Why Not Here

O. G. Gates, of Albion, Nebraska, is erecting spacious feed yards and sheds for the accommodation of those driving into town, where for a merely nominal expense, teams can be left under cover, and feed if desired. In connection therewith will be comfortable rest rooms for both sexes provided with toilet rooms. A man will be in charge so that if a lady drives in from the country her team will be taken care of. Such places are maintained in many eastern towns and prove very popular with the farmers.

Wanted, Regardless of Politics

We, the voters of Hunter precinct, Wayne county, Nebraska, to hire a servant, sober-minded and a good judge of the value of personal property and real estate, to assess the above precinct. One who has the facilities for traveling and making the best time possible, so as to curtail the expenses of the taxpayers, and is perfectly willing to stop where night overtakes him. The writer does not ask any more of a servant than he would do himself. Anyone willing to comply with the above, be at the polling place of the above precinct on the 17th of August and we will proceed to secure him the position. This not only applies to assessor, but also to road supervisor. Constable and justice of the peace not in demand. We reserve the right to accept or reject all bids. Yours for success, S. E. AUKER.

Lost a Good Horse

Tuesday afternoon Leslie Fox, residing southeast of Wayne, lost a valuable horse in a somewhat peculiar manner. His team was hitched on First street, near the X-Ray incubator factory, and became frightened at a passing threshing machine engine, and in spite of the fact that the men running the engine sent a man to assist in holding the team, it broke loose from a hitching post, also broke the neck-yoke and started to run away. The team came east on main street and then north to Second, and then turned east on second street, but before reaching Second street the broken neck-yoke slipped off the end of the tongue and striking on its end the horse jumped on the sharp point of the broken yoke, which penetrated the large artery between its front legs, and three or four rods east of Main street dropped to the ground dead, having bled to death within two minutes after being injured. It is a severe loss to Mr. Fox, not only on account of the value of the animal, but because it is the season of the year when farmers have need of all the horses they have.

Good Game

That is what could be said of the game of base ball Monday afternoon on the home diamond between the Wisner and Wayne ball clubs. The game was played throughout with a vim and in a straight, clean-cut manner, and it was an even guess up to the last half of the ninth inning as to which team was going to win, or whether it would be decided in that inning or not, the score standing when the Wayne boys went to bat in the last half of the ninth inning 4 to 4. By good, steady work, however, the home team got a man across the plate, winning the game, 5 to 4. The visitors played a good game and made several fine plays, notably one double play and the catch of one long drive to center field. The Wayne boys were also on their mettle, and although there were some errors, were in the game at all times. Sahs was more effective in his pitching than on the day of the Bloomfield game. Several of the old players were absent and new men were given a try out, Bryant being especially good. Norfolk comes this afternoon, having played at Dallas, South Dakota, Monday and Tuesday and at Gregory, South Dakota, yesterday.

Not True

Dr. Clinton N. Howard, who has occupied so much of the time at the Chautauqua in Wayne this year, is undoubtedly a very smart man and an entertaining speaker, but in his address Monday evening he laid down a broad rule, without any qualifications that is not a fact, and which he as an intelligent man must have known was absolutely untrue. That is to say, Dr. Howard said, and he made it very emphatic by repeating it several times, that if a boy swore, used tobacco, was a liar, or addicted to any of the vices, he got them from his father and not from his mother. We deny the truthfulness of such a statement, for the reason that we know, and so did the audience and the speaker also, that there are thousands of fathers in this land of ours that do none of those things, and have not from their youth up, and yet their sons do many of them. No man has a higher appreciation of womanhood than ourself, and we believe that she is the very highest type of God's creation, but our observation along the journey of life has taught us that womanhood, as a class, does not possess all the virtues, and man all the vices. Such broad statements as that of the speaker are an insult to the christian manhood of today. We believe in true womanhood, also in true manhood and do not believe that in many thousands of cases at least either father or mother are responsible for the vices or misdeeds of their sons.

Will Hold Meeting

The Adams Evangelistic Company, representing the Christian church, will begin a series of protracted meetings in the Wayne opera house on the evening of July 31, to continue indefinitely. These people come highly recommended and their meetings will be well worth attending.

Would They?

In Cedar county the commissioners are managing to have some good work done by allowing the town to have a portion of the inheritance fund, providing the said town puts up an equal amount of its own money for road purposes. We wonder if Wayne county would cough up $500 if Winside should take a notion to raise that much to improve the roads around here, particularly on the west. Winside Tribune.

Got Off Easy

County Attorney Davis appeared for the prosecution and W. P. Rooney for the defense in a case that occupied the attention of County Judge Britton Monday afternoon. John Bingold and Elmer Fuller were arrested by Marshal Miner on the charge of gambling, and, after hearing the evidence in the case and what the attorneys had to say in the matter, Judge Britton said $5 each costs, and that ended the case. Warrants were sworn out for two other men, but they skipped the town before they could be found, and if they stay skipped they will not be molested.

Crystal Theatre

That is the name the moving picture show will be called. It will be open for business either Saturday evening or the fore part of next week. The building is to be seated with opera chairs, provided with electric fans and ventilated to perfection, also painted and papered, while the machine is one of the best made and all of the films will be of the kind that will not in the least offend the most fastidious taste and will please children and older people too. Messrs. Prescott & Simon, the former residing at Hoskins, and the latter a conductor on one of the main line freights are putting a good deal of money into the enterprise and expect to conduct the business in such a way as to win the confidence of the people. An experienced man from Omaha will have charge of the machine.

What Will They Do?

E. A. Aegerter, a Randolph business man with sporting blood in his veins, has deposited a $100 check as a forfeit for a $500 bet that Wayne can beat Bloomfield on the Wayne grounds within a week or two. A few days ago Bloomfield trimmed Wayne, and offered to play the club for $500 any time or any place. Mr. Aegerter has a roll and a belief that Bloomfield is talking through its teeth, and he is willing to go $500 he's right. "Any moment that Bloomfield bunch, say within a week, puts up $500 to play Wayne, at Wayne, they are on," said he. "While I realize that Bloomfield has a good team, Wayne has a better. I want the game played within a week, but if Bloomfield can't get ready in that time, they can have a few days longer. It's up to them now to do business, if they are not bluffing."—Sioux City Tribune.

A Stolen Game

Possibly the less said about a bad matter the better, but the fact remains that the result of the ball game Thursday afternoon between Bloomfield and Wayne, was, so far as the umpire was concerned, a disgrace to any man who will take the field in that position. A man who will bet money on the outcome of a game before he begins his work as umpire is certainly in no position to render just and impartial decisions on close plays, and those are the times when a umpire is really needed, and he is not going to decide so that he will lose the money bet if a decision can be made that will prevent. The whole manner of the so-called Bloomfield team, although there were only four men in the whole aggregation that ever saw Bloomfield, before the game, was that they intended to steal the game if they could not get it in any other way, for their braggadocio flashing of money showed that they knew where the umpire stood. After standing several of the rankest kind of decisions, without protest, and every decision made in favor of the Bloomfield team, a decision was made on a home run hit to left field which would have put two men over the plate, tying the score, but which the umpire, forty feet away from the line when the ball struck the ground, called a foul ball, and the Wayne boys asked for a new umpire to finish the game, and being denied this, refused to play and the game was given to Bloomfield. The action of the home team is upheld by the commercial club. The flag in left field set at least two feet inside of a straight line with third base and home plate, but even at that, the writer, who sat on the end of the bench directly in line avers that the ball struck the ground about on a line with the flag and then bounced outside and rolled some distance, being probably ten feet outside when the fielder got the ball. By that time the umpire had gotten down to the line and called the ball a foul strike.

Broken Collar Bone

James Stoldt, whose home is in Michigan, but who has been working at the carpenter trade in Wayne and vicinity thus far this season, met with an accident Wednesday afternoon of last week which caused him the breaking of his right collar bone and other bruises. He had been in town that afternoon to purchase a new saw, and while on his way out to the farm where he was working the team became frightened and a sudden jump threw the seat on which he was riding out the rear end of the wagon and he struck the ground in such a way as to produce the result stated above.

Will Remodel

Monday work, in a limited way, began on the remodeling of J. J. Ahern's store, and by next week it will be well under way. Some changes are being made in the shelving and other fixtures in the present room, and a large archway will then be cut between the present store room and the one just vacated by Howard Whalen. When this is done the north room will be painted and papered, new shelving and counters put in and the entire room remodeled and changed. When this work is done and the room is ready for occupation Miss Temple will move her millinery store into it and make use of the north side of it for the display of her goods. Mr. Ahern realizes that there is a demand here for a lady's outfitting department so it is his intention to meet this demand by fitting this room up with a ready-to-wear department exclusively for the ladies. No piece goods of any kind will be kept in this room but therein the ladies will be able to find on sale every ready to wear garment they may need from the sole of their foot to the crown of their head. Mr. Ahern has already established a good reputation as a dealer in this class of goods and in this new department will be more fully able to meet all demands made upon him, and will no doubt meet with success in his new field of trade.

Will Double Capacity

Now that the season is over for making many sales of incubators, the X Ray Co., of Wayne, has been casting about them for next year. It is the intention of the company to at least double the present capacity of the plant, in fact they will put out next year, the 4th of its existence, as many machines as they have in the past three. It is estimated that it will take at least 127,000 feet of lumber for their next year's output. California Red wood is used mostly in the incubators. They have a number of changes and improvements for next year which will add to the stability and appearance of their machines while at the same time the cost of manufacture will be reduced, and nearly everything will be made here at home, making work for home men and keeping the money in circulation among our own people. Horace Greeley said, in discussing the financial question at the close of the war when the nation was seeking to get back on a gold basis; "The way to resume is to resume; so the way to build up a town is to patronize home industries buy all you can at home and do everything possible to encourage the spirit of reciprocity between the residents of the town and the surrounding country. Hence we are glad to see the X-Ray and all other home industries make a steady advancement."

Anything to Oblige Him.
"Heber," said the young father, "I suppose you are going to marry that doll-faced, wasp-waisted, pink-cheeked, simpering, giggling, kitten-baiting, poverty-stricken little Miss Weston?"
"No, father," answered the youthful son; "if you prefer to marry that long, lean, hawk-faced, sharp-chinned, goggle-eyed, crooked-necked, dowdy, old-fashioned, suspicious, and generally unattractive prim, Mrs. Alexander."
"You shall!" roared the father, old-fashioned gentleman. "You're not half good enough for her."

The Mendicant.
There are those who ascribe the word "mendicant" to the silly application put forth as a euphemism, meaning a poor wretch beyond the power of mending. But something very close to the term was in use as long ago as when Chaucer wrote his "Canterbury Tales." In the "Sompuour's Tale" this occurs:
"Therefore we mendicants, we sell forsooth."
Ben wedded to poverty and continence To charity, humblesse and abstinence forsooth."
The "Sompuour" of Chaucer was, of course, a sumptuous, or apparition, and a sign of low estate, and here we have it believed, the origin of the word which came into common use in the 15th century.

We Can Learn from Our Children.
Treat the child more as an equal—not as a hopeless inferior. There isn't so much need of coming down to his level as of giving him an opportunity to come up to yours—which will not require such a frightful effort on his part as you sometimes imagine. If you can get a child to recognize and treat you as his equal, continue Mrs. Hutchinson, writing for "Success Magazine," you will have gained the highest possible position of influence over him and earned the best and sincerest gratitude ever paid you. We dwell greatly upon what parents teach their children, but we forget to record in equal detail on the opposite side of the ledger what our children teach us. It would be difficult to say on which side the balance would be found to fall. The child is not merely the ideal pupil, but also the greatest teacher in the world. The lessons that we learn from him, if we approach him with proper humility, are the most valuable part of our education.

"Why, where, Mrs. McGoozie?"
"At home," "I'm the audience."

Doctor's Test of Food.
A doctor in Kansas experimented with his boy in a test of food and gives the particulars. He says:
"I naturally watch the effect of different foods on patients. My own little son, a lad of four, had been ill with pneumonia and during his convalescence did not seem to care for any kind of food.
"I knew something of Grape-Nuts and its rather fascinating flavor and particularly of its nourishing and nerve-building powers, so I started the boy on Grape-Nuts and found from the first that he liked it.
"His mother gave it to him steadily and he began to improve at once. In less than a month he had gained about eight pounds and soon became so well and strong we had no further anxiety about him.
"An old patient of mine, 73 years old, came down with serious stomach trouble and before I was called had got so weak he could eat almost nothing, and was in a serious condition. He had tried almost every kind of food for the sick without avail.
"I immediately put him on Grape-Nuts with good, rich milk and just a little pinch of sugar. He exclaimed 'never came next day.' 'Why, doctor, I never ate anything so good or that made me feel so much stronger.'
"I am pleased to say that he got well on Grape-Nuts, but he had to stick to it for two or three weeks, then he began to branch out a little with rice for a day or two. He got entirely well the next day, and has since gained 22 pounds in two months, which at his age is remarkable."
"I could quote a list of cases where Grape-Nuts has worked wonders."

What Gold Cannot Buy

By MRS. ALEXANDER
Author of "A Crooked Path," "Maid, Wife or Widow," "By Woman's Wit," "Boston's Bargain," "A Life Interest," "Mona's Choice," "A Woman's Heart."

CHAPTER III.
Mr. Rawson found even a warmer reception than he had anticipated awaiting him when he presented himself the following day in Stratford Square. Bright reproaches were showered upon him for his dilatory entry, and an angry son, a weak, contemptible duff. But Mr. Rawson defended himself bravely.
"No one could do so much with Mrs. Saville as the family solicitor. First he was a shrewd, far-seeing man of great experience, and undoubtedly in the greatest confidence. Then, too, he was a rich man and perfectly independent, both in position and in character. So high was her opinion of him that she designed to call periodically on his daughters, and some years before, when she was in the habit of giving a large ball every season, sent them invitations, which were generally declined. Hugh Saville had been at school with the solicitor's only son, who was also in the navy, and, when the young fellow evinced a tendency to drink, stood by him and helped him at the turning point where, but for friendly help, he might have taken the downward road.
"Mrs. Saville was too clever a woman to be a snob, though her love of power and distinction made her overvalue the effect of rank and title upon her fellow-creatures. She was quite willing that her sons should be on familiar terms with Mr. Rawson's family; they were perfectly safe in the society of his quiet, unpretending daughters, while the sincere regard entertained by Mr. Rawson for the family of his distinguished client, whose debts, difficulties, and involvements made many steps in the ladder by which his father and himself had climbed to fortune, lent something of a feudal character to the tie existing between them.
"To Mrs. Saville the greatest power on earth was money; but she was no miser. She could be lavishly generous at times, especially to any one who had served or gratified her own precious self. She could throw aims, too, to the needy, as you would a bone to a starving cur; but to her the poor were not exactly men or brothers. Yet, as her son said, she was not without heart, only lifelong undisputed command and unchecked prosperity had hardened it; no one could do much for her, or give her anything she had not already, and amid the splendid sunshine of her existence one small cloud, "no bigger than a man's hand," cast a deep shadow against which her inner heart rebelled. She was conscious that no one loved her, except, indeed, her son Hugh. This it was that made her so hard; she did not realize that her manner, her haughty aspect, repelled such sweet free-will offerings as love and tenderness.
"My dear madam," said Mr. Rawson when she pursued in her reproaches, "I can quite understand your displeasure, but suffer me to suggest that I have a right to receive whom I like to my own house. I do not defend your son's imprudence; but, though you renounce him, surely you would not wish to deprive the poor young fellow of friends as well as kindred? To persecute him is revenge, and to that I will be no party."
"I do not understand these nice distinctions," cried Mrs. Saville, "but I think your giving shelter to—that disobedient boy is inconsistent with loyalty to me."
"Not in my opinion. Your son is not the first young man who has left father and mother to cleave unto his wife. He has been singularly imprudent; still—
"Imprudent! A dupe! a fool! an ungrateful idiot! Can't you see the game of the adventure all through?"
"I must say, such a construction might be put on the disastrous story. If you are right, however," continued Mr. Rawson, "your son is more sinned against than sinning. If Mr. Hugh Saville's wife is the sort of a woman you imagine, she will hardly live for a year, and more away from her husband, and with her reach of the crew with which her father used to associate, without getting into a scrape of some kind. I propose to have her carefully watched. If she gives us just reason for action, let her be punished and your son saved from her clutches. If she proved a good woman and true, why, you must relax something of your severity."
"I can safely promise what you will, if she proves good and true. How do you propose to find out?"
"The lady remains near Nice, in the same rooms occupied by her father. Mr. Saville thinks that the owner of the house is kind and respectable; his wife knows little of English ways, and, besides, it is cheaper. Now, there is a man already employed in similar work by an eminent firm, and I can quite well accept a second commission; only he must be warned not to find out what does not exist. We want facts, not condemnation."
"I want freedom for my son; but the idea is a good one, Mr. Rawson; I shall never be the same to Hugh, but I should prefer punishing the woman."
"It is but natural," remarked Rawson.
"Remember, Mr. Rawson, I must have my will to-morrow; I am determined to destroy it. It strikes me that your coming without it to-day looks very like playing into Hugh's hands."
"You do us both injustice. I am reluctant you should chastise it, but your son never mentioned the subject to me. Indeed, he is too breathlessly busy, and a good deal harassed by his—by the lady's anxiety to come out as a public singer, for which she was trained. He—"
"Anything but that! Imagine the case of Mrs. Hugh Saville in huge letters at the top of a playbill! It would be monstrous!"
"Oh, she would come out as Signora somebody. I would not oppose it if I were you. But I think your son has forbidden the plan."
"Why should I take any further trouble?" said Mrs. Saville, throwing herself back in her chair. "Let things go."
"Very well," Mr. Rawson rose to take leave. "Lord Everton" arrived yesterday. He makes some short stay in town, but no doubt he will call on you."
"Then I shall not see him. I shall get away, I hope next week; I cannot stay in town; yet I dread the country. Do not forget to send my will this afternoon by a special messenger."
"I shall be sure to do so."
"And come the day after to-morrow to take my instructions for a new one. I don't wish to die intestate."
"My dear Mrs. Saville, what a comic idea!"
"If you knew how I felt you would not think it an unnatural one."
"A few weeks' quiet in the country will set you up."
"The country without companionship will not be cheerful, yet I want to get away from every one. At Inglefield, however, I have my gardens."
"A delightful resource," said Rawson, absently. His attention had begun to wander, and he hastened to make his adieu.
A conspiracy of small things, however, seemed to have been formed against the execution of Mrs. Saville's plans.
Rawson faithfully fulfilled his promise, and sent her will, which that very night she tore up with vigorous energy and burned in the empty grate of her dressing-room, but the trusty adviser was immensely engaged for the next fortnight, and when he offered the services of his partner they were invariably declined. Then, by some mistake, there had been a delay in beginning certain repairs and decorations at Inglefield, and when she drove down to inspect them she found the smell of paint so overpowering that she at once postponed her removal for at least ten days. Finally she sent for her doctor and commanded him to prescribe for the bad feverish cold she declared she had caught, and above all to order absolute quiet. All this time her eldest son was absent. He was spending a delightful and profitable few days, which stretched into a fortnight, with a learned antiquarian who had a place in Lincolnshire, from where they enjoyed themselves examining the fine old churches to be found in that shire, taking rubbings of brasses, and spending happy mornings in deciphering half-effaced inscriptions.
These were bitter days to the proud, selfish woman, who felt that the love which had kept her heart from freezing, her nature from growing quite stony, had been snatched from her by a stranger, a mere adventurer, who most likely saw in Hugh only a useful husband, whose money and position would make life luxurious and secure. For the sake of this stranger, the son she loved so well in her own silent, exacting way had cast aside all sense of duty, all affection, all regard for rightful authority; and to her it seemed a moral earthquake.
The feverish cold she feigned at first became really an attack of low fever, and her medical attendant grew anxious that she should have change of air. Ill or well, she never ceased to insist on having her new will completed and brought to her for execution. In vain Mr. Rawson begged for her to await the return of her eldest son and consult him first. Mrs. Saville rejected the suggestion with scorn.
"Richard knows nothing about business. He has preposterous unworthy notions. I have no respect whatever for his opinion; so just bring me my will, without further maneuvering. I know you are working for that ungrateful, worthless son of mine; but it is of no use. If you refuse to do my bidding I can find plenty who will."
"Very true, Mrs. Saville; but I do not deny that I am reluctant to see my young friend cut off without even a shilling. Do not be in a hurry. You cannot tell what time may bring forth."
"No, Mr. Rawson, I will not wait. Death may come at any moment, and I could not rest in my grave if I thought that designing mix was revelling in the enjoyment of my money."
"Well, then, I will do you bidding. The day after to-morrow I will send my head clerk with the will. You can get one of your own people for a second witness."
"Then I shall leave town on Thursday. Until I have signed, sealed, and delivered it into your hands, I shall not quit this house. Can I trust it to you?"
"My dear madam, do you take me for a felon?"
Mrs. Saville smiled—a swift, bright smile, such as at rare—very rare—intervals lit up her grave face.
"Well, I shall leave it in your hands." There was a short pause, and she resumed: "Among all this worry,

I suppose you have not had time to find me a lady companion?"
"Yes, I have made some inquiries, and find it is no easy matter. The fact is, I enlisted my eldest daughter in your service. She is a sensible, thoughtful young woman, and very anxious to select the right article. She was speaking to me only this morning, and was rather depressed about it. There are shoals of women seeking such an appointment, but very few that are suitable."
"One that did not suit would be worse than none."
"Exactly. Now, my daughter suggested something that might suit, if you do not mind waiting a week."
"I fear, Mr. Rawson, I shall have to wait considerably longer."
"Well, the lady I was going to mention is the niece of our rector down in Wales, my native place. He has lived dead many years, but this girl lived on with his widow, who died a few months ago. She is an orphan, very slenderly provided for, and is coming to stay with my girls for a few weeks. She is a gentlewoman, and well educated. I have not seen her since she was very young, so I will take a look at her before I say any more. If I think it worth while troubling you, she might call, and you could form your own judgment, or take her on trial for a couple of months."

"Thank you, Mr. Rawson. I am very much obliged. I should like to see her; for I cannot have a fright or a dowdy before my eyes every day. When do you expect this girl?"
"I am not quite sure. Soon, certainly."
"I should like to see her before I leave."
"I will ask my daughter to write this evening and ask her to come a little sooner."
"Yes, pray do. If she is at all reasonable and intelligent, she may be of great use to me. Imagine, Mr. Rawson, my daughter proposing to give me her 'dear Sophia' for six months, to be my daughter and to cherish me! Why, the girl is as great an idiot as her mother!"
"Indeed! The offer was well meant."
"I hate well-meaning people."
"Mr. Rawson laughed. 'I suppose I may tell you I had a few lines from Mr. Hugh—' he began, when he was swiftly silenced by an imperative, 'No, you may not. I will not allow that name to be mentioned before me, unless, indeed, we can succeed in breaking this unfortunate marriage.'"
"Mr. Rawson, looking very grave, bent his head."
"By the way, what is the name of the lady you mentioned?"
"Oh! Miss Desmond."
"I will see her," said Mrs. Saville, with decision. "I can tell at a glance whether she will do or not."
"Then I shall wish you a very good morning, and my daughter will let you know when Miss Desmond can wait upon you."
Mrs. Saville thanked him again, and bade him a gracious good-by.

STRIVING TO FILL EMPTY PEWS.
Aims and Accomplishments of a New York Church Federation.
Organized in 1895 and incorporated in 1901, the constitution of the Church Federation declares that its object "is to organize and assist the churches and Christian organizations in New York city for cooperative work on behalf of the spiritual, physical, educational, economic and social interests of its family life; and to represent the Christian sentiment of the city in regard to moral issues." Its discoveries have been amazing, and the assistance which its tabulated data have furnished to pastors in conducting a systematic neighborhood visitation cannot be overestimated, says Walter H. F. Grau in Harper's Weekly. One of the officers of the federation has very aptly compared its duties in regard to the churches to that of a clearing house with its daily settlements the banks' balances. Until the institution of a clearing house was established the exchange of checks and drafts was a most confusing operation and caused much friction between the various banking houses before their accounts were finally adjusted. Previous to the establishment of a church clearing house these religious units were in much the same quandary as the banks, though they did not suffer so acutely. The books of each bank had to balance within a certain length of time, but if a particular church knew of more churchless families than it could possibly visit it seldom imparted that knowledge to another pastor, in order that the latter might share in the missionary work; and so, very often, the information was put to no use.
Protestant parish system similar, in many respects, to the parish system of the Roman Catholic church was the aim of the founders of the federation. The aim was that all Christian institutions in Greater New York should be drawn into closer sympathy with one another and that a greater co-operative society be formed, with the expected result that the community at large would be benefited by a united endeavor to promote church-going.
The details for taking a canvass in the city are accurately mapped out in advance and a single federation district is covered at a time. Before beginning the work in any section a conference of the pastors interested in the association is held, in order that the plans may be freely discussed and the necessary subscriptions made to defray the incidental expenses of a first canvass. These meetings are valuable, incidentally as a means of promoting friendships between the various clergymen, who otherwise, in many instances, would probably remain total strangers, though residing within a few blocks of one another.

The Midsommer Girl.
She tired of the drooping hat that presses so heavily on her perspiring forehead these torrid midsommer days, yet in her efforts to render herself more comfortable this wise girl does not lose sight of Dame Fashion. She knows that black hats never were so popular, so she takes a look around and finally buys a graceful wide brimmed shape in black lace braid. She drapes it in lustrous folds of soft black satin around the crown—a simple but effective and becoming trimming. She buys a couple of stunning hat pins of brilliants, and instead of wearing the hat down over the eyes as fashion has decreed in the recent past, she daintily pins it back to rest her face. Thus she bows in fashion in wearing the black hat, but openly defies her in the method of wearing it.

Health and Beauty Hints.
For uncommon chafitis rubbing with common table salt is one of the best remedies known. Add just enough water to make the salt damp.
The finger nails should be manicured once each week, then if they are scrubbed and polished every day it should keep them in good order.
A fine-tooth comb, valuable for certain purposes, is capable of injuring the scalp if used unwisely, for the tiny points, close together, irritate the skin and, far from removing the dandruff, as many persons think, will increase it.
For the circulation of the blood in the scalp a vigorous brushing in the sun will prove wonderfully helpful. It brings new shiner and color, and all the unnatural oils are banished by the warm rays, so that the culture will be soft and fluffy.

Scour the Irons.
One point in which the novice in ironing often falls lies in not having the irons perfectly clean before beginning the work. To do really good work begin by scouring the irons thoroughly with soap and water. They must be dried on the fire, as this creates an immediate rust, which works off on the clothes.
Definition of a Lady.
A prize offered by the Gentlewoman (London) for the best definition of a lady was won by the following effort: "To be a lady means, rightly, to be a gentlewoman who shows by her every word and action a sweet and gentle dignity, with a gracious charm."

WOMEN'S INTERESTS

PLEASANT GOOD WAY TO ENTERTAIN.

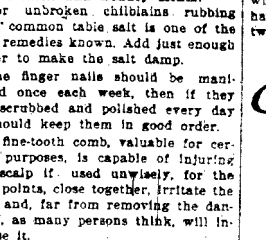

A picnic is one of the most attractive forms of entertainment, especially where a hostess wishes to give a special affair. As the success of a picnic depends on the attractiveness of the luncheon, care must be given to its choosing and packing. If it takes place in a woods, fresh fish, coffee, and potatoes cooked over a bonfire, besides being attractive edibles, contribute great fun. If the picnic takes place in a park, sandwiches, cold meats, salads, pickles, cakes, ice cream and lemonade should be chosen. Small rolls filled with lettuce, chopped olives, nuts, minced meats, keep fresh and are easily handled. Pickles, olives and chow chow are good appetizers and when put in bottles keep fresh. A large cake or small cakes baked the day before make attractive dessert. Though coffee is not readily heated, iced coffee and lemonade are cooling drinks.

It is well for the hostess to plan games while she and her helpers are setting the table. The table should be spread on the grass in true-picnic style. An inexpensive tablecloth may be used, with a square of white oil cloth the same size to put underneath. In the center are placed the dishes, filled with sandwiches, olives, pickles, nuts, fruit and cake. Each place is set with a wooden plate, Japanese napkin, a knife, fork and spoons.
The picnic over, the hostess should be as particular about clearing the table as she would be in her own home. The crumbs can be fed to the birds. The wooden plates and napkins put back into the luncheon basket and destroyed at home.

A Cheerful Home.
A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day; one surly glance casts a shadow over the household. But a smile may light up the darkest and dreariest hours. No matter how humble the abode, if it is thus garnished with grace and kindness, the heart will turn lovingly toward it from the tumult of the world without. The gentle grace of the mother of such a home remains to be seen in her daughter and the fatherly kindness finds its echo in the nobility and courtesy of the sons. On the other hand, from an unhappy, misgoverned home, go forth those who will make other homes unhappy and perpetuate the sadness, contentions and strife of their own early lives.—Agricultural Epitome.

The Family Washing.
To a boiler of water add one cup washing fluid and one bar of good soap. White heating sort the clothes, making four piles—best white in one, second best white in the second, common white in the third, and colored in the fourth. Put the best clothes in the washer, adding one and one-half pails of hot water from the boiler, and then enough cold water to cover. Turn the washer wheel from fifty to a hundred times. Write out the clothes and put into the boiler. If needed, add more water to boiler. Let clothes boil well. While the first boil wash the second. Take the first from the boiler and put in second, adding one-half cup fluid. Treat all the white in the same way. Then wash the colored without boiling. Put clean cold water in washer. Wash all the clothes through. Then rinse in the wheel. Squeeze without blueing and hang out. Should be done in less than two hours.

The hat reproduced here, while not being a strictly tailored model, would be appropriate for wear with that style of dress. For the development of this roughly woven basket, straw in mahogany brown was used. The shape was trimmed by a stiff band of silk, richly embroidered in gold and the different shades from hence to the brown of the straw and bordered by plain silk in the deepest shade. This band was adjusted in wavy lines, the two pointed ends meeting—but not joining—in the right rear, the front. A sweep of handsome agrettes in tones of brown and gold completed the gariture.
A new fancy is the large soft wing, the pointed tip of which runs into a broad, stiff quill. The quill is of the same color as the wing, but it is a natural color, with the gold of a pointed wing color.
Spring, usually of serving, and woven in some special fashion, are used upon a number of these dresses. Shantung as a trimming and as a material for sweeping over hats is a feature of many of the Paris styles. It is used for facing, panels and for lining coats.
Trimming for the Newest Suits.

of manner. A woman whose heart is pure and true, who is tender toward all suffering, who sympathizes with those in trouble, and is ever ready to give that which costs her some effort and self-denial. A lady thinks no work derogatory, and no one is deemed too low to receive courtesy and kindness. She is pure and good in every detail of life, a true friend and a ministering angel in sorrow and in sickness.

Value of Little Virtues.
Do not be troubled because you have not great virtues. God made a thousand spears of grass where he made one tree. The earth is filled and carpeted not with forests, but with grasses. Only have enough of little virtues and common duties, and you need not mourn because you are neither a hero nor a saint.

No Plans for a First.
The girl who gets work in an office for the purpose of having a man and capturing a lover or a live husband, is of no chance for advancement or is slight, and she might better spend her time at home helping to feed the dishes. The caprices of the fair are very apparent as air.

Her Reason.
The reason that Dolly married Bill, said I hear, "Was simply because he was twice a milliner."
"The party election."
In a very short season, then Bill lost his cash, and Belle lost her reason."
—Puck.

Comment Unnecessary.
"Your womanhood will gain nothing by suffrage and is losing every day in its dignity and its true influence by the hysterical clamor which is employed in the pursuit of this chimera," said Bishop Doane of New York to the graduating class in a noted school. Comment seems unnecessary.—Chicago Inter Ocean.
Parish Clothing.
If you have a back porch or any convenience of posts put galvanized screw hooks on inside of each corner, cut your life of either rope or wire for the distance between, tying loops in the ends in each, which can be easily hooked off and on. Put away and keep clean when not in use.
Beans Brighten Burners.
Boil lamp burners in the water that beans have been boiled in.

Sewer Work

Work on the sewer system has been under way for nearly a week in the alley between Douglas and Sherman streets, directly south of the school house. The force of men is not nearly as large as the foreman would like although advertising has been done in the Sioux City papers. The wages paid are $2.25 per day, or those who prefer can work by the yard for which 25 cents is paid. For the first seven feet a man can make more money working by the yard after that the greater the depth the slower the work owing to the height the dirt has to be thrown out. Those on the job are not willing to work for 25 cents per yard at a depth below 8 feet, and will either ask for a helper and platform or else 50 cents per yard. The first four feet of earth is very hard digging after that it is easier as the ground is softer, although no water is found in the soil nor much indication of any. Some sewer pipe has been laid although not much of the ditch is down to the depth it will have to go. The job promises to be long drawn out unless more help can be secured.

Doing an injury puts you below your enemy; revenging one makes you even with him; forgiving it sets you above him.

ABOUT THE COUNTY SCHOOLS

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

The County Only Shows a Small Increase in School Population Over Last Year.

Mrs. Elsie Littell has compiled her annual report as County Superintendent to the state officials. From it we glean the following facts that may be of general interest. There are two brick school houses and 80 frame ones in the county, valued at $74,268. The grounds used for school purposes are valued at $13,636, books at $74.88, maps, etc. at $23.78. During the past year there were only 6 male teachers employed. The lowest salary paid the male teachers was $40 per month, and the highest $127.77. There were 111 women teachers employed in the county, and the lowest salary was $35 per month and the highest $57.50. The school census of the county shows that there are between the ages of 5 and 21 in the county 1889 males and 1735 females, a total of 3621. The total in the county last year was 3614. How Is Your Mail Box?

A visit of a mail route inspector to this place recently revealed the fact that many boxes on the four routes out of Pierce are set up improperly and such patrons who had such boxes were reported to the department at Washington. On route 1 eleven boxes were found that were not placed according to the department's instructions; route 2 showed 23, route 3 had three and on route 4 four were reported. It was found that the boxes were either too low, too high, attached to a fence or telephone post, did not extend out far enough to let carrier deliver mail without danger, were on a buggy wheel, or set in a rough or inclined place. Such violations should be remedied at once if patron desires mail delivery continued.—Pierce Call.

Fifty Men Wanted

For Sewer work at Wayne, Nebraska. This is good, dry, steady work. Come quick. We need you and you need us. Wages, $2.25 per day or by the yard.

W. D. YOUNG, Foreman.

He Did Not

At this writing we have not heard whether Henry Bartels fled as a candidate for treasurer or not but we hope he did. A good and popular candidate put up against Charley Beebe would add new life to the campaign and might possibly stop some of the political maneuvers that usually happen just before each election. And it would greatly help the good cause if Grant Mears was given the chance of his life this fall. Winside Tribune.

Good Intentions

Good intentions are seldom negotiable for cash. Ask the lazy school-boy why he doesn't study and advance with his class. He will tell you that he intends to—sometimes—but he never does. Ask any improvident man or woman why they don't save and lay up something for a rainy day. They will tell you that they intend to—sometimes—but they never do. Ask any slow, unprogressive business man why he does not discard his old antiquated ways of doing business and adopt new, up-to-date, progressive methods of sales and advertising. All such will tell you that they intend to, next week, or next month, or next year—but they never do.—Cover Chat.

Stabbing Affray at Wisner

Wisner, Nebraska, July 27.—A stabbing affray just occurred in which William Geisch was injured about the head by an Italian with whom he has been working on the section at this place. The Italian has threatened to do this a number of times, but not until now has he carried his threats into effect. The Italian made his getaway by running down the tracks and catching a ride on the road. He was making towards Beemer when Special Police Thos. Alfson and Otto Ringer overtook him and brought him back to town, where he was lodged in the city jail to await his trial. Geisch is not seriously hurt, though he may have a stiff neck for some time. The Italian is the only one of his kind who was working on the section, the others being local men.

Married

Rev. Bithel, of Fremont, a former M. E. pastor in Wayne, was here yesterday and united in marriage W. M. Wright, principal of the Dixon, Nebraska, schools, and Miss Veda Pilger, a teacher in the Plainville, Nebraska, schools. Frank Pilger, Supt. of Schools for Dixon county, residing at Pierce, a brother of the bride, was here to the wedding as were also Miss Bertha Pilger and Mr. and Mrs. Degner, of Norfolk. The wedding was a quiet affair and took place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ed. Samuelson, in the east edge of the city. After a wedding dinner the newly wedded couple took an automobile and went to Wakefield, taking the train from that point east on a short tour. Both the bride and groom are well known in Wayne and vicinity and the well wishes of a host of friends goes with them as they start out across the sea of life in this new relation.

Please Take Warning

The filing of A. Bohlander, of Winside, for county clerk, is liable to make the Wayne tricksters open their eyes and think some, and, indeed, they will have several things coming. Mr. Bohlander is not the style of a man that makes it at all safe to stab from behind, and the usual tactics of treachery and slaughter must be abandoned or worked a lot more secretly than ever before. Every county officer at the present time is a Wayne citizen and outside candidates are supposed to do homage or keep out, but in this case Mr. Bohlander must have a square deal or there will be a howl raised that will not end until every Wayne man will be relegated to private life. Grant Mears, Phil Kohl, Charley Reynolds, Judge Britton and Charley Beebe will be closely watched this year and it goes without saying that they are expected to make a noise like acting politically square.—Winside Tribune.

Beware

Pay no money to an unknown person for an unknown article. If a man who doesn't know you offers you a job through the mails and asks money from you, find out what the job is first, and then don't pay the money. Good jobs don't hunt men by mail. They don't have to. If it's a salary he offers you, he's a swindler. Honest business men do not pay salaries to unseen applicants. If he "guarantees" so much per day or week or month to you, he's a liar. No man can guarantee your earning powers without knowing who or what you are. If he cites tempting figures, seeking to enroll you among his agents, and asks you for a deposit on a sample article, shun him. You wouldn't pay money for an article you had never seen to a man whom you chance to meet on the street because he promised you an agency. Why, then, pay it to an unknown man who calls from afar to you through a newspaper or magazine? Let him, if he is honest, send his sample on approval. And, above all, when you have been swindled by a fake advertiser, tell the publisher of the medium in which you found the advertisement. If he is honest, he'll be glad to know of it. If he's dishonest, he'll be uncomfortable. Two to one, he took that advertisement with an uneasy feeling anyway. And if 10 per cent of the victims protested with the might that is in them against these swindlers, 90 per cent of the petty larcenists who thrive on printer's ink would take either to honest labor or the woods.—Samuel Hopkins Adams in Colliers.

The Chautauqua

The Wayne Assembly for 1909 comes to a close today. Owing to the busy season among the farmers, haying and harvest both being on hand, the attendance has not been what it otherwise would have been. The management has been disappointed in some of its talent not coming. In the main, however, it has been a success. Will give a more extended notice of the event next week.

Confession Good for the Soul

Governor A. C. Shallenberger in his address Thursday afternoon said that the reason the democratic party had not been able to win but one victory in the nation in the last fifty years was because it had always been wrong on all moral questions. As he also said that he had been a member of that party ever since he came of voting age he ought to know whereof he spoke. B. F. Feather says he has heard nearly all the big democratic orators and speakers since the close of the war and that Shallenberger was the first one he ever heard admit that the democratic party was wrong on the slavery question.

Republican Declaration

The Republicans of the state, in convention assembled, Tuesday, passed the following as their declaration of principles: "We approve, commend, and unqualifiedly endorse the stand taken by President Taft in the matter of tariff revision. We are counting on him to see to it that the party's platform promise of revision by the enactment of a tariff bill acceptable to the people, and we would approve the exercise of his veto on any bill that does not conform to his construction of the platform pledge which he has said means 'revision downward within the limitations of the protective principle.' We look to our senators and representatives in congress to sustain the president in this position and we commend them for their efforts in support of the party's pledges and the president's policies.

We approve and endorse the Brown resolution adopted by congress submitting to the several states for their action a proposed constitutional amendment empowering the federal government to levy and collect taxes on incomes.

Silly Gush

The rods of rancid rot daily printed in the big city papers about the vulgar rich, their sayings and doings; what they eat and how they eat it; what they drink and how much of it; what they wear and how when and where they wear it; minute write ups, with pictorial illustrations of every dud worn by brilliant women, full description of every garment, including the embroidered and hemstitched clothes prepared beforehand for the unborn brats; all their fulsome, nauseous stuff, drooled out daily in the big papers by the column and by the whole page—a sort of gross pandering to riches—a servile worship of snobocracy—a putting of the forehead to the ground when the money meloch passes down the street, does more to stir up the devil in a man than all else combined. This sort of man worship may go on all right in countries where one man is acknowledged to be better than another, but it will never go in this land of the free and the home of the brave; and the sooner the big papers let up on this flaunting of money in the faces of decent people, the quicker all sorts of devilishness will cease to be a menace to our government. Leigh World.

Lacked Depth

While Governor Shallenberger's address at the Chautauqua last Thursday afternoon was in the main interesting we doubt very much whether it came up to the expectation of the large audience that turned out to hear him. It was entertaining and to a limited extent instructive, yet it lacked the depth of thought that one looks for before an assembly of that kind. While his subject of "Political Patriotism" was doubtless quite a little in partizan politics, which a course would have been all right and proper in a political gathering but was not entirely in place where it was delivered. The greatest criticism we would offer on the address, however, was his attack upon the judiciary. The one great bulwark of our American citizenship is the men in the district. Judges chairs and on the Supreme bench of our states and the United States. In these later years there has been altogether too much of a tendency to tear down and belittle this important arm of our government. It may now and then happen that a weakling or a corrupt man obtains the judgeship or a seat on the supreme bench, but if so it is not for long. In the main they are men of the strictest probity of character regardless of their party affiliation, and it ill becomes a man in the position of the governorship of a great state like ours, who, like the judges themselves, has been elevated to his position of trust and responsibility by the vote of the people, to belittle the judges of our state supreme court in a public address simply because some of his pet measures enacted by the last legislature have been declared unconstitutional. Those who framed those laws are no more infallible than is the governor or the judges, and those who are called upon to pass judgment upon legal enactments when they have the time and opportunity to do so in calm and deliberate manner, are more likely to reach a right conclusion and deduction than are those who, taken from the various walks in life without any previous training or development are to pass laws that are in strict accord with other laws or the constitution of our commonwealth.

Allen has Decided

Allen has decided to put in a system of water works. All the smaller towns in this part of the state are doing the same thing.

NEBRASKA BUTTER

William E. Curtis Writes About It in the Chicago Record-Herald

Nebraska is gradually becoming a great butter state and produced 35,000,000 pounds last year. Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota are greater producers and send 100,000,000 pounds each to the market. New York, which was formerly the banner butter state, has dropped down several files, not because her farmers make any less than formerly, but because those of the western states make so much more. There are fifteen great creameries in Nebraska, owned by ten independent companies. One of them is a co-operative affair and the stock is held by the farmers, who furnish the cream to run it. Seven of these creameries are in Omaha, two at Lincoln, one at Beatrice, one at Crete, and the largest plant in the state, capable of producing 50,000 pounds of butter a day, was opened at Grand Island June 1.

The Omaha creameries produce from 50,000 to 60,000 pounds of butter a day the year around and are increasing their product as they can get additional cream. In 1908 their output was 19,000,000 pounds, valued at $4,430,000; while in 1907 it was 17,000,000 pounds. The largest company the state has gets its cream from 400 different stations, from 22,000 different farms—9,000 in Nebraska and the rest in Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota and Kansas. Some of the cream is shipped 700 miles. The farmers who furnish this supply have an average of only eight cows each, but are increasing them every year because they find the butter business much more profitable than any other kind of farming.

Nebraska butter is shipped all over the United States, but very little is exported to foreign countries. For the export trade butter has to be put up with special care, and there are creameries in Iowa which make a specialty of it.

The creamery companies work together to a certain extent in dividing territory, regulating the trade, fixing prices and other details of the business to promote economy and prevent confusion, although there is no trust or common interest. Each dairy company owns its own cans, which can be identified by the color of the tops, some of which are painted black, so that they can be identified at a distance. Every train coming into Omaha, carries a carload of them. A car holds 300 or more cans and the wagons of the creameries are always awaiting their arrival. The cans are sent back to the farmers by the cream trains and the farmers pick up the empties when they bring in their cream.

This system is beginning to revolutionize farming in Nebraska, where a lack of labor has been the great drawback in the cultivation of the soil. Cows can be pastured on a small range near home, an average of ten acres per head, and kept over winter on alfalfa, which grows luxuriantly in the dry belt, and calves and hogs can be fattened as a by-product. There are now three times as many farmers shipping cream as there were in 1900, and the output of the creameries is more than three times as great.

In 1900 the total amount of butter produced in Nebraska was 11,000,000 pounds, and, as I have already told you, the total for 1908 was 35,000,000 pounds, while the price of butter has increased nearly 10 cents a pound during that period. The farmer receives 24 cents a pound for his butter fat because of the "centralizer," where he used to realize only 8 or 10 cents a pound under the old method. A good cow, which cost him about $45, will yield 4,500 pounds of milk or 166 pounds of butter fat, which is worth $39 per year; the skimmed milk will be worth an average of $13; the manure $3—a total of $55 revenue per cow, and the calf in addition, whether it is kept for raising or sold for veal. The average cost of keeping a cow is $26 a year, which, calling the calf worth $3, makes the net return $35 for each cow.

The state board of agriculture estimates that a well bred cow ought to produce from $30 to $40 profit per year, and, in its bulletins of instruction, it impresses upon the farmers the advantage of getting the very best breeds, for "one good cow will bring as much net profit as thirty-five poor cows, and ten good cows as much as two hundred and fifty poor ones." It costs just as much time and labor to care for a poor cow as a good one, and it is an axiom that the less the "critter" is worth the larger amount of food she will consume.

If people with symptoms of kidney or bladder trouble could realize their danger they would without loss of time commence taking Foley's Kidney Remedy. This great remedy stops the pain and the irregularities, strengthens and builds up these organs and there is no danger of Bright's disease or other serious disorder. Do not disregard the early symptoms. Feibel's Pharmacy.

If some papers do not advocate mob law they come so very close to it that there is no other version to put on the language they use in discussing any question that is decided differently than they think it should be. A notable instance of this kind of editorial talk appeared in the Battle Creek Enterprise last week in writing about the bank guaranty law.

Everyone would be benefited by taking Foley's Orino Laxative for stomach and liver trouble and for habitual constipation. It sweetens the stomach and breath, gently stimulates the liver and regulates the bowels and is much superior to pills and ordinary laxatives. Why not try Foley's Orino Laxative today? Feibel's Pharmacy.

Poor Richard's Almanac

A good example is the best sermon. God heals, and the doctor takes the fees.

You may be too cunning for one, but not for all. Words may show a man's wit, but actions his meaning.

An ounce of wit that is bought is worth a pound that is taught. Keep your eyes wide open before marriage, half shut afterwards.

Ne'er take a wife till thou hast a house (and a fire) to put her in. If a man could have half his wishes, he would double his troubles.

Drink does not drown care, but waters it and makes it grow faster. If you would keep your secret from an enemy, tell it not to a friend.

Good sense is a thing all need, few have, and none think they want. Pride breakfasted with Plenty, dined with Poverty, supped with Infamy.

When out of favor none know thee; when in, thou dost not know thyself. If your riches are yours, why don't you take them with you to the other world?

Lend money to an enemy, and thou'll lose him. Be civil to all; serviceable to many; familiar with few; friend to one; enemy to none.

Work as if you were to live a hundred years; pray as if you were to die tomorrow. The wise man draws more advantage from his enemies than the fool from his friends.

A wise man will desire no more than what he may get justly, use soberly, distribute cheerfully, and leave contentedly.

H. Spitzgerber, living three miles over in Wayne county, drove in a car load of fat cows Sunday and among them was one that weighed about 1200 pounds and said to be the largest cow ever brought to Pileger. When in about two miles of town she became overheated. Mr. Spitzgerber had the drayman go out and haul her to town, but being so large and fat the heat had done its work and she died that night. She was worth over $100 on the market. —Pileger Herald.

The Coleridge Blade says that one of the business men of that town, who howls the loudest about people trading away from home, gets his stationery printed in Omaha. And that is what makes an editor mad. When a newspaper man does all his trading with home merchants and is constantly urging his readers to do the same he is entitled to the support of all the business men of the community, and a merchant ought to be ashamed of himself who will send out of town for his job work or anything else that he can buy at home.

Some of our merchants have received copies of the pure food law in regard to eggs, which they have posted in some conspicuous place in their store. Farmers who do not already know the law should take the trouble to read it, especially those who "make a mistake" occasionally and bring stale eggs to market.

It is said that the man who acted as umpire in the baseball game Thursday was going to work for Dewey, the barber, Friday, but when he showed up he was told that his services were not needed. Dewey probably figured that a man who would act the way that one did was not the kind of a man he wanted in his shop.

For some unknown reason Prof. G. P. Holden failed to keep his agreement with the Chautauqua association and did not appear to deliver his lecture last Saturday on the gospel of good corn, neither did he send any word as to why he did not, or could not come. Such a plan of procedure on the part of a public man is very poor policy. There was a goodly number of farmers out, who came expressly to hear him and of course were disappointed.

Mrs. E. B. Young received from Miss Agnes Glenn at Shoshi, Japan, Monday morning, a large photograph of the Sunday School that is being supported in that country through the efforts of some of the Wayne women. The Index is urging upon the people of Carroll the necessity of taking some action looking to establishment of a system of fire protection. The town should heed the advice of the paper.

L. M. Owen had a car load of hogs on the Sioux City market Friday that topped the market—being $7.75 per 100, being the only lot out of a receipt of 4,000 head that brought that price.

The excessive heat of yesterday afternoon caused a number of men to quit work. This morning there is a good, cool breeze blowing from the northeast and life is more bearable.

One of our callers Saturday afternoon was Ed. Behmer, one of the good Wayne county farmers down Hoskins way. He said that harvesting was farther along up this way than with them.

Attorney Siman, of Winside, was an agreeable caller Saturday afternoon. From his statement of certain facts it is apparent that the legal business in Wayne county is not the most profitable of any.

The framework of John Larison's handsome new residence is up and partially enclosed. The grading around the house is something different than anything in town, with terraces rising one above the other from the sidewalk along the street, the topmost one being semicircular in form. It will be fine when well seeded to grass.

J. E. Abbott, who used to reside about two miles northeast of Wayne where he was engaged in farming, but who moved to Crawford, Nebraska, about one year ago, died at that place Monday and the remains were sent to Red Oak, Iowa, for burial. He was well known here in Wayne being quite prominent in church work.

There is a good deal of old corn in the hands of the farmers in this county and the indications are that those who would not sell last spring, about corn planting time, when they could have gotten 63 cents per bushel, will have to take quite a bit less. There has been quite a material break in the price downward and it is not likely to go up, at least for some time.

The young son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bluechel met with an accident Tuesday afternoon while playing ball, or watching the game. A number of small boys were engaged in playing ball on Pearl street, between 3d and 4th, and, as one of the batters swung his club to strike at the ball, the bat struck the Bluechel boy over the left eye, cutting a bad gash, which led quite profusely, but no serious results followed.

An important feature of Woman's Home Companion this summer is the Reminiscences of the late venerable Edward Everett Hale. The August issue contains, in place of the regular monthly chapter of the Reminiscences, the publication of which commenced before Doctor Hale's death, a beautiful tribute to the eminent writer and minister by his personal friend, W. H. McElroy.

Alfred Bohlander, of Winside, who has filed as the Republican candidate for County Clerk at the coming primary election, was a caller Saturday afternoon, being in the city to attend the republican county convention. His health is much better than it was several weeks ago. Mr. Bohlander has resided in his home town for the past six years or more and has a large acquaintance in the county. He impresses us as a man well qualified to fill the office to which he aspires. His announcement card appears in this issue.

Harry Prescott and conductor Simon, who rented the room next south of Piepenstock's harness shop, intending to put a moving picture show therein, began work on remodeling the room last Thursday. A new floor has been put in the entire width of the room and nearly the whole length, on which will be placed the seats. At the front end an elevated platform has been put in on which will be placed the necessary machinery for producing the pictures. The whole room will be finished in good shape.

Skippers

Those are the kind of things that sometimes get into cheese, to its detriment, and also the kind of men who occasionally come to a town and engage in some kind of a business. Wayne has just had an experience of this kind. Jones & Co., who were running the Lyric theater, and who had only been here a week, suddenly decided to get out of town and they stood not on the order of their going with the result that some of our citizens were left in the lurch in the matter of finance. What caused them to leave so suddenly is not known, but it appears to have been just pure meanness. They left Saturday morning. Too bad they could not have been men enough to even try to pay their bills. As they had been here only such a short time no one looked for them to leave.

Whalen's Opening

Last Saturday afternoon was the date set for opening Whalen's new ice cream parlor and bakery, and from two o'clock, the hour of opening, until late at night the store was crowded with buyers and those who came to inspect the new parlors. To say that all were pleased would be telling the truth of the matter. It is very doubtful if any town in the state with twice the population has as fine a room as the one now occupied by the Whalens. All of the fixtures are of quarter oak finished in the best style—dark floor and wall show cases—eight of the former and four of the latter—provide ample means for the display of the fine bakery goods and confectionery which are always kept in stock, and at the same time keeps them free from dust or flies. Eight tables for the adults and one small one for the children affords room for those who choose to take a dish of the delicious ice cream or Sundaes that the firm always serves to those who feel the need of anything in that line. At the rear of the room and on either side are large French plate glass mirrors which add much to the effectiveness of the furnishings and gives one at all times a view of the picturesqueness of the scene in the coming and going of the patrons, while the fine ware used in serving and the attentiveness of those in charge to fill the orders and attend to the wants of those who enter, make it indeed what Mr. and Mrs. Whalen had in mind in providing it, the very best and most attractive place of its kind not only in Wayne but also in this part of the state. Mr. and Mrs. Whalen came to Wayne between five and six years ago and took possession of the bakery when it was in a very much run down condition. By strict attention to business and always aiming to serve their patrons with the very best, they have built up and established a business which has its fruition in the splendid store room they now occupy, which, both in the bakery line and otherwise gives them the opportunity of still better caring for the trade already secured and to reach out for still more business in the adjacent territory. They deserve the success already secured and that which is to come.

ORATORS ARE STONED

POLITICAL RIOTS OCCUR AT GUADALAJARA, MEX.

Diaz Meeting is Broken Up—Hotel Where Speakers Lodge is Badly Wrecked—Two of Uncle Sam's Subjects Are Injured by Attack.

A message received Monday in Mexico City from Guadalajara says that all is quiet at that place following the rioting Sunday night. A hail-storm did what soldiers and bayonets failed to do—dispersed the rioters.

The American consul has lodged a protest with the Mexican authorities because of the injury sustained by H. Murphy. Claims will also be filed by those Americans who suffered property loss.

The riots started Sunday afternoon when a mob broke up a meeting at Del Galo theater called in the interest of Porfirio Diaz, the president, and Roman Corral, vice president, for reelection.

Speakers who were campaigning in the interest of Diaz and Corral were received sullenly when they arrived at the station in Guadalajara, and during their trip to the Del Galo theater, where the meeting was to be held, they were hooted and jeered by the throngs gathered along the sidewalks.

At the theater the crowds refused to allow a single orator to speak, drowning their voices with yells and driving them from the stage by hurling paper wads and occasional stones.

When the party emerged from the building they were stoned and Leon Rojas, a prominent lawyer was struck on the head and badly injured.

The 10th regiment was called out and with the aid of this organization and a Gordon of mounted police the speakers made their way to the train. They arrived in Mexico City Monday.

Guadalajara is the second city of the republic and is ranked as the most beautiful. A large American colony lives there. The headquarters for the extension of the Southern Pacific through Mexico is located there, the city being the terminal point of the line.

The riot is the most serious that has occurred in Mexico in years, and is looked upon as significant by those who have been closely following the political situation.

CRAZED BY DRINK; KILLS.

Massachusetts Man Slay His Wife

In a state bordering on insanity said to have been brought on by drink, and the fact that his wife had refused to live with him, Robert M. Fanning, aged 38 years, came to the police station in New Bedford, Mass., from his home in Westport early Monday morning, and after producing a letter in which he had written of having murdered his wife, shot himself through the head, causing instant death.

Following instructions given in the letter officers went to Westport, about seven miles from New Bedford, and at a spot indicated about half a mile from her home, found the body of Mrs. Fanning, who apparently had been killed with a hatchet.

Fanning and his wife, with their year-old daughter, lived at the home of his father-in-law, Capt. George Hall, in Westport.

BLERIOT WINS $5,000.

Trip Across the English Channel Nets Him Next Sum.

Dover, Eng., experienced the keenest thrill known in a generation, when at sunrise Sunday morning a white winged, bird-like machine, with loud humming motor, swept out from the haze obscuring the sea toward the distant French coast and circling twice above the chalky cliffs of Dover, alighted on English soil. A Frenchman, Louis Bleriot, portly and red moustached, calmly descended from the saddle, limping on a bandaged foot which had been burned in his previous overland flight. Immediately two competitors, who had been waving a big tri-colored flag as a signal for the landing place, fell upon him, enthusiastically embracing and pounding him on the back. They, with a few soldiers and others who happened to chance on the scene, were the only persons to witness the performance of a remarkable feat.

Bleriot left Baraqueux, three miles from Calais, about 4:30 a. m. on one of the smallest monoplanes ever used. He crossed the channel in a little less than half an hour, twice as swiftly as the fastest mailboat. His speed averaged more than forty-five miles an hour; sometimes it approximated sixty miles. He kept about 250 feet above the sea level and for ten minutes, while about mid-channel, was out of sight of both coasts and the French torpedo boat destroyer, which followed him with his wife and friends aboard. The wind was blowing about twenty miles an hour and the sea was choppy. The aviator was swathed with a single garment of drilling impervious to the wind which covered him from the top of his head to his feet, only his face showing. He wore also a cork life saving belt.

By his achievement Bleriot won the prize of $5,000 offered by the London Daily Mail for the first flight across the English channel and stole a march on his rivals, Hubert Latham and Count de Lambert, both of whom had hoped to make the attempt.

CHICAGO'S GREAT SCANDAL.

Amazing Tales Told Before the Grand Jury.

An astounding story of graft in the so-called west side levee of Chicago is said to have been related to the grand jury Friday.

Detective Sergeant Jeremiah Griffin, alleged to have been the recipient of protection money from dive keepers, gamblers and cocaine sellers, was indicted on eight counts. He is alleged to have garnered as high as $8,000 a month, a very small part of which remained in his own pocket. In all Griffin, who travels out of the Des Plaines street station headquarters of Inspector McCann, is said to have collected $150,000 from denizens of the under world on the west side.

Indictments were returned against Lewis Frank, saloonkeeper and politician, who is said to have accumulated a fortune of $1,000,000 in the levee district, and against Michael Hettler, who is familiarly known as "Mike, the Pike." They are alleged to have collected money from illegal houses by representing themselves as agents of the police. Testimony against Griffin was given by Charles Yanker, a levee proprietor, commonly known as "Monkey Charlie," Morris Schatz, who is said to conduct an illegal establishment at 108 Peoria street, appears on the indictment as complainant. Four detectives also gave testimony. One witness charged that the price of protection recently rose from $20 to $40 a month, and that he was compelled to quit business on account of the expense.

GALVESTON IS SAVED BY ITS NEW SEA WALL

Hurricane Attacks City, but Barrier Keeps Out Waters of Gulf of Mexico.

NOT ONE LIFE LOST IN CITY

City Practically Assured of Immunity from Disaster Like That of 1900.

Attacked by a hurricane almost as severe as that which killed thousands of persons and practically wrecked every building in the city, Galveston on Wednesday weathered the storm with a loss of life thought to have been only sixteen, and without greater property loss than would have attended the storm had it struck any other city of equal size.

Not a life was lost in Galveston proper, so far as is known, but the hurricane demolished a new tarpon fishing pier on the north jetty, across the bay, six miles from the city. It was here that the fatalities occurred, and it is thought that there were only thirteen guests on the pier. These perished, with Capt. Betts, the manager, and his wife and daughter. Fifteen other fishermen had a narrow escape from the fate that overtook the pier.

Galveston is assured now of its practical immunity from another disaster like that of 1900. A general feeling of confidence has resulted from the splendid action of the sea wall, which resisted the onslaught of the sea, backed by the hurricane which beat in vain on the concrete wall seventeen feet high surrounding the city on the gulf side of the island.

MOORS KILL SPANIARDS.

Tribesmen Attack Before Dawn and Are Repelled After Furious Battle.

An official statement concerning the fight between the Spaniards and the Kabyle tribesmen says that before dawn Friday morning the Moors opened a general attack on the Spanish advanced position at Mellila, Morocco, concentrating their efforts against Sidi Musa and the garrison at Cape Morera. The fighting was of the most furious character, but a sortie by six companies of Spanish infantry and a light field battery was successful and the enemy fell back two kilometers. In the fighting a Spanish colonel and three other officers were killed and thirteen wounded. The number of casualties among the enlisted men is not known. Newly debarked troops have been hurried to the front.

At 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon the Moors renewed their attack and defeated the Spanish troops. Under a galling fire by the Moors they were unable to hold the ground they had gained and at nightfall, in order to avoid disaster, retreated to their old positions.

1,000,000 RAIN HITS DULUTH.

City is Flooded by the Second Storm of Twenty-four Hours.

Scores of basements are flooded. Two and three-fifths inches of rain fell in about an hour and a half. The avenues were rivers. The water ran both ways on Superior street and for several blocks each side of Lake avenue. The water was two feet deep on the sidewalk on the lower side of Superior street. The water poured into the floor of the Bijou Theater, where a performance was in progress, and a panic was narrowly averted. The street car service was demoralized. The St. Louis Hotel basement had seven feet of water in it and the house was in darkness. Automobiles were abandoned in the streets for the night.

ERIE TRAIN IS HELD UP.

Wild West Tactics Used Successfully Just Outside of Gotham.

Reports of a hold-up of passengers on an Erie Railroad train in which western-bound immigrants were the victims, reached New York Friday morning. The reports came from Middletown, N. Y., and said that the hold-up occurred just after the train had left the Bergen tunnel in New Jersey. The train is known as the Western Express and leaves Jersey City at 12:10 a. m.

The varying reports of the affair say that either one or two men stepped into the first of two coaches bound west and, holding the passengers at bay with revolvers, stripped them of money and valuables. Before the train crew discovered that there had been a robbery, it is said, the train was almost at Middletown, N. Y. The first stop after leaving Jersey City. The robber or robbers in the meantime had made good their escape.

While the robbers were at work there was a wild scene in the car. The men, women and children, just landed in a strange country and unable to make themselves understood, became panic-stricken when the robbers covered them with revolvers and compelled them to turn over their property. Many of the women fainted, while the children added their cries to the uproar.

BOLIVIA-ARGENTINA AT OUTS.

Both Republics Order Diplomats to Leave—Relations Broken Off.

The Argentine government has sent his passports to the Bolivian minister at Buenos Aires, ordering him to leave Buenos Aires within twenty-four hours. The government also has telegraphed Senor Fonseca, Argentine minister to Bolivia, to leave La Paz immediately. This action follows the refusal of Bolivia to accept the decision of Argentina in the matter of the boundary dispute between Bolivia and Peru. The Bolivian minister advised the Argentine government that Bolivia had decided to submit to parliament for consideration the arbitral award rendered by President Alcoriza, which in itself was considered a sufficient reason for breaking off relations.

In addition, however, the Argentine republic has taken offense at the action of the President of Bolivia, who, it is asserted, has sent circulars to the prefects throughout the country casting reflections on the Argentine government.

WOMEN FIGHT WOLF PACK.

Mother and Daughter Found Exhausted After Battle for Life.

Exhausted and on the verge of collapse from their harrowing experience, Mrs. W. J. Geoker, wife of the Salt Lake Railway station agent at Crestline, thirty miles east of San Bernardino, Cal., and her 11-year-old daughter, have reached their home after a two-day battle with a pack of wolves.

For forty-eight hours they had been imprisoned in a lonely cabin on a deserted sheep ranch eighteen miles from home by the hungry wolves. While the husband and father, aided by a gang of 150 section hands, ordered off by the division superintendent, searched for them, the women were battling off with clubs the attacks of the wolves which tried to get at them by tearing off the sides of the cabin and digging under its foundations. The mother and daughter were found totally exhausted. They had sustained themselves with a few crusts of hard bread found in the hut.

WEST NEEDS 50,000 MEN.

Appeals for Harvest Help Heard at National Capital.

A cry for help to harvest the season's crops comes from the West to officials of the Department of Commerce and Labor in Washington, one of whose duties is to find employment wherever possible for the throngs of aliens who come to this country. Fifty thousand able-bodied men are wanted badly by the farmers, says Representative Stevens of Minnesota, who has been in conference with Assistant Secretary McHarg and other officials of the department. Mr. Stevens says the West is literally begging for help to gather the large wheat and other crops.

CLERK IS $10,000 THIEF.

Clayton T. Zimmerman, Jr., 20 Years Old, Clears Up Mystery. Clayton T. Zimmerman, Jr., a clerk on a salary of $55 a month in the "outmoney" office of the Adams Express Company, in Chicago, was arrested Monday for the theft of the package of $10,000 in currency which disappeared mysteriously the previous Tuesday, baffling a score of detectives. Zimmerman confessed, taking the money. He is 20 years old. Handlines close to $1,000,000 a day in the office of the express company turned the young man's head, and when he saw an opportunity to "hold out" a small fortune, he admits, he secreted the $10,000 package and went on about his work. Zimmerman planned to keep the money hidden for six or seven years and then build himself a little home. He has a sweetheart and expected to get married in a few years. The young clerk also intended to "plant" a portion of his "fortune" in a small farm or in city real estate, but he did not figure on using any of the money until the company "had time to forget its loss." All the money but $10 was recovered.

PRIEST BEATS BISHOP IN SUIT.

Court's Ruling Allows Father Murphy to Retain Services in Nebraska. Several weeks ago, Bishop Bonacum appeared before District Judge Dungan and secured a temporary order restraining Father Murphy from holding services in Ulysses or in any other Catholic diocese of Lincoln, Neb. The hearing came before Judge Dungan, and he not only refused to grant permanent injunction, but refused a superseas bond. The decision permits Father Murphy to hold services at any place in the diocese. After the decision, and after receiving congratulations, he announced that he will say mass in his old Ulysses church. The bishop will appeal to the Supreme Court.

William J. Bryan in the current issue of his Commoner strongly criticizes Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota, who vetoed the tonnage tax law levying a tax on iron ore shipments made by the steel trust. Editor Bryan cites the fact that the Democratic platform in Minnesota last year declared for a tonnage tax.

The placing of petroleum on the free list by a substantial majority of the Senate apparently has not taken all of the light out of the independent oil producers, and another effort in the direction of protection for this industry will be made when the tariff bill shall have been perfected in the committee of the whole and reported to the Senate.

Senator La Follette has issued a formal analysis of the Aldrich bill from the insurgent viewpoint, based on the figures prepared by treasury experts. From these he estimates that the increase over the House bill would affect imports to the value of $146,125,000, while the decrease in the Senate bill would affect imports to the value of $93,825,000, using the business of 1907 as the standard.

It has been reserved for the American suffragettes at New York to originate some novel methods of summer campaigning. During the week two militant leaders have invaded the hotel and beer gardens with a street piano or hurdy-gurdy to attract attention to the literature which they wished to distribute, and a tambourine in progress at the Toledo Furnace Company's plant near the hotel, and strike breakers have been boarding at the Marine.

Since the meeting of the President and Gov. Hughes during the Lake Champlain celebration, the rumor has been given great credence to the effect that a tender of the first vacancy on the Supreme bench was made to the Governor by Mr. Taft. Friends of Hughes think it doubtful that he would accept the place in the near future.

BODY PERFECTLY PETRIIFIED

Not a Feature Changed of Woman Buried Forty Years Ago. A remarkable case of the petrification of a human body has just come to light in Buckingham County, Va. When Camp Patterson, one of the best known men of Central Virginia, died, about two months ago, his last request was that the body of his wife should be exhumed and buried beside him. Several days ago the body of Mrs. Patterson, buried nearly forty years ago, was disinterred, and through the glass of the coffin it was discovered that the body had been petrified. Those who saw the body were astonished at the absolute likeness of the face; not a feature had been changed. As some years ago the body of a child disinterred from the same cemetery was found to have been completely petrified, it is thought that peculiar mineral properties of the soil account for the petrifications.

HAS NO NICKEL; LOSES $1,500.

Barb Abbe, "Central" Talks Sweetly but Won't Manipulate Phone. The lack of a nickel to drop into a telephone slot and the obstinacy of an exchange girl cost Oscar Niedt, once councilman of Trenton, N. J., $1,500 when his barn was destroyed by fire. Niedt's barn caught fire about 10 o'clock at night, and he hastened to a telephone booth in the neighborhood to summon a fire engine. Being told to drop a nickel into the slot, he discovered he had none. He told the girl that it was a case of life and death, but she insisted that fire headquarters could not be called up without the proper charge being paid. Niedt begged, pleaded, threatened and tore his hair in vain. The exchange girl talked sweetly but refused to notify the fire department, and in despair Niedt fled to another place, finally sending in an alarm. It was too late, for when the fire engines reached the place the barn and its contents were in ashes.

CAN'T WED ALL TO BE WUN.

Boston Girl, Beest by Three Suitors, to Enter Covenant. Suffering because she does not wish to choose between three suitors who have asked her hand, and conscientiously determined that she will not offend any two of the three by accepting the third, Miss Loreta Lorey, the 19-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Lorey, of Boston, is to enter a covenant.

In speaking of the affair Mr. Lorey, the girl's mother, said: "Loreta likes all three of these men; they are all splendid fellows, and she does not wish to choose between them. She isn't the same little girl she formerly was, and she is determined to enter the covenant."

Woolen Trust Raises Prices.

The American Woolen Company, commonly known as the woolen trust, has formally notified the manufacturer of clothing that they must be prepared to advance about 5 per cent on all goods and to put up their fall prices accordingly. The trust circular tells the dealers that the outlook for business never has been brighter and that the rush of orders appears to be based on exhausted stocks. Put it goes on to say that the advance of from 5 to 10 per cent in the cost of raw materials naturally tends toward higher prices.

BUTTON POSSIBLY IN DUEL.

Inquiry Into Death of Lieutenant Will Be Searching One.

At the second inquiry into the killing of Lieutenant James N. Sutton before a board of investigation in Annapolis, Md., the real strength of the evidence collected by the mother of the dead lieutenant and his sister, Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, will develop. Mrs. Sutton and Mrs. Parker have declared that the young naval officer was murdered and that they expect to prove so beyond a doubt. They now have all the opportunity they require to bring forth their proof.

One report has it that a new and a strong witness will be produced in Thomas Lee, a former watchman at the academy whose testimony was not heard at the first inquiry. The report has it that Lee has told his friends that he heard five shots at the time the fight between Sutton and his brother officers took place on the dump.

It is also said that documentary evidence will be submitted showing that Sutton was challenged to a duel. This information is contained in a letter which fell into the possession of Mrs. Parker. The talk is that the letter was signed by one of Sutton's fellow officers and an Annapolis man, a banker, who confirms the existence of the letter. It declares that it closes with these words: "I will meet you and fight you if you so desire, but for God's sake let us cut out the throats and fight it out like men."

The inquiry will be of the most thorough nature and a number of witnesses will be examined exhaustively whose testimony does not appear on the records of the first investigation. Every step of Lieutenant Sutton's movements on the night of Oct. 13, 1907, when his body was found on the parade ground, will be traced.

BARES BLACK HAND CRIME.

Youth of 18 Confesses He Killed Rich Grocer. Tony Baffa, an 18-year-old Italian boy who has been in this country only three years, has confessed in the county jail in Chicago, the murder of Giuseppe Filippelli, a grocer at 7737 Greenwood avenue, that city, at the same time laying bare for what is perhaps the first time in criminal history the inner workings of those Italian societies, known collectively as "The Black Hand," whose business is murder, mayhem, kidnaping and extortion.

The organization to which young Baffa belonged was called by its members the "Loggisto," an ironical translation of which is "The Society of Justice." Its other members, according to Baffa's confession, were Antonio Nuvo, Katoeio Nudo and Pasquale Nudo, three brothers; Joseph or Giuseppe Caro and a man called Ernesto, whose surname Baffa does not know. All of the men are laborers. Their purpose in banding together, Baffa says, was extortion by means of "Black Hand" letters, and there was no crime they were not willing to commit to accomplish their ends.

New York Man Offers Prizes to Parents When Children Are Born. WASHINGTON Gossip

After his return from the trip to New England and Lake Champlain President Taft gave out his plans for the coming extensive travels. He is to start from his summer residence at Beverly, Mass., about the middle of September for Seattle, to attend the exposition there, and making stops en route at Denver, Salt Lake, Spokane and other places yet to be determined. From Seattle he will go to San Francisco, visit the Yosemite Valley and see a sister in Los Angeles. Thence he will go by way of San Diego through New Mexico and Arizona to El Paso, Tex., where he has accepted an invitation to meet President Diaz of Mexico. Later New Orleans he will attend the World's conference, after which he will tour the southern tier of States to Georgia cities, and stop on his way north at Wilmington, N. C., and Richmond, Va., intending to get back in Washington about the middle of November.

Commissioner Williams has been disapprobation of the immigrants arriving at Ellis Island by a strict enforcement of the law regarding admission of persons likely to become public charges. He has taken the stand that any one arriving at that port with less money than $25 in his or her possession must be held up and deported unless friends on shore come forward with bonds. Several hundred would-be immigrants have thus been detained under very trying conditions, and several hundred have been sent back. Charges of brutal ill treatment of these held men have been made by them and their friends, and a test case has been taken to court to determine the constitutionality of the proceeding.

A ruling was made at Washington by the Interstate Commerce Commission that "one carrier shipping fuel, material or other supplies over the line of another carrier must pay the legal tariff rates applicable to the same commodities shipped between the same points by an individual." If carriers insist upon making or maintaining preferential rates, it may be confidently expected that such voluntary action will be accepted as evidence of the unreasonableness of higher rates.

The plan favored by Mr. Powderly of the Immigration Bureau to have the government transport free of cost immigrants to places where they can get work and also to give such free transportation to any of the unemployed is opposed by the Federation of Labor. A bill to authorize such transportation is being urged by the National Liberal Immigration League. The federation officials say that behind the plan they fear that a scheme to send strike breakers lurks.

Laurel Advocate:
Mrs. Elizabeth Clark expects to move to Wayne in the near future, where she has rented a house with the intention of rooming students.

Pierce Leader:
To our mind, Editor Closson of the Carroll Index uses poor judgment and displays a degree of grouchiness when he sues a brother journalist, Editor Goldie of the Wayne Democrat, for $10,000 libel, claiming that his character has been injured to that extent, all on account of a write-up of a fight which appeared in the Democrat and in which Editor Closson participated. The suit is ridiculous, to say the least.

Lyons Sun:
Baseball enthusiasm at Wayne and Carroll has reached a pitch that promises to uncover the fool streak of Editor Closson of the Carroll Index and lighten the purse of Editor Goldie of the Wayne Democrat. Closson thinks his character has suffered $10,000 worth at the hands of Goldie whose baseball enthusiasm spilled over through the columns of his paper.

Foley's Honey and Tar

Not only stops chronic coughs that weaken the constitution and develop into consumption, but heals and strengthens the lungs. It affords comfort and relief in the worst cases of chronic bronchitis, asthma, hay fever and lung trouble. Felber's Pharmacy.
George Ray, living near Laurel, met with a bad accident Monday while stacking hay. He fell from a load and struck his head and shoulders against the loader. The result is a dislocated shoulder, badly bruised head, and the ligaments torn about the collar bone. It will be some time before he will be able to resume his farm duties.

Many people with chronic throat and lung trouble have found comfort and relief in Foley's Honey and Tar, as it cures stubborn coughs after other treatment has failed. L. M. Ruggles, Reasoner, Iowa, writes: "The doctors said I had consumption, and I got no better until I took Foley's Honey and Tar. It stopped the hemorrhages and pain in my lungs and they are now as sound as a bullet." Felber's Pharmacy.

NEEDFUL KNOWLEDGE

Wayne People Should Learn to Detect the Approach of Kidney Disease

The symptoms of kidney trouble are so unmistakable that they leave no ground for doubt. Sick kidneys excrete a thick, cloudy, offensive urine, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding. The back aches constantly, headaches and dizzy spells may occur and the victim is often weighed down by a feeling of languor and fatigue. Neglect these warnings and there is danger of dropsy, Bright's disease or diabetes. Any one of these symptoms is warning enough to begin treating the kidneys at once. Delay often proves fatal. You can use no better remedy than Doan's Kidney Pills. Here's Wayne proof:
Mrs. M. L. Goodyear, of Wayne, Nebr., says: "I was troubled greatly by rheumatism for several years. During a severe attack last spring, I used a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and found great relief. Another member of my family who was afflicted with rheumatism took this remedy and it brought the same prompt benefit. I have no hesitation in saying that Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation for kidney disorders."

Try It on The Hills
Test this car at half speed on a hill or sand road where power and every ounce of it is needed. Notice how steadily and powerfully it pulls when running slowly under load.
The capacity of the Rambler engine for doing this extra work is most noticeable at low engine speeds. This is because of the offset crank shaft.
Rambler
The Car with the Offset Crank Shaft
All that power which in other engines is lost through friction on the bearings and in the crank shaft, is added to the driving force by the Rambler offset crank shaft. It reduces friction, eliminates hammer on the bearings, gives more power. The Rambler offset crank shaft drives the power direct and with least friction loss to the rear axle.
Let us demonstrate these features and the silence and comfort of this car.
Let us call at your home, and take you to your place of business tomorrow in a Rambler.
