A WANDERER WRITES

E. B. Philleo Writes From The City of the Saints.

Salt Lake City, Utah, May 13, '10

EDITOR WAYNE HERALD:

We have read so many interesting letters in the Herald from friends while traveling, and remembering the many kind remarks and tokens to Mrs. Philleo and myself upon leaving Wayne, that I think a letter would not come amiss.

I promised so many friends back home to write to them that I am going to take this mode of carrying out my promise, until I get settled. At present I am "Globe Trotting." Mrs. Philleo and the children are at St. Anthony, Idaho, R. Philleo is at Bellevue, Idaho, and I am here to see if I can scare up some business.

As is just my luck, I got bumped this morning for talking about saloons. I was out in the 'sight seeing automobile' yesterday and understood the guide to say that they had thirty-five churches and three saloons, and just for fun, and to see what the guide would say, stepped out on the street this morning to tell him I had counted more than three saloons, and he laughingly replied that he said three for every church. I turned quick to start for the walk when a twelve passenger sight-seeing auto, just starting up, run over my foot. But I had on a pair of Florsheim box calf shoes, bought of Dan Harrington, and so did not get hurt much.

That reminds me of another rather exciting thing that happened when I was staying with E. Cunningham. He took me a fast ride down a hill with his bronco team when one of the neck yoke straps became unbuckled. But we got the best of the bronches, and it did my heart good to see one of those bronches with the buggy on top of it trying to kick and couldn't.

I had a very pleasant time up to Ashton visiting Wayne county people. First went out to see Don Cunningham and his ranche, and enjoyed myself hugely. I had understood from Mr. Cunningham that Don had a little shack; but though it is built of logs I wouldn't mind living in as good a one. The walls are plastered and tinted dark red, with mission stained woodwork, and a beautiful oak writing table that would grace any home in Wayne. Opposite the door to the main room on the wall is mounted a fine Elk's head, and the boys use the prongs to the horns for their hat rack. Don seems to be a natural manager, and has a fine bunch of boys around him. Some of you will remember Arthur Campbell. He is mother to the whole crowd, getting the meals, doing the housework, milking the cows, and setting the hens. Such a meal he can cook. It only lacks the delicate and tasty arrangement of a woman's hand.

I got tired of visiting and so called up Frank Owen and told him I would go, and stay with him if he would give me something to do. Well, it did not take Frank long to think of something so I went out and stayed five or six days with him and incidentally painted his carriage, hung the screen doors, etc., and worked up a good appetite and still had plenty of time to read and visit. Mr. Owen raised $7,000 worth of grain last year if he had sold it at the market price last fall. His oats went 45 bushels per acre, weighing 43 pounds to the bushel on dry farming. At 39 cents per bushel, what they are worth at present, figure out what interest that would pay on $75 acre land.

I always had a good many ambitions when a boy, one of them being to spend money freely without feeling it, and I must say that I have that down pretty near to a science now.

Am very much impressed with the Twin Falls country, but never expected we could live there, but we shall hope that the old rule will come true the "unexpected always happens." We met Mr. Chas. Robbins and wife and some old friends we knew before coming to Wayne, at Twin Falls, and they are all very much in love with the place.

Let I should further tire you I will close with a story that is very fitting to this country. The story is told that an Irishman came to this country and wrote back that they had beef, steak once a week. When some one asked him why he didn't say three times a day he replied that back home they would think that was a big enough lie.

With the kindest feeling and love for Wayne and old friends, I am, sincerely, EDWARD PHILLEO.

SMOKER AND BANQUET

Wayne's Live Commercial Club Enjoyed the Annual Event

Friday evening, May 13, an unlucky day from two points of view according to the old grandmother theory, did not prevent the Commercial Club from selecting it as the proper time and date to hold the annual event. At the appointed time and place there were gathered together about 200 men. The band furnished a number of good selections of music; Howard Whalen furnished a good luncheon of sandwiches, coffee, pickles, ice cream and cake; president Ahern presided with dignity and gave a good report of the year's work by the Commercial Club; plenty of cigars were furnished, and President Conn, of Columbus, the new State Normal President, and E. R. Gurney made addresses.

President Conn had been asked to speak on the Normal School, its relation to Wayne and Wayne's possibilities. He said that he and his wife were very glad to return to Wayne, that it was the only place that really seemed like home to them, and was sure that the associations of the future would be far more congenial and pleasant than even those of the past had been. As to the time of the state taking over the school, there was nothing definite but he should say not later than a year from the coming June. He declared that the outlook for a successful state normal here was better than at any other school in the state, owing to the splendid territory from which to draw students and the needs to be supplied in the way of teachers in this part of the state. He pointed out the unfeeling demand to be made upon the school and the benefits to be derived in the way of expenditure of appropriations and salaries of faculties, and the increase in population and social conditions to be derived by such an institution in our midst. He reminded our people that the same united and harmonious effort that had made it possible to secure the school would be needed to carry it forward to the grand success that it should attain. His address was a good one from all points of view, interspersed with anecdote and apt illustration.

E. R. Gurney, of Fremont, a banker and practical business man, and with a fine talk, had been asked to speak on the benefits arising to a community from a live organization like the Wayne Commercial Club. He started out by giving Wayne county and the citizens of Wayne a lot of taffy on being located in the garden spot, not only of our own state, but of the entire country. Said that he had never lived in Wayne but attributed it just to his "darn luck," as he had lived all around its edges. He said the town had now, and always had had, the reputation of a good town, one that was wide awake and progressive and had an eye for the better things in life. He recited the benefits of a commercial club to a community and said that as soon as possible the Club should make arrangements to hire a good secretary, a man who could devote his whole time and attention to looking after the interests of the community and various enterprises which might be induced to come this way if there were only some one to look after them. He gave illustrations of how other towns had prospered by such methods and argued that there was no reason why Wayne should not do likewise. The town should make an effort to entertain conventions and gatherings of like character and impress upon the outside world the position and advantages to be had here.

The latter part of his address was confined to the subject of competition. He defined competition, or at least one of his definitions of the word or subject was, "Competition is the grindstone that grinds the noses of fools and sharpens the wise man's wit." He argued that no man or firm should be afraid of competition, and also that it was every man's duty to be decent in his competition, square and above board, and sticking strictly to his own business and not worrying if the other fellow across the street did appear to be making lots of money. The worst kind of competition, he said, was the kind that rusted out, that let the goods get fly-specked and moth-eaten, but that live, energetic competition, coupled with decency, was the life blood of any community. In passing, and as a further definition of what he meant, he paid a very fine tribute to his friend, D. C. Main, who was all that could be desired as a man and a citizen and so conducted his business as to have the good will, esteem and friendship even of those with whom he came in competition in a business way, and said that no higher tribute could be paid to any man than that. His address was a sound, practical talk, punctuated with wit and telling illustration and was well received.

John D. Rockefeller would go broke if he should spend his entire income trying to prepare a better medicine than Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, for diarrhoea, dysentery or bowel complaints. It is simply impossible, and so says every one that has used it. Sold by all dealers.

The Pierce Call remarks: "Gee Whizz! Think of old Dakota City being dry! And that with a license board, too! No fight or remonstrance against the license was made by the temperance people, but when the city dads met, they by common consent turned down the application for license and said 'we'll try it dry' for a year at least and see how it goes."

The Wynot schools have only three graduates this year.

The Winside high school will have its graduating exercises May 27.

The Atlas elevator company is erecting a new elevator at Belden.

There are twelve pupils in the graduating class at Hartington this year, nine girls.

They are putting in a water works system at Belden. The contractor is advertising for laborers.

A. F. Enos, who has been postmaster at Stanton for eight years, has been succeeded by James Peters.

The Allen hotel is nearing completion, and when finished will be one of the best in this part of the state.

Mrs. A. Koch has quit the hotel business at Laurel and the family will locate at Redfield, South Dakota.

The Laurel State Bank is to become the First National and the capital stock is to be increased to $40,000.

The annual field meet of the high schools in this part of the state takes place at Randolph the 20th, tomorrow.

Postmaster Barnhart at Hartington has been appointed for another four year term, having already had eight.

Dr. C. A. Morten, of Omaha, has purchased Dr. Nielson's dental business at Laurel and takes possession the 23rd.

An eighty acre farm near Elgin, Antelope county, has been sold at $150 per acre. The improvements are only moderate.

The latest at Ponca is stork parties. Already the influence of a returning Roosevelt and his policies are having their effect.

There is a move on foot to secure a vote on the waterworks proposition in Wynot. This is a good thing and should be pushed along.

There is to be a May festival at Stanton the 24th. There will be thirty singers, twelve instruments, and twenty-four children in a May pole dance.

Eight farmers near Randolph had their cattle tested for tuberculosis one day last week by a state deputy veterinarian—109 head, of which seventeen were found to be afflicted.

The Progress says: "A Belden girl who is to be married shortly, will be compelled to buy another outfit; her friends have looked at her clothes and picked them over so much, that they are worn out."

The editor of the Burt County Herald says he has blushed for shame because some of the Nebraska congressmen did not vote as he thinks they ought to have done. My, he must feel bad.

Over at Allen some of the men are so lazy and indifferent and so lacking in chivalry, that they sit on the store door steps and will not rise to permit a lady to enter. To cure them the merchants have purposely oiled the steps.

John Callies has bought two farms in Stanton county, adjoining each other, one at $127.50 per acre and the other at $125, making a total of $45,000 in the deal. Who but a farmer would have that much money to put into dirt.

The Allen News remarks: "Isn't a knocker a nuisance? Do you ever knock? It may be that not every enterprise suggested in a community is for your especial good as much as others. If so, is it your place to knock? Yes, verily, a knocker is welcome at the door—but a pest every other place."

A frisky tree peddler is working around Tekamah. He claims to be selling a catalpa tree at $20 per thousand rate when the same trees can be purchased of local tree agents at $7.00 per thousand. Of course the fellow is an oily tongued talker and works the farmer on the ground that his variety of catalpas are a kind that can't be furnished by the home agent.

It is said that it takes all kinds of people to make a world, but the Wynot Tribune has found one kind of person that it does not think much of. It says: "The pesky news carrier in a little town can create more trouble and heartaches than a funeral or a Fourth of July celebration. Why people will continue to listen to a viper of this kind and take her lies seriously is difficult to fathom."

The Pierce Call remarks: "Gee Whizz! Think of old Dakota City being dry! And that with a license board, too! No fight or remonstrance against the license was made by the temperance people, but when the city dads met, they by common consent turned down the application for license and said 'we'll try it dry' for a year at least and see how it goes."

A Voice From the Past

Saturday morning J. W. Bartlett brought to our sanctum and gave to us a copy of the New York Herald, dated April 15, 1865. This is no fake copy as Mr. Bartlett has had it in his possession ever since the close of the civil war. This is the paper that contains the account of the assassination and death of President Lincoln. The writer well remembers where he was the morning that the news was flashed across the country that Lincoln was dead. He was on picket duty a few miles north of Tullahoma, Tennessee, and all day long the forth which lay south of the town fired a single gun each hour in honor of the fallen chieftain. The dastardly hand that killed the president and shouted "Sic semper tyrannis" killed the best friend the South ever had.

Well, they are coming again to freshen the memories of the old, and to bring smiles of pleasure to the young. J. C. O'Brien's Famous Georgia Minstrels will exhibit here Tuesday, May 24, under the largest tented theater in the world. The parade of this company is a thing of beauty; good music; twelve of the prettiest Creoles in the world; the finest street wardrobe ever worn by a minstrel show; coon shouting and cake-walking; all free on the principal street at noon. Don't miss this free show and concert. Under canvas, Wayne, Tuesday, May 24.

Work Like Old Thugs

Beemer, Nebr., May 13.—The revelations made by the boy burglar confessions have startled the entire community.

Three weeks ago Saturday night four houses were entered in Beemer and robbed. All were unlocked.

Mr. Rehberg lost $26; entrance being made to his home through the back door. The thief passed through the dining room to the bedroom and went through Rehberg's clothes, getting the cash. A light was burning in the room and Mr. Rehberg had been up and down with a sick child most of the night.

Albert Toelle lost $7. Entrance was gained through the front door and then upstairs to the bedroom. Cash was taken from Mr. Toelle's trousers hanging on his bed. But $30 in another pocket was missed.

George Briggs lost $2.50. Entrance was affected at the kitchen door, the thief passing through two rooms to a bedroom.

Mart Gallager lost $16. The house was lighted. Entrance was made through the front door and money taken from trousers on the bed post.

The town had been at a loss as to the robber till Ira Heald and Clarence Lebb were arrested at Wister on suspicion for robberies occurring there on May 10. Lebb confessed both Wister and Beemer crimes, implicating Heald, and also to the taking of $47 from Phelps, the son of a liveryman in Beemer. This had not come to light before, because Phelps had been "knocking down" on his father and had said nothing of his loss. The boys were taken to West Point.

In view of the fact that the boys were both under 17, robberies occurring in their own town where they were raised, and the entering of four houses in one night, going through rooms and bedrooms, displayed a nerve and cool-headedness that an old hand would stop at. Being seen, even, meant detection for the boys. But the short career is ended after gathering $98.58.

There were a whole of people who were quaking in their boots yesterday in fear of what terrible things the comet was going to do to this old world of ours, and this morning are saying "Who's afraid?"

About May 21 the comet will be to be quite visible in the evening, when it sets at 9:12—an hour and one minute later than the evening before. It will continue bright for about a week, when it will begin to fade.

The Jeffries Shoe Company has rented the store room vacated by Miller & Jones, one door north of their present location, and will move there in the near future. This will give the firm more room for the display of their goods.

J. W. Mason, wife and daughter, Miss Mary, departed this morning for Excelsior Springs, Missouri, to be gone nearly a month, to try the benefit of the mineral water there on Mrs. Mason's health. Friends here may be benefited.

They came near having a panic at the school house Wednesday, (May 18) when one of the lower rooms was conveyed to the upper ones and the scholars began to choke and cough. Then some one started the rumor that it was gas from the comet they were inhaling, which nearly set some of them wild.

Mrs. Sweeney entertained the Country Club last Thursday afternoon in a thoroughly hospitable manner, which is characteristic of the lady. Mrs. J. A. Wintersteen resigned as president and Mrs. Ash was elected in her place, and the ladies had the jolliest kind of a time in inducting the new president into the duties of her office. Mrs. Sweeney was elected vice-president.

Decoration Day on May 30 will be appropriately celebrated by the G. A. R. (the public assisting the old soldiers in preparing and carrying out the program. The Memorial Sunday exercises will also take place as usual, we understand. It is right and fitting that the public should take an interest in these patriotic occasions, for the ranks of the boys of '61 are gradually thinning.

It is said that a couple of young boys from prominent Wayne families, came to Winside on the train one night last week, and purchased a good supply of saloon goods and later were joined by more boys from the same place who drove over, and they all returned home together with the booze. Now it comes to us pretty straight that Wayne people will not stand for such open violation of the law. Saloon keepers are not supposed to sell to minors, and if anyone else gets the liquors for minors they are equally as liable to a fine and imprisonment. Winside Tribune.

Happy is the miller who lives by himself, as the mill rolls round he is gaining on his wealth; one hand in the hopper and the other in the bag, as the wheel round he cries out glad that is what the boys and girls used to sing years ago when they played "Miller." Roe & Fortner are not going to play at the game but are really in it, having bought Ed Sellers' feed mill and business, taking possession Tuesday morning. Mr. Roe has had experience in the milling line before, having worked over four years at it, and the firm will make a success of it.

Geo. Von Seggern returned from Kimball county Tuesday noon. George is more enthusiastic than ever about the west. He says the alfalfa on his place beats anything he has seen in Cuming county and that small grain and other crops are doing fine. M. H. Meyer, of Pender, and Henry M. Heffner, one of Wayne county's substantial farmers, accompanied George on the trip. Both expressed themselves as being highly pleased with the prospect. Mr. Eickhoff evidenced his confidence in the country by buying half a section of the McNish Land Company through their special agent, G. C. Butterfield. This land lies just 23 miles south of George's ranch and Mr. Eickhoff feels that he has made a good investment. He bought land in Wayne county some twenty years ago and could realize something like 1000 per cent, profit on his investment and he says that he sees no reason why Cheyenne and Kimball counties have not the same future before them that Wayne and Cuming counties had at the time he settled in Wayne county. Stock Shipments The Perry shipped six car loads of cattle Tuesday afternoon and E. T. Merrick one car load of hogs. Wednesday shipments were Wm. Liple, one car of cattle; D. Manigal, three of cattle; J. Weirhauser, one of cattle; H. Heinrichs, one of hogs, and N. Nelson, one of hogs.

To M. W. A. Members. Attention! There will be a large class adoption at Norfolk, Wednesday, May 25th. Head Consul Talbot and other noted men will speak in the afternoon. A prize of $50 will be given to the laigest delegation in the parade. You are earnestly requested to join the crowd and go with us. There will be a special car waiting for you at the depot at ten o'clock. COMMITTEE.

Badly Hurt Dan McManigal was the victim of a bad accident Wednesday while hauling fat hogs to town to ship. He had one large hog in his load that persisted in raising trouble all the way to town, nearly throwing the driver off from his seat several times, and at last, when Mr. McManigal was not on his guard, the animal got under the spring seat and threw the seat, top box and the driver to the ground. Although Mr. McManigal was badly hurt, probably having a dislocated shoulder blade and a broken rib, and other severe bruises, he did not mind a little thing like that. He is a veteran of the civil war and has the marks of eleven rebel bullets on his person and only part of his right hand, so he stuck to the work until the hogs and cattle were loaded on the train and then consulted a physician.

High School Notes. A number of pupils are absent on account of sickness.

During Miss Theobald's absence, Mrs. Kemp taught the third grade.

During Mr. Hinkel's absence, on account of his sick boy, Mr. Pawelski has been assisting with the janitor work.

On Wednesday the chemistry class were making Hydrogen Sulphide and when the unpleasant fumes made their way into some of the grade rooms, the folks in those rooms became very much excited, thinking the comet had struck us at last.

NORMAL NOTES

Prof. Puffer gave the one o'clock talk last Saturday.

Miss Carroll spent the week end in Sioux City visiting friends.

The College song has been placed on sale at Jones' Book Store.

Prof. Power will go to Waterbury on Friday night of this week to deliver the graduating address. Oliver Binderup, an ex-student, is principal.

The young ladies of the Christian Association held a reception in each of the ladies' dormitories Saturday afternoon. This was well attended and a very pleasant affair.

TO FINISH HIS SLEEP

bishop of a southern diocese making a missionary tour through Arkansas and the Indian Territory and on his arrival at Nashville to the landlord of a hotel, "I've been traveling for a week, night, in a mail wagon, and I'm comfortable room."

"I've a vacant room in there," said the landlord, "but I believe there's a vacant room in there, a horse, a conference and a political rally in the city, and every night up. The only thing I can do is a shake-down." Then the bishop's tired face, he took the best room in my house is to a noted gambler who has been out all night and seldom before breakfast. If you will, I'll ask you shall have his room, but if he should come in, I'll be a row, I'll promise you the bishop decided to take the risk room at 10 o'clock in the morning, he returned and promptly shook the bishop by the arm.

"Out of here, or I'll put you in the street," he shouted.

The bishop, the gentlest of men, himself on one elbow, so that he could see the muscles of his arm full relief.

"Friend," he began quietly, "be so good as to put me out, will you have the least bit of sympathy for me?"

The gambler put his hand on the bishop's arm.

"Gambler," he then said respectfully, "can you stay?"—Youth's Companion.

A LITTLE DIPLOMACY

I Put an End to Plans That Meant the Breaking Up of His Home.

romance of a little affair of heart was completely annihilated in the old-fashioned husband. Some "witted" friend, who toyed with him into spasms by the start-ling information, told him that his had made preparations to elope, (that she only awaited the first of month, when he had promised to be the partner of her flight) and arrive with his month's pay, and was needed for traveling expenses. Did that husband rave and hiss, or to his wife and ask her to kneel before her to remain? No, instead of her presence, check book and with a lighted cigar in his hand, he thus calmly addressed her, "Dear wife, you have made my mind to travel, and that you have a little money for railroad fares. Your natural modesty prevented mentioning the matter to me, or that you wanted to surprise me with the amount you require, and I'll fill out a check for the sum, and ask the man who has volunteered to be your escort."

Seeing that he was so willing to ride of her, she wouldn't grudge. She is still in the house of her husband and master, a penitent woman.—New York Weekly.

Not Looking for Husbands

Worried because the impression got about that they had organized to get husbands, members of the Forty Widows' Association of Newark, Pa., issued a statement to the general public that they organized for social aims and not to get husbands. The fact that they have organized has spread so widely that they are now receiving letters from widows in all sections of the country asking how it is possible to become a member and what is the process by which husbands are obtained for members. Men are also sending scores of letters complimenting the widows on what they believe is intended as a sort of cut to matrimony. It has been decided to keep the meetings as secret as possible in the future.

Ring Off, Please

They were seated by the fire, dreaming of the future when they could be one, a winsome telephone girl and her fiancé. The small talk finally drifted to the question as to who should light the fire in the morning. It was his opinion that it was his wife's place to get up and start the fire, and let the poor, hard-worked husband rest.

After this declaration there was a pause most profound, but only for the space of about half a second; then the girl thrust out her finger and said firmly: "Ring off, please; you have connected with the wrong number."

"Halcyon Days"

The expression "halcyon days" has been handed down to us from the ancient Scllans. They firmly believed in an old legend that during the seven days preceding and the seven following the winter solstice (December 21), the halcyon, or kingfisher, brooded over her young in a nest floated on the surface of the water, and that during these 14 days the seas would be calm and safe for the mariner. Hence the name "Halcyon Days," which, according to Milton, "Birds of color sat brooding on the charmed wave."

Village Gossip

"I don't know how he treats 'em," answered Si Simling. "But he certainly speaks mighty kind of 'em when his engineerin' a boss trade."

POOR SPELLING TOO COMMON

Important Branch of Education Seems to Be Neglected in Schools of To-day.

Misspelling among the educated, or the supposedly educated, is apparently on the increase—thanks, it may be, to the passing of the "spelling bee" and to the crowding of the school curriculum with a multitude of studies unknown and undreamed of by our sturdy ancestors; and thanks also, perhaps, to the present movement for phonetic spelling, which the indolent are tempted to interpret as "spelling as you please."

In a statistical analysis of the spelling of his students, Prof. William B. Bailey of Yale makes some startling revelations. Of 171 essays written by seniors and juniors, only 25 were orthographically correct, while 14 per cent. contained each ten or more misspelled words, and one heterographic genius achieved 31 mistakes of this sort.

There were 443 misspellings in all, and six especially troublesome words were "separate," "superintendent," "governor," "committee," "comptroller," and "privilege," the last masquerading as privilege, privilege, privilege, privilege, privilege and privilege.

Certainly the later years of a course in a great university are not the occasion for remedying the deficiencies of elementary studies in the common schools. It falls the school, to instill fast a prey, where courses multiply and the three R's decay.—Jah.

FOUND HIS LANDMARK GONE

Trouble That the Moving of a Trunk Made for Man Who Was Looking for His Room.

The hour one a. m., and all silent along the hall of this sleeping floor in a hotel save for the occasionally heard muffled note of a foghorn, the sound of somebody snoring in one of the rooms, and then presently the sound of somebody moving quietly, almost stealthily, along the long hall, and then under the breath, spoken in a low tone:

"Devil! Where's that trunk?"

And I knew that trunk he was looking for well, for it had been a landmark for me too, standing in the hall outside of one of the rooms. My room was two doors beyond the trunk on the right, and always when I didn't need to look for my number—my room was two doors further on—and apparently he had been doing the same thing.

But now the trunk was gone, and in this long hall there was no landmark for him, and then I heard him moving about quietly, almost stealthily, in the dim light, scuffling the numbers on the doors, and then I heard him set a key in a lock and open a door and go in somewhere and shut the door behind him, and apparently he had hit the right room, for then again all was still save for the occasionally heard muffled note of that foghorn.

Whistling Trees

Among the curiosities of tree life is the sofar, or whistling tree of Nubia. When the wind blow over this tree it gives out a flute-like sound, playing away to the wilderness for hours at a time strange, weird melodies. It is the spirit of the dead singing among the branches, the natives say, but the scientific white man says that the sounds are due to a myriad of small holes which all insect bores in the "spines" of the branches.

The weeping birch of the Canary islands is another abnormal freak. This tree, in the driest weather, will rain down showers from its leaves, and the natives gather up the water from the pool formed at the foot of the trunk and find it pure and fresh. The tree exudes the water from innumerable pores situated at the base of the leaves.

Colors for Houses

The safe colors for a house, besides red, are white, gray, yellow and brown. Yellow, gray, with white trimmings, suits many plain pitched-roof or square colonial houses. Grays and browns are good for ugly, non-descript cases; the grays always being pleasant on the yellow shades than on cold blue tones. White suggests the formal type again. It is a very good color for a country house, showing it up from a distance in fascinating glimpses, for it needs trees about it and flowers to sparkle against its walls. Such a house will be attractive when the leaves are gone from the trees, for the bare boughs will serve to soften the effect.—Scribner's Magazine.

Got Out of His Dilemma

A new "copper" just appointed and not long over, was put out in Brook-lyn. He found a large dead dog at the corner of two streets. He took out his book and wrote: "This morning at 1:45 a. m., I found a dead dog at the corner of _____ and _____ and he looked up to see what the streets were and discovered they were Keep and Kos-kiusko." He studied for a long time. Then he dragged the dog by the tail to the corner of Keep and Kent streets.

FICTITIOUS HEROINE APPEARS IN THE FLESH

Novelist Kramer, the Chautauqua Lecturer, Tells of Receiving Interesting Letters.

"What do you find to be the most universal idea with people who like your books with you?" was asked of Harold Morton Kramer, author of "The Chrystalls," "The Castle of Dawn," "Hearts and the Cross," etc. Of course the question does not mean as to the opinions they express regarding your novels.

"I think I understand you," replied the novelist, "and I feel perfectly safe in saying at once that the most universal idea they express is that they have themes for great novels, and they are willing to suggest them to me. They generally express it about like this:

"Well, sir, I can relate to you some incidents that undoubtedly would make a great book if they were put together just right." Then I am given some little story, probably of undoubted interest in its way, but lacking much of being a theme for a novel. They always conclude by saying: "Of course, you could work in a love story with it, and a few things like that, but that would be easy, and lots of people would remember and recognize these incidents. It ought to be a great book. If you care to use it, I'll give you all of the pointers some day."

"But I have had some embarrassing questions put to me. For instance, only recently I was asked to make a statement for a prominent literary club of ladies as to whether I wrote for fame or money—I mean as my primary object. That question may look easy, but consider how you would answer it satisfactorily to a club. Another friend asked me if I ever received any especially interesting letters. I told her I did, and she wanted to know from whom.

"Well, I think the most interesting letters come from my publishers," I said.

"Is that so? And would you mind telling me some of the most interesting things they say?" she asked.

"The most interesting words they ever write me are these: 'Employed and check in payment of royalty.'" I replied, and she turned up her nose and became chilly at once.

"But, really, I think the most interesting letter I ever received was a result of my literary work was after the publication of a short story in Munsey's magazine. It was a story of the west and concerned the heroism of a girl, whose name, chosen at random, appeared in the story as 'Alice Gilbert.' I was absent from home and had asked Mrs. Kramer to open my mail while I was gone in order that I might be communicated with immediately if necessary. When I returned I found a letter awaiting me from a young lady who signed herself 'Alice Gilbert,' and who wrote as though she were a very close friend of mine. In the letter she discussed the story in question and wrote as though the story had been woven from incidents in real life in which she and I had figured. I had spent a few years in the west, and Mrs. Kramer was wondering why I should be thus idealizing one of my old flames. "It was a difficult matter to explain, although I had never heard of the lady, in question, and until I received her letter, did not dream that an Alice Gilbert really existed. "Afterwards I learned by a little investigation that I could not resist making—and in which Mrs. Kramer joined me—that the real Alice Gilbert was a most estimable young lady, a school teacher in the Ohio east, from which her letter had been written. When my next book was ready for publication I mailed her one of the publishers' announcements with the suggestion that as she had been so interested in the short story, she might be interested in the book. This brought a letter in which she begged forgiveness for her impulsive frankness, and that prompted the first letter, which was written in her surprise at finding the heroine's name to be the same as hers. Yes, I think, all things considered, that that was the most interesting letter I ever received as a result of my story writing."

Burton Thatcher, who will deliver a lecture-recital at Chautauqua, is one of the rising baritone-singers of the age. His musical training has been received at great cost and much at length has been given to "folk songs" as well as the classical. He is a musician by temperament and instinct; added to his mentality he has a wonderful voice and an admirable physique.

After referring most flatteringly to Burton Thatcher's work in his recital of the evening before, the Salt Lake Tribune adds: "His performance throughout was very creditable, showing conscientious work, and his rendition of 'Song of Hebraias' and 'King Duncan's Daughters' is deserving of special mention."

THE NELL BUNNELL TRIO.

Three Delightful Young Lady Artists.
Soprano, Violiniste, Pianist.

Miss Clare Kvello is a pianist whose solo execution is noted for its strength, firmness, brilliancy and capacity to interpret the poetic conception of the composer. She is always in perfect harmony as an accompanist and the life and vigor of the trio work is in large measure due to the pianist.

Miss Nell Bunnell, who heads the company, is a recognized artist. Her soprano voice has interested the greatest music masters of the day, but she has steadfastly turned down every offer to go on the stage although she possesses marked dramatic ability.

Miss Minnie Annette Cedargreen is another member of the company and is a violiniste that will some day be known to fame.

FAMOUS SOPRANO SOLOIST COMING TO CHAUTAUQUA

The Nell Bunnell Company Composed of Three Charming Young Ladies.

With a voice and a personality that would insure her a welcome in grand opera, Miss Nell Bunnell prefers to head her own company, the Bunnell Trio, in concert recitals. She has established a reputation that warrants the Chautauqua management in promising season ticket holders an exceptional treat.

Miss Bunnell sings the old sweet songs that we all love. She calls to mind the cradle days of long ago. She is most generous in responding to requests and becomes on cordial terms with her auditors immediately she faces them.

You will enjoy hearing her at Chautauqua.

The essential element of success in the Chautauqua business is the ability to purchase $2,500 programs for $2,000. And this is possible only by handling them in large quantities.

Monday's rain is all right if it would only get warm. If it does not warm up the ground pretty soon corn that is planted is pretty sure to rot. Snow was predicted for the western part of the state Monday. What do you think of that?

President Conn, of the Wayne State Normal, in his address before the Commercial Club Friday evening, made one statement that brought forth applause, and that was that Prof. C. H. Bright had been elected as a member of the faculty of the state school and would return to Wayne before the school opened under its new management.

Miss Margaret Collins, a well-known Cumming county school teacher, has again fallen a victim to mental troubles and has been committed to the hospital at Norfolk. Miss Collins has been before the insanity commissioners several times during the past few years, but has always recovered under treatment. It is believed that the mental strain of teaching is the cause of the recurrence of her malady.

Frank E. Strahan was a business visitor at Omaha Friday.

Dr. J. J. Williams performed an operation on a small son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Skeen Saturday forenoon.

The Wayne brick and tile works are turning out a kiln of four, six and eight inch tile as the beginning of this season's work.

The foundation for the new Wool-ert residence on west 3rd street was finished Friday and a good job of grading has been done.

Matt Jones, of Carroll, was a brief caller Friday afternoon, being at the county seat on business connected with his telephone exchange.

J. H. Kate and C. F. Whitney, two poultry enthusiasts, attended a meeting of the poultry association at Norfolk Friday evening. They both raise fine fowls and got some new ideas.

The executive committee of the Wayne Commercial Club for the present year, elected at the smoker last Friday evening, is J. J. Ahern, John E. Hufford, Rollie W. Ley, H. S. Ringland, L. A. Fanske, F. A. Berry, H. B. Craven, H. C. Henney, Will Morris, S. R. Theobald, C. J. Rundell, C. H. Fisher and W. H. McNeal.

If the merchants of this town think they are doing great things in the advertising line they ought to see what the merchants of Wausau do every week in the Gazette. Last week that paper had on two page ads, two one page ads, one half page and several quarters, besides lots of smaller ones. Every business firm in that town must advertise, and liberally, too.

With the great increase of values in heavy draft horses, it is but natural that the eastern importers will make strenuous efforts to show at the Nebraska State Fair, September 5 to 9, and Superintendent J. A. Ollis of Ord is feeling that this department will make such a record as to fully satisfy all visitors, exhibitors and breeders, who are sure to be present in great numbers.

It was practically settled at the Commercial Club smoker Friday night that Wayne would celebrate the coming Fourth of July in fitting style. A soliciting committee to raise funds will soon be appointed as well as a committee to arrange a program. Now let every one boost for the best Fourth of July celebration ever held in the county.

The funeral services of L. R. Thiarp, held Friday afternoon at the Baptist church, were largely attended. There were about thirty old soldiers present to do honor to a fallen comrade, some from Winslow. Rev. Parker Smith preached a good sermon from the words, "Blessed are the saints who die in the Lord." The G. A. R. had charge of the services at the cemetery.

The subject of good roads is going to receive more than passing notice in this vicinity this season. How to get good roads, and how to keep them good are some of the problems. Here is part of a section from the road law which, if looked after, would no doubt help a good deal. Section 8252 of Cobby's Annotated Statutes for 1907 provided that it shall be the duty of the road overseer to provide by contract for the dragging of the roads of his district and in letting contracts for such purposes he shall give the preference to the owner or occupant of land adjacent to the road to be dragged.

The man who was going to open the third pool hall in Wayne finds himself in much the same position as the old woman who counted her chickens before they were hatched. He rented a room, moved his fixtures here and went to the expense of putting in electric lights, and also made some repairs, and then went before the city council Friday night and asked for a license under the new ordinance, and the council refused to grant him one. The council thought that two of such things were enough for Wayne and so gave the old ones a permit and turned the other fellow out in the cold and cruel world. He got the cart before the horse.

Near the close of the Commercial Club smoker Friday evening the question of good roads came up for discussion and postmaster McNeal was called on for an expression on the subject. He said that there had been considerable trouble on some of the rural routes out of Wayne, on account of bad roads. He also said that a route inspector would soon visit Wayne and that he would not be surprised if one or more routes would be ordered discontinued unless the farmers along the routes took more interest in keeping the roads in better condition. The farmers are the ones most vitally interested in the matter of rural mail routes and it is certainly for their interests to make every effort possible to meet the requirements of the government in this matter.

At the commercial club smoker Friday evening there were a number of farmers present and when the question of good roads came up they showed their interest in that subject and the town by offering a number of very practical suggestions; one of them was that the commercial club should seek to interest the farmers farther out from town in this matter. They held that for two or three miles out from town in nearly every direction the roads received a good deal of attention, but out beyond the five or six mile limit is where the work needed to be looked after, and that if this were done Wayne would draw trade all the time from a much larger territory than it does now. They said that the farmers, speaking for themselves and their neighbors farther out, prefer to come to Wayne, and do come when the roads are in good condition, but when they are poor they go elsewhere on account of a shorter haul. The new executive committee of the club will take this matter up with the farmers and see if something cannot be done.

Looks Suspicious

Last Friday morning coroner Williams, county attorney Davis and Sheriff Means were called to Altona on account of a sudden death of a farmer's wife near there under suspicious circumstances. On Thursday evening for supper, Mrs. Henry Hograef ate canned salmon and it did not seem to agree with her, she being unwell all night, but was feeling better Friday morning. However, her husband suggested that she had better take a dose of salts, which he prepared for her and she took. In about an hour after taking the salts, the woman died, although before taking the dose she was seen walking about the yard by a neighbor woman. Deceased was only about forty years of age and had been in good health, with no organic troubles. The indications are that she was poisoned, and if so, it was in the salts and was something that worked very quickly. Had it been ptomaine poisoning from eating the canned salmon the effect would have been different and death would have been slower if at all. At the inquest there were reasons advanced as to why the poison might have been given. The coroner's jury consisted of C. J. Erleben, Robert Roggenbach, Wm. Fluege, Wm. Struthman, Gustav Sellmeyer and George Roggenbach. No decision was reached by the jury in the matter but the stomach was sent to Omaha for analysis and if poison is found, it will likely be shown what kind it was, and the jury are to meet again on May 23 for further investigation and to render a verdict.

It is Hard Work to Give Away Anything

Last Saturday I tried hard to give away one hundred dollars and the best I could do was to give away half that amount. Now I am going to give away a larger sum next Saturday and try and make it so plain to everyone that no one will have reason to doubt that I intend to give away at least half of the stock I now have. Of course I expected you would look at my letter last week as an advertisement and would fail to take much interest in my plan of giving away half of my clothing stock, but you might just as well believe me now for you will have to acknowledge it true before many days, and if you fail to get something for nothing don't blame anyone but yourself.

Next Saturday I Will Give You 75 Cents

You can get the best overall ever made next Saturday for TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, only one pair to a customer. We have all sizes in Men's, ALSO EXTRA SIZES SAME price. The reason we commenced on the overalls was that everyone would realize when they bought overalls that they knew were worth $1 for 25¢, they must be convinced that I am giving away clothing for almost nothing. I am determined to give away $10,000 worth of clothing and I do not care to take it out of Wayne to give to people I am not acquainted with. No one has so far suggested a better plan for reducing my wealth. If you have a better plan come in and let me know it.

TO COME IN WHISTLING.

Those towns which have a siren whistle to give fire alarms will probably have some useless runs if they don't remember the time of the arrival of the Omaha train, as the blasts of the whistle have taken many a reception committee from the depot, where they intended to meet the visitors, to grab a hose cart and run to put out a fire.

ONE MARRIAGE IN EIGHT FAILS.

According to statistics gathered by the Kansas Board of Control, nearly one-third of the marriages in Kansas are broken during the last year. The statistics show that in 1906 there were 1,107 marriages, licenses, and in the same period the district court issued decrees in 2,021 divorce suits. Of this total of divorces 850 were on the ground of abandonment. Abandonment in a divorce proceeding in Kansas covers a multitude of sins, as the law makes it easier to secure a separation on this ground than on any other. The total number of persons married in the State is within a few thousand of the total increase in population.

The board of control, while amazed at the number of divorces in the State, sees a bright light in the criminal and punier statistics gathered at the same time. Kansas has one-fifth the population of New York and has one-third the number of insane inhabitants. Cook County, Illinois, alone furnishes more insane patients to the State and the Dillingham hospitals than the total population of all the Kansas charitable, convalescent and penal institutions combined.

TOLD IN A FEW LINES.

The Erie Road has granted its freightmen a 5 and 2 per cent increase. Senator McCumber, of North Dakota, was operated on several days ago at the Cleveland Hospital, Washington. One of 12,000 voters in Los Angeles, 11,700 were in favor of bonding the city for $2,500,000 for harbor and other improvements.

The Minnesota Supreme Court decided that the Crowley Rice and Oil Company, incorporated in Illinois and doing business in Owatonna, Minn., was a combination in restraint of trade and ordered its license to do business in Minnesota forfeited.

Ex-Governor Lind, of Minnesota, in a speech at Portland, Oregon, predicted that Mayor (Cayser) would be the next Democratic presidential nominee.

Through the settlement of the estate of the late Mrs. George Day of New Haven, Conn., Yale University has come into the possession of $100,000 for the erection and endowment of a mission library building.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has granted all employees receiving $200 or less per month a 6 per cent increase. The Baltimore and Ohio Southern and the Fremont and Englewood have signed a wage agreement calling for a 6 per cent increase.

LABOR

LABOR

Chicago. Bilpostors have gained a 33-a week increase and improved conditions.

Chicago iron workers have a scale of 62 1/2 cents an hour and are asking for 67 1/2 cents.

Children under 10 years cannot be employed in New Jersey factories according to a law just passed.

A board of arbitration may be appointed to settle the disputes between the C. N. R. and its mechanics.

The question of establishing an old age pension fund is being considered by several of the big international unions. The old age pension fund of the International Typographical Union has been raised to $214 cents an hour.

The brewers' workers' strike at La Crosse, Wis., has been settled. The men worked on all points. A wage increase of $2 a week was granted and the workday, which had been nine hours, was cut to eight. Various other demands were granted.

The giving of a commission or bonus to domestic servants or others making purchases for their employers is made an offense in New Jersey and Washington, the receiving of tips by waiters in hotels and restaurants and the giving of such tips being also prohibited in the latter State.

Fines are rapidly nearing fruition by which the three separate organizations of carpenters in the country will be amalgamated with the United Brotherhood throughout the Dominion.

The United Garment Workers of America have been sent to the State penitentiary for the production of shirts, overalls, trousers and the like, used by workmen in their trade.

The executive of the Labor Educational Association of Ontario, Canada, is making arrangements for the holding of mass meetings in various centers throughout the Dominion.

In Rhode Island a new law provides that no child under 15 years of age shall work after 8 p. m. Nearly 1,000 children in the State are affected.

Four hundred and fifty thousand wage earners in Greater New York are receiving wages smaller than $300 a year, the minimum of decency fixed by the annual report of the committee on congestion of population.

The Central Federated Union of New York City has issued an appeal to Samuel Gompers and other national labor leaders demanding the organization of a national labor party in this country, modeled on the lines of the British Labor party.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP

BIGGEST SEA FIGHTER TAKES INITIAL PLUNGE

Battleship Florida, Greatest of All Naval Craft Launched at Brooklyn Navy Yard.

HAS TEN TWELVE-INCH GUNS

Vessel Is 521 Feet Long and Will Have Speed of 21 Knots an Hour.

The greatest Dreadnought of the world's navies, the battleship Florida, was launched at the Brooklyn Navy Yard in the presence of many distinguished men, public officials, and a mighty throng of citizens. Awe-inspiring in size and silent might, one of the mightiest war engines conceived by man plunged into the waters of Wallabout Bay amid a storm of cheers.

Before the launching, the colossal sea fighter looked for all the world like a gigantic fish hooked from the ocean and raised into the air as a captive by mighty derricks and supports. The new shaped bow—the upper part black and lower white—with the great anchor pit was strangely suggestive of a huge leviathan dragged from the deep.

It will take more than 1,000 men to man the great fighting machine; the minimum requirement is sixty gunners and 751 enlisted men. The estimated cost of the ship complete is $6,000,000. The Florida is the second of Uncle Sam's floating forts to take the final plunge from the Brooklyn Navy Yard wharves. The launching ceremonies attended the launching.

The Florida is 521 feet long, her beam is 88 feet 2 1/2 inches, she draws 28 1/2 feet of water and displaces 21,000 tons in light order, while when fully loaded she will measure up to 23,000 tons. Her estimated speed is 20 1/2 knots per hour, which would have been regarded a few years ago as the top notch for a swift unarmored cruiser. She will carry 2,500 tons of coal in her bunkers, which should enable her to make the round-trip across the Atlantic at half speed. Parsons turbine engines of 23,000 horse power will maintain the high speed.

The main battery of the ship will consist of ten twelve-inch rifles arranged in pairs in turrets. There is a very formidable secondary battery and twenty-four-inch submerged tubes for torpedoes. The Florida will be a navy in itself—a 100 per cent broadside sea fighter capable of firing every gun in her armament into a foe. A single broadside from the Florida will be as effective as that of Dewey's entire Manila fleet.

The Florida is twenty-one feet long, 3,500 tons heavier, and her battery 24 per cent stronger than the battleship of the British navy. The great Connecticut, for years the queen ship of the United States navy, was the model for the new warship. The Florida will be heavier by 5,000 tons than the Connecticut, and nearly the entire displacement of the ill-fated battleship Maine. Even the Neptune, the pride of the British navy, equals this sea fighter. The Florida will be able to hurl a broadside 25 per cent heavier than any battleship afloat.

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of Chicago trade says:

"The current developments in the course of trade exhibit further irregularity than expected. The record of trading defaults is about to be comparatively low, but the volume of advance payments through the banks is only a small percentage better than a year ago.

"Money is more costly for business purposes and strike settlements are not obtained promptly, although the most serious danger to transportation is averted by higher wage concessions. Other difficulties which are harmful appear in coal mining and building industries. Another handicap is the delayed return of seasonable weather. This adverse feature operates against successful dealings in the leading retail lines and outside construction.

"The distributive branches of general merchandise move unevenly. Fashionable apparel is still in moderate request and stocks of spring goods are not reduced equal to expectations. The advent of warmer weather will bring about the desired improvement. In wholesale branches the bookings are fair for summer and fall lines of dry goods, silks, footwear, millinery, clothing and furniture.

"Bank clearings, $238,833,816, exceed those of the corresponding week in 1909 by 0.9 per cent, and compare with $253,066,943 in 1908. Failures reported in the Chicago district numbered 18, as against 28 last week, 30 in 1909 and 36 in 1908. Those with liabilities over $5,000 numbered 8, as against 8 last week, 7 in 1909 and 9 in 1908."

NEW YORK.

Trade as a whole is still quiet, pending clearer views of the crop and price outcome, but there is in evidence a rather more cheerful feeling in agricultural sections, where injury from the recent cold wave proves to have been somewhat exaggerated, and the securities markets are also stronger on the evidences of an enlarging demand for American bonds abroad. The best reports as to trade came from the larger markets of the central West, Northwest and Southwest. Eastern trade reports are of a slight improvement at some large markets, but of trade as a whole being quiet.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending with May 5 were 191, as against 189 last week, 214 in the like week of 1909, 238 in 1908, 154 in 1907 and 152 in 1906. Business failures in Canada for the week numbered 48, against 47 last week and twenty-one for last week and twenty-nine in the like week of last year.—Bradstreet's.

The Week in Congress

The postoffice appropriation bill, carrying about $240,000,000, was passed by the Senate Friday without amendment. As the result of this action no conference will be required on this bill. A large number of bills were passed, including one to provide for the division of the lands in the Crow Indian reservation and one granting pensions of $12 a month to nurses who served in the Civil War. The Senate adjourned until Monday. The House practically concluded with the consideration of the administration railroad bill for the adoption of amendments before adjournment and agreed that a final vote would be taken Tuesday. The section authorizing mergers between railroads was struck out by a vote of 131 to 128. Efforts of Democrats to strike out the sections relating to the capitalization of railroads were ineffectual.

The Senate was not in session Saturday. A sharp exchange between Speaker Cannon and Representative Shackelford, of Missouri, over an alleged breach of order by the latter in a speech at St. Louis, Missouri, conditions under a former regime featured a session of the House. Mr. Shackelford complained of "coercion" by the Speaker and asked if he were to be "trailed" and "bulldozed." The Speaker heatedly and repeatedly called the Missouriian to order, but overruled an objection by members of the committee which investigated the situation in the St. Louis controversy, and Mr. Shackelford spoke an hour. The House adopted a resolution of sympathy for the family of the late King Edward and the British people, and as a "further mark of respect" adjourned.

Previous to adjournment at 8 o'clock Monday on account of the death of King Edward VII, the Senate devoted two hours to the consideration of the railroad bill. Senator Overman, of North Carolina, spoke in favor of the long and short haul clause of the bill, while Senator Piles, of Washington, opposed that provision of the measure. Earlier in the day Senator Stone, of Missouri, introduced a resolution instructing the committee on postoffice and express roads to make inquiry into the propriety of the use of franchises in the Payne tariff law. The resolution was referred to the postoffice committee under a promise of a speedy report. There being no other business the inquiry might take place at a broader scope and the inauguration of the franking privilege generally might be entered upon. In the House legislation relating to the District of Columbia occupied the entire session.

Continuing the consideration of the railroad bill, the Senate Tuesday heard arguments by Senator Bristow in support of the Dixon amendment prohibiting a greater charge for short than for long hauls on the railroads, and by Senators Lodge and Piles against it. There were several interruptions and much sharp colloquy toward the close of the session, a resolution authorizing an investigation into alleged abuses of the franking privilege was adopted. By a vote of 200 to 126 the House passed the administration railroad bill, with many of the original provisions stricken out. A proposition to revise section 12 relating to the acquisition of competing lines was voted down, before the bill was finally placed upon its passage. Some of the New England Republicans joined with the Democrats in voting down that provision. The bill now goes to the Senate, where a bill similarly introduced as an administration measure has been pending for nearly three months. The House passed several resolutions calling for identity of the rail purchasers of the Philippine railroad on the bill to create the bureau of mines and mining, which now goes to the President for approval.

In a personal explanation to the Senate Wednesday Senator Piles of Washington disavowed any responsibility for the appointment of Richard A. Ballinger as commissioner of the general land office or later as Secretary of the Interior. This action resulted from intimations in the Ballinger-Pinchot investigation that Mr. Piles had influenced the appointment in the interest of the Cunningham coal claimants. Senator Simmons of North Carolina spoke in favor of the Dixon long and short haul clause, after which the railroad bill was laid aside. The theory that the President's lands without front entry the public lands was combated by Senator Borah in an extended argument. In the House the entire session was taken up by the consideration of bills affecting Indian lands.

THE HOUSE FEELS BARE.

It is not for a moment to account for so much. Not are surprised that you, who have always given your hearty support to simplicity in decoration, almost "Justness" bluntness, should have permitted your place to become so cluttered, though with an unconsciously good thing. That is the point which you have for years been striving every opportunity to smash [it] reads very well as "One large, low crochery vase, unadorned." And one small table, spindle-legged, good condition, is a most noncommittal item. It does not show the table in all honesty, you might say, regarding its character, which is not to your sorrow, know as a means of intentional things, changes of location which always take place when you are away from home; and only disclose them selves while you grippe for matches, as well as other minor failings that will be kept a secret between the table and yourself. On the whole, there is nothing like an inventory to stop expenditure and make one contented with one's lot.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

BRONCHITIS.

Bronchitis is the name given to any inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes. In a fairly healthy adult an attack of acute bronchitis is not a very terrifying thing, although it is most distressing and disagreeable.

It is as if an unusually severe cold or cough instead of confining itself to the head and throat, wandered down into the chest. Irritation of the tubes results in a constant cough and sense of breathlessness. The temperature rises, the patient feels sicker and more so; that the incessant coughing does not result in the throwing off of any secretion to speak of.

In a day or two the inflammation in the tubes subsides, the temperature goes down, there is less and less sense of oppression and the secretion gradually becomes freer. From this point there is gradual recovery, as from an ordinary bad cold.

On the other hand, in the very old or the very young, or with those whose powers of resistance are lessened from any cause whatever, bronchitis is a dangerous disease. It has a tendency to run from the acute into the chronic form, in which the sufferer may be perfectly well during the summer months, or while in a warm climate, but at the least chill or exposure must get up and get his inevitable attack of bronchitis with symptoms persisting until the return of warm weather.

The moral of this is that it is most essential to give proper treatment during the acute stage. The need of watchful care during a bronchial attack will be the more appreciated when it is understood that such an attack may be the beginning, sign and warning of a tubercular trouble; and furthermore, that whooping cough and measles sometimes begin that way.

In any case, whether the attack be simple bronchitis or a warning of some other trouble, the first rule should be "straight to bed." In fact, this good old-fashioned rule in the outset of any type of so-called "cold" cannot be bettered.

A wise secondary rule is to stay in bed until the temperature has been normal for a day or two. If this were observed, relapses would be fewer and convalescences shortened.

Now, mind how mild the trouble promises to be, a physician should be at once summoned, not only because he only is competent to recognize danger signals, but also because there are many alleviations in his power of the numerous painful and distressing symptoms of this disorder—YOUTH'S Companion.

The Heedocher.

The heedocher is the possessor of tastes which, like Sack Weller's knowledge of London, are extensive and peculiar," says the Scotsman. Scarcely fastidiousness, it can make a hearty meal on nearly any insect and is one of the vertebrates which can tackle the cockroach. For effectual extermination of beetles and crickets it is as useful as a mongoose among the pets, but it is not generally known that it has a partiality toward snakes and ladders.

The methods it employs for the attack are interesting. Having come upon the offender, it goes that rattle to the offensive and at the first dart immediately falls into a ball. The adherer is then left to attack the spines, in which encounter it naturally comes off second best. After awhile, when the heedocher feels that his antagonist has exhausted his power, it once more opens out and makes bit of the offender's back, and makes bit of the whole. It then proceeds to crush the whole of the reptile's body by means of its powerful jaws, and after that it is said to start at the tail and devour it prey.

There are probably not less than 7,000,000 farms in the United States. These represent at least an equal number of families residing upon or adjacent to the lands which they own or till. According to the census of 1903 a proportion of 64.7 per cent of the farms of the country were then occupied by owners.

The annual report of the American National Live Stock Association president, George H. Brown, for the year 1909, contains a synopsis of the work of that organization during the past year. The principal activity of the association has been in the direction of securing improved legislation with regard to transportation of live stock and in promoting the industry in all parts of the country.

Over 4,000 potato diggers are used in the State of Maine alone to harvest the crop. If these were all hooked together with a team of horses to start it would make a procession fifteen miles long.
