SEWER CONTRACT WAS LET

Another Important Step Taken For The Betterment of our Thriving Little City

There Were Twelve Bidders, and W. M. Lana, of Harlan, Iowa, got the Contract for $13,094

BELOW IS A PLAT OF THE SEWER DISTRICT

The entire distance of the sewerage system outlined above is 19,750 feet, a little less than four miles, and extends north and south from First street, which is the first street north of the railway tracks, to 8th street, and in the two alleys between Pearl and Logan streets it extends a half a block further north. From east to west it covers six blocks, between Nebraska street on the east and Sherman street to the west. The sewer is to run in the alleys, for the most part, and the heavy rule in all cases indicates where the sewer will be laid. The sewer pipe running in the alleys from First street to 8th, west of Main, between Main and Pearl, Pearl and Lincoln, Lincoln and Douglas, Douglas and Sherman, and east of Main between Main and Logan, Logan and Nebraska streets is to be an eight inch pipe. The sewer pipe running along First street from the alley between Sherman and Douglas streets to the first alley east of Main street and the up to 2nd street is to be a 10 inch pipe, and from that alley east on 2nd street to Nebraska street then south on that street to the point indicated by the heavy rule, is to be a fifteen inch pipe. From that point southward until it empties into Logan creek, the sewer is to be constructed of concrete, and is to be of the same dimension as the fifteen inch pipe. You will notice the jog both in the court house and school house blocks. These are made to avoid disturbing the conditions already existing there.

We give below the names of the bidders and the amount of their bids:

- 1st—W. M. Lana, Harlan, Iowa, $13,094.
 - 2nd—M. Tschirgi & Son, Dubuque Iowa, $13,688.
 - 3rd—J. W. Turner, Des Moines, Iowa, $13,698.
 - 4th—M. Ritch & Son, Omaha, Nebraska, $13,735.
 - 5th—C. F. Beatty, Leigh, Nebraska, $14,135.
 - 6th—M. Ford, Omaha, $14,620.
 - 7th—Lewis & Leader, Sioux City, Iowa, $15,768.
 - 8th—E. L. Dimmick, Laurel, Nebraska, $16,100.
 - 9th—McKay & Cathroe, Omaha, $16,751.
 - 10th—Holly & Shepherd, Baraboo, Wisconsin, $17,297.
 - 11th—Cook Construction Company, Des Moines, Iowa, $19,564.
 - 12th—Guy C. Smith, Indianola, Iowa, $13,181.
- The latter bid however did not include the concrete sewer, consequently was not considered.

The following is the bid W. M. Lana put in on different sizes of pipe and other items of the work: 8 inch pipe, 48 cents; 10 inch pipe, 53 cents; 15 inch pipe, 90 cents; manholes, $40; outlet, 15 inch pipe, $1.15; manholes, $45; bulkhead, $125.

Mr. Lana is now completing a sewer contract at David City, this state, and will come from there here, and will probably begin operations here before he entirely finishes up at that place, as the contract provides that work must begin not later than May 15th, 1909, and be completed by October 1st, 1909.

The majority of the sewer will be laid at a depth of nine feet below the surface, ranging from that to a depth of nineteen feet at the deepest point.

This sewerage system is but another step toward the decided improvement and betterment of Wayne and will be a source of pride to all of our people, and the city officials are to be commended as much for their efforts to make the city healthful as the mothers are to make the city beautiful, and both working in harmony with the rest of the citizens much can be accomplished in all directions for the advancement of Wayne.

The Norfolk News bemoans the fact that the reduction of the number of saloons will make it hard to get money enough to run their schools. It also said that the assessment of that city in 1908 was $667,000. Stanton's school district has an assessment of $300,000. The trouble in Norfolk is not the lack of saloon money, but rank case of tax dodging. A city of 5,250 ought to have an assessment of $1,500,000, especially when a railroad center.—Stanton Register.

The Cudahy packing company of Kansas City has been indicted by the U. S. Grand Jury on 737 counts. If it does not amount to more than most of the prosecutions of the big concerns that is about as far as it will go.

The Norfolk News just got around Saturday to criticize Governor Shallenberger for vetoing the $10,000 appropriation for building an addition to the Norfolk asylum, and intimates that it is likely the last chance the governor will ever have to veto any measure affecting the north part of the state.

It would seem that the early-hatched pullet will be a paying proposition this year. Eggs are going into cold storage at a cost of about 20 cents per dozen. That will mean a good price for all the strictly fresh eggs that bid can be persuaded to furnish next fall and winter.

Seven cities of this country, each having a population of over a hundred thousand, are existing very comfortably without saloons, and they are not dead cities by a long shot. The notion that there must be debauchery to insure prosperity is not as widely entertained as it used to be.

SEASONABLE SERMONS

ADVICE FOR THE MILLIONS

Our Purpose Is to Overthrow Some Rules of Society That Are Sadly in Need of Correction.

"So live that when thy summons comes to join the innumerable caravan that moves to that mysterious realm where each shall take his chamber in the silent halls of death; thou go not like the quarry slave at night, scourged to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

What a wonderful old world this would be if there was an attempt to heed the teachings of these immortal words by the 18 year old Bryant boy.

To get right down to plain speaking there are mighty few living that way.

The principal trouble is with men and grievances. Misunderstandings result in business and social affairs, and, in place of the "injured" ones getting together and straightening things out themselves, they "settle" the matter by talking about the other fellow. This results in what? Just Hate.

Hate is the bane of the world. It is a general disease among men and it will be the main trouble when a whole bunch of people "move" to that mysterious realm. There are countless people today, both men and women, who are damning their immortal souls by nursing and fostering a desperate and murderous hate for some one. When you sift the thing down to a nicety the original start of trouble proves to be something of the most silly order, nothing but what people of good judgment would have laughed away as a jest.

The divine command is that one must not let the sun go down upon his wrath. We guess that if people were struck dead who do this, we would have to buy cemeteries by the section, in place of ten acre tracts, and make undertaking a study in every kindergarten.

The game is not worth the candle, as each will find out when he takes his chamber in the silent halls of death.

Then there's the old grouch. We often wonder what kind of a look crosses the face of his satanic majesty when he has to greet one of these fellows. It must put old Billy on the study seat to find a place below that fits the case of the grouch.

Some of our grouches go about with the gloom so thick around them that it would take a pick axe and dynamite to find the real spark of life which is supposed to be somewhere in their makeup. Gracious, but a grouch is something awful! They are dead, as it were, and, as we preach only to the living, it is hoped this warning will reach some one who may be drifting towards grouchdom but who have enough of the finer sensibilities to realize their fearful condition and take the back track.

Then there is another fellow of peculiar make-up. He is the one who "thinks some one is 'stuck up' and will not speak to him." Here is one of the greatest delusions of modern times. Personally we do not believe there is a man in Wayne county who would not willingly speak to the poorest and weakest among us, unless it should be some of the old grouches mentioned above. Many men have the reputation of passing people without speaking, and when each case is simmered down we find the man referred to is a prince of good fellows, only built mentally in a way that causes him to walk along in deep thought of business matters and utterly oblivious to his surroundings.

Bryant's "so live" might easily be changed to "let live," etc. The business strife of today is almost upon a basis of the "survival of the fittest." A better feeling among business men should be engendered. Every merchant should remember that if he had all the trade, the other fellow wouldn't have any, and there would soon be an awfully dead looking town.

As a final summing up of our last sermon let us suggest a little endeavor to observe these things, in place of just reading and saying "good!" Lets go to church a little more, and swear a little less; lets not hate anybody, lets give the grouch a rest; lets have no more church suppers, lets spread our coin more free; lets give the flowers while living, more saintly let us be; the loafing on the street should stop the spit and talk out; charitable to strangers be, disease germs put to rout; lets clean the streets and alleys, lets help the mayor rule; lets boost the teacher in his work, let boys behave in school; let "hurt your business" be forgot, nor let your chickens roam; the blamed things may be put to death, if found too far from home; lets aid the weak against the strong, lets quit the angry fight; lets plan to join the angels in the glorious land of light; lets thank the printer now, and then for things he does so free; lets banish the chain letter; prayer and do it on our knees; lets not be hurt by "no invite," lets cut out "cards of thanks," and charitable to others be—and on the Jordan's banks—we'll meet St. Peter face to face, he'll take us by the hand; he'll pass us freely through the Gates, to Canaan's happy land.

CHAPTER II.—(Continued.) She walked away and leaned on the balustrade on the other side. "The water's getting quite deep."

"There's quite a rise of tide. It's nearly full, and then it will turn in about an hour, I should say."

"But that will be 7 o'clock, and then dine at the club at that time, and my aunt will be worried half out of her poor old head."

"They dine too early; they miss the best part of the day."

"She turned a trifle imperiously towards me. 'Still, that is the hour, and I must be getting back. What answers to the problem have your frequent studies brought?'"

"The first is to wait until the cause-way is dry," I answered, avoiding her eyes and looking out to sea.

"But that is out of the question," she said, with the faint hint of a tapping foot upon the deck. "The touch of authority made me stubborn."

"There's a fine view of the sunset from here, though not so fine as from the cliff beyond my house. You should see that some evening when you're not afraid of missing dinner."

"She looked at me over while I kept my face away, and I could feel the struggle whether resentment or amusement should have the upper hand. The latter finally won. 'Please help me to get home, Mr. Alastair,' she began."

"Felix Selwyn," I supplied her, "though I'd much rather you stayed here, Miss Alastair," and I in my turn hung questioningly.

"Barbara Graham," she answered quite frankly. "Then suddenly she laughed, and I was forced to join her. 'Come, Mr. Pirate, now that are properly known to each other, and I have thanked you for your compliment, will you think of a way to save my poor aunt from nervous prostration? If you will, I promise some day to go without dinner and come to see the sunset from your cliff.'"

"It's a bargain," I said, and strode resolutely across the deck to the side where the causeway ran. "What are you doing to do?" came in surprised accents from Miss Graham.

"I often think that when I'm in bed on a bad night. The Shoal Light yonder keeps most of the ships away."

"What a contrast," Islip said at length, "between this quiet beach and the folks at the club! I think I like this the better of the two, but I should want company."

"A foolish number." "Who are they?" I inquired idly. "Oh, the usual crowd of city magistrates with their wives and families, James G. Purviance of old, with the Mrs. and two unmarried daughters."

"I watched him at the corner of my eye, but his tanned face was placidly itself."

"What are they like?" I asked. "Very nice. Miss Corey is quite the grande dame, in a gentle way."

"Well, she's very nice, too, very nice. I know her quite well in town. He broke off abruptly."

"I changed the subject. I didn't care to vex about the rest of the guests at the club."

"A little later Islip took up his fishing-rod and his empty basket, and we walked up the beach together. At the farther end I pointed him out his rook home."

"May I drop in on you again if I'm in the neighborhood?" he asked as we said good-by.

"I wish you would. Next time I'll put you on to a place where you'll get all the fish you please with little effort."

"It was only a matter of an odd day or two, and I'd ask you to go to dinner. I'll fix you up."

"He grinned gratefully, and trundled along beside me until we came to the cottage. I called for Charles and sent him off with the horse. By the time he returned, my guest was feeling considerably better, having postponed famine by the aid of whisky and soda."

"They don't give us such food at the club, no, sir, and as for the wines, they can't compare with your claret. Funny to think of finding such things down here in the country, away at the end of an empty beach. I didn't know there was a civilized man within fifty miles of here. Do you happen to come from New York?"

"Originally," I made answer. "But it was some time ago."

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL

CHICAGO.

In the sustained high volume of payments through the banks and improvement in credits the business conditions are encouraging. High prices for breadstuffs and labor disputes are temporary cross-currents, and leading retail lines require more reasonable weather for an ample reduction of merchandise, but manufacturing makes some progress, freight transportation improves and agriculture has started with an excellent outlook.

Metal and woodworking, gather strength from the wider demands for supplies, and iron producers have less difficulty in negotiating contracts for future deliveries, although no specially large individual tonnage appear in the bookings.

Increasing inquiries impart a better tone to railway equipment, forge and foundry operations. Rail mills in this district have accumulated much forward work, while the orders have more breadth for plates, pipe and merchant shapes.

Some cash is noted in new demands for furniture, including export orders and the outputs, extend in blossoming and planing mill materials.

Earnings of the Chicago steam roads exhibit further gains. While freight offerings increase in heavy materials factory products grain and general merchandise.

First Wild Horses.

The first horses of the western plains probably were brought there by the Spaniards. In 1545, more than fifty years before Jamestown was settled, Coronado, the Spanish captain, was roaming about the plains of New Mexico, and he tells of the dogs used by the Indians to haul their plunder on lodge poles, indicating that they had no horses at that date, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In 1716 the Spanish again worked their way eastward across the plains and their letters tell of the astonishment of the Indians at seeing the horses they had with them. The expedition was constantly losing horses and there is little doubt that the first droves of western horses originated from these strays.

In the early days upon the plains they were as great a pest to travelers as they are to-day. We be into the luckless camper who allowed a band of wild horses to get close enough to his gentle horses, turned out for the night, to sweep them off. It was almost useless to follow, for the call of the wild comes to the gentlest of horses when he is thrown with a band of this kind that has been born and raised free of all restraint. It is a well known fact that the hardest one to "cut out," the leader of them all in a man race across the prairie, is the old, male, well broken saddle or work horse, once he gets a taste of such freedom.

How to Treat the Work Team.

Horses employed for farm work should not be pampered but should be fed generously so as to sustain vigor and good spirits. A team ill fed and consequently in poor condition and feeble will not accomplish much real work and it is a waste of time to hire an expensive hand to drive such a team.

The work horses should be fed early in the morning and they should have a liberal feeding. The comfort and rest of the team will be vastly promoted if the harness is entirely removed at noon while they are feeding. Allow them plenty of time for a good meal and partial digestion before they are put to work for the afternoon. If a poor policy to put them to work right after eating a hearty meal or upon a full stomach.

If we would allow the teams more rest at noon we would accomplish more work than when they are only allowed time to swallow their food. At evening let them be well groomed and their legs, bellies and feet relieved from all mud and filth.

The practice of many farmers of driving a team through cold water to wash the filth off their feet and legs is dangerous, as it causes many diseases that they are subject to.

A warm or overheated team should not be put in a cold, airy place, but first exercised and then blanketed and put in a warm stable, and after the blankets are removed they should be wiped dry with straw or cloths.

When a team has been exposed to perspiration they should not be left to become dry, but should be rubbed dry, as chills, fevers and other ailments often result from allowing them to dry by the evaporation of the moisture from their bodies.

Rog Lice.

A good preparation for killing hog lice is made by melting three pints of lard and mixing it with one pint of coal-oil. The lard may be rancid. Even meat frying will do, the salt being no objection.

When the grease has been melted, mix the coal oil well with it and apply with a rag or brush while warm, but not hot, to the backs and behind the ears of the animals. Rub the mixture well into the hair. Since hogs will not readily stand while the application is being made, give them an appetizing slop in a trough and apply while the animals are drinking. In this way one person can, by rapid manipulation, grease twenty to thirty hogs in about five minutes.

The benefit of putting the grease on the backs and behind the ears is that it will spread by gravity and finally cover all of the hog's body. There is no objection, however, to greasing the animal all over, for the more grease put on the more lice will be killed. It is preferable to make the application in the evening, at feeding time, so that one hog will grease another in rubbing against each other in the bed. Before application is made, or immediately afterward, clean out and remove all bedding material and disinfect the hog house with coal oil and carbolic acid, or coal oil alone, for killing all lice that may be harboring there.

Repeat the hog greasing once or twice at intervals of about a week apart, spraying their sleeping quarters at the same time, and the lice will disappear.

In summer we kill lice on hogs by digging a wallow hole about two feet deep in their lot or pasture, filling it about half full of water, and pouring a gallon of coal oil on the water. When the weather is warm the hogs will wallow in the water covering themselves with mud at the same time, and the lice are killed through having to touch the animals. Oil and water will not mix, hence the pure coal oil comes in contact with the hide of the hogs, which is supposed to cause blistering or removing of hair, but in no case, with many experiments, have any such results followed from the use of pure coal oil. It is likely that wallowing in the muddy water tempers the action of the oil.

Let Me Tell You Something

A woman who is sick and suffering, and won't at least try a medicine which has the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, is to blame for her own wretched condition.

There are literally hundreds of thousands of women in the United States who have been benefited by this famous old remedy, which was produced from roots and herbs over thirty years ago by a woman to relieve woman's suffering.

Read what these women say:

Camden, N. J. — "It is with pleasure that I send my testimonial for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, hoping it may induce other suffering women to avail themselves of the benefit of this valuable remedy."

"I suffered from pains in my back and side, sick headaches, no appetite, was tired and nervous all the time, and so weak I could hardly stand. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman—and this valuable medicine shall always have my praise." —Mrs. W. P. Valentine, 302 Lincoln Ave., Camden, N. J.

Erie, Pa. — "I suffered for five years from female troubles, and at last was almost helpless. I tried three doctors but they did me no good. My sister advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has made me well and strong. I hope all suffering women will just give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it is worth its weight in gold." —Mrs. J. P. Endlich, R. F. D. 7, Erie, Pa.

Since we guarantee that all testimonials which we publish are genuine, is it not fair to suppose that if Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had the virtue to help these women it will help any other woman who is suffering from the same trouble.

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

If the slightest trouble appears which you do not understand, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., for her advice—it is free and always helpful.

SAVING PAINT MONEY.

It Cannot Be Done by Using Cheap Material and Cheap Painters.

In arranging for painting, a good many property-owners try to save money by employing the painter who offers to do the job cheapest—and try to save money by insisting on a low-priced paint. But no property-owner would run such risks if he realized what must be taken into consideration in order to get a job that will wear and give thorough satisfaction.

No houseowner will go wrong on the painting question if he writes National Lead Company, 1902 Trinity Building, New York, for their Houseowner's Painting Outfit No. 49, which is sent free. It is a complete guide to painting. It includes a book of color schemes for either exterior or interior painting, a book of specifications, and an instrument for detecting adulteration in paint materials.

Nearly every dealer has National Lead Company's pure white lead (Dutch Boy Paint) (trademark), for yours has not, notify National Lead Co., and arrangements will be made for you to get it.

Stuffed Girls.

In a residence street on Washington Heights, New York, a stranger saw girls walking around on stilts.

"I don't understand this," said the stranger. "When I was a youngster it was the boys who walked on stilts, not the girls."

"All the boys had stiffs, then, and they used to see how high up on the sticks they could put the blocks and still walk on them, but I never knew a girl to have a pair of stilts."

"Oh, sometimes a girl would borrow a pair of stilts of a boy and try walking on them, but it was the boys who had stiffs, not the girls. And now here it is just the other way; it's the girls, not the boys. How do you account for that?"

But the person addressed, being not quite so old as the stranger, and not so well versed in ancient stilt history, could not say.

Ready-made Writing.

"Father," said the young man who had been feeding at the parental trough for a number of years, "I have made up my mind to saddle my own case hereafter."

"I'm certainly delighted to hear it, my son," replied the old man.

"And father," continued the young man, "I want to begin at once, so kindly let me have $50 to buy a horse and saddle."

BABY'S WATERY ECZEMA

Itched and Scratched Until Blood Ran—$50 Spent on Unlucky Remedies—Disease Seemingly Incurable—Cured by Cuticura for $1.50.

"When my little boy was two and a half months old he broke out on both cheeks with eczema. It was the itchy, watery kind and we had to keep his little hands wrapped up all the time, and if he would happen to get them uncovered he would claw his face till the blood streamed down on his clothing. We called in a physician at once, but he gave an ointment which was so severe that my babe would scream when it was put on. We changed doctors and medicines until we had spent fifty dollars or more and baby was getting worse. I was so worn out watching and caring for him night and day that I almost felt sure the disease was incurable. But finally, reading of the good results of the Cuticura Remedies, I determined to try them. I can truthfully say I was more than surprised for I bought only a dollar and a half's worth of the Cuticura Remedies (Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills), and they did more good than all my doctors' medicines I had tried, and in fact entirely cured him. His face is perfectly clear of the least spot or scurf of anything. Mrs. W. M. Comer, Burnt Cabins, Pa., Sept. 15, 1908."

What Joy They Bring To Every Home

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially, and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy, and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular, Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

WE'RE "making good" every day. Fulfilling every promise, living up to every pledge, offering the people nothing but goods with a reputation for quality, advertising them truthfully, selling them on an American plan and then guaranteeing them to be satisfactory in every little particular, is winning this store a score of customers every week.

We are bound to excel in clothes selling. There's only one way we can do it--give you clothes of a better quality at the usual price and then warrant them to satisfy you. This is what we ARE doing and this is why we ARE winning. You'll find it to your advantage to trade at a store of this kind. Investigate.

The Station of Rest

As we speed out of youth's sunny station,
The track seems to shine in the light,
But suddenly shifts over clouds
And sinks into tunnels of night,
And the hearts that were brave in the morning
Are filled with repining and fears,
As they pause at the City of Sorrow
Orphan through the Valley of Tears.

For the path of this perilous railway,
The hand of the Master is made,
With all its discomfords and dangers,
We need not be sad or afraid.
Down from the dark into darkness,
Roads plunging from gloom to leopards,
Wind out through the tunnels of midnight
To fields that are blooming and fair.

That the signs and their shadows surround us,
That we catch not one gleam of the day,
Above in fair cities are laughing,
And dipping little feet in sunny bay,
And always, eternal, forever,
Down from the dark into darkness,
The last, final end of our journey,
There lies the great Station of Rest.

Is the grand central point of all railways,
All roads cluster here where they end,
The final resort of all tourists,
All lines meet here and blend;
All tickets, or little books, or passes,
Whether on or beyond, for or behind,
On whatever road or division,
Will bring you at last to this spot.

If you pause at the City of Trouble,
Or wait in the Valley of Tears,
Be patient the train will move onward,
And sweep down the track of the years,
Wherever the place is your seat,
Whatever your aim or your quest,
You shall come at the last with rejoicing
To the beautiful Station of Rest.

By Their Fruits Ye Shall Know Them

In Tuesday's issue of the Fremont Tribune there appeared an article of over two columns in length signed by W. H. Clemmons, President of the Fremont college. It was largely an attack on Fred Volpp and C. A. Randall for their work and votes in securing the state normal school for Wayne. With that part of the article we have nothing to do, but incidentally Mr. Clemmons goes out of his way to show his littleness of mind and cast reflections in a couple of sentences at least, on J. M. Pile and his work as an educator. One of them is in these words: "Mr. Randall knows that the Wayne school will not injure the Fremont college. At the present date it has not for the best school reasons possible. It takes equipment and an excellent faculty to build a school, where merit is the base of operations."

Our personal acquaintance with Mr. Pile was but very limited and our knowledge of the school was confined to but a few short months, but from what we have been able to learn from our exchanges (and they come from all portions of the state) since coming to Wayne, and from those who knew him personally, we are led to believe as an educator and a man Mr. Pile was at least the peer of Prof. Clemmons, and that the faculty of his school and the finished products of it was not, and is not excelled by any state or private normal within the borders of Nebraska.

In the closing sentence of his article Mr. Clemmons uses the following words: "As a citizen of the great state of Nebraska, and as a man who has put in twenty-one years of careful work, preparing teachers for the public schools, without any expense to the taxpayers of the state of Nebraska, and with less cost to its patrons, it is quite natural to feel that justice and loyalty in this case was not what it should have been."

In this respect we challenge that he has done more for the state and its young people or as much, as did Prof. Pile, with the possible exception of a little longer time. The thousands of young people who have been touched and helped by the attendance at the Nebraska Normal College during the years of its guidance by Mr. Pile is a sufficient evidence of the fact that he was doing fully as much during those years for the commonwealth, and doing it as cheaply, as was the Fremont school under Mr. Clemmons, and it was no more an act of injustice or disloyalty on the part of Senators Volpp and Randall, or anyone else, to work for the location of the state normal school at Wayne, than it would have been for them to work for a like school at Fremont. We believe that the Nebraska Normal College can stand on its record in the past and be proud of it.

That New Church

The contributions for the new Baptist church continue to roll in in a liberal manner. Not only are the members responding generously and lavishly but the business men as a whole, without regard to creed, or no creed at all, are aiding in the good work. It is expected to begin the removal of the present building about the first of next month. The present edifice will be moved to the lots just north of where it now stands, and will be used as a house of worship until the new building is completed. The new church home will be ample, neat in appearance, and well finished throughout.

New Secretary

At a business meeting of the Wayne Chautauqua Association held last week, E. P. Wilson tendered his resignation as secretary, owing to the fact that he would remove from Wayne, and Rev. T. C. Osborne was elected in his place. The association has mapped out a feast of good things for our people to enjoy the coming summer and everyone should take an interest in the coming meeting and help advertise it as extensively as possible. Speak of it by word of mouth and in your letter writing, sound the praises of the good things to come. Let every one boost a little. By so doing more people will be reached and interested than can be done by the officials alone. Of course individuals have to be at the head of every enterprise in order to manage its affairs, but for aye that it is a Wayne institution and should be advertised as such. Program elsewhere.

Not All Gold That Glitters

V. A. Senter, who drew number 1509 in the Tripp county land opening was up there last week, returning Monday afternoon, and located on a quarter section twenty-seven miles southwest of Dallas. He got a good claim, at least it looked good to him from what could be seen of it on the surface. A man does not get the land for nothing by any means, as it cost him nearly $300 besides his railway fare and other expenses for four days. He says lots of men are coming away from there with tears in their eyes, and all that prevents them from crying outright is because they are men. The reason of this is because they drew such poor claims. Those who have drawn numbers have to depend on the government locators, men who are supposed to be familiar with the land, and a man cannot see the land before he makes a selection, as the land is so far from Dallas that if he goes out and acts as his own locator by the time he gets back to Dallas some one else has stepped in and got the piece of land he had decided he would take. Having made a selection a man must take it or leave it, as there is no chance to change. Mr. Senter says that those holding numbers above the one he had are falling out very rapidly, sometimes as many as half a dozen failing to respond in succession. He says that there is a great deal of very poor land in the reservation.

Hits the Nail on the Head

"No firm which uses a government printed envelope should criticize persons for dealing with mail order houses. The printing trade is the only business in America in which the government enters into competition, and no catalogue house ever enjoyed the advantages for an uneven battle that this gigantic competitor commands. The government sends out its advertising free (or, more strictly speaking, at the expense of the whole people); buys in vast quantities, prints by the wholesale and franks its finished product to the customer without the heavy charges which its competitor, the local printer, would be compelled to pay. If you believe in the mail order houses, Brother Business Man, patronize the government mail order department, but don't complain when your customers follow your example and buy from your rival, who is fighting you along the same line." Wisner Chronicle.

Lutheran Conference

A special quarterly conference of the German Evangelical Lutheran church, Missouri Synod, was held at Green Garden Lutheran church, of which Rev. Emil Just is pastor, last Wednesday and Thursday. This was a conference embracing one of the three divisions into which the northern district of Nebraska is divided. In this district is located twenty-five ministers and twenty of these were present, the others being unable for various reasons to attend. The welfare and best interests of the churches was the subject of the conference. Special services were held Wednesday evening. The list of ministers attending, and their locations, are given below:

From Wakefield Republican

The occupation tax case of the Village of Wakefield vs. William Reilly came off in the district court last week and was decided in favor of Mr. Reilly. The decision of the court was rendered from the fact that the ordinance was not properly signed therefore making it void. This being true it invalidates about all of our ordinances, especially those in book form, and the only way to make them valid will be to repress and republish them.

Dr. Engzelius has decided to move to New York City to practice medicine. He will first go to Stockholm, Sweden, and attend the International Tuberculosis Congress which meets in that city July 9 to 11. On this trip all of his expenses will be paid. He will leave Wakefield May 5 taking his two nieces with him and will sail from New York the latter part of July or the first of August to take up his old practice there. Mrs. Enzelius and Thelma will remain here during the summer. The doctor says he has had a very pleasant time during his stay in Wakefield--about three years--but he has decided to go to New York. His friends will be sorry to see him leave, but their best wishes for future success will go with him.

Patronize Your Home Merchant

It causes the heart of every merchant to warm responsively when he notes the above words in his local paper, and he feels like flinging the motto athwart the sky in words of colossal size, says the Implement Age.

He fully concurs with the sentiments when the paper explains that local merchants, who are patronized by the citizens, respond to this encouraging treatment, and under the cheering stimulus, they develop their stores, enlarge and modernize them, and carry more varied stocks and better grades of goods.

When the paper states that property values are raised, improvements inaugurated and local prosperity promoted by home trading, the merchant's applause amounts to an encore, and the statement could not be repeated too much to please him.

But some merchants, while heartily subscribing to the above policy, wobble most distressingly when it comes to personal application.

They purchase their family supplies and household goods of city wholesalers; they have their printing done in a large town; and they explain that they believe it is a waste of good money to advertise in the pages of the local paper.

The creating of a strong local patriotism is most desirable from the standpoint of the dealer; and he should spare no effort to foster such a praiseworthy frame of mind in as many citizens as possible. But he should begin this commendable work by setting a good example, and obtain as many imitators as possible.

He should by all means enlist the active co-operation of his local paper by advertising liberally and then he should encourage the editor to bear down hard, and at frequent intervals, on the subject of home dealing. He will find the editor mightily interested to help the merchants, if the merchants are interested to help the editor; and he will also find that he can talk with better grace, more forcefully and more successfully if he himself is taking the medicine which he is prescribing for his townspeople. --Omaha Trade Exhibitor.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NOTES.

O. A. King was at Norfolk over Wednesday night.

Four Shorthorn Bulls for sale. Enquire of A. B. Clark.

All kinds of Shoe Repairing at Broschert's Novelty Repair Shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Culler were passengers for Sioux City this morning.

Mrs. Chas. Beebe went to Sioux City this morning to visit a sister.

Mrs. McNeal went to Omaha this morning to visit her sister for several days.

John Sherbahn was at Sioux City Wednesday on business. He expects to begin the making of brick next week.

Brick for the new Henney block began to be placed on the ground in front of the premises Tuesday morning. Sherbahn is furnishing them.

The Bible Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. E. Hunter next Wednesday afternoon, April 28th, at 2:30. All are cordially invited.

This is certainly not very growing weather, as it freezes every night and is not at all warm during the day. There was a little flurry of snow Wednesday, and at Ainsworth, in Brown county, a fall of 3 1/2 inches.

The soldier boys had another one of their pleasant gatherings last Saturday evening at the home of N. Tharp on West Second Street. It was given largely in honor of Martin Stringer, a former resident of Wayne, and at one time Commander of Casey Post, he being here visiting his children. As usual there was a jolly crowd of "coffee coolers" and their better halves, and a pleasant time.

WANTED

12,000 bushels of corn in the next eight days, at Graves & Lamberson's elevator. Top market price will be paid.

W. V. Allen, of Madison, and W. L. Funk, of Bloomfield, were callers Monday forenoon. Both are attorneys and are opposing counsel in a case involving title to land, some of it in this state and some in Virginia, in which W. J. Gilmore and wife of this place are interested, Mr. Allen being Gilmore's attorney. They were here taking depositions in the case.

It is time for the annual spring cleaning, not alone house cleaning and cellar cleaning, but yard cleaning, alley cleaning, barn cleaning and so on. If you are negligent about looking after your property just take a walk around town some fine afternoon and notice the difference between the well kept yards and the neglected ones. No need to ask anything about the owners. Their yards and alleys give testimony to their credit or otherwise. To which class do you wish to belong? Remember a little care bestowed upon your premises adds greatly to its monetary value as well as to its looks. Get busy good people of Wayne and work up a good name for your town. Make it the cleanest town on the line in every particular.

Do you eat enough of this

The great benefit in health and strength that always is enjoyed by regular eaters of good oatmeal is known the world over. Every year there are more and more eaters of Quaker Oats, which is recognized in this country and in Europe as the one perfect oatmeal.

All the experiments of the government food experts and the athletic trainers of Yale University prove that cereal eaters are the strongest and healthiest, and Quaker Oats stands at the head of the list of cereal foods. It is not only the best food, but it's the cheapest food on earth. Eat it daily for breakfast.

For city trade Quaker Oats is packed in the regular size packages, but for those who are not conveniently near the store for daily shopping the large size family package is just the thing.

This is a legal holiday, but we will bet a nickel that at the first thought nine out of ten will not remember which one it is. The banks are closed all day in honor of Arbor Day.

J. B. Curren, of Omaha, State Secretary of the Presbyterian Sunday School Board, was the guest of Rev. Osborne over Saturday night and Sunday, and preached at that church Sunday morning.

Rev. C. H. Ringer, of St. Paul's English Lutheran church was at Hubbard, Nebraska, over Sunday, where he assisted in the dedication of a new church. Prof. E. P. Wilson had charge of the services here.

Mrs. W. F. Neiland, of Emerson, a former Wayne resident, has purchased the property just west of Graves & Lamberson's grain elevator, and will again move to Wayne about May 1st.

Phil Kohl and Christ Benchoof started for the Panhandle country, Texas, Tuesday morning. Phil said he was sure that he was going all the way and he was going to take Christ too if he did not get away from him some where on the journey.

Prof. E. P. Wilson has been hired as superintendent of the schools at Chadron, Nebraska, for next year. Chadron is in Dawes county in the northwest part of the state, and the salary is larger than here. The people there will find Mr. Wilson a No. 1 man in every respect.

G. L. Sprague, of Sheldon, Iowa, a brother of C. S. Sprague of Wayne, was here from Saturday to Monday visiting the family. He said he came over to see how C. S. was behaving himself. He has had to behave pretty well for several weeks past as his lame leg has not permitted him to get around very lively.

Attorney Wilbur went to Center Wednesday morning where Judge Welch is holding court, on legal business. Center is three miles from the railroad and more than that from anywhere else. It is the county seat of Knox county, has a court house and about twenty-five inhabitants. It seems strange that in these days of many railroads, increased population and other evidences of advancement, that any class of people would long put up with any such inconvenience, but jealousy, one town with the other, keeps any action toward better things in the background.

These men have already begun to build or will do so later on:

John Geewe, addition.

Chris Bastian, house.

Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report of April 19th says: S. E. Auker, a pioneer of Nebraska, as well as one of the prominent feeders of that state, came in from Wayne on Wednesday with five loads of short-fed cattle which he sold at $6.25 to $6.45. It was about two years ago that we topped the yearling market with his five loads of Herefords. Mr. Auker holds quite a unique record on the Sioux City hog market, having topped the trade here during the past four years every time with the exception of one load. Our house there sold them. Mr. Auker generally feeds from 200 to 300 cattle a year, and raises and feeds a like number of hogs.

Off to the Coast

Robert McClure, who had been visiting his parents in Wayne some little time, departed Tuesday morning to seek a new home on the Pacific coast, either at Spokane or Seattle. He is an electrician, and has charge of the city plant at Valentine, Nebraska, for some time, but tiring of that position, he and his wife came to Wayne to visit. She was ill here for a couple of weeks but had recovered sufficiently Monday to go to the home of her parents in Wisconsin, and while she is there Robert will get a position in the west and then she will go there too.

The May "Everybody's"

Justice to Wall Street is the keynote of the May Everybody's. Taking up a stand between the radicalism of "Frenzied Finance" days, and the conservatism of Wall Street's present defenders, Frederick Upham Adams and the publishers of Everybody's offer the calmest and most complete exposition of the case of the People vs. the Stock-Gambling Game that has yet been heard. Mr. Adams gives in cold, incontrovertible form "The Cost of the Wall Street Game"—the price that the amateur has to pay for keeping up the great gambling system of America. Thomas W. Lawson tells why it is that his followers sometimes lose—it is not a defense of himself, but a statement of fact. The publishers of the magazine round up the discussion conclusively and answer their critics in thorough and explicit terms.

Did You Know That

Labor, without luck, is sure to put a man ahead. Luck might do it.

By neglecting your business you are playing right into your competitor's hands.

Taking good care of odds and ends of a stock is a good way to increase your profits.

One of the greatest assets any business concern can have is a goodly portion of common horse sense at the head.

If you use some of your spare time to study the points about your business that have not been receiving much attention you may profit by it.

NORMAL NOTES

Miss Richardson, of Battle Creek, formerly a student of Kearney Normal, has enrolled for the remainder of the year.

Everybody on the Hill is busy, as a large garden will be planted this spring. The lawns are in fine shape as are also the streets.

The athletic field has been put in splendid condition. The track is a new feature and we expect to see some excellent work done along that line in the near future.

Miss Mary Fenske, Professional 1905, has recently been elected principal of the schools of Harrison, Nebraska. That Mary has made good goes without saying.

So far this year, no contagious disease has developed and we hope nothing of the kind will appear. We usually have a round of measles or mumps each year.

The Misses Beechel have both been elected to positions in the Laurel public schools for next year. Both are most estimable young women and very successful teachers.

The newspring term which opened this week has brought many new students. Several have enrolled from the nearby counties and some have come from Dodge county.

A number of Holt county young people have enrolled for the remainder of the year. From the correspondence received, the outlook is that the summer term will be a record-breaker.

Miss Susie McGee, who has been a most faithful student for several years, has been elected to a position in the Ainsworth public schools for next year. She is one of a family of four who have completed our higher course of study.

The Misses Surber and Miss Mahood have been elected to positions in the Oakdale public schools for next year. Each one of the young ladies has completed the Scientific course and holds a life certificate.

We have received calls from a number of high schools for teachers. According to the law, only those holding life certificates, or Professional first grade certificates can contract for a position in high school.

Miss Bessie Eaton, Scientific 1906, has been re-elected principal of the Stuart schools for the ensuing year. Miss Bessie was a faithful student at the N. N. C. for four years. She has been very successful in her work.

A New Law.

A new law has gone into effect relative to the fees charged for commencing suit in the district court. The law does not materially add to the total cost of a law suit but arranges the fees so that a litigant may know on the start what the court costs will be. Under the old law this was not known until the final disposition of the case, which ran along sometimes for months or for years.

Carroll-Index

We are glad to be able to report that the condition of Mrs. Joe Garwood is much improved.

Mrs. Gettman returned Wednesday to her home in Wayne after a visit at the home of her son John.

Mrs. Jones, of Wayne, was an over Sunday visitor with her folks, Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Davis.

Dave Jenkins last week bought of Mrs. T. E. Evans the quarter now occupied by Joe Garwood. The consideration was $80 per acre.

These are the days when truth and conscience receive an awful stretching and in many cases they are both violently ruptured. These are the days when some men who have a goodly account of money and credits suddenly make it known that they are about to become a public charge. These are the days when some of the men who should bear the bulk of the taxes do by perjury, dishonesty and perjury make the man who has but a little home for his family bear more than his share of the taxes. Some such men live in Carroll. These are the days when the assessor comes round.

Replenishing The Dairy Herd

The problem in every section where the whole milk is sold off the farm is replenishing the dairy herd. At present the greatest question is that of acquiring cows of sufficient ability to keep the dairy herd up to a profitable producing standard. The result is that good milk cows of superior merit are high in price and difficult to buy says a writer in the Ohio Farmer. There is only one way remaining. The dairymen must use good bulls, raise the heifer calves, develop the young heifers and give them the best of care and feed. To raise calves without milk is quite a difficult task. During the first three weeks of a calf's life it is nearly if not absolutely impossible. The newborn calf should be allowed to remain with the mother for the first two or three days. It is thus enabled to obtain the colostrum or first milk which is so essential in starting the work of the digestive apparatus. This is of advantage to the mother also, to relieve the inflammation which is invariably present in the udder to a greater or less degree at freshening time.

The increased use of milk separators in the dairy sections of the country has resulted in greater attention being paid to raising calves on skim milk. It is well settled at this time that practically as strong, large and vigorous calves can be grown on skim milk, supplemented by some suitable grain feed as on whole milk, provided that they are properly fed and cared for. There is no question but that whole milk is the normal food for calves and when the cream or butter fat is removed it becomes necessary to replace it in the calf ration with some equivalent but cheaper form of food.

The only way a man can become independent is to take good care of what he can save out of his earnings.

Be A Man!

A Texas tradesman has this pertinent sign in a conspicuous place in his store:

Man is made of Dust.
Dust Settles.
Be a Man.

—Everybody's Magazine.

Care of the Extremities

Medical men tell us that thousands of people die every year for no other reason than they neglected to take proper care of their arms, lower limbs and feet.

Improper clothing of the extremities generally means colds, sore throats, pleurisy, pneumonia, inflammation of the stomach and bowels, or any one of other serious ailments.

Children, too, are often shamefully neglected in the matter of sufficient clothing or covering for the legs and feet. Heavy stockings and good, thick shoes are cheaper than are doctors and undertakers.

How to Keep Sickly

Never open the windows in your sleeping chamber. See that they are carefully closed at night and the room made as hot and stuffy as possible.

Keep out of the sunshine and be careful not to take long deep breaths. Eat any kind of food, regardless of its nutritive value, and be as irregular as you can as to time of taking your meals. Also eat hurriedly. No use wasting time over a little matter of this kind.

Wear an overcoat one day and go without the next. Change underwear from heavy to light during the winter months, and don't bathe oftener than once a month.

By following these few simple directions you will befriend the doctor, and if persisted in long enough the undertaker will also have a chance to make a dollar.

"Pa" and "Ma" took the belligerency out of those O'Neil High School students who went on a strike last week. The senior class walked out of school when they were informed that they would have to re-take some examinations, but after a session with the old folks at home they are now answering roll call.

There is no more chance to enlist in the United States army at present. The full standard, 77,000, has been reached. The oldest inhabitant says this has been a peculiar spring. As they ought to know the weather conditions of the past we let it go at that, simply saying it has looked that way to a tenderfoot.

A Large, New Factory ...Is What We Must Have...

X-Ray Incubator Co Wayne, Nebraska, U. S. A.

After working under the many disadvantages of being crowded for room and having to rent various places in which to store machines before getting them ready to ship, we have decided to BUILD this year a factory that will have a capacity and storage rooms large enough for our requirements. We will have to move all our material, and in fact everything we have after this season's business is over, and we would rather give the cost of moving the material and machines we have on hand to our customers than any one else, for we know it will be much more appreciated, and if there is anything the X-Ray Incubator Co. really wants it is a PLEASANT, SATISFIED CUSTOMER. We have many of them in all parts of the United States and they are our STRONGEST TESTIMONIALS and our best advertisement. An endorsement from a customer who has operated the X-Ray Machines for one or more seasons is certainly very conclusive proof that our machines DO WHAT WE CLAIM for them. We have thousands of them from all parts of the country, but of course lack of space prohibits us printing all of them in our catalog.

Our Factory Building Year Special

No. 2 or 3 Size Incubator	$15.00
No. 1 Brooder	$10.50
Incubator and Brooder Shipped at One Time	$25.00

(Former prices were: No. 2 Incubator, $18; No. 2, $20; No. 1 Brooder, $13)

This Won't Last Always. Get Busy With Your Order Now

TWO LETTERS WE RECENTLY RECEIVED

X-Ray Incubator Company, Wayne, Neb.—
Dear Sirs: Your Incubator purchased by me last year gave such SATISFACTION that I want prices on one No. 1 Brooder for myself and a No. 3 Incubator and No. 1 Brooder for my neighbor. If you can make a better price than the list I can land this order. Give prices by return mail, also weights of each machine so I may know how to have them shipped. I think you have the best Incubator and Brooder on the market.
Respectfully (Signed) CHAS. A. SINGREY.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 11, 1909.

X-Ray Incubator Co., Wayne, Neb.—
Dear Sirs: Yours of the 15th inst. at hand quoting your price on Incubators and Brooders and have also received catalog. You will find enclosed money order for $ for No. 3 Large Incubator and two No. 1 Brooders. Please ship same at once for 1 am in need of the Brooder.
Respectfully (Signed) CHAS. A. SINGREY.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., Feb. 19, 1909.

We have received many reports from customers who bought machines this season and from the tone of them they were surely written by PLEASANT, SATISFIED CUSTOMERS. Opportunity is to your good only when you take advantage of it. Here is a chance to save a neat sum and at the same time get the Machines that have proven the most successful by actual test and in fact are the only NEW INVENTION in the incubator or brooder line that has been placed on the market and PROVEN A SUCCESS in the past fifteen years.

Now don't wait and then write us in sixty days from now that you want machines at this special price for we will not be able to supply you.

This is our Factory Building year and we want you to share in our profits. We believe our customers deserve it. We are prepared to ship orders the very day we receive them and have been and are now preparing for a BIG RUSH and your order will receive our prompt and careful attention.

We will prepay the amount on the Express Charges that the Freight would cost us, if you wish machines shipped by Express. Incubators' average weight is 60 lbs., so the difference in cost of transportation would not amount to much. Brooders weigh 110 lbs.

See our agent if we have one in your locality. He will take your order at above special prices. If he will not or we do not have an agent handy to you send us the order direct. Let us hear from you by return mail. Dict. E. J. R. Steno. 9

Scotts Bluff Country

UP THE

FAMOUS NORTH PLATTE VALLEY

OF NEBRASKA

Best Irrigated Lands in the West

Thirty thousand acres fertile land in a splendid climate, watered by one of the best irrigation systems in the country. No Nebraska land of equal area will support more families.

Men from the Greely district of the South Platte country say the advantages of the North Platte are superior—and the prices are from one-fourth to one-third. Read again! Think!

Tuesday April 27, we begin the sale of the famous Tri-State land at Scotts Bluffs, Nebraska, said to be the finest single body of irrigated land in the United States, embracing 30,000 acres, of which 10,000 will be sold immediately.

This land is owned by the Tri-State Land company, of which E. A. Cudaby is president, and is under the Great Tri-State Canal, one of the largest systems of irrigation in the west, constructed at a cost of $2,000,000. Six four-horse teams, 24 horses, can stand abreast across the bottom of the canal, which for the first few miles is ninety feet wide on the bottom. It is half as large again as the immense government Pathfinder canal. Its headgates, dams, intakes, wasteways and drops are wholly constructed of steel and reinforced concrete. Its every part represents the highest achievement of modern engineering, skill and workmanship.

The Tri-State Land Co. has practically the first water right out of the North Platte river, and for an immense amount of water. When it is also remembered that the South Platte waters all the irrigated land at Fort Collins, Greeley, Fort Morgan, Brush, Sterling and Julesburg, and supplies only one-fourth as much water as the North Platte, the sufficiency of water under the Tri-

State canal can never be questioned. It is this fact that is bringing so many of the Greely, Fort Collins and Fort Morgan farmers to the Scotts Bluff country, who all declare its land and water equal to or superior to anything in Colorado, while the prices are only a fraction of the Colorado prices. This magnificent body of land at Scotts Bluff represents the best there is in irrigated land. The two big canals, the government and the Tri-state represent a combined cost of nearly $4,000,000, which is an evidence of the value of the lands.

Speaking of Irrigated Land, just remember: First—Irrigated land produces the maximum EVERY year. Your eastern Nebraska and western Iowa land NEVER produces the maximum because even if you get just enough rain at the right time for one crop it would destroy part of another.

Second—On your eastern land you raise 40 bushels of corn on an average at 40 cents per bushel, at a cost of $8.00, leaving you $3.00 clear profit. We will take you to many men at Scotts Bluffs who raised 250 to 400 bushels of potatoes per acre and sold them at 40 cents, this year considerably higher than that; 15 to 25 tons of beets at $4.50 to $5.00; 4 to 5 tons of alfalfa at $8.00 per ton; 100 bushels of oats at 40 cents per bushel.

Third—It is a singular thing that while the majority of farmers who buy irrigated land know nothing of irrigation, you can never interest an irrigation farmer in any other kind of land. He doesn't have to understand all about irrigation to succeed. The ditch rider knows and the farmer soon knows.

Fourth—While your Eastern Nebraska land will go on up to $150 per acre, it may then stop, or it may go back to $50 or $75, like the same land did in Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York. But your irrigated land, increasing its fertility and producing power each succeeding year, will do like the other irrigated land in this country and Europe—go on up to $200, $300, $400 and $500 per acre, and will not only "keep you," but will make you rich.

This land lies so perfectly that a flat price of $70.00 per acre has been fixed on all uncultivated land and $80.00 upon cultivated land; hence the first excursionists have the choice of the entire tract. Our first excursion on Tuesday, April 27, will be made especially attractive, and each agent is limited to two buyers. A regular excursion will be run every two weeks.

One price to all—$70.00 per acre for uncultivated, $80.00 for cultivated. First come, first served; no favorites.

Irrigated Lands advance steadily to $300 and $500 per acre; they never go back. Think once more! Act!

TERMS: One-fifth cash, balance in nine annual payments commencing at the end of the second year, 6 per cent. interest. The profits annually from the crops on this land will more than pay the deferred payments and interest.

Most people think it is necessary to take medicine to get rid of a cold; that something terrible will happen if they "let it run." It is a very silly conclusion. Few of the alleged remedies for colds are of any value whatever, and it may be set down as a safe and sane proposition that the less internal medicine the better. Listen to the voice of reason. An ordinary cold needs no special medication. Equalize the circulation by a hot bath before going to bed, drink plenty of water to aid elimination, eat sparingly, open the window to admit plenty of fresh air, trust in the Lord, and you will be made whole in due season. This notion of needing whisky and quinine and local poultices and poisonous expectorants is the ragged outgrowth of the iniquitous teachings of our ignorant and vicious forefathers, most of whom died from taking their own medicine.

The Weather House.
A very ingenious contrivance for foretelling the weather is the old-fashioned "weather house," largely made in Switzerland. It is arranged in such a way that two figures act in response to the twisting of a piece of catgut. The material, supported by a wire, controls the movements of a little platform on either end of which is placed a model. Excessive moisture in the air causes the catgut to twist and turn the platform round, so that the man emerges from one of the doors in the front of the house. Reverse conditions of the atmosphere bring about the contraction of the catgut, and the platform swings back, thus bringing the figure of the woman into prominence at her particular door. The making of a weather house is quite an easy matter.

"Spoken English Very Good."
From an advertisement of a Danish hotel: "The hotels charmingly situated, surrounded of a nice garden the good cuisine, the kindly accommodation with moderate charge and good conveniences, with easy access to salmon and trout fishing, the descending of the surrounding mountains has done this place well-known and praised of all travellers. N. B.—The landlord speaks English very good."—Lahore Civil and Military Gazette.

His Phenomenal Luck.
"How say he is lucky?"
"Oh, he is!"
"In what does his luck consist?"
"Marriage; you see, in his hobby."
"Why?"
"Every woman he marries gets a divorce."—Chicago Record-Herald.

SCALPING.
Indian Tradition That Tells the Origin of the Custom.
According to the Indian tradition, scalping arose in this way:
Hundreds, perhaps thousands of years ago, when all the Indians in the world were of one tribe and under one chief, there arose a dispute in the tribe as to who should succeed the old chief, who had just died without issue. There were two principal aspirants to the honor, each having a considerable following. The dispute finally ended with strife and war, and for the first time in the history was "brothers' blood shed by brothers."
The chief of one of the factions had a beautiful daughter, and one of the bravest warriors was a suitor for her hand. Her father consented to the match on one condition—that the young brave should journey to the camp of the enemy, many miles away through the deep snow, kill the chief, his rival, and return with some unmistakable token of his death. In spite of the snow and the distance, the young man immediately set out on his journey and, after lying in ambush for several days, finally entered the camp, boldly attacked the chief in his tent, slew him and cut off his head.
Next morning the murder was discovered, and the tribe set off in hot pursuit. Little by little they gained upon the fleeing warrior, who in his anxiety to elude his pursuers cast away all his impediments, to his very clothing, retaining only his stone knife and the trophy which was to win him his bride.
His pursuers galloped rapidly until finally so near did they come he could hear them on his trail. His grewsome burden grew heavier and heavier, and as a last resort he whipped out his knife, stripped the scalp from the head of the dead man and, thus lightened of his load, reached his own camp in safety, presented to his chief the token of his prowess and was wed, amid great rejoicing, to the damsel of his choice.
From that time forth he was permitted to wear an eagle's feather in his cap, and to this day the eagle's feather remains the sign of the successful warrior, the number he displays depending upon the number of scalps he has taken.—Chicago Record-Herald.

AN INGENUOUS SWINDLER.
The Daring Scheme That Was Worked by a German Doctor.
Near a small village in one of the late states lived a western millionaire in seclusion with his little daughter and a few servants. The child was afflicted with a rare cerebral spinal complaint, a most unpleasant manifestation of which was a frequent hicough, and eminent physicians, both in America and Europe, had pronounced the case organic and incurable.
Later there came to live in the village a widow with a little girl affected similar to the millionaire's daughter. This child was a delicate, downy faced creature, wistful from the isolation that must have been her sad lot, and the peculiar bark-like hicough which she made at once attracted the millionaire's attention, and, being a big hearted if rather ignorant man, he gave the mother employment about his home and showered the afflicted child with presents.
Perhaps four months after the widow's advent an eccentric German doctor settled in the village, and his services being sought by the widow, he gave her child treatment, with the result that it was completely cured.
The millionaire immediately sought to place his own daughter under the German's care, but the latter fairly refused to take the case. He was a Socialist of a violent type and would have nothing to do with a man whose wealth exceeded the sum that he had fixed upon as the lawful limit of material possession.
Finally, however, after the father had patiently borne the grossest insults the German agreed to give the afflicted child treatment on condition that the other would first deed over a large tract of land in Texas for a Socialist colony and pay him for his fee a sum little short of $50,000. This the millionaire did, and as soon as the doctor had cashed the check he disappeared with the widow and her child, and the wealthy man realized that, blinded by paternal love, he had been made the victim of an ingenious swindle.
The flower faced girl of the widow had been taught to simulate a disease, and the German, who no doubt her father had, had seven other husbands living in Buenos Aires, but he injured man, not wishing his daughter's affliction published broadcast, dropped the prosecution.—Don Mark Lemon in Bohemian Magazine.

A FAMOUS CEMETERY

Pere Lachaise Is One of the Landmarks of Paris.

IT HAS A STORMY HISTORY.

This Picturesque Burial Place Has Served as a Battleground as well as a Graveyard—Its Monuments, Lava and Disconsolate Widows.

Pere Lachaise is the largest and quite the most interesting of the Paris cemeteries and named after the Jesuit confessor of Louis XIV., whose country seat occupied the site of the present chapel until the ground was made a cemetery in 1804. It covers 110 acres of ground, is picturesque, but quite unlovely. Here wrote about the tombs that "weight was their chief peculiarity and that all the monuments looked as if each family had tried to pile as much marble as possible on to their deceased relatives."

Pere Lachaise has a stormy history. In 1814 the Russians fought the French there and gave them a beating. During the commune the Versailles and Communards fought several pitched battles among the tombstones and did considerable damage. But it is not so much with the history of the cemetery as with the people buried in it that we have to deal. A volume might be filled with the more list of all the celebrated men and women buried in it, for as Victor Hugo wrote, "being buried in Pere Lachaise is like having nobility; furniture—a sign of elegance."

In Pere Lachaise the monument which attracts most visitors is that of Abelard and Heloise, the two most famous lovers in the world. The monument was first erected 637 years after their death and brought to Pere Lachaise in 1817 from the museum where it had been during the revolution. Another famous lover, Alfred de Musset, lies buried not far from the two willows over the graves of Heloise and Abelard. David, the painter; Rachel, the actress; Balzac, Scribe, Michelet and many other well known folk lie near at hand. Admiral Sir Sydney Smith, Lord Seymour and other well known Englishmen are to be found in other portions of the cemetery, while literature is represented not only by great authors, but by Lesurques, the victim of Dubouché in the famous legal Lyons Mall imbroglio.

But Pere Lachaise has more romance than in its tombstones. Chattering one day with one of the old soldiers who are the keepers of this grim park, I learned some curious facts about it. "We never have a dull moment," the man said. "You may think that our time here is monotonous, but you are quite wrong if you do so. To begin with, there are the burglars. The cemetery is overrun with them. There are three kinds of burglars. There are the connoisseurs who often get away with valuable prizes, for you will be surprised at the works of art of small size which people put in their chapels. The window is broken, a stick slipped through the hole, and all sorts of things worth having are fished out; then the bronze stealers, who take away as much as they can carry in their special pockets and make from 15 to 20 francs a day at the game until we catch them."

"A little while ago a bust, weighing forty pounds was taken out of the cemetery over one of the walls. But the most curious form of robbery is, perhaps, that of the pearl wreaths. Women are the principal offenders. They select the new ones, which are not weather stained, flatten them with their backs against the tombstone, slip them under their dresses, and when they have got away with them (we have no right to search even suspicious looking customers) sell them to dealers, to whom they tell the well worn story of a poor workwoman who has need of food."

"You would hardly believe it, but Pere Lachaise," said the keeper, "is a favorite meeting place for lovers. We get lovers of all ages, and perhaps more schoolboys and schoolgirls than anything else. But the three most curious things we see here in the cemetery are the forlorn widows, the letter boxes and the cafe." "The cafe?" I asked. "Yes. There are hundreds of people in Paris who refuse to believe that their dead do not enjoy after death the good things they used to like when they were alive. Mothers bring apples and sweets and leave them on the tombstones of their children. People bring wine and glasses, and there is one old gentleman who leaves a potato salad on his son's tombstone regularly every Sunday. Of course the children soon find out these things, and we have never been able to convince the people who bring them of the absurdity of doing so. It is a very harmless superstition, after all."

"And the letter boxes?" I asked. "Lovers' letter boxes," said the guardian. "There are dozens of them in all parts of Pere Lachaise. Sometimes they are holes in the trunks of trees; sometimes they are little hollows under stones.

"The inconsolable widow is a frequent visitor. She is a pretty woman, and black suits her. She kneels down by a tombstone, rarely the same one, and when a likely looking mourner of the other sex appears bursts into tears. He consoles her, pretty soon, and the two leave the cemetery arm in arm. One of these widows invited me to her wedding six months ago, and last month I was called to give evidence about her meetings with her victim, for she had seven other husbands living."—St. James' Gazette.

FIRES AND INSURANCE

What Being Burned Out May Mean to a Business.

DAMAGE ONE CANNOT COVER.

Enormous Losses Caused by the Suspension of Operations and the Drifting Away of Trade That Are Not Appreciated by the General Public.

"I suppose you heard that Blank & Co. were burned out from the roof to the basement last night?" remarks the man in the car.

"No," exclaims the friend who hasn't seen the morning paper. "I suppose they carried insurance?"

"Oh, yes—a hundred thousand of it!" returns the first speaker, at which his friend settles back with the comment that everything is all right then.

This is the layman's conclusion almost invariably. Some big concerns burn out, but with insurance to an amount seeming to cover the loss the average man is disposed to feel that it is all right. He doesn't stop to think of the enormous risks of a business which cannot be covered by insurance and which for weeks, months or years after a fire are crippling and perhaps ruinous to the fire victim.

Take, for example, a highly organized factory plant in prosperous times which has been turning out a vast specialized product from the hands of thousands of expert workmen. This plant, fitted with costly machinery, is covered by insurance upon its visible material assets. Fire sweeps it and lays everything in hopeless ruin. If every piece of machinery, every building and all material adjuncts of the plant have been covered to full value in such a plant, will the reader dare make a rough guess as to what the limitations of loss may be?

Only the other day I stepped into a bookbindery, unostentatious in its street signs and occupying a fifth floor in an obscure street. In the elevator shaft was that peculiar odor which marks the track of fire and firemen days and weeks after such an accident.

"Most of the fire was next door," explained the proprietor, "but I guess the smoke and the water were about as bad for us. Sometimes it is almost better to have the fire yourself than be next door to it."

Which seemed to be especially true of book material. Where smoke and soot had failed to blot and ruin the stock, water from the engines in the street had flooded it until ruin alone was descriptive. Everything had been closed down, workers in the plant were idle, and the proprietor was awaiting the adjustment of the insurance which he had been carrying. But in the extent of this insurance itself was a knotty situation.

Ordinarily the house had carried policies which would have left it the minimum of risk on its machinery, stock and materials. Ordinarily a still further blanket policy was carried for the purpose of covering the normal amount of book material on hand owned by others and contracted for rebinding. But only a few days before the fire the house had received a consignment of $5,000 worth of law books to be bound. These volumes, aside from intrinsic value, represented so much of other value as to make the risk abnormal for almost any season. And these books were ruined.

Prof. Huckleberry spent Sunday at the county seat.

Vernon Ziemer came up from Wayne Friday night and went on to Pigeon Saturday morning to see his brother.

Dr. Williams came up from Wayne Friday night to investigate the alleged case of small pox at doctor Schmel's. He gave the case a very thorough and careful investigation and decided that it was only chicken pox. Hence our small pox scare is without a foundation.

County Attorney Davis came up from Wayne Wednesday evening to investigate the trouble between August Deck and Fred Ziemer. Upon returning home the next morning he filed a complaint against Fred, and Grant Mears came up on the forenoon train and took him to Wayne. To the charge Fred plead guilty and after listening to the arguments of the attorneys Judge Hunter fined him $10 and costs.

Our Best Varieties of the Cherry
The Nebraska list of varieties that are recommended for planting are few in number, as compared with other orchard fruits. The list of varieties is usually limited to three, viz., Early Richmond, Montmorency and English Morello.

These three constitute a succession in their time of ripening, being about ten days apart. Among the early varieties that can be recommended and for trial in the more favored fruit sections are the Baldwin, Dyehouse and Terry, while the Ostheim and Wragg may safely be added to the list of late varieties.

The later variety (Wragg) is so similar in tree and fruit to the English Morello as to admit of substitution one for the other. It originated near Des Moines as a sprout from the English Morello.

By reference to the state horticultural report it will be found that the cherry is rated as a profitable fruit in each of the nineteen fruit districts of the state, and the three varieties I have named are in the list for nearly every district.

Additional music will be furnished by Wayne Commercial Club band. Sunday music by local musicians.

The Wayne Butter Factory has completed its new addition to its factory to be used for refrigerator purposes, and have got it as nearly air tight as it is possible to make a room of that kind. It is made of concrete blocks, has a concrete and wood floor, 3000 feet of fine flooring have been used on the sides, ceiling and floor to make it air tight. The new machinery will be here this week.
The Woodmen of the World, for the second time, will introduce a class of 1,000 new members into the order. This time at Lincoln, Nebraska, on Saturday night, May 15. The first 1,000 class of this kind pulled off in Nebraska was held at Omaha May 31, 1908, and reached the high mark of 1,305 new members and there is every reason to believe that this second undertaking will exceed the first one in the number of new applications secured.
Farmers have completed the work of sowing their oat crop and are now busy getting their corn ground in shape for planting. So far as we can learn but very little winter wheat was sown in this part of the state last fall, but there has been more than the usual amount of spring wheat sown, much more than for several years past. It looked like some April showers Saturday afternoon but we did not get any in town but north of us, even within sight, there was quite a heavy rain with a good sprinkling of hail with it. A good warm rain would not be a bad thing. We have not had rain for some months.
Semi-annual Meeting
Monday evening was the time for the regular semi-annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association in Wayne. Owing to several other church meetings on that evening the attendance was not large but it was time for the election of officers and the following were nominated and elected: President, Chas. Beebe; Vice-president, A. R. Davis; Secretary, Herbert Welch; Treasurer, S. R. Theobald.

The Touch of Genius
"Most anybody can do business fairly well. Many men can do business very well. A few can do business superbly well. But the man who not only does his work superbly well, but adds to it a touch of personality through great zeal, patience and persistence, making it peculiar, unique, individual, distinct and unforgettable, is an artist. And this applies to all and every field of human endeavor—managing a hotel, a bank, a factory, writing, speaking, modeling, painting. It is that last indefinable touch that counts; the last three seconds he knocks off the record that PROVES THE MAN A GENIUS." —Albert Hubbard.

HIDDEN DANGERS
Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Wayne Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.
Danger Signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or a thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.
Danger Signal No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy, or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Here's Wayne proof.
Mrs. J. C. Hanson, of Wayne, Nebr., says: "The principal symptom of kidney complaint in my case was a frequent passage of the kidney secretions. I was also subject to headaches and I felt generally miserable. Nothing gave me relief until I commenced taking Doan's Kidney Pills. This preparation cured me entirely and I have had practically no trouble since."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

"Joe" Leahy Killed at Burke
Joseph Leahy, landlord of the hotel at Burke, South Dakota, was killed Sunday afternoon in moving a piano. The piano fell upon him and crushed him so badly that he died soon after.
Mr. Leahy, known among his friends as "Joe," had lived at Burke for about three years, having gone there from Wisner, Nebraska.
He was forty-one years of age and is survived by a wife and three children.
He has two brothers in Wayne, E. A. and J. T. The former went to Burke Monday morning, as did also another brother, Dr. R. J. Leahy, of Wisner, and the remains were brought here for burial Monday afternoon, being accompanied by the two brothers and the wife and children of the deceased man. On arrival here the remains were taken to the home of his brother, J. T. Leahy, and arrangements made for the funeral services, which were held at the Catholic church at 10:30 on Wednesday forenoon, being conducted by Father Kearns, the local priest. Sympathy will go out to the bereaved ones in this their hour of great affliction.

TARIFF IN PHILIPPINE PLEA

President, in Message, Asks Congress to Revise Philippine Revenue System.

PAYNE BILL FORCES CHANGE

Recommendations of Secretary Dickinson and Gen. Edwards Are Transmitted with Act.

The President sent to Congress a special message in relation to the Philippine tariff. The message transmits recommendations by the Secretary of War for a revision of the Philippine tariff so as to permit as much customs revenue as possible for the islands and at the same time to extend to the islands the principle of a protective tariff for its industries.

Under the conditions which will arise from the enactment of the tariff bill pending in Congress, which provides under certain conditions for free trade between the Philippines and the United States, the revenues of the islands will be considerably affected, and numerous protests have been received here on this account. The proposed amendments to the bill are to interfere as little as possible with these free-trade conditions and at the same time permit collection of ample revenue. The message and accompanying letters of recommendation from Secretary Dickinson and General Clarence B. Edwards, chief of the fiscal bureau of the War Department, with a copy of the proposed act, were submitted to both houses of Congress shortly after they convened.

General speaking, the bill submitted by the President makes a slight increase in the rates of duty now provided in the Philippine tariff, but its framers say its tendency is to insure, as far as practicable, the benefit of the Philippine market for American manufactures and products. The bill makes some additions to the free list. There will be an increase in internal-revenue duties, by which it is hoped to make up the loss which the Philippine islands will sustain by the operations of the free-trade provisions in the pending Payne tariff bill. The internal revenue laws for the Philippines are enacted by the Philippine assembly.

President Tatt's Message.
"To the Senate and House of Representatives: I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of War, enclosing one from the chief of the bureau of insular affairs, in which is transmitted a proposed tariff-revision law for the Philippine Islands.

"This message revises the present Philippine tariff, simplifies it and makes it conform as nearly as possible to the regulations of the customs laws of the United States, especially with respect to packing and packages. The present Philippine regulations have been cumbersome and difficult for American merchants and exporters to comply with. Its purpose is to meet the new conditions that will arise under the section of the pending United States tariff bill, which provides for certain limitations for free trade between the United States and the islands. It is drawn with a view to preserving to the islands as much customs revenue as possible and to protect in a reasonable measure those industries which now exist in the islands.

"The bill now transmitted has been drawn by a board of tariff experts, of which the chief collector of customs, Col. George R. Clinton, was president. The board held a great many meetings in Manila and conferred fully with representatives of all business interests in the Philippine Islands. It is of great importance to the welfare of the islands that the bill should be passed at the same time with the pending Payne bill, with which it is in accordance to the provisions of which it is a part.

"I respectfully recommend that this bill be enacted at the present session of Congress as one incidental to and required by the passage of the Payne bill."

ACCEPTS THE INCOMPLETE DOG.
Young Woman Returns and Pays Expenses on Animal Maimed on Way.
About 100 persons went to the office of an express company in Worcester, Ohio, the other day, ready to purchase a three-legged dog advertised to be sold at public auction by the company to secure 25 cents' damages. The buyers were disappointed, as the dog was not there. It was announced that the animal would not be sold. The company had settled with the shipper and the young woman consigned had paid the charges. The dog when shipped was found to be maimed, and when returned had lost one of its hind legs. When the young woman to whom it was shipped learned that it was maimed, she refused to accept it, and the company, to secure its charges, advertised the dog for sale at public auction.

ERROR MAY COST $50,000.
Adopted Daughter of Man Who Died Intestate Likely to Lose.
Because of an error in her adoption papers, Gladys Wallace, 11-year-old foster daughter of William Wallace, a Waterville, Conn., merchant who committed suicide recently, may lose all rights in his $50,000 estate. If the error can be rectified, Wallace's property will go to the child. He was a widower and died intestate. Gladys, the daughter of Frank E. Strong, was adopted in 1893 in the Probate Court. Judge Love neglected to have the papers signed by the girl's mother, although the Connecticut law requires the signature of both parents. Now two sisters and other blood relatives of Wallace claim the child has no standing as an adopted child.

BASEBALL SEASON OPENS

Great Crowds in Several Cities Attend the First Games.
Immense crowds thronged the big league ball parks for the opening games of the baseball season Wednesday. The Cubs played to 16,000 people in Chicago and over 11,000 fans watched the Sox at Detroit. The Cubs won, 3 to 1, and the Sox lost, 0 to 2. Pittsburgh won from the Cincinnati Reds and the Boston Doves trimmed Philadelphia. The only other American League game was at St. Louis, where Cleveland won, 4 to 2. Baseball got a bumper start on what seems to be its most prosperous year.

The largest crowd that ever witnessed the inauguration of a baseball season in Cincinnati was out to see the Cincinnati and Pittsburgh teams play. The Pittsburghs secured a lead in the first inning and gradually increased it through timely hitting and broume's willingness. Cincinnati had men on bases in nearly every inning, but was unable to get one of them home. The Pirates scored three runs. Before one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Washington Park, Indianapolis champions of the American Association, defeated Toledo in the opening game. Opening the season at St. Louis with Cleveland, before one of the largest crowds that has ever witnessed a spring game, the St. Louis baseball team went down to defeat by a score of 4 to 2.

BREAD COST RISES.

New York Feels Painful Hates If Wheat Crop Is Not Broken.
With flour up 40 cents a barrel and the prospects apparently good for a further rise, New York City is now facing the possibility of bread at 7 cents a loaf. What will appear to hundreds of thousands in the poorer quarters like famine rates for this staple will fair to be forced as a result of the recent rise in the price of wheat. The ghetto of New York has already felt the effect of the buoyancy of the Chicago wheat pit. Six cent a bushel is the price now charged by some bakers, while the proprietors of hundreds of others declare that they cannot continue selling at 5 cents much longer, with flour of the better grades costing from $7 to $7.20 a barrel, against $6.00 a few days ago. They add, moreover, that with flour permanently up to the rates recently quoted every 6 cents would not give them any sort of a profit.

BLACK HAND SLAYS MERCHANT.

Italian of Tampa Shot Down by Two Hidden Assassins.
The assassination of Giuseppe Fiori, a wholesale grocery merchant, and one of the most prominent and wealthy members of the Italian colony in Tampa, Fla., added the third to a series of murders which have been charged to the Black Hand there during the present year. Fiori was going to his home from his place of business at a late hour and was shot by two men from ambush with shotguns loaded with heavy slugs. He was instantly killed and the assassins, dropping their weapons, fled. Fiori's two young children, a boy and a girl, were with him at the time but neither was hit. Fiori's relatives say they know no cause for the murder. He was a member of the city council of West Tampa and prominently connected with the leading social and fraternal organizations of his people.

$2,000,000 AS BIRTHDAY FAVORS.

Five Heirs Get Fortune When the Youngest Becomes of Age.
A birthday party, having as its favors shares in a $2,000,000 bequest, was held the other evening at 137 South Orange Grove, Pasadena, Cal., the home of Miss Ellen Elliot, at the age of her 18th birthday anniversary. When Mrs. Edward Elliot died several years ago it was generally understood that she left a large fortune in trust to be distributed among her five children when the youngest became of age. The five children equally sharing the $2,000,000 estate are Miss Ellen Elliot, Mrs. Clover Noyes, Mrs. Nina Watkins, John Vischer Elliot and a second son now residing in the East.

DENOUNCES WHEAT DEAL.

Secretary Wilson Predicts Patten's Corner Will "Go to Smash."
James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture, said in answer to James A. Patten's charges that the figures of the Department of Agriculture concerning the wheat supply were inaccurate and untrustworthy: "Our figures are correct. That fallow in Chicago is engaged in a scheme to rob the consumer and to make money."
If Mr. Patten is correct there is a serious shortage in wheat in America. If Secretary Wilson is correct there is no shortage at all, but only an artificial famine engendered by Mr. Patten for speculative purposes. Also, if Secretary Wilson is correct, Mr. Patten's deal will go to smash soon.

SEC. WILSON.

The Secretary of Agriculture insists that the government's report to the effect that there were 14,000,000 bushels of reserve wheat in the farmers' hands on March 1 was strictly correct and that he knows where the wheat is. "We do not get our information from postmasters!" exclaimed Secretary Wilson angrily when the Patten statement was shown him. "We get it from farmers who are reliable, conscientious men. We have been perfecting our system for gathering information for the last twelve years, and it is as correct and thorough as it is possible to get. To corner the wheat market successfully nowadays you have to keep buying and buying and buying. Finally the time comes when you can't buy any more, and then the smash comes."

400 SLAIN AT ADANA.

Slaughter of Christians, Continued, Two Americans Reported Killed.
Moslem fanaticism has broken out afresh at Adana, thirty-six miles from Mersina, Asiatic Turkey, where large numbers of Christians are said to have been killed. It is reported that two American missionaries have been murdered, but no names are given and the report has not yet been verified. One report says 400 Armenians have lost their lives and that many houses have been looted and burned. The British consul is said to have been wounded. The troops are powerless to control the situation and some of the soldiers are joining in the pillage of the city. The city has been a scene for four days and horrible massacres have been carried out in the streets. The foreign consuls have requested that war ships be sent to Mersina. Disorders have commenced at Tarsus, the little town between Adana and Mersina noted as the birthplace of the Apostle Paul, and many houses there were reported to have been burned. The number of victims at Tarsus is unknown.

JAIL TO BE MOVED NIGHTLY.

Portable Cells Ordered for Convicts Working on Roads.
Pettis County, Missouri, put a crowd of convicts to work on the public highways. The prisoners are serving from fifteen to sixty days for minor offenses. The County Court has placed an order for a number of portable steel cells, in which the prisoners will be confined at night at the scene of work. At present the convicts are guarded during the day and returned to the jail at night. The arrest and conviction of tramps cost the county thousands of dollars until the taxpayers called a halt, and now it is proposed to reimburse the county to some extent by having the prisoners work on the highways.

Good Short Stories

M. Colombes, a merchant of Paris, had his revenge on a former sweetheart, a lady of Rouen, when he left her by his will a legacy of six thousand dollars for having, some twenty years before, refused to marry him. "Through which," states the will, "I was enabled to live independently and happily as a bachelor."

A patronizing young lord was seated opposite the late James McNeill Whistler at dinner one evening. During a lull in the conversation he adjusted his monocle and leaned forward toward the artist. "Aw, y' know, Mr. Whistler," he drawled, "I passed your house this morning. 'Thank you,' said Whistler quietly. 'Thank you, very much?'"

Once, when taking breakfast at a hotel in Richmond, John Randolph complained that the eggs were not fresh. "If you want fresh eggs, waiter, always buy them in Chesterfield." (A county just across the James). "How come Chesterfield eggs better'n Henrico eggs, sah?" "Because, you rascal, the Chesterfield people are too poor to keep their lungs."

A young soubrette rushed to her dentist the other day in agony. One of her wisdom teeth was ulcerated. The dentist, who by the way, had supplied her with the most dazzling of her front teeth, told her that there was nothing for it but to pull the tooth. "Very well, doctor," remarked the actress, with a sigh, as she removed the plate; "I suppose I'd better take out my orchestra chairs so that you can get at my back rows."

Anxious to learn the secrets of the art world, a student asked a friend, to whom the ways of its votaries were more familiar: "Why does Connerly stand off and half shut his eyes when he looks at the picture he is painting? I was in his studio the other day, and he made me do it, too." "That's simply explained," replied the other. "Did you ever try to look at them near to with your eyes wide open? Well, don't; you can't stand it."

James Payne related a story of Death Bugzon's indignant refusal to christen a male child "Venus." The father of the infant urged that he only wished to name it after his grandfather. "Your grandfather?" cried the Deity. "I don't believe it. Where is your grandfather?" He was produced. "Do you mean to tell me, sir, that any clergyman ever christened you 'Venus' as you call it?" "Well, no, sir; I was christened Sylvanus, but they always call me 'Venus.'"

A small negro boy was going along the street carrying a turtle by the tail, when a ventriloquist standing near seemed to make it say: "Where is you-all goin' with me?" The little negro heard the question and looked around with astonishment, but not being entirely satisfied as to where the voice came from, walked on. Again the ventriloquist said: "I say, where is you-all takin' me?" This time the boy was satisfied with a miraculous power of speech, and instantly dropped it on the sidewalk in consternation, exclaiming: "I isn't 'fakin' you-all now! I has done dropped you!"

AMONG LOUISIANA INDIANS.

Ancient Customs That Are Passing Rapidly Away in Locating were the Chitimacha. The old Chitimacha language, which is still spoken by a few, has a peculiar sound to the unaccustomed ear on account of the large number of "sh" sounds. It is especially interesting, however, because it has no known affluents, as like no other Indian language and so forms a linguistic stock all by itself. French is spoken by all the tribe now, and it has become the language of common use the Indian tongue will soon be lost for ever. The old dances and customs have already become obsolete, although still remembered by the older people; and the Indians live as do their French neighbors.

One old art, and one only, is still kept up in something like its original purity, the art of making fine baskets of cane—baskets whose fanciful colors are a joy to all lovers of Indian handicraft. The Chitimacha are compelled nowadays to travel twenty or thirty miles to get rid of their cane for basket making. Once gathered and brought home, it is carefully split and laboriously scraped until only the hard outer shell of the stalk is left, when it is ready for coloring and use. The black color seen in Chitimacha baskets is made with black walnut shells, which are boiled with the bundles of cane splints eight or ten days before the color is sufficiently set. The yellow is secured by soaking the cane splints eight days in lime water made with burned shells of the fresh water mussel; the red is produced by boiling the cane already dyed yellow with lime, in a mash made of the roots of a wood called "po-ash." The baskets are made in many shapes and sizes, many of them double—two complete baskets, one inside the other, united at the edges. Many patterns are used, to which are given such names as "womp," "snake," "alligator entrails," "porch," "bear's ear ring," "blackbird's eye" and "muscadine peeling. Blowguns, hand made pottery vessels and silver ornaments had been used with the memory of all the older people, but none could be found at the time of my visit.

I found a fossil shell thought to have the power of making rain. The method of use was to place the "kash," as it was called, in a bowl of water, which would be promptly absorbed into the stone. A storm was supposed to be within a short time after this was done, the fury of which was bound to increase until the charm was removed from the water and an appropriate formula recited. When I found the "rainstone" it was swathed in a large white cloth to keep it dry, and I only succeeded in buying it by promising to keep it away from water. The Houma tribe, near Houma, Terrebonne parish, is now nearly extinct, only two or three persons being found who can claim pure Indian blood. The Houma language, which belongs to the Muskogean stock and is closely related to the Choctaw, is remembered to-day by two old women only and one of these has forgotten much of what she knew of the Indian tongue. Strange to say, this very woman remembers some characteristic Indian songs. French is the prevailing language to-day, and the Houma live like the white people about them. Even the art of basketry has been lost.—Southern Workman.

COLLECTING A DEBT.

"I met Mrs. Dwight on the train going into town this morning," casually remarked Fulton at the dinner-table. "She had forgotten her purse, so she borrowed a dollar from me." Mrs. Fulton laughingly suggested that she was afraid it would be some time before her husband saw his dollar again. "Our neighbor has rather a poor memory in some ways," she added.

"Oh, she'll pay me all right. You know I often see her on the train." "I'm glad you're so hopeful," said Mrs. Fulton, with a skeptical smile, for she had had experiences of her own in lending Mrs. Dwight bowls of coffee and cups of butter, that had never found their way back to her kitchen. A few evenings later, she asked her husband if he had met Mrs. Dwight again. "Yes, twice."

"Well?" "I think you are right about the shortness of her memory, for though she chatted very pleasantly, she didn't mention the dollar."

"I guess you'll have to charge it to profit and loss."

"I won't give it up quite so soon, though I may have to go into bankruptcy yet on account of loaning my surplus without interest." The weeks went by, and Mr. and Mrs. Fulton continued to joke from time to time about the absent dollar; and one evening, after having ridden all the way out from town in the same sent with Mrs. Dwight, Fulton admitted with exaggerated mournfulness that he was beginning to feel very much discouraged about ever regaining his dollar.

"Does it make you feel bad, papa?" asked his little girl, who always listened to the conversation with grave attention.

"Of course it does, Hilda. A dollar is a whole lot of money. How would you like to lose the dollar you have in your bank?"

"I s'pose it would make me most sick," she answered; and her parents, exchanging amused glances, said nothing.

When Fulton sat down at the dinner-table the next night he asked, as he saw a shining silver piece at his plate, "What's this?"

"Your dollar," answered Hilda, triumphantly. "I went to Mrs. Dwight's house to-day, and the door was open, so I just thought I'd go in and ask her if she'd 'forgot' your dollar, but she wasn't round anywhere. But it didn't matter, for I found your dollar on the desk. I s'pose she kept forgetting to bring it home, so I just took it myself for you, papa."

"My country!" exclaimed the astonished father, ungratefully. "What shall I do?"

"What can you do but return it and explain?" said Mrs. Fulton, who was laughing almost hysterically. "What a thing it is to have a serious-minded daughter!"—Youth's Companion.

Princess Fights Consumption.

A Philadelphia paper says "Ze-Bo Nah," an Indian princess, 25 years old, and a daughter of a chieftain of the New York Mohawk tribe, has started a tuberculosis camp of her own along the Susquehanna river, several miles below Williamsport. It is Pennsylvania's quaintest consumption sanitarium. And it's an effective little institution, though the number of patients is limited to two or three at a time. It is a single tent, packed away snugly in the fringe of forest along the river, and it is as still as the Sahara desert.

"Ze-Bo-Nah" gives her patients the Indian outdoor treatment. She makes them fish, row, swim, walk, and do everything that helps to make them robust. Then, by way of emphasizing primitive methods, she keeps them sleeping under the canopy of the trees night after night. She treats them to herbs of her own selection, and to some of the rarest of Indian delicacies. The cured consumptives number 20, and all have been restored to health through her personal care. She finds her daily delight in fighting the disease that has claimed so many of her own race, and that also has such a tight grip on the paleface.

"It's a little private war I'm waging," she declared determinedly. "Some day I'll get a reward. I ask none here."

He Was Satisfied.

"A Maine man, notorious for his 'neanness,'" says a New Englander, "one day went into a meat shop in Portland and inquired the price of a certain soup bone. The proprietor of the shop, himself a generous fellow, said, in answer to a question from the old man, 'Oh, I'll give you that.' The old man, who is hard of hearing, put a hand to his ear, as though he had but faintly caught the butcher's reply. 'Can't you take something off that?' he asked, querulously. 'The dealer took pity on him. 'Yes,' said he, 'call it 10 cents.' 'Whereupon the old man went away with the comfortable sense of having driven a good bargain.'—Harper's Monthly.

"How is young Chumkett getting on in college?" "Splendidly. He would have made the scrub team his first year if he hadn't been deficient in all of his studies."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WORLD'S CLASH FAR OFF.

Prof. Pickering of Harvard Takes Issue with Dr. Lowell as to Danger.

Professor William H. Pickering of the Harvard astronomical observatory, asserts that the chances of a collision between the sun and some dark body as recently described by Dr. Percival Lowell, are remote.

Dr. Lowell is giving a series of lectures at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, in concluding the first of these he graphically described a possible end of the world. He pictured space as fairly swarming with dark stars which were a menace to the solar system. Contact with one of these dark stars would disrupt the solar system, destroy the sun and the earth and form new nebulae. Professor Pickering admits that such dark stars exist, but holds that to represent them as fairly swarming in space is incorrect.

"The chance of a collision," said Professor Pickering, "is about one in 100,000,000 raised to the hundredth millionth power, which even to one only slightly acquainted with mathematical methods that such a collision is highly improbable. "A more possible danger, but nevertheless a highly improbable one, is that the solar system in its journey through space may come close enough to some such dark body as to cause a disturbance in the orbital motion of planets and perhaps carry some of them the earth included, into space. The entire danger is so remote, however, that there need be no popular apprehension about it."
