High School Building Dedicated

Exercises were Interesting and well Attended and Enjoyed by all.

According to previous announcement, last Friday afternoon and evening was the time set apart for the dedication of Wayne's handsome new school building, and during those hours many of our people took occasion to pass through the building and inspect it, some of them for the first time. As it stands complete today it is certainly a structure that any citizen may well take pride in, and one that every taxpayer can realize that his money has been well expended. The edifice is 128x78 feet in size, three stories in height, including basement, and contains approximately thirty rooms, large and small, three entrances east, west and south, affords ample means of getting in and out, and the broad halls and stairways make congestion, in case of emergency, almost impossible. Of course the main entrance is on the east and architect Croddon was particularly happy in his artistic conception of this view of the building. On either side of the large main entrance two massive pillars rise to the roof, supporting an ornamental facade similar to that over the portico of the White House in Washington.

The very best of material was used in construction work. The famous Kasota stone is employed up to the bottom of the first floor windows and above that, 77,000 iron spot pressed brick, a type of brick that has every ear-mark of being everlasting. Brick manufactured in Wayne was used for interior work and partitions. The interior finish is clear yellow pine, sand papered and given three coats of varnish. The interior arrangement of the building seems to have been worked out with singular judgment and skill and a scheme convenient and harmonious is the result. A hall fifteen feet wide runs through the center of the building, in the basement, from north to south, the gymnasium being located at the extreme north end of the hall.

On the west side of the hall are two class rooms, 23x30 feet each, boiler room, with coal bin, toilets for boys and girls, each equipped with shower baths. The kindergarten class room and recitation rooms, each 23x30, and manual training room and domestic science room, each 23x24, are on the east side of the hall. The basement ceilings are 10 feet 3 inches high; the first and second floor ceilings are 13 feet 3 inches.

Wide halls running north and south, and east and west, form a cross on the first floor. This is the main school department and the floor is divided into eight splendid class rooms each 23x30 feet. Each floor has two drinking fountains in the hall. The feature of the second or top floor is a great auditorium, 74x40 feet facing the east, uses for which will be numerous. In the southeast corner is the office of the superintendent, 16x23 feet in size. At the west of this the library, ladies' toilet, wardrobe and stairway, with class room 23x30 at the southwest. On the west are two class rooms 14x23, wardrobes and stairway. On the north laboratory, 23x30, class rooms 46x18 and 23x30, and wardrobes.

The site of the new structure is a magnificent one. W. K. Fowler, of Lincoln, who was one of the speakers of the evening, and former state superintendent, and who is familiar with all the schools of the state, said that the Wayne school has the finest location of any school building in the entire state and, when it is beautified, as it will be, by a well kept lawn, cement sidewalks, trees, shrubs and flowers, it will be the handsomest one also.

D. C. Main, in presenting the building to the people of Wayne, reminded them that it was their property, that they had, or should have, an intense interest in it, and that, it being their property, they should see that no harm or defacement come to it. He also said that while there are a few minor details to provide before it is entirely complete, both in the heating arrangements and some of the rooms, that the board had kept out enough of the contract price to see that these changes and improvements were all made before the final settlement, and also said despite a few changes in the original plans, the board had been able to keep well within the contract price and that $43,000, or near that sum he believed had been well expended in providing Wayne's beautiful new temple of learning.

The exercises at the school were well attended both afternoon and evening, showing the interest our people take in educational matters and their liking for the new building. The afternoon program was as follows:

Music..... High School Chorus
Invocation..... Rev. Parker Smith
Address..... J. S. Conn, Columbus
Music..... High School Boys Quartette
Address..... E. O. Garrett, Fremont
Music..... High School
Benediction..... Rev. Einger

In the evening the large assembly room was well filled. This room has thirty-two electric lights in it, making it well suited for gatherings of a similar kind. The program in the evening was as follows:

Music..... High School Chorus
Invocation..... Rev. Osborne
Music..... Orchestra
Address..... W. K. Fowler, Lincoln
Address..... Prof. Bright, Wayne
Music..... Orchestra
Presentation of School Building to the People of Wayne.....

..... Board of Education
Song..... America
Benediction..... Rev. Karpenstein
County Supt. Pilger, of Pierce county, was called on and made a few remarks, as did also B. Cunningham on behalf of the taxpayers. The addresses of Fowler and Bright contained a large number of valuable seed thoughts that ought to be productive of much good. The music by the orchestra was of a high grade and thoroughly enjoyed, the songs by the high school chorus were appreciated and the program as a whole was enjoyable.

Supt. Kemp and his able corps of teachers have a good school home in which to work and the rooms give evidence that their labors with and for the children under their care are abundant and will bring forth a harvest of young men and women well fitted for the battle of life.

A Blair woman went to Omaha and returned home with a grip full of clothes pins purchased at a cent a dozen. Upon boasting of her "bargain" to neighbors she learned that local merchants had been selling them every day in the week at the same price. An Omaha bargain counter is a great place to get stung.

COUNTY SCHOOL NOTES

By Mrs. Elsie Littlell From Wayne County Teacher

At the present writing Districts No. 7 and 40 have no teachers.

It is amusing to hear a teacher talk about following the course of study in a certain subject in a grade in which the course does not provide for that subject.

A grade of 70 in each subject with an average of 75 will be required of all those who pass the eighth grade examination in the spring. Grades over 80 will be accepted from those who wrote last year.

Practically all schools that closed for corn husking re-open, the first Monday of December. It always seems too bad that the schools must be closed during a month of good weather.

Compulsory attendance reports for October have not yet been filed from Dist.-No. 7, 8, 32, 49, 60, 62, 66. The compulsory education law cannot be enforced without these reports.

Mrs. Maria Wolf who has taught in Wayne county for so many years, but who has been out of the work for the last two years, has again decided to enter the ranks. She will teach the Gildersleeve school and patrons and all interested in the school are glad to welcome her.

The following changes have been made in the teaching corps of Wayne county:

Miss Esther Madsen will take Miss West's place in Dist. No. 10, while Miss West takes Miss Barnes' place in Dist. No. 33. Miss Barnes will not teach during the winter.

Miss Henyan will teach the remainder of the year in the Nairn school, Miss Beale having decided to enter the Normal.

Miss Luella Pilger will teach in Dist. No. 72, taking the place of Laura Lyons. Miss Lyons will not teach during the remainder of the year.

We have made preparations to supply the wants of the trade that look to us to supply them. Our business is growing every year, which goes to show that good goods at the right prices win in the end. The farmers of this vicinity, who have been in the habit of sending to the catalogue houses for their merchandise, are beginning to realize that they don't want their cheap, shoddy merchandise, made to sell to the unsuspecting. They want their money's worth in good merchandise and not cheap, poorly made goods at any price. That is the reason why our trade is increasing. The larger the trade, the better values we can offer our customers.

Corn Show a Success

Ed. Roggenbach Gets 1st Prize $25, for best 10 ears of Corn, Devin Bay 2nd prize, $15; and Almon Pond 3rd prize, $10 for 10 ears.

J. J. Ahern, J. W. Johnson, Mrs. Elsie Littell, County Superintendent, and James Miller entitled to much credit for the success.

Herold Lightfoot gets first prize on pop corn and John Horn second. Miss Bessie Marsteller gets first prize in hand made fancy apron also on work apron.

Wayne's First Annual Corn Show Those are the words that greet visitors at the open house yesterday and today. The lettering for that inscription is made out of kernels of corn neatly placed on a strip of muslin and was the work of the county superintendent, Mrs. Elsie Littell and her assistants. In the domestic science section of the exposition there is a liberal display of handwork with the needle and sewing machine, showing a deftness that well illustrates that the art of needlework has not entirely died out with the older generation. We are not sure about the quilts on display but all the other articles are the work of girls under sixteen years of age. In this department the art of cookery is well demonstrated by large loaves of bread, appetizing looking cookies and pumpkin pies and other things like mother used to make. The girls who have entered this part of the contest are sure to develop into women who will look well after the affairs of their households and make a helpmeet for some young man well worthy the honor of his selection as queen of his household. The domestic science section is all up on the stage.

Down on the main floor there are eight long tables filled with the products of the farm, the golden eared corn vintner with the large Irish potatoes in about equal numbers, and both of them are certainly fine specimens of field products in their class. There are also a large number of exhibits in pumpkins, alfalfa, wheat and oats, but not near as many as there would have been had the weather conditions been at all favorable. While there are nearly 250 exhibitors there were 100 entries made that were not brought in for exhibition owing to the terrible condition of the roads. There is but little doubt but what had the weather been good and the roads passable for the past ten days that there would have been at least 500 entries and exhibitors.

Taking everything into consideration the first annual corn show ever given in Wayne can be pronounced a decided success in the way of exhibits and the management of it, and it is too bad that so few of the farmers and town people even can get a view of it. Those who have had charge of the affair are entitled to great credit for their efforts to make it a success and it is through no fault of theirs that the exhibit is not larger and the attendance greater. There were possibly 150 people attended the band concert in connection with the program last evening. The program for today is as follows:

MORNING SESSION, JUDGING EXHIBITS
(Judges: Mr. E. A. Miller, of the Agricultural Department of the State University, and Miss Lulu Wolford, Domestic Science Department of the State University.)
2:30 p. m., Lecture on Agricultural Topics, Mr. R. A. Miller
3:30 p. m., Lecture on Domestic Science, Miss Wolford
4:30 p. m., Auction Vegetable, Grain and Fruit Exhibits.
We will give a full list of the winners of the different prizes next week.

More Local News
W. S. Goidie has been in Colorado for nearly a week on business. It is no longer legal to kill squirrels, grouse or prairie chickens in this state.
Donald Cunningham who has been in Idaho ever since early last spring, arrived home Saturday.
The Orr & Morris Co. have the best and most suitable display for the corn show of any firm in town.
On Thanksgiving day, at the Baptist parsonage, Pastor Smith made two hearts still more thankful by uniting them in marriage. They were Andrew Chance and Miss Alice Bosteder. The newly married couple expect to go to Kansas in a few days to spend the winter but will return to Wayne in the spring and make this vicinity their home. Well wishes of many friends are extended to them.

Only twenty more shopping days before Christmas. Have you begun your shopping yet? Perhaps not, as the advertisers have not yet let you know that they have anything to sell.
Bernice and Donald Mapes, of Norfolk, visited at the pleasant and hospitable home of J. G. Mines and wife last week. On Saturday evening Miss Mines entertained a gathering of young people in their honor and the event was a pleasant one from every point of view.

The newly organized Brotherhood of the Presbyterian church will have charge of the evening service on Sunday. Several of the men will take part. Subject, "The Worth of a Man." In the morning the pastor will preach on "The Best Gifts." Morning service at 10:30, evening at 7:30.
Mrs. F. M. Skeen passed successfully through the operation which she submitted to at Rochester, Minnesota, last Friday and word received from her yesterday morning by her son Blaine informed them that she was getting along very nicely, which all friends will be glad to learn.

Fond parents who want the letters their children mail to Santa Claus are doomed to disappointment again this year. Maybe the postoffice department is a soulless thing at any rate, its order is that letters addressed to the jolly, old, mythical saint are unmailable and must be sent to the dead letter office.

In spite of the fact that the days are about as bad as they can be the ladies of the Baptist church have met with good success at their bazaar which is being held yesterday and today. They had a large display of useful and fancy articles at the opening Wednesday but the buyers were numerous and active in their wants so that the supply rapidly dwindled away. Dinner and supper are also being served both yesterday and today and the ladies are going to come out of their venture nearly $200 ahead. The basement of the new church is well adapted and fitted up for such gatherings and will, when completed be one of the very valuable adjuncts of the new edifice.

The Best Ever
The entertainment given by the Lucy Lee Concert company at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening was the finest thing in the way of a musical entertainment ever given in Wayne. Every number on the program was a good one and each member of the company is pronounced an artist in his line by those in attendance. There was laughter in it until one's sides ached and sweet toned music charmed those who were at all musically inclined. The church was well filled. It is probable that the company will be booked for a return engagement for next season as the lecture course management and those who heard the entertainment were all so well pleased with them that they will stand another trial.

Died
Mr. Rudolph Hefti, at his home in the west part of this city, on November 30, 1909, aged seventy years, nine months and eighteen days. The deceased was born in Switzerland, Feb. 12, 1839. On March 20, 1868, was united in marriage to Miss Margaret Schmecker; to this union were born ten children. In 1881 he with his family came to America and settled in West Virginia, until 1883, when he moved to Wayne, Nebraska, where he resided until his death. He leaves to mourn his loss the wife, two daughters, Mrs. Peter Henkel and Mrs. Fred Stone, of Wayne, Nebraska, and four sons, Emal, of Laurel, Nebraska; Robert, of Philip, South Dakota; Rudolph and Fred of Wayne, Nebraska.

Father Hefti was a man of noble christian character and a consistent member of the Lutheran church. The funeral services were held today at the St. Paul's Lutheran church at two o'clock, conducted by his pastor, Rev. C. J. Ringer, and assisted by Rev. J. H. Karpenstein, of the German Lutheran church.

High School Notes.
Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt will lecture in the high school assembly room on Wednesday evening, December 8. Buy your tickets of the pupils.
A number of our pupils are competing for the excellent prizes offered by the business men in the corn show this week.
We are delighted with the excellent work that is being done in the Manual Training and Domestic Science Departments.
The per cent. of attendance and punctuality for the month ending November 24, was as follows:
Kindergarten 89 99
Grades 96.8 99.4
High School 98.3 98.6

Ruth Bryan Leavitt Lecture
Study of R. B. E. Hill, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal church, Lawrence, Nebraska, November 20, 1909.
"Mrs. Ruth Bryan Leavitt gave us a splendid lecture last night and our people are loud in her praise. Her style was simple, effective and captured the audience at once. She drew some beautiful word pictures, rich in detail and sharp in delineation. The last picture was a fitting climax to her beautiful lecture. It was of the Sea of Galilee around which cluster some of the most sacred memories of the Christian religion. As she described the glory of the sunrise lighting up the hills, and the rose and gold reflected in the waters, one was reminded of the disciples after a night of disappointing toil, meeting their Lord on such a morning as this, when he bade them a final good-bye. Perhaps here was where John got his marvelous picture of a sea of glass mingled with fire, Rev. 15:2.
"I can unhesitatingly say it was the best lecture I have ever heard on Palestine and I have heard a number. Mrs. Leavitt is certainly a gifted woman and will doubtless make many friends wherever she may go. We are very grateful to have had the pleasure of meeting her. Our lives are richer for having heard her."
R. B. E. Hill.
Mrs. Leavitt will lecture in the high school assembly room in Wayne December 8. She comes very highly recommended from every place where she has been heard and should be favored with a good hearing here.

MISS VANITY VERY, VERY OLD
Feminine Nature Proved to Have Undergone Little Change Throughout the Centuries.
The Egyptian mummy of 5,000 B.C. was no less extravagant in the matter of toilet requisites than the beauty of today. She required amulets, other things a long stone in which to mix the green eye paint. This white also held a small, delicate sea shell, wherein she mixed the paint with the necessary grease for stiffening her eyebrows; ivory hairpins which rivaled in length the hairpins of the present day and quaint ivory combs. All these articles were shown at an exhibition in London of the trophies recently dug up by the officers of the Egypt Exploration Fund. There was also a small red clay cast of a face, with the green paint bringing the eyes into extraordinary prominence.
The housewife of 7,000 years ago had household goods similar to those of the housewife of to-day. She had copper pans and earthenware, stone blades, wooden bowls and copper mirrors and to decorate her home she acquired alabaster vases and painted pottery vases.

Had No Complaint to Make.
Two young women boarded a crowded street car and were obliged to stand says the Washington Post. One of them, to steady herself, took hold of what she supposed was her friend's hand. They had stood thus for some time when, in looking down a man's hand, she discovered that she was holding a man's hand. Greatly embarrassed, she exclaimed: "Oh, I've got the wrong hand!" Whereupon the man, with a smile, stretched forth his other hand, saying: "Here is the other one, ma'am!"

Timid Man Gets New Wrinkle as to the Management of the Church Bazar.
A trust had been placed in the methods employed in the management of a church summer bazar looked with dismay upon the heap of china, furnishings that had been swept into one corner of the room.
"Oh! this stuff got broken here tonight?" he asked.
"The pretty attendant at a nearby booth assured him that it did."
"Then how on earth do you make any profit, no matter, if so much of your stuff gets smashed?"
"Oh! I sold 'em fondly. It's the smashing that counts. It is the funniest thing that ever happened to me. It happens to get broken just at the time when some person who is able to buy 'em through looking at 'em, and as the lady wretch feels that his carelessness may have caused the accident he quiets himself with his conscience by paying about three times as much as the thing was worth."
"Wouldn't you like to look?" She waved her hand above her own table full of broken bric-a-brac.
"No, thank you, sir," said the timid man, and he walked off to a respectful and safe distance.

Flower of the Tea Plant
It seems that the flower of the tea plant is much to be preferred to the leaf, says the Scientific American. The infusion of the flower is very sweet and has the same stimulating qualities as the infusion of the leaves. Moreover, the flower contains only about two per cent. caffeine, while the leaf contains as much as four per cent.
The leaves must be picked one by one, the flowers, on the contrary, are collected much more simply. The principal quality of the flower is the difficulty of imitating it.
Imitations of leaves are innumerable. Most astonishing adulterations of tea leaves are practiced in China. The oak, the gaulthine, the ash, the strawberry, the laurel, the cherry, the chestnut, the olive, the elm, the apple and the plum—in fact, almost every tree that grows offers its leaves freely to unscrupulous dealers for mixture. Even ordinary wood sawdust, properly colored, has been employed.
Many folk are adulterated with cheap and often injurious substances. The tea flower is a more or less proof against imitation.

Corn was none too well dried out when stacking began this year, and so much damp weather as we have been having has not helped it any. There is some complaint of corn spoiling in the cribs.
Rain, mud and snow are causing more grief to the corn gatherers in this part of Nebraska this year than has ever been known before. It has been almost impossible to do anything for two weeks.

We were about to say that last Thursday was an ideal Thanksgiving day, but we suppose it really was not, as an ideal day for that occasion is one when the ground is covered with snow and the air is sharp and crisp. But Thursday was a day more like the middle of April with the air soft and balmy, the grass showing green and caterpillars crawling along the walks.
A young couple was recently married and the bride sent an invitation to her aunt to attend the wedding. Says the Plainview Republican: "The cards were well affairs and the corners bore the inscriptions: 'Children not expected.' After looking at it the second time and thinking for awhile the aunt remarked: 'That's all right, but they'll have 'em just the same.'"
Little Clarence Marshall, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Marshall, met with what may prove a serious accident on Thanksgiving day. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall and children were spending the day at the H. L. Harmer home. The Marshall and Harmer boys were riding horses. In some manner young Marshall was thrown from his horse and the other horse coming right behind was so close that it could not be turned aside before it had stepped upon the boy's back causing a severe injury. At the time the doctor could not determine the extent of the injury to the spine.—Carroll Index.

A fire, that fortunately was discovered almost as soon as it originated, got a start in the kitchen of the Union Hotel about one o'clock Sunday night. The house was so filled with smoke that most of the guests were routed out of their comfortable beds, but beyond burning a small hole in the wall and destroying some table linen and other articles, no damage was done. How the fire started is a mystery. A few minutes longer before being discovered would have got a blaze under way that would have been hard to control. The fire was discovered by some of the boarders and Mr. Bohmert, the proprietor, knew nothing about it until the fire was out. No alarm was given.

There were a number of dancing parties last Thursday night, some of them private and others more public. Among the latter was the Forester's at the opera house, which was fairly well attended. Among the most pleasant of the private ones was that at Craven's gallery. Those who like that kind of entertainment enjoyed them all.

A collection of Pottery from the different flatters of the United States will be on exhibition at the home of Mrs. J. J. Williams Tuesday, December 7, from 3 to 5 p. m. An admission of ten cents will be charged.
For the first time in twenty-six years Mrs. R. Philleo did not feel that her health was equal to the task of inviting all the children and grandchildren home for their Thanksgiving dinner, but the children were not to be cheated out of the pleasure of going home to mother's on that day, that is, all those who live where it was at all possible to get there, so while she was at church Thursday morning they took possession of the house and when she came home there was the table set with a tempting array of good things and the guests assembled. Of course they had a good time, and all were thankful that father and mother had been spared to them for another year, and through so many years.

It almost seems as though the weather clerk had a suite against Wayne and anything it undertakes. Last September when we were trying to have a baseball tournament the weather was such that it could not be held on the first dates, and the second attempt was not much better, and now when the whole week through was crowded full of interesting events, we have just as miserable weather as it was possible for any one to wish. Not only has it been well nigh impossible for our country friends to get to town but it seems as though the streets and sidewalks are so nearly impassable that it is with difficulty that even the town people can get about, and no one can do so with any degree of comfort. Not only is it hard to get about but it well nigh ruins any building wherein a gathering is being held. It is too bad when people lay their plans and go to the trouble and expense of getting an entertainment in shape to have their plans upset and their hopes dashed to the ground by such a lot of measly weather as we have had the past week.

Prof. Crabtree, of the Peru State Normal School, who accompanied the Normal Board to Wayne, two weeks ago, at the chapel of his school on his return took occasion to speak complimentary of the Wayne Normal School. He spoke of the founder of the school as being one of the greatest educators of the state. He told of the remarkable school which had here been built up by private enterprise and urged that the Peru Normal school students welcome their coming sister normal very heartily because its advent as a state school would not in any way interfere with the other normal schools, but would simply mean an opportunity for more teachers to have efficient normal training and in that way raise the educational standard of the state. His remarks were followed by prolonged applause and cheers complimentary to the Peru president.

The ladies of the Monday Club enjoyed a rare treat last Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Chace. The husbands were invited, not only to partake of a delicious three course dinner at six thirty, but also to furnish the evening's program. They gallantly responded, and the result was a most delightful and instructive evening. Judge Welch was out of town so his subject, "Philanthropy as developed through Municipal Reform" was omitted. Dr. Wrightman in his subject, "Philanthropy developed through Medical Science" traced from early ages down to the present its history, and showed how many noble men have sacrificed their time, strength, and in many cases their lives to benefit humanity.
Mr. Main well portrayed "Philanthropy developed through the Educational Idea." One of the strong points he made was the difference that education has made in carrying on forms of labor.
Dr. Heckert treated of Humanitarians, citing many instances of noble, self-sacrificing men and women of today who are doing much in promoting ideal conditions by a sympathetic understanding of the real needs. "Transcendentalism; Utopias of all Ages" was ably handled by Mr. Beebe. This philosophy was originated by Immanuel Kant, and had among its followers some of the brightest minds of New England. They aspired to promote ideal conditions.
Music was rendered during the evening, a ladies' quartette very pleasingly rendered, and Old Kentucky Home led by Mr. Marsteller. The guests of the evening were Mrs. McElroy of Vinon, Iowa, Mrs. Brown of Webster City, Iowa and Mrs. T. B. White.

He Plead Guilty
When we went to press last week it was thought that there was pretty strong evidence against the person who shot up the passenger train on the Sunday afternoon before. While the railway detective was unable to get any evidence as to the guilty party, Sheriff Mears took up the matter and worked on it nearly night and day, and Friday evening he went out to the farm where the man lived, took him to one side and had a long talk with him and finally persuaded him to come to Wayne Saturday morning and plead guilty, which he did. Owing to all the surrounding circumstances and family conditions Judge Britton was very lenient with him, and only fined him $15 and costs, about $20 in all.
The man's name was Earl Pippert, and he lives on a farm a few miles southeast of town. Bad whiskey, which had a bad effect on him, appears to have been the cause of the foolish act. Pippert and two companions were out hunting on that fatal Sunday, and had taken several drinks from a bottle while on their way out to the hunting grounds. At the time of the shooting the party was separated, he being on one side of the creek and his companions on the other. His companions asserted that he did not do the shooting, but admitted that they did not see him at the time nor for some time before the act was committed. There was no positive evidence, neither could there have been any secured, and the only real clue that Mears had to work on was a remark Pippert had made to a neighbor when he returned home.
Being asked if he had shot any rabbits he replied: "No. The nearest I came to getting anything was when I shot at the engine and hit the rear end of the train." Acting on that remark and assuming that he knew more than he really did, the sheriff got him worked up on an admission of the deed and a pledge to plead guilty. Pippert was badly frightened and extremely sorry over the matter, and the only explanation he could offer was that the whiskey he had drunk went to his head and he simply did the shooting not realizing what he was doing nor what the consequences might be. It was nothing but luck that no one was injured and he got off very easily. He says that it will be a lesson to him for all time to come, and avers that he will hereafter leave whiskey alone.

ODORS OVER THE TELEPHONE

Perfume of Carnations Clearly Wanted From One Booth to Another Far Away.

The other day a prominent business man of this city went into a drug store to use a telephone. Just before him a young woman with a large bouquet of carnations had been using the phone and when he went into the booth the odor of the flowers nearly stifled him, so much so, in fact, that his intention was to hurry the conversation and get out as soon as possible.

"Hold the phone just a minute," said the man at the other end of the line, "and I will find out if there are any of the flowers in the store."

After waiting for a few moments he again came to the telephone and said that there were no carnations there and that the clerk was positive that there had been none in the store that day.—Ohio State Journal.

HAD NO TIME TO BE AFRAID.

Italian in Deadly Peril Saved Himself by Feat That Few Could Duplicate.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing to the man who handles dynamite. Italian laborers who never read up on explosives and have no superstitions about them seldom are injured through any faulty handling of their own. If your dynamite frightens you, it is out. If you drop an armful of it on the ground all you have to do is to pick it up.

Animals Are Poor Sailors.

The polar bear is the only wild animal that likes a trip on the waves, according to a French scientist who has just studied its behavior at sea. He is quite jolly when aboard ship, but all the other animals violently resent such a voyage and viciously give vent to their feelings until seasickness brings silence.

Drawings and Paintings.

The first sketch from nature which a great artist makes nearly always has a freshness which he only loses away in the picture he bases on it; and the rough pencil or charcoal lines of the former frequently reveal more of his feeling toward his subject than all his anxious manipulations of the brush. That is why it is so exceedingly difficult to collect and catalogue ever a great painter's studio. His drawings give you his intentions; his paintings do not always give you their fulfillment. It is true that a drawing is incomplete, but therein lies its charm. Possessing a drawing you possess a hope, and hope is better for mortals.—T. P.'s Weekly.

He Would Resign.

The story is told of an English army examiner who once had before him a stupid candidate. The candidate being apparently unable to answer the simplest questions, the examiner finally grew most impatient, and in a burst of sarcasm demanded: "Let it be supposed, sir, that you were a captain in command of an infantry that in your rear was an impassable abyss; that on both sides of you there rose perpendicular rocks of tremendous height; that in front of you lay the enemy outnumbering you ten to one. What, sir, in such an emergency would you do?" "Sir," responded the applicant for military distinction, "I should resign."

We Often an Affliction.

Wit is an affliction unless used with discretion and good sense. The habit of being invariably amusing will bring you into great disfavor. The sharp-tongued woman who will have her little laugh at the expense of her neighbors usually pays dearly for her fun. It is as much an art to be quiet and self-possessed as to be vivacious and entertaining, and the woman who can adjust her moods to the occasion is the one who finds herself usually the most popular member of her community.

NOT AN ECONOMICAL CUSTOM.

"Any waste of material or destruction of property is repugnant to my feelings," said Mr. Zwozleton; "but I find by experience that there are times when we may make more by throwing something of value away than we would make by keeping it and bringing it into use. You take for instance postage stamps stuck on letters that we did not mail. I used always laboriously to soak off such stamps, taking much time for the operation; and then use special stamps again, but now I find that I can make money throwing these stamps away.

"Working eight hours a day, or a shade over a cent a minute. For purposes of figuring we will call it an even cent. Now:

"To soak off from the envelope the uncancelled stamp of a letter not sent used to take me about five minutes; and then such a stamp had to be specially situated with a machine before it could be struck again. I figured that to bring such a stamp into use cost me altogether about six minutes' time. By this expenditure of time and labor I did recover a stamp of the value of two cents; and yet, as in that time I could have earned six cents, on the whole operation I sustained an actual loss of four cents.

COMPOSED OF MANY ISLANDS.

Monroe County in Florida is Probably the Most Unique in the Whole Country.

Monroe county is the most unique county in the state, if not in the United States. The larger portion of the county is made up of a group of islands or, as they are called, keys, both on the east and west coasts. The only part of Monroe county on the mainland is the Cape Sable country, the extreme south end of the United States on the mainland.

No Good for Charity.

A clergyman strolled into a grocery store kept by an enterprising German. "My good man," said the pastor, "can you give me anything in the line of groceries as a contribution to the Woman's Missionary society? You see, we have done good work among the poor people of this section, and, as there are, still many hungry mouths to feed, I wish you would try and help us out."

Lysander John Up Against It.

The Lysander John Appletons lived in a house of five rooms for many years, and were so crowded that none of their kin ever expected to be invited to visit them. But recently Lysander John made a little extra money and his wife had two rooms built on. "Have you heard the news?" was shouted through Kinville. "The Appletons have two more rooms." News like that spreads like fire in Kinville, and they began coming by twos and threes, and always with the dearest old man, loudest voiced old women and crossset baby they could find. This explains why Lysander John's limbs are tied in knots; he has been sleeping in a hammock for six weeks past, being crowded out of his bed by visitors from Kinville.—Acheson Globe.

Personality in Politics.

In literature, there is no magic charm like that of personality, but politicians are afraid of it in their business. Of this they seriously cultivate the idea that it must be concealed by committees and parties, never by individuals. Everything is collective, nothing personal. Intrigue and subterranean management are the prime forces, and the old practitioners of the art are always against when some man of native vigor comes forward with open methods and direct appeal.

The poet Gray would have agreed with James Douglas, in thinking you cannot be gay in London.

The poet Gray would have agreed with James Douglas, in thinking you cannot be gay in London. "I, have been at London this month, that three some, had place, where all people under 30 had so much amusement," he wrote to a friend. And Fielding makes Joseph Andrews say in a letter to Pamela, "London is a bad place, and there is so little good citizenship that the next door neighbors don't know one another." As Roswell can't be remarked: "I have often amused myself with thinking how different a place London is to different people!"

REFINES BRAIN AND SPIRIT.

Result of Continued Physical Suffering—Some Thoughts on Relativity of Human Suffering.

After all, the relativity of human misery is a matter of profound significance to the miserable. It is idle to say that we cannot bear our own pang any better, because some one else suffers a sharper one. In point of fact, if we do not bear it better for knowing how much more severe it might be we are either stupid or ungrateful, or both, and which of us is ready to answer to this charge? It is the tendency of continued physical suffering to refine the brain and the spirit, and as a class, invalids are not dull, nor do I think them lacking in gratitude, writes Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in Harper's Bazar.

Take the situation without idle romance or misdirected restlessness. You suffer pain. But can you sleep? Generally speaking, can you command a sufficient number of hours' unconsciousness out of the 24? Then is pain a secondary and quite manageable affair. Your nerves are shaken or shattered. But are you disabled? Can you move about? Then, if you cannot (which is altogether possible), exercise your nervous system into obedience. At least, you can control it so far that you ought to thank heaven for every motor muscle left at your command.

THE RULING PASSION STRONG.

Elderly Lady Harked Back to Time When Pattern of Her Stockings Meant Much.

To have been a sottrette all one's life and then to grow old? Why should one be expected to change? Why should not the habits of thought of years reach on into the seventies? The tale is told of that dear lady who 40 years ago sent the blood dancing in the veins of her generation with "tasseled hot boots," and the fit of kindred dainties. Her daughter, in constant fear of pneumonia for the frail, tiny old lady, urged upon her the wearing of woolen stockings. She sweetly but firmly declined considering the ugly things, and, needing a new supply, laid the case before her son. He saw the point at once and bought her a box of the shiestest, daintiest, most open-work affairs the market afforded. To the surprise of all, she never wore them. Throughout the winter and far into the spring she spoke to more of stockings, but meekly wore the ugly woolen ones of her daughter's choice. At last one day her son asked her why. "Where," she queried, "are those pretty things I bought you?" "Oh, my dear boy," she explained, "it was kind and thoughtful and sweet of you to buy them for me, and, of course, you couldn't possibly know, but the patterns are so unbecomingly I can't wear them."

Pride and Awe.

The Successful Man, who had gone to the city in his early youth to make his fortune, was inspecting the native village. It was the first time in many years that he had set foot in the old town and he was amazed at the shrunken appearance. The friend of his boyhood had him in tow, with a mingled feeling of pride and awe. "It's fine to be back again," said the successful man. "It's fine to have you back," remarked the friend of his boyhood. Here awe was uppermost. "Still, things look rather run down around here," mused the successful man.

WHEN NAPOLEON'S STAR SET.

Pathos in Last Address of Fallen Emperor to the Troops Still Loyal to Him.

It was at Fontenoy, and Napoleon received the blow in 1803. It was at Fontenoy that the imprisoned pope—the apostate which served as his prison is still shown—in 1812 and 1813. Finally for Napoleon would have 1800. It was at Fontenoy that Napoleon signed his abdication and said farewell to his army in 1814, coming down the horse-shoe staircase at the head of the Cour du Cheval Blanc, and placing himself at the head of the guard, as if for review.

"For 20 years," he said, "I have been well content with you, and you have always been with me on the path of glory. With your help and that of all the brave men who are still loyal, I could have carried on the war for three years longer; but France would have suffered, and I did not wish that to happen.

"I might have died—that would have been easy; but I would not. I prefer to follow the path of honor, and to write the history of my exploits.

BRITISH CAPITAL IN MEXICO.

Of all the countries in Latin America in which British capital is interested the republic of Mexico figures second on the list, the total being $696,288,205, which is, however, only a few millions greater than the amount invested in Brazil. British capital invested in Mexico has not been particularly remunerative; in fact, it has been less remunerative than in any other countries with which we are concerned. Of the grand total, $331,608,700 are in the hands of the government, which total is about $20,000,000 less than the amount in Argentine bonds, but some $100,000,000 less than the amount invested in Brazilian bonds.—Exchange.

SCENES OF OTHER DAYS.

Thought Forgotten, Are Suddenly Flashed Into the Mind.

Often suggestions of all keeping with the surroundings come, and it may be asked, "What made you think of that?" Frequently we are positive that no conscious train of thought has brought on the idea. These memories, out of all rhyme and reason with our atmosphere and conscious occupation, pop into the mind and surprise us with their incongruity. Are these spontaneously originated as they seem to be, or have we merely forgotten the connecting train of ideas, as is often contended? The author but recently, while looking at some of the images of a Southern California scene, and an incident associated with it, the memory came so suddenly and the connecting link was sought for so immediately that a dropping out of a segment of consciousness is altogether improbable, but he felt that there was a connection, somewhere, if it could but be found. And it was found after a little thought. Where the bride on the piazza had died, there were left fine, white salt crystals just as he had seen on Loch and sea mosses that he had gathered on that beach. The memory in the stream of consciousness was spontaneous, and yet we see how it may come under our law, at least in its physiological version.—From the Mental Man.

Her Choice.

They were sisters-in-law and reasonably well disposed toward each other. One was the mother of George, aged six months, and the other the mother of Marian, aged six months and four days. It was impossible that a slight parental rivalry should be altogether concealed.

"Marian does not seem to grow very fast," said the mother of George, with a suggestion of commiseration in her

ORIGIN OF BRITISH SQUARE

Battle Formation First Used by Scotch Troops at the Battle of Bannockburn.

The greatest of all Scotch annals is that of Bannockburn, fought on midsummer day in the year 1314. Apart from its bearing on the independence of Scotland, the battle will always have an exceptional interest from the military point of view, as Bannockburn may be said to have been the birthplace of the British square. "From Edward's army mainly consisted of cavalry, while that of the Scots, on the other hand, was almost exclusively composed of foot-ark, armed with the spear, and these threw into 'schiltrons,' or oblong squares—a formation borrowed by Wallace from the Flemings, who had employed it with success at Courtray—to resist the charge of the English cavalry.

Hitherto the mounted mailed knight had carried everything before him, but Courtray and Bannockburn proved that he was powerless to break through the spear and shield formation up in 'schiltrons' of hedgehog shape and these two battles revolutionized the tactics of the continent and of our own island. Profiting by the lesson which had been taught them at Bannockburn the English applied the tactics of the Scots with brilliant success at Crecy, and still more at Agincourt. As it was the Scots who may be said to have originated the British square at Bannockburn, so it was their men who at Bannockburn were the first to discard it with their 'schiltrons' and now, owing to our changed conditions of warfare, it is discarded altogether.

Plenty of Birds.

If we allow six inches, the measure of the English sparrow of our streets, to be the average length of a migratory bird, then, this mighty host, if we could arrange its restless, fitting numbers in a quiet, orderly manner, like soldiers on parade, would make a line 4,000,000 miles long. This earth is much too small for such a line. We might arrange our birds in 326 lines, each each would extend from the north pole to the south pole along the whole length of North and South America. If we arranged the birds at the equator they would encircle the globe 163 times.—D. Lange, in the Atlantic.

About Corn.

"I can't understand about the corn in this country, you know," said the Englishman. "It is the best vegetable you have here, you see what I mean? And you never serve it fresh. It is always canned, you understand, always canned.

"Now, why in the name of common sense do you take the fine, fresh article, you know, can it, and offer it to people to eat, when they might better get out it in its pristine condition? You see what I mean? Eh? But not all the year round, they serve you canned corn, canned corn. Can they call it cheaper than they can cook it fresh? Is that it? Eh?"

The Divorce Habit.

"How long will it take to get my divorce?" asked the woman. "About two months, I think," replied the lawyer. "As long as that? Don't know whether the other man who wants to marry me will wait as long as that!"

FOND LOVER WAS TOO HASTY.

Mr. Crow Not Only Lost Bride, But Also the Dowry Which Fair One Was to Bring Him.

More of our rich papas in America should follow the same manner of testing the affections of the adventurer, commencing with money-hunters—both those of our own nationality as well as the empty-headed, titled foreigners who are "rampaging" on our hunting grounds—that "Uncle Zeke" did in Austria some time since. After several months of violent protestations of love made for his daughter, it was at last understood that the father was at their marriage to give his daughter a house and lot. "Uncle Zeke" was a shy old coon, and to test his future son-in-law's affections, he said, as they were smoking their pipes:

"Mr. Crow, I has been cogitating, an has come to de 'clusion not to do none Mattily dat ar house an' lot on Austrii avens."

Mr. Crow sprang to his feet, and sticking his nosepeppin' on the side of his head, said: "In dat case, sah, our future intentions done ceased to exist from dis moment, sah."

"But, Mr. Crow, I was gwine to say—"

"Oh, go hire a hall, an' invite yer friends to attend de meetin' on pure, where all of de earth is spread out before our eyes as it is spread before the eye of the eagle? Would it not add to the sum total of human happiness to take to the clouds as do the birds, and to have to consider neither the beaten highways nor the rocky barriers of the mountain ranges? Certainly it would. And just as certainly such a time is rapidly dawning on the human race.—Springfield (C.) News.
