long as the water bathed the stones.

So, walking leisurely, I came in time to the far end, and looked across the harbor rocks to the ship. To my surprise, a young woman stood on the deck, and fluttering from a splinter of the mast was a white handkerchief. She was looking across at me, her hands shading her eyes from the sunset glitter at my back, and as she saw me look up she waved her hand beckoningly. The easy path to the ship lay through a small break where the rocks joined the cliff, but this break was some distance off. With a smile for what I saw must have happened to the skipper, I climbed over the nearest rocks and saw, on the edge of the little inland sea, a young woman in a rising hand covered the canopy to the cliff, and was pouring in, fast filling the harbor, like the bowl of a flooded fountain. The water was not yet deep; it barely covered the path by which the explorer had come, and even of the rocks in front of it it was scarcely up to my knees.

The woman of the ship called, "I'm a white handkerchief. She was looking across at me, her hands shading her eyes from the sunset glitter at my back, and as she saw me look up she waved her hand beckoningly. The water was not yet deep; it barely covered the path by which the explorer had come, and even of the rocks in front of it it was scarcely up to my knees.

"So you thought you'd go for a sail," I asked, and didn't think you'd sail so far from land?"

The girl—I saw now that she could be more than 20—looked quizzically at me for a second, then smiled, and finally laughed. "It was such a very real ship," she said, "that I couldn't resist the call. I fell asleep sitting against the gunwale, and when I woke up the water was over my head, and I was floating on my back. I tried to get out and found quite a habitable apartment, furnished with table and chairs and a row of bunks along the seaward side. Whatever there had been that was potable the first wreckers must have carried off. All that was left was a heavy oaken chest, studded with brass nails, now green with rust, and when I broke the lock I found the chest bare.

there I saw this little harbor and this boat, and I couldn't resist that, could I? I took my head. "Nobody could resist it."

"I had just about come to the point of taking them off and wading in," she went on, and then finished, "when I sighted you."

"I can go away again," I suggested. "No," she said slowly. "I'd rather you didn't do that. There must be some other way out of it."

"There are several other ways," I answered. "I've often studied the problem from this very deck."

I thought she looked a little bit surprised. "Do you often find people marooned here—girls, I mean?"

"No, but I've often wondered what I should do if I did. To tell the truth, I've never found any one here before, but the ship looks as if she ought to be inhabited. She's a good ship, and once belonged to a pirate chief."

"How do you know that?" she asked. "By the oaken chest below-deck. It has the pirate lock, though there's nothing in it."

"Yes," she said. "I made an exploring trip and I found the chest."

"Don't you agree with me, then?" Again there came that quizzical look in her eyes, and then the smile.

"Yes," she said. "It must have belonged to a pirate. I stopped short and the smile spread from her lips to her eyes. 'Shall I tell you a secret? When I fell asleep here an hour ago I dreamed of pirates, of a real old-fashioned buccaner who came up out of the cabin fully armed, pistols in his pockets and in his hands and a pistol clenched in his teeth. The funny part of it is that he was exceedingly polite to me. Do you ever have such foolish dreams as that?'"

"Often," a buccaner calls on me every other week. I'm only waiting for the chance to ship with one. I think their ships must still inhabit Alastair."

The girl's hand stole up to capture some loose strands of hair, and for the first time I noted the fine spun gold in the sun.

"Alastair?" she repeated. "Oh, so this is the beach of Alastair—and you—"

She paused. "You must be the man they told me about at the club—you live in a cottage at the far end of the beach, and write books, and never come out of your shell."

I bowed. "I am the man," I said, "and yonder is my home. I pointed westward to where the tip of my balcony shone between the dunes.

"What a beautiful little world!" she said, and then, a moment later, "but how lonely! Who named the place Alastair?"

"I don't know. It's always been called that, apparently."

"It's a lovely name. And what do you call the ship?"

"Oh, just the Ship. Her other name disappeared years and years ago."

"The Ship of Alastair. And do you sometimes come on board of her to write?"

"I have a den for that. Sometimes I come here to paint. I keep my things in the cabin."

"Yes, I found them," she said. "You see, I know a great deal more about you than you think."

POINT OF VIEW DIFFERS.

Teammate and Woman of Fashion Express Their Diverse Opinions.

There is little choice between the way of the reformer and the way of the transgressor in the matter of hardness. Each of them has, as one may say, a tough job. In mitigation the reformer has the comfort of conscious rectitude, and the transgressor the relief of curse words. I saw the two of them clash the other day. The transgressor was a somewhat thinly clad man, who was urging two tremendous horses and a load of coal up a hill. The reformer was a square-jawed lady in a Persian lamb coat. Now, the yelling of the teamster and the names he called those horses were frightful. Furthermore, he threw snowballs at the struggling animals and swung about with a somewhat ineffective whip. The lady was horrified.

"Stop lashing those horses!" she commanded.

The teamster cast a wrathful eye at her.

"How'm I goin' to get 'em up the hill?" he demanded.

"Speak kindly to them," answered the lady with her best S. P. C. A. manner.

"Aw, g'wan!" roared the driver. "Who's doin' this, me or you?"

"I'll report you to the authorities," the lady cried.

The whip cracked and the huge horses drew the wagon a few feet farther. The lady followed.

"I'll report you," she repeated.

"You come out here and get this load up and I'll report myself," shouted the man. "You need something to keep you busy."

"You're a brute!" screamed the lady. "This was too much for the teamster. 'Now, you look here, lady,' he said. 'I got to get this coal up, and these horses can do it. They ain't even sweatin' yet. Can't you usange to mind your own business?'"

"It is my business," declared the lady.

"You make me tired!" answered the teamster. "Ain't you got nothing to take up your time but buttin' in? Ain't you got no more sense than to follow a man up this way? You ought to be ashamed of yourself talking to a man you never seen before. Ain't you got no folks to look after? If you got to talk ain't you got a husband?"

"Yes, I have, and he'll attend to you," she screamed.

"Let him," answered the teamster. "I bet he'll attend to you for quarrelin' with a strange man in the street. You ain't acting like a lady. Get up!"

The horses went forward with a lurch and the top of the hill was reached.

The lady turned away, very red in the face.

"The brute!" she said.

The teamster appealed to a bystander.

"Talking to me about cruelty to animals," he said disgustedly, "and her wearing a baby lamb coat."—Washington Post.

SHORT CROP IS SHOWN

Government Estimate Lower Than Expected by Experts in Grain.

WHEAT CONDITION NOW $2.2

Winter Cereal Far Below Average for Ten Years, and High Prices May Continue.

The crop reporting board of the bureau of statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture estimates from the reports of correspondents and agents of the bureau that the average condition of winter wheat on April 1 was $2.2 per cent of a normal, against 91.3 on April 1, 1902, 89.0 on April 1, 1907, and 86.4, the average condition for the past ten years of April 1. The decline in condition from Dec. 1, 1908, to April 1, 1909, was 3.1 points, as compared with an average decline in the past ten years of 6 points. The average condition of rye on April 1 was $7.2 per cent of a normal, against $9.1 on April 1, 1908, and $8.2 the average condition for the past ten years on April 1. Comparisons for important winter wheat States follow:

Lower Than Expected.

Government estimates of the winter wheat condition fell below the popular estimate, although some of the professional speculators were in a measure prepared for it by the unfavorable crop reports recently issued by a few of the States. The condition of $2.2 indicates a total crop of 423,456,000 bushels. The promise on April 1 last year was for a winter wheat yield of about 404,000,000 bushels, or over 70,000,000 bushels larger than the present crop. The finally harvested field was 437,000,000 bushels, after there had been an abandonment reported in May of 1,318,000 acres, or 4.2 per cent of the area seeded in the fall of 1907.

The decline of only 3.1 points in condition from that of $2.3 reported last December, as compared with 6 points as the average winter loss of the last ten years shows that the percentage of abandoned acreage this year is likely to be small. The report is likely to have a far-reaching effect both at home and abroad. The present scarcity of winter wheat even from a much larger crop than is now indicated for 1909 promises that supplies will be reduced to a small total at the beginning of the crop year, and that the new crop will have to go at once toward the replenishing of empty bins.

The couple were known to have been highly intimate with each other for more than a year before their marriage, and their friends were in the habit of commenting upon the unusually good prospect for a happy married life.

ENGINE DASHES INTO DEPOT

The disaster at the Windsor station.

Six persons were killed and several seriously injured when a locomotive attached to a Boston and Maine train crashed through the walls of the women's waiting room at the Windsor station in Montreal. The train, which was made up of a locomotive, a baggage car and three passenger coaches, had few passengers. When passing Highland station, a few miles from Montreal, a plug blew out of the engine, and the engineer was thrown from his cab. The fireman tried to stop the train, but the brakes would not work. Arriving at the Windsor station, the train plunged through several barriers and a brick wall, landing in the women's waiting room and crashing through the floor. The fireman was pinned beneath the wreck and instantly killed. A man at work in the room below the waiting room also was killed. Another victim was a girl who was sitting in the station

THE TARIFF FIGHT.

Senator Elkins' Bitter Attack on New England Solons.

The framing of the new tariff bill is proving a subject of great difficulty to our national lawmakers. Apart from the widely divergent views of the members of both houses of legislation, there is a storm of criticism of the Payne bill pouring into Washington from every section of the country. Thousands of protests from the "ultimate consumer" against deer clothes, dress goods, women's gloves and hosiery and a variety of articles used in feeding, clothing and housing the people are reaching Congress by letters, petitions and complaints. These are having their effect upon the lawmakers and are putting them in a rather nervous condition.

While the tariff struggle in the House is causing deep anxiety, the Payne bill is also ruffling the placidity of the Senate. One noted feature of the discussion in that body was the flank attack made by Senator Elkins, of West Virginia, on his own party, Senator Elkins, who seldom addresses the Senate, took the floor and bitterly raked the New England senators—Aldrich, Hildre and Lodge—members of the Finance Committee, which is in charge of the tariff bill. He said that the time had come when there ought to be a protest registered in the Senate against the disposition of New England senators to "recrify the South." New England, he asserted, was in favor of free trade in all products of the South which were raw material for New England, but was willing that the South should pay protection prices on all the products of New England manufacturers.

He declared that he stood ready to protest against placing on the free list such articles as coal, iron and hides, products of the South, in order that New England might enjoy free raw materials. He charged that the three New England members of the Finance Committee were playing on the traditional tendencies of the Southern Democrats toward free trade in order to carry out the scheme of free law materials for New England.

An attempt was made by Senator Lodge to deprive Senator Elkins of the privilege of the floor by moving an executive session, but this was side-tracked, and Senator Elkins resumed the Senate was not in session Wednesday. The House Republican organization met defeat when by united action of the Democrats and the Democrats an amendment was made to the Payne tariff bill practically providing for free trade in crude oil and its products. Speaker Cannon tried in vain to prevent the action, but in spite of the special rule limiting the schedules to be discussed, the action was taken. The removal of the duty is intended as a blow at the Standard Oil company. During the day the coffee were placed on the free list, the barley schedule was left unchanged, and the duty on barites is doubled.

A bill to provide for the taking of the thirteenth and subsequent censuses was reported to the Senate Thursday. Several resolutions entailing the Secretaries of State, Agriculture and of Commerce and Labor for information concerning duties on sugar were adopted.

Because of the numerous committee amendments to the Payne tariff bill the House was compelled to sit until late in the evening in order to insure action on the various paragraphs coming within the scope of the special rule adopted the previous Monday before the final vote is taken. At one time the Republicans were caught napping and an amendment by Mr. Clark of Missouri was adopted fixing the rate of duty on wire of the No. 10 gauge at three-quarters of a cent per pound, but this was thrown out later. Fearing that he might not meet with such success again, Chairman Payne took his Republican colleagues to task for assembling themselves from the chamber and appeared to them to remain in their seats. This was done, with the result that in all the committee amendments he was sustained. With a number of committee amendments yet to be considered, the House at 6:58 p. m. adjourned.

During nearly five hours Friday the bill to provide for the thirteenth and subsequent censuses was under discussion in the Senate. The measure had been amended since its original passage by Congress in the last session, when it was vetoed by President Roosevelt because of provisions allowing Senators and Representatives practically to select employees of the census for appointment. These features of the bill called forth a general discussion in the Senate on the subject of civil service reform and the present operation of the law was denounced by several Senators. As amended by the committee the bill placed appointments in the census under the Civil Service Commission.

The Payne tariff bill was passed by the House by a vote of 217 to 161, after three weeks of consideration. One Republican, Austin (Tex.), voted against the measure and four Democrats, all from Louisiana, (Broussard, Estabroth, Pugh and Wicks), voted for it. An attempt by the minority leader, Champ Clark, to recommittal the bill with instructions failed. A resolution was adopted that no further orders of business be held until Monday and Thursday.

Big Birds on Small Wings.

In the attempt to discover some universal law for bird flight, scientists have disclosed concerning a number of species a most puzzling paradox, perhaps the most mysterious of the enigmas that the subject presents. It is that in a number of birds and insects the size of the wings decreases in proportion to the increase in size of the body of the flying creature. "The Australian crane, for instance, weighs over 200 times more than the sparrow, but in proportion has only one-seventh the wing area of the smaller bird."

This curious fact is equally striking if we compare birds with insects. If the gnat were increased in size until it was as large as the Australian crane and if the wings of the insect were enlarged to maintain the proportion they now bear to its body, they would be about 150 times larger than the crane's. It requires 3.62 square feet of wing area per pound to float the bank swallow, but to sustain the tawny vulture, a monstrous bird in comparison, requires only .68 of a square foot of wing surface per pound of body. The albatross, weighing eighteen pounds, has a spread of 11 feet 6 inches, while the trumpeter swan, weighing twenty-eight pounds, has a spread of wing of only 8 feet. The stork weighs eight times more than the pigeon, but in proportion has only half as much wing surface.

Proper Food Put Him Right.

The food experience of a physician in his own case when worn and weak from sickness and when needing nourishment the worst way is valuable.

"I began to take four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and cream three times a day and for two weeks this was almost my only food; it tasted so delicious that I enjoyed it immensely and my stomach handed it perfectly from the first mouthful. It was so nourishing I was quickly built back to normal health and strength."

Grape-Nuts is of great value as food to sustain life during serious attacks in which the stomach is so deranged it cannot digest and assimilate other foods.

"I am convinced that were Grape-Nuts more widely used by physicians, it would save many lives that are otherwise lost from lack of nourishment."

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

The fiscal intensity of commercial activity continues to mark progress, although some branches are yet burdened with a surplus of idle capacity. It is highly encouraging to note the sustaining rise in payments reported through the banks, together with the absence of heavy defaults in the failure record.

While erratic weather has prevented Easter trade exhibits a gratifying aggregate in the leading retail lines, the absorption being exceptionally good in apparel, millinery, footwear, novelties and household wares.

High prices for some necessities have not obstructed the increasing purchasing power, and stocks of seasonable merchandise undergo the normal reduction here and at interior points.

Demands entered by the wholesale branches make a fair showing, readers being frequent for light weight textiles, clothing and fancy goods, and the forward bookings disclose gain over this time last year for autumn and winter styles, selections being more extended against tariff contingencies.

Nearly visiting buyers again appeared in the markets in large numbers for sorting up needs to be promptly shipped. Road shipment sent in cheering replies from the West, the outlook being regarded quite hopeful.

Mercantile collections are prompt on country bills, and less complaint is heard as to city collections. Money is yet favorable in cost to borrowers, and this creates more disposition among buyers to secure the best discounts for cash payments.

Further investment of capital is seen in improvements for business purposes, while the market for real estate and permits for construction despite existing enterprise here and at various places within the Chicago trade territory.

Pay to Have an Incubator.

Six years ago we purchased a 100-egg incubator and every season it has been set five or six times and have never had one failure nor one bad hatch. The hatches are always in the nineties, with the exception of one which we only got seventy-eight chicks. Our hatches are about the same each time each season through. We nearly always have from ninety-two to ninety-six chicks, seldom lower than ninety, three, more often higher than that, and always such strong, lively chicks, almost never a cripple among them; seldom one in 500. Our incubator has not had the advantage of being kept in a cave or cellar, but we have done so well with it that we have purchased another of 120 and one of 240-egg capacity, as we are going into the business more extensively.

We can truthfully say that the incubator is a great time and labor saver and a money maker. It is one of the best investments any farmer or any one who raises poultry can make. Who would care to go back to the slow way of raising chicks with the sitting hen when it can be done with the incubator so easily and so well? With the hen the season of hatching is soon over with, while with the incubator the early fries for market can be sold when the market prices are best and liberally profits hatched that will be brought for fall and winter layers. We do not have to wait on the sitting hen to hatch out a few chickens when we have the incubator to hatch them by the dozens.

A good incubator will pay for itself over and over the first season of its use. It is indispensable in the poultry business. To all those who contemplate purchasing I would say, don't get one that is too cheap. Get a good one, even if you do have to pay more. The good ones are the cheapest in the long run. There are some incubators

THE VALUE OF TILE DRAINING.

The properly placed makes soil dryer in wet weather and more moist in dry weather. This is difficult to understand until we consider the nature of the soil.

Soil in proper condition is porous, something after the manner of a sponge. It will hold water up to a certain point without leaking. Until it becomes thoroughly saturated, it contains air as well as water. Air is warm and air is needed by plants in the process of growth.

The loads the water away quickly in the spring so the air can penetrate the soil and warm it so seeds will germinate and grow quickly. Undrained land, if low, fills with water in the spring to the saturation point and the excess of moisture passes off in vapor through the process of evaporation. It requires a great deal of heat to warm the water sufficiently to cause it to pass off in this way. That heat is lost.

After evaporation has dissipated the moisture, and the soil becomes dry enough to work it breaks up in clods, because it has baked down and packed together like mortar. It is almost impossible to prepare a good seed bed in such ground.—Agricultural Epitomist.

INCUBATOR AND BROODER.

NEW YORK.

Trade, crop and industrial reports are still very irregular, but the underlying tone of business generally is slightly more optimistic. All present or future favorable occurrences, however, cannot disguise the fact that some lines of industry are still very much depressed; that the first crop report of the year—that made by the government of wheat—was a poor one, indicating a short crop; that buying is still hampered in some sections by unfavorable weather or by the reduced purchasing power of the public, had caution and conservatism still govern commercial operations to a large degree.

Easter trade at retail is classed as fair to good in most parts of the West, but in the East, but below expectations at the South, and rather poor in Texas, where drought conditions, hold back buying demand. Some slight expansion is noted in filling in orders by jobbers, but trade in this line is distinctly of a between-seasons character. In wholesale lines there are indications of more confidence in buying for fall.

Business failures, in the United States for the week ending with April 8 were 227, against 204 last week, 274 in the like week of 1908, 194 in 1907, 161 in 1906 and 106 in 1905. Canadian failures number 73, which compares with 23 last week and 28 in the like week of 1908.—Braidstreet.

There is a safe way of knowing Good Paint Material.

There is really no need whatever for any property owner to take chances in the selection of his paint materials. It doesn't cost a cent to learn how to be on the safe side. Certainly every property owner has enough at stake to find this out.

A complete painting guide, known as Houseowner's Painting Guide No. 49, can be had free by writing National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Building, New York. This company is the largest maker of pure white lead in the world. Its Dutch Boy Painter trademark is famous as a guarantee of purity and quality. The outfit includes a book of color schemes, for either interior or exterior painting, a book of specifications, and a simple little instrument, with directions for testing the purity of paint materials.

The Public Pays the Freight.

Expressed in terms of value, the enormous drain for lumber, which uses up more than half of the entire remaining supply, merely staggers belief. But put it on your millias sashes, doors, blinds, floors, floor, kitchen-railings, ornamental house-fittings, office and store fixtures—the thousand and one items you pay for either through your landlord or direct to your builder, they add the item for shingles and laths, which amounts in the aggregate to some thirty millions a year; is it difficult to see why, with an average increase of twenty to fifty per cent, in the cost of the raw materials for these products, your rent and house-building cost more, by just so much, than they did ten, or even five years ago, exclusive of labor?—Success Magazine.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, 8 Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital, I was discharged because the doctors could not cure me. I was completely worn out, and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

COMMERCIAL CLUB BANQUETS

A SUCCESS IN EVERY RESPECT

A Large Attendance, The Best of Spirit, and a Grand, Good Time

Tuesday evening was the time set for the Wayne Commercial Club to banquet in honor of the workers at Lincoln, both from Wayne and elsewhere, who worked so long, faithfully and successfully to secure the location of a State Normal School in our little city. The Odd Fellows Hall was selected as the place and covers laid for 175 and every one was taken. The menu and tables were in charge of John Meister, landlord of Hotel Boyd, and he acquitted himself in a high degree in every respect. The tables were decorated with sprigs of Asparagus Ferns and large bouquets of yellow jonquils, which, together with spotless linen, sparkling crystal and silver, and chandelier made them present a most charming and attractive appearance. Every article on the menu was evidently prepared by a master hand, as the appearance was all that could be wished for, while the taste could not be excelled. It was served by attentive and attractive young lady waiters, and there was nothing lacking in that respect. The menu was as follows:

- Oyster Cocktail
- Celery
- Salted Wafers
- Mock Quail - Chestnut Dressing
- Veal Loaf
- Boiled Rex Ham
- Cream Potatoes
- Peas a "La Cone"
- Light Rolls
- Metropolitan Ice Cream
- Assorted Cake
- Coffee
- Cigars
- Olives

While the menu was being served and partaken of an orchestra of five pieces, played by some of the musical gentlemen of Wayne, furnished a very high grade of choice music in a manner that showed them to be proficient in every respect. This feature added much to the enjoyment of the event.

As soon as the feast that satisfies the bodies was over and the gentlemen began to enjoy their cigars, A. R. Davis, toastmaster, arose, and in a few well chosen words recounted why the gathering was held, and then began to call upon different ones to respond.

James Britton was the first man called and responded to the toast "The Third House," and said that the members of that body from Wayne had about reached the conclusion that they were the salt of the earth, so much had been said regarding their work there. He then in a happy vein recited how they had been helped over the critical periods of time and again by those who came to their rescue at the opportune time, and acknowledged their debt of gratitude to the outside workers and for encouragement and assistance from home.

C. H. Bright responded to the toast "Wayne Normal to date," and recited briefly the humble beginnings of the institution and how it had grown from seven students, in the old laundry building on Main Street, in 1891, to its present dimensions, and said that during the years 17,000 young men and women had entered its doors and gone out into the world to disseminate, not alone the knowledge they had gained from books but the spirit and inspiration of the man who founded the school—J. M. Pile—and who had touched them in a marvelous way, giving them an insight into the hidden mysteries of knowledge and impressing upon them the thought of their individuality and the powers within them to make something out of themselves, and to regard the rights of others although differing with them in many things. He had no fear for the future of the school and thought that it would continue to advance.

C. A. Randall, of Newman Grove, spoke on the "11th Senatorial District." He acknowledged his indebtedness to the voters of Wayne county for their work in his behalf in returning him for a second time to the legislature, and that if it had not been for their assistance he would not have been elected. But it was not alone for this that he admired Wayne and its people, and he was glad that he had had the opportunity to aid the citizens in a small way in securing the Normal School. He knew of no better location for the school and realized that this part of the state was entitled to the institution and therefore felt under obligations to work and vote for it, and he was sure that the entire 11th district would in the future have reason to rejoice over the finished product that would be sent out from the school.

Geo. Wiltse, of Randolph, state senator from that district, spoke on "Democratic Allies." He started out in a humorous way by telling of the work of the members of the third house, and how they would shake the hands of some members 50 times a day and enquire after their health in the most affable manner. His entire remarks were punctuated with mirth provoking sallies which were loudly cheered. He closed by saying that, while he was not a resident of this district he was so close by that he had an interest in the establishment of the school at Wayne, and that he had not heard one word of censure from any of his constituents regarding his vote and work for the establishment of the school here, but had been congratulated numerous times for the stand he took. He congratulated the people of Wayne for their push and enterprise and wished for them continued success.

Thos Rawlings, of Wakefield, talked on "Educational Institutions" and called the attention of his hearers particularly to the fact that there remained very much yet for them to do. That the future success of the school would depend largely upon the conception of our citizens in regard to the moral tone of the community and how much they did in keeping the town in a healthy condition in this regard, as the surroundings of school were always taken into consideration by the patrons, or would be patrons, as well as the instruction that might be received.

John Kuhl, of Randolph, representative from that county, spoke on "Pushing the bill" and told of some of the obstacles in the way of getting the bill before the legislature owing in the first place that no preliminary work had been done. He spoke a word of praise for the high type of civilization in northeastern Nebraska, and told of the needs of such an institution in this part of the state. Congratulated the school on its past success and said that hereafter the character of the work would be much the same as that turned out in other institutions in the state, and that the highest boast of education is its civilizing influence upon the minds of its devotees.

J. J. McCarthy, of Ponca, had a large theme "Northeast Nebraska" and talked all around it, delved into the earth, and mounted up to the skies in telling of its advantages, growth, development and future prospects, and all the time he was eloquent, humorous and entertaining. He paid a high tribute to J. M. Pile as an educator and his ability to reach and teach young men and women as but few men were able to do, and said that he had been told many times both before and since Mr. Pile's death, by men and women over this part of the state, what great things had been done for them by their attendance upon the school. He still further emphasized the fact brought out by some of the other speakers that it was now up to the people of Wayne to see that there should be no retrograde movement along moral lines, or otherwise, but that continued progress and advancement should be the watchword. The school would be a good thing for Wayne and the northeastern part of the state and Wayne should see to it that the influence of the town and school was a good thing for the young men and women who in the future might come under the influence of the school and the citizens of Wayne. His remarks were thoroughly enjoyed.

M. R. Hopewell, of Tekamah, the lieutenant governor of the state, was the last speaker. "The State" was his subject. Too big for an entire evening, let alone an hour after midnight to enlarge very much upon it, but he contrasted the past with the present, and told of having driven an ox team and a government freighter wagon from Fort Leavenworth to Fort Laramie across the plains of Kansas and Nebraska, when there was not a frame house the entire distance and only a very few sod houses. He told of his early location in Burt county and of some trips he took from that county to this at an early day when there were but few houses and when the county seat of Wayne county was at a place called LaPorte. Also of old acquaintances and friendships here and that he was glad that he was able at an opportune time to cast his vote for the bill in which our people were so vitally interested and which meant so much for the town and the northeastern part of the state. He said that the location of the school in this part of the state was a necessity for its further advancement and predicted that there would be still other schools of a similar character established as our state became more densely populated.

U. S. Conn. E. C. Bishop and W. V. Allen had been assigned places on the program of the evening but were unable to be present but expressed regrets that other business matters necessarily detained them. They congratulated Wayne and its citizens on the effective work heretofore done along educational lines and expressed the hope for still greater achievements, as did also a large number of other invited guests both by telegrams and letters, who from various parts of the state were unable to be the guests of the hour.

Perhaps we have not gone as much into details as we should have done but want of space forbids any further mention of one of the most thoroughly enjoyed and entertaining gatherings ever held in Wayne. The Commercial Club and the citizens in general are to be congratulated, not alone on the success of the evening, but also for their work in the past and all should catch an inspiration from this and other events for still greater activities in the days that are to come.

Peculiar Accident

Last Friday night Miss Larson and Miss Conger, of Wayne, were on their way home from Grand Island, Nebraska, where they are attending college, to spend the Easter time, Miss Larson was the victim of a peculiar and quite severe accident. When the passenger train on which they were riding was about a mile north of Columbus one of the windows in the steel car in which they were became detached from its place above her head and fell directly upon her, breaking in pieces and some of the fragments cut her face and head so severely that the train was backed up to Columbus and she was taken to the hospital for treatment. Miss Conger escaped injury. Mr. Larson went to Columbus Saturday, and Sunday himself and daughter came home, and she will soon be well again although she may carry the scars for some time. Her many friends congratulate her that the accident did not prove to be as serious as it was first thought to be.

Teachers Are Hired

At a recent meeting of the school board the teachers for next year were all hired except two in the high school room, and one of these is to be a gentleman, if the proper person can be secured. Thus far there are only two changes in the corps, or possibly three, as Miss Wallace will return from her vacation and take work next year. Miss Schwerin is the only new teacher in the grades—the 6th, and Prof. Kemp of St. Edwards, will succeed Prof. Wilson as Superintendent, the latter retiring after several years of earnest, faithful work, to the regret of many friends. The teaching force already hired are:

- Prof. Kemp.....Supt
- Miss Manning.....Kindergarten
- Miss Stocking.....Primary
- Miss Wallace.....2nd grade
- Miss Theobald.....3rd grade
- Miss Hughes.....4th grade
- Miss Beuschman.....5th grade
- Miss Schwerin.....6th grade

The Mothers' Meeting

The monthly Mothers' Meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Dan Harrington on Thursday afternoon, April 22, promptly at three o'clock. The Mothers hope for a full attendance, as much of importance will come up for discussion. It is desired also to have a full representation of the committees for judging the school essays on "How to Make Wayne Beautiful." A most cordial invitation is extended to all, as these meetings are for every mother and for every interested woman in Wayne. The teachers are especially invited to come at the close of school. A silver collection will be taken for the prize fund. Following is the program:

- Caring for the Child—Mrs. Graves
- Short Talks on Mothers' Problems—led by Mrs. Duerig
- Discussion of Civic Improvements—led by Mrs. Wightman
- Industrial Training—Miss Manning
- Business.

Broken Arm

Miss Charlotte White was the victim of an unfortunate accident Saturday afternoon whereby she sustained a broken arm—her left one—just above the wrist joint. While at work about her home she had a fall with the above result. It is an unfortunate accident for an estimable lady, and being so near the joint will be slow in healing.

An Old Acquaintance

Among our callers Tuesday was W. V. Allen, of Madison, former U. S. senator from this state. He has a warm spot in his heart for Wayne people on account of many favors extended to him in the past, also a very warm memory for his friend, J. M. Pile, recently deceased. While he came here primarily on business, and is a very busy man, having a large legal practice, yet he tarried over to attend the banquet on the evening. The writer knew Mr. Allen years ago at Ackley, Iowa, long before he became a resident of Nebraska, and was pleased to greet him again after the lapse of many years. He was looking as though life agreed with him.

Court Affirms Case From Wayne

(Special Telegram)—In the Wayne liquor case, wherein an appeal was taken from the district court because it refused to cause the city council of Wayne to reconvene and take evidence on the application of Peter Thomson for a liquor license, the supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court. The court held that while no license should have been granted, Thomson, yet the error could not be corrected in the district court.

In the syllabus the court said: A freholder otherwise qualified to sign a petition for a liquor license is not disqualified because he is not personally acquainted with the applicant, or does not know that he is a man of reputable character and standing in the community.

If a remonstrator appeals from an order of the excise board granting a saloon license, the district court is without authority in that proceeding to direct said board to reconvene and receive testimony that was offered by the remonstrators and excluded by the board.

PREPARATION OF SEED BED

SOME TIMELY SUGGESTIONS.

Nebraska State Board of Agriculture Issues the Following.

One of the most important duties on the farm for the month of April is the preparation of the seed bed for corn planting...

Probably the ideal seed bed for corn in parts of the state where there is abundant moisture, would be an alfalfa field, plowed up in the fall, and left in its rough state through the winter...

When you plow, add an extra horse to your team, and attach one section of the harrow to follow on the newly turned ground after the plow...

The objects of plowing are to alter the texture of the soil to a considerable depth, and to bury completely any vegetable or other organic matter on the surface of the ground...

When this green mat is turned under, it acts as a partition between the furrow slice and the bottom of the furrow. Weeds also utilize a large portion of available plant food, which is always scarce in spring plowed ground...

In parts of Nebraska where there is ample rainfall we would recommend that the check-row be used in planting. Some farmers prefer listing, claiming that it stands drouth better...

The New Law Regarding Oil. It is surprising how little people generally know about the oil inspection law of this state...

Haskell, governor of Oklahoma, and all those who were indicted with him for land frauds in that state, have escaped punishment...

factured in this state or not, before being offered for sale or used for consumption for illuminating, heating or power purposes, must first be inspected. This applies to the individual who purchased a quantity of oil for his own use as well as the dealer who buys for retail...

Shorty McCabe

Have you made the acquaintance of the latest hit in American humor—Sewell Ford's "Shorty McCabe" stories? If not you are missing a heap of fun...

Shorty McCabe his better half, Sadie, and their laughable adventures in New York society can be found and enjoyed only in the Sunday Magazine of the Chicago Record-Herald...

To Kill Gophers in Alfalfa

Numerous complaints having been sent to the State Board of Agriculture relative to the destruction of alfalfa fields by gophers...

Select potatoes about the size of English walnuts; insert an open ended quill about two-thirds of the way through the potato, half fill the cavity in the potato (made by the quill) with strychnine...

One of the important questions that the last legislature has left for experts to determine is what is the sex of a stallion. In the West bill providing for the keeping of a record of pedigrees of stallions at the state farm...

A petition has been filed with the county clerk of Cuming county asking for the formation of a drainage district for the construction of ditching in that portion of the Logan valley running through their county...

OLDEN DAY SURGEONS

They Were Exempt From Jury Duty In Capital Cases.

IN A CLASS WITH BUTCHERS

Thought to Be Too Bloodthirsty to Calmly Pass on the Taking of Human Life—Executioners Performed Operations and Acted as Doctors.

When Great Britain's statute book was still in the Draconian state from which it was redeemed by Sir Samuel Romilly and the penalty of death was inflicted for the most trivial offenses, surgeons were exempted from serving on juries in capital cases.

It must not be supposed, however, that this was because their profession was believed to make them too humane for such work as was then imposed on jurymen. We are sorry to say it was for the opposite reason. They were exempted on the same ground as butchers, whose occupation, it was thought, tended to make them too bloodthirsty.

In 1038 Christian IV, summoned the executioner of Gluckstadt, in Holstein, to examine the diseased foot of the crown prince. In a letter addressed to Ole Worm, a leading Danish physician of the day, Henry Koester, physician in ordinary to the king, complains bitterly of the slight thus put upon him.

Again, in 1681, Christian V, gave a fee of 200 rigsdalers to the Copenhagen hangman for curing the leg of a page. In 1695 Andreas Lehnkueth, the Copenhagen executioner, was in such repute or his treatment of disease that he wrote a book on the subject "In the name of the holy and ever blessed Trinity."

Even up to the early years of the nineteenth century this extraordinary association of surgery with the least penalty of the law continued. Erik Peterson, who was appointed public executioner at Trondhjem in 1798, served as surgeon to an infantry regiment in the war with Sweden and retired in 1814 with the rank of surgeon major.

It might be suspected that this peculiar combination of functions had its origin in a surgical view of the art of healing, but in the records we have quoted we can trace nothing of the kind. Perhaps the executioner drove a trade in human fat and other things supposed to possess marvelous healing properties.

"Painting the Town Red." "That expression, 'painting the town red,' is not," writes a correspondent "the creation of some unknown cockney genius, as some would seem to infer. Its birth has been traced to 'The Divine Comedy,' Dante, led by Virgil, comes to the cavernous depths of the place swept by a mighty wind where those are confined who have been the prey of their passions. Two faces arise from the mist—the faces of Francesca and Paolo. 'Who are ye?' cries Dante in alarm, and Francesca replies sadly, 'We are those who have painted the world red with our sins.'"

Development. "Remember," said the earnest inventor, "it isn't so many years since the telephone caused laughter." "That's true," answered the man who has trouble with central. "At first it caused laughter; now it causes profanity."—Washington Star.

Mrs. Shellpod—Hiram, some o' them there hobos hev stole the wash often the line ag'in! Farmer Shellpod—How dew you know they wuz hobos? Mrs. Shellpod—Becuz they tuk everything but th' towels.—Chicago News.

The Pender Republic believes that what the state needs is not more laws but better enforcement. There are a whole lot of people getting that idea into their heads, not only in this state, but elsewhere.

One is sometimes led to wonder why it is that there are so many loop holes in the laws through which the larger criminal classes seem able to escape while at the same time the meshes are small enough to catch and hold all the smaller fry.

Pulp Process Is Developed. To the woods with the paper famine! The stately oaks and pines are not in it with the good old Iowa corn stalks when it comes to making paper; at least so says Dr. H. S. Bristol, a noted chemist, of Washington, D. C.

Dr. Bristol, who has been working for several years on a process whereby cornstalks could be converted into paper pulp, has just recently announced to the public the success of his experiments.

The doctor has succeeded in making five distinct grades of paper from our ordinary cornstalks. The varieties are a dark gray resembling parchment, a light gray, two shades of yellow and a white. The yellow grades have a longer fiber and resemble paper made from cotton rags. But this is not the best part of the discovery. By the old process it required 14 hours to convert the wood into paper, while the cornstalk process takes only two and one-half hours.

Lincoln Baseball Club

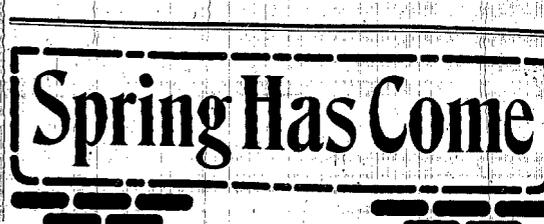

The Lincoln baseball team performed one of the most remarkable feats last week in the history of organized baseball. The Lincoln team played two errorless games on two successive days. The first game was against the Chicago White Sox and the second against Minneapolis. Lincoln lost the first game 3-0 and won the second 11-4.

Marvin Hockenbary, the young Nebraska boy, who was signed by President Green for his pitching staff in the middle of last summer, has reported to Lincoln and has pleased everybody by his work. Hockenbary was put in against the Chicago White Sox last week and held them to one run in the three innings that he pitched. A couple of days later he worked five innings against Minneapolis and the Millers got only one hit off him.

Leslie Nunamaker, the Aurora boy, whom Manager Fox signed for the Lincoln baseball team at a tournament in Clarinda, Iowa, last fall, has been showing up in superb form at the spring practice work of the Greenbackers. Nunamaker is a big fellow, fast on his feet, and shoots the ball around the bases like a pea. It is possible that President Green will place Nunamaker with some minor league team for a little more seasoning, but he is sure to be back in Lincoln next season as one of the stars of the league.

The Lincoln baseball team still has a number of fine exhibition games left on its schedule before the opening of the season. The best of these are April 19th and 20th with Omaha and April 23rd and 24th with the Nebraska Indians. As Lincoln will not be home in a regular league contest until May 12th, these exhibition games give the people of this region the only chance to see the Greenbackers in action for some time to come.

The sage who edits the Sioux City Journal, in discussing the new saloon law in Nebraska, what is known as the "Daylight" law, makes the same specious argument that nearly all dwellers in the large cities use, that they must be a law unto themselves and must not be controlled by what is termed fanatical legislation by the rural districts. The Journal has only to take a look at Dubuque, in its own state, to see what is the final outcome of such a position. Laws are made for the benefit of the greatest number, not in city life; but in the state, and the cities have no right to assume that they are not amenable to the laws of a commonwealth. There is far too much of that theory abroad in our land and the quicker it is set aside the better for all. CUMMINS AMENDMENT

COVERS HIS FAMOUS MONOPOLY SHEETER PLANK

Proposal Would Admit Free All Non-competitive Articles—Court Procedure to Determine When a Commodity Has Been Established.

Senator Cummins introduced an amendment to the senate tariff bill Monday his famous monopoly "sheeter" plank. He does not use the word "monopoly" in the amendment, but provides that import duties shall not be levied on commodities which have no competition. It requires a court procedure to determine whether competition has ceased and a monopoly established. Any citizen may bring suit for an injunction in a circuit court against the collector of customs to restrain the collection of duties on commodities alleged to be handled by a monopoly. The government also may institute proceedings for the free admission of commodities alleged to be removed from competition. Provision is made for the restoration after a year of articles to the dutiable list if a showing of competition has been established.

Senator Doolittle also is preparing several amendments to the senate bill, but said Monday he is reluctant to advertise his ideas and will not make them public until the proper time. Mr. Doolittle is giving much study to the dual tariff and drawback features of the Payne bill and it is probable his amendments will relate to these sections. He has discovered the House measure provides for the complete restoration of the old Dingley rates on iron and steel imports from nations that discriminate against us, while the retaliatory increase on other products is only 20 per cent additional. This would be an increase in many instances of fully 100 per cent on iron and steel products under the maximum tariff application.

The senate committee has not reported its maximum and minimum tariff plan of its drawback provision. Senator Doolittle is anxiously awaiting to see how the Aldrich committee regards the section before he proposes any other plan.

INTERURBAN CARS COLLIDE

Two Men Seriously and Sorely Injured Near Gary, Ind.

The men were seriously injured and a car badly hurt in a head-on collision on the Chicago, Lake Shore and South Bend Interurban line, five miles west of Gary, Ind., Monday. Only one passenger on the eastbound car, which contained twenty people, who boarded it at Hammond, escaped without injury.

The crash came as the eastbound car was running down grade at high speed from the elevated crossing over the Toller cut-off. The front ends of the two cars were telescoped when they struck. Most of the male passengers were crowded in the smoking sections back of the motorman, and it was there that the most serious injuries resulted. A relief car was sent from Gary and ambulances were in waiting when it returned with the injured. Eight of the most seriously hurt were hurried to the hospital in Gary, where it was reported that all would recover. All the seriously injured were from Indiana points and Chicago.

BLACK HAND MURDER

Chicago Grocer Killed by an Italian, Who is Later Captured.

Another murder of a peculiarly desperate character, attributed by the police to the Black Hand society, occurred in Chicago Monday. Joseph Filippini, a grocer, was shot in front of his store by an Italian who was caught and identified later as having left a letter demanding $1,000 on a saloonkeeper's bar in the neighborhood a few weeks ago.

Filippini was locking his store for the night and had his baby in his arms and his wife by his side when he was attacked. The child was thrown to the ground and a shot was fired into the grocer's abdomen. He died an hour later in a hospital. Filippini's brother-in-law who owns a part interest in the grocery store, received a letter demanding money a few months ago; he failed to pay the money and was shot from ambush.

SIX PERSONS BURNED

Others Hurt in Disastrous Fire at Lenox, Mass.

Six persons lost their lives, three others were badly burned and a property loss of between $200,000 and $300,000 was caused by the fire which started in the heart of the business section of Lenox, Mass., early Sunday. Four business blocks and two dwellings and two other structures were destroyed in a section bounded by Franklin, Main, Housatonic and Church streets.

The fire is believed to have started from spontaneous combustion. The dead: Edward C. Ventres, electrician; Mrs. Edward C. Ventres, Miss Leslie Ventres, aged 12 years; Miss Alice French, bookkeeper; Miss Isabel Cook, bookkeeper; Miss Mary Sparks, school teacher; Miss Cathy Elaine Root and her two sons, George and Arthur, were severely burned.

A fortunate shift of the wind saved the public library and the fashionable Curtis hotel. In the hotel there was several Easter parties from New York and Boston. The loss of life occurred in the Clifford building, where the blaze started, and resulted primarily from a series of explosions among the turpentine, paints, oils and dynamite stored in the cellar.

The death of Miss French was one of the pitiful tragedies of the fire. While the blaze in the Clifford block was at its height a woman was seen to climb out of a flame filled room onto the veranda on the second story with her night clothing and her hair ablaze. Staggering to the railing the woman leaped to the sidewalk beneath landing in a heap within five or six feet of the blazing walls. Some of the horrified onlookers attempted to drag her out, but the intense heat drove them back, and not until the flames had practically died out was the body recovered.

While none of the beautiful summer residences that have made this Berkshire town famous the country over was threatened, many prominent New York and Boston society people were at the Curtis hotel, which was at one time in danger.

MRS. SAMPSON FREE

Jury Acquits Her of Murdering Her Husband.

Mrs. Georgia Allyn Sampson, who has been on trial at Lyons, N. Y., since Monday on the charge that she had shot and killed her husband, Harry Sampson, was acquitted shortly after 10 o'clock Friday night.

Mrs. Sampson was trembling when the jury announced its verdict, but she recovered her composure and smilingly received the embraces of her father and other relatives and the congratulations of her friends. She thanked and shook hands with the jurors, her lawyers and the reporters, but declined to make any statement for publication.

Mr. Gilbert, though a cousin of Mrs. Sampson, by marriage, prosecuted the case vigorously but said he was satisfied with the verdict.

The testimony of the defense Friday was brief and at 6:30 o'clock Judge Rich completed his charge to the jury, and an hour later the jurors retired to deliberate. At 10 o'clock they reported having reached an agreement, went to their places in court, and in answer to the clerk's formal question their foreman answered stoutly: "Not guilty."

Mrs. Sampson is to all appearances on the verge of a breakdown from the strain to which she has been subjected since the beginning of Monday of her trial for the murder of her husband. She did not sleep at all Thursday night and Friday morning in turn, he demanded and pleaded with her attorneys for the privilege of going to the stand and explaining everything. Her advisers and friends had difficulty in calming her. When she entered the court room she was still pale and haggard and her attorneys feared she might collapse.

The jury commenced deliberating at 7:30 o'clock and long before that hour the court room, galleries and corridors were thronged with people, women predominating, awaiting the verdict.

Famous Actress Expires After Long Illness at Her California Home.

Mme. Modjeska, the famous actress, died Thursday at her extensive estate in California in a stupor, after a hard fight to conquer an illness with which she was stricken several weeks ago.

Mme. Modjeska was born Helena Marie Bench, at Crecow, Poland, Oct. 12, 1844. Her father was a musician of high standing and two of her brothers have distinguished themselves on the stage. She was married at 16 and went on the stage a year later. Her success was marked. In 1862 she became manager of a theater at Zernsdorf. Her next removal was to Warsaw, where her husband died, and where, a year afterward, she married Count Charles Bozenta Chlupowski, a young Polish patriot of noble family.

In 1875 she came to America, escaping the ignoble censorship of Russia. At San Francisco, in 1875, Modjeska made her debut on the American stage and gave her first performance in the English tongue. In 1879 Modjeska returned to Europe and played in the principal cities of Poland, going thence to play over a year's continuous engagement in London. A few years ago she again went to Europe, and the Russian censor forbade the performance and gave her and her husband formal notice to leave the country. They Patten, who is said to have gained a fortune out of his recent rise in May wheat, has been conspicuous for several years as a daring and successful Chicago board of trade operator in wheat and corn. He has been in the board of trade business since 1878 and previously served four years as an employe of the State grain inspection department in Chicago. Mr. Patten lives in Evanston, Ill., and was mayor of that city four years, besides serving two terms as alderman. He was born in DeKalb County, Illinois, in 1872, and as a boy worked in a country store and on a farm.

FORMER SENATOR IS CONVICTED

Marion Butler and Brother Found Guilty of Criminal Libel.

Former United States Senator Marion Butler and his brother, Lester Butler, were convicted in Guilford Superior Court, Winston-Salem, N. C., of criminally libeling Republican State Chairman S. B. Adams. Adams acts as chief justice of the Indiana board of elections in 1905 were severely condemned by the Caucasian, a paper owned by the Butlers, in its light against Adams' re-election as chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee. The trial lasted six days; was hard fought, and created widespread interest. Judge Long imposed a fine of $500 upon Marion Butler and $250 upon Lester Butler.

TOWN OVERRUN BY BANDITS

Bradock, Pa., Secures Permission to Combat Crime with Rifles.

Following the receipt of a letter from Secretary of State Philander C. Knox that the act would not be unconstitutional, the police force of Bradock, Pa., has been supplied with regulation army rifles to cope with the numerous hold-ups and burglaries which have infested the borough recently. The first installment of rifles, equipped with bayonets, numbering ten, was received the other day. A wave of crime recently swept over Bradock, Switzvale and other nearby boroughs, and the authorities of these places seemed to be unable to prevent the depredations owing to the fact that the participants in the crimes would take to the open country, and, although sighted, would be out of range of revolvers. Chief of Police Bennett of Bradock, a Civil War veteran, petitioned the Council of the town for permission to secure army rifles to hunt the criminals. The Council doubted their right. Mr. Bennett wrote to Secretary of State Knox on the subject. On the receipt of the letter saying the project was not unconstitutional, a contract was immediately let for the rifles.

FORMER OFFICIAL TO BE FREED

Smith, Alleged San Francisco Embezzler, to Leave Prison May 1.

Edward J. Smith, former tax collector of San Francisco, who in May, 1905, was sentenced by Judge Lawlor to ten years in the penitentiary for the alleged embezzlement of $295,000 of the public funds, will be paroled from Poison prison on May 1. James B. Smith, a brother, vice president of the Western Fuel Company, will provide for him, it is said. The discovery of the defalcation and Smith's flight and arrest by Pinkerton agents at St. Louis formed a stirring subplot of last year's Eugene Schmitz's administration. Mr. Smith had been arrested in 1898, having borrowed money upon a woman known as Countess Leon Brooks, through whom the fugitive was traced.

ROOSEVELT MEETS KING

Monarch Expresses Gratitude for Aid to Earthquake Sufferers.

Theodore Roosevelt and King Victor Emmanuel met Tuesday on the Italian battleship Re Umberto, in Messina harbor. The meeting was characterized by the utmost cordiality and the King took the occasion to express the gratitude of himself and the Italian people for the generous assistance for the American people to the earthquake sufferers.

The Admiral arrived at Messina about 2 o'clock in the afternoon and was saluted by the Re Umberto, with the King on board, which reached there in the morning. Almost immediately Capt. Proffier, the former Italian military attaché at Washington and now aide to Admiral Arbelli, was taken to the steamer Admiral in a launch and inquired for Mr. Roosevelt.

To him he said the King sent his compliments, and would have great pleasure in receiving the former President of the United States. Mr. Roosevelt's face lit up with a pleased smile, and, accompanied by his son, Kermit, and Ambassador Griseon, he proceeded at once to the battleship.

The King met the party at the head of the gangway, and he greeted the President affectionately, shaking him warmly by the hand. He did not wish, he said, to allow the opportunity to pass of making the personal acquaintance of so distinguished a man. Above all, he wanted personally to thank the ex-President for the help extended by America at the time of the earthquake.

At the close of the interview Mr. Roosevelt went ashore and inspected the ruins of the city, the desolation of which moved him strongly. He then boarded the steamer Admiral, which just at sunset proceeded on its way to Monbasa.

HIGH TARIFF VICTOR; PAYNE BILL PASSES

House Refuses to Listen to Protest of Women on Increase on Gloves and Hosiery.

LUMBER TARIFF UNDISTURBED

Oil, However, Is Placed on Free List - Vote of 217 to 161 Passes Measure.

The Payne tariff bill, almost without a search, was accepted by the House of Representatives in Washington, with a vote of 217 to 161 Friday night.

It was almost a pure party vote, Congressmen Broussard, Estopinal, Pujol and Wickliffe, Democrats of Louisiana, who have been with the Republican leaders on almost everything, voted with the Republicans on the final roll call.

Justin of Tennessee was the only Republican to go into the Democratic camp on the final vote.

The final days work on the Payne bill proved a series of victories for the Payne Ways and Means Committee. Every feature of the document that was finally accepted had the approval of the committee. Much of this, however, was due to the efforts of the committee to avoid threatening defeats. This was particularly the case in the rates on oil, barley and barley malt.

The committee had fought bitterly against putting oil on the free list, but gave up the fight Friday, and it was Chairman Payne's motion that all duties on oil and oil products were struck.

On barley and barley malt the committee had fought against an increase, and in its first fight triumphed. But the vote of the barley men were needed to save the committee's stand on lumber and hides, and the barley and malt rates were increased.

Changes were made in the hosiery and gloves schedule, although the Democrats included this in their motion for amendment. It was buried there, however, with a long list of other Democratic demands, including an income tax.

The other changes in the bill, which were made during the last four days by the committee of the whole, were accepted by a viva voce vote. This included putting tea and coffee on the free list.

House Paucity. House and the galleries were packed for the last day of the fight, and during most of the voting the buzz of conversation almost drowned out the call of the roll. When the subject under vote was particularly uninteresting and no one seemed to pay any attention, the House seemed like a cross between a boiler factory and a session of the D. A. R. This and again Speaker Cannon almost spluttered a caveat in getting the members to listen to the roll call.

It was a good natured battle, although at the outset there was a storm of parliamentary debate over the methods of procedure. When it got under way, however, things moved more smoothly. There were ten roll calls in all, four on the lumber schedule, one on barley malt, two on hides, one on oil, one on commitment and one on the final vote. With the exception of the last two, the party vote was badly split.

Illinois for Free Lumber. The first question which was voted on was a motion to put lumber on the free list. Fifty-four Republicans went over to the Democrats on this, and thirty-five Democrats recanted. This brought the result to 184 for free lumber to 198 against. Three other free lumber propositions containing minor changes went down to defeat in turn, by votes of 180 to 200, 133 to 244 and 133 to 228.

When came the barley and barley malt vote, in which the increased rates were approved by the committee, twenty-one went into the bill. Here again party lines were broken. Then came the vote on the hides, eight Republicans joining the Democrats for free hides. On the oil vote, two Illinoisans, both Republicans, voted against free oil.

EXPLOSION KILLS SIX MEN

One Hundred Cottages Wrecked at Powder Works in New Jersey.

A series of explosions in the Wayne, N. J., works of the DuPont Powder Company killed six men, wrecked a hundred cottages in Wayne and shook the country like an earthquake in a radius of fifteen miles. Nine of the twenty buildings at the works went up, one after another, with terrific explosions. Jerome T. Minkus, who was in the building first wrecked, was killed. He alone could know what caused the disaster.

Slays Woman and Himself. Ralph Orson, a Serbian, shot and killed Mrs. Milka Butler and then killed himself at his home at Stockton, Pa. The husband of the woman, Nikolai Barben, on learning of the crime, attempted to cut his throat with a razor, but neighbors prevented.

CENSUS SHOWS RACE SUICIDE

Average Family in the United States Has Decreased.

The size of the average family in the United States has decreased from 5.3 persons in 1790, the date of the first census taken in this country, to 4.8 in the same year in 1900, according to a volume now being published by the census bureau. Of especial interest from a sociological point of view are those statistics in the book which deal with family life. In 1790 families composed of no more than three persons represented but one-fourth of the entire number of families, while in 1900 families of similar size made up nearly 40 per cent of all the families. Families composed of six or more persons represented in 1790 more than one-half, but in 1900 scarcely more than one-fourth of the families enumerated. On the basis of the proportion shown in 1790 there would have been in continental United States in 1900, 39,500,000 children, whereas there were less than 24,000,000.

The number of children under 16 years of age to each white family was 2.8 in 1790, as compared with 1.5 in 1900. The ratio in 1790 of two children under 16 years of age to each white female 16 years of age and over declined to one in 1900. Of 3,711,000 white persons enumerated in 1790, approximately 2,000,000 survived thirty years later, 11,500 in 1880, while in 1900 there were twenty-three persons who reported their ages as 110 years and over, so that at the census of 1900 it is possible that there were still living persons enumerated in the first census, taken 110 years before.

In 1790 the Smiths led all the rest, there being 33,245 of this ubiquitous family in the country, while other families followed in the sequence given: Brown, Davis, Jones, Johnson, Clark, Williams, Miller and Wilson. These names represented about 4 per cent of the total white population of 1790.

RUSSIA'S RAILWAY BUILDER DEAD; ONCE LABORER IN UNITED STATES

Prince Michael Ilkoff, who is reported to have died in a railway accident, was a Russian railway engineer who was building a railway in South America, the manager of an Argentine railway, a student in an English locomotive building shop and engine driver and locomotive superintendent in Russia during his earlier years. He rose to be the czar's minister of public works and railways, a high office he held for eleven years. To his energy and skill is ascribed much of the success of Russia in building the great Trans-Siberian railway and in sending more than 300,000 troops across the 6,077 miles of this line within ninety days, together with enormous quantities of provisions and army supplies, during the Russo-Japanese war.

"I am a good bit of a Yankee myself," was Prince Ilkoff's greeting to the members of the World's Columbian Exposition committee on transportation when meeting them in western Siberia on their trip around the world. "Here is further proof, if you want it," he added, with a smile, raising his hand up to the tuft of iron-gray beard that grew on his chin "Uncle Sam" fashion. This tuft he wore from early manhood to old age. He was a Yankee in more than appearance; for many years he had studied closely the wonderful development of the United States and had striven to adopt methods in use in this country to the railway problems of Russia.

MANY TOWNS SWEEP BY TERRIFIC STORM

Wabash, Ind., Massillon and Toledo, Ohio, Struck by Tornado and Lives and Property Lost.

MANY HOUSES ARE IN RUINS

Northern Mississippi Visited by Gale Which Causes Death of at Least Nine Persons in One Place.

Death and destruction were wrought by tornadoes which swept the Mississippi Valley States, the States in the great lake region, and the lower portion of Canada Monday, Monday night, and early Tuesday.

The storm struck northern Mississippi Monday night in a tornado that attained a velocity estimated at from seventy-five to 100 miles an hour. Nine persons are reported killed, fifteen were injured, some of them fatally, and thousands of dollars' worth of damage done to buildings and crops.

Great Losses in Tennessee.

This tornado, passing north into Tennessee and Kentucky, caused heavy damage to buildings, wrecking a school house at Puntin, Tenn., and imperiling the lives of 300 children. Menger reports as to fatalities come from these sections, owing to the wrecking of telegraph wires, but several deaths are reported, not verified.

Passing into Indiana and Ohio Tuesday the cyclone destroyed factories and other large buildings in its pathway. At Massillon, Ohio, the high wind, tearing the roof from a foundry, menaced the lives of 400 employes, killing one.

At Wabash, Ind., the havoc was widespread, the loss being estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. Two dozen dwellings were demolished, while their inmates fled for their lives. A woman, with her children, was pinned under the wreckage of her home, which caught fire, and she died from burns. The city's electric service was wrecked and the town was in darkness throughout Tuesday night. The wind was followed by a cloudburst, and many bridges are washed away. Many families are homeless. Fifteen are injured, two fatally, in Toledo.

Northern Indiana Suffers.

In northern Indiana the storm late Tuesday night killed one man at Alton. Two hundred houses were destroyed in small villages.

At Cleveland the fishing tug George Floyd with seven men aboard and the sandusker Mary II, with a crew of nine men are missing, while the barge Norman Kelley, with a crew of four persons, three men and a woman, near Sandusky, was rescued after a desperate struggle as a result of a fierce wind storm which raged on Lake Erie.

In Michigan a boy was killed by the flying roof of a house at Brighton, two boys were driven in a small boat in the Detroit River, and three fishermen were drowned by the capsizing of their boat near Wyandotte. Lightning killed a child at Tonia and set fire to thousands of dollars worth of farm houses and barns. A child was probably fatally injured in Detroit by flying debris.

At Jennings, Mich., three young men were killed by being caught under a wall that was blown down by the wind. The damage to roofs, chimneys, plate glass, etc., probably will reach $75,000 in Detroit.

Wisconsin Is Wind Swept.

A terrific wind storm swept Wisconsin Wednesday. Many boats were reported overdue at various ports along Lake Michigan and at Milwaukee, while the northern Michigan copper country reports from five inches to two and a half feet of snow.

Southern Canada was a heavy sufferer from the storm, incomplete and unverified reports showing that the loss in small towns will reach the hundred thousands. Six persons were injured and one young child fatally hurt and property loss of $75,000 estimated at New London, Ont.

At Buffalo, N. Y., the gale reached a velocity of seventy-five miles an hour. Four persons, badly injured by flying bricks and debris, are in hospitals, and several ships have been beached, while a dredge was sunk. One man was crushed to death by a falling cornice. The wind reached a velocity of sixty-eight miles per hour in Pittsburg. It is estimated that damage done throughout the city will be in excess of $100,000. About thirty persons were hurt, and two of them are so badly injured that they may die.

An airship owned by the Eagle Aeroplane Company of Pittsburg was struck ready for flight when the gale struck the tent it was kept in and blew both tent and airship away, demolishing both.

PRAIRIE DOGS TO BE POISONED.

Coated Wheat Is to Be Fed to Enemy of Farmers in the West.

Poisoned wheat is to be used as bait to kill off the prairie dogs, the stockmen's enemy, that now infest Arizona and New Mexico and have become a menace to the farm homes there. On ranch lands prairie dogs have been destructive to wheat, grain, potatoes and sugar beets; while on grazing lands they destroy so much grass that the grazing capacity of the land is reduced to 75 per cent. Last spring a successful campaign was waged against the prairie dog and this year it will be conducted on a larger scale. The poison is prepared by coating the wheat with a preparation of strychnine cyanide, potassium, anise oil and molasses.

BILLY HAD TO WORK

Embushed within the Swamp of Time it lay. And toward it, fearing naught, I made my way. I thought that life was peace and love and joy— Thus did they teach me when I was a boy— And so I wandered on, unlearned, weak. When something—sharp and gleaming—snote my cheek. And something—glorious upon my pallid arm And frightened me, for it was red and warm. The pliers were there and in the sky a star. But in that hour I learned that life is war. There have been other hours, and other scars Gained 'mid the placid pines, 'neath sailing stars, And not in vain if into some voice may say, "Look there! A soldier goeth on his way!" —Richard Wightman, in Success Magazine.

AWAITED DEATH IN GRAVE.

Japanese Has Himself Buried Alive and Is Rescued by Policemen.

A youth of Kobe, Japan, who sought to commit suicide by burying himself alive and paid an acceptance 25 cents to spade the earth upon his coffin achieved some degree of notoriety, even in Japan, where new things are happening every day. He failed of his original purpose, however.

A policeman was strolling along the bank of the Minatogawa river, outside of Kobe, one day last month when he happened to spy a joint of bamboo pipe sticking a few inches above a mound of fresh earth, the New York Sun says. Being a Japanese and also a policeman, his curiosity was especially keen. He looked down the bamboo pipe, but could see nothing.

Then he began to dig around the pipe. He had a considerable wrench put on his nerves when a voice came out of the end of the pipe right at his ear.

"Honorable comendose to go away and permit me to die peacefully."

But the policeman did not go. He dug some more and finally unearthed a pipe box, the length of a man's body and about three feet wide. The bamboo pipe led through an opening into the box. The policeman pried off the cover of the box, securely nailed down, and dumped the self-appointed corpse out.

"Then he had a happy inspiration. The way to get more money would be to ask for an increase of his wages. Naturally! Strange that this never had occurred to him before."

"Billy," said his employer, "I was just thinking up my mind that you wasn't earning what I'm paying you. I'll tell you, if you want me to pay you more wages you've got to get a heap more work done."

Billy considered a while. "All right," he said at last. "You pay me $7 next week instead of $5. You think I've been worth that to you? If you don't, you can fire me. Is it a go?"

"It's a go," said the storekeeper. When the week expired he handed his clerk $7. "You earned it all right," he said.

Billy kept it up and in course of time he got into his new suit of clothes and drove the stinky buggy up to Judge McKenzie's front door.

The grand objects attained, Billy had a hazy idea that he might black up a little. He did not entertain that idea very long. Other buggy rides succeeded. Then Billy discovered that the girl had a certain taste in candy that was necessary to build more hotels, so great is the demand for one-year leases on rooms and houses. Since Billy, S.
