MANY THINGS SAID OF WAYNE

ITEMS FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Tales Tensely Told About the Town and People

Winside Tribune:
A red pig has been lost in Wayne. Lots of fellows will hunt for a blind pig but not many for a red pig.

Lyons Sun:
Dr. Will O'Neil and wife, of Lyons, were down at Lyons last Saturday spending the day among their many old time friends. The Sun understands that the doctor caught on sport royally at Wayne and now sports an automobile.

Wausa Gazette:
Mr. and Mrs. E. Lundberg of Wayne, Nebraska, came up last Saturday for a couple of days visit at the L. Hanson home in this city. Mrs. Hanson having returned home from her visit to Iowa in the latter part of the week previous.

Pierce Call:
L. A. Fanske, who visited in Pierce last week with his brother, E. B. Fanske, and sisters, Mesdames John and George Drebert, left Sunday for Wayne where he has purchased a stock of jewelry. E. B. Fanske accompanied his brother to Wayne and assisted in invoicing the stock, returning home Wednesday.

Bloomfield Monitor:
The Monitor is in receipt of the catalogue announcing the third annual assembly of the Wayne Chautauqua, which will be held at Wayne July 22 to 29, 1909. Among their list of attractions they have a number of splendid events which will give a week of excellent entertainment.

Laurel Advocate:
The Wayne Brick yard is threatened with the possibility of being compelled to close on account of being unable to get common laborers at $2 a day. When labor is going begging in this way is it right to help these strong able bodied men who are around almost daily asking for the price of a meal? They are professional tramps and beggars, and will not work unless compelled to do so.

Ponder Republic:
The Wayne Chautauqua will be held July 22 to 29 inclusive. This Chautauqua has evidently come to stay. It is now recognized as an annual event to be planned for and enjoyed by many hundreds of people. Excursions will be run from near-by towns in order that those who are not able to leave home for any extended length of time may have the privilege of attending one or two days.

Ponca Leader:
Some of the young bloods about Wayne, who have reached the age when they "know it all," started shooting up the town Sunday night with fireworks and such like and landed in the city lockup.

A smooth stranger has been working in the vicinity of Wayne selling packing house shoulder for ham, and at four cents higher than it can be bought at the home butchers. If the Wayne butchers advertised more about their prices the people would not be caught so easily.

This office is in receipt of a pamphlet announcing the Wayne Chautauqua July 22 to 29. They have secured some of the best talent and among them we find Governor Shallenberger listed to open the chautauqua on the afternoon of July 22nd. He will speak upon the subject "Political Patriotism."

Corn Raisers Wake Up

We have taken occasion several times since taking hold of the Herald to call attention to the lack of interest on the part of the farmers and others in advertising the advantages of Wayne county as to its soil and products. There is nothing that goes farther and helps more than to come in touch with others at the various corn exhibits, fairs, etc., where the products of one county and state are brought in contrast and competition with those of other counties. Last year at the National Corn Exposition at Omaha there was not a single exhibit from Wayne county, nor so far as we know at any of the fairs or expositions and corn shows held in this part of the state. It was not because there were no good corn or other farm products raised in Wayne county, nor that it has not as good a line of stock, poultry, etc. as any county in the state, but simply because those having those things did not take the time nor have the interest sufficient to make the exhibit. Others besides ourselves have noticed this defect and are taking steps this year to see if a remedy cannot be provided. Foremost among these is A. M. Coleman, who has come to the front and offers one of his thoroughbred Poland China Gilts for the best ten ears of corn grown in Wayne county and shown at the National Corn Show in Omaha next December from the 6th to the 15th. That is a prize well worth contending for but there will be many others, not only there but elsewhere. The Wayne Commercial Club intends to hold a corn show in Wayne this coming fall. There will be liberal premiums to this and also other like exhibits in this part of the state. Wake up to your possibilities and opportunities and show to the outside world what we can raise and produce in Wayne county. It will pay.

Beware of Getting into Trouble

Now that the warm and hot season of the year is on, farmers should be very careful about what kind of eggs they bring to town or they may get themselves into trouble. Eggs have been received at the different stores that were not only bad but entirely rotten. Should a food inspector happen around and catch such hen fruit being brought in, things would be made pretty warm for the party. Another thing is the dissatisfaction caused by the people buying these eggs, for they come back on the merchant who sold the eggs to them and the merchant is the loser both ways. Better test the eggs before you bring them into town.—Wausa Gazette.

Why Not Try It

Arlington is experimenting with the method recommended by the government for improving streets in the kind of soil we have here in Nebraska. It is simply in covering the street with sand and working it into the mud after a rain. It is supposed to make a hard surface that will turn the water and thus be almost equal to paving. Why not give it a trial on the streets of Wayne at least one block this year. The mud never gets very deep here but it is the stickiest mud we have ever seen. If good streets can be had with such a process, Wayne ought to have them.

Tennis Tourney

Next Tuesday and Wednesday are the days set for the North-western Nebraska Tennis Tournament to be held in Wayne. There will be Tennis Clubs here from Allen, Wakefield, Wausa, Bloomfield and a number of other towns in this part of the state. The preliminary games will all be played on the courts at the Nebraska Normal College and the finals at the court at the W. O. Gamble residence. A handsome cup and other prizes are offered for the contestants in the various games and they are all on exhibition in the window of J. G. Mines' Jewelry Store. If you understand the game at all these various contests will be interesting to you and the Wayne players are going to do their best to keep the prizes here.

Resents The Insinuation

Naturally enough our thriving neighbor to the west—Winside—resents the insinuation that there are only forty families in the village. The Tribune says: "According to the census of 1900, Winside contained over 400 in population and since that time it has grown from a village into an enterprising little city. We have a fine new school building, waterworks, a mile of paved walks, have voted bonds for a lighting system and have a park in the business portion of the town that is the joy and pride of our people and which excites the admiration and wonder of all visitors. It has caused Winside to become a summer resort and several from other places spend the season here, and unless all plans fail we will soon have an artificial lake that will be a further inducement to pleasure seekers and more comfort to our people. So Winside naturally resents any insinuation, even though it be started as a joke, that she is a little hamlet of forty families, which means 200 people. The census of 1910 will be an astonishing revelation concerning the town."

WEDDING BELLS

Prominent Young Society People Wed

At the home of Mrs. Nettie Sears, at Wayne, Nebraska, Tuesday, July 6, at 7 a. m., Rev. Smith, of the Baptist church officiating, Charles Wood, of Ellis, Nebraska, and Nettie Sears, of Wayne, were united for life's journey in the holy bonds of wedlock. The young people were treated the night before to a tin shower and pre-nuptial charivari by the young people of Wayne and left the next morning immediately after the ceremony for their future home here. Charles Wood needs no introduction to the people of this community having been in business here for several years and by his unflinching courtesy and moral uprightness won the esteem of all. He is a graduate of the Auburn high school, class of 1900, and Bellevue College, 1904. Mrs. Wood is a prominent educator of Wayne, a graduate of the Wayne Normal and a highly successful teacher, and taught school in the Madden district last winter. Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Wood held a reception at their home and about one hundred of the townspeople and young folks of the community gathered to congratulate the happy couple and wish them Godspeed upon their journey through life. The Barren and Doreas classes of the Sunday school of which Mr. and Mrs. Wood were members respectively gave them a beautiful hat, three and three-piece set of silverware while the Bible class gave them a handsome rocker. Also there were many other handsome gifts given by the relatives. The out-of-town guests were the Misses Genevieve and Marie Cross, Flo Clark, Messrs Homer and Oscar Yeakle, Racy and Rastus Clark, of Fairbury; Miss Nellie Gridley, of Humboldt, and C. H. Mayburn, of Beatrice. The News joins their many friends in wishing them a long and happy journey together through life.—Ellis News.

ELECTION LAW INVALID

Nebraska's New Judiciary Act Passed on by Supreme Court

Lincoln, Neb., July 12. The supreme court of the state handed down a decision declaring the Donahue nonpartisan judiciary election law invalid. This of the supreme court, district courts, regents of the university, county judges and county superintendents by use of a separate ballot cannot take place. The old law will continue to hold. The chief objection of the court was to the provision requiring 5,000 names to be on a petition for judge, not more than 500 of which could come from one county. They declared that it was a hindrance to the free exercise of the franchise and was repugnant to the constitution of the state. The entire court declared the provision denying the right of party conventions to indorse candidates for the offices affected by the act was without force and void. C. O. Whedon and John C. Cowan represented the republican state central committee in the test of the law which that body characterized as a political measure calculated to give the minority party in the state a better chance to elect judges of the supreme court.

The Boy and the Farm

The fact is being noted, says the Warrington Hawkeye, that there is less of an exodus from the farm to the towns. The bright lad on the farm is bright enough and sufficient well informed to know that there is a better living, a surer and shorter road to wealth on the farm than anywhere else in the country. But strange as it may seem, money does not tempt everybody. It does not tempt the vast majority. If everybody had been fully convinced by the teaching of the past forty or fifty years, there would be Hades on earth right here in this glorious country of ours. Despite the teaching and lauding of the so-called success, the eyes and the thoughts of many were turning to other things. And farming grew distasteful to many, but it was the same thing over and over again. The very recent past has brought a change. The new agriculture has awakened and interested hundreds of thousands. Farming has ceased to be mere drudgery, and almost over night has become a science. And there is much to be done, much to be learned and achieved, there are countless problems to be solved. And there is every day and every hour, something of absorbing interest in the soil for the man who keeps up with the progress of the times, and who farms with his head as well as with his hands.

The seed corn specialists and other object lessons were but the beginning. Other crops are receiving attention and the farmers are just beginning to learn to farm, or rather to see the possibilities of future farming. And the bright boys remain on the farm, for it is there that there is progress, that there is ever something new and interesting, while the work in office or shop in town is often the veriest drudgery, the sort of monotony that deadens and finally kills.

Why Boys Go to the City

The country boy goes to the city because city life is more attractive to him than farm life. He sees the attractiveness of the city, but not its misery and crime. He knows the drudgery of the farm, but does not appreciate the opportunities. The country boy will stay on the farm when the farm compares with the city in attractiveness. Country gas light, furnace heat and systems waterworks may make the farm home as full of comforts as the city home. Scientific tilling of the soil and pure-bred stock raising should furnish as interesting employment as anything in the city. The mistake lies right here. Many farmers think that their sons and daughters should be satisfied with the same home comforts and luxuries they have had. Their surplus earnings are often spent in trying to buy "all the land that joins them," instead of trying to make the country home life ideal. The magnetic influence of an attractive home will largely solve the problem of keeping the boys on the farm.

Advertise The State

The time is now here when in order to advertise to the world the wonderful resources of Nebraska, we must gather specimens of grains, and grasses for exhibition at the State Fair, September 6th to 10th. In gathering these specimens go into your field and select the very best grain before it has fully ripened, pull it up by the roots, wrap loosely in burlap sack so that it will cure nearly perfect to color as possible, and hang it up head down in the barn or on the butt, heavy piece of twine neck tie, and will be sufficient to hold it together, and hang it up by. Do this for the benefits derived from advertising your county and when your county society selects the man to have charge of the exhibit, notify him that you have such sample of grain or grass and see that you deliver it to him at the proper time. Stand up for Nebraska.

The Hartington Herald says: "This business of working hard for ten hours a day or more during the hot months is all wrong and when we get more sense we will all shut up shop during July and August and take a vacation." If this theory were followed out by the farmers, manufacturers and producers generally there would be a whole lot of people starve to death.

The United States circuit court of appeals has affirmed the judgment of the lower court that certified checks deposited with municipalities as a guaranty to enter into a contract in case such contract is awarded to bidders on public works, becomes the property of the municipality by forfeit in the event that the successful bidder fails to enter into such contract.

Governor Shallenberger will open the Wayne Chautauqua next Thursday, July 22nd. He should be given a large hearing, not alone because he is the governor of a great state, but because of what he has to say.

MORE PINKHAM CURES

Added to the Long List due to This Famous Remedy.

Camden, N. J.—"It is with pleasure that I add my testimonial to your already long list—hoping that it may induce others to avail themselves of this valuable medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I suffered from terrible headaches, pain in my back and right side, was tired and nervous, and so weakly that I could hardly get on my feet. I tried many other remedies, but they did me no good. I finally bought a box of your Compound, and it cured me. I feel like a new person, and it will always have my praise."
—Mrs. W. P. VALLEY, 602 Lincoln Avenue, Camden, N. J.—"I was a great sufferer from a female disease. The doctor said I would have to go to the hospital for an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me in three months."
—Mrs. S. A. WILSON, R. F. D. No. 14, Box 100, Camden, N. J.—"Because your case is a difficult one, doctors having done you no good, do not continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It surely has cured many cases of female life, such as irregular menstruation, displacements, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, indigestion, dizziness, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result is worth millions to many suffering women."

Worms

"I was certainly fine. I have a friend who when the doctor was treating him for cancer of the stomach, he next morning he passed a quantity of large worms. He took a box of your Compound, and in three days he passed a large worm 4 feet long. It was Mr. Matt. Reed, of Millersburg, Pa. I am quite a worker for Cancer Relief. I like them myself, and find them beneficial for many cases of cancer by impure blood."
—G. E. COLEMAN, Lewisburg, Pa. (Midd. Co.)

What Gold Cannot Buy

by MRS. ALEXANDER
Author of "A Crooked Path," "Maid, Wife or Widow," "The Woman's World," "The Woman's Choice," "A Woman's Heart."

WHAT GOLD CANNOT BUY is one of the star stories. It is rarely that a better one is offered. Its class is that of the home circle, and this powerful serial is recommended for its forceful delineation of every-day characters in connection with simple, yet animating incidents that form the history of interesting lives.

Mrs. Saville is a wealthy, self-willed woman, whose imperious nature brooks no opposition. She really believes that her money will buy her not only luxury and ease, but power. She thinks that power will enable her to gain and guide those about her to her own will, but she finds that there is something that gold will not buy, namely, love.

In a most interesting way the romance tells how her son, Hugh Saville, marries the girl of his choice against the wishes of his mother. She turns him from her home and he is sent to war. His wife determines, during his absence, to win the love of the selfish mother. Under a false name she becomes engaged as the companion of Mrs. Saville.

The story of her trials, her patience, her humiliations brings out the nobility of her true nature and perfect womanhood. Day by day she wins the love of the lonely old woman, whose false pride and wasted wealth sink into nothingness in the final reconciliation with her son, and this charming romance ends in a happiness that has been well and worthily won by a most captivating and worthy heroine.

CHAPTER I.

Mrs. Saville had stayed unusually long in town, and at the moment chosen to open this story, was sitting at the writing-table in her private room, a richly-furnished and luxurious apartment with yellow brocade curtains and stained-glass windows. She was a small, slight woman, with regular, delicate features, quick, dark eyes, and hair nearly white, combed back and surrounded by a tiny cap of exquisite lace with a tuft of scarlet velvet ribbon. The small thin hand which held her pen was loaded with rings that flashed and glittered even in the subdued sunshine, while the other gently caressed the head of a small, silky, pearl-colored dog which lay on a chair beside her.

She was speaking with a fair, large lady about her own age, who occupied an arm chair at the other side of the table, and who doted gorgiously attired in outdoor dress.

"I am sure I interrupt you. You are always so busy," said the latter, with a comfortable smile, but showing no inclination to move.

"I do not mind being interrupted this morning," returned Mrs. Saville, not too graciously, "my eyes are very tiresome. They smart so when I read or write for any time. I really must get an amanuensis."

"Is it possible? I should never suspect your eyes of being weak. They seem strong enough and sharp enough to see through anything."

"Thank you; they have served my purpose well enough."

"When do you leave town?"

"I am not quite sure. I do not care to go until Hugh returns. He ought to be here now. This scare about trouble with Russia may bring him his appointment to a ship any day, and he ought to be on the spot. He has been ashore now for nearly a year."

"I wonder he chose the navy," said the visitor. "I should think the army must be much the most agreeable profession."

"My dear Lady Olivia, who can account for a young man's vagaries? My son is positively enthusiastic about his profession. He is very scientific, you know, and will, I have no doubt, rise to great eminence."

"Oh, I dare say he is very clever, but he is not a bit like other young men. I confess I do not understand him."

"No," returned Mrs. Saville, with much composure, "I don't suppose you do."

"Not clever enough myself, eh?" said Lady Olivia, with a good-humored smile. "Where is this bright particular star of yours just now?"

"When he last wrote he was still at Nice. He has stayed on there too long, I think. I trust and hope he does not visit Monte Carlo too often; I am not much obliged to Lord Everton for introducing Hugh to his gambling friends there."

"I don't fancy poor Everton's friends are generally worth to be considered eligible acquaintances for the young and inexperienced, especially when they have pretty daughters who sing like angels—or prima donnas," she added, with a comfortable laugh.

"Pooh!" cried Mrs. Saville, with a flash of anger in her keen black eyes. "Hugh is quite indifferent to all that nonsense."

"Is he? What an unnatural monster!" said Lady Olivia, rising. "I wish I could say the same of my Gergeet! However, he has taken to educating married women lately—which is a great relief."

Mrs. Saville also stood up, and rang the bell. "Where is Everton just now? I want him so much to write to his cousin, Captain Brydges, on Hugh's behalf. I don't understand how it was he did not do so before on his own account."

"Oh, nobody knows where Everton is to be found. He is coming to us in September at Herondyke."

"Lady Olivia Lumley's carriage," said Mrs. Saville to the man who answered the bell.

"Good morning, then, dear Elizabeth. Don't try your eyes too much. Shall we meet you at the Montgomery's tea-tight?"

"No; I am really sick of seriously," "My dear, you must be seriously ill!" cried Lady Olivia, with another good-humored but rather silly laugh, and the sisters-in-law shook hands, and parted.

Mrs. Saville picked up her little dog and took a turn up and down the room with it under her left arm, a look of extreme annoyance quivering in her eyes. "What a fool that woman is! she murdered to herself, 'not even a well-bred fool' and to look at her, who would imagine she was the daughter of one earl, the sister of another? yet there she is, started by the mere accident of birth in a position which cost me all my fortune, my aristocratic marriage, my brains, to achieve. Still, I do not complain; had these class distinctions not existed, there would have been nothing to strive for, nothing to attain. Still, Lady Olivia is a fool; you are a wiseacre to her, my precious Prince!" she continued, patting the dog's head; "you are a natural aristocrat; so is Hugh, though he has some abominably radical ideas."

Here the footman opened the door, and said, deferentially, "If you please, Mr. Rawson would like to see you."

"Yes, certainly. Show him up."

In a few minutes the door again opened, to admit a gentleman, a short, stout, well-dressed man, slightly breathless, and apparently well braced up in his admirably-fitting clothes. His hair and complexion were of that neutral tint which is termed "pepper and salt," his eyes light gray and twinkling with a perception of the ridiculous, and his air, though it was politely respectful, showed a certain assured familiarity indicative of a confidential position.

"Well, Mr. Rawson," said Mrs. Saville, resuming her seat and placing her small favorite on the chair beside her, "what has brought you here to-day?"

Her tone was considerably more amiable than it had been to her previous visitor.

"What will, I hope, give you satisfaction. I fancy we will succeed in getting that piece of the Everton property you have been so anxious to purchase, for your price, and it will be a vendor's solicitor finally on Thursday, when I fancy he will come in to our terms."

"I am very pleased, Mr. Rawson, very pleased indeed. I must say, you always manage my business most satisfactorily. But you say several farms on the property are unlet. Now, I want my money to bring me in a decent percentage. What do you propose doing with the land?" Whereupon solicitor and client plunged into an animated discussion, in which Mrs. Saville proved herself to be a shrewd woman of business.

"Well, Mr. Rawson," she said, after a short pause, "respecting a smaller matter, yet not an unimportant one. Have you made any inquiries about an amanuensis or companion for me?"

"I hardly thought you were serious in the wish you expressed—"

"I am, exceedingly serious," she interrupted. "My maid, who has just left me, was really a very superior person, and could read aloud very well; now I have a totally different woman. I must have some one who is fairly educated, who can write, and keep accounts, and read French—like French novels; she must be fit to associate with, yet ready to leave me to myself at a nod; I cannot be hampered with any one whose feelings I have to consider. She must have pleasant manners and a sweet voice, and look fit to be seen at luncheon and when she comes out with me."

"My dear madam, you have indeed set me a task! You must give me some time to find out such a treasure."

"I cannot give you much time. You must find her as soon as you possibly can. Advertise in all the papers; heaps of young women will apply; pick out one or two, but on no account let me be worried with an indiscriminate string of candidates; I know I shall be disgusted with them. I will not ask any of my acquaintances; they always recommend the most unsuitable people and are offended if you do not take their proteges. Then they bore you with pitiful stories. No, my dear Mr. Rawson, let it be a purely business matter."

"I shall do my best. Suppose I try an advertisement in a provincial paper—"

"Do what you like; only remember I must have a presentable, well-educated, well-mannered young woman—young, mind, who will save me trouble, not give me any."

"The labors of Hercules were a trifle to this," sighed Mr. Rawson.

"Oh, you will do it as cleverly as you do everything. Now, tell me, have you heard anything of my son lately?"

"Of which, may I ask?—Mr. Saville?"

"No; of Hugh."

"Well, no, not for a week. He was at Nice, I think."

"I know that, and it makes me very uneasy. Why does he stay there? It is not the season."

"Are you afraid of Monte Carlo? I don't think you need be. Mr. Hugh Saville never was inclined to gamble."

"I am afraid of something much worse—a designing woman."

"Indeed!" And Mr. Rawson glanced curiously at her.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Saville, stroking the little dog's head thoughtfully. "When he was abroad some time ago he made the acquaintance of a horrid old gambling, disreputable friend of Lord Everton's. This man has a daughter, and I heard accidentally that Hugh was a great deal with her. When my son returned I warned him against such penniless adventurers. He laughed in an odd, bitter way, and said, 'Don't trouble yourself, my dear mother; Miss Hilton would not look at me. I at once saw some deep scheme in this; don't you?'"

"Well, I can't possibly say; there are so many sides to human nature—feminine human nature especially. The young lady would be rather peculiar if she would not look at Mr. Hugh Saville. I should say he was rather a pleasant object."

"I know you are fond of Hugh, Mr. Rawson; your regard for him strengthens the old ties that your excellent services has created."

"Humph!" said Rawson to himself, "does she think I am her footman?" "Yes," he observed, "your son was a true friend to my poor wild lad. It's owing to him that he is what he is now, and has a chance of a respectable life."

"I am very glad he was of use to your son," returned Mrs. Saville, with an air of infinite superiority. "But, Mr. Rawson, do you not think Hugh's answer evasive?"

"Mr. Hugh Saville is never evasive. He may have been a little buffed with the young lady."

"Then she was on the track of some other prey," said Mrs. Saville, scornfully. "I have an admirable match for Hugh, desirable in every way; so, when I found he had wandered back to Nice and was lingering there, I felt not a little uneasy."

"Did you say the young lady's name is Hilton?"

"Yes," asked Rawson, suddenly. "Yes; her father is, or calls himself, Captain Hilton."

"Then I don't think you need distress yourself. I saw the death of a Captain Hilton about a fortnight ago in a newspaper. He died somewhere in France, but not at Nice. I noticed the name because—oh, because I have heard Lord Everton speak of him."

"How can you tell if he be the same?"

Mrs. Saville was beginning, with great animation, when the butler appeared, carrying on a salver a large envelope bearing the inscription "On Her Majesty's Service" and addressed to Lieutenant Hugh Saville.

"This is some appointment for my son," cried Mrs. Saville. "I knew it would come in this unexpected way. Is it not marvellous that he should be about?" As she spoke, she tore the letter open and glanced at it, and exclaiming, "Yes, as I thought!" handed it to her confidential adviser. He took it, and read as follows:

"Admiralty, Whitehall, July 20.

"Sir—I have the honor to inform you that you are appointed to H. M. S. Vortebra, Flagship of Admiral Warlaw, on the West Indian Station.

"You will proceed by the Mail leaving Southampton on the 20th instant for Port Royal, Jamaica.

"If H. M. S. Vortebra has left, you will report yourself to the Senior Naval Officer, from whom you will get directions where to join your ship.

"I have the honor to be, sir, your obedient servant,

"ROBERT BROWN,
Secretary to the Admiralty."
"To Lieutenant Hugh Saville, Stafford Square, S. W."

"There, that is just the opening Hugh has wished for—Lieutenant of the flagship on the West Indian Station. Why, if this threatened rupture with Russia comes to anything, the West Indian squadron would most probably be ordered to the Black Sea—nothing is more probable; then he might have a chance of distinguishing himself. I want to see my son an admiral! How infinitely provoking that he should be absent!"

"You must telegraph to him without a moment's loss of time," said Mr. Rawson. "If he starts to-morrow, or to-night, why, he'll be here in thirty-six hours. Very little time need be lost. Shall I wire for you?"

"Oh, yes, please; and reply to this, too. Let them know he is coming."

"Well, there is little danger of your son being caught now, Mrs. Saville. If Venus herself had her hand on him he must break away, when such a summons may mean fighting. Good morning. Leave the telegraph to me, and accept my best congratulations." Mr. Rawson bowed himself out.

Mrs. Saville mechanically rose and rang the bell. Then she stood in thought for a minute, and rang again.

"This time the butler presented himself.

"Atkins," said his mistress, "I expect Mr. Hugh on Wednesday or Thursday. He will only stay to collect his luggage, and goes on to join the ship to which he has just been appointed. I want you to look out his chest and all his things. Let me know whatever you can see is wanting, and order the carriage immediately after lunch. Send Jessop to me. I really think I might as well go to the Montgomerys' this evening," she thought. "I feel so relieved."

Horses in Australia.

"Australia furnished the American army in the Philippines most of its horses," said General Hoag, Inspector of the Australian forces, to a Washington Post reporter.

"We sent hundreds of animals into the islands, and from all reports they gave excellent satisfaction. At the time of the Boer war Australia sent 15,000 troops to South Africa, and nearly all the horses that accompanied our soldiers were two-thirds thoroughbred. The thoroughbred horse is probably not adapted to army service, but I firmly believe that the injection of thoroughbred blood is the secret of the development of the ideal cavalry horse. I know that our soldiers prefer a horse that has some thoroughbred blood in him."

"It is a well-known fact that in the Civil War in this country the Confederates gained a great early advantage because they were mounted on thoroughbreds, but after the Federal troops had secured some of the high-blooded horses, they turned the tables. In Australia we believe in encouraging the improvement of the racehorse, and I regret to hear that in America some of the states have passed legislation that is inimical to the thoroughbred. Our race courses in Melbourne, Sydney and other large cities in Australia are patronized by thousands of people, and it is not the betting feature that attracts the majority of onlookers, but a desire to see the contests of speed and stamina."

Home Endorsement

The Tama, Iowa, News has the following kind words for a new Wayne citizen: "L. A. Fanske, after ten years continuous service in the jewelry store of H. Soleman & Son of this city will sever his connection with that establishment on Saturday of this week, going to Wayne, Nebraska, where he has purchased a stock on his own account. Mr. Fanske has been a most faithful and painstaking employe at the Soleman store and a very popular young man among our people. He leaves his present place with the best regards of his employers and only that he may enter business for himself and where a good opportunity may present itself. The people of Wayne will find him an obliging and reliable dealer and a royal good fellow socially."

If people with symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble could realize their danger they would without loss of time commence taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. This great remedy stops the pain and the irregularities, strengthens and builds up these organs and there is no danger of Bright's disease or other serious disorder. Three Good Games

Base ball fans and enthusiasts can look forward to at least three good games of ball within the next ten days. Next Tuesday, the 20th, the Pilger team comes again for another tryout with our club. On Thursday, the 22nd, Shallenberger day, the Bloomfield batters are to be here to cross bats with the home nine, and on Monday, the 26th, the Wisner aggregation of ball tossers and sluggers are to appear. Our readers know what the Pilger club can do. The Bloomfield club is an unknown quantity this year, but the town used to have a lot of fast ball players. The Wisner team has been playing a good deal this season and have been to the front right along.

Has Begun Suit

Wednesday morning R. Closson, editor of the Index at Carroll, filed with the Clerk of the District Court of Wayne county the necessary papers for the commencement of a suit for libel against W. S. Goldie, editor of the Nebraska Democrat, published in Wayne, claiming $10,000 damages to his character and reputation. The action grew out of an item in the Democrat of July 8th in reference to the ball game at Carroll between the Wayne and Carroll Clubs, the week before. During the progress of that game Closson and Martin Ringer, one of the Wayne players, got into some sort of an altercation, and it was the write-up of that episode in the Democrat that Closson claims was libelous to the extent of $10,000. The case is booked for the November term of court.

"Governor's Day"

The opening of the Wayne Chautauqua is called "Governor's Day" because Nebraska's Chief Executive will be present to give the first address. Ashton C. Shallenberger won a host of friends in Northeast Nebraska when he signed the Wayne Normal bill and his coming at this time gives an opportunity for all to voice their appreciation. The Commercial club has arranged to fittingly receive him at the depot and furnish escort to the Chautauqua grounds through a cordon of citizens. The town will be decorated in the Chautauqua colors, lemon and green. Excursions will be run on both the Bloomfield and Hartington branches. Let everyone turn out to show the Governor and our other visitors that we are glad to have them here. The subject for Mr. Shallenberger's address is "Political Patriotism." He is a polished speaker of no little oratorical ability. Boost for "Governor's Day."

After viewing the inundated fields in Iowa and Illinois he is more than ever convinced that North Nebraska is a more desirable country than the level lands of Iowa and the states east. Some have come to the conclusion that land here is not as high as it ought to be considering its advantages over the more level country.

W. E. Bellows and George Yaryan returned Friday night from South Dakota where they had been to look for land. They were at Plankinton and report that H. J. Robinson and family, who removed from here last spring to that point, are getting along nicely and like the country very much. George Yaryan also spent a few days at the home of his son Walter. Neither of them bought any land, though impressed that it is a good country with good opportunities.

An old gentleman was heard to remark the other day: "Once I was young but now I am old, and I never saw a girl unfaithful to her mother that ever came to be worth a one-eyed button to her husband. A wise man said: "There is nothing new under the sun." That might have been true in the days in which he lived, but can hardly be said to be the case in these, our times, as something new, at least to many of us, can be seen almost every day. Tuesday morning men were engaged in unloading a carload of what is called plaster board which is a preparation to be used on the ceilings of the new school house. It takes the place of lath. Comes in blocks about four feet square, is constructed of two layers of stucco, with a sheet of paper between the layers and paper on each side. It is nailed to the joists and then has a thin coating of plaster run over the outside surface.

Just as we go to press with this supplement we learn that the state won out in its case against Schwede, for fencing up the highway, which was on trial before Judge Britton. An appeal has been taken to the district court. County Attorney Davis had charge of the prosecution.

The Commercial Club has interested the county commissioners in placing some iron seats on the court house grounds. These will be of artistic designs and will be selected as soon as catalogues arrive. They have also secured permission to hold the weekly band concerts Thursday evening on those grounds, and if it is agreeable to all arrangements will be made to hold sacred concerts on Sunday afternoons.

It does look a little singular that states will elect men to the governorship, pay them a good big salary for looking after the affairs of the state, and then allow them to put in a good share of their time running around the country delivering addresses and lectures for their own private gain while some one else looks after the affairs of the state or they are neglected altogether. No private individual would conduct his business on that plan.

A change in the election law last winter took from the county assessors the appointment of deputy assessors for the different precincts in a county and made the precinct assessor elective by the people of the precinct. Some inquiry has been made as to whether the name of candidates for precinct assessor should appear on the primary ballot or not. We have investigated the matter somewhat, and as we understand it, the office of precinct assessor will be provided for the same as other township or precinct officers, that is, nominations will be made by township caucuses, the same as under the old election law. It will not be necessary to hold these caucuses until September or the fore part of October, unless earlier ones are desired.—Madison Chronicle.

Primary Law Not Touched
The decision of the supreme court holding the nonpartisan judiciary law to be unconstitutional does not affect the primary law in any way and the primary will be held under the amended law on August 17, as it would have been, the only difference being that there must be added the names of candidates for offices that would otherwise have been excluded from party nominations.
There is popular confusion of the nonpartisan judiciary law with the new primary law which changes the form of the primary ballot, and instead of having a separate primary ballot there will be but one ballot with the several party candidates in parallel columns, leaving the voter to select his party instead of declaring his party in advance. Under the amended primary law a voter must either vote a straight republican, democratic, socialist or prohibition ticket or not vote at all, even though the primary is called "nonpartisan."

Deputy County Attorney Magney places this interpretation on the law and his ruling is the same as that made by the attorney general of the state. Mr. Magney said: "The amended primary law is not as open as it looks. It is open as far as allowing a registered republican to vote for democrats in the primary, and vice versa. But that is as far as it goes. 'Scratching' of tickets will not be allowed. The voter must vote a straight ticket and he cannot vote for some republicans and some democrats, for if he does his ballot will be thrown out and not counted."

CASE IN HAND
"Take for an instance a republican who has a friend running for the nomination on the democratic ticket. Under the new law he can vote for his democratic friend, even though he is a registered republican. But if he votes for his democratic friend he must vote the entire democratic ticket. If he casts one vote in the other column the entire ballot will be thrown out and not counted. The rule will work the same way, of course, with a democrat who might wish to vote for a republican.

FREDERICK AND VOLTAIRE

The world knows plenty about the elements of strength in the characters of great men, but less about their weaknesses. Here is a story that shows the other side of the natures of Frederick the Great and Voltaire:
Frederick the Great had a leaning toward literature. He wrote poems, plays and booklets that, in his opinion, possessed rare merit. So it seemed fitting to him that great literary men should fraternize, and he sent an invitation to Voltaire to be his guest. Accompanying the invitation was a sum of money to defray the great Frenchman's traveling expenses to the Prussian capital.
Let it be explained at this point that Frederick was extremely penurious and that Voltaire was not only extravagant, but had many of the characteristics of what we would now call a grafter. It should also be understood that Frederick despised grafting, and Voltaire abhorred miserliness.

FREDERICK AND VOLTAIRE

The world knows plenty about the elements of strength in the characters of great men, but less about their weaknesses. Here is a story that shows the other side of the natures of Frederick the Great and Voltaire:
Frederick the Great had a leaning toward literature. He wrote poems, plays and booklets that, in his opinion, possessed rare merit. So it seemed fitting to him that great literary men should fraternize, and he sent an invitation to Voltaire to be his guest. Accompanying the invitation was a sum of money to defray the great Frenchman's traveling expenses to the Prussian capital.

Let it be explained at this point that Frederick was extremely penurious and that Voltaire was not only extravagant, but had many of the characteristics of what we would now call a grafter. It should also be understood that Frederick despised grafting, and Voltaire abhorred miserliness.

Voltaire accepted the invitation—and then had an afterthought. Why not take a favorite niece with him? So he wrote to the king that if he would send an extra thousand louis he would bring the girl.
"Sir," replied the king, "I did not ask the young lady to do me the honor of visiting me, and I shall send nothing to pay her expenses."
"The old miser!" said Voltaire to a friend. "He has tubs of money," his treasury, yet will not grant me this wish."

However, Voltaire went to Berlin, but each found that he hated the other too much to make their friendship permanent.
The king once gave Voltaire a package of poems to revise.
"See," said Voltaire to a German nobleman, "what a quantity of dirty linen Frederick has sent me to wash!"
The king thought his guest was too free with the chocolate and sugar and gave orders that he be put on a restricted daily allowance.

Voltaire retaliated by gathering all the wax candles he could find in the halls and storing them in his trunk.
Soon the royal palace became too hot for him, and he began to pack up. Then Frederick missed his package of poems. At once he scented a plot. Voltaire intended to take the verses back home with him and palm them off as his own. Lord Macaulay has said that the poems were so bad that he was convinced Voltaire would not for half of Frederick's kingdom have consented to father them. But the king thought differently, being the author of the poems.

So the Prussian monarch had Voltaire thrown into jail at Frankfurt and kept him locked up for twelve days. Sixteen hundred dollars that was found in his pocket was taken away from him. The king in the days of their friendship had given Voltaire a life pension of $3,200 a year, and the money that was confiscated was a semiannual installment.
Thus ended their friendship.—Scrap Book.

Spanish Nicknames.
One of the peculiar ways in which Spanish differs from English is in the names the language gives to all people with a certain infirmity or peculiarity. A blind man is referred to as el ciego, a man with but one eye is a tuerto, a pug nosed man is chato, one who is cross eyed is a bisajo, a cojo is a lame man, and a mancebo has but one arm. If he is humpbacked, he is a Jorobado; if baldheaded, a calvo, and if his hair is very short he is a pelon. The feminine titles for the same classes are the same, with the exception that they end in "a" where the masculine terminate with "o." These short names are used most commonly. In fact, they are applied as nicknames in many cases, and especially among the lower classes persons are addressed or referred to only by these names.

A Wedding Present.
A widower in Scotland proposed to and was accepted by a widow whose husband had died but a month or two previously.
To celebrate the occasion he asked the widow's daughter what she would like for a present. She wanted nothing, she said, but being pressed to name something she replied:
"Well, if you want to spend siller you might put up a holdstone to my father."—London Telegraph.

The Ruling Passion.
"John! John!" called the excited little wife.
"Wh-what is it, Lucy?" muttered the big baseball player as he drowsily turned over in bed.
"Wh-what's there a man downstairs?"
"Wh-what's he doing?"
"He's in the dining room after the plate."
"Trying to reach the plate? Put him out, Kelly; put him out at third!"—Kansas City Independent.

Reproved.
"I suppose," said the sad eyed youth at the musical, "you know the difference between bel canto and coloratura?"
"Young man," answered Mr. Cumrox severely, "I never bet on race horses."—Washington Star.

Practical.
"Darling, I mean to prove my love for you not by words, but by deeds."

Frank Blair and wife, of Akron, Iowa, were guests of Dr. E. S. Blair and wife over Sunday. The young man has but recently completed serving a four year term in Uncle Sam's navy, but has now taken unto himself a wife and proposes to settle down as a landsman.

Prof. Winston, teacher of Political Economy in Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, spent a few days the past week with his old time friend, Dr. Blair, and family. The two gentlemen were schoolmates in their early life and were much pleased to meet each other after the lapse of many years.

Those who went from here Saturday to see Barnum & Bailey's Shows at Sioux City were doubly disappointed. Owing to washouts on the railroads east of that place the show trains did not get there at all and the city was so flooded that it made it almost impossible to get anywhere and laid additional cost upon them. It would seem, knowing the flooded condition, as they must have done, that the railway company would have discouraged travel from all points within fifty miles.

Some people may imagine that the work of a telephone lineman is an easy job, but if you could have seen the man putting in the new cable at the Wayne telephone exchange Monday you would have changed your mind. He hung suspended on the wires by a hook all day long, working himself back and forth getting wires in place and cables strung, and it was no desirable position to be in, let alone the danger of it.

County Judge James Britton had the first lawsuit in his court Wednesday. It was entitled State of Nebraska vs. Gustave Schwede. The cause of the suit lies in the fact that Gustave has fenced up a portion of the county line road, claiming that the same had never been laid out. The State had a different opinion about the matter, hence caused his arrest. There were a large number of witnesses examined. The trial is still in progress.

J. M. Coleman has been asked to make an exhibit of his fine Poland China herd of swine at the Interstate fair in Sioux City the coming fall and may decide to do so. He will if he can get the time. He has so many things to look after and does not find time to help altogether satisfactory, especially in having charge of exhibits. He had some of the 20th Century Magazine men out to his place recently and they said he had the finest lot of pigs they had seen anywhere. John has a fine herd all right.

Someone with malice aforethought took occasion last Friday evening to steal from the back porch of the M. E. parsonage a portion of the ice cream that the missionary society ladies had prepared for their guests. We understand that this is not the first time that such tricks have been done by a certain class in Wayne and one of these days they will get a dose that will last them as long as they live. The perpetrators may think that such things are a great joke but it is nothing less than a piece of contemptible meanness, and those who do such things have not good common sense nor none of the earmarks even of gentlemen.

LAKE STEAMERS MEET

JOHN W. COWLE GOES DOWN OFF COAST OF MICHIGAN.

Fourteen of Crew Are Lost—Steamer Scott Fractures Hole in Her Side—Rears in 300 Feet of Water—Collide in Dense Fog.

Three minutes after the steel steamers Isaac M. Scott and John B. Cowle had collided in Lake Superior, early Monday morning, about a mile and a half from Whitefish Point light house, the Cowle had gone to the bottom in forty fathoms of water, carrying with her fourteen members of her crew.

A heavy fog was responsible for the collision. The Scott, a new boat, of the Hayden line, was on her maiden trip to the head of the lakes, had just passed the light at Whitefish Point and straightened out upon her course up the lake, when suddenly the John B. Cowle loomed up through the fog, broadside on to the Scott, and only a few feet away.

The Cowle was downbound with 8,000 tons of iron ore in her hold. Until Capt. Rogers returns to Sault Ste. Marie it is impossible to secure the names of the men who perished with the Cowle. Survivors say that they include both engineers, four firemen, four deck hands, the second cook, purser and an oiler named Pat-

Arthur, of the Scott, declares that the first intimation he had of the Cowle's presence was when the great hull loomed up through the fog so close to the bow of his ship that it was impossible to prevent the two steamers coming together.

The John B. Cowle was 445 feet long, fifty feet beam, and owned by the Cowle transit company, of Cleveland. The Cowle went into commission in 1902.

100 EMPLOYEES REDUCED.

Shaken Up in the Department of Commerce and Labor.

A shakeup in the personnel of the department of commerce and labor took place Monday in Washington when approximately 100 employees were reduced and the resignations of about ten others completed. This action was taken by Secretary Nagel as the result of an investigation into the "efficiency" record of the employees in his department. The reductions were made, it is stated, because the employees were found to have "lost the job," while those allowed to resign were found to be inefficient.

ST. LOUIS STORM STRUCK.

Horses and Drivers Thrown to the Ground by the Wind.

A high wind approaching a tornado struck St. Louis, Mo., and suburbs at noon Monday. Telegraph and telephone wires were blown down. In St. Louis county trees were uprooted. The wind struck the steamer Alton as it passed with 300 passengers from St. Louis through the draw of the bridge at Alton, Ill. The steamer was swung around until part of the wheelhouse was torn off against a pier of the bridge. The boat was jammed there. The wind picked up wagons and threw the horses and drivers to the ground. Because of trolley wires being torn down the electric cars in certain parts of the city were stopped for an hour.

Funeral Procession Struck.

More than a score of persons were injured in a tornado that swept over the northeastern part of Butler county, Ohio. At Seven Mile station the funeral procession of Mrs. Sarah Lloyd was caught in the wind. Five carriages containing twenty persons were blown across a road and hurled against a fence, injuring all of the occupants, none fatally, however.

War May Break Out.

It is believed in Valparaiso, Chile, that war between Peru and Bolivia is imminent because of the disarray at La Paz following the decision handed down by Argentina in the boundary dispute between the two countries. The Chilean admiralty said that Chile would remain neutral, but she is preparing to send warships for protection of Chilean interests.

A splinter can live ten months without food.

MOB ATTACKS A LEGATION.

Fears Felt for Safety of Argentine Minister.

At 9 o'clock Saturday night a furious mob attacked the Argentine legation at La Paz, Bolivia. Troops have been called out and fears are entertained for the safety of the Argentine minister. The trouble is the outcome of the decision rendered by the boundary dispute between Peru and Bolivia. Senior Penozca is the Argentine minister to Bolivia. Great crowds who had been parading the streets finally turned in the direction of the Argentine legation, which they surrounded. There were shouts of rage, and stones and other missiles were hurled at the building. The local authorities endeavored to check the manifestations and at length the government found it necessary to order out troops. Both this legation and the Peruvian legation are now under strong guard.

The Bolivia people unanimously protest against the decision rendered by President Alcorca, which they consider most unjust. The territory involved is the famous Acre district recently purchased by Brazil from Bolivia for $10,000,000, notwithstanding the fact that Peru issued a warning that the territory at that time was the subject of arbitration. Serious complications are anticipated which are certain to involve Brazil.

The decision of the president of the Argentine republic in the matter of the boundary limits of Peru and Bolivia, is entirely contrary to expectations. The opinion is held that the decision is entirely favorable to Peru, and there is intense excitement among the people.

TROOPS GUARD COAL MINES.

Martial Law Declared in Cafe Breton Fields.

Martial law prevails in the southern Cape Breton, C. B. coal fields. Troops are guarding the collieries of the Dominion company and an attempt will be made to operate the mines under military protection. Six hundred men from the Canadian permanent forces arrived at Glace Bay Thursday night and at once went on duty. The men were divided into detachments and distributed among the various collieries and now the general feeling is that the scenes which attended the first three days of the strike are at an end. Sentries with fixed bayonets guard the approaches to the collieries and at No. 2 and No. 6, where the most trouble has been, machine guns command the approaches.

ADMITS THE CRIME.

Frank Schmidt, Wounded Burglar, Killed Mrs. Sophia Stuber.

Frank Schmidt, alias John Smith, the wounded burglar, who admits that he killed Mrs. Sophia Stuber Thursday in New York City, when he was caught bobbing the Stuber home at Flat Bush, gave the district attorney his version of the moral to be drawn from the murder.

Mr. Stuber and his son are to blame, he said. "They were fools to try to stop such men as us, when all we wanted was to make a getaway."

OLD LANDMARK DESTROYED.

Famous Wooden Covered Bridge Over Hudson River Burns.

The famous old wooden covered bridge across the Hudson river, between the upper section of Troy and Waterford, was destroyed by fire Saturday night which was caused by an electric wire. The loss is $100,000. The bridge, which was perhaps the oldest of the kind in the United States, was one of the landmarks and curiosities in this section. It was opened for traffic in 1802 and has been in constant service ever since. It was privately owned and the toll that has been collected for passing over it runs well into the millions of dollars.

HURRICANE HITS PANAMA.

Electric Plant Out of Commission and City Dark.

A hurricane of unusual severity occurred in Panama Sunday night, doing much damage to property. The electric plant in Panama was put in darkness. At the time there was a great crowd at the national theater, at which Maria Guerrero, the noted Spanish actress, was performing. The performance came to an end, but the audience remained comparatively quiet. Telegraphic service has been interrupted and advices are meager as to the damage done.

It is feared interior and coast towns suffered seriously. The government dispatched two steamers to make an inspection of the case.

Telephone communication from Ortonville, Minn., says that a tornado struck that town Sunday afternoon, coming directly across Big Stone lake from Big Stone City, S. D., where it killed John D. Groff and destroyed two houses. At Ortonville it struck a train of six Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul freight cars, containing twenty-one Italian laborers. Three of the men were killed outright and nineteen were injured. The roundhouse and coaledsheds were demolished. The residence of W. F. Chamberlain was destroyed and his wife and a farm hand were injured. Most of the damage beyond Ortonville is not yet known. The loss so far is $50,000.

Special dispatches from Panama, Ill., and Xenia all say that tornadoes struck those towns Sunday. At Xenia four persons were injured and several buildings destroyed. No one was hurt at Xenia, but the property damage was considerable. Grain was leveled by both storms.

MASSACRE SPANISH WORKMEN.

Troops Sent to Morocco to Check an Outbreak of Natives.

The first brigade of Casadors, composed of six battalions of infantry, three batteries of artillery and a squadron of cavalry, as well as the cruiser Narvacla and the transport Admiral Lobo, have been ordered to Melilla, Morocco, where Saturday four Spanish workmen were killed by the natives, to reinforce the Spanish troops there. No further fighting was reported Saturday. The massacre of the Spanish workmen occurred simultaneously with the arrival at Madrid of the Moroccan mission, which, it is hoped, will be able to adjust the differences between Morocco and Spain regarding the Rif coast.

FIFTEEN ARE INSURED.

Trolley Cars Collide on Williamsburg Bridge Over East River.

The bridge over one collision was the cause of another in which fifteen trolley car passengers were injured on the Williamsburg bridge over East river, in New York, Sunday. Charles Hannon, motorman of a local bridge car, which was crowded with passengers, was running his car at full speed when he discovered that he was dangerously close to a car ahead. He put his brakes on in time to avert a collision ahead, but his car was struck from behind by another car. Both cars were derailed and fifteen persons were severely injured, but none fatally.

HORSE BUYERS SLAIN.

Outlaws Attack Them in Their Camp Near Afton, N. M.

A special from Afton, N. M., thirty-five miles west of El Paso, Tex., says: Outlaws attacked ten Texas horse buyers in their camp late Sunday night and it is believed killed nine of them. The horse traders were driving 300 head of cattle from New Mexico into Texas. When near Afton they camped for the night. The outlaws, who evidently had been trailing the Texans, then made the attack. Only one of the ten horse traders escaped, and he, although wounded, reached Afton and told the story of the killing of his nine companions.

RURAL TEACHERS HIT

Don't Know A, B, C of Education, Charges Speaker at Denver.

FARMER ALSO IS SCORED

Wants Instruction for Sons, but Is Unwilling to Pay for It, Says Professor.

Delegates to the National Education Association in Denver heard some sharp criticisms of teachers. Henry T. G. Williams, dean of the State Normal School at Athens, Ohio, speaking of teachers in country schools, said: "There are some rural teachers who don't know even the A, B, C of education, yet they are called 'professors' just the same as is the corn doctor of the dog trainer."

James W. Robertson, president of MacDonald College, Ste. Anne de Bellevue, Quebec, said agricultural schools must be more closely allied with the rural schools in general to bring about the desired end of keeping the boys on the farm. He declared that to make the boys stay on the farm must be made fit to stay on. And there must be as much education for the girl as for the boy.

"It is not a matter of little education being dangerous," said Mr. Robertson. "It is the vast remaining ignorance that hurts the farmer of today. He wants a little education for his son, but he does not want to pay. He does not want more education because he thinks his son will leave him. This is where he is wrong, because if the son knew more the farmer's acres would be worth more."

R. J. Crosby of the United States Department of Agriculture pleaded for a closer relation between the rural schools and the community. He wanted to shift the emphasis from the three "R's" to good cooking and the ability to make fences.

Ashtley Van Storm of the Iowa Agricultural School and M. J. Abbey of the North Dakota Agricultural School also were speakers. The old controversy between the university and the normal school as to whether the latter is able to fit men and women for teaching came up again in the meeting of the normal department. Samuel E. Harwood, superintendent of the training school in the Illinois Normal School, Carbondale, Ill., took up the defense of normal training with the assertion that training and observation will give to a prospective teacher the necessary foundation for a teacher's education. C. B. Robertson of the New York Normal School, Cortland, N. Y., also spoke on this side of the question.

Edwin G. Dexter, commissioner of education of Porto Rico, speaking before the general session, gave an outline of the work accomplished in that country. He said with a beginning in the elementary grades for all classes, a complete school system has now been established.

BORN WITHOUT HANDS.

Kentucky Girl Is Best Penman in Her School Class.

Similar in many respects to the great Helen Keller is Miss Allene Shea, who graduated as the valedictorian of the Commercial High School in Louisville, Ky. Born without hands, Miss Shea has accomplished the task of becoming the best penman ever graduated from the school, the fastest operator of a typewriter ever to receive a diploma in Louisville, and finishes the course with an average of 98.57. She is also an expert bookkeeper, the president of her class and the editor of her school paper, the Cynosure. Miss Shea has won three medals for efficiency in academic studies. She has won prizes in penmanship and typewriting. In which her teachers declare her almost perfect. She is also a shorthand writer of wonderful accuracy and speed. Her arms terminate at the wrists, with barely a suggestion of a hand, though a tiny thumb, half an inch in length, extends from either arm. With these Miss Shea, with an expertness and precision, battles even her instructors.

Jumps Into a Well.

"Mamma, if you whip me I will jump in the well," wailed the 5-year-old son of Mrs. Samuel Scott, who resides near Central City, Ky., when his mother reprimanded him for a childish prank. The mother thought the boy was merely joking, and administered the promised spanking. Sobbing and crying the little fellow fled from the room. In a few seconds the mother was startled by a scream from her son. She rushed to the yard, but did not see him. Suddenly remembering his threat, she went to the well. At the bottom she could see his golden curls floating on the water. He had carried out his threat, and was dead.

Although the Reichstag was still in a deadlock over the government's entire scheme of taxation, it did vote on Tuesday, 203 to 155, in favor of the proposal to impose a yearly tax on stocks and bonds. This is to be calculated on the basis of the average quotation for the preceding year, and the rate of interest on this amount which the current dividend yields. The tax will then be deducted by the companies before the payment of the dividends.

In the Turkish Parliament was read the new government's declaration of policy in regard to Asia Minor. The state of siege proclaimed at Adana, the center of the massacres, has been extended to Mush and Antioch. Measures have been taken to prevent any repetition of the outrages.

It is learned that the real mission of the Chinese special envoy, Tang Shao-Li, and his party, which spent several weeks in Washington last February, was to borrow $100,000,000 for the great Szechuan railroad.

Work of Congress

The Senate Monday adopted the Brown resolution providing for the submission of the income tax amendment to state legislatures. Senator Rayner made a fight against the custom court feature of the administrative amendment. He declared that the court would be found to be unconstitutional because, while dealing with questions at common law, it makes no provision for trial by jury which every sufferer under common law has a right to demand. The provision, after being defended by Republican lawyers, was accepted without division, but not until it had been amended in accordance with Rayner's suggestion to exclude criminal cases from its operation. There was only a small part of the membership present when the House met. Chairman Couden offered a prayer expressing patriotism appropriate to the day. A message from the President recommending an appropriation to pay the claim of a subject of Montenegro, for the loss of certain property in Texas, in 1865, was read and referred to the committee on appropriations. At 12:10 the House adjourned until Thursday.

Consideration of the tariff bill in committee of the whole was completed Tuesday and that measure was reported to the Senate. A finance committee amendment fixing the tobacco duties was read, but was taken back by that committee on protest of Senator Daniel of Virginia that the minority members had not been given a fair chance to consider it. Among amendments adopted was one exempting labor organizations, fraternal benefit societies and organizations exclusively for charitable and educational purposes from the corporation tax. At 3:32 o'clock the Senate adjourned to allow the bill to be printed and the Senators time to look it over. The House was not in session.

The finance committee forces completed arrangements Wednesday for the final vote on the tariff bill in the Senate Thursday. The straight income taxers were afforded the opportunity to have a vote long before working for a chance to vote directly in favor of the income instead of the corporation tax, and they were defeated 28 to 47. The corporation tax amendment was thus finally made a part of the tariff bill and Senator Clapp of Minnesota succeeded in having it amended so as to include holding companies. After a hot debate on the customs court the finance committee's provision was accepted. Senator La Follette offered several amendments, but they were rejected. The House was not in session.

After a long speech by Senator La Follette and repeated attempts at amendment, almost all of which were failures, the Senate passed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill shortly after 11 o'clock Thursday, and adjourned at 11:18 at night. Senator Bradley of Kentucky succeeded in amending the tobacco schedule so as to remove the free sale of tobacco "in the hand." This clause is said to have caused the forays of the night riders. Free hides and free boots and shoes were again defeated. The House held a session which was largely formal. The attendance was large.

During a session lasting nearly four hours the Philippine tariff bill, and the bill automatically continuing the Porto Rico budget were passed by the Senate Friday. Only a nominal resistance was offered by the minority to these measures. An amendment by Senator Johnson (Ala.) declaring the intention of the United States eventually to grant independence to the Philippines was opposed as being out of place in this bill, and was rejected. Senator Culberson sought to limit the operation of the Porto Rico act to July 1, 1910, but his amendment for that purpose was defeated. The Senate entered upon an agreement to adjourn three days at a time until the conference report on the tariff bill is ready for consideration, and also not to enact any legislation when it does convene. After a debate of an hour and a half the House referred the tariff bill to the conferees, disagreeing to all of the 847 amendments of the Senate, by a vote of 178 to 151. Eighteen Republicans voted against this action and one Democrat voted for it. Chairman Payne's plan to have the conferees sent to the conference unhampered with instructions was granted. At 3:20 the House adjourned to Monday noon, when the joint resolution providing for the submission to the several States of the income tax amendment to the Constitution will be considered.

Sustained heavy shipments through the banks in absence of any area, gratifying crop reports, strengthening demands for factory outputs and general merchandise, the heavy demand for which trade receipts, high cost is responsible for a smaller volume of exports, but wastefulness of iron and steel, high cost of raw materials for conversion and staple values, considerable gain. There is also heavy business, and all conditions recovery in the earnings of Chicago steam roads.

While a pessimistic note is not wholly implied, it is rather better than at this time that the market obtained a better trade. FLOOD IN MIDDLE WEST, SANTA FE TRAIN UPSET

300 ARE RESCUED IN BOATS

Unprecedented Rains Swell River and Do Great Damage in Missouri Valley.

Weakened by excessive rains and covered with water to a depth of two feet, the road of the Santa Fe line, one-half mile east of Pomona, Kan., gave way under the weight of the second section of west-bound passenger train No. 5 at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. Three coaches turned turtle on the right of the embankment and were in eighteen feet of water. The 4-year-old daughter of Mrs. Carrie Ross of Chicago was drowned. Two of the 300 passengers on the train were injured.

The train had been derailed from the main line to the Emporia cut-off to avoid a flood block and encountered a rising water a mile from Pomona. A stop was made to examine the track and the train slowly entered the flood. Half the distance to the depot had been traversed when the boggy cars sank into the water. The smoking car and the day coach followed, turned from the rails and slipped gradually over the embankment and down into eleven feet of water that filled the slope on the side of the roadbed. The train was held so slowly, however, that the passengers, previously warned of the dangers of the track, succeeded in climbing the tops of the coaches that still were upright in the flood.

A relief train from Ottawa came in sight through the rising water at 5 o'clock, but was compelled to return for additional boats and coils of rope to steady the boats against the swift current. Four boats, manned by expert crews, took the passengers off. Homes were found for all the refugees at the farm houses and in the village of Pomona.

Boat Is Swept Away.

One of the first of three boats to reach the spot was caught in the windings and lost. The rescue train on its second trip plowed through two feet of water for three-quarters of a mile before it reached the point from which the boats were launched.

In Pattonburg, Mo., the dead are George Palmer, a harness-maker, and Harrison Walker, a section man, and D. Brown, a miller. E. C. Nelson, a grocer, died at a man named Scott are missing. During the morning a call for help was sent out from Pattonburg, a town of 500 in Daviess County, where the water was reported under seven to ten feet of water, and relief trains were made up at St. Joseph and Kansas City.

A dispatch from Santa Rosa, Mo., stated that the St. Joseph relief train was derailed between that place and Pattonburg. The water had gone up until it was two feet over the track. Two Kansas City boats which started from Pattonburg to the train are missing. But one St. Joseph boat got through. The engine whistled all night to guide the boatmen.

The worst flood of the year is raging in the Des Moines River Valley. The river has reached the fourteen-foot mark and threatens to go higher. Thousands of dollars' worth of corn has been swept away. Residents in the southern part of the city of Des Moines were surrounded by a foot of water. Every railroad running trains into Des Moines is hours late.

BRIDE AND GROOM DIE

Death of Couple Drowned at South Bend Is Revealed.

Death in a suicide compact in the river at South Bend, Ind., ended a two-day honeymoon and terminated the romance of Herman Lindemann and his bride, formerly Eleanor Zlatar, both of Chicago. The two were married Saturday at St. Joseph, Mich., by a priest. They rode to death in the St. Joseph river over the dam at South Bend. Those who saw the boat go over the rapids declare the two must have died in a suicide compact. As the boat shot over the dam Lindemann arose in the front of the frail rowboat, smiling at the horrified onlookers, which showed a warning from the shore, puffed twice on a cigarette, and then, as the boat went over the dam, clasped his bride in his arms and sank from sight. Discovery of the young man's identity came when search was made at the Crescent Hotel, where Lindemann and his bride had registered Monday. Chicago addresses of the two were found in clothing left in their rooms.

WASHINGTON

The Division of Dead Letters is one of the show places of the national capital and is visited annually by thousands of sight-seers, says a writer in the National Magazine. There is much that appeals to human interest and emotion in the immense stacks of letters and parcels received at the rate of 40,000 a day, and containing articles of every description, some of them bearing addresses which cannot be deciphered, even by experts. In the 13,000,000 pieces of mail matter received by the division last year there were 6,000 books, 1,000 pairs of eyeglasses, 900 fountain pens, 800 razors, false teeth, marriage certificates, rings, shoes, snakes—in fact, everything from valuable diamonds to penny souvenirs. There was also more than $55,000 in actual money, and commercial paper, including checks, drafts, money orders, etc., representing a face value of $2,203,992.

Possibly when "Capt." Jacob Coxey led his famous "army" in its advance on Washington early in the 90's, he did not expect that some day he would be asking special privileges of that branch of the government he affected to despise, but time brings changes and while many of the hoboes who were forced to keep off the White House grass along with their leader are in their grave, others in jail and the rest scattered only the Lord knows where, Coxey himself is living like a prince, has made his pile and has no intention of leading another "army." He has been in Washington some time where he is spending a lot of money every day, and making a great effort to induce a congress to protect his arsenic mines in Virginia, from which he derives a great income. He wants more, hence the descent on the capital.

A statement issued by the Treasury Department, covering the fiscal year, showed a deficit of $55,639,843, as between ordinary outgo and income. The ordinary receipts totaled $604,432,846, an increase of $3,400,000. The excess of all disbursements over all expenditures, including the canal account, amounted to $115,100,151. The military expense account showed the largest increase, or from $139,225,000 to $164,100,242. The naval account showed a slight decrease, the total being $115,985,869. The available cash balance was $124,632,841.

In making the way clear for the removal of the supposed leper, Early, from Washington to New York, Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh has amended the interstate quarantine regulations so that "lepers may be accepted for transportation under proper supervision when on route to a seaport for deportation." The amendment makes similar provision in case a leper is to be taken to a given place for care and treatment. Consent of the local health authorities involved is implied.

The War Department intends to save $192,800 in the next three years and a proportionate sum yearly thereafter by changing the cloth of the enlisted men of the United States army from brown canvas to blue denim. The latter material has been found in every way as satisfactory as the former and the cost is about one-fourth less.

Secretary of War Dickinson has issued instructions to the chief signal officer of the army, who has under his control all of the army's aeronautical work, to have prepared for future use a comprehensive plan for the protection of the entire Atlantic coast by dirigible balloons and other air craft. The balloons will be used as scouts.

The reason why the Department of Justice had not pushed the prosecution of the New Haven system for its alleged absorption of the Boston and Maine Railroad was sent to the Senate by Attorney General Wickesham in response to the Senate's resolution of inquiry which had been introduced by Senator Culberson.

The various warships of the Atlantic fleet have been gathered at Hampton Roads, Va., preparatory to entering upon the elaborate series of war games which will extend over the entire summer at an estimated cost of about $129,000,000.

Money to the amount of $50,000 has been forwarded to the Indian agent at Red Lake, Minn., for distribution among the Indians under his charge. The money was derived from the sale of dead and down timber at Red Lake.

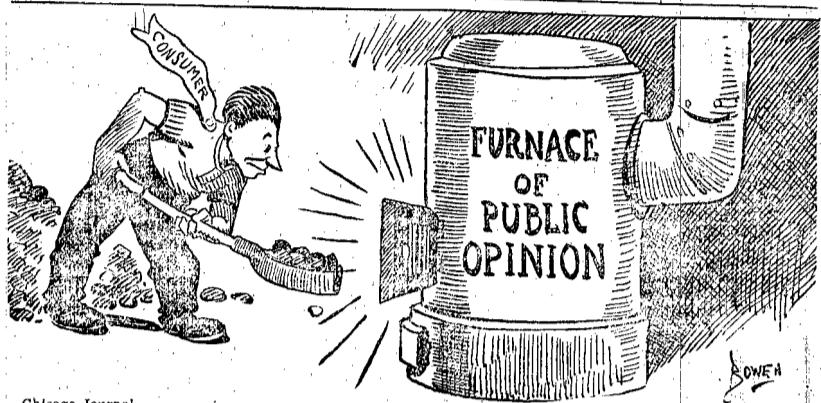

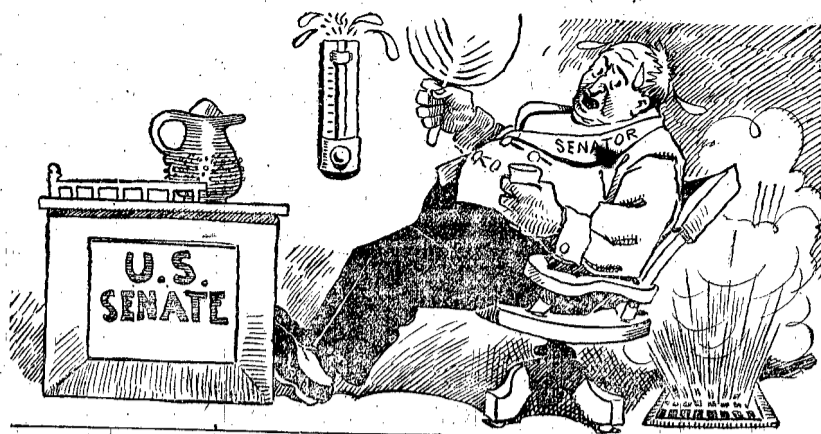

A member of the Austrian embassy, Count Alexander Torok, was injured, perhaps fatally, by being struck by a jockey pole in Washington, D. C. He was attempting to board a moving trolley car from the wrong side.

Representative Halvor Steenerson has qualified as a revolver sharpshooter in the naval militia of the United States. His score is 80 out of a possible 100 hits, at 25, 50 and 75 yard ranges.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Wilson states that the repairs around the world cost the government $50,280. This sum includes $33,379 expended by the bureau of steam engineering and $16,901 which the bureau of equipment expended.

The government receipts from internal revenues continue to show a gratifying increase. For May, 1909, the collections amounted to $19,514,225, as against $18,495,526 for the corresponding month last year.

TRAMP MURDERS FOUR PERSONS

South Dakota Father Shot Dead— Wife, Daughter and Visitor Slain.

J. W. Christie, a farmer, living near Rudolph, S. D., his wife, his daughter, aged 15 years, and a neighbor were murdered Saturday by a tramp, whose name is not known. It is supposed that the murder was the result of an attempt to get a large sum of money supposed to have been in the Christie home. The murder was discovered when a neighbor went to the Christie home.

Mr. Christie was milking a cow in his barnyard Saturday morning when the unknown person approached him, and before he could make a sound shot him dead. The murderer hurried to the house and, finding Mrs. Christie and her daughter and a boy named Roy Maine, who was visiting at the house, prepared to fight him, he began firing. The first shots took effect, and the two women and the boy fell dead at the feet of the murderer.

It is supposed that the man who committed the crime was acquainted to a certain extent with the Christie family and their habits, for few people knew that Christie was in the habit of keeping large sums of money in his house. It is believed that he had coin to the extent of several thousands of dollars in his home at the time of the murder. Posses of farmers were immediately organized and a hasty pursuit of the murderer was begun.

GUNNISON TUNNEL FINISHED.

Government's Greatest Engineering Feat Is a Success.

The Gunnison tunnel, in Colorado, the largest single project of its kind ever undertaken by the government, was completed Tuesday afternoon when the last round of shots were fired that brought the headings together. There was not even a hairline variation from the calculations of engineers made four and half years ago when the work was started. The tunnel was driven from two points six miles apart, one on Gunnison River, whence the water supply comes; the other at Montrose in the Uncompagnie Valley, on the other side of the range. It cost $3,500,000 to complete the work. Water will be carried to irrigate from 150,000 to 175,000 acres.

The entire population of Uncompagnie Valley celebrated Tuesday night. In all cities and towns fire bells were rung, pistols were fired, and leftover fireworks were exploded. The formal celebration of the completion of the tunnel will be held Sept. 28, when it is hoped to have President Taft present. The government intends each homesteader shall have but forty acres of good land, in order to prevent speculation. The land is free, but one must live on it five years and pay the government water charge of $35 per acre in ten annual installments. The south distributing canal already is completed. East and west canals still are in process of construction, but will be finished in less than twelve months. The south canal is 119 feet wide and ten feet deep.

TEACHERS SHUN BOOK FIGHT.

Refuse to Elect Man Committed to Contest for Prices Reform.

The election of James Yacklin Joyner, superintendent of public instruction of North Carolina, as president of the National Educational Association in Denver, is regarded by his supporters as a victory in their fight against any regulation of the prices of school text-books. Mr. Joyner was elected over Ben Blewitt, head of the St. Louis schools, and Dr. J. H. Phillips of Birmingham, Ala.

The association went on record against the existence of fraternities in high schools in a resolution which declares such organizations to be opposed to the spirit of democracy. It also decided to "investigate" the feasibility of simplified spelling, but took no decided stand either for or against it.

Irwin Shepherd of Winona, Minn., was re-elected secretary. A. H. Chamberlain of California was re-elected treasurer, and Lorenzo D. Harvey, the retiring president, was elected first vice president. San Francisco was selected as the next meeting place of the National Education Association. Milwaukee and Boston contended for it.

TARIFF BILL IS PASSED BY VOTE OF 45 TO 34

Ten Republicans Firm for Downward Revision, Oppose Measure.—One Democrat Supports It.

TRUMPH OF SENATOR ALDRICH

Conferees from Senate Appointed at Once, Without Waiting for House Action.

By a vote of 45 to 34 the tariff bill was passed by the Senate a few minutes after 11 o'clock Thursday night under dramatic circumstances.

Ten Republican Senators defying a last attempt of Aldrich of Rhode Island to read them out of the party, cast their votes against the passage of the measure. Here are the ten:

Immediately after the passage of the bill, on motion of Senator Aldrich, contrary to precedents, but sustained by the Vice President, who was in the chair—the conferees on the part of the Senate who will deal with the measure in its next stage were appointed. The usual custom is to wait for the House in which a measure originates to reject amendments made by the other house and ask for a conference. The Senate conferees are:

Democrats.

Daniel McMillan, Bailey, Texas; Money, Mississippi.

Senator Culberson, while named on the committee, may not serve during a great part of the deliberations. He leaves for Atlantic City with Mrs. Culberson and has set no specific time for his return to the capital. His consent at the last moment to have his name included in the committee membership, although inclined by the condition of his health to step aside, solves a problem that otherwise would have given New England, already more than adequately represented, another member on the committee in the person of Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, whose seniority would have demanded consideration, and precluded under the circumstances, the appointment of Senator Snodgrass of Utah.

The vote in detail on the bill was as follows: Senator McHenry of Louisiana being the only Democrat to vote for its passage:

Yeas.	Nays.
Aldrich	Guggerheim
Borah	Hale
Bourne	Heyburn
Bradley	Johnson
Brundage	Jones
Briggs	Keam
Bulkeley	Lorimer
Burnham	McCumber
Burrows	McHenry
Eaton	Nixon
Carter	Oliver
Clark (Wyo.)	Page
Crane	Penrose
Dewey	Perkins
Dick	Piles
Dixon	Scott
Elk Point	Smith (Mich.)
Likins	Smoot
Flinn	Stumpson
Frye	Sutherland
Gallinger	Walter
