What Matter?

What if your coat be patched and old?

The worth of a coat is easily told. A handful of gold will quickly bring

A coat that is fit for a prince or king

But an honest heart and a willing hand

Can never be bought in the whole wide land.

Remember that patches may cover a boy

Who some day will be the great world's joy.

If your soul be pure and your heart be true,

What can old coat matter to you?

—Emma C. Dowd.

The editor of the Herald does not know as it is any of the Winside Tribune's business what he writes or thinks. There is one thing sure he does not have to sign his name to what he writes for fear the public will think that his wife wrote the article.

If the democratic press would turn its attention to getting rid of some of the men it has elected to the U. S. Senate and other positions of trust, it would be doing the country a far greater service than continually harping about some of the republican leaders. It is far easier to help sweep some one else's political door yard than it is to keep your own clean. Tillman, of South Carolina, Davis, of Arkansas, and Vaardman, of Mississippi are a disgrace to any party.

The Winside Tribune appears to be fretting about the Herald's attitude toward the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. We are not aware that we have said much about it. President Taft says it is the best he could get, and we prefer to give it a chance to see what it will do before we condemn it. Even a democratic tariff law would be entitled to that consideration. In his Lincoln day address President Taft justifies the law and says that its workings are satisfactory, and we prefer to take his estimate of the worth of the law, as he has the facts and figures at his command, rather than the opinion of a 7x9 democratic sheet like the Tribune whose source of information is no better than our own.

It was not to be expected that a democratic sheet like the Winside Tribune would be pleased with the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, or any other law that the republicans might pass. So far as Cannon and Aldrich are concerned it has always looked queer to us that if they are such poor republicans why the voters of their districts do not leave them at home, and if they block legislation or try to force through that which is detrimental to the country it would seem that there ought to be enough members of congress to overcome the influence of those two men. And whenever the party in power seems fit to resign them to the rear, either by the vote in their home districts, or in congress, there will be no weeping on our part. In the meantime while the rest of the congressmen are sitting around like a lot of wooden men letting Cannon and Aldrich dictate legislation we see no reason why we should pull our hair and make a great fuss over something we cannot help.

MARRIED

Last Friday evening, February 11, Reinhold Steinkraus, of this place, and Miss Blanche Bell, of Wayne, were secretly married at the court house by County Judge Kelley. This will indeed be a great surprise to our many readers, as the contracting parties are well known here and are very popular in Pierce.

The groom is an old resident of Pierce and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Steinkraus, one of the nicest families in this community. He, for a number of years, was deputy county treasurer, later he accepted a position as book keeper in the office of the Pierce Mill Co., which position of trust he held until after the burning of the mill in November 1908. About a year ago he associated himself with Messrs. H. M. Willman and E. B. Fenske in the purchase of the Pierce Pharmacy, which store they have conducted for the past year and enjoyed a lucrative business. Reinhold has always been popular among his friends, which he numbers only by his acquaintances, for he is a wholesome, jolly good hearted fellow and is in all a deserving and capable young man.

The bride is also very favorably and well known in Pierce. She is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Bell, formerly residents of this place, but now living at Wayne, Neb. Having been raised in our midst and attending our public school our readers probably have known her from childhood to young womanhood. She is a very modest young lady and is possessed of a sunny disposition, charms and graces that go to make life's trip over the sea of matrimony a sweet and pleasant voyage and the groom is to be congratulated upon securing such an amiable young lady for his bride and life companion.

It is indeed a pleasure for us to chronicle the marriage of these two popular young people and we join with their unfeigned circle of friends in wishing them much happiness and prosperity in their chosen path.—Pierce Call.

The county commissioners met on the 18th and transacted some business, then adjourned until March 8th.

Rev. Osborne Resigns

We are very sure that this item will come as a very unpleasant surprise to very many of our readers. Rev. Osborne has served the Presbyterian church in Wayne very faithfully and acceptably for nearly five years and one-half. He has always been a forceful character for good in the community. A fearless advocate of what he believed to be right and a preacher of the truth as he understood it. Having been here this long, and having received a call to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church at Scotts Bluff, a thriving town out in the irrigation country in the northwest part of the state, he feels that it is a good opportunity for him to break away, hence, at the service last Sunday morning he tendered his resignation to take effect about the first of April. A committee has been appointed from the church here to secure a successor. Mr. Osborne has many warm friends in Wayne, and likes the people and city very much, but feels that the present opportunity for advancement in a growing community is one that he cannot afford to ignore in justice to himself.

A Bad Scare

What came near being a disastrous fire in the home of James Harmon at the court house was fortunately discovered about two o'clock Monday morning before it had gained much headway. It has been customary to keep a lamp burning in the room where Mr. Harmon's little grandson, Harry Walling, slept. Sunday night the lamp went out and the electric light globe, on which there was a paper shade was turned on. During the night the paper on the electric light globe became so charred from the heat that it caught fire and the blazing pieces fell on the bed in which the boy was sleeping. One of the pieces fell on his head burning his ear quite severely, scorching his hair and caused him to awaken and cry out with fear. Miss Owen Panabaker who slept in an adjoining room, heard the boy's screams and rushed into the room and pulled the burning clothes from the bed and trampled on them, burning both her feet and hands quite severely in so doing. By this time others had been aroused by the cries of the children and the flames were subdued without any further serious damage, but it was a close call for a bad blaze, for if the burning paper had not fallen on the boy's head he likely would not have awakened until the fire had gained such headway that it could not have been put out with the means at hand and the boy might have been burned to death. Some people seem to think there is not much heat in an electric light globe but there is sufficient to ignite paper or cloth if it remains a long time in contact with the glass. Care should at all times be used in handling lamps or electric lights.

Bellevue College

The Manderson prize debate, established in Bellevue College by General Charles F. Manderson, was held Tuesday evening of this week. The question discussed was the commission form of municipal government. The prize of $50 was awarded to the affirmative, which was upheld by H. J. Brandt, of Beatrice, Donald Enfield of Lyons, and Wm. Atwater of Beatrice. The negative proposition was argued by Glen L. Rice of Flagler, Col., Leslie Sweetland of Loup City, and Ferris E. Webb of Bedford, Ia. The judges were Judge A. L. Sutton, James B. Wooton, and Prof. Beadle. The Bellevue College Oratorical Association is the host of the State Association this week. The contest in which representatives of the colleges of Nebraska participate will be held tonight in Creighton Hall, Omaha. Mr. W. J. Primrose is the president of the state organization, and represents Bellevue College in the contest with an oration "The Dawn in the Orient."

The contest for the endowment fund of $150,000, being vigorously pushed by the president and trustees of the college. Interest is keen, and the friends of the College are co-operating splendidly in the effort to endow this historic College of Nebraska. Dean Robert S. Calder has been made director of the Bellevue Summer School, which is to be held June 13th to August 5th. Courses for college students as well as teachers will be given.

NORMAL NOTES

The second winter term will open on Monday, February 28th. Judging from the reservation of rooms already made, there will be a large enrollment.

The German class, under the direction of Miss Kingsbury, head of that department, put on the play "Cinderella" which was most excellent and was greeted by a full house.

The advanced elocution class also put on a short play "Frank Glynn's wife," and some impersonation work that was remarkable. This department has not only done some most excellent work, but under the direction of Miss Carroll has become one of the important departments of the school.

Messrs. Fenner, Ernest Anderson, John Gill and Paul Roth were the delegates from the Y. M. C. A. to the state convention which was held at University Place last week. They report a most pleasant and profitable time.

A number of the young ladies have entered the department of manual training. When it comes to handling a saw, plane or hammer, they are as proficient as many men. They will be well equipped when they go out to teach.

HOW TO TEST SEED CORN

Enough Ears to Plant Twenty Acres Can be Tested in a Single Day with Home Made Tester

The best way to test seed corn is in a germination box. This is a simple affair and can be made by anyone in an hour's time.

Take a box six inches deep and about two by three feet in size. Fill the box about half full of moist dirt, sand or sawdust. Press it well down so it will have a smooth, even surface. Now take a white cloth about the size of the box, rule it off checker-board fashion, making squares one and a half inches each way. Number the checks 1, 2, 3, and so on. Place this over the sand, dirt or sawdust.

Take the ears to be tested and either lay them out on the floor and mark a number in front of each or attach a numbered tag. Now take off about six kernels from each ear (not all from the same place, but at several points on all sides.) Put these kernels on the squares corresponding in number to those placed on the ears of corn. Be careful not to get them mixed. Keep the ears numbered to correspond EXACTLY with the numbers on the squares of cloth.

After the kernels have been placed carefully on the cloth which covers the moist sand, dirt or sawdust, cover them with another cloth, considerably larger than the box; cover this cloth with about two inches of the same moist and keep the box in a warm place. It must not get cold. The kernels will germinate in four to six days.

Remove the cover carefully to avoid misplacing the kernels. Examine them carefully. Some will have long sprouts but almost no roots; others will not have grown at all, but the kernels from ears which will produce corn if planted, will have both sprouts and good root systems.

Compare numbers on the squares with those on the ears. Put back into the feeding corn bin the ears which correspond in number to the numbers on the squares where the kernels did not grow or where they showed only weak roots.

The ears numbered corresponding to those on the cloth which showed strong signs of life are the ones to preserve for seed. Every kernel from these ears should produce a stalk, every stalk an ear.

Suppose one dead ear is planted. The planter fails to get on thousand stalks of corn—almost twelve bushels of corn lost.

Common Sense View

Governor Carroll, of Iowa, and some of the lecturers at farmers institute in that state, struck a key note in their addresses last week in urging farmers, even when they wish to retire from active work to stick to their farms. One of them well said "Fathers, don't leave your farms. Build another house on the old farm and settle down right there with the boys to carry on the work." The farmer who retires by thus staying on the old farm means co-operation between the father and his sons. It means a halt in the ruinous, disastrous depopulation of the farms. The farm boys will no longer leave the farm to fight their way in the cities and the retirement of the fathers and mothers to the cities when their sons are gone. Governor Carroll in his talk asked the farmers to make their homes modern just as the city man. If the city home can be furnished with all the modern conveniences the country home should be provided in the same way. It is these little things that will make the young man who has some idea of the way the people of the city of today live, stay on the farm. This is one of the things which the farmers must and can do. The farm home can be made just as modern and for many months of the year is a much better place to live than the city, where the struggle for existence is a daily toil. The hardships encountered by the successful man in the country are far less than those of the successful man in the city. Competition on the farm does not exist in the country as it does in the city. There is a constantly increasing market for all the products of the country, and they have a ready sale at all times. This cannot be said of the city man's business.

Sad Accident

Last Sunday a little son of Wm. Gutzman, about a year and a half old, was playing around the stove at home and pulled over on himself a kettle of boiling water, scalding the little fellow so badly that he died in about 36 hours. We cannot think of anything more heart rending than the sudden death of a little child in this horrible manner and our sincere sympathy is extended to the afflicted ones. Winside Tribune

Terrible Scare (?)

Have the Winside people the terrible scare yet of "Pelagra?" The writer was in Wayne Saturday and was astonished at the horror the disease has stirred up there. Although there isn't a case within the state it is said Wayne people have quit eating cornbread, mush, hominy and all other corn products, as the dreaded disease is a result of moldy corn. What will us poor farmers do with wheat flour at $1.75 per sack and don't dare eat corn?

Forced Sale

Last Monday the property of the Nebraska Clark Automatic Telephone Company in Homer, Dakota City, Allen, Waterbury, Laurel, Randolph, Pilger and Winside was sold at public auction, under a Special Master sale. It includes everything owned by this company in these towns. This is a general surprise as it is generally understood that the Bell line had bought the Clark people out and had had possession for some time.—Winside Tribune.

The annual township meeting will be held a month earlier this year. The last legislature changed the date from the first Tuesday in April to the first Tuesday in March. On account of the scarcity of the new statutes this fact is not generally known to the public and is published for the information of township officers and electors. The new law requires the same notice as to the time and place of meeting as formerly.

Life Work Ended

At 8:30 last Thursday evening, February 17th, at his home south of Wayne, Joseph Simonin departed this life at the age of 59 years, and seven months, having been ill nearly two years with Bright's disease, during a part of this time he was confined to his bed. Deceased was born near Edgmont, St. Clair county, Illinois, August 17, 1850, where he lived until he reached the age of 18 years, when he moved with his parents to Red Oak, Iowa. He resided there until 1889, when he moved to Winside, Wayne county, Nebraska, nearly 21 years ago. After living for a period of six years in the western part of this county, he moved to Knox county, this state, locating near Bloomfield, where he lived for nine years, moving back to Wayne county seven years ago.

Mr. Simonin leaves a widow and family of five children, all of whom are residents of Wayne county, except James, who is a resident of South Dakota. The children were all present at the funeral services which were held at the Baptist church Sunday afternoon, being in charge of the Masonic Lodge, of which deceased had been a member for a number of years. Burial was made in Greenwood cemetery.

Gets More Honors

William A. Crossland, a Wayne young man, the son of George Crossland and wife, who is attending Wesleyan University at Lincoln, continues to win additional honors for himself, and the school he represents, in the way of oratory. At the annual state meeting of the Nebraska Oratorical Association, held at Lincoln last Friday evening the young man secured first place over a large field of contestants, Creighton, Colmer, York, Hastings, Bellevue, Grand Island and Crete standing in the order named. Aside from this he was chosen as the delegate from Wesleyan University to the Interstate Association Meeting to be held at Omaha May 20th. The young man is certainly to be congratulated, and his many friends here are pleased over his continued successes.

LATER—Frank Mathews of Creighton University instead of W. A. Crossland of Wesleyan university won first place in the state oratorical contest of Creighton last Friday evening.

The judges handed in their decisions which showed Crossland the winner the night of the contest and Mathews second. That verdict was accepted as correct and understood to be so until Monday morning Mr. Crossland called up Creighton university to inform it that its man had won first place and Crossland second.

"He beat me five points," said Mr. Crossland over the telephone. "I have just been adding up the figures and I find the judges made a mistake, which switches Mr. Mathews and myself, so I thought I would hasten to tell you and congratulate Mr. Matthews."

"It is very commendable indeed in Mr. Crossland to be the first to advise us of this error when it means so much to him and his institution," said Father Dooley, vice president of Creighton university. "It is especially honorable and praiseworthy since Mr. Crossland was the one who discovered the fact and had it to himself. Of course we of Creighton are happy to have won first place, though we cannot but regret that such a good loser as Mr. Crossland could not also have won."

The above in Monday's Omaha Bee shows that young Crossland is fully as much of a man in his defeat, if not more so, than he was in his supposed victory. As no one else had discovered the error and possibly never would have done so, shows the kind of moral fiber in the young man much to be commended, for it is not every one that would have made known the defect in the decision of the judges.

Tidrick-Shalvus

A very pleasant wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Brown four miles south of Wayne, on February 22, 1910, when Mr. George C. Shalvus and Miss Carrie B. Tidrick were united in marriage by Rev. C. J. Ringer at high noon, in the presence of about forty invited guests. After the ceremony the party sat down to a bountiful repast, where all did ample justice. The wedding presents were numerous and valuable. Both bride and groom have grown up together in this community and are highly respected by all who know them. The young couple will start life together on the Shalvus farm seven miles southwest of Wayne, where the many friends will join in the well wishes of the new couple.

Widow's Story

William A. Crossland, a Wayne young man, the son of George Crossland and wife, who is attending Wesleyan University at Lincoln, continues to win additional honors for himself, and the school he represents, in the way of oratory. At the annual state meeting of the Nebraska Oratorical Association, held at Lincoln last Friday evening the young man secured first place over a large field of contestants, Creighton, Colmer, York, Hastings, Bellevue, Grand Island and Crete standing in the order named. Aside from this he was chosen as the delegate from Wesleyan University to the Interstate Association Meeting to be held at Omaha May 20th. The young man is certainly to be congratulated, and his many friends here are pleased over his continued successes.

LATER—Frank Mathews of Creighton University instead of W. A. Crossland of Wesleyan university won first place in the state oratorical contest of Creighton last Friday evening.

The judges handed in their decisions which showed Crossland the winner the night of the contest and Mathews second. That verdict was accepted as correct and understood to be so until Monday morning Mr. Crossland called up Creighton university to inform it that its man had won first place and Crossland second.

"He beat me five points," said Mr. Crossland over the telephone. "I have just been adding up the figures and I find the judges made a mistake, which switches Mr. Matthews and myself, so I thought I would hasten to tell you and congratulate Mr. Matthews."

"It is very commendable indeed in Mr. Crossland to be the first to advise us of this error when it means so much to him and his institution," said Father Dooley, vice president of Creighton university. MacQueen Lecture Monday

The MacQueen lecture Monday evening was hardly up to what was expected of it. While the pictures were excellent there were far more of those of the people of Africa than of its animals, and the lecture part itself was only of an ordinary character. The last number on the course this year will be the Chicago Boy Choir on March 15th.

Died at Soldiers' Home

Ami Lewis, a long time resident of Wayne, but who has been in the Soldiers' Home at Grand Island for the past two years, died there Monday night. Deceased was born in Ohio, later moving to Iowa, from which state he enlisted in the union army in Company C, 34th Iowa, in August, 1862, serving until the close of the war. His wife was with him and two sons went to Grand Island Tuesday. We understand it was decided to bury him in the cemetery connected with the soldiers' home. Deceased was a member of the Masonic Lodge and the M. E. Church in Wayne and highly respected by all who knew him.

LOMBROSO ABSENT-MINDED

Criminologist Took No Thought of Money—Amusing Adventures.

One side of the late Prof. Lombroso's character little known to outsiders made him adored by his children, especially his two daughters, who looked after him as though he were a child.

One evening going to Rome he lost his overcoat, but was not in the least discouraged, as he entered the first shop of ready-made clothing and bought the topmost warm thing which came to hand without even looking at it.

His absent-mindedness was so great that when under the care of the home circle he never attempted to look after his money and would even leave the house to go shopping without ever looking to see if he had his purse with him.

In Vienna once he lost his purse, which frightened him so that when he recovered it he resorted to the expedient of dividing his funds into various small sums which he concealed about his person in all kinds of unlikely places.

PELLAGRA SPREADING

Army Doctors Believe the Disease Springs from Intoxication.

Important facts regarding the spread of pellagra in the United States have been made public by Drs. J. F. Sille and H. J. Nichols of the Medical Corps of the United States Army, in a report covering four months' investigation of this disease, undertaken at the request of the government at the Peoria, Ill., State Hospital.

This peculiar disease, the origin of which is baffling scientists all over the world, is a great scourge to Italy, and recently has been found scattered all over the United States.

The second point emphasized is that all of its victims seem to be insane before attacked and no sufficient proof was found to bear out the idea that pellagra produced insanity.

The doctors worked in conjunction with the hospital superintendent and staff and the State health authorities, Illinois having a special commission appointed by the Legislature to study the disease.

They found about 175 cases of pellagra in the institution, out of 2,150 inmates. All of these cases developed during the summer of 1909, and are in sufferers from chronic insanity of long duration.

Washington News Letter

Washington, February 23rd, 1910. Senator Burkett is credited by his colleagues with having delivered the very best speech on Postal Savings Banks since that bill has been before Congress. In many ways it is an important contribution to that very important subject. And it is really strange how men, in the belief that they are doing only the ordinary thing, are doing something extraordinary. When Senator Burkett read the speech of Senator Rayner of Maryland, who, by the way, is a close constructionist of the constitution, opposing the pending postal savings measure, Burkett saw an opportunity for a broad construction of the constitution in its application to legislation of the postal savings bank character.

He then conceived the idea that as Rayner was a narrow constructionist, while he believed in the broader powers of the constitution, he would answer the Senator from that old Commonwealth. And he labored on that speech. He consulted authorities and he shaped it. He put it in "legal" language. And when the time came for him to speak, he felt that he was not only doing his duty by the bill but by the constituents he in part represents. That done, his work would be over.

But somehow or other the speech has been the talk of the retiring rooms and both sides of the Senate. It has received more congratulations than usually come to men in his position. The appreciation was unexpected. He did not suppose he was doing anything out of the ordinary, and yet he has had more applications from Senators for copies of his remarks than he ever had before for any speech he has made in Congress.

It seemed to catch the fancy of the Senate. While dignified there was here and there a rapturous burst of the trained master of the sword. It pleased without leaving any wound particularly, but it showed as nothing has done during the present session of Congress, how little ground the opponents of the postal savings bank bill have to stand upon, and is believed to have clarified the situation mightily.
