GOOD SUMMER READING

Some Items Taken from the First Number of the Wayne Tribune, Issued May, 15, 1884

The sidewalk to the court house is completed.

Work is progressing on the new Lutheran church.

F. A. Philleo has completed arrangements to engage in the real estate business.

John Beebe is moving his residence back from the street and is preparing to put up a business house on the lot.

Dr. H. G. Leisenring, recently of St. Helena, was located in Wayne for the practice of medicine, with his office adjoining J. D. Slater's shop on the north.

P. L. Miller and family of Monroe, Wisconsin, have moved into the dwelling lately occupied by T. Wachob. Mr. Miller will engage in business in Wayne.

Bertie Carpenter was thrown from a horse and badly injured. Drs. Crawford and Wightman dressed the wounds and started him well on his way to recovery.

Mr. A. T. Witter, of Monroe, Wisconsin, after traveling over the state very extensively, has decided that there is no town in the state that pleases him so well as Wayne. He has rented the building recently vacated by the primary school and will put in a stock of groceries at once.

Dr. Crawford put out an orchard of over two hundred apple trees of different varieties on his farm just north of town last Wednesday, and expects to follow it up by planting other fruits quite largely. It is an example that should be generally followed for there is no doubt that it will prove a good investment.

County Superintendent Hake is making a great many improvements on his place southwest of town. He has already set out thirty-five hundred forest trees this spring, principally elm, ash and catalpa. He will also plant fruit trees and small fruit very extensively and enter into the raising of fruit on a large scale. Mr. Hake will have a model farm and no doubt a very profitable one.

Corn planting time is not a good time to hold political conventions in this country as the number of persons who take more interest in politics than in a good corn crop is happily very small. For this reason, and possibly for some others, the democratic convention that was to meet in the court house last Saturday failed to materialize. W. O. Gamble was the only democrat who put in an appearance, and as even his lively imagination could not determine how one man could resolve himself into a mass convention, he gamboled off, concluding that he could serve his country better and make more money selling real estate than by running a political convention.

An injunction was issued Monday in a suit running in the name of the county against the Town Hall association and the school district, restraining them from using the second floor of the court house for school purposes. The petition in substance states that the noise made by the school is intolerable and greatly interferes with the transaction of business on the part of the county officers. Whoever is responsible for the injunction has made a mistake. The trifling inconvenience might well have been borne in preference to depriving forty or fifty children of school privileges for the remainder of the year, as no other room can be obtained. The Tribune office being in the same building, we have an opportunity to judge as to how much of an annoyance the school really is. A motion to dissolve the injunction will be argued before Judge Crawford at an early date, and we hope to see it sustained, not because we are anxious to have a school overhead, but because we wish the schools to continue even if it does subject us to a slight inconvenience. F. M. Northrup appears for the plaintiff, A. A. Welch and I. N. Flickinger for the defendant.

Where Lake Breezes Blow

OSAKIS, Minn., Aug. 19, 1909. Editor of Wayne Herald: As I sit upon the shore of this beautiful Lake Osakis and watch our small boy make the pebbles skim across its quiet blue surface, I will endeavor to write a few lines that may be of some interest to friends at Wayne.

Lake Osakis is 130 miles west and a little north of Minneapolis. In making this journey one can well imagine themselves in New England. Not only by the small, irregular, stony, rough fields, but also by the numerous granite and well worked stone quarries. The large natural timber, numerous climbing vines, rail fences and old-fashioned farm-houses also give this country a New England appearance.

Lake Osakis is thirteen miles long and six miles wide, which corresponds very closely to the size of the Sea of Galilee. Its banks are skirted all the way around by large natural trees. We find oaks and elms seventy-five feet high, and many large beautiful linn, cedar, pine and silver birch trees. The shores of the lake are very rocky and rough, except at one place near the inlet, where there is a broad, sandy beach. In the stream just above the inlet there are great quantities of pure white, waxy pond lilies. There is a gravel road clear around the lake, a distance of thirty miles, which is well kept up for carriages and automobiles. We had the pleasure of going across the lake one evening last week in a large launch, and watching a most glorious sunset. I shall never forget those lovely shades and tints as they were reflected in the clear, glassy water.

We passed around Battle Point, where years ago two Indian tribes had a fierce battle, one tribe exterminating the other on this point. The depth of water at this point has never been ascertained although it has been found to be over seventy-five feet by lead and line at many different times. Crescent Beach, where the lake cuts back into the land in the shape of a crescent, is another beautiful spot. Babbit's Point and Coon Point are very pretty points projecting far into the lake.

The summer resort here at Osakis is called the Idlewild, a large three-story hotel with wide, airy porches, built among the large trees and only a few feet from the lake. A row of small, white cottages, eighteen in number, nestle in the trees just west of the Idlewild, and are used as sleeping rooms by the tourists.

Four miles farther up the lake is another summer resort called Linwood. We rowed over there one afternoon and found it a place of rare beauty. The hotel is larger than the Idlewild and several of the cottages are log cabins with the large open fireplace and outside chimney.

Paul and Ensign Young, assisted by a music teacher from St. Paul, gave a musical rehearsal at Linwood last evening and we all went over in a steam launch with them and enjoyed the trip greatly. The lake was a little rough so we all got a few splashes of water, but that only added to the mirth.

There has only been one fatality on the lake in the last twenty-five years—a remarkable record, I think, considering the great number of tourists here every summer.

There is a large variety of fish in the lake, but as yet it has not been our good fortune to catch any, though we are persistent in our efforts. We have the use of a small row-boat and good fishing tackle, so spend much of our time upon the water. It is quite gratifying to see how easily our small boy handles the oars. He rowed Maude and I over a half mile this morning, and didn't turn the boat around once, but I discovered afterwards that his hands were blistered. He also shows some enthusiasm when we don our bathing suits and go into the water. This pastime certainly does afford us all great merriment and probably you will hear of some of us entering some of the swimming contests ere long.

We all attended church and Sunday school on Sunday and heard two good sermons. Rev. Spry, pastor of the Methodist church at Vinton, Iowa, who is spending his vacation here, preached from Acts 9:36, in the morning, and the regular pastor, Rev. Deacin, gave us a very helpful practical sermon from John 11:15, in the evening. Mrs. Young will fill the pulpit next Sunday morning.

We are all anticipating much pleasure in having Mr. Grothe with us a few days about the first of September.

I do not miss any pebbles from the beach, but I can assure you a great number are now lying at the bottom of the lake and a tired, hungry little boy is sitting by my side teasing me to go back to our boarding place and get the lunch which our kind landlady always has ready for him. Very truly yours, MRS. C. A. GROTHE.

Is Badly Mistaken

Last Saturday's Lincoln Journal contained an article in relation to Wayne and its normal school, in which the writer argued that the state might not take over the Wayne Normal after all. Whether the paper was laboring under a wrong impression or was arguing for a purpose, it is true that it was mistaken in its conclusions. The state legislature having passed a law appropriating money for its purchase, and the same having been properly signed by the governor and made a matter of record, the normal board has nothing to do with that part of the matter at all, and no change could be made except by some other session of the legislature. The only question arising is on the legality of the normal boards. The state at present has two of them, each one claiming to be the lawfully constituted custodian of the state schools, and having power to transact the necessary business. The legislature tried to create a new board, but failed to legally do away with the old board, at least that is the contention, hence the other officials have refused to acknowledge the authority of the new board, and honor any warrants that may be drawn on them. The matter is now before the state supreme court and until they have passed upon it and decided which one of the boards is the legal one, nothing will be done in the matter of state schools except to let them drift along as best they can. When this question is finally settled the board that has been declared to be the legal one will take up the Wayne school project and consider the necessary steps to be taken by the state in acquiring control of the institution.

Thank You
The editor of the Cedar County News, published at Hartington, has been on a fishing trip with Cochran, of the Carpenter Paper-company, of Omaha, out in the sandhill country. Speaking of the towns along the way, he says: "Wayne has a stand-pipe that stands on a slight elevation straight up Main street from the station. It looks like a pretty good town. We should like to have met the editor of the Herald, one of the best printed papers that comes to this office, and shaken hands with 'Dad' Goldie, of the Democrat, but the train hastened on to Winside, where it stopped in front of a pretty little park with a band stand."

Wm. H. Seward
The local postoffice is now selling two-cent stamps advertising the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition. The stamp bears a portrait of Wm. H. Seward, who was responsible for our possession of much of this vast territory. It will be remembered that at the time when the acquisition of the west coast country was under discussion, so great a statesman as Charles Sumner referred to it as "a worthless region beyond the Rocky mountains." And now it is the richest, or at least the best advertised, portion of the United States. Towns and counties and even states take whole pages in the magazines telling about their wonderful richness. And the result is that they are selling land for as high as $2500 an acre. And this when other lands just as good in other parts of the country are selling for $25 an acre. It surely pays to advertise. Pays a man, a company, a town, a county or a state.—Cedar County News.

Grand Opening Attraction

Are They Afraid?

It has been advertised for the past three weeks that Bloomfield would send its team here to take part in the tournament next week and the management of the Wayne team had their acceptance of the invitation to come and their promise to do so, although they had not signed the contract. When it was almost too late to get anyone to take their place, if not entirely so, the management of the team sends word that they would not come, offering the flimsy excuse that the people of Bloomfield did not think that their team should play any more in Wayne until the Wayne team had given them a return game. The present situation is altogether a different proposition. They were to come here to play in a tournament with other teams and for a specified sum of money and not as a friendly game at all, and having given their word they should have been manly enough to keep it. Not only would they not come themselves, but the manager lied about the Norfolk team saying that they were not coming here either, but they are, as the manager says so and has sent a signed contract. Taking it all in all it looks as though the Bloomfield braggers were afraid to come, and especially

Are They Afraid?

They are talking about its being a billion dollar harvest this year and some people are worrying that there will be money enough to buy a proper market. The inter-commissioners are also worried about a big shortage in freight. No doubt there is some cause for concern along these lines. But, all in all, it gives one a comfortable feeling to think that the chief concern is how to dispose of them to the best advantage. It is a whole lot better to worry about that sort of thing than to be disappointed in the value of the crops themselves.

Base Ball Battings

The game of ball Thursday afternoon between Wayne and Correctionville on the home grounds was even better than that of the day before. Smith, of Sioux City, did the pitching for Wayne and passed them over the plate in very swift form. The game was a swift one from start to finish, the time consumed in playing being only 1 1/2 hours. The visitors made some fine double plays and were in the game at all times. The home team were also on their mettle at every stage, probably the best thing on their part being Adorn's steal to third. It was too bad he could not have scored. The home team got their only scores in the first inning and the visitors their lone one in the 7th, making it look like this. Quite a row of goose eggs.

Will Build Elevator

We are glad to note that one of the really good things in Wayne seems to be enjoying a good degree of prosperity as is evidenced by the fact that Weber Bros., proprietors of the roller flouring mill, will build an elevator for the accommodation of their large and increasing business. Material for the structure is beginning to arrive. It is to be erected north of the mill, will be 20 x 30 feet in size, 60 feet in height, and fitted throughout in the most approved manner. A good business deserves success and this firm is meeting with it.

Bad Accident

Tuesday forenoon while the Stanton base ball nine were on their way to Wayne to play ball, they met with an accident that might have easily cost some of them their lives. They were coming by automobile and when about two miles south of Piller, speeding along at a good gait, the automobile suddenly blew up, some of the pieces going in the air higher than the telephone poles. The machine was entirely wrecked and all the occupants of the car escaped injury except Hartman, the pitcher, who had his left leg just below the knee badly bruised. The manager of the team says he has been in several railway wrecks but that he does not want any more automobile wrecks in his. L. W. went down in an automobile and brought them here.

Something Doing

Two things are quite evident. One of them is that the farmers are on easy street and are providing themselves with better homes and farm buildings. The other is that Harry Fisher has done something better than anything else in the past few months, as the lumber firm of Fisher and Dickerson report the following recent sales of material: Chris Barhan, a large house; Wat Williams, a fine residence; Chris Sydon, house, chicken house, on one farm and a hog house on another farm; Ed Rennieck, a good sized house; Chas. Gildersleeve, a residence; A. J. Ferguson, house, two barns, corn crib and granary; Geo. Peters a large barn and Geo. Montgomery a good barn. These are all on some of the good farms south and west of Wayne and indicate prosperity with a big P.

Wilson Rickabaugh says that he always considered himself a pretty fair story-teller until last Monday. On Monday a grocery salesman dropped into the store and the conversation drifted to baseball. During the chat Rickabaugh made the remark that he used to be some ball player himself when he was a boy, being a particularly strong batter, but that one day he batted a ball which struck a farmer, at work 600 yards away in the cornfield, breaking the man's legs, and that he hadn't been allowed to play since. "Well sir," said the traveling man, "I used to play a little base ball myself in the early nineties, but my career was ended by an incident even more dramatic than was yours. I was a pitcher with an eastern team and had what I called a 'stop-ball' that fooled them all. It was a nice, straight ball that would stop dead still when within a couple or three feet from the batter. One day I threw one of these and the batter in reaching for it tripped himself and fell, striking the top of his head on the home plate and breaking his neck. But, speaking of curves, drops, stop-balls and so on," continued the traveling man, "I had another one, a 'zig-zag,' that I sometimes used when in a tight place. With the 'zig-zag' I could fan a man out with one throw, the batter invariably striking at the ball three times before it got past." That held Rickabaugh for awhile.

The new windows for the Catholic church have been put in place and add much to the interior effects and lighting of the edifice, as well as improve its general appearance.

so as they were not brave enough to cover the wagers of the Randolph man who called the bluff. Their whole manner indicates that the estimate put on them after their game here was none too low.

More Local News

We are getting to be quite a sporty town. Base ball games, horse-shoe pitching, wrestling matches and foot races are of almost daily occurrence.

A sister of Mrs. W. C. Wightman and a lady friend, of Cushing, Nebraska, who had been guests at her hospitable home in Wayne, returned to their homes Tuesday after a very pleasant visit.

Siloam Elwood, of Bloomfield, and Lela Bigefort received successful operations at the hand of Dr. Lutzen the past week. The doctor is kept busy with patients, many coming from outside towns.

Miss Jennie Vennerberg will have charge of the Carroll Schools next year. She is now in Sweden, or probably on her way home, as she will be in Wayne in time to begin the school September 6th.

Frank Morgan, who works at the Kate clothing store, still continues in poor health. He got to work too soon after his illness and suffered a relapse, but will soon be at work again.

Miss Jones, a sister of F. H., who is well known here, has arrived from her home in the east and is assisting in the book store. Former acquaintances are pleased to greet her once more.

This is the dull season of the year for advertising. It is sort of between grass and hay, so to speak. It is most too late to advertise summer goods, and a little too early to push fall or winter goods.

Henry Hodson, who had been in Illinois for several months, returned Monday. He reports the outlook for the corn and other crops in the part of the Sucker State that he visited as being very poor, owing to the extreme drought.

Ted Perry threshed his oat crop Tuesday. By machine measure the yield was about 30 bushels per acre but by weight more than that. For instance a wagon box holding 70 bushels machine measure was found to weigh out 97 bushels, so the quality is excellent.

John Kate will soon go to Omaha to buy a twelve-horsepower gasoline engine and other machinery for the X-Ray incubator factory. The company will put in a good deal of machinery and make their incubators and brooders all at home.

In this issue will be found the ad of the Wakefield Marble and Granite Works. Mr. Johnson has had 26 years experience in his line of work and has already set up several monuments in the Wayne cemetery, one of them being over the grave of Mr. Swanson and one for Sandy Taylor.

David Cunningham came home on Monday evening from Omaha where he had been called on Wednesday of last week by the serious illness of his only surviving sister who died on Thursday night. The other surviving brother, A. M. Cunningham, of Madison, Nebraska, was also present.

Mrs. Ed. Johnson, who has been ill with mountain fever in a hospital at Denver for a couple of weeks, expected to get out of the hospital Tuesday and herself and husband will come home as soon as she is able to make the trip. Her illness has seriously marred the pleasure of their summer outing.

Owing to the serious illness of Mrs. P. L. Miller relatives from distant points have been called here. A brother, Henry Perrine, of Wisner, returned home Wednesday evening and another brother, E. Perrine, of Creighton, came this morning, and also a sister, Mrs. E. A. Holsey, of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

W. H. Morris went to Minneapolis Tuesday morning, with a view of buying dry goods. It was his first visit to that market and he thought he would look it over and see if they had what they claimed to have in the various lines. If not suited he would go to Chicago. He will find some handsome business houses there and an enterprising class of business men. Minneapolis is one of the most progressive of the north-western cities.

Patrons of the Union hotel will regret to learn that Mr. and Mrs. F. E. West are to give up its management the first of October. It had been hoped that some other arrangement could be made, but A. G. Bohnert, the owner, has decided that he wants to re-enter the hotel business himself when the present lease expires. Mr. and Mrs. West have no definite plans as yet for the future, but it is to be hoped that they may continue to reside with the good people of Wayne.

Word was received here Monday from Miss Doretha Rimmel, whose parents reside east of town, and Miss Rickabaugh, daughter of "Doc" Rickabaugh of our city, who were visiting at the Boston home near Malvern, Iowa, that they had had all of their clothes, except what they had on, destroyed by fire. The Boston is Miss Rimmel's grandparents, and the two young ladies were there keeping house for Mr. Boston while his wife went to Excelsior Springs, Missouri, for her health. Saturday afternoon Mr. Boston hitched up a team and all three went to town. While they were gone the house caught fire in some manner and together with its contents, was totally destroyed.

Teachers Institute

The annual session of the Wayne county teachers' institute began at the court house in Wayne Monday. It is under the direct management of Mrs. Elsie Littell, county superintendent. The instructors are Prof. F. M. Gregg, of Peru, formerly with the Nebraska Normal college here and well known to our people; Supt. U. S. Conn, of Columbus, who is also a favorite with the Wayne county teachers; Miss Lura Phillips, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, who has appeared before two former institutes in this county, and who gives demonstration of her primary methods. Mrs. J. M. Pile will deliver her lecture on English and Scottish Schools this evening. There is a good attendance and interest. The following are enrolled:

- Elizabeth Olds, Amorette Sewell, Essie Spahr, Francis Spahr, Ora Davis, Amill Ross, Ida Heyer, Lez Wolverson, Hilda Aron, Mary Wiedefeld, Kate Wiedefeld, Flo Barcefs, Rose Miller, Edith Barnes, Pingree Hughes, Effie Norton, Birdie Gross, Flo Ruback, Daisy Siefen, Bonnetta West, Eugenie Madsen, Esther Madsen, Alice Mitchell, Gertrude Phipps, Sylvia Palmer, Elizabeth Hayes, Hattie Shultheis, Clara Whitney, Ethel Prince, Jennie Larsen, Helen Hoffman, Grace Soderburg, Grace L. Jones, Linda Winter, Vallie Armacost, Blanch Young, Eva Alter, Ruth Beale, Grace Gross, Edna Moler, Clara Schneider, Bernice Moler, Sadie Darnell, Tina Heyer, Nellie Herner, E. Taylor, Perdita Morgan, Lavina Giese, Bertha Bressler, Mary Pawelski, Winifred Pawelski, Ernest Samuelson, Martin Olson, Sylvia Kelley, Ellen Clark, Anna Swanson, Sarah Milliken, Nannie Cassell, Vera Embree, Alvena Sabs, Maude Surber, Florence Surber, Laura Barnett, Mamie Moran, Bonnie Reed, Claire Moran, Myrtle Gandy, Mr. Kemp, Ida Gleason, Margaret Tyler, Laura Lyons, Fay Williamson, Nellie Whaley, Alice McDonald, Rose Martiny, Madge White, Winnie Jones, Kate Englert, Alice Brown, Maude Woodworth, Ernest Anderson.

There are 100 enrolled and the enthusiasm and interest are high.

Mr. Gregg is conducting the institute and the teachers are unanimous in their appreciation of his work. He instructs in Pedagogy, Hygiene and Agriculture.

Supt. Conn, formerly at the head of the Wayne city schools, is giving excellent work in school management, arithmetic and grammar. He is getting the teachers to think along some original lines, and the benefits derived from his work are many.

Miss Phillips has the primary and hand work. Much interest is manifested in her model class of kindergarten not only by the teachers, but also by the ladies of the city, many of whom are attending. On Tuesday she gave an illustrated lecture on Porto Rico that deserved a much larger attendance than it received.

On Thursday evening Mrs. Pile will give her lecture on "English and Scottish Schools as seen by an American Teacher." This will be given in the Presbyterian church. An admission of 15 cents will be charged as a benefit to the public library.

Hard on Them

Talk about your enlightened American people and about Nebraska having a less percentage of illiteracy than any other state in the Union. In the three wards of Morton township last Tuesday evening 30 ballots were rejected by the judges because the voters of them dodged over the line here and there to assist some man on another ticket than their own. Yet we boast of our high civilization and enlightenment, our $25,000 school houses! The idea makes one sick and tired when every newspaper in the city and county repeatedly warned these people and advised them of the laws and their requirements in connection with the law. The ignorance of the heathen could hardly be less commendable.—Bloomfield Monitor.

The managers of the State Fair at Lincoln, September 6 to 10, have again secured the world renowned Liberati's Band, of New York. They will give three grand concerts in the auditorium every day and one concert in the evening in front of the grandstand. Besides the band, he has with him a full complement of grand opera singers. To those who have attended the State Fair the past two year's this is announcement enough.

According to Monday's Sioux City Journal, "Jimmy" Hurst, for many years a resident of Wayne, has prospered since going to the Basin, Wyoming, country from here three years ago. Besides his ranch at Basin, he now has four saloons in that country and says his present business is more profitable than training horses. Mr. Hurst is now in Sioux City and while there is planning a hunting trip into the Jackson Hole country, to take place sometime in October. He says silver tip bears and elk are plentiful, the latter being fed last winter by ranchmen and now so tame they run with the herds.

There is considerable sarcasm in the following paragraph from the Lincoln Star. It says: "By putting in all day Sunday working on affairs of state Taft should have business pretty well disposed of and be able to devote most of the rest of the week to golf." To the average observer it certainly does look as though the chief executive might find a better way of spending his Sundays than by holding cabinet meetings, especially as he spends a good share of his time during the week days in playing golf. It might as well look after public business if there is any that needs attention. It is a vicious example President Taft is setting to the youth of the land.

TWO AUTO RACERS HURLED TO DEATH

Driver and Mechanician Crushed When Car at Indianapolis Skids and Upsets.

THIRD MAN DIES OF INJURIES.

12,000 People See Bourque and His Aid Thrown Over Fence to Their Doom.

With three lives sacrificed in the speed carnival, the first day of the automobile races at the new Indianapolis speedway closed with two annihilating records smashed. On the fifty-fourth lap of the 250-mile race for the Prest-O-Lite trophy, the terrible event of the day, death in a fearful form came to William Bourque, daring automobile driver, and his mechanic, Harry Holcomb, when their big racing car suddenly left the track while plunging along at a speed of seventy-five miles an hour, turned a complete somersault and dashed both men against the fence which surrounds the course. Both were almost instantly killed. Their bodies were terribly mangled. Twelve thousand persons, gathered in the grandstand and around the track, witnessed the accident. Scores of women fainting at the sight. Others became hysterical and rushed, screaming about the grounds.

Just why the racer left the track is a mystery. Whether Bourque lost control of the steering gear or made a mechanical blunder will never be known. The machine skidded, left the track, and with undiminished speed struck a small ditch which borders the speedway. Both front wheels and the axles gave way, and the car turned completely over. Bourque and Holcomb were sent flying through the air. Bourque was thrown against a post and his skull was fractured and both legs were broken. Holcomb was thrown clear over the fence. His skull was also fractured and his legs broken. The third whose life was forfeited was Clifford Litteral, mechanic, who dived from an injury received while on his way to the new speedway for practice. He jumped from his own car and was run down by one behind him. Driver Chevrolet had his eyes seriously injured by dust and tar.

When the accident occurred the race was a little more than half completed, and the other racers in their speeding cars passed and repassed the scene of the tragedy and kept whirling about the track until they had finished the long 250-mile grind which caused the death of the two contestants.

The big race of the day was won by Robert Burman and the speed records broken were the following:

Barney Oldfield, driving a Benz, went a mile on the straightaway course in 43 1-10 seconds, breaking De Palma's time of 51.

Louis Chevrolet in a Buick covered 10 miles in 8:56 4-10, breaking Oldfield's record of 9:12.

BANK ROBBERS KILL AND WOUND

Surprised in Oklahoma Town, They Slay Marshal, Injure Cashier.

Two robbers, surprised while looting the State Bank at Kiefer, Okla., Monday night, shot and killed City Marshal Inford and probably fatally wounded Cashier Calmer Wobbling. They escaped. A posse was quickly organized and hurried in pursuit. Cashier Wobbling, who lives over the bank, was awakened by a noise in the bank shortly after midnight. Upon investigation he saw by the dim light burning in the rear two men at work on the vault door. Hastily summing Marshal Inford, he procured a revolver. The marshal and cashier entered the bank by the front door while the robbers were busy engaged in drilling the safe door. A slight noise made by the city marshal attracted the attention of the robbers. The next moment they extinguished the light and then opened fire. After half a dozen shots had been exchanged, Inford sank to the floor with a bullet through the head. The next moment Wobbling also fell, shot through the chest. Then both robbers hurried for the door and fled. The men had just succeeded in drilling the safe and were preparing to pour in nitroglycerin when surprised at their work.

"5-CENT SHOW SALOON FOE."

Chicago Building Inspector Says Theaters Hurt Liquor Trade.

The 5-cent theater has been declared to be the greatest foe of the saloon by Edward F. Keiling, chief building inspector of Chicago, who has direct supervision of this class of amusement. "Saloonkeepers always oppose the establishment of a 5-cent theater in their neighborhood," he said. "Many of them complain that their business has been seriously hurt by the nickel show. Many workmen who otherwise would spend their time drinking beer in the saloon prefer the diversion of this class of show. In many cases the workman takes his wife and children with him, giving the whole family entertainment for what he is accustomed to spend in an evening in the saloon."

HARVEST JOBS SCARCE.

Three Men, Drawn to Dakota by Hope of Work, Do Not Get It.

Arthur Fries, Benjamin Brandless and Eric Seaman, three of forty or more young men who went to St. Paul, Minn., from Cincinnati to North Dakota, where jobs in the harvest fields were supposed to be waiting for them, were in police court on a charge of vagrancy. They told the judge that after they had paid $22 each for transportation they had been unable to get work. All had receipts for the money.

Stricter Exclusion for Undesirable Aliens

Ellis Island, that portal through which pours four-fifths of the motley hordes that make up the immigration to this country, has once more become a shining mark for popular attention. There are some who would fling its doors wide open, and on the other hand there are extremists who urge total exclusion. To handle this problem at New York, the chief port of entry, a new commissioner of immigration was recently appointed, or, more accurately, a former one was re-appointed. He is William Williams, a New York city lawyer.

It cannot be too often repeated that for several reasons the problem presented by what may be termed the new immigration of recent years is widely different from that presented by the earlier immigration. In considering the problem as it exists today two propositions must constantly be borne in mind. Most of the immigration proceeds, not as formerly from the northern portion of Europe, but from Italy, Austria and Russia, and some of it from the least desirable population of those countries. No one would object to the better classes of Italians, Austrians and Russians coming here in large numbers; but the point is that they do not come to any great extent. The great bulk of the present immigration settles in five or six of the eastern states, and most of it in the large cities of those states. The tendency on the part of so many of the newcomers to locate in the cities is one of the unfortunate and startling features of the present immigration. They resort to them to an extent three times greater than do the native born, and by so doing accentuate one of the unhealthy phenomena of modern social life—the abnormal growth of the cities at the expense of the country.

Every intelligent person is aware of the fact that large numbers of immigrants of the right kind are coming here, and no one should wish to discourage them in so doing. But while Europe has a great many desirable people, she also has millions of undesirable ones, each nation of Europe has its portion of both, and it is most natural that no obstacles should be placed in the way of the latter leaving their respective countries.

The mere fact that immigrants of the undesirable kind are able to earn a livelihood does not of itself prove that they are wanted. Their presence may be and often is due to industrial depression abroad. They come here not because we want them, as we do want good farm laborers for the West and South, but because our higher economic level, and better conditions attract them. The claim is often made that even these undesirable elements serve a useful purpose in that they relieve Americans of the necessity of performing certain low-grade work and enable them to fill higher places. This sounds well, but as applied to the United States at the present time may be fallacious; for the time has come when such higher places are not always vacant; so that the American laborer may, in effect, be driven out of employment not driven into higher employment.

If the immediate development of all material resources were the chief end in view, regardless of political or social effects, then the introduction of low grade people, merely because they are cheap laborers, could perhaps be justified, but in that event we should admit also the Chinese, who are among the most efficient in the world. But it is realized that there are considerations of greater importance than the immediate material development of the country, that our national ideals, institutions, and character cannot be endangered for mere pecuniary gain, and that our own people must not be driven out of employment by compulsory competition with foreigners of unduly low standards.

How further to curtail immigration of the undesirable kind without interfering with the legitimate commercial demands for further immigration of the right kind is a problem that is puzzling a great many thinking people. The difficulty of its solution is increased by reason of the fact that it is impracticable to legislate directly or discriminate against any race or locality of Europe, as we have done in the case of the Chinese.

A large number of immigrants, probably over 50 per cent, now come here because they are assisted to do so. As a rule that man will be the better immigrant who comes of his own initiative and with his own money.

Although the law makes no requirement regarding money, the commissioner feels that he has sufficient discretionary power to fix the sum of $25 as a minimum amount which some immigrants must have before they gain admission. To the various steamship agencies he has said:

"Certain steamship companies are bringing to this port many immigrants whose funds are manifestly inadequate for their proper support until such time as they are likely to obtain profitable employment. Such action is improper and must cease. In the absence of a statutory provision, no hard and fast rule can be laid down as to the amount of money an immigrant must bring with him, but in most cases it will be unsafe for immigrants to arrive with less than $25, besides railroad ticket to destination while, in many instances, they should have more. They must, in addition, of course, satisfy the authorities that they will not become charges on public or private charity."

STOP HINDOO FUNERAL RITES.

An attempt on the part of Hindoo laborers to turn the Sacramento River into a second Ganges was frustrated near Sacramento, Cal., by Coroner Gormley, who prevented them from placing the body of one of their comrades aboard a funeral raft which they were preparing to send blazing down the stream. The raft, with its huge pyre, had been prepared by a group of Hindoos and they were all

AERIAL WARFARE COMING

WRITING under the title, "The Aerial Battleship, Carl Dienstbach and T. R. MacMechen in McClure's Magazine tell of the possibilities of aerial warfare, which they assume must come with the existence of air craft of the Zeppelin type as battleships and of the heavier-than-air type as light cruisers. At the outset they assert that the successful use of a rapid-firing gun, capable of throwing nearly sixty 1.9-inch shells a minute from the deck of the Zeppelin I, "means the end of armies within the next ten years." The strength and stability of these new ships are not a matter of theory or belief; they are already demonstrated facts. The Zeppelin I, under military crew, made nineteen ascensions between March 9 and April 6 in the mountainous country above Lake Constance, which is 1,300 feet above sea level. Three of these were made in snowstorms; one of them, lasting seven and a half hours, in a blizzard. In another trial the ship flew for hours, landed and anchored safely in a tremendous forty-mile gale. With the conclusions "that a new instrument for the general service of civilization has arrived" and that airships of the Zeppelin type have, according to experts, a "zone of safety" from attack by guns on the ground when traveling about 1,650 yards (nearly a mile) high, the authors say that "with the best of mechanism it would be practically impossible to hit these airships at any range that they would approach in battle," while, on the other hand, "nothing alive on the ground can escape the fire of an airship."

From the beginning it has been perfectly evident that the first important use of these craft would be as warships, and the chief discussion of them in Europe, where alone the development has been followed intelligently, has concerned their employment for this purpose. The French, not having a rigid type from which guns can be fired advantageously, have proposed the dropping of explosives from their cars. But the German military experts, immediately after taking over the Zeppelin I, conceived the idea of using rapid-fire guns and asked their gunmakers to prepare special airship artillery. The Krupp produced their gun this spring. It is a light, high-powered weapon, said to weigh about 160 pounds, this light weight being made possible by special recoil mechanism. It fires a 1.9-inch shell, and can throw nearly sixty a minute to a distance of several miles from the elevated position of the airship. These shells are similar to those of the well-known mountain batteries, transported by pack animals, which were used in the Russo-Japanese war. They are very efficient missiles, bursting into a shower of small, sharp fragments, which cover a space of some fifty feet square. The level car of the airship proved an excellent gun platform in the trials, and the rigid structure, twenty tons in weight, was not affected by any recoil which guns of this character give.

After discussing in detail the development of the Zeppelin airship for military purposes in Germany, the writers conclude that "aerial navies will be an accomplished fact at an early date, not only because they are highly efficient, but because they are cheap."

ATOHSON GLOBE SIGHTS.

We never care to chase a greased pig. Pay no attention to a fool; laugh at him. The stuff that melts in your mouth, is never good for you. A woman never loses. However, she shops, entertains and visits. No witness ever has a satisfactory memory; it is either no good, or too good. Nearly every financial disaster results from trying to make money fast. Oh, for a bride to have a wedding with some feature of originality about it. People should ring the bell on newspaper chestnuts, and not take them seriously. A man can fool a girl's mother as to what wages he gets, but he can't fool her father. There are mighty few people willing to leave the punishment of a sinner to the Lord. The detailed formula of every patent medicine to be filed with the Austrian government and other requirements fulfilled before its importation is allowed. Japan recently completed and placed in commission the fastest passenger steamship in the Pacific. Oil fuel and turbine engines give it a twenty-three knot speed. Heidelberg is to have a special institute for experiments with radium in treating diseases.

DOG NEARLY KILLS WOMAN.

Mrs. John Turpin of Upland, Pa., engaged in a desperate encounter with a large Newfoundland dog, and the terrible lacerations inflicted by the brute's fangs are liable to cause her death. The experience so affected her nerves that she was not rational for several hours after Mrs. Turpin was calling upon Mrs. Joseph Glenn, a next-door neighbor, when the dog, which is owned by the Glenns, attacked her. The animal threw her down upon the porch, grabbed her by the hair of her head and dragged her around the yard, paying no attention to the vigorous beating administered

An attempt on the part of Hindoo laborers to turn the Sacramento River into a second Ganges was frustrated near Sacramento, Cal., by Coroner Gormley, who prevented them from placing the body of one of their comrades aboard a funeral raft which they were preparing to send blazing down the stream. WANTED FRESH EGGS, SO TAKE HENS ON TRAVELS.

Simply because some one in Greensburg, N. J., told Mrs. Elizabeth Walker and her sister, Elizabeth Pallen, that it was impossible to get fresh eggs in New York, the management of the Hoffman House came dangerously near securing the custody of the health board.

The two young women, registered at the hotel early in the day. They were much interested in a large wicker basket which they caused the porter to bring close to the desk. The clerk found a room for Mrs. Walker and her sister. Ten minutes later the clerk ascended to the apartment and there found four hens and a rooster lolling about. He asked Mrs. Walker the meaning.

"My sister," she answered, "must have fresh eggs every day. We understand they couldn't be had here so we brought the source of supply along." Having had the hens and rooster restored to the "basket," the clerk called the department of health and asked that the birds be sent for.

"Any complaint?" asked the voice.

"None," said the clerk. "But I know it is a violation of the law."

After some more explaining Mrs. Walker had the poultry shipped back to Greensburg, thus depriving the Hoffman House of an addition to its roof.

"Anyway," Mrs. Walker said afterward to her sister, "we'll cut our stay here short and you needn't eat eggs."

SERVED 31-YEAR TERM

Day of Freedom for Iowa Convict Like Tableau of Aladdin's Lamp.

FINDS WORLD OF MYSTERY.

Only Grass and Sky the Same and Autos and Airships Are Beyond His Comprehension.

"Why, the world has grown up!" exclaimed William P. Glyndon, for thirty-one years a convict in the Iowa State prison here, as he stood at the railroad station and waited for the train that was to take him to Cedar Rapids. The day had been a tableau of "Aladdin's Lamp" to him, a New York Evening Telegram's Fort Madison (Ia.) correspondent says.

In the morning he was the oldest convict in the prison, with a record of having served the State longer within the darkened building than any other inmate. When liberated he had been whisked into town in an automobile and had put in a busy day looking at things which are familiar to children of to-day, but strange to him.

"Only the grass and the sky look the same," he said with a smile, "and I feel lost, although I remember well how things looked the day I was taken to prison."

"Everything has grown up," repeated Glyndon.

"I tell you it is fine to work out among the trees and the flowers. No one knows how to appreciate them till he has been shut away from them for many years, thirty-one in my case. I didn't know what a telephone was until given my release. Yes, I talked over one and some one talked to me. I couldn't hear very well at first. My ear wasn't accustomed to it, I guess, for after a while I could distinguish the words and understand. Men seem to be flying, so rapidly do they move about. When I left the world good horses were a luxury. Much labor was being done with slow ox teams. I rode in an automobile. I thought my freedom was to be brief, for I expected to be dashed to pieces every minute. And the streets now are all brick and stone and wood. Everything looks prosperous. The world has been moving. So changed is it that it all seems like a fairy story, and I believe most anything is within the possibility of man. They tell me they have flying machines. I am anxious to see one of them. These moving pictures are the greatest things I have ever seen. In prison the first year was as long as the next four years, and the first five years were as long as the other twenty-six. After five years I became reconciled to my fate.

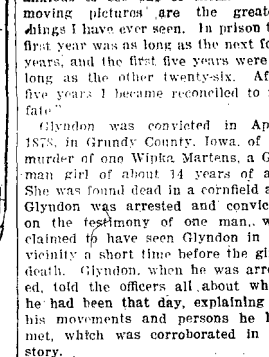

Glyndon was convicted in April, 1878, in Grundy County, Iowa, of the murder of one Wm. A. Martins, a German girl of about 14 years of age. She was found dead in a cornfield and Glyndon was arrested and convicted on the testimony of one man, who claimed to have seen Glyndon in the vicinity a short time before the girl's death. Glyndon, when he was arrested, told the officers all about where he had been that day, explaining all his movements and persons he had met, which was corroborated in his story.

The strong point in Glyndon's case is that he was convicted wholly on circumstantial evidence. Glyndon always has maintained his innocence.

Glyndon can get no recompense from the State. He has been in prison exactly thirty-one years and thirty-one days and has performed labor for the State to the amount of tens of thousands of dollars. He served in the civil war for three years and has an honorable discharge. He has drawn a pension of $12 a month from the government since 1890. He is 70 years of age.

three years later Mme. Nordica began legal proceedings for a separation. The case was postponed from time to time, and in 1887 news was received that Gover had lost his life while making an attempt to cross the English channel in a balloon. His body was never recovered. Mme. Nordica settled her claim to the estate for $40,000.

Mme. Nordica's second marriage took place in Indianapolis on May 27, 1896, when she wedded Zoltan Doeme, the Hungarian tenor. She obtained a divorce from Doeme in 1904.

Mr. Young has long been a prominent figure in social and financial circles in New York. His first wife, whom he married in 1889, divorced him in Trenton last year. He has two children.

was promptly killed. It was 5 feet 8 inches long. Near the middle of its body was a large lump, and an incision in the skin revealed a glass egg. The egg was identified by Mrs. Abrams as one she had been using as a nest egg.

PROGRESS IN AGRICULTURE

Department Issues Year Book Showing Vast Increase in Trade Balance

Conditions are Improving For Both Farmers and Their Help

During the last twelve years, the period covering the administration of Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson, the agricultural balance in trade in the United States increased from a yearly average of $234,000,000 to $411,000,000, or 75.6 per cent, according to the department's year book just made public.

This wonderful development is keeping with the progress that has been made along all lines of agricultural activity. At the same time, it is stated, many conditions affecting the lives of the farmers of the country have advanced in even greater ratio until many of the undesirable features of farm life have been eliminated.

EMPLOYES INCREASE
"So increasingly disposed has the public been to ask and receive the aid of the department and so large have been the new fields of work assigned to it by congress," says Mr. Wilson, in a resume of his work, "that the number of employees has increased enormously. On July 1, 1897, 2,444 persons were employed, and eleven years later, in 1908, the number was 10,420, or over four times as many."

Among the notable increases were in the bureau of animal industry, from 777 to 3,152 employees; in the forest service, from 14 to 3,753; in the bureau of chemistry, from 20 to 425; and the bureau of plant industry from 127 to 976. Most of the additional workers in these bureaus are employed outside of Washington there being 2,488 within and 7,932 outside of this city.

MANY INNOVATIONS
Many have been the innovations introduced and developed into potent forces for the betterment of farm life during this period, says Mr. Wilson. The entire system by which the work of the agricultural department has been operated has been changed. Never before has the work of state agricultural colleges and experimental stations been so intimately related with the department as now.

During these years there has been a great diversification and geographic extension of products apart from the cultivation of new land. Although there has been a decreasing production per acre of what was only recently virgin soil, there was an increased production per acre of the entire country. The yield per acre of cotton during the ten years ending with 1906 was from a mean of 172 pounds per acre during the preceding ten years to a mean of 191 pounds, or an 11 per cent. increase. Other crops have kept pace with cotton. Within ten years the production of corn per acre in Ohio increased 17.5 per cent, and in Virginia 18.3 per cent. Oats increased 17.9 per cent. in Indiana.

NEBRASKA'S INCREASE
Wheat increased 16.2 per cent. in New York and 45.9 per cent. in Nebraska. Similar advancement was made in the yield per acre of other products. In some degrees this upward movement began twenty years ago, but in all lines it has been marked during the last decade.

Citing the increase in population based upon the families of the native born, Secretary Wilson declares that we need have fear that the population of this country will ever be

Dog Day Travel

Dog days in the corn belt are hot and dusty, but folks are not staying at home and trying to keep cool. They are "going somewhere" by ones and twos and half dozens, with an enthusiasm that delights the heart of the traveling passenger agent and furnishes the professional traveler reminder of the high tide of railway travel prevailing shortly after the 2-cent fare laws went into effect, just before the panic. The canny commercial traveler orders his berth in advance for a night trip as insurance against having to "go upstairs." When he takes a day train he aims to get as close as possible to the head of the line waiting on the platform at the spot picked as the probable stopping place of the chair car. First in, first seated, is in his mind. He has given up all thought of the luxury of a double apportionment of space, and counts himself lucky if he gets any kind of a seat first off. Late comers wander through the aisles of the coach, peek into the crowded smoking compartment and finally resign themselves to improvised seats on a suit case in the entry or maybe in the vestibule. From this vantage point a dash can be made for a regular seat after the car has partially emptied itself at the next division point and before the rush of new passengers can file pre-emption claims. Yes, there is queuing as to why in thunder the company doesn't put on another coach. Also there is some friction over the failure of a coat or grip to reserve a seat, while its original claimant is temporarily elsewhere. And also there is a great deal of good natured acceptance of uncomfortable conditions, of "beg pardon, brother," when one is forced to interfere with the comfort of a neighbor. A hot day in a crowded railway coach affords a fine test of human patience. Humanity, as a rule, is equal to the test.

We Need Trained Citizens

Our need is not for more votes to count, but that our voters may be more intelligent citizens and realize the duty and responsibility of citizenship. This may be brought about in only one way—through the boys—says Helen M. Hill in the New Idea Woman's Magazine for September. What we need is a training that books cannot give, practical training, teaching a citizenship of the greatest good to the greatest number, and such may be brought about by pupil self-government in school under supervision, taught through the Little School Republics, through an apprenticeship of citizenship.

A School Republic is an organization of the pupils of a school into a school village, town, city, state or national government, or some combination of these. The pupils are citizens and have the rights and duties of citizens under the teacher's directions. Each school room may be organized in imitation of the local government, having its mayor, judge, city council, departments of health, public buildings, parks and library, with commissioners as executive officers according to the individual needs.

Our schools are turning out two million children each year, the citizens of the future, upon whom will fall the task of making the laws and governing the nation. They will spend the public money, they will have to meet the problems of administration, and how have we prepared them? We have taught them Reading, Riting and Rithmetic; a little geography, a little literature, how to spell, to draw and to sing. After a fashion they have learned a little cooking, a little sewing and some manual work. But of morals, character and citizenship, they have learned only by precept.

Thus we push them over the brink into the great ocean of civic responsibility without teaching them how to swim, and we wonder why they drown. Two million children going out into the world each year! Think of it!

Suppose they were two million trained citizens, realizing what citizenship means, knowing how to vote and why they vote, how soon would we have clean politics!

Deputy Labor Commissioner Maupin has compiled the report of acreage of Nebraska crops for the year 1909, showing that with the exception of winter wheat and oats there has been a healthy increase all down the line. The oat acreage is about the same. Following is a comparison of the total acreages in the years 1908 and 1909:

Corn	6,339,019	6,481,080
Winter wheat	2,342,508	2,305,536
Spring wheat	203,102	248,369
Oats	2,353,839	2,353,584
Alfalfa	547,557	611,650
Wild hay	3,043,818	3,257,096

The Fall Built Road Grade

Where the farmer is the road builder he is naturally apt to place his own work before that of road construction or repairing. This means that the season schedule is hardly ever commenced in earnest until after the rush of harvest and threshing is over, amounting in most cases to the start not being made till nearly fall.

There are a few things that may be said in favor of the fall built grade, but much may be said that is unfavorable. A grade built entirely with slip scrapers should never be constructed after the first of September, while blade grader work may be prolonged a month later with no worse winter effects. After September, however, no grading should be done except in the nature of repairs, and the further north the locality the earlier should the work be completed. There is but one way to partly or wholly overcome the ill effects of piling loose dirt into a grade late in the fall: that is by a liberal and constant use of the road drag. If an earth grade is dragged as soon as made and once or twice after each rain or series of rains thereafter, trying to complete a good job of dragging just before the ground freezes, there are fewer ruts and less complaint from the fall built grade. Every time the grade thaws in the winter, and whenever there is moisture enough to warrant the use of the drag, it should be brought into use.

One advantage of the late built grade is that the ditches are open through the winter to quickly carry off running water. This is not always the case with the old grade or the grade made earlier in the season. A neglected growth of weeds or grass may have fallen where it clogs the free run of the water, compelling it to seep away instead of quickly running away. The fall built grade is free from all this, but lacks solidity, which must be given it as much as possible by use of the road drag. A neglected, late built grade is usually a strip of mud when thawed or very rough when frozen. Neglect means making no use of the drag.
