Tennis Tournament

The Northeastern Nebraska tournament is to be held in Wayne this month. The date has not yet been definitely determined upon but it will probably be some day next week so as to get it out of the way of Chautauqua which begins on the 22nd. It will be remembered that the Wayne players last year showed that they understood the game and knew how to handle the racquet, as they won some nice trophies by their skill and they hope to do as well or better this year. Further mention will be made of the time, place and players.

Supreme Court Opinion

Wayne county vs. Bressler. Appeal. Wayne. On rehearing, former opinion vacated in so far as it holds that the Nebraska Land company is an investment company, and judgment of district court reversed. Letton, J.

1. A domestic corporation formed for the purpose of buying real estate and whose capital is invested in land, is not "an investment company" under section 56 of the revenue law. Section 10955, annotated statutes, 1907.

2. It is the duty of the holder of shares of a stock or joint stock or other companies to list the same for assessment, "when the capital stock of such company is not assessed in this state." Section 28, revenue law, 10927, annotated statutes, 1907.

A Fortunate Fall

Last Saturday evening just before quitting time, R. P. Williams, one of the carpenters employed on F. G. Philleo's new residence, met with a fall that had a fortunate result. He was working on the first floor of the residence with his back towards the opening into the cellar. While thus engaged he forgot all about the opening and worked back until unexpectedly he stepped into it and fell headlong backward toward the bottom of the cellar. It happened, however, that underneath the opening a ladder was standing set against the wall. He struck the ladder with full force and rolled from it to the cellar floor, receiving a number of cuts and bruises but escaping with nothing worse. If the ladder had not been where it was he would have plunged head-first into a pile of brick and it would have been hard to tell what the outcome would have been; some broken bones at least. Dr. Leisnering was called and an examination of the injured man revealed no broken bones and although badly shaken up and bruised, Mr. Williams was soon at his work again.

Times Do Change

It looked kind of old-fashioned to see R. Perrin swinging a scythe and doing effective work in cutting grass Monday morning. There are very few of the younger generation that know how to swing a scythe these days, but the writer remembers that when he was a boy that that was the only means men had for securing their hay crop and it was no uncommon sight to see several men following each other in a grass field from early morn to dewey eve. It took a good man to swing a scythe all day long in heavy grass. How times have changed! Then all the grass was cut with a scythe and the grain with a cradle, the raking was all done by hand and the pitching by main strength, now none of these things are known only as a sort of dreamy remembrance of what has been. And yet people were fully as happy in those days as they are now, had far better appetites, knew nothing about disease germs and all the fads and follies of today, had better health, lived longer, led simpler and enjoyed life more fully than two-thirds of the generation of the present day, and yet it cannot be said, perhaps, that those times were really better than those of today.

Picnic at Brown's

The picnic July 3rd at W. S. Brown's was a decided success. The grove is just in the right shape naturally for a picnic; so dense that the sun's rays do not penetrate and yet just aisles of shade, just the most suitable place possible for the swings, seats and platform which Mr. Brown takes such pains to prepare for the comfort of his guests. The crowds that attend each year are just the kind of people one likes to meet. A gentleman from Wayne who viewed the ball game, listened to the short talks and mingled among all at the races by the boys and girls, remarked that he never heard an expression that would have been out of place in any lady's parlor. The dinner, well, all that is necessary to say is that it was a picnic dinner prepared by Wayne county women. Rev. Ahrendts of Winside, gave a humorous and helpful talk in the forenoon. C. M. White began at the creation and talked of the securing of liberty by human beings, while C. H. Bright gave a well appreciated talk on the Philippines. These were interspersed with patriotic music by the Grace church choir. It was a happy time, the sanest manner possible to celebrate our natal day. There was a large attendance.

The new hotel law went into effect July 2nd, and the labor bureau, under whose jurisdiction the enforcement of the law is placed, says that it will begin the work of inspection at once. The law not only provides for nine foot bed sheets, but for closets, and a whole lot of things, and as it provides for a fine from $25 to $100 for not obeying its mandates, and for $50 per week as long as the remedy is not forthcoming, it behooves all of the hotel keepers to look up the provisions of the law and get busy.

Civic Improvement

In view of the splendid interest aroused here in Wayne during the spring by the school essays on Civic Improvement, and, following this, in a cleaning up day, it will be of especial interest to learn what Wakefield, our enterprising sister town, is doing this summer. The citizens of Wakefield have taken up the work in a splendid, systematic manner and the contest will cover the entire summer, prizes being awarded in September. The business and professional men give the prizes and fifty citizens act as judges thus making the interest widespread. The contest includes the following heads:

1. Best kept street on both sides one block in length.
2. Most improvement on residence property valued under $1,500.
3. Most improvement on residence property valued at from $1,500 to $3,000.
4. Most improvement on residence property valued at $3,000 and upward.
5. Neatest back yard of business house.
6. Best kept alley in any one block, full length.
7. Best kept church lawn to curb line.
8. Best kept residence property not to exceed $1,500.
9. Best kept residence property $1,500 to $3,000.
10. Best kept residence property $3,000 and upwards.
11. Best display of roses and shrubbery.
12. Most attractive window or porch boxes.
13. Best display of flowers.
14. Best vegetable garden.
15. Best kept lawn to curb line, kept by boy or girl under seventeen.
16. Best kept vegetable garden, by boy or girl under seventeen.
17. Best window display in business house or street this season.

Automobiles and carriages have been placed at the disposal of the judges for the purpose of frequent inspection during the summer. That this system of improvement is already bearing fruit is readily apparent. Wayne residents who have recently visited Wakefield bring back pleasing reports of the beautiful, attractive appearance which the place presents.

Of this work the Wakefield Republican has the following to say: "It was with hesitation that some members of the committee on Civic Improvement took up the work this year, of helping to make Wakefield the most beautiful, well-kept and sanitary town in Northeast Nebraska, but the response of the business men in giving prizes has been so cordial that most of the work has been a pleasure. Other towns in the country have tried this work for some years, notably Kalamazoo, Michigan, and that city is counted now, not only one of the most beautiful and healthful cities in the country, but it has attracted the very finest class of citizens."

It is indeed true that no influence is more potent in a community than a strong, healthful movement for civic improvement, for civic improvement makes for civic righteousness, and civic righteousness makes for social purity. Without these three essentials we can hope neither for systematic beauty, for goodness, nor for safety.

It is a hopeful sign of growth and advancement—a sign too of our spiritual evolution when we are large enough to reach out beyond the confines of our own little yard and ask, "What can I do to benefit my neighbor? What can I do to benefit the community in which I live?" Out of a clearer vision of beauty and purity comes a keen and unselfish desire to DO, and the strong and glowing mark that is set upon this beautiful twentieth century is that it not only projects plans for great achievements, but fearlessly perseveres to their attainment. There is no good thing which we cannot accomplish. Our motto is a city clean and beautiful, and pure, and we shall surely attain this end.

Emerson Enterprise: Miss Elsie Dobbin, of Wayne, spent Sunday with Miss Julia Davis.

Rev. C. J. Ringer, of Wayne, was in town on business Wednesday.

Dakota City Leader: Judge A. A. Welch was here from Wayne on Tuesday and concluded hearing evidence in the Stehner-Wallace-O'Hanlon case. The attorneys will submit their arguments to the court in briefs.

Pierce Leader: L. B. Fanske, of Tama, Iowa, arrived in the city Monday and will visit this week with his brother, E. B. Fanske, and other relatives.

Mr. Fanske will be remembered as visiting here last fall, at which time he went with a party of Pierce people to the Tripp country and registered for a homestead. He is highly impressed with what he has seen of our country and has determined to locate somewhere in Nebraska. He has about closed a deal for the purchase of a jewelry store at Wayne.

Pierce Call: Geo. W. McCrady and Miss Jennie Phillips were united in marriage at the M. E. parsonage last Wednesday evening, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. Connelly.

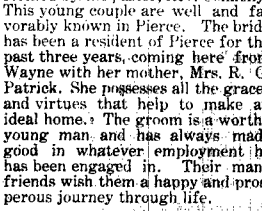

This young couple are well and favorably known in Pierce. The bride has been a resident of Pierce for the past three years, coming here from Wayne with her mother, Mrs. R. C. Patrick. She possesses all the graces and virtues that help to make an ideal home. The groom is a worthy young man and has always made good in whatever employment he has been engaged in. Their many friends wish them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

Winside Tribune: As no particular fault can be found with his record and if one term deserves another, County Treasurer Beebe will be re-elected.

The Wayne Herald gives the impression that the Tribune is opposed to Sheriff Mears. Not much! Grant makes an excellent sheriff and we have not a single objection if he holds the office for life.

Passenger train, No. 12, and a work train came within a shave of having a collision east of Winside on Saturday morning. The passenger left Winside without orders not knowing the work train had left Wayne. The engineer did some fast work to get the train stopped in time to prevent a wreck.

Improvement and Child Study Club

Despite the heat of last Friday afternoon some fifteen or twenty ladies of the Improvement and Child Study club assembled at the pleasant home of Mrs. Theo. Duerig for the final meeting of the year. Upon their arrival the ladies were served with delicious punch in a tastefully arranged dining room. Some very practical work was outlined, including an entertainment, at the suggestion of Mrs. A. S. Lutgen, by the children for the benefit of the kindergarten fund. This will be taken up at the close of the chautauqua, and our people may look for something out of the ordinary in that line. A busy, helpful hour was spent in the discussion of Domestic Science and Domestic Art, at the conclusion of which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. C. W. Hiscox, served dainty, light refreshments. The club adjourned to meet the third Thursday in September.

A Good Word

"The Little Miner" for June, published at Denver, Colorado, has the following to say of one of Wayne's citizens, and the King Solomon mine: "Speaking of 'hushing,' Director O. A. King cannot be beaten in that respect. He works tooth and nail, night and day, for King Solomon and has made many substantial friends for our company. He is beloved and believed in by all who know him and we are to be congratulated in having such an earnest supporter giving his entire time and energy to our work. Just as we go to press we have received word that the last shot in east No. 2 opened up a three-foot streak of good looking ore. It is different in appearance from anything we have found in that vein and we are unable at this time to say how important this strike is. We regard it as a mighty good news nevertheless. Also the last shot in east No. 7 and west No. 10 disclosed good looking, yellow iron ore. President Linsmore is enthusiastic."

RECORD OF INJURIES

FOUR DEAD OF BURNS FROM FIREWORKS IN GOTHAM.

322 Persons Are Wounded—Hospitals Swamped with 4th of July Victims Washington Reports a "Sane" Day Chicago's List Not So Large.

RECORD OF INJURIES.

Four Dead of Burns from Fireworks in Gotham.

Four dead, three of them children, 322 persons injured, nine of them dangerously and so seriously that death seems certain, was the Fourth of July record in New York and Brooklyn up to midnight.

Last year's record was seven dead and 753 injured for the entire Greater New York, and indications are that the casualties this year will probably equal that when all hospitals and all records are available. Giuseppe Pagan, 40 years old, was killed by a random bullet, supposedly fired by a celebrator, though relatives maintain that he was murdered.

The hospitals were swamped with patients, most of them suffering from minor burns having been caused by exploding fireworks and patients are being added at the larger institutions at the rate of ten an hour. Fires in the city and suburbs were numbered by the score, but none in New York proper did any great damage. Most of them were started by the careless handling of fireworks, matches or powder. The most serious fire in the vicinity of New York occurred at Ossington, up the Hudson, where the principal business block was destroyed at a loss of $75,000. The blaze is supposed to have been started by a firecracker being thrown into some rubbish in the rear of the building.

Washington rounded out the day and its observance in an ideal manner. The "safe and sane" idea of celebrating the day was admirably carried out. There was a marked contrast between this and other Fourth's.

No firecracker was heard, and no fireworks of any kind except that handled by citizens having in charge the public celebrations. Not a single accident resulting from the Fourth's celebration was reported, and the police made fewer arrests than usual.

AERONAUT DROPS 500 FEET.

Meets Almost Instant Death at Portland, Me.

Mistaking the promiscuous firing of revolvers by the crowd below as a signal agreed upon for cutting loose his parachute, James Corcoran, an aeronaut, 28 years of age, of Lowell, Mass., cut loose with his parachute when about 500 feet from the earth at the Fourth of July celebration at Portland, Me., and crashed to the ground, meeting almost instant death, in the presence of 5,000 spectators.

Corcoran was employed by Prof. Joseph Laroux of Portland, with whom the municipal authorities contracted for balloon ascensions and parachute jumps at the eastern promenade. It was arranged that Corcoran should drop with his parachute from a height of 500 feet when he heard a certain number of revolver shots from Laroux on the ground. Corcoran, not hearing Laroux shout to keep on up, cut loose. The distance was too short for his parachute to open properly, and he fell like a plummet, striking the ground about 1,000 feet from where the ascension was made. He was still alive when picked up, but he had a fracture of the skull and skull died.

All animals would be inspected fully before and after killing by the city butchers, and the output would be sold to the local butcher shops at cost, with an estimated saving of $9 a head of cattle. The city would get its compensation from the by-products. The mayor asks $100,000 from the city as a sinking fund to build the abattoir.

MANY BURIED ALIVE.

English Landslide Causes Death of Twenty People.

It is estimated that twenty men perished Friday by the sudden collapse of the west wall of the new lock at the entrance to the Alexandria dock at Newport, Monmouthshire, Eng. The extension of the dock work has been in progress for some time, and fifty men were working in a trench sixty feet deep preparing for the laying of a concrete foundation, when the heavy shoring timbers suddenly gave way in the middle and the entire structure collapsed and carried down with it thousands of tons of earth, the roadway lines on both sides of the trench, many cars and four traveling cranes.

The men at the bottom of the trench, which was 100 yards long and 30 feet wide, had no chance to escape, but many of those working near the surface were uninjured.

Three men were taken out alive and the bodies of some of the dead were later rescued.

Late Friday night four men, still living, were plucked in the debris in the trench. The incoming tide made the work of rescue very difficult.

The engineers in charge of the work are unable to account for the collapse of the shoring timbers.

INVOLVED IN A PAVING SCANDAL.

Officials of Paving Co. and Former Engineer of Columbus Fined.

The four indictments against M. T. Bramley, president of the Trinidad Paving company, for offering a bribe, were nolle, because the court stated he had assisted in the prosecution of other men.

CARRIES LUMBER FOR COFFIN.

Boy is Then Killed and Buried—Step-father Charged with Crime.

Charged with having murdered his 5-year-old stepson, Harry Lee Nutshell, after compelling the lad to carry from a sawmill the lumber with which a coffin was made to encase the child's body, David Moore is in the Jonsville, Va., jail. With him is his wife. Both were taken there Thursday night to escape mob violence at Erwin, Va. The boy died last Sunday and Moore is said to have stated that he died of fever. No physician having attended him, however, suspicion was aroused and the body was exhumed. The boy was found to be terribly bruised and the boy's mother made a confession in which it is said she charged that Moore had caused the boy's death.

PAUL SIGEL VIEWS BODY.

Corpse Found in Hudson River Not That of Leon Ling.

Paul Sigel, of New York, the father of Elsie Sigel, visited the Fordham morgue Friday and pronounced positively that the body recovered Thursday night from the Hudson river is not that of Leon Ling, the man accused of the murder of his daughter on June 8. A coroner's physician previously declared that the body was not that of a Chinaman, but a white boy, apparently about 16 years old. The district attorney's office has requisitioned from the telegraph companies any message which may have been delivered to the Chinese restaurant keeper who first discovered Elsie Sigel's body.

Body That of a Baronet.

Papers found among the effects of a stranger found dead at the Southern Pacific station at Yuma, Ariz., Friday indicate that the body is that of Sir Arthur Carl Stepany, of Logdon, an English baronet of large estate and a scientist of distinction.

MESSINA SHAKEN UP.

Severe Earthquake Felt in the Stricken City.

Messina, experienced two terrific earthquakes at about 7 o'clock Thursday morning, which were accompanied by roaring sounds and are said to have had a stronger and more undulatory movement than the earthquake of last December, which destroyed Messina, Reggio and other cities, laid waste many villages in Calabria and killed 200,000 people.

The walls of the old ruins were thrown to the ground and Messina was for a few minutes obscured in a cloud of dust. The casualties were few, and the only persons killed so far as is known were a young woman and her infant. The woman had gone to Messina only a few days ago and had settled in rooms which the great earthquake had left comparatively undamaged. She was standing at the door when the shock occurred, and rushed inside to save her child. Before she could escape from the room the second shock threw down the walls, burying both mother and child under the debris. Soldiers and engineers, who rushed to the rescue, heard the voice of the woman calling for help, and they worked over her several hours, when they found the mother dead, with her child in her arms. Several persons were struck by detached stones, but so far as is known no one was fatally injured.

The first shock was followed quickly by a second and people fled pell mell to the American quarter, which they seemed to feel was their safest place of refuge. So great was the rush to the American huts that the authorities were unable to check the invasion, and as a consequence these structures, which were designed for the most needy of the populace, were taken possession of by the first comers. The soldiers, however, drew a cordon around this quarter and a guard was mounted at the bridge leading to it. Many of the panic stricken people were driven off and orders were issued that no one should be permitted to occupy the American quarter pending further instructions. Commerce ceased in the city and the places of business along the waterfront were closed. As a result several thousand workmen are idle and special precautions are being taken to prevent disorders.

NEW QUAKE SHAKES THE ISLAND OF SICILY

Shocks in Messina Crumble Walls and Drive Out Many in State of Panic.

ROAR LIKE THE BOOM OF GUNS

Some of the Tremblings More Severe than Those of Disaster of December 28.

Sicily was the scene Thursday of another earthquake disaster which, in Messina at least, completed the destruction wrought by the shocks of Dec. 28, in which tens of thousands of lives were lost.

The instruments at the observatory registered a total of ten shocks of varying severity since 7:20 o'clock Thursday morning. Eight shocks were felt during the night. News that has come in there from the provinces shows that damage has been wrought there, but it is as yet impossible correctly to estimate the extent of the losses. The shocks both at Messina and at Reggio created a great panic among the people of these two cities.

Houses Fall; People in Flight.

Halls of houses not completely demolished in the visitation of last winter were shaken down, and the inhabitants of the towns pushed from the streets toward the open country. A woman and a child caught under the wreckage sustained serious injury, the woman subsequently dying. The earthquakes have been becoming more intense recently, and Wednesday night they were sufficiently severe to cause alarm.

The shocks of Thursday morning were undulating and vertical, and accompanied by deep roaring sounds. The first one was followed by an explosion like the roar of cannon and lasted between eight and ten seconds. It is said that this quake was of greater severity than the fatal one of the night of Dec. 28. The wooden houses and huts erected for the accommodation of the people seemed to be thrown from one side to another. Cries filled the air as the people fled into the road.

As on the night of Dec. 28, the first shock was followed by a circular movement of the ground. Five minutes later there came another quake, accompanied by further roarings. This completed the destruction. The remains of wrecked houses collapsed and the entire district was covered by a dense cloud of dust.

Recalls Last Winter's Uproar.

News of the latest shock in Messina brings vividly to mind the disaster of last December. Positive knowledge of the number of persons killed and the damage done to property was never obtained. It is known for certain that the dead exceeded 100,000, while scores of cities and towns in Calabria and Sicily were left in ruins.

Mayor Brings Men and Officials Together in His Office

The street railway strike, which cost the city of Pittsburgh over $200,000 in two days, was officially declared to have ended at 10:30 o'clock Monday night.

The strike, it developed, was the outcome of only two points of difference between the car company and the motormen and conductors, one being alleged neglect upon the part of the car company to shorten "swinging runs," and the other, the refusal of the railway officials to reinstate discharged men without proper hearing.

All during the day Mayor Magee made vain efforts to bring the two factions of the traffic tangle together. Finally a conference was arranged and held in the Mayor's office.

Branch won a verdict of $12,500 damages in the lower courts. The plaintiff was a member of the Legislature in 1905 and the alleged libelous statements resulted from his attitude in the Senatorial fight of that year.

The council of fine arts created by President Roosevelt, which was to have charge of the beautification of Washington and to pass on the design of government buildings, etc., has been abolished by President Taft in an executive order. This action was required by the last sundry civil bill, which failed to appropriate money for expenses or salaries of any of the commissions created by President Roosevelt without the consent of Congress.

The latest name under consideration as possible successor to Mr. Root, still as American Minister to China is that of Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks of Cornell University. The determination in Congress to materially reduce appropriations at the next session will likely result in a very considerable curtail in the sums allotted for army officers' quarters. Many in Congress believe that comfortable houses for officers could be erected at army posts for much less than has hitherto been spent for quarters that are regarded by some as being unnecessarily pretentious.

HIGHEST IN 27 YEARS

Live Hogs Eight Dollars Per Hundred—Product Also at Top

The highest June price for live hogs since 1882 was established, the other day at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago. Best porkers sold at $8.30 per hundred pounds. With the exception of 1902, this is the highest price recorded for any month since the Civil war. The prevailing high prices are due to unusually light receipts of live hogs this spring at all Western packing centers, the extremely high price of grain last year prompting many farmers to dispose of stock rather than pay for feed stuff. Receipts of hogs at the nine leading markets of the West were 29,000 head less than for the corresponding day last week and 32,600 less than the receipts a year ago. As a result of the scarcity of hogs, the price of provisions is now the highest in many years.

A needle, which he is said to have swallowed two months ago while eating pancakes at a restaurant, caused the death of Charles Helming, 28 years old, who died at the Norwegian Lutheran hospital, Chicago. According to the hospital attendants, Helming was taken to the institution by relatives, who said that about seven weeks previous Helming felt the needle scratch his throat. He attempted to cough it out, but was unable to do so, and swallowed it. He was given medical attention at home, but his condition gradually became worse and finally he was removed to the hospital.

Children Not "Criminals"

When a new law goes into effect the coming September 1 in New York State the criminal child will cease to have a legal existence. Under this no person under the age of 16 can be branded as a criminal. No matter what the nature of the offense, the juvenile offender will be known as a juvenile delinquent who will be judged by the juvenile courts.

The dean of Westminster's refusal to permit the ashes of George Meredith, the English author, to be interred in the abbey appears to be final and he declines to give any reason for his attitude. No effort has been spared to induce the dean and chapter to reconsider the matter, but in vain.

Announcement
I wish to announce to the people of Wayne and vicinity that I have purchased the H. S. Welch jewelry store and solicit a share of your patronage. I will endeavor to give you full value for your money and guarantee satisfaction in every respect.
Yours for business,
L. A. FANSKE, Jeweler.

We Thank You
Having sold my Jewelry stock and business to L. A. Fanske, of Wama, Iowa, I desire to thank all my patrons for their liberality while in business in Wayne. I can recommend Mr. Fanske, from my former acquaintance with him, as a gentleman well fitted to take charge of and carry on the business which I now lay down. I fully appreciate all the kindness shown me in the past.
H. S. WELCH.

Another Ball Game
On next Tuesday afternoon at the fair grounds in Wayne, there is to be a game of baseball between the Laurel and Wayne teams. The Laurel boys have been putting up a good game of ball thus far this season, as a general thing, and are a gentlemanly lot of fellows. A good game is looked for. Turn out and shout for the home team. There is a good grand stand on the grounds now so it is more pleasant for the ladies.

Letter From Sweden
Miss Jennie Vonneberg, under date of June 24th, writes from Sweden to her friend, Mrs. A. J. Ferguson, a long letter regarding her trip to that country from which we are privileged to make a few extracts. Miss Jennie says: "We were just two weeks on the way from Wayne, five days on the ocean. Were not sea sick at all. We came on the steamship Mauretania, which is 790 feet long, 88 feet wide, and 70 feet deep. It has a crew of 812 men and accommodates 2,000 people. It is so constructed and rides so smoothly that one does not realize that he is on the water at all."
Our trip across England was an enjoyable one. That country remains one of a huge garden; its fields are so small and well kept, being separated from each other by low stone walls. After crossing England we took boat on the North Sea, and then we were seasick indeed. Everyone else was in the same condition, and while it was a very distressing experience, it was also laughable.
Victor was entirely surprised to see us, having given up our coming. We like it here very well but I do not wish to stay forever. Axel was very enthusiastic about going to Sweden to live but I think after seeing their methods of farming, etc., that he will be satisfied to return to Nebraska.
None of our relatives live here but next week we are going down into that part of the country where I used to live and I am so anxious to see some of the old landmarks that I remember. An exposition is held at Stockholm some time during the summer and we shall go to that.
We do not know as yet when we shall start for the United States but it is safe to say that we will be home some time in September.

CARROLL CORRESPONDENCE
(A Regular Epistle)
Fred Koester is here looking after business interests this week.
Gomer Jones was an over night visitor at home Tuesday night.
A new daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jones last Friday morning.
James Dobbin was a visitor at the McIntosh home in Wayne Monday and Tuesday.
Mrs. Ora McKay is visiting her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McKay, in Carroll this week.
Mrs. Richard Closson left Saturday for a two weeks visit with friends at Webster City, Iowa.
George Rohwer and wife returned Saturday night from their visit to the coast. They report a very pleasant trip.
The Matt Jones family is expected home from Red Oak, Iowa, Saturday, where they have been visiting for a number of weeks.
George Linn and wife arrived Wednesday night from Kansas, where they had been visiting for a month at the home of George's parents.
M. M. Parrish was in town Tuesday. He still makes headquarters at Pender but his family lives at Omaha. M. M. is now pushing South Dakota land.
Miss Maggie Davis and her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Davis, left Tuesday morning for Seattle and other far western points. They will be gone about six weeks.
Mrs. Kanrick, mother of Mrs. Bert Francis, is visiting with her daughter here this week. She expects to depart in about two weeks for Wales, where she will visit friends for a time.
The Epworth League of the Methodist church will give a social on the church lawn Saturday evening, July 17. A program will be rendered in the church and ice cream and cake served on the lawn.
Mr. A. Jones is able to be up every day now. The nurse was dismissed a week ago. Joe has had six weeks of pain and suffering and his many friends will be glad to know that his recovery is assured and that he will soon be out among us again.
George Yarran and W. E. Bellows left Monday for Plankinton, South Dakota, and other points in that part of the state. They are looking over the country with the view of making investments if they find something that pleases them.
Will Mick is losing some of his hair again this year. They are now running on the alfalfa but four have died and others are sick. The cholera is getting to be a yearly matter with Will and as he pins his faith to hog entirely it makes him rather discouraged.

H. V. Garwood left on Friday for Port Washington, Ohio, and other points where he expects to put in about six weeks resting and recuperating. Mrs. Garwood and little daughter are there, having been gone since about the first of June.

Henry Bay, who lives on the B. P. Peterson place, two and one-half miles southwest of town, has one hundred acres of tame hay to cut and is anxiously waiting for the right kind of weather. This is getting to be a great tame hay country.

A number of our citizens celebrated at Wakefield last Saturday. Others spent a very enjoyable day at the picnic in the Welsh settlement west of town. The stores were closed and the town very quiet. Those who remained in town sure enjoyed a "same fourth" if quietness is saneness.

Will Mick, who has a farm near a new town in North Dakota, is talking of renting the home place near Carroll and going to Dakota in the spring. The farm up there adjoins the town site of a new town which is being laid out and which promises to be quite a city. Will's land is destined therefore to be very valuable.

The fire at Belden is causing some of our people here to think hard this week. Carroll is without fire protection and a fire here in our business section would be uncontrollable. We would simply have to stand around and watch it burn. It often requires a disastrous fire before a town awakes to the importance of fire protection.

W. F. Simmerman had a valuable colt badly injured last Saturday. The colt, which is a stallion, reared in its stall and coming down in some way struck its mouth upon the manger and knocked out several front teeth. The colt is but two past and consequently has not got its permanent teeth, which doubtless will appear in due time.

The ball game between the Wayne and Carroll teams was a decidedly one sided affair. Carroll was clearly outclassed from start to finish. Some of the Carroll ball players were experienced men on the diamond but they have been out of practice for several years, and very naturally the lack of practice was evident. We believe the official score was 15 to 1 in favor of the team from the seat of county government.

KEEP WELL IN SUMMER

FLIES FOES OF HUMAN HEALTH

State Department of Tuberculosis Gives Advice on Keeping Well in Summer

One of the most significant evidences of human progress is the fact that the average length of human life is ten years greater now than it was fifty years ago. This result has not been accomplished at any one great stride, or by any one health reform, but by attention to little things, here and there that help our systems to combat disease.
 The State Department of Tuberculosis, in the following bulletin, cites one of the avenues to good health in summer. The advice is, well worth carefully heeding:
 "In the combat against tuberculosis it is necessary to take into account every factor which may in any way, directly or indirectly, spread the disease. As the summer draws near, it will bring as usual its swarms of flies and other insect life, and there is no greater nuisance than the house flies which infest the homes of our people. However, if proper sanitation was observed about the premises which people call their homes, the common house fly would be much less prevalent than it is.
 "A garbage, manure, cesspools, open drains, and other unsanitary conditions existing about the house or barn will produce an incredible number of flies, as in decaying matter of all kinds the fly breeds. The first measure to be carried out therefore is to remove all kinds of garbage and manure, and to close all open drains which may lead from cesspools or out closets. The next measure of protection is to screen the house and to diligently exclude from the kitchen, dining room and living apartments, these little pests. We have become so accustomed to the fly that, while we look upon it as an unmitigated nuisance, yet we tolerate its familiarity and for this reason many a tragic story has been written full of the most heart-breaking sorrow.
 "Flies are great germ carriers. Their feet are so constructed that they are little cups. This enables them to walk on ceilings. These vacuumed feet become splendid agents in the transmission of germs of typhoid fever and tuberculosis. Recent investigations made by the Merchants' Association of New York reveal the fly as being responsible for a vast amount of contagious sickness.
 "It is urged that the people shall with one accord protect themselves against germs of disease which may readily be carried into the home by the fly. The food supply should be thoroughly protected against flies; a rigid rule should be established in every home which should be enforced in every instance, and no flies should be permitted to crawl over the food which is to be set on table for human consumption. Milk should be especially particularly cared for. It should not only be protected from the fly, but from the dirt as well. Many a little baby will be killed this year by carelessness. Flies will carry germs of various diseases to the nipples on the bottles of artificially fed infants, and bacteria will be introduced into the child's body. Milk from diseased cows, suffering from tuberculosis, milk which has been produced under unsanitary conditions in the barn or yard, will be given to these infants, whose lives will be terminated by various disorders, commonly summer complaint, occasionally tuberculosis of the bowels.
 "Two important things are here considered: One is to so far as possible prevent the breeding of flies by removing garbage and waste and pouring kerosene oil on stagnant pools. The other is to protect the food supply against insects of all kinds, particularly the fly, and see to it that little children are given wholesome food free from disease germs and dirt."

Don't Kick the Weather

At this season of year it is not only in order to talk about the weather as an abstract proposition but also about warm weather, sometimes known in Nebraska as sizzling hot weather. The burden of the song which we hope will reach willing ears today is, briefly:
 Don't kick.
 Really, now, what's the use? Let us suppose the mercury is hovering around nine-four it the shade. That's hot, mighty hot, even though it sometimes gets hotter. What are we apt to do? Growl, fume, fuss, yank at our collars, complain and sad but true, even curse. We seem to be imbued with the remarkable theory that these things make us feel better. We are relieving our minds, so to speak.
 But what's the result? What effect does such conduct have on us and on those about us? Does it relieve our minds and make us feel better? Are we any better able to stand the tedious, uncomfortable strain of sticky, sweating heat? Most assuredly not. As a matter of fact, such carryings on only add to our discomfort. The more we fret the more we sweat and the madder we get, until our temper has gone glimmering, our sense of reason and proportion has vanished and we have made of ourselves pests which the community would be excused for booting over into the next county.
 So, let's be calm, even though we have to fight to do it, like the Irishman who was willing to scarp to preserve peace. Let us "keep cool" ridiculous as this may strike us, literally. Let us fortify ourselves by accepting this broad, general principle:
 We've got to live here in a country that gets hot in the summer. Our affairs are such that we can't get away from it. We know it is going to be hotter than blazes, at least a great deal of the time every June, July, August and September. We know that, somehow, we are going to live through it. Let's resolve to make the best of it—and keep our resolution. Let's refrain from making idiots of ourselves by fretting against barriers we cannot break or climb over. Let's settle down, dress sensibly, take as many cold baths as possible, eat plenty of vegetables and little meat, let cold drinks—especially intoxicating drinks—severely alone, go to bed early, relax and sleep as much as possible at night and forget that hot weather is uncomfortable, for it is only so as we, in our own minds, make it. Last, but not least, let us remember above all things, that these burning rays of sunlight, which blister the nose and wilt the collar, are dropping good, big, hard, round American dollars right down in the path in front of us. That's the big idea, after all, for it is an economic impossibility for us to prosper unless the Nebraska farmer prospers and the Nebraska farmer cannot prosper without the intense sunshine against which we are so often wont to rail as a curse sent especially to blight us with its burning sting.
 Smile, don't grouch. When somebody asks if it's hot enough for you say "No, I love it; wish it was hotter. Bring along your heat, it's what I thrive on."
 Practice this for a few days and you will be surprised to find that you actually believe what you are saying. Don't be such a weakling as to let the weather which is making you rich turn you into a boor.—Lincoln Star.

Report of the Nebraska Seed Laboratory
 The Nebraska Experiment Station has just issued Bulletin No. 110 with the above-named title. The bulletin may be had free of cost by residents of Nebraska on application to the Agricultural experiment station, Lincoln, Nebraska. This bulletin contains a large amount of information concerning agricultural seeds, together with illustrations and descriptions of the more common weed seeds. We have one copy of this office that any farmer may have by calling for it.
 Up in Canada they will not hereafter allow the stars and stripes to be carried or float over a circus parade or tents. It must be the Union Jack or nothing. In this country the government allows the red flag of anarchy, the rebel flag of the defunct confederacy or any other old rag of a flag to be carried at the head of almost any procession and nothing thought of it.

Finishing Corn Cultivation

Just a closing word on laying by the corn: Most of the fields are now being cultivated for the last time, and Nebraska corn is indeed promising. The question which concerns a good farmer is "How can I improve the yield of my corn field?"
 When we carefully figure up the time we have already spent in bringing the soil to a proper tith and the corn to its present conditions will it pay us to add just a little more labor if we can further increase the yield? We think it will, and therefore wish to urge that the field be gone over with a single horse, five-tooth cultivator, which will destroy the young weeds, level the ground and conserve the moisture for the corn itself. This should be done twice at least, the first time commencing about July 15th and the second time during the first week in August. Should a heavy rain occur near the times stated, follow with cultivation as quickly as you can get on the ground.
 Doubtless you will say this is too much work when we are busy in grain and hay fields, but it will easily pay an expenditure of $3.00 per day. This is not theory but is gathered from actual experience, for it was the plan followed by the boy at Gretna who raised 102 bushels on a single acre last year while his father's field adjoining, cultivated in the usual old-fashioned manner went only 35 bushels to the acre.
 Two years ago in competition for the prize offered in the acre corn contest by the State Board of Agriculture, Harry Oldero, of Gretna, raised 118 bushels and 30 pounds from a single acre and finished up his cultivation in this manner. With such facts confronting you, can you afford to miss your opportunity?

Big Circus at Sioux City

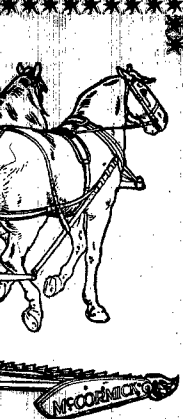

Barnum & Bailey, greatest show on earth is to visit Sioux City on Saturday, July 10. Never since the beginning of time has an amusement enterprise so tremendous in size been organized as this one. Its magnitude is almost beyond belief. All America, together with every foreign country, has been scoured from end to end by agents of this big show in search of novelties and the result is a performance brim full of sensational acts, new to the circus world. In the Barnum & Bailey show are nearly 400 arenic stars, most of whom are seen now for the first time. A new sensation will be seen in "Jupiter, the balloon horse." This remarkable horse with its fearless rider ascends to the dome of the circus tent in a balloon and descends in a shower of fireworks. Nearly 1,000 animal wonders are to be found in the big 108 cage menagerie; eight herds of elephants, including one herd that actually plays in tune. A group of giant giraffes, monster trained hippopotamus, only living bi-horned rhinoceros and hundreds of other strange beasts. Barnum & Bailey's big, new, free street parade is the most gorgeous procession display ever attempted in the history of circus business. Its tremendous size and wonderful length can only be believed in actual seeing. It is natural to expect this big circus to lead all others in quality and quantity of its street spectacle as well as in other departments of the big show, yet never in its splendid history of nearly half a century has it displayed such extravagance as shown this year.

The county commissioners met in regular monthly session yesterday. At this meeting comes the semi-annual settlement with the county officers and their reports.
The Sioux City papers the first of the week announced the marriage of Robert Mears and Miss Lucy Ulrich, both of Wayne. Beyond that we have not been able to learn anything regarding the event or the plans of the young couple.
Mrs. Elsie Littell, county superintendent, reports that the various school districts in the county are sending in their reports regarding the election of directors and other school matters in a very prompt manner.
Under the new primary law the 17th of July is the last day for filing as candidate for office. Up to Tuesday afternoon there had been one lone applicant in this county and that was for road supervisor in one of the county districts.
The foundation for John Larison's handsome new residence is nearing completion. Dark red pressed brick with stone trimmings, above the surface, give an indication of what may be expected later on. The lumber is also on the ground for the superstructure.
All the framework and rafters on the new school house are in position and most of the roof boards on, as is also the cornice. When the slate roofing gets in place one can readily see what a fine school home the district is going to have. The building looks much more sightly now that the roof is going on.

AN OLD TIMER.
Has Had Experiences.
 A woman who has used Postum since it came upon the market knows from experience the wisdom of using Postum in place of coffee. It is one value for health and a clear brain. She says:
 "At the time Postum was first put on the market I was suffering from nervous dyspepsia, and my physician had repeatedly told me not to use tea or coffee. Finally I decided to take his advice and try Postum. I got a package and had it carefully prepared, finding it delicious to the taste. So I continued its use and very soon its beneficial effects convinced me of its value, for I got well of my nervousness and dyspepsia.
 "My husband had been drinking coffee all his life until it had affected his nerves terribly, and I persuaded him to shift to Postum. It was easy to get him to make the change, for the Postum is so delicious. It certainly worked wonders for him.
 "We soon learned that Postum does not exhilarate or depress and does not stimulate, but steadily and honestly strengthens the nerves and the stomach.
 "To make a long story short, our entire family continued to use Postum with satisfactory results, as shown in the condition of health, and we have noticed a rather unexpected improvement in brain and nerve power.
 "Increased brain and nerve power follows the use of Postum in place of coffee, sometimes in a very marked manner. "There's a Reason," said the old timer for the famous little book "The Road to Wellville."
 "I read the above letter? A woman appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of sense."

 Rodney thought, "The poor French northmen, the widows and orphans, who had saved and saved, gave him everything they had, because he knew how to make money multiply as no one else did. He drew them pictures of the great factories and stores and hotels he would build for them with their money, and told them how by adding their infinite mites together they might produce something gigantic. How about those left without a sou?"
 "It was their own lookout," I tried to argue.
 "Well," said Rodney, "the right and wrong of this sort of thing is deep, but it may be that a man has no right to use his own imagination to see for other people; that he can build air-castles only for himself."
 "Perhaps," I agreed; "but, as you say, if he had succeeded, he would have been a hero."
 "That's all the difference. However, he didn't, and so he's an outcast." Rodney laughed. "And to think that I've been doing my best to defend the worst scapgrace the market has known in years."
 I sat back on my couch and clasped my hands about my knees.
 "What must we do now?" I asked at length.
 "Give him up; deliver his precious self and his treasure chest to the blood-bounds."
 I shook my head. "No, I can't do that. We've been too close together. If they take him, I can't have a hand in it." Rodney sat staring out of the window.
 "Well," said he, "I don't believe I can either, though as a broker I see my duty plain enough. I can't do it, I simply cannot do it."
 We sat silent for some time, each intent on his own thoughts.
 "Ought we to tell him that we know?" Rodney said finally.
 "I was wondering. Perhaps we should, but I don't believe we can. When you face him and look into those clear black eyes and hear that voice I doubt if there'll be anything to do but keep your mouth shut."
 "Yet we must do something," objected Rodney, "for I must be off for New York in two hours from now, to try and straighten out my losses."
 "Suppose we go down and look at him," I suggested. "Possibly we can think of something then."
 We went down-stairs and looked in the dining-room, the hallway, and the kitchen. In the kitchen we found Charles drowsing. We could find no trace of Duponceau. I walked Charles and questioned him.
 "When did you last see Monsieur Duponceau?"
 Charles rose and pulled a paper from his pocket.
 "Only a couple of minutes ago, Mr. Felix," he said, "I'm sure this note for you and me not to disturb you, but to give it to you when you asked for him."
 I opened the paper and read it to Rodney.
 "My ship has come at last. I am going on board. I can get there alone; no one could help me. If you know all, perchance you would not wish to help me. I have done sufficient harm without taking you and the others further. Ask Madame de la Roche to pray for me. Good-by."
 I looked up at Rodney in blank amazement; and we stood so, a shot came from the beach. We turned and made for the stairs.

CHAPTER XX.
 From the balcony we sighted a schooner lying between the beach and the Shifting Shoal. A long-boat was in the water, and men were hurriedly manning it. Below us on the beach stood Duponceau, a pistol in either hand, fronting a half-dozen of his enemies, who were between him and the cottage. I would have leaped to the matter was he far gone for that.
 Duponceau fired quickly, steadily, then wheeled and ran for the dunes. Bullets chased him, ploughed into the sand behind him, whizzed past him, but by some miracle failed to hit him. He reached the nearest sand-wall, and was hidden from us. A moment later and we saw him appear, his pistols reloaded, and watched him stand again at bay and catch a bullet in the forehead.
 Then again he fled for the next dune up the beach, and the pursuers, temporarily stayed, were after him again.
 It was to be a running fight, and the dunes, then hide, until the long-boat should ground upon the beach and the fugitive spring into it. I looked to the boat and prayed that it might come quickly, but the distance was long, and the sea ruffled and choppy.
 Again Duponceau appeared, and again the enemy was hid at bay, and dropped and ducked and dodged as his bullets flew among them.
 A moment's stand, and he was hidden in the next dune, loading, making ready for another dash. It was his brightest, speechless work. Rodney and I gripped our glasses, and our teeth, watched and hoped and prayed. Again the enemy were on, after him, gaining fast, and again he shot out from the dunes, and a lone figure, armed and scattered them with his shots, and he came down with a bullet in his leg and Duponceau had gained another breastwork.
 Now the boat from the schooner was coming closer in. I caught an agonized glance from Duponceau in its direction, then his eyes returned to his foes, and he was shooting, ducking, and squirting into the sand-wall. It was a pitiful chase, like that of a hare by hounds, but it was also heroic, for the man made a noble strategy, and the hounds were more than fearful of his fire.
 "He's down!" cried Rodney. True, Duponceau had fallen, but on the second he was up and on again, and now he had found the last dune, and he stood there or dash across the unprotected beach.
 "Come on!" We fled down the stairs, through the open door, and hard up the shore. Now we could see another element of danger. Some of the enemy had stolen through the pines, and were firing at Duponceau down the length of his dune.
 "Look!" I muttered. We stopped, breathless, panting, wide-eyed. Duponceau burst out from the dune, whistled about, fired back at the hidden foe, whistled and shot at the men who were following him up the beach, and, turning, headed straight for the ship.

 "Run!" I murmured, and Rodney echoed my: "Run, Duponceau, run, and may Heaven help!"
 I have seen him run, but never as Duponceau run that day. He seemed to skim, almost to fly, across that open space, and behind him came his enemies, no longer firing, no longer cursing, matching their speed against his frantic flight.
 The Frenchman reached the rocks, was on them, was up and clambering over the Ship's side. Then came a sharp report, and I could see Duponceau quiver and hang useless—worse than useless, for he was only half over the vessel's rail.
 "He's done!" I breathed.
 But as he hung there Barbara suddenly appeared beside him and pulled him inboard, supported him across the deck, and got him as far as the cabin door before he collapsed on the boards.
 "Barbara disappeared, and then reappeared with something in her arms."
 "The chest?" I muttered. "He couldn't forget that!"
 I saw Barbara lift and steady Duponceau on his feet, saw him clutch the box with one hand, while he held a revolver in the other. He staggered across the deck.
 "Come on!" I breathed, and we were off for the ship.
 The long-boat was half way in when a new shout threatened to sound Duponceau's death-knell. Men came out on the cliff and stood high above him, ready to fire down upon him. There was a ring about him now—enemies on the rocks, on the cliff, and men slowly scrambling through the water to lay their hands on him.
 "Look!" cried Rodney. I saw Barbara whisper in Duponceau's ear, saw him straighten up to his full height and fire at the men above him. One bullet ripped into the cliff, another shattered an arm.
 We stood now on the rocks, a stone's throw off. Duponceau looked seaward and gave a cry. With terrible effort, he leaped to the farther rail, raised himself to plunge—the box still in his arms—into the sea, and sink or swim to help. He balanced, crouched, and then—clear report and he fell, a broken body, down into the waves. His stand was over, the fight done; his enemies had taken him.
 A couple of men lifted him from the water and carried him to shore; another man followed with the chest. Rodney and I drew near and looked at him; he was conscious, and only his set teeth showed the agony he suffered.
 "It's over," he said. "The boat was late. Their eyes lighted on me, and he tried to smile. "Good-by," he muttered. "Take my good-by to her."
 Carefully the men lifted him and carried him into the pines.
 "He will live," said Rodney briefly, and I nodded. It was not for Duponceau to surrender easily, though I wondered if now he would not prefer it so.

SEATTLE APPRECIATED.
Iowan Yields to Its Charms, But Declines Its Pecuniary Offers.
 I wish all of the Ames people could have been here last evening to have seen the scenery, says a writer in the Ames, Iowa, Times. I sat upon the rear ambulatory while the tired day sank into the arms of restful night, when heaven seemed to ebb and then suddenly burst forth with the stars indescribably bright—it seemed like a canopy love had spread over a sleeping world. Night is here and darkness seems about to surround us as I remember that we are high above the great city of Seattle and I look upon it to see a million lights, representing every color of the rainbow, and here I sit, apparently suspended between the mechanical lights of earth and the twinkling, winking, blinking stars of heaven—each seems to outdo the other in beauty, splendor and glory—and then I turn my optics toward Puget Sound and then again I am caused to exclaim: "Oh, Jerusalem," for she in all her glory could not present such a pleasing sight. There were perhaps thirty-five boats steaming in all directions, all lighted up with var-colored lights, and here the great New York of the west seemed to be not content with progress on earth, but was trying to get through the pearly gates on water.
 At 12 I laid me down to sleep and slept till the sun (which seemed to have been in hiding just over on the other side of the Cascade Range) was just casting its beautiful rays across the green carpeted earth, conveying light to a happy race of slaves and kissing the crystal dew drops from the meadow's grassy fruit, just in time to hear the sweet songs of the bluebirds and the chirp of the robins and the sassy chatter of the blue jays as they flit through the interlacing boughs of those fine, stalwart pines in yonder grove, and the cow bells as they clang and clatter on the hillside over there—only to be disturbed by the rumble of the heavy trucks as they roll to and fro loaded with every conceivable kind of merchandise for the building of a greater Seattle by the erection of the thousands of new homes.
 Mrs. O'Brien as well as myself is enjoying the very best of health. I walked to reduce my flesh and have succeeded well, coming down from 212 on Feb. 15 to 132 to-day, but I am having all the fun any man can have, walking, bathing, fishing, boating, autoing, etc.
 I have been offered a position in a plaster mill, also a half interest in a real estate firm, and again a per cent interest in another real estate concern, in which George Ashford, son of ex-Sheriff Ashford of Story County, is interested. Also a position with a large hardware concern that employs forty-two clerks, but I don't think I will take it, as I came west to see the sights.

THE HOME AND ITS MISTRESS

The Widow a Good Wife.
 Recent statistics indicate that the popularity of the widow is wanting; but should this be the case she can most certainly afford to be generous, for her reputed charm has almost become proverbial. There are many instances of the second marriage of widows, and it is noticeable that the husband in such cases frequently happens to be the younger of the two. This is not extraordinary, for women invariably remain young longer than men, and a woman who has encountered the exceedingly enlightening experience of married life knows exactly how to deal with a man. She is intuitive and can instantly diagnose his mood. If he appears worried and dispirited, she is tactfully quiet and sympathetic. She does not force his confidence, because she realizes quiet well that he will probably tell her everything later on.
 When necessary a widow is more entertaining than a young girl. Her knowledge of life has made her interesting; her experience has sharpened her intellect, and she knows exactly what to say upon each occasion. As a hostess she is usually perfect. Her previous knowledge of married life has necessitated the acquirement of culinary art, and she realizes that a dainty, well-served dinner appeals to a man's soul quite as much as mere beauty of figure. The light baths have a sedative action in pressure, and are particularly useful in chronic inflammation, the after-effects of infectious disorders, for relieving the pain of neuritis, and in rheumatism and gout. They promise advantage in obesity and the arterial breaking-down of old age.
Women Make Good Farmers.
 Mrs. George Cran, an English farm girl, went to Canada to look into the work of women farmers in that country and thinks the prospects very bright for women in that work. She tells of one woman who in six years turned a wilderness into a remunerative farm, sixteen acres being in corn, six in alfalfa, with oats and barley and other things in the rest of her 600-acre farm. The woman has fifty hives of bees, seventy-five cows and sends all sorts of vegetables to market. She can have a husband, too, if she wants one, as she has had many "offers."
Why Men Wear Trousers.
 No living man of this age says the Providence Journal, ever deliberately chose to "adopt trousers." He was forced into them, and all other eccentricities of dress by woman. In the very earliest sartorial experience of every man he is swathed in a queer

SOME SHORT PARTY DRESSES.

Perhaps, after having learned to make the plain shirtwaist and the simple gingham dress, there is no easier road to progress for the home dressmaker than the way of the party dress. The short dancing frock, in especial, offers untold advantages for the inexperienced and conceals but few pitfalls. The neck, to begin with, is bare, and so, too, are

 The Shantung suit is promising as much popularity as ever as soon as the summer weather actually sets in.
 The ugly little fish tail train has gone out. In its place is a short square train copied from mediæval days.
 With sleeveless evening frocks scarfs of tulle or chiffon are often worn, tied about the arm halfway between the shoulder and elbow.
 The individual linen pockets or bags worn with the summer gown are frequently fastened with cords drawn through embroidered eyelets.
Bran and Oatmeal.
 Constantly the advice is given to use bran and oatmeal for softening and whitening the skin, yet comparatively few women know how to use it to the best advantage.
 The dry meal can be used on the moistened hands as is soap, but better effects are gained by making it into a wash or lotion.
 This is easily done by boiling a large handful of the meal in enough water to form a thin gruel.
 The liquid is then strained and used slightly more diluted when the hands are washed.
 As these washes quickly sour it is well to make two large quantities at once.
 To save trouble keep a small alcohol lamp in the bathroom and "boil the gruel in a tin vessel just large enough to hold the desired amount."
 It can be strained through squares of old muslin, which are later thrown away.
Simple, But Effective.
 An excellent model for a good-looking, dressy chapeau. Its construction is simple, but the effect is especially good. The hat is silver gray Neapolitan, trimmed with a crushed band of self-tone Louise ribbon, and on the left side at the very bottom and partly resting on the hair is a bunch of delicate pink roses and foliage.
Health-Giving Sunshine.
 The hygienic and curative effects of sunshine have been found in the rays of the incandescent electric lamp by M. de Larosette, a French medical man. Dr. Larosette increases the growth of plants, while destroying low forms like bacteria; and in men and other animals they cause marked stimulation of circulation and skin, increased sweating and cellular activity, and reduce pain. They may heat not to neglect her own appearance, for she understands that men appreciate elegance as a whole, although they seldom grasp the meaning of detail. Then with regard to the care of the family exchequer, a widow's experience is invaluable. At the expense of much suffering, she has learned the value of money. She knows how and where to buy, and gets good value for her expenditure; and this in itself is a great consideration for a young man. But perhaps unselfishness is the keynote of the widow's success. She has learned that she is not the all-important factor of the marriage contract. She recognizes that domestic art is her sphere in life, and she appreciates the dignity of her position. In fact, she is a "womanly" woman, and, as a rule, decidedly deserves her popularity.

ABOUT THE BABY.
 How annoying it is when baby carelessly lets bits of bread and milk fall upon the tablecloth. How irritating it is to see all one's careful ironing reduced to nothing so soon. It is trying, no doubt. But why not arrange baby's place to prevent accidents? That is easily done and without the assistance of a homely tin walter, too. The least objectionable protector of tablecloth is made of two oblongs of interlining. They may be sewed up just like a pillow case, if you prefer, or you might line the improvised tray better with each piece of linen was hemmed. Then two may be sewn together just inside the hem, and one end left open for the insertion of the oilcloth. You will certainly like the arrangement, and baby will rejoice if you allow him to, instead of scolding him too often for faults that tiny hands cannot prevent.
Wooling Slumber.
 The weary woman who wishes to woe sleep successfully should try a scented slumber cushion. Cased in a dainty cover of washing silk, the contents vary from vegetable down scented with lavender to the aromatic hop. Other fillings may be substituted at will by those who have access to freshly grown sweet herbs. Lemon thyme, sweet grass, verbena, sweet-scented oak-leaf geranium and clover bundle of incoherent bandages by a woman. Later she puts him into cute little dresses so that the neighbors can't tell him from his little sister. Still later she cuts off his curls and puts him into knickerbockers, and he puts on "long pants" when she gives the word and not before. That is all that man has to do or ever had to do with wearing trousers. Woman forced him into them in the first place, and now he is afraid to wear anything else for fear of making a sensation.

MILLINERY
 One of the prettiest summer girls I know, who seemed to have a hat to match each daily frock, let me into her secret the other day. Pulling out a big bandbox from under her bed she showed me her summer hats, just two in number. One was a handsome embroidered lingerie affair, and for this she had a bunch of several bows of various ribbons. These she took off and pinned on as needed. The other hat was—but perhaps you know the girl. She will not mind telling you another of her secrets. She found, when making a new hat, that it was difficult to determine whether a shape would be becoming. Therefore before purchasing the material she hopes to use, she covers a hat frame with colored muslin or crepe paper. This method practically solves all the main points to be considered. She learns the amount of silk or cloth necessary for the operation, for she carefully measures the paper or muslin which she has experimented. She tests the trimmings in the same way, by adjusting ribbons and flowers in varying ways until she has attained the best combination.—American Home Monthly.

Education.

The class in very elementary chemistry was having one of its early sessions. The matter of sea water came up. "Peter," said the teacher, "can you tell me what is it that makes the water of the sea so salty?" "Salt," said Peter. "What is it that makes the water of the sea so salty?" "The salty quality of the sea water," answered Peter. "Is due to the admixture of a sufficient quantity of chlorid of sodium to impart to the aqueous fluid with which it commingles a saline flavor, which is readily recognized by the organs of taste!" "Right, Next," said the teacher, "Go up one!"

THE DIVINE IMAGE

By Rev. Junius B. Romensnyder.

And God said, let us make man in our image after our likeness.

There are two theories as to the origin of man. One would bring him from the earth beneath, placing him on the earth as a new creature. The other, the biblical, brings him down from above.

According to Genesis, man was made in the Divine "likeness." What are the marks of this "image of God?"

First, the gift of reason. God is a rational, thinking spirit. And, in distinction from the lower creatures, He has stamped upon us this likeness of Himself. God has given His mathematical thoughts upon atoms and crystals and snowflakes and on stars and worlds, and we can read these thoughts and admire the wonderful picture He has painted in the vast gallery of nature because we have a faculty of reason akin to His own.

The "image of God" again, consists in freedom. God is free. He knows no law but His sovereign will. He does what He chooses to do. Nature is under the grip of law. Necessity holds it with unyielding hand. The animals obey their inevitable instincts. But God has clothed man with this Divine prerogative of free will. "His mind to him a kingdom is."

To Him pertains the power of choice. He is the architect of his own soul. He is the fashioner of his own destiny. In the exercise of this precious power he can raise himself to the angels or degrade himself below the brutes.

The "image of God" further appears in man's moral nature. As power characterizes the pagan deities, so righteousness and goodness characterize Jehovah. The seat of man's likeness to this divine quality is in his conscience. To be pure in heart, to shun injustice and wrong, to cherish noble and unselfish ideals, to do good to fellow men, this likeness one most of all to God, his maker.

This unique truth should imbue man with a sense of his greatness. It should impel him to self-respect. To stoop to the low and mean is to do violence to his high nature and to commit sacrilege against God, whose image he wears. Only good and noble ends are worthy of him.

Again it shows that we are fitted for divine fellowship. Man's thoughts can reach up and God's thoughts can come down and meet, because our nature is akin. Hence we can have secret speech with God. Prayer is justified. The whispers of our souls are the voices of a soul that beats on the shore of life, but of a sea that stretches away to shores where is set the throne of God.

We ought respect for our fellow man. In every one, no matter how fallen, we should see vestiges of this divine lineage. Hence, too, issues a sure hope of immortality. The supreme characteristics of God is that "He liveth forever." We are made in His image; we cannot die. We have the inbreathing of an Indestructible life.

Let no one, then, mar this "image of God," but preserve its pristine beauty and remember that He who made us in His likeness made us for Himself to serve not perishing, but the noblest ends of being.

DARKNESS OF PROVIDENCE.

By Rev. W. H. Baker.

Text—"Jesus answered and said unto him, What I do thou knowest not, but thou shalt know hereafter."—John 13:7.

The darkness rests upon Providence because of its complexity. Even if God's dealings with us had reference to ourselves, they would be hard enough to understand. What man can tell the uses to which God means to put him, the glory to which He means to exalt him, even in this world; how much less than in the world to come! These threads of the earthly life, how they stretch beyond the chasm of death and are woven into a new web, glows the stars! But the problem is rendered vastly more complex for us by the interdependence of all our lives. Each thread is necessary to the integrity of the fabric, and has its relation to all other threads. It is in life as in the diagrams of the mathematician, where the same line may represent the side of many different figures. Our personal history touches that of many another, and our influence ramifies through the society in which we move.

The great law of faith renders mystery indispensable. Faith is the law of this probationary dispensation, just as knowledge is the law of the dispensation of reward. If a man says that the doctrine of God's word is incomprehensible, the answer is twofold. God is infinite, and He cannot be perfectly comprehended or apprehended by finite minds. His truths, like the mountains, lift their gray heads and hide themselves in the clouds of heaven; and though we pass around the base, and partly take their measure, we must always enter the world in which these mysteries are lost to sight, before we can take their altitude. Then another answer may be returned, that this intellect of ours must, along with affections and the will, be put upon probation. It is the whole man that God is providing, educating, training. Does not God in this world put the intellect of the creature upon its trial before Him so that he shall see the reasonableness of accepting all the high mysteries of grace, simply by the testimony upon which they rest? This law of faith extends no less to the conscience, inasmuch as the law is made the sole standard of rectitude to man, and he is not permitted to guide himself by his natural conscience except as that conscience is enlightened by God's infallible rule of right.

is set on 2x6-in. runners and the house is 9 ft. 4 in. long and 7 ft. 8 in. wide. A tight, smooth floor, with no cracks or knot holes, is essential. The frame will allow 16 ft. boards and battens to be sawed in two.

At each end of the house is a door 2 ft. wide and 2 ft. 6 in. high, which slips up and down between grooves or cleats, and is held up by a rope passing through a small pulley at the ridge. It is quite desirable to have doors at both ends.

THE FARM CREAM SEPARATOR

Butter making in the home dairy and creamery has been almost revolutionized by the introduction of the farm separator, which separates cream from milk by a centrifugal process. The shallow pan or crock system and the deep-setting system have been largely eliminated, and with their exit a considerable part of the drudgery of the household disappeared. The farmer is now no longer required to make the daily trip to the creamery; he can retain the skim milk to feed his calves and pigs and deliver the cream, sweet, every other day, when properly cared for, and this substitution of cream delivery for milk delivery by creamery patrons saves them labor and millions of dollars yearly in expense.—Report Secretary United States Department of Agriculture.

The Lost Cud. "I wish," said an experienced veterinary, "that I had all the cloth which has been wasted in manufacturing cuds to replace those 'lost.' This is one of the dregs of superstition which still clings in some places. The cud returned to the mouth after entering the first stomach, and its loss is the indication of indigestion, generally an indication of disease. This is most often retained should when cows are heavily laden, they are on it appear in summer when they are in pasture, but receiving some for it is well to remove the latter ration a few days. After a day or two give a pound of Epsom salts mixed in two quarts of warm water. After she resumes her cud feed for a time on green grass and good hay, gradually working back to the grain ration.

Dynamite for Tree Planting. Holes for tree planting, according to the Engineering Record, have been excavated by the Long Island Railway by blasting with dynamite. A hole about two feet deep was first dug with a posthole augur at an angle of about 35 degrees with the surface and loaded with half a stick of 40 per cent dynamite. This shot makes a hole about two feet deep and three feet in diameter, leaving the earth in the bottom pulverized suitably for planting. It is stated that two men can thus excavate 250 holes per ten-hour day at a cost of about 7½ cents per hole.

Waste in Manure. Piling manure in the open insures a big waste. The Cornell Experiment Station piled two tons of fresh horse manure in an exposed place. In five months it lost 5 per cent in gross weight, 60 per cent of its nitrogen, 47 per cent of its phosphoric acid and 76 per cent of its potash. Here was an average loss of 61 per cent in plant food more than the weight loss. In other words, the rotted, concentrated manure, ton for ton, was worth less than the fresh manure.

Pickle for Curing Meats. Fourteen pounds salt, four ounces saltpeter, two ounces saleratus, five pounds brown sugar, tablespoonful of red pepper, twelve gallons of water, to be mixed in a cold state. The above quantity is sufficient for 4000 pounds. If the pickle gets moldy, boil and cool and use again. For pickling, heat, four gallons of water, one and a half pounds of brown sugar, six pounds salt, two and a half ounces of saltpeter to a hundred pounds of beef.—Rural New Yorker.

English Harness Blacking. Three ounces of turpentine and two ounces of white wax are dissolved together over a slow fire. Then add one ounce of ivory black and one dram of indigo well pulverized and mix together. When the wax and turpentine are dissolved, add the ivory black and indigo and stir until cold. Apply thin. Wash afterward, and you will have a beautiful polish. This blacking keeps the harness soft and is excellent for harness and buggy tops.

Pure Milk. Certified milk sells in all large cities for about twice the price of other milk. It is absolutely clean, no impurities being allowed to get into the milk. A layer of fine cheesecloth is stretched over the milk pail, a layer of absorbent cotton is placed upon that, then another piece of cheesecloth. There is no sediment in the bottom of the milk vessels of milk treated in this way. It is not expensive either.

War on Bad Seed. Good work in detecting adulterated seeds is being carried on by the Department of Agriculture. Of 1,471 samples of seeds taken last year 102 samples were found adulterated or misbranded. The department publishes the results of the test, together with the names of the firms that sold the seed. It is claimed that since this work began the trade in adulterated seeds has fallen off greatly.

Creamery Butter Production. The 1900 census gave the total amount of creamery butter made in the United States as 420,126,000 pounds. In 1904 the figures had increased to 531,480,000, and it is estimated that the 1910 figures will reach fully 725,000,000 pounds.

The Apple Country of Europe. Normandy is the apple country of Europe. Germany is its best customer. The apples which could not be sold were turned into 73,000,000 gallons of cider, which is the favorite beverage of the inhabitants of Northern France.

Milk Vessels. Use no wooden milk vessels, and after washing milk vessels set them out with cold water after the final scalding. Leave them hot, so they will dry quickly and not get musty.

New Milk. As a rule milk is unfit for use at least two weeks before calving time. However, some cows' milk seems to be good almost up to calving time.

Dearest Myra—All's well with children; no sickness or anything serious—it's finance; just as we expected. They've spent without appreciating it, a little here and there, but the small things all rolled together into a big ball of misery. Their money practically gave out before Thanksgiving, and so they stayed here and ate—corned beef! I gulped with Betty over that.

You see on the first of November the bill came in and the rent fell due, and Betty's salary couldn't cover them. They were in despair; stayed awake planning how to meet it, and wondering if they could write home to us. One day a letter from a loan agency offered money ahead on his salary and guaranteed security. Poor Bob borrowed eight dollars, which paid the bills and left just enough to drag through the month. But ever since he has been hounded; threatened with exposure, disgrace and the law; while as for their demand, it's sure!

I gave him the money to pay those wolves in full, and he is now a new man. We had a long talk, with the result
