THE LECTURE COURSE OPENING

HONORABLE CHAMP CLARK

At the Wayne Opera House Thursday Evening, October 21st.

"Seldom in the history of our country has a public man made so great and wide-spread a reputation as an orator as the Honorable Champ Clark, Congressman from Missouri. As a result, that commonwealth is today one of the best advertised states in the American Union, as was Kansas in the time of Ingalls, as was Mississippi in the time of Sargent S. Prentiss; Kentucky in the time of Henry Clay; the old Bay State in the time of Webster, and Georgia during the last days of the short life of Henry W. Grady.

"As a debater and as a thinker, Champ Clark takes the front rank either in or out of Congress. As a wit, his personal friends and the multitudes who have heard him place him high on the roll of those that 'win sweet laughter from the lips of men.' The motor of his elocution being impulsiveness, felicity gleams in his eye as he weaves into the woof of his argument fanciful phrases and fantastic suggestions. As a public lecturer, Champ Clark has achieved instant and unprecedented success, and has enjoyed a constant and increasing prestige throughout the United States."

Of course you will want to hear this talented man, if you have never heard him, and if you have you will want to hear him again.

Following Champ Clark will be the Lucy Lee Concert Company on November 30th; Lincoln McConnell, January 27th; Peter MacQueen, February 21st, and the Chicago Boy Choir March 15th. Tickets for this entire series have been placed at $1.50, student's season tickets $1.00 and the general admission fifty cents. Every one should buy a season ticket. They will be on sale at the various stores Friday morning, where also a booklet descriptive of the entire series may be secured. Reserved seats for the Champ Clark lecture will be opened at Raymond's drug store next Wednesday morning, the 20th. Lend your influence and help for the success of this course.

Interesting Suit

Judge Britton's court and a jury were occupied Tuesday afternoon with a lawsuit wherein the state of Nebraska appeared against L. L. Way for using violent and insulting language, one day last week, to Howard Whalen. The men got into some kind of a dispute whereupon Way seems to have lost his temper and used such intemperate language that Whalen did not feel that he was called upon to stand it without a protest. He therefore caused Way's arrest. County attorney Davis appeared for the prosecution on behalf of the state and attorney Rooney for the defense. After listening to the evidence in the case the jury returned a verdict of guilty as charged and the Judge said $5 and costs, the whole amounting to about $25.

Hiram B. Littell Is Dead

Pierce, Nebr., Oct. 12.—Hiram B. Littell, an old soldier, died at 3:30 yesterday afternoon from heart failure.

He came to Pierce in 1890. His son, Archie Littell, formerly county superintendent of Wayne county, died last spring. Mr. Littell was 75 years of age. He was born at East London, Canada, in 1834. In 1861 he enlisted in the Ninth Iowa infantry. During service he was captured by southerners and served nine months in Andersonville prison. The remains will be taken to Jones county, Iowa, for burial.

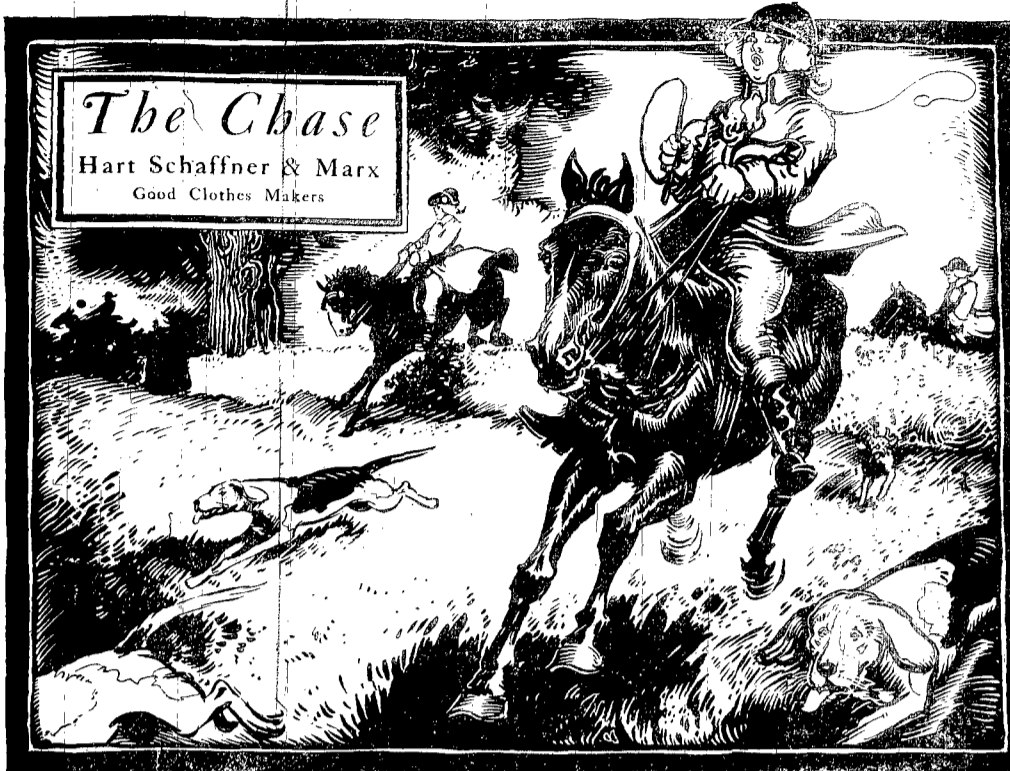

Stings Joy Rider

Albert Jones, the first joy rider who broke into the supreme court, must pay the $5 and costs which he was assessed for exceeding the speed limit with his buzz wagon within the city limits of Wayne. The supreme court so decided Saturday morning. The evidence in the case was not of the best, but the court could find nothing reversible in the action and settled the matter by stating that "questions of fact are for the jury and a verdict or finding by them on a question of fact, where the testimony is conflicting, will not be reviewed."

DAN HARRINGTON

Stanton had a $4,000 incendiary fire on the night of the 7th.

Snow in Colorado Friday and as far south as the Panhandle country, Texas.

Owing to the severe drought and storms corn is now being exported into Mexico free of duty from the United States, to relieve the threatened famine in that country.

Charles W. Haney was killed by a Northwestern freight train at Lyons Sunday night. No one saw the accident but it is supposed that he caught his foot in a frog of the rails.

Henry Witt, of Emerson, died very suddenly of heart disease Saturday. He had been working in the yard and went into the house, hung up his coat and died without saying a word.

The usual idea is that the Indian population in this country is dying out but the facts in the case do not justify the conclusion. Government statistics show that there has been an increase of about 40,000 in the past twenty years.

According to the government crop report South Dakota has the largest per cent. of corn yield of any state except Indiana which has the same, 90 per cent. The ten year average in that state is 80. Iowa has 77 this year against 80 last year and 81 for a ten year average. Nebraska has only 69 this year, 80 last year and 78 ten year rate. The southern part of the state is what cuts Nebraska down.

According to the government report, the condition of corn on October 1st was 73.8 as against 77.8 on the same date last year. The spring wheat yield is 65,154,000 bushels greater than last year, and the entire wheat yield is 58,165,000 bushels greater. The oat yield in the country is 176,462,000 bushels more than last year.

"Ah there! We read in the good book 'All power belongeth to God.' U. S. Senator A. B. Cummins appears to think that all knowledge is wrapped up in himself. He says, 'The last congress didn't know enough to revise the tariff as it should have been revised.' Too bad that the members did not all go home and leave the revision to Albert. Then it would have been done in proper shape. If congress did not know enough to revise the tariff it should not be held responsible for what it did not know. Of course if A. B. says a thing is so, it is a fact as all wisdom and understanding are wrapped up in himself."

There are a lot of newspapers in this country that claim the right to speak for and dictate to the republican party that are not, nor never were, in any sense republican. Like all so-called independent papers they are against the administration, whether it be McKinley, Roosevelt or Taft, and all of their policies are absolutely wrong and will ruin the country if persisted in, and no laws passed by a republican congress are of any good simply because the wise editors who manage that kind of papers do not have a hand in making them. Thinking to hoodwink the people by their bragged-about independence, they have just about as much of that quality as a jack-rabbit and their leanings are always toward the democrats, or at least against the administration. In this class are the Sioux City Tribune and News. And yet, despite the calamity howling of this class of papers, the country goes right along, prospering and developing under the laws which they daily protest are the ruin of the country. Their claim that we are fast becoming the most down-trodden nation of the earth does not appear to be borne out by the facts.

County Levies

An interesting variation in the amount of county levies is shown in a compilation made by C. T. Lawrence of the state auditor's office. The levies are given for the first time. They are for the years 1908 and 1909. A county levy includes a levy for the general fund, bridge, insane, interest, road, soldiers' relief, bonds, refunding, poor, and in some counties drainage. A county levy does not include taxes for school, city or village or precinct purposes. The total state levy last year was 64 mills and for this year is 54 mills. The following are the levies made by Wayne and surrounding counties:

	1908	1909
Wayne	11	11
Cedar	12	12
Dixon	12 1/2	12 1/2
Cuming	8 2-10	14 1/2
Madison	12 1/2	12
Stanton	13 1/2	13
Thurston	15	15
Pierce	11 1/2	11 1/2

It will be seen from the above that the Wayne county levy is less than that of any other county touching its border.

True Enough

Being known as a lawbreaker and being convicted of breaking the law are two different things altogether. Lots of men are known to be out and out law breakers and yet have never been convicted of it in the courts. In fact should you undertake to convict them you would find it a difficult task. And yet not a shadow of doubt exists in your mind of their guilt. Now if a man chooses to go through the world and be known as a lawbreaker he can do so. That there are men who do so choose is a well known fact. They know they are lawbreakers and they know that others know it. Just what kind of an opinion such a man has of himself, and just what kind of a feeling he must have when he comes in contact with his fellow men, are perhaps more easily imagined than described. But in every community we find them more or less.—Pender Republic.

What Gold Cannot Buy. By MRS. ALEXANDER. Author of "A Crooked Path," "Maid, Wife or Widow," "By Woman's Wit," "Beulah's Bargain," "A Life Interest," "Mona's Choice," "A Woman's Heart."

CHAPTER XVII.—(Continued.) That evening, as Hope was playing some Scotch airs, with great taste and a delicate touch, while Mrs. Saville sat thinking in her chair and stroking Prince, a note was brought for Miss Desmond. Hope finished what she was playing, then, asking, "Will you allow me?" opened the missive.

"It is from Miss Dacre," she added, in a tremble or two, "a most extraordinary epistle. She says she writes with your knowledge and approval. She asks me to leave you and live with her, and offers me one hundred pounds a year. Will you look at it?"

Mrs. Saville stretched out her hand, and, after reading the letter, deliberately returned it.

"How do you mean to reply?" "Can you ask?" cried Hope—"unless, indeed, your knowledge of Miss Dacre's intention indicates a wish that I should leave you."

"No, it does not. I thought it right that you should have the option of refusing an advantageous offer. You would have more gaiety, a larger salary, an easier life, with Mary Dacre, than with a cantankerous old woman like myself."

"If I had the money I should be willing to pay a hundred a year to stay away from Miss Dacre," said Hope. "You are severe, and rather formidable, but I feel sure of your justice and loyalty, and the restfulness of life with you is infinitely preferable to the fevered gaiety of Miss Dacre's existence."

"I am glad you think so. Write to her at once."

Hope obeyed, and, after writing with deliberation for some minutes, gave the result to Mrs. Saville for perusal. "Good," said that lady. "It is firm and courteous. Let it be posted at once. Now play me the march from 'Tanqueray.'"

When that was finished, Mrs. Saville said, "Come and sit down."

Hope obeyed. There was a short pause, and she went on: "As you have chosen to stay with me, my dear Miss Desmond, I shall increase your salary to what Miss Dacre offered."

"You are very good, Mrs. Saville, but I would rather you did not. I have quite enough for all I want. A year hence, when you have proved me, if we are still together, and you like to offer it—But, oh, it is unwise to look ahead so far."

"I am not a very imaginative person," said Mrs. Saville, slowly, "but it strikes me you have a history, Miss Desmond."

"I suppose every one has," said Hope, smiling. "I too, have my little story; and some day, if you ever care to hear it, I will tell you—but not just yet."

"I suppose it centers round some love-affair, which you silly young people always think of the last importance."

"It does," said Hope, with grave feeling; "and I am sure the importance cannot be exaggerated. If men and women only allowed themselves to think what a sacred and solemn thing love and its usual ending marriage is, fewer unhappy ones would take place."

"Ah, with the vast majority love is an unknown quantity and an insignificant ingredient. Just think what human nature is, the conditions in which it lives, moves, and has its being; how is love as you exalted people accept it to exist? There we shall never agree. Pray get me the Figaro."

Miss Dacre was reproachful, and even tearful, when Hope next saw her, but the "much desired one" was immovable.

"Is it not extraordinary," cried the disappointed mistress, "that George Lunley went off in that unaccountable way? There is some hidden baneful influence at work. It is always the same: as soon as we are growing confidential he flies off. It is a hideous thought, but it has occurred to me that he is secretly married to some dreadful woman. What do you think?"

"I think there is nothing more unlikely."

"Well, good—We return to London on Wednesday. Perhaps Richard Saville will be able to tell me something of George. Oh, I forget; we shall just miss him. Well, if you can find out anything you will be sure to write? You have treated me very badly; but I do not bear malice. You will find you have made a great mistake. So good-by."

Mrs. Saville seemed more cheerful and in a better temper after Lord Castleton and his daughter left Paris, through the presence of her eldest son was always more or less a trial.

She endured an occasional visit from Lord Everton, who was quietly pertinacious in cultivating friendly relations with her.

He was the only member of the family who dared to mention her offending son, but he only ventured to do so when they were alone.

"I really believe you are softening Mrs. Saville's stony heart," he said one day as he met Hope coming from the galleries. "Not, I am sure, by five and human kindness. She allows me to mention Hugh, and just now endured hearing that I had a letter from him. He writes in good spirits. I believe the Vertogren will be home in August or September, and then we shall see what we shall see—oh, allow me," for Hope had dropped her sunshade and stooped to pick it up. "Getting quite too hot to stay here. I am off for Switzerland; and I hear Richard is going to cruise in somebody's yacht to the coast of Norway. He has sent of some buried treasures of Runic inscriptions, and heaven knows what else, near Skarstad. You had better get Mrs. Saville away, and yourself—excuse a privileged old fellow. You have by best wishes, my dear girl—my very best. Accept a prophecy; I think we'll turn a corner before long."

And before Hope could ask the meaning of his enigmatical words he had raised his hat, bowed, and departed.

CHAPTER XVIII. The little fishing village of Sainte-Croix, lying at the mouth of a valley or gorge which opens from the sea between high cliffs on the coast of Normandy, has of late been revealed to Parisians, especially artistic and literary Parisians. One giant of the latter order has even built himself a villa well up on the steep side of the valley. Artists encamp in the fisher cottages, turning the kitchens, with their carved oak dressers and settles, into living-rooms, and cooking in outhouses, or getting their food from a rambling hotel and restaurant lately instituted by joining several cottages together, with additions and improvements, where a few yards of level ground intervene between the sands and the cliff.

A straggling growth of fine beech-trees, stretching down from a large wood which crowns the gradual ascent of the valley where it merges into the flat table-land above, well cultivated, and rich with fields of corn and gobs. At the date of this story it was known to few, but, obscure though it was, Mrs. Saville chose it for a resting-place before she returned to London. It was a fine glowing August evening when, with Miss Desmond, her German courier, and her English maid, Mrs. Saville arrived and started the sleepy little village into lively curiosity, as she drove through it in an old-fashioned traveling-carriage drawn by four scraggy post-horses, the whole equipage secured with some difficulty by the careful courier at the nearest railway-station. The dogs barked, the hens cackled, the ducks add geese flew out of the roadside pond with profuse noise and fluttering, as the scraggy crew team rattled down the hill to the shore of the rock-enclosed bay along the edge of which the "Hotel de l'Europe" stretched its low, irregular front.

The landlord and one maid and two female waiters were drawn up to receive the distinguished guests and usher them to their apartments.

"Madame has a fine view of the bay and cliffs. The sunsets are superb, nay, exquisite, in good weather; and it is generally good at Sainte-Croix. I do not remember having had the honor of receiving Madame before."

"I dare say not. You were not old enough to be the head of such an establishment when I was here last," returned Mrs. Saville, more graciously than she would have spoken to an Englishman.

"Impossible, madame!" cried the host, with polite incredulity. "When will madame dine?"

"At 6. Mentime, we wait ten; but my courier will see to the preparation. He understands it. Pray, is Madame d'Albeville at the chateau?"

"No, madame. Unfortunately, the second son of Madame la Marquise was wounded a week ago in a duel, and she has gone to nurse him—at Grenoble, I think. Her arrival is quite uncertain."

"Indeed! I am sorry to hear it. And she bowed dismissal to her polite host.

"This is a disappointment," said Mrs. Saville to Hope. "I quite counted on Madame d'Albeville's society. She is an agreeable, sensible woman, and rather pleasantly associated with my former visit to this little hamlet. Come, let us look at our rooms."

They were small, but most comfortable than the guests had anticipated. Hope was greatly pleased with the picturesque surroundings, and was anxious to survey the village.

"Then take Jossop with you for a ramble. I have letters to write, and do not feel inclined to move. Tell them to light a fire in the salon. It is very fresh and deliciously salt, but I can quite bear a fire."

Hope willingly accepted the suggestion, and as soon as they had a cup of tea she set out with the prosaic lady-maid, glad to enjoy some exercise after the long cramping journey by rail and road. It was indeed a primitive little place. A narrow stony road led between two irregular lines of detached cottages, each with a little garden, many of them overgrown with ivy and roses. Frequent steep paths, between them led to huts perched on the hill-sides above them. Gradually the road climbed up clear of these surroundings to where on the higher ground the ruins of a mediaeval abbey peeped out from the shelter of the surrounding beech-woods. Hope and her companion did not venture quite so far, but even from the height they had attained, as they looked out over the "blue water" of the Channel, now glittering and laughing in the strong light of the western sun.

"We must return now, Jossop," said Hope. "Mrs. Saville will have been a long time alone by the time we get back."

"She will indeed, miss; and what made Mrs. Saville come to this savage place is past my comprehension," returned the abigail, in an aggrieved tone. "There seems to be nothing but common people without shoes to their feet going about. I am sure Mrs. Saville would have got her health better at Loughfield, with the comforts and decencies as become her station around her."

"Perhaps so; but this is a sweet place. I think I could enjoy it intensely, if it were not. She paused, and her rich red lips parted in an unconscious smile.

"If your young gentleman was here, miss?" said Jossop, with a confidential smirk. Jossop had grown friendly and patronizing to her lady's young companion.

Hope laughed, and the yearning of her heart prompted her to reply, "Yes, that would make it a heavenly place, Jossop; but I must not allow myself to think of such joy."

"That's a pity, miss. So there is a young gentleman? Indeed, I'd be surprised if there was not. I hope he isn't far away, miss."

"Yes, there is many a weary mile between us."

"That's bad, miss. Men are an inconstant lot. It's out of sight out of mind with most of them. I was engaged once myself, to a young gentleman in the grocery line, but he had most thoroughbred, and married a butcher's daughter. She was freckled and cross-eyed, but she had a tidy bit of money; and a man would marry the Witch of Endor for that."

"I dare there say the Witch of Endor was a very attractive woman."

"Law, miss! an old witch?" "Oh, no; a nice witch is never old." Hope's intellectual conversation was interrupted by the sound of approaching wheels, and the pound, pound, pound of horse, crunch of a patient, heavy-footed coach tolling slowly uphill.

HATS VS. MEN'S HAIR.

Is the Bald Brother Equal to the Ordeal?—and in Fitting Time.

While the masculine hatless club has not yet struck Pittsburg, it is bound to come. Pittsburg is never far behind in the march of progress, so that any day we may expect to see prominent citizens strolling along 5th avenue or Wood street with their ambrosial locks blown to the sunny breeze. In Canada it is the bald-headed man (who has forsaken a hatless club. The new scientific theory that the wearing of hats brings baldness has induced them to adopt heroic measures to recover their hair. In Chicago the father had been taken up by the citizens whose duties of thought are still crowned by the natural covering, on the principle that prevention is better than cure, and they are going to give the new theory a thorough trial. Undoubtedly they are proceeding on the right track. Especially at this season of the year, when flies are perniciously active, it requires courage of a high order for a bald-headed man to leave his hat at home. And then there is the possibility that no practical benefit will result. But it seems to have been pretty effectively demonstrated that fresh air is conducive to the preservation of such hair as one already possesses.

Now that hatless clubs are being organized in all parts of the country, it is advisable for men to inform themselves of the conditions for membership. It is necessary to take the pledge to abstain from the wearing of hats in any form until the first snow falls. The first frost is no excuse for donning the derby. Members must go hatless to business. Convivial individuals will be shocked to learn that even the slightest is prohibited. The rules are strict, and for any infracting a heavy fine is imposed. Are men willing to go through this severe ordeal for the sake of keeping their good looks? And, indeed, is seven total baldness unlovely? Why should it be so considered? The savage, it is true, rejoices in flowing tresses, but as man advances in civilization, he loses his hair. There are no bald Indians, but how many of our captains of industry and professors of Sanskrit are characterized by hirsute deficiencies? May not baldness, then, be regarded as a mark of the highest culture? There is another phase of the question which, it is feared, has not been given due consideration by the hatless clubbers. It is the danger of venturing into the bright sunshine with unprotected head. Death, on the authority of the proverb, loves a shining mark, and why should it not select the glittering, hairless cranium as a target for the solar rays? Evidently there are two sides of this matter and both should be carefully weighed before man dooms his faithful old hair to permanent retirement on the top shelf of the clothes press—Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

Why rent land and live from hand to mouth in Nebraska when you can get a 320 acre homestead within one hundred miles of Denver? One man can take a 320 acre homestead land at the same time take 320 acres of desert land, thus making him a section of Government land, where you can raise under the dry farming system from ten to thirty bushels of wheat and oats, and all kinds of vegetables. For further information address the Sutton Homestead Company, 203-209 S. Yates Building, Denver, Colorado or come and see us. J. G. Sutton, Bloomfield, Neb.

The management is to be commended for their efforts to get the factory on a basis where as much as possible of the work can be done here at home thus giving employment to home labor and leaving the money here with our own business men.

Does Not Like It

We learn indirectly that David Elson who went to California several weeks ago with the expectation of staying there at least until next April, does not like it there at all and has expressed determination to return to Wayne by at least the first of the year, and earlier than that if he can get possession of his residence. It is sometimes difficult for elderly people to content themselves amid new scenes and away from old associates. Young people can make friends anywhere, but old people cannot.

Family Reunion

The happiest family in Wayne the past week has been that of Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Hitchcock, who have just got moved into their new home on North Main Street. But that has not been the real cause of their rejoicing although that was one pleasant feature of it. For the first time in at least eleven years all of the children have been home together with father and mother. Those who have been under the hospitable home roof this week were R. C. Greer and wife of Blunt, South Dakota; J. W. Kreuger and wife of Andover, South Dakota; F. W. Hitchcock and wife of Omaha, Nebraska, and H. D. Wilbur and wife, of Marshalltown, Iowa, three daughters and a son. R. C. Greer is quite well known here, having been an employe of one of the banks for a number of years. A. D. Chapin and wife, of Winside, a brother-in-law, were also over Monday afternoon and night. The gathering was certainly one of great pleasure to all of the participants.

It is a Shame

Another illustration of putting off until tomorrow what ought to be done today occurred Monday at the new school house. The contracting firms seem to be doing their work well enough, but they are too slow and procrastinating for any use. It is the little things that are aggravating and annoying. For instance, the sub-contractor for the heating plant has known for months, if he knows anything, that in this latitude we are almost sure to want some fire by October, and yet he has dilly-dallied along with his work, although, so far as the building was concerned, he might have had his entire heating plant in readiness a month ago. Everything is there and in place, but some small connecting valves, but owing to the lack of these no fires could be made and without them the rest of the plant might as well be in China as where it is. Another bad feature is that he does not know when there is a probability of his getting them. Again—the upper story, now in use, could have been fairly comfortable even on a day like Monday if the plate glass for the doors to each room had been in place. Without them and no doors on the outside below, it was like trying to teach school in a barn, or even worse, as the wind whistled up the stairways and through the rooms at a lively rate. An effort was made to keep the rooms warm with oil stoves, but you might as well try to stop the flow of Niagara with a board as to heat half of all out doors in such a manner when one of our gentle Nebraska breezes blows like it did Monday. It is too bad if the district has not some remedy at law or somewhere for such slack methods of getting work done as has been shown on this building, which was to have been completed by August 1. It is said the contractor has lost money on the building, but that is largely his own fault, if he has, for at no time since he began work on the structure has he had one-half of the men employed on it that he ought to have had. If he had pushed it to completion in the early part of the season he surely could not have lost near as much on the contract as he has since the time it was to have been completed, because there has been a constant advance in all lines of material.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Fisher, two miles south of town Saturday, but only lived a few hours. Mrs. Fisher was in quite a critical condition for two or three days, but we are glad to learn that she began to improve Monday and it is now thought that her recovery is assured.

Mrs. E. Cunningham, who had been out on the family ranch in Idaho ever since the early summer, arrived home Sunday morning and has been busy greeting friends ever since.

C. F. Whitney received two $25 Barred Rock cockerels from Illinois last Saturday. He will use them in his breeding pens next season.

A Little Heart-to-Heart Talk

Will readers of the Herald listen for a moment to a few words personal from the publisher? We desire to ask you to read the advertisements in this paper, patronize the business men who advertise, and then tell the business men you patronize them because they do ask you to trade with them. The advertisements in a newspaper ought to be and are just as interesting and valuable as the news department. The business man has goods to sell. Every week or two he has something new. You know he is in business, but you did not know he had certain goods, or perhaps that he was selling certain goods at reduction from regular prices. Thus the newspaper becomes the medium of conversation between the business man and the purchaser. This advertising is valuable to the business man; it is helpful to the purchaser, and it is indispensable to the newspaper. Without advertising, country newspapers would all go out of business. It is the main source of revenue to the newspaper and it is important that business men should realize its value to them. Some business men are not quite certain that it does help their business and right here the reader can be of great help to the publisher of the paper. If the purchaser says to the business man: "We note in the Herald that you are offering so-and-so" the business man has direct and unquestioned evidence that people read advertisements. Will you not, reader, help the publisher out to the extent of mentioning, from time to time, to the merchant that you saw and read his advertisements? And by the way, be sure you do read the ads, they are just as good if not better reading than the news columns.

If you think that the first wintry like blasts do not live up to trade in heavy goods you should have stood for an hour or two in Dan Harrington's store Monday afternoon and watched the crowds, as they were in a buying mood.

Among The Churches

Items of Interest Concerning the Churches in Wayne

The Epworth League will hold a candy sale at Johnson's furniture store next Saturday afternoon.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning.

Rev. Parker Smith has returned from his hunting trip and occupied his pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the M. E. church will meet at the parsonage Friday afternoon. All are invited.

There will be no preaching services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday, owing to the absence of the pastor. Sunday School and Endeavor as usual.

The Presbyterian church is planning for a grand rally day on the 24th, both for the church and Sunday School. It will be a double service with a good program.

Rev. T. C. Osborne went to Minden, Nebraska, Tuesday to attend the state synod of his church which began Wednesday. His wife and children will accompany him home.

Rev. Meyle, of Hastings, will begin a two weeks revivalistic service in the Presbyterian church on the 31st. It is planned to make this series interesting and profitable. Keep it in mind.

Mrs. Julia C. Hallam, of Sioux City, will address the ladies of this vicinity on the subject of "The Mother's Relation to the Adolescent Period." This talk will be given in the Methodist church Thursday evening, October 21, at 7:30. Mrs. Hallam comes under the auspices of the Improvement League and every lady in Wayne should make an effort to be present and hear this talk. There will be good music and everything is free, not even a collection will be taken.

The hour of the morning services at the Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist churches is going to be changed to 10:30 instead of 10:45 as it is now. The Methodists and Baptists will make the change next Sunday, so keep it in mind. The Presbyterians will not change until the 31st on account of the rally day on the 24th. If you have been in the habit of being late to church you will very likely be later unless your religious zeal spurs you up more than it has, and if you have been getting to the service just on time you will have to get a little more speed.

THE KING SOLOMON FORGING TO THE FRONT

A Mile of Underground Workings. Another Vein Cut.

As we go to press word has been received that another vein has been cut in the King Solomon tunnel, cross cutting the West drift of vein No. 4.

Supt. Davidson called up the Denver office over long distance and states that it is a fine looking vein and is evidently an extension of the big vein encountered some time ago in driving to the West on No. 7 or in what possibly be the Tram Lode which was opened up by accident on the surface last fall by some miners coming down the mountain side.

The Tram Lode has a splendid showing on the surface and the walls are well defined.
Visitors to the mine this summer have climbed to the top of the mountains where these veins are exposed showing the yellow ore and gotten their own samples which have tested out a splendid grade of shipping ore. They have then gone below thousands of feet where the same veins were cut by the tunnel and saw the same quality of ore which, when sent to the Assayer, United States Custom House, Denver, proved to be the most skeptical that the King Solomon has the goods.

Some of the men starting west for a pleasure trip this summer declared emphatically that they would not buy stock in the enterprise if they saw gold dollars running down hill but everyone of them that made that declaration changed their minds and after visiting the United States mint and seeing the vast amount of over four hundred millions in gold stored in its vaults, after viewing the curling smoke from the many smelters which has not ceased for a single minute in forty-two years, they then visited the greatest mineral exhibit in the world and were told by the man who had it in charge that the most of it came from Summit county within ten miles from the King Solomon. They then began to get the scales off from their eyes and began to comprehend a little of the vast millions that are being made yearly in mining. They got a glimpse of the vast improvements in new machinery and the reduced cost in expense of handling ore. They then visited not only the King Solomon and public to all the engineering and mining men, but they visited other properties and mines and before leaving they bought stock in the King Solomon.

You are sure to buy if you visit the property. It has become one of the large tunnels of the West and with its tunnel and many ramifications in the many veins now has a mile of underground workings.
The management have overcome the many obstacles incident to a great undertaking of this kind. They have weathered the panic and the presidential election of last year and the stock sales have increased wonderfully, the past two months exceeding in sales any like period in the history of the company. They are bound to win and in the near future take their place among the big producers.

Kate's sell the overcoats. Kuppenheimer makes them—that's why. Try Whalen's hot drinks and lunches. The best ever. H. F. Wilson and J. T. Bressler went to Omaha Wednesday morning on business. Must anybody who wants an overcoat would prefer a Kuppenheimer—why not have it? KATE'S. The richer the man, the poorer clothes he can wear and no one makes any remarks about it. Mrs. Ed. Sellers, who had been very seriously ill the past week, is now improving which her friends are glad to learn. While the Wayne county delinquent tax list only occupies about one column space in the papers, that of Cedar county takes nearly eight. Fred Giesker, a brother-in-law of A. G. Bohnert, who has been on a trip to Seattle and as far northwest as Alaska, is visiting the family at the Union Hotel this week. The Winside Tribune speaks about Grant Meas as "our popular sheriff." Of course he is popular. That is the reason he is going to win out again this year. The voters know when they have a good man in office. Women who demand style, comfort and quality without extreme fastidiousness in their shoes will find "Quality" shoes just to their liking. There is a fine assortment of autumn styles to choose from at the "New Shoe Store"—AHERN'S. The chicken pie supper given by the ladies of the Presbyterian missionary society last Thursday evening was a success in every particular. There was a large attendance, the food was the best ever, and the waiters were handsome and attentive. All the best in hot drinks at Whalen's.

W. O. Gamble is visiting at Missouri Valley, Iowa. Mrs. R. Perrin has been visiting in Minnesota for a week. Rev. Parker Smith and wife went to Sioux City this morning. Mrs. J. E. Marsteller is enjoying a visit with her sister and family, who came this morning. Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Gamble have received word that a son was born Friday to their daughter Mrs. E. W. Ebert, at Scotts Bluff, Nebr. Otto Voget and his sister Pauline, who have been at Seattle for several weeks, are expected home about the 5th of November. They are both anxious to get home. On Friday evening, October 29th, in the M. W. A. hall, the Royal Neighbors will have a Hollow-candy social. There will be popcorn, candy, jack-o-lanterns and spoons. Remember the date and everybody invited. Mr. Man, when you are ready for a pair of rattling good-work shoes or high top boots let us show you a dozen cracker jack numbers we have for you. Fresh, plump, leather that will stand the wet and hard wear. They are made by people who have made a specialty of men's work shoes for forty years. They are bound to be good. "The New Shoe Store" AHERN'S President Pile and Profs. Bright, Puffer and Hüntener, of the Nebraska Normal, County Superintendent, Mrs. Elsie Littell, Supt. Kemp and Mrs. Phillips of the Wayne high school, and others of the corps of teachers from here went to Emerson Saturday morning to attend the meeting of the Northeast Nebraska teachers. Several of them had part on the program. The day was not at all pleasant but the session proved interesting and instructive. The attendance was not as large as it would have been had the day been better.

Attorney A. R. Davis came in from Center this morning, where he had been attending court. Henry Hansen and wife left this morning for Herrick, South Dakota, to visit W. S. Slaughter and family, and from there will go to Gregory, South Dakota, before returning home to visit H. S. Slaughter and family. If R. A. McEachen, the republican candidate for county commissioner, should not get around to ask you for your vote you do not want to forget him when you cast your ballot. A man always successful and caretaking is the kind of a man you need in that office. Young lady! You who are particular down to the very last degree about the style of your shoe—we are ready for you. We have been particular to get snappy, nobby styles for just you. Let us show you the button Patents and Gun Metals we have in. "The New Shoe Store" AHERN'S

Miss Helen Blair was home from Morning Side college over Sunday. Dr. Hess reports the birth of a boy to Mr. and Mrs. John Farrell on the 9th. Seems as though most everybody buys their overcoats at Kate's. They sell Kuppenheimers. There was an alarm of fire Friday evening about 5:30, fortunately a false one as it was in the business district. The excited imagination of a girl at Ellis' restaurant caused her to see a fire where there was none and she turned in a telephone alarm. The department was prompt in responding but were glad that their services were not needed and everyone breathed a sigh of relief when it was ascertained that a fire had not even got a start. Every farmer in Wayne county who has produce to sell should insist on getting these prices this week. Your produce is worth it and the store that advertises that they take produce the same as cash should pay these prices. Eggs, 22c dozen; butter, 22c lb.; spring-chix, 11c lb.; old hens, 10c lb.; old roosters, 5c lb. Not only will we pay you these prices but we offer you the greatest stock of General Merchandise in Wayne county to choose your goods from. Our new double store is filled with new winter goods and you know the prices are right or this business would not have doubled in two years. AHERN'S

NORMAL NOTES
Misses Pauline and Emilie Gfund, of Pierce, were made happy this week by a visit from their father and mother. Miss Carroll went to Carroll Tuesday evening to meet her brother Charlie, who is home from Ceddes, South Dakota, for a few days. Among the new students to enroll this week are Misses Lillian Gatzemeyer, of Bancroft, and Bertha Skalberg, of Wausa. Miss Margaret Carroll will give the one o'clock lecture this week. She will discuss different writers and give selections from each. Miss Edna Baluss of Atkinson, visited College friends the first of the week. She was on her way to Florida where she will spend the winter. On account of the cold weather this week, it was found necessary to start the heating plant. However, everything was in good working order, and all the rooms were soon heated. Prof. Henry Raubach and wife visited with friends on the Hill last Saturday and Sunday. They like their new location at Sioux, where Mr. Raubach is superintendent of the schools. Mrs. Pile is in Lincoln this week where she is attending the State Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Pile delivered the response to the address of welcome given by Mrs. Shallenberger. Miss Nellie Whaley called one day last week and made arrangements to spend the month of November in school. She will have four weeks vacation at that time, and is going to improve it in this way. No school was held at the College last Saturday, as most of the members of the faculty desired to attend the Northeast Nebraska Teachers' Association at Emerson on that day. However, the morning classes recited on Monday, so no work was lost.

LESLIE PRECINCT NEWS

(From our regular correspondent)
Mrs. Frank Hill spent Wednesday at Sioux City. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Brewer are down from North Dakota visiting old friends in this community. Mr. John Lehrman and family, of Clinton, Iowa, are visiting old friends and relatives in this neighborhood. He is thinking some of locating here. Word was received from Mr. and Mrs. Gerhard Claussen that they expect to sail for America October 12. Mr. Claussen is one of our prosperous Wayne county farmers. Having lived here twenty-three years, he thought he would take a trip to the Fatherland, and about two months ago he started for Germany. Everybody has troubles of their own but it seems like Aulden Goreham has more than his share this year. About three months ago a horse kicked him, breaking his leg in two places. After spending six weeks in a hospital at Omaha, he returned home and at this date his leg is in a very bad condition. Another trouble is the scarcity of farm labor. It seems as if help cannot be obtained for any money. HOSKINS NEWS (From Our Regular Correspondent) Miss Ida Friesz returned from Washington Thursday. Mr. John Foster spent several days at home last week. Aug. Miller is hauling lumber for a new eight room house. A baby girl arrived at the home of William Bernhart last Friday. Edwin Schemel came over from Randolph to spend Sunday at home.

Edgar Swanson is on the sick list, suffering from an attack of tonsillitis. Sam Nelson left Monday for Chicago, where he will remain the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Miller and children were Wayne visitors at the Keiper home over Sunday. Will Moratz is having the property remodeled which he recently purchased from Huga Wantoch. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bruckner and son went to Spencer to attend a wedding at the Krause home. Principal Darling and Misses Reed and Moran attended the teachers' meeting at Emerson last Saturday. The dance advertised for last Saturday evening was postponed one week because of the rainy weather. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Zutz are expected home tomorrow from New York, where they have visited the past two months. Among those who attended the horse-kick festival last week were Mr. and Mrs. P. Kautz, Mr. and Miss Crosby, Frank Phillips, Dora Green, Frank Hart and August Behmer. The five year old son of Eric Miller died Monday from the effects of a dog bite received some five weeks ago. The little one was taken to Sioux City about a week ago, but assistance came too late. A. T. Witter went to Blair, Nebraska, Tuesday afternoon, to visit a few days and then accompany his better half home, she having been there a week. Can't everybody make overcoats. Kuppenheimers can. You can see them at KATE'S. These chilly days get a hot lunch or cup of coffee at Whalen's.

One lady remarked: "I always send to the store for White House when I have company." This is suggestive that the company was well provided for. And it may be added that what is good for company would also be very "toothsome" for the husband, wife and children during the long winter months. If you have not used White House Goods, try them. It's quality that tells, always. Your order for a case, assorted, is a saving of 20 per cent.

In Good Condition

Mrs. Elsie Littell, the county superintendent, has visited all of the schools in the east part of the county and finds them in very good working order, much better than she anticipated, owing to the fact that there are so many new and inexperienced teachers in the county. So many of the older teachers got married or moved away that there are only about one dozen in the entire county that have ever taught before, and a number of those who are teaching the fall term do not intend to teach during the winter for the reason that they cannot get a boarding place near enough to the school to warrant them in risking health in tramping through the snow to and from their work in the winter season. A mile and a half and two miles is too far for a woman teacher to walk in the winter time and build her own fires. It seems strange that anyone with children to educate, if they at all have the room, will not open their homes to board the teacher. The young ladies who engage in that occupation are all that could be desired so far as their character is concerned and none of them would desire the earth in the way of accommodation. Mrs. Littell expects to visit the schools in the vicinity of Winside and Hosking this week and would get over the entire county before the first of next month if it were not for the campaign. Every republican voter should see that she gets his vote and influence toward electing her as she is progressive and abreast of the times in educational matters, and well fitted in every respect for the position she now holds by appointment and for which she is now a candidate for election.

Now for Business

The season of extreme hot weather has now passed, and we can all settle down to business without further strain from the extreme of temperature. The fall is the most favorable season in the year for an advertising campaign. Women are already perturbed over their fall clothes, and turn eagerly to the business news found in the well written advertisement. Household furnishings are faded and worn by the strain of summer sunshine and summer company, and housekeepers are wondering how much it will cost to put them to rights once more. All kinds of business enterprises reach their highest tension in the fall months, factories run at their height then or never, more money circulates in the fall, and people will buy at that time if they ever will. No better opportunity for a vigorous advertising campaign was ever offered in this country, for the reason that again we are at the high tide of prosperity. This cannot last always. Are you ready to pick up the plum when it is ripe, Mr. Business Man?

Why Cattle Are High

Long and loud are the complaints of consumers all over the country and, it might be added, in all other countries, as to the cause of the high price of cattle. Why do not the farmers grow more cattle and thus bring down the price?

There are several very good reasons why cattle are so high in price. Among the first that might be mentioned is the fact that everything else that men eat, drink or wear is higher than in years past. They have no greater value, but they are higher in price simply because the dollar for which they are exchanged is worth less, and this again because there are more dollars owing to the increased output of gold. This affects prices all over the world, and not merely of cattle but of everything else. This, however, does not account for all the rise in price.

Part of it is due to the scarcity of cattle, and for this again there are several good reasons. First, the range pastures on which cattle were grown so cheaply have now been broken up. There is now no longer any free range to speak of. The man with the hoe has entered. The homesteader, the dry farmer, the man who wants to make a home has invaded the great ranges. The great herds are being broken up, and only here and there can you find that interesting relic of the past century, the cow puncher. It is quite true that these great ranges will in time come to produce perhaps as many cattle as they ever did. The dry farmer will learn, perhaps to his sorrow and loss, that dry farming is practicable only in connection with cattle raising, and that instead of an eighty, which will support a family in the humid section, he needs a section or two, and that he must engage in dairying and get something else besides a calf for the keep of a cow for a year. When farmers in the western section generally get onto this, we will see quite as many cattle grown as in the palmiest days of the cowboy.

There is another reason: Just now it is exceedingly profitable to grow corn. The demand for it is no longer limited to feed for cattle. It is made into a hundred forms of usefulness: corn meal, breakfast foods, starch, glucose, whisky, alcohol for mechanical purposes, and other things too numerous to mention. The farmers are just like every other class of people. They will grow that which brings them the best immediate returns. Corn growing requires much less capital than stock growing and requires far less expense in the way of buildings. Landlords who are making big money on their corn lands now are not willing to go to the additional expense necessary to fit farms for stock growing.

Again, a very large number of farmers do not know how to grow cattle. There are grain growers in the west, corn growers in the middle states, vegetable growers in the east. There are dairymen all over the country who keep cattle not for beef but for milk and butter. The offspring of these dairy cattle are not adapted for profitable growing of beef, and it is usually of poor quality. Dairy cattle furnish veal and canners, and only the much maligned dual purpose cattle make any important contribution to the beef supply.

The evil of high priced beef, like so many others, will remedy itself after awhile. There is a limit to the fertility of corn lands. Present methods are decreasing the fertility and will force farmers by and by to adopt a rotation. Sooner or later this will force farmers into live stock growing.

Meanwhile consumers will learn how to cook better and make use of these cheaper cuts, which they can do just as well as not when they know how; and this will bring good beef within the reach of people who now cannot buy choice cuts and now burn up their noses at anything else than the highest priced.

There is likely to be quite a shortage in good beef for the next year, one reason being that the farmer, even if he does understand how to feed cattle, hesitates to put high priced corn into cattle. One good effect of this will be that we will by and by learn how to feed cattle at lower cost, using less corn and more roughage, taking a longer time and not putting so high a finish on them. So there is often good in things evil. In fact, many of the things that seem most damaging in their immediate effects turn out to be blessings in disguise.

Old experienced feeders will go on feeding. They will tell you that usually they have made more money when corn was high than when it was low. That is quite as likely to be true this year as in years that are past.

Many beef consumers are now demanding a reduction of the tariff on cattle, as if the tariff on cattle had any perceptible effect on the price of beef. Changing the tariff will not seriously affect the price of cattle. Complaining that the farmers are getting lazy and not attending to their business will not affect it. The evil will in time cure itself. Meanwhile there is good money in raising cattle, if they are the right kind to begin with, properly reared and then fed intelligently. Farmers are not likely to mourn over the high price of cattle. —Wallaces' Farmer.

Cuming County

Miss Ella Schwarting, while driving a hay rake on the home farm in lower Bismarck township, was badly injured by being thrown from the machine. She remained unconscious for over three days. Her condition, while serious, is not necessarily hopeless.

At the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Dewitz, north of West Point, their daughter, Miss Mary, was united in marriage to Henry H. Graunke, the ceremony being performed by Rev. G. H. Hemkin, pastor of the Evangelical church. The groom is prominent in local democratic politics. The couple will make their home in West Point where both were raised.

One of the largest weddings ever held in Cuming county was that given at the farm home of Charles Meister, a wealthy land-owner in the county, in Monterey precinct. His daughter, Miss Lizzie, was united in marriage to William F. Batenhorst by Rev. R. Schoof, rector of St. Boniface church, Monterey. The parties are the children of old and wealthy pioneers and were born and brought up in this community. They will occupy their own farm west of the city.

NORMAL NOTES

Prof. Puffer delivered the Saturday one o'clock talk last week.

The Norfolk foot-ball team came and, as a result, several of our boys are nursing sore spots since the game last Saturday afternoon.

The members of the faculty will nearly all attend the Emerson meeting of the Teachers' Association Saturday. Prof. Bright will take part on the program.

Prof. E. B. Sherman, formerly of Columbus, was in the Hill Tuesday, inspecting the plant and its workings.

Joseph A. Chicoine, of Verdigre, spent Saturday on the Hill, visiting friends. He reports a splendid school and good work.

Among the new students to enroll this week were: Miss Mae Griffen, Elgin; Mr. French Penn; Neigh; Mary Bokoskie, Newcastle; Mary Marks, Hartington; Goldie Chase, Wayne.

The boys from the Wayne public schools have started in for their manual training work. Prof. Hunter, in speaking of the opportunity these boys have, remarked that he wished they had such a privilege for the Norfolk boys.

A Mission study class was organized this week by the Christian Association. This class will meet on Friday evenings. The Catholic Club has also organized a study class.

The management of the College invites any who are interested to visit any and all departments. The Manual Training is especially interesting. Prof. Hunter will be found always ready to explain the workings of this fine plant.

Wakefield Republican:

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Haas was celebrated at their home near Wakefield on Monday. The parlor was very tastefully decorated in old gold and white crepe paper. The tables were also decorated in old gold. The dinner was served in three courses. About fifty guests were present.

J. B. Peterson had a slight paralytic stroke yesterday forenoon. When he received the shock he fell to the floor, striking his nose against something in the bedroom where he had gone, inflicting quite a gash from which the blood flowed freely. He soon recovered consciousness, however, and at last reports was getting along nicely.

Carroll Index

No doubt many of the farmers hereabouts will be glad to hear that there is to be a Farmer's Institute in Carroll this winter. The dates have been set and the speakers and their topics selected. The dates approved are Wednesday and Thursday, February 9 and 10. The speakers and their subjects are, F. W. Chase "Profits in a small flock of sheep," E. W. Hunt, "Conserving and increasing the fertility of the soil" and "Alfalfa growing," B. F. Kingsley, "Draft Horse," Miss Myrtle Kauffman, "The art of cooking," Mrs. Thomas Shaw, "Some things a woman should know." It is to be hoped that every one will take an interest in this institute and make it a big success. It is a certainty that there is not a farmer in this community but what will be benefited if he attends these meetings. One cannot use all the information that is given but there is sure to be something said that can be used. If each one will do his part the institute of 1910 will be the best one ever held in Carroll.

FOND LOVER WAS TOO HASTY.

Mr. Crow Not Only Lost Bride, But Also the Dowry Which Fair One Was to Bring Him.

More of our rich papers in America should follow the same manner of testing the affections of the adventurous, commercial-minded, moneyless wife-hunters—both those of our own nationality as well as the empty-headed, titled foreigners who are "rampaging" on our hunting grounds—that "Uncle Zeke" did in Austin some time since. After several months of circuitous pretensions of love made for his daughter, it was at last understood that the father was at their marriage to give his daughter a house and lot. "Uncle Zeke" was a sly old coon, and to test his future son-in-law's affections, he said, as they were smoking their pipes:

"Mr. Crow, I has ben cogitatin', an' has come to de' cluston not to donate Mattily dat ar' house an' lot of Austin avenue."

Mr. Crow sprang to his feet, and, attacking his stovepipe hat on the side of his head, said:

"In dat case, sah, oyr future relations done ceased to exist from dis moment, sah."

"But, Mr. Crow, I was gwine to say—"

"Oh, go hire a hall, an' invite yer friends to attend de' meetin'!"

"All right, Mistah Crow. Our relations has done ceased to exist, but I only wanted to say dat dat house ain't too small, so I am gwine to gib Mattily dat two-story cottage on Peacon street, wif' twict as much."

Jim tried to explain, also; but when "Uncle Zeke" solemnly lifted a boot the size of a ham and pointed to the door, James Chow refused to linger.—Judge's Library.

The Problem of Vagabondism.

What we shall do with the derelicts is a great and increasing problem. It has not been settled satisfactorily in any great community. An official statement recently issued of former good workmen have become so enamored of a life of idleness during the last 18 months that they refuse to return to work now that occasion offers. We could wish that the statement were untrue. It is lamentable if it is correct. What every human being needs is some stimulus, some mental food as well as a care for his increasing wants. The actual necessities of life are few. The comfort and convenience of life are many. It will require more wisdom than is now available to establish a system which shall be wholly satisfactory, but it does seem as if we might be making more progress.

He Didn't Care.

"See how fair and white your sister's complexion is, Robbie," said the mother.

"Well, I suppose my face would be the same way if I kept washing it every day like elster does!" was the youngster's reply.

If a Woman SAVED.

"What is the meaning of the old adage about sawing the wood and saying nothing?" asked the fair maid.

"It means that there is a man on the job," replied the hair-grown philosopher.

"And why not a woman?" queried the f. m.

"Impossible," answered the local philosophy dispenser. "If a woman had to saw the wood the world would certainly hear about it."

Foley's Honey and Tar

clears the air passages, stops the irritation in the throat, soothes the inflamed membranes, and the most obstinate cough disappears. Sore and inflamed lungs are healed and strengthened, and the cold is expelled from the system. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Felber Pharmacy.

A Question of Taste.

"You are sure this was moonshine whiskey?" said the investigator.

"Yes," answered the man from Tennessee.

"Did you taste it?"

"I taste it? No. I swallowed a little. You don't taste it any more than you'd taste a hornet if you accidentally bit one. You just know it's there."—Washington Star.

His Legislative Job.

"They got her ter do some work 'round de' capitol de yuther day," said Brother Dekey, "an' I wuz in an' out 'mings de legislators from sunup ter sundown, an' wen I got throo' I walked right up an' drawed my pay."

"Fell good, eh?"

"You right I did, sah—des ez good ez de yuther legislators!"—Atlanta Constitution.

C. R. Kluger, the Jeweler, 1060 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind., writes:

"I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers, as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed." Felber Pharmacy.

Pattern by the Ancients.

At the Museum of Natural History in New York recently a number of girls were sent in the interests of commercial houses to study the decorative effects of the fantastic fabrics of the Inca maidens of ancient Peru. A quantity of this cloth has been excavated and is now on exhibition at the museum. The garments have been wonderfully preserved and are to-day probably as fresh as when they were put into the ground beside the departed Peruvians to whom they belonged. These Indian girls dressed in highly ornamented ponchos of colors as various as those of Joseph's coat.—Van Noston Magazine.

Both Boys Saved.

Louis Boon, a leading merchant of Norway, Mich., writes: "Three bottles of Foley's Honey and Tar absolutely cured my boy of a severe cough, and a neighbor's boy, who was so ill with a cold that the doctors gave him up, was cured by taking Foley's Honey and Tar." Nothing else is as safe and certain in results. Felber Pharmacy.
