LARGEST CROWD EVER KNOWN

CELEBRATION IS A SUCCESS

From Early Morn Until Midnight the Streets Were Filled

A few of the pessimistic ones said that Wayne could not have a successful celebration this year, on account of having abolished saloons. They said the farmers would not come to Wayne on that account. Such assertions are only an insult to the farming community surrounding Wayne. It was clearly demonstrated that they did come in greater numbers than was ever seen in Wayne before. They not only came on the trains from all directions but there were hundreds of buggies, so many in fact that every feed and livery stable yard and the surrounding streets were packed full and many had to seek places elsewhere. It is estimated that fully 5,000 people attended the celebration. It was an orderly assemblage of the people gathered for an outing and all went home feeling that the business men of Wayne had fulfilled every promise when they assured them of a good time if they would be their guests for a day. The only embarrassing feature of the day was the little interest manifested in the automobile parade by the owners of those vehicles. The committee had offered good prizes for this part of the program, knowing that there were a great many autos owned in Wayne and vicinity and also knowing that it was an easy matter to decorate those machines beautifully and at little expense; and so they and the public were surprised and disappointed to find that out of about one dozen in the parade only one had been at all decorated for the event. That was the Ley auto and it was a thing of beauty.

At 11 o'clock a good sized crowd gathered on the court house lawn and listened to two fine selections by the double male quartette and an address by Rev. Alexander Corkey, in which the speaker portrayed in his usual eloquent and impressive manner some of the glories of our common heritage, and pointed out that our strength as a nation was not in our army or navy, but in our manly citizenship, raised, reared and educated in our christian homes, and exhorted his hearers to ever keep in mind that the government that had been handed down to us by our fathers could only be maintained by eternal vigilance which is the price of liberty, and by the inculcating into the hearts and lives of each succeeding generation those true principles upon which our nation was established and formed. The address was a good one.

The merchants' parade of floats was, however, an unqualified success, the best thing of its kind ever seen in the county. All of the merchants put a great deal of time and expense upon these creations and are entitled to all the words of encomium and praise they have received. The battle-ship, City of Wayne, with its turrets on each end mounted with four six-inch guns, operated with a traction engine, was the combined work of all the business men, and with the Commercial Club band on its deck discharging sweet music as it passed through the streets at the head of the procession, was much admired and was very life like. The float representing the forty-eight states with the goddess of liberty was very attractive and a nice feature of the parade, but the hot sun was very trying on the little girls. Those being represented by floats were

J. J. Ahern, colors white and yellow, an old colonial scene, with spinning wheel and Miss Bessie Marsteller as Betsy Ross, making the first American flag in 1777.

Orr Morris Company, colors red, white and blue, an arched arbor with four door ways in each of which sat a maiden dressed in white with a card advertising some department of the store and shown on the float were waists, skirts and other articles.

S. R. Theobald & Co., a beautiful, white creation, elaborately trimmed with white, bearing a number of fairies with wings, both large and small. Its conception was fine, as was also the arrangement.

Royal Neighbor Lodge, large float bearing a number of the members of the lodge, wearing royal purple sashes.

J. E. Hufford, pianos, organs, phonographs, and other articles in his line.

Furchner, Duerig & Co., the German store, colors white and pink, with pennants calling attention to various lines of goods carried by the firm.

H. J. Felber, ice cream and drugs, with tables around which were seated ladies and children and a large pestle used in compounding drugs.

A. S. Chellberg, sanitary plumber, bath tub with child in it, and other articles in that line.

R. J. Rundell, White House canned goods, groceries, etc. A very unique conception.

Graves & Lamberson, a small grain elevator and bins of coal.

Ideal Concrete Works, six horse team, float bearing house made of concrete blocks.

Wright's house moving outfit, drawn by a span of mules and span of horses abreast, showing his new machinery for that work, which is very complete.

Dan Harrington, clothier, an airy conception. An air ship constructed with two bicycles, propelled by two boys, bearing a biplane with a little girl having hold of the steering wheel.

Chace & Co., lumber and coal. A tower made of various kinds of lumber.

Philleo & Von Seggern, lumber. A log cabin made of rough cedar fence posts, occupied by a family of darkies, the boys eating water melons and mammy playing a banjo. Very unique.

Roe & Fortner, flour and feed. Large float piled full of sacks of flour and feed.

C. W. Hiscox, decorated manure spreader, operated and run by a gasoline engine. Attracted considerable attention.

W. O. Hanssen, meat market wagon.

Raymond's Drug Store, decorated float, representing drugs and other articles.

Jeffries Shoe Store, showing shoes, groceries and ladies ready-made goods.

Craven & Welch, McCormick machinery, hardware, stoves, etc.

Gaertner & Beckenhauer, furniture, a pagoda shaped float, containing piano, furniture, etc.

Ley's decorated automobile carrying the four traveling men making Wayne their headquarters, with a banner on which was inscribed "The Wayne Boosters."

The Owen and Thomas boys each had a shetland pony and small wagon neatly decorated.

At the rear were the Calithumphantian's, representing various nationalities, characters and animals, which was quite a feature and added no little amusement to the parade.

Each and every feature of the parade was a success and deserving of more than the passing notice we have room to give them.

In the afternoon probably 3,000 people gathered at the base ball park to witness the ball game between the Wayne and Carroll nines. The game was won by Wayne in a 7 to 5 score, and was for a purse of $85. Sals pitched a good game for the home team and had good support. The game was a gentlemanly one throughout and entirely free of rowdiness of any kind.

At the close of the ball game came the sports consisting of the tug of war between the farmers and business men, boys' race ten years or under, girls' race fifteen years or under, boys' race fifteen years or under, men's race, egg race, fat men's race, the winners of which will be found in the notes at the bottom of this article.

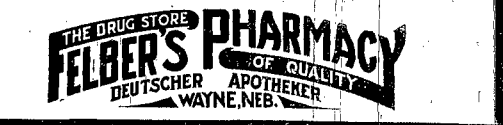

And then in the evening came the fireworks, consisting of three set pieces: "Welcome," "July 4th" and "Good Night," all of which were fine.

In addition to these, there were countless sky rockets, Roman candles, pin wheels of various kinds, shooting stars and various other kinds of things in that line all of which were handled in a manner that brought praise on the part of those who were looking on. There were no wearisome waits as very often occurs at such an exhibition, but there was something doing all the time.

This closed one of the most successful celebrations ever held in Wayne county, which is the consensus of opinion of all who were here, and those having the matter in hand worked hard for the success attained.

Many of the merchants provided seats in front of the stores where the weary ones might rest awhile and everything was done that could be thought of to make it pleasant for the visitors.

There were a whole lot of people, about 3,000 of them, who did not feel at all ashamed to attend the free baseball game under the auspices of the Commercial Club, if there were three or four disgruntled ones who did.

One of the very best things the 4th of July committee did was to open a rest room for the ladies on that day. Hundreds of mothers with babies and small children and a number of old people who became tired out called down blessings upon the promoters of the rest room. There were easy rocking chairs and some couches besides other conveniences as well as ice cold water. It was certainly a good thing highly appreciated.

The dealers in fire works did not have as large a sale of their goods as heretofore, although they laid in larger stocks in anticipation of the celebration of the day. We have no doubt that the fact that there was to be a free display in the evening had a good deal to do with this, as many figured it out that they and their children could enjoy the display without the expense of a home entertainment of that kind, and hundreds of them did so.

"Say," remarked a farmer east of town the next morning after the 4th, "you can say that Wayne pulled off the most successful 4th of July celebration in its history and has the thanks of entire Hunter precinct for the royal manner in which the town entertained its guests for the day, and the entertainment afforded them." We are sure that the business men will appreciate such words from their farmer friends whom they invited to spend the day and endeavored so hard to provide things they thought would please and entertain.

There was not an accident during the entire day to mar the festivities of the occasion, which was quite remarkable considering the large crowd in attendance at the celebration neither were there any evidences of intoxication. It was about as sane a Fourth as one could wish. We have never known a celebration before where there was so little of the noises and confusion incident to shooting off all kinds of noise producing contrivances as last Monday at the celebration in Wayne. Of course this caused some loss to the dealers in those goods. We have no doubt but that the discussion for the past month or so for a saner Fourth had no little to do with this fact.

Poor Game

The Joys of the Umpire.

That is about all that can be said of the baseball game on the home grounds last Friday afternoon between the Randolph and Wayne nines. It was poor in nearly every respect, from our view point, and a number of the decisions of the umpire against the home team looked very rank indeed to the spectators. The catcher for the Randolph team acted all the time as though he was going to his mother's funeral and was afraid he might get there before the sun went down, hence by his slowness largely the game was prolonged to over two hours. There was not the snap and vim to the game any of the time like there was in the games last year.

There were a number of good catches. Both pitchers were batted freely and Sals was not near as effective in the box as he usually is. Some way most of the heavy Wayne batters failed to find the ball for a good hit at an opportune time. At the end of the ninth inning the score stood as follows:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Wayne	1	1	0	5	0	0	0	0	7
Randolph	3	0	0	5	0	0	0	0	8

The official score card revealed the following in relation to the game:

declares no evidence of anything warranted prosecution was found against Mr. Quarles. The costs of the entire

"JACK THE RIPPER"
NOW IN MAD HOUSE

WHITECHAPEL SLAYER A POLE,
ACCORDING TO BRITISH OFFICIAL'S STORY.

ENGLAND'S CRIMINAL INSANE

Sir Robert Anderson Reveals Interesting Facts Concerning the Case of Dangerous Lunatics Who Are Held
"during the King's Pleasure."

London.—Sir Robert Anderson, for more than 30 years chief of the criminal investigation department of the British government, and head of the detective bureau at Scotland yard, has at length raised the veil of mystery which for nearly two decades has enveloped the identity of the perpetrator of those atrocious crimes known as the Whitechapel murders.
Sir Robert's revelations, in an article over his signature in one of the leading London reviews and supplemented by a letter in the London Times, effectually disposes of the popular stories ascribing the outrages to a peer, now dead who, despite his great wealth had rendered himself an outcast by his vices and eccentricities, or to a man entitled, but of high unmistakable signs of mental disorder, had suddenly vanished from his accustomed haunts in London, eventually to die in a madhouse.

Sir Robert establishes the fact that the infamous "Jack the Ripper," as the unknown slayer had been dubbed by the public, and at whose hands no less than 14 women successfully lost their lives within a circumscribed area of the East end of London, was an alien of the lower though educated class, hailing from Poland, and a maniac of the most virulent and homicidal type of a type recorded, by reason of his rarity, in medical treatises, but one with which the world at large
is not familiar.
The most important point of all made by Sir Robert is the fact that once the criminal investigation department was sure that it had in its hands
the real perpetrator of the Whitechapel murders, it procured from the secretary of state for the home department a warrant committing the man for detention "during the king's pleasure" to the great asylum for the criminal insane at Broadmoor five or six years ago.

Behind the walls of Broadmoor are hidden away in this fashion some of the grandest names of the united kingdom.
Although strict secrecy is observed with regard to the names and identity of the inmates, Sir Robert recalls during his several stays at Broadmoor having seen and talked with a number of prisoners possessed of a certain amount of historical interest.
Chief among them was Edward Oxford, who in 1840 had attempted to shoot Queen Victoria when she was driving with the prince consort to Buckingham palace.
Another strange inmate of Broadmoor was Mrs. Brough, who had been the nurse of King Edward, who,
in spite of what has been said, was not nursed by his mother, the queen.

"Jack the Ripper" Was an Educated Pole of the Lower Class.
Mrs. Brough, as a reward for her services to the help apparent, was accorded a cottage in the grounds of the royal palace at Claremont, her husband being employed as one of the gardens on the place. One day Mrs.
Brough, having quarreled with her husband, became afflicted with homicidal mania, and before morning, set out with a razor the throats of all her six children.
Mrs. Brough was put on trial, acquitted on the score of insanity, and ordered to be detained during her majesty's pleasure at Broadmoor.
Few have any idea of the extent of the persecution of this kind to which the inmates of the Lord are subjected in Europe. In London, as at Berlin and at Potsdam, it is rare that a week time after grating out on his organ a police of more or less unbalanced individuals who clamor for access to royalty on all sorts of extraordinary pretenses.
The duration of their detention depends entirely upon the executive, not on the judiciary.

The Short and Simple Annals.
"Me gotta da good job," said Pietro,
as he gave the monkey a little more time after grinding out on his organ a selection from "Santa Maria." "Gotta
forty dollar da month and eat myself;
forty da month if da boss eat me."—
Everybody's Magazine.

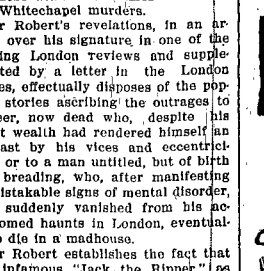

Our Wives.
Mrs. Gobby (looking over her husband's shoulder)—"What a queer looking fellow!" "Do they all have to be like that?" "Yes, they do." "Gotta
forty dollar da month and eat myself;
forty da month if da boss eat me."—
Everybody's Magazine.

Wash., Tells a Story.

"Mr. Ireland is the holder of four world records and has yet to lose his first match—says he: "Kidney trouble so affected my vision as to interfere with my shooting. I became so nervous I could hardly hold a gun. There was severe pain in my back and head and my kidneys were terribly disordered. Doan's Kidney Pills

nearly every remedy relief. I will give further details of my case to anyone

BOY TORTURED BY ECZEMA

"When my boy was six years old, he suffered terribly with eczema. He could neither sit still nor lie quietly in bed, for the itching was dreadful. He would irritate spots by scratching with his nails and that only made them worse. A doctor treated him and we tried almost everything, but the eczema seemed to spread. It started in a small place on the lower extremities and spread for two years until it very nearly covered the back part of his leg to the knee.
"Finally I got Cuticura Soap, Cuti-curea Ointment and Cuticura Pills and gave them according to directions. It evening before I put my boy to bed, I used them again and the improvement even in those few hours was surprising, the inflammation seemed to be so much less. I used two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, the same of the Pills and the Soap and my boy was cured. My son is now in his seventeenth year and he has never had a return of the eczema.
"I took care of a friend's child that had eczema on its face and limbs and I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment.
They acted on the child just as they did on my son and it has never returned. I would recommend the Cuticure Remedies to anyone. Mrs. A. J.
Cochran, 1823 Columbia Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 20, 1909."

Up to Date Milking Scene.
"What's going on around here?"
asked the surprised visitor. "Is this a hospital?"
"Oh, no," answered the tall man in the silk hat; "this is the stage setting for a New England farm drama. The next act will be the milking scene."
"But I thought the young lady in the antiseptic apron was a trained nurse?"
"Oh, no; she is the milkmaid. The young man in the rubber gloves that you thought was a doctor is the farm boy. As soon as they bring in the sterilized stool and the pasteurized pails and find the cow's tooth brush the milking scene will begin."

When Father Helped.
The fond father held the manuscript while his son practised the oration.
"Shall we permit the ruthless hand of the hydra-headed tyrant," cried the youth, "to—to—to—well, what is it?"
The father was wrestling with the manuscript.
"Oh, yes," he muttered, "here it is:
"to desecrate." Go on."
"It desecrate," cried the boy, indignantly. "Shall we permit the ruthless hand of the hydra-headed tyrant to desecrate the—the—the—why don't you prompt me?"
The father was striving hard at the manuscript.
"The—the poodle—poodle—poodle
of our liver ties," he stammered.
"It's the palladium of our liberties," roared the boy. "Gimme that paper—I'll say it myself."
And he stalked away angrily.

The Luggage Question.
DeLancey Nicoll, lawyer, is always a well-dressed man, and abominates a slovenly appearance. At the Union club he said of a westerner one day:
"He has come on to New York for a week and I don't believe he has brought a stitch of luggage with him."
Here Mr. Nicoll smiled.
"Unless, indeed," he added, "he's stowed something in the large bags
he carries in the knees of his trousers."

THOUGHTS OF MAN
WHO FACES DEATH

ONE WHO NARROWLY ESCAPED
DROWNING RELATES FEEL-INGS AT TIME.

HAS THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Tells How Frank of a Friend Nearly Cost His Life and His Mad Efforts to Ward Off Death Under Water—Had But One Idea.

Boston.—Two men were sitting at a table in a restaurant discussing various psychological phenomena. Both were professional men and familiar with the technical as well as the popular side of the subject they were reviewing, which was the concentration of the attention when face to face with death.
"One often hears wonderful stories of the instant revival of the events of a lifetime experienced by drowning persons or those who are in danger of imminent death," remarked the other of the two, "but I have always been a little skeptical about the possibility of such a complete revival of the memory and the condensation of the events of a lifetime into the minute and a half that it takes to drown."
"But, objected the other, "it has fallen to my lot on two separate occasions to be thoroughly convinced of the rapidity of thought which is possible when one is face to face with death. Instead of a rapid and extensive review of past events, I have found my thoughts concentrated on one idea, a idea always immediately connected with the danger in which I was placed.
"My first experience of the kind was in the River Shannon, when I was learning to swim. I had taken only a few lessons in shallow water when, being in a rowboat on the river with two others, one a Mr. Brown, who was a very fine swimmer, proposed that we should take a dip. A Mr. Smith stayed in the boat to guide it.
"After I had tried a few strokes, staying close to the boat, I would grasp the stern and rest myself. Mr.
Brown, who did not know I could not swim, got behind the boat and gave it a good push ahead as I reached for the stern after one of my efforts, and I went down.
"Not knowing anything about swimming except the stroke, I had no idea of the movements necessary to bring me to the surface.
"As I went down for the traditional third time Mr. Smith noticed that my fingers were quite limp and that the stroke had ceased. Fortunately for me it had, because after a final dive and failure to reach me Mr.
Brown happened to touch with his foot what he took to be a half-sunken sed of turf, many of which float down the Shannon under the surface. Instantly he made another dive and got his hands upon it only to find that he had hold of the hair of my head.
"This is what went on above the surface, as I learned later. Under the water there was only one idea in my mind, and that was whether or not

FISH DROPPED FROM CLOUDS

Originally Carried Aloft in Water-spout is Simple Explanation of Occurrence.

On Friday last a number of townspeople taking a walk on the slopes of Knuckscaber hill were surprised to see on the grass near Summerhill a large number of very small fishes, varying in length from 1.2 to 4 inches. The fish appeared to be the young of the herring.

In August, 1904, a shower of herring fry was experienced at the head of Longrow, but there was no doubt as to whence the miniature fish had come, for they fell from above on the hats and clothing of several men, and at the time a small black cloud of remarkable density was directly overhead.

The phenomenon of fish falling from the clouds is a generally supposed. It is undoubtedly due to some small fry of fishes having been lifted from the water and carried over dry land by what is popularly known as a water-spout.

Many cases are reported from abroad, and they are common in India. Last year Calcutta reported a shower of small fishes, which were identified as herring fry, and there was also a similar occurrence in Roshire.

Frogs, insects and other living creatures have also been known to be thus transported through the air.—Campbelltown Courier.

GIRL NOT A NATURE STUDENT

She Meant Well, but Evidently Had a Lot to Learn About Care of Birds.

She was not a nature student, and when she saw a sparrow on the sidewalk, evidently too young to fly and too badly frightened even to hop, she did not know exactly what to do for it.

She did not know how it had got there, where its parents were or what relief measures would be advisable. All she could do, in her perplexity, was to keep the group of boys who had gathered around it from harming it.

Presently a boy pushed through the group, kicked the bird kindly, then stopped and took it up. She was much relieved. "What you take care of it?" she asked him. "Sure!" he responded, with innocent emphasis. She was anxious that it should have the best of care, so she helpfully suggested, "Better give it a little milk."

"The boy stared. Then he grinned. Then he yelled. 'Milk!' he roared. 'Milk! ha! milk!' Then he streaked up the street, carrying the bird or fully in his hands and excitedly ejaculating, 'Milk!'

Her face flushed as she went on her way and she was heard to murmur to herself, "Now I wonder why he laughed? Very unmannerly, I'm sure."

Dangerous Rubber Bands. Elastic bands are taboo in a certain large office in New York city, and employees are requested to dispense with the rubbers altogether or to keep them with great circumspection.

The reason for the precaution is that the bands are known to be hardly less slippery than the dreaded banana peel, with the same propensity for causing severe falls, especially in conjunction with the oiled wood floors of modern buildings.

A valued woman employee of the office in question had a severe fall owing to one of these mischief makers, which resulted in an injury to hips and spine which has incapacitated her for all active work for some time to come, if, indeed, it does not prove permanently crippling.

The Fighting Parson. When the great-grandfather of the present Duke of Norfolk was engaged in any of his electioneering contests he was always attended by his chaplain, an athletic man and one who had made such good use of his hands on several occasions that he acquired the name of "The Fighting Parson."

Mr. Dauncey, an eminent counsel, having once to examine him as a witness during a trial, asked "whether he was not the gentleman called 'The Fighting Parson.'" "I believe I am, sir," the divine replied; "but if you require any more positive proof and will de me the favor to step out of court, I will give it to you under my own hand." No further evidence was taken.—Bally's Magazine.

Why England Has No Flies. The proof is that it has been done. Speaking rashly, there are no flies in England; at least, there are so few that the inhabitants do not think it worth while to screen their dwellings.

The reason is the simplest—the tight little island is kept clean. Fifty years ago flies were a nuisance in England; though not the plague they are here, for no other really civilized country was ever quite so dirty as the United States of America. This nuisance is pretty completely abated. In 50 years England has been swept and garnished, and the flies have starved.—McClure's.

WAS NOT OLD LADY'S SON

Little Romance Built Up by Proximity Found to Be Not Founded on Fact.

The little old woman who sat nearly opposite the girl at the long marble table was pale. She almost spilled her coffee when she got it to her mouth. Her trembling fingers hardly could break her bread. It came near spoiling the little lunch the girl had ordered for herself to see the pitiful trembling of the little faded fingers, the constant shaking of the head under the old face veil that half shaded the old withered face. The only reason it didn't was because of the strong young man who sat beside the little pained woman, quite close, so close that the little woman once or twice leaned against him shakily.

"It's her son, thank heaven!" thought the girl. "Thank heaven, she's got a son! Oh! Suppose I should get about all alone some day shaking like that!"

The little shaking woman finished her lunch before the girl did, perhaps because they had bought it quicker, sorry for her, seeing her shake so. She got up. The young man got up and stood by her. "Yes," the girl thought, congratulating herself. "It's her son. They look alike. I'm awfully glad she isn't alone, that poor little pained woman. Something might happen to her."

Then the little pained woman walked tremblingly to the desk and paid her check, and the strong young man went and paid his, and when they got out the door one went one way and the other went the other and he wasn't her son at all.

MONARCH WILLING TO OBLIGE

Episodes That Proved Ruler Was Endowed with a Good Share of Common Sense.

Having purchased two pictures of a Parisian artist, King A. of X. ordered the painter by a visit at the fourth floor of an old house in the Latin quarter.

"Fourth floor back, young man," directed the half-porter, ignorant of the identity of the royal visitor.

The king prepared to ascend, when the man again popped his head out of his little office.

"Look here, young man! Do me a favor. Just carry up this washing to my friend!"

Much amused, the young king carried the artist his bag of clean linen. "Oh, your majesty!" he stammered, "what a terrible mistake! Why did you not reprove the porter? Why did you bring the bag up?"

"Because he asked me to," said the king with a laugh.

"But—no sense!" interrupted the king. "Don't say any more about it. Every one ought to be obliging; and, whenever one may happen to be, it would be very disobliging to refuse a favor to a fellow-creature, when one could so easily give him a journey up four flights of stairs!"

Interesting Relic. Just before Charles Edward, the young pretender, came to England to attempt the recovery of the throne of his ancestors, he gave a ball in Paris to which his friends and partisans were invited. Among the many beautiful women present, Lady Mary Touchet, a young English lady, greatly attracted the prince's notice, and before the evening was over he put out the "star" which decorated his breast and presented it to her. Lady Mary cherished a romantic regard for "Prince Charlie," and was one of his most devoted adherents. She died very suddenly in the pride of her youth and beauty. The "star" after her death became the property of her sister, who married Philip Thicknesse.

This gentleman, who was a whig did not care for the Jacobite relic, and gave the "star" and a picture of the prince to his nieces. Doubtless the present "star" is now in the possession of some family who regard it as a valuable curiosity, and preserve it as such.

Protection for the Lion. A strange petition has been received at the French colonial office from the colonists of French Uganda. It prays for the protection of the lion from the gun of the hunter, on the ground that the king of beasts is alone able to rid them of their enemies, the herbivorous animals, the deer, the elephant and the rhinoceros. It seems that hunters were rigorously restricted as to the number of these beasts which they could kill, although the license cost from £50 to £60. Consequently they have increased and multiplied to such an extent that the colonists are now calling upon the home authorities to protect the exterminating lion. Only La Fontaine could do justice to this situation.

Cause for Heavy Tread. "Have you noticed," asked an observant woman, "how much more heavily women walk this year than ever before? I have learned the cause for this extra noise. You see, the balance of the body is completely changed, especially for those people who have been wearing a comparatively low heel, and the result is that the entire weight, apparently, comes down 'blunk' on those high heels. It will certainly be a blessing when the low heel is once more in favor, for then our nerves will not be racked by the awful thumping as people wander on their way."

Prof. J. H. Kemp and wife went to Omaha and Council Bluffs Wednesday morning, from there they go to Pawnee City, Nebraska, to spend two or three weeks of their vacation.

Additional Local

Mrs. A. M. Jacobs went to Omaha Wednesday morning on a visit.

T. A. Craig and wife got home from their Washington State visit last Friday, and had a very pleasant time.

Mrs. G. F. Jones, of Gettysburg, S. D., was a caller on the evening of the 4th. She has been visiting at Carroll and celebrated here.

Mrs. Fayson and children, of Oklahoma, came the 4th for a visit with her father, Patrick Coleman, in Wayne, and her brother John, on route two.

Miss Carrie Carpenter has secured an eight months school in the Anderson district northeast of Wayne at $45 per month. It will be her first experience but she will make a most excellent teacher.

Dr. F. M. Thomas left Tuesday morning for the southland, buying a ticket through to Savannah, Georgia, but will go as far south as South Carolina before coming home. He will be gone about a month and may invest there.

$380,303.98 is no small sum of money, but that is what the bank statement in this issue of the Citizen's National Bank of Wayne shows they have on deposit under call of June 30, 1910. Of this amount $184,444.78 is subject to check, $14,905.97, on demand, and $181,653.23 time deposits.

Miles Sparger, who is employed in the C. W. Nies restaurant, was quite severely scalded Tuesday morning on the left side of his face and chest. He was trying to empty and clean the large coffee urn when it suddenly slipped and a portion of the boiling water was thrown into his ear, destroying his ability to hear for a time at least, and down the side of his face and chest, almost cooking the flesh. Dr. Williams was summoned and did what he could to relieve his sufferings. It is not thought that the hearing is destroyed permanently.

Ralph Rundell and the makers of Splendid Flour thought they would do a little unique advertising in the Fourth, so they offered $10 cash in gold to the first person who would find Miss Splendid among the vast throng of people here on that day between 10:30 and noon. About eleven o'clock Frances Jones, son of R. H. Jones, caught sight of a young lady whom he thought was the one and approaching and asking the necessary questions to identify her, found that he had made a safe guess. The young lady was Miss Schwenk, of Norfolk, and they went to the Rundell store and Frances got his $10 in gold. A good day's work.

County Commissioners will meet on the 12th of the month. Miss Eva Alter left the first of the week for a few days visit at Chadron, Nebraska.

W. A. K. Neely has his fine new farm home enclosed and it is nearing completion. It will be a good one.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will meet with Mrs. W. O. Miner Friday afternoon of this week.

The Bible Study Circle will meet with Mrs. Henry Schroer next Wednesday afternoon. All the ladies are welcome.

David Stallsmith, whose home is at LaCrosse, Wisconsin, is making his brother John, in Wayne, and friends here a visit.

July 18 is the last day of filing for the primary election. Do not hear of any applicants for office in this county or district.

If some of the small boys of this town do not get killed during this vacation time it will be a wonder. We saw several of them hanging on the back end of an automobile Tuesday, by the skin of their teeth, so to speak.

And the next night it rained. Tuesday night's rain was not nearly as much as was needed but it moistened the ground to the depth of about half an inch and cooled off the atmosphere so that life felt more like living Wednesday.

If you notice the First National Bank statement in this issue you will see that the deposits amount to $408,390.60. Nothing small about that. The amount subject to check is $192,849.06, demand deposit $493.40, and time deposits $215,048.14.

William Dammeyer went to Stanley county, South Dakota, Tuesday afternoon to look at some land he bought there last winter on some one else's recommendation, having never seen it. As he has a chance to sell at double what he gave for it three months ago it would seem that he had struck a bargain, but he decided to look at the land before he sold anyway.

It was no doubt a good thing that the Mayor's order regarding the sale and use of fire crackers previous to the 4th, was observed as well as it was, owing to the dry conditions prevailing. The alarm of fire turned in Saturday afternoon was at the P. C. Crockett home and was caused by a fire cracker being exploded in wood shed, setting the fire and calling out the department. The fire boys responded promptly and got the fire out before it had a chance to communicate to any of the adjoining buildings.

An Anxious Fourth

That is what it was at the the J. E. Hufford home. Sunday afternoon while Mr. Hufford was around in the rear of his store he stepped on a rusty wire nail with such force that it was driven through the sole of his shoe into his foot. The foot soon began to hurt him and the leg began to swell and he hastened home and summoned Dr. Naffziger. The first thought was of blood poisoning and the doctor at once took steps to counteract the effect of the poison in the system if any existed, but despite the efforts put forth the limb continued to swell through the night and Monday forenoon, while the pain was so excruciating that it was unbearable in silence and his suffering was terrible. However, by mid-afternoon Monday, the pain began to abate and Tuesday morning he was much easier. Dr. Naffziger says that the reason the limb swelled so quickly and the pain was so intense was because the nail struck a nerve in the bottom of the foot, having the same effect upon the nerve centers in the foot and leg that is experienced when the nerve in a tooth is touched. While that was by no means an easy thing, he knew that it would right itself before long, so his first care was to prevent blood poisoning.

MYSTERIOUSLY MURDERED

LOUISE FLEGE MEETS DEATH

Shot in Head and Breast at Her Home Six Miles Northeast of Wayne

One of those crimes for which as yet there does not seem to be any motive and which is therefore the more difficult to understand, occurred on the farm of William Flege, six miles northeast of Wayne, just over the line in Dixon county, sometime last Thursday afternoon, probably between two and three o'clock, when Miss Louise Flege was shot to death by some unknown person, of whom, as yet, there has not been the least clue obtained. While the daily papers for the past week have contained numerous accounts of the affair, some of which have been highly colored, it will no doubt be expected that the Herald will give some account of the affair from its view point.

In company with a representative of the Sioux City Journal, two or three other Wayne citizens, and Detective Davenport, of Sioux City, who had been employed on the case, we paid the scene of the murder a visit. It was a very pleasant farm scene that greeted the vision of the party, and yet, one to our mind that was ideal for a crime of that kind to be committed and the murderer escape. The farm house sets back from the well traveled highway on the south, about three-fourths of a mile and cannot be seen at all from the road on the table-land which is followed to the farm, until about thirty rods or less from the buildings when they come into view all at once, and you drop down into a valley. From the farm residence there is only one other farm house in sight and that is fully a mile away to the east across the valley, while to the northeast three-fourths of a mile away may be seen the German Lutheran church and parsonage. That our readers may the better understand the situation where the murder was committed we give below a diagram of the yard and house:

About five rods from the gate to the south and east stands the barn, and three rods from the gate is the well and windmill. William Flege says that about 12:30 on that day his brother Fred one mile to the northwest, called him up over the phone and asked him if he could take him to Dixon that afternoon in his automobile. He said that he could and at ten minutes to one o'clock he left the farm on his way to Fred's home. William Echtenkamp, about eighteen years of age, is the only help employed about the farm. William says that before he left the farm he told the man that as it was a very warm day he did not need to be in a hurry to get to the field about half a mile away where he was plowing corn. He took his departure at ten minutes to one for his brother's house, so that young Echtenkamp, so far as known, was the last to see Miss Flege alive. However, Echtenkamp was not long in following his employer away from the house for William says that at 1:30 when he was on a ridge to the northwest of the farm he saw Echtenkamp entering the field to begin his afternoon's work. That he was industrious and did not waste any time is fully attested by the amount of work accomplished. That Miss Flege was alive for at least two hours or more after the men left the house is absolutely certain, for her brother, for whom she kept bread, says that she was baking bread on that day and that it was not yet ready for the oven when he went away but that on his return it was found that the bread had been baked and turned upside down and covered with a cloth as is the custom of all thrifty housewives. It is also a demonstrated fact that it always takes an hour to complete the baking of bread. There is also pretty conclusive evidence that Miss Flege had also gone to the garden a short distance west of the barn and hoed for a short time, and it is evident that she met her death while on the way from the garden to the house. The fence that surrounds the house, at least on the south side, which is the entrance from the barn and garden, is a light picket one, closely set, about four feet in height. By reference to the diagram above it will be seen that there is a tree standing just inside the gate and near the walk. This tree has some undergrowth around it and it stands only about three feet from the fence and possibly the same distance from the walk, and it is few feet north of the tree and a little nearer the walk at the point marked X in the diagram where the body was found. Miss Flege had been in the habit of taking a lunch to the field for the hired man about 5 o'clock each evening and when she did not come out to the field as she was wont to do young Echtenkamp wondered at it not a little, but did not think seriously of the matter. He returned from his labors in the field at 6:30 in the evening, and while pumping water for the horses at the well he noticed Miss Flege lying on the ground not far from the gate and went to see what was the trouble. The scene that met his gaze nearly drove him out of his wits as he found that she was dead. Going in to the house, he at once called up the home of her brother Fred about one mile away and learned that he had just returned from Dixon and that his brother William had stopped at the home of Henry Hendricks about half a mile away. The young man informed Fred of what he had discovered, and Fred at once repaired to the home of his sister where it was found that Echtenkamp's story was all too true. William was also communicated with and was soon on the ground. In the meantime Dr. J. J. Williams, of Wayne, county coroner of this county had been communicated with and went to the scene as quickly as possible. On his arrival he made an examination and ascertained that the young woman had been shot twice, and he says that he thinks that she had been dead four hours when he first saw her, which would make the time of her death about 3:30 in the afternoon. Of the two shots either of which would have proven fatal, he thinks the one in her head was fired first. This ball entered the head just below the base of the brain and passed out at the right eye. The other entered just below the right breast, passed downward until it struck the fifth rib, which it shattered, and was then deflected from its course and passed out the back near the spinal column. Both were from a 32-calibre revolver. Both shots were fired at such close range that the sunbonnet on her head and the dress over her breast were set on fire, and the bonnet was nearly half consumed. The yard where the body lay is covered with a thick growth of knot grass to the depth of three or four inches which gives forth no sound at all when one steps upon it. Having viewed the scene, it is our opinion that the person who did the shooting was crouched down behind the picket fence and close to the undergrowth around the tree, and that after Miss Flege had passed through the gate with the sunbonnet pulled over her face, he had risen from his crouching position as she passed up the sidewalk toward the house, and with two or three steps on the yellow grass, which gave out no noise, had reached out his hand and with the muzzle of the revolver only a few inches from her head had pulled the trigger which fired the first shot. As she turned sharply around from the shock as she had naturally do, he had fired the second shot which entered her breast, both shots being fired so close together that the reports might almost have seemed like one.

So much for the crime itself. That is a fact. But as to who did it and the motive lying back of the deed it is as much a mystery today as it was one week ago when it was discovered that the deed had been done. It was at first thought that Miss Flege had been outraged but Dr. Williams says there was no evidence of that fact. Then robbery was assigned as the cause, but as all the money known to be about the house has been accounted for except it be $11.25 that Echtenkamp claims to have lost, that theory, like some of the others, seems to be without foundation. Then it was hinted that the hired man might have been guilty of the deed. But the fact that he has always lived in that neighborhood and the brother and sister have known him ever since he was about four years old, the amount of work he did in the afternoon and his prompt action in calling for help when he found the young lady dead, and his straightforward story at all times the same, has led to the abandonment of that theory along with the others. Then it has been laid to traps. But from all the other facts it would not seem at all likely that they would just for the fun of shooting without having committed robbery or some other nameless crime, and there was not the least evidence of a struggle of any kind. Detective Davenport, who we understand has been retained on the case by the brothers, and county attorney Kingsbury, of Dixon county, are both working on all the theories and clues at all bearing on the case, although not agreed, and are in hopes of getting something definite in the near future. There are other detectives who have written parties here and no doubt will take a hand in the matter, especially if a reward shall be offered. County attorney Kingsbury informed us at three o'clock Tuesday afternoon that no reward had yet been offered and that many other rumors in circulation here were not facts. One thing that struck us as very peculiar in a case of that kind, or a death of any kind, was the absence of women about the home. There was no evidence that woman with her silent ministrations of help was or had been about the home. Miss Flege kept house for her brother William and had been doing so for about three years, since the death of her mother. She would have been thirty-three years of age the fifth of next August, was quiet and unobtrusive in her demeanor, and well liked in the neighborhood where she had lived so long. The funeral services took place last Saturday afternoon in the German Lutheran church within sight of her home, and where she was a frequent visitor on a divine services. A great deal of feeling was engendered by this crime and it is likely that had the murderer been found within a few days after the act had been performed that a short shift at the end of a rope would have been his portion, as we have heard men say who have known the family a long time that they would be one to help pull the rope. It is a mystery that may never be unlocked and yet its unlocking might reveal the perpetrator to be one who was little thought of at the time.

No particular headway has been made in ferreting out the crime during the week. Detective Davenport went over into Iowa yesterday afternoon on a supposed slight clue, and the three brothers, William, Fred and Henry united in offering a reward of $1,000 for information to convict. This was sent to the sheriff of Dixon county and will be used by him as an incentive for further revelations in the matter.

appears to everyone. Nowadays no quartette is considered complete without a reader of ability, but the Weatherwax Quartette is fortunate enough to have two, both of whom are artists of high grade. The truth is that every feature presented by this splendid organization of brothers is delivered with the grace and ease that distinguish the work of professionals from that of amateurs. They will be welcomed by enthusiastic thousands throughout the territory of the Western Redpath Chautauqua System, where their time is all taken for the coming season.

THATCHER SONG RECITAL.
A Young Man With a Big Reputation.

Burton Thatcher is a young man, a very young man. He was born something over twenty years ago in Tennessee and before he or his parents realized it he was studying music. At the age of seventeen he went to Chicago and devoted himself to special voice training under the masters of two continents. He has sung leading baritone parts in grand opera companies, has helped the Katharine Ridgway company to achieve its deserved reputation, and during eight months of last year he filled solo engagements and gave recitals in thirty-three states. The greatest critics pronounce him a prodigy. His fame is growing and this season he is traveling independent for the first time.

NOT A LITTLE SATISFACTION
Editor, Unable to Collect Bill for Paper, Could Afford to Affront the Widow.

To the editor of a little Maine newspaper there came the other day an indignant elderly woman, who waved a bit of paper in the editorial face. "Looker here!" she said. "What does this mean—a bill for the Citizen to my husband that's been dead two years? Ye don't expect his widow to pay debts o' his contracted long after he's dead?"

"You say he has not been getting the paper?" said the editor, after long thought. "No, ye verdoberhead!" screamed the woman, "I tell ye he's been dead two years!" "Strange," mused the editor. "The postoffice department has not notified me of his failure to receive them. Quite sure you yourself haven't been enjoying the estimable educational values of a refusal of my sheet?" "That ain't the point," argued the widow. "You've been sending the newspaper and a bill to a man that's dead. It's your affair, not mine."

"Well," said the editor finally, perceiving that he must be a loser. "In future, madam, I will cause an extra copy to be printed on asbestos to insure that your husband receives his Citizen regularly."

LOAD EVIDENTLY A THINKER
Clever Maneuver by Which Batrachian Foiled His Invertebrate Enemy, the Serpent.

The following snake story was told some years ago by a reputable citizen of Anson county. Diving along a public road one day he saw a toad frog crossing the road at top speed, sitting only the high places and few of them. As the frog disappeared in the bosky underbrush on one side a black snake in hot pursuit made its appearance on the other. The storyteller followed the two into the bushes to see what the result would be. He had proceeded only a short distance when he found the frog at bay, facing the snake and with the latter circling about in the effort to make an attack from the rear. His frogship kept turning all the time, always facing the enemy.

The reason of this maneuver on the snake's part was that the frog had in its mouth, held crosswise and about the middle, a stick about the size and length of a lead pencil. The frog knew the snake could not swallow him so long as he presented such a front. The man watched the performance for some time and when he left the snake was still circling the frog and the latter facing its enemy on every turn.—Charlotteville Observer.

Ants in Battle.
The pugnacity of ants leads them to amuse themselves during long intervals of peace by sham battles. They rise upon their back feet, wrestle, seize each other by the jaws or legs, mount on each other's backs, roll over and over and engage in other antics. Neighboring communities of ants are prone to engage in wars which continue through weeks and months, and usually end with the annihilation of the weaker community.

FOUR TUNEFUL BROTHERS.
Coming to the Chautauqua With Good Voices, Good Instrumentation and a Good Program of Popular Readings.

The Weatherwax Brothers Male Quartette, as the name implies, is composed of four brothers. This fact renders the organization unique. Their voices have not only the musical blend that comes of careful selection with reference to volume, quality and natural pitch, but there is added the family characteristics as well. There is a harmony of the blood as well as of the voice. Add to this the strong family resemblance in faces and forms and you have a modulated, balanced, harmonized quartette that is in a class by itself.

From the very beginning this Male Quartette has scored splendid successes. They are men of class and spirit. They want to please and bend their energies to that end. There are always many anecdotes at a Weatherwax entertainment. The people cannot get enough of their work. Refinement, culture and real musical ability combine in this quartette to a degree that assures their success being complete everywhere.

One careful observer, after hearing them a number of times remarked, "One is reminded of open field work when he watches a Weatherwax performance. There is the strong individuality and the constant suggestion of team work as well. Every time one comes up to bat, you expect him to make a home run." The care with which their programs are arranged—with serious and humorous selections in proper variety and relation—caused another critic to characterize their work as "wholesome and lively, put together just right."

In addition to all the usual musical numbers, songs and catchy encores, the Trumpet Quartette of this organization is a most pleasing feature. There is a dash and spirit to it that is refreshing and a heroic element that Remarkable Community in Austrian Poland Has Its Home in Ancient Mine.

Deep in the salt mines of the hamlet of Villitzka, in Austrian Poland, some 11 miles from Cracow, lies a veritable underground village which dates away back to the days when slaves first opened these mines in 1334. It is a busy subterranean human hive, all the bustle in contrast with the sleepy hamlet above. In fact all the life of the settlement is concentrated below ground. The air is clean and the temperature that of a warm spring day. The center of the mine is situated in a sort of court which forms a railway station. Here all the railway lines which intersect this huge mine meet. Men and women go above ground to do their marketing, and meet in this court on their return to gossip and compare their bargains. Children play about in the shade of the grottoes and sail boats in the gutters, running with salt water. These gutters were made hundreds of years ago to get rid of the moisture which runs from the upper floors of the mine, and lead down to the very bottom, forming a huge salt lake, the water of which is gradually pumped off and distilled to obtain salt. So difficult and expensive is it to light up the whole mine that visitors must make up a party of at least 30 and pay various sums according to their number. No less than 260 steps lead down to the salt lake, and it is there that the Chapel of St. Anthony stands.

"How did you do it, Pomp?" each listener is sure to ask.

"How did I do it, chile? Why, I jes' emptied a pall o' water right on Marso Charlie's haid, an' I tuk an' spanked Marso William—dat's how."—Youth's Companion.

Perdue For Superintendent

Frank S. Perdue, at present deputy state superintendent, is the logical man for the position of superintendent, to fill the vacancy that will be caused by the resignation of Mr. Bishop. As deputy, Perdue is in the work and has served his apprenticeship. He could take hold of the job and run it as it ought to be run. More than that he is entirely capable. He has a good many years of experience in Nebraska schools and northern Nebraska knows his ability. He made good in Tilden and as county superintendent of Madison county. He's the right man for the place.—Norfolk News.

Chautauqua Tickets on Sale

The Board of Trustees of the Wayne Chautauqua Association desire to announce that they have purchased a collection of talents for this year's Chautauqua Program which if secured separately would cost at least $2500. In order to secure this talent it was necessary to guarantee $1400 to the Western Redpath Chautauqua Bureau.

The only method of raising this $1400 is by the sale of season tickets, which must be sold before the Chautauqua begins as all proceeds from tickets sold on the grounds goes direct to the Western Redpath Chautauqua Bureau.

It is the belief of the Board of Trustees that Wayne and the surrounding territory desire an annual Chautauqua, and in order to make the coming Chautauqua a success, it will be necessary for everyone to cooperate in the purchase and sale of season tickets.

The Board of Directors also take this opportunity of informing the public that the coming Chautauqua is the best collection of talent and the highest priced ever had on the Wayne Chautauqua Platform.

Season tickets are for sale at all the business places in Wayne. Adult's season tickets $2.00. Children's season tickets, under fourteen years of age $1.00. Student's season tickets, both College and high school, $1.50. All season tickets purchased on the grounds will be 50c more than the above price.

Do not wait until the last day to buy your season tickets. Remember that the Chautauqua Association through its Board of Directors has guaranteed a sale of $1400 in season tickets. This means that every one interested in the success of the Chautauqua must take hold at once and help out on this guarantee.

Did Farmer Latta Fool Us?

Two years ago when he was a candidate for congress Mr. Latta, of Tekamah made a notable and somewhat successful effort to spread the impression through the rural districts that he was a farmer by occupation. He flooded the mails with thousands of letters typewritten under a printed letter head containing a picture of a farm and the words: "J. P. Latta, Farming and stock raising; farm seven miles north of Tekamah." There was nothing said in the letters about Mr. Latta being in the banking business, but they told how his life long work as a farmer would enable him to secure legislation for the benefit of an agricultural state.

Two years in Washington have evidently wrought a change in Farmer Latta. Recent reports from the national capitol do not indicate that the representative from this agricultural district is making himself conspicuous among the statesmen of the nation by proclaiming himself to be a farmer seeking the passage of laws for the benefit of the tillers of the soil. Congressman Latta, in fact, has not cut a very wide swath in the national house, but a few days ago he was heard from in a faint way when he had occasion to insert a few words of explanation into the Congressional Record. He had voted against the postal savings bank bill, a bill for which both political parties and the farmers of Nebraska, including another distinguished agriculturalist, William Jennings Bryan, had emphatically declared. It had become necessary to say something in explanation. Listen to Farmer Latta in Washington, D. C.:

Mr. Speaker, I am a practical banker of more than thirty-three years' experience, and I wish to make a statement as to the cost of managing and conducting the banking business.

Mr. Latta evidently is not confessing in the presence of the distinguished statesmen at Washington, D. C., that he is an ordinary Nebraska farmer, seeking to secure some legislation that will be beneficial to an agricultural district. It could not be, of course, that these farm scene letter heads were gotten up solely for campaign purposes and Farmer Latta has been fooling us.—Fremont Tribune.

Mrs. S. A. Lutgen returned from her three weeks visit near Sterling, Nebraska, last Thursday evening. She led a strenuous life in visiting and banqueting while absent.

Wayne's many beautiful lawns are certainly in a bad way on account of the drought and heat. Very few of the residents use city water for sprinkling purposes, and even if they did it would be like running water through a sieve.

Clasen & Nelson Bros. received the contract Saturday for the pumping station of the town water works at Carroll. It is to be of concrete and cement blocks, including foundation, pit, and walls to the roof and will be a good job, well done.

Local Secretary J. M. Cherry says that the Wayne Chautauqua is attracting a great deal of attention. From all appearances a record breaking attendance will greet the long and attractive list of entertainers and lecturers who are billed to appear.

Possibly the worst feature of the dry weather is its effects on the pastures. At no time this season have the pastures been really good and now they have got in the condition where there is scarcely any evidence of feed. Farmers will have to feed stock in the near future unless there shall be a decided improvement.

President Henney takes hold of his work at the Citizens National Bank like a veteran. While it is not quite so strenuous as looking after business and waiting on customers at the store, he finds an opportunity to do to keep him out of mischief at all times. The bank's affairs will not suffer at his hands.

A representative of both the Sioux City Journal and Tribune were here Friday evening and made an auto trip out to the scene of the Flieger murder in Dixon county. The local papers were also represented on the trip and a number of others went out including Salsbury, the photographer, who took two views, the Tribune using them in its Saturday evening edition.

Mrs. Davis, who had been visiting at the C. O. Fisher and Dickerson homes, returned to her home at Omaha Saturday morning.

The base ball nine defeated Allen at that place last Thursday afternoon by a 5 to 2 score. Vic Siman pitched the game for the Wayne boys.

A. J. Ferguson and wife, who had been attending a home-coming in eastern Iowa, returned home Friday having had a very delightful outing among old friends.

Despite the fact that a few weeks ago the oats gave promise of a big crop the most of the fields appear to be heading out very thin. The quality will no doubt be good and the straw not very heavy.

There are so many great attractions billed for the Chautauqua which begins July 19 that it is hard to pick out which is the most popular. The safest way to do is to arrange to attend the entire session.

Great quantities of advertising are every day being received by J. M. Cherry, local secretary of the coming Chautauqua. If you want to help him, take a supply of catalogs or folders and distribute them among your friends.

We noticed in a country ride one evening last week that there are some fairly good pieces of tame hay but we heard a man say Friday that he had one hundred acres of tame grass and that if he got fifty tons of hay he would think "he was doing well."

Miss Helen McNeal, the capable assistant postmistress, left Saturday for Richfield, Idaho, where she has purchased a forty-acre relinquishment. She will look after her

DAY OF REST AND PLEASURE

Philippines of Both Sexes Make Sunday a Time of Enjoyment—The Market Women.

It is the women who market the produce. Early each morning long lines of these former wives, with great cigars in their mouths and large baskets of wares on their heads, can be seen striding along the narrow trails toward the capital city where market is held, says a Manila correspondent. Strong and happy, they wade through the streams and the mud, calling out to one another as they go, and only stopping to get a fresh light for their cigars from some one of their number or some one whom they chance to meet. Once at market they chat, smoke, laugh and barter for hours over a few small tomatoes, some green squash, a live chicken, eggs, fruit, sugar or anything they happen to have, and toward noon they straggle home, having had a good visit and sold or exchanged their wares. Sunday is the one really strenuous day for the Filipino. It is the big market day when people come from all the surrounding country, and it is the time when cock-fights are allowed. Men spend a good share of their time during the week in training their pet roosters, and on Sunday, early and late, they can be seen going to and from the pit, carrying their game-cocks under their arms. Excitement runs high and their joyous shouts can be heard for a long way. Some women attend the fights, but most of them do the double duty of attending mass and then patrolling the street from the church. All day Sunday they are active and excited but the next day they settle back into their quiet, uneventful lives.

SUBTERFUGE NOT A SUCCESS

Crosby Doesn't Know Whether Wife Detected Trick or Really Was in Unselfish Mood.

Crosby had always been inclined to conservatism in household expenses, especially in the matter of his wife's dress bills, relates a writer in the Sunday Magazine. His wife went so far as to say that he was penurious. She had been in need of a new boa for a long time, and after she hinted that her happiness would never be quite complete till she had one, he at last consented to make the purchase. He went into a store and picked out two, one of which was a cheap imitation affair, and the other a fine expensive one. Taking them to his office before going home, he changed the price marks, the expensive tag on the cheap boa and vice versa. His wife examined them for a long time very seriously indeed, and then said, "Now, dear, the expensive boa is a beauty, and it is really very good of you to allow me my choice. Some women would take it without a word; but really I don't think we can afford the more costly one, and besides, dear, I think the cheap one the more stylish too. Why, Cros, dear, why the matter? Are you ill?" But dear old Cros had made his getaway into the night when he could kick himself as hard as he felt he deserved. But what he would like to know, is this: Did his wife happen on the more expensive boa by pure accident, or—

Possum Hunting in Queensland.

Another of the means of earning a living in the colony of Queensland is the collecting of fur skins. Considerable profit with a fine, adventurous life in the open air in the "bush," the term which describes all country parts, plain, hill and forest away from the settlements. The possum is protected by the government of Queensland till May 1, on which date young men issue forth for a campaign against the wily animal whose skin makes such beautiful carriage and other rugs and forms the material for ladies' furs all over Europe. Formerly, shooting was resorted to, but now trapping is found to be the most efficacious means of securing a good bag. Most of the trappers work in couples or employ a native, and snares of thin wire are used.

Holy Days.

Dr. Hale and the late Bishop Huntington of New York were fast friends. The latter had been a Unitarian and his shift caused a sensation. The Episcopalians have saints assigned to the various days in the year. When an Episcopalian minister writes a letter on any day for which there is a saint, he always writes the name of the saint at the close of the letter instead of the date. Bishop Huntington learned all these things quickly, and began to practise them at once. The first time he had occasion to write to his old friend, Dr. Hale, after joining the church, he placed "St. Michael's Day" after his signature. A reply from the doctor came, and after his name he had written in a full, round hand, "Wash day."—Christian Register.

The "Austrian Lip."

The thick and prominent underlip that has long been characteristic of the house of Hapsburg was dubbed the "Austrian lip" many years ago. This feature was derived from Cymburgis, daughter of Zlemovitz, duke of Masovia, and uncle of the then king of Poland. She was noted for her great beauty and unusual strength. The house of Hapsburg owes not a little of its strength of character and imperialism to this remarkable woman.

WIDEL BROWN VS. EVANGELIST BROWN

From a Run-Away Boy to Millionaire Publisher.

Everybody knows about "The Ram's Horn" that free lance paper that has been such a force in the religious world. It has been "independent" in every sense and has eschewed any discussion or reference to those doctrinal questions that have set one-half of the denizens of the land at sword's point against the other half. But maybe those who know about the paper do not know so much about the founder and, for many years the editor, of Ram's Horn. A word about "Ram's Horn" Brown will be of particular interest at this time because he has been engaged by the Western Redpath Chautauqua System to devote his whole time the coming season to lecturing at their summer assembly. Like so many of the great men of the nation, Elijah P. Brown was born of a poor family, in a poor town in a poor industrial district of Ohio. He says that he can not remember that his father ever held him on his lap or that his mother ever kissed him. Yet they were honest folks, even church-going Christians. They never seemed to have time to get acquainted with their children and to realize that their little hearts were bleeding for love. The little Elijah ran away from home while yet a very little boy and became apprenticed to a printer. He became a good workman and developed a business judgment that soon made him master of his own profit paying shop in a small city. He was not in sympathy with the church or anything that stood for morality; in fact he was a "tough nut." He became a devout believer in Ingels and was proud of the intimate friendship that developed between the eminent infidel and himself. It was after he had become a millionaire publisher, a writer of great reputation and a lecturer of recognized ability along the lines of his apostate theories that by the merest chance Mr. Brown heard the great Moody preach a sermon before twenty thousand people in Chicago. Brown went to scoff; he stayed to consider and he went away to pray. He returned to his home in another state and struggled manfully with his doubts, but not being satisfied, he returned to Chicago and sought out Mr. Moody. That talk settled matters and the infidel Brown became the Evangelist Brown.

It is a tale by itself how he was a great preacher. He founded the "Ram's Horn" and led his fortune, with his continued the fight, with the aid of friends, until he finally put the paper on a paying basis and gave the world a new literature. It is only of late that the "Ram's Horn" has been billing Chautauqua dates, but he is proving to be a great success. Contrary to expectations Mr. Brown is not soured by his early, painful experience, but is one of the most humorous speakers on the American platform. He believes that fun and gospel are the twin hand-maidens of human usefulness.

TOWNS LIKE MEN ARE OFTEN PESSIMISTIC.

Towns like people get the idea at times that they just cannot make anything good. Good, for a town, is sometimes said: "If this were such and such town we could make improvements and have things we ought to have, but our town is a stick-in-the-mud sort of a town and we can't." That kind of feeling will kill any town in the world. If we will wake up and stand together we can have anything we want in this town. Our patronage is good, people come from other territory to our town to trade. The question is how long will they do this if we do not make an effort to show our appreciation of them and by spending the week among our patrons and showing them a good time, we can add much to our families a week's treat of good things. Let every enterprising citizen join the line-up for a Big Chautauqua.

NORMAL NOTES

Elias M. Wipf, one of the College students, won in one of the races July 4 and also played ball. This made him a neat little sum that will come very handy to a student. There are only five more weeks until Commencement. The letters coming to the office would indicate that a large number of old students would be here at that time, as this will be the last Commencement under the present management.

Deputy State Supt. R. S. Perdue was in Wayne Friday checking up the blanks of those who are candidates for State Certificates. The requirements have been raised, hence not so large a number are candidates this year as formerly.

Mrs. Hornberger, Supt. of the Detention School at Lincoln, and Probation officer, spent a few days as the guest of her friend Mrs. Pile. While here she gave two addresses on the various phases of her work which were not only entertaining but instructive.

Many former students were in Wayne for the Fourth. All were loud in their praises of the splendid manner in which this day was observed by Wayne people. A number assured us they would be back for Chautauqua and later for Commencement.

Among new students to enroll this week are Marnie Zapke, Villisca, Iowa; Maude and Ennis Warner, Dallas, South Dakota; Ruth Sherbahn, Wayne; May and Cecelia Peters, Hay Springs; Lena Mille, Gregory, South Dakota; Lena Larsen, Nacora; Mae Donohoe, Columbus; Verba Berger, Wayne; Mabel Addington, and Ruth Thomas of Verdel; Sara Nicklin, Oil City, Pa.

Ponca had two bad accidents in connection with its 4th of July celebration. During the parade of floats the team drawing the girls representing the forty-eight states and goddess of liberty ran away, throwing them all off and injuring every one of the girls more or less. In the evening a premature explosion of some of the fireworks injured thirteen young people, one boy losing his eye sight.

O. A. King Has Splendid Interview

With Dr. Victor Alderson, President of the School of Mines, and Also With Captain Smith, Reporter for the Daily News.

O. A. King and B. E. Elliott returned Monday morning from the West where they both had taken a crowd to see the King Solomon. A special car was set in at Omaha for them and the crowd returned enthusiastic supporters, about fifty thousand shares being sold on the trip.

One banker who was in the crowd, after going through the extensive workings and breaking down ore in the veins and sampling from the ore bins and dumps, made the remark that a man who wouldn't buy stock in the company now wouldn't buy gold dollars at fifty cents apiece.

O. A. says that "every one who sees the King Solomon this season is enthusiastic about it and that if he could get a couple of hundred people to see it at one time he could sell the entire issue in one day." People who have not seen it do not realize what a big proposition we have out there."

He says further that on his return trip he had the pleasure of meeting on the train Captain Smith, a mining reporter for the Denver Daily News, who when informed that O. A. was connected with the K. S. made the remark that he was just the man he was looking for as he had just written up an article about the King Solomon for the Daily News. He went on to say that he and Dr. Victor Alderson, president of the School of Mines at Golden, had stopped off in the district that day and had heard so much about King Solomon that he had given the K. S. a write-up. Captain there-upon introduced O. A. to Dr. Alderson who unfolded from a large handkerchief a fine sample of King Solomon ore which he was taking back with him to place on exhibit in the School of Mines. He said he valued it very highly for it was most excellent ore and it was the first of that character that he had heard of being opened at the enormous depth of over two thousand feet.

He said a big vein like that would supply a big mill and that the K. S. management were following out the right policy in first opening up the large ore reserves before they went into production. He said it was a mistake for any mine to start shipping their ore as soon as it was opened and before the proper development work was done. O. A. and his agency force are very hopeful of closing out the balance of the King Solomon stock in the next few weeks and those who have been holding off will have to speak up and be quick about it if they get any stock for less than one dollar per share.

The Prince of Hotel Proprietors

Way back somewhere in the sixties a young man traveled from his little sheep farm down in Texas, where the floods had cleaned out all his stock, to New York City. His name was George C. Boldt, and the gyrations of fortunes wheel that carried him from his first humble job of washing dishes and peeling onions in a restaurant kitchen to proprietor of some of the most princely hotels make up one of the most fascinating stories in the July issue of Human Life.

Men who climb to the highest pinnacle of success in a certain line oftentimes get hold of some theory or make a discovery in their first humble beginnings whereby they afterwards revolutionize the business. This was the case with Boldt.

The star to which he had hitched his wagon was proprietorship of a hotel. Opportunity knocked and he gave her the glad hand. Then presto—to his little hostelry one day, with flourish of trumpets, descended the great William Waldorf Astor—and the hotel register full. But Boldt wasn't easily feazed, and the way in which he rose to the occasion and the meal he served to the great William in his modest little dining room convinced Astor that he had found the man that he was looking for. The result was that the fortunes of the great Waldorf-Astoria were committed to his hands.

Step by step the story traces his rise, and not the least interesting part of the narrative is the story of the great hotel whose magnificence has left nothing for competitors to surpass.

This is the first of a series of stories to appear in Human Life relating to the great American captains of industry in various lines.

The men who bought the right to make moving picture films of the Johnson-Jeffries prize fight expect to realize 1,000,000 from their sale. If all of the cities and towns do as some of them are doing, and all of them should do so, stop the exhibition of all such pictures, the promoters will feel like thirty cents.

William Jennings Bryan is out with a long article in which he insists that the great issue in Nebraska at the coming campaign must be county option. He will not consent to its being set aside for any other issue. "Thus does democracy work together, not a little.

Stanjon has $5,414.83 in its school treasury.

The democrats of Cedar county, in convention, condemned county option.

The Fair Store at Wakefield has been sold to Gunn & Connor, of Iowa.

The Hartington school district has a bonded indebtedness of $7,000 at six per cent.

The village of Magnet will vote August 2 on the question of bonding for water works.

Randolph will vote in the near future on the proposition of building a four room school house.

The month of June just passed was the driest ever known at Norfolk, from a rainfall point of view.

If the Pierce County Leader has a good explanation to offer why this office gets four blank pages in the Leader every week we should like to have it.

Wakefield has levied a five mill tax for building purposes and $5,000 for school purposes next year, and the estimated amount for carrying on the district next year is $6,750.

J. W. Gordon says that if the village of Wakefield will furnish a suitable site for a hotel that he will put up a fine new modern hotel building with steam heat and everything up-to-date.

W. H. Terwilliger, who for the past eight years has been traveling auditor for the Anchor Grain Co., in this territory, resigned his position July 1, and will go to Colorado. He is succeeded by John Brenner, of Minneapolis.

The Madison Chronicle well says: "If our dry weather doesn't soon let up we all will be wishing we were in a sure enough dry country where they have the rain by the tail, in an irrigation ditch, to be turned on at will."

The Norfolk Press says: "The Pioneer Herald is happy in a new home, engine and cylinder press. Evidently the Herald was recently benefitted of some rich relation or did he make it all out of his census enumerator-ship?"

W. E. Reed, the democratic candidate, or one of them, for congress in this district, seems to be a sort of a two for a nickle fellow, as he is doing his best to get all the papers of the district to run his campaign literature on the patent side, free of charge.

Willis E. Reed, of Norfolk, has announced his candidacy for United States senator on the democratic ticket. He will also have a check book to further his political aspirations.—Hartington Herald. It must be a very small one judged by his frenzied efforts to get his plate matter run free.

Quite a number of people are advocating that a good roads tax be levied on every automobile. We fail to see why, after the owner of an automobile, pays a general tax on his machine, as all of them do, that he should then be asked to pay a special tax any more than a man who runs a wagon or any other conveyance over the roads.

It is safe to say that Sioux City will not be able to fool the people again on a so-called flying machine event. It is also likely that they will not be duped by the same methods again either, as it cost the promoters $6,500, $2,000 for each flight, and a flight, under the contract was simply if the machine left the ground, and did not even circle around the track, let alone soaring above the people's heads. There are all sorts of fakes and humbugs, but this is the latest.

If any one of the family is so unfortunate as to sprain his or her ankle you will find that you can make the doctor's part easier by soaking the afflicted member at once in hot water. This relieves the congestion and by the time the doctor arrives with the bandages the sprain will be ready for treatment. It is better not to wait a moment to find out how serious the injury is, for hot water can do no harm and the patient's suffering will be greatly lessened by prompt action.

The Fishing Season Is On In Northern Wisconsin Lakes

At many of the lakes and streams in Northern Wisconsin along the Omaha Road, big catches of Bass, Trout, Pike, Muscalonge and Crappies are being reported. The weather and water conditions are just right, and now is the time to pack your fishing tackle and write or wire for accommodations at one or other of the fishing resorts while the season is at its best. The lakes near Turtle Lake, Cumberland, Shell Lake, Hayward, Cable, Solon Springs, Chevak, Birchwood, Radisson, Rice Lake and New Auburn are all well stocked with the gamiest varieties of fresh water fish; the hotel accommodations are good and the prices reasonable. Before planning your trip, write for our outing folder "Camping, Fishing and Hunting in Northern Wisconsin." It will be mailed free on request.

Learn the Cause of Daily Woes and End Them

When the back aches and throbs. When housework is torture. When night brings no rest nor sleep.

When urinary disorders set in. Women's lot is a weary one. There is a way to escape these woes.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure such ills. Have cured thousands. Read this woman's testimony.

Mrs. J. D. Spencer, Wakefield, Neb., says: "I had kidney trouble and rheumatism for many years and I suffered a great deal from backache, particularly if I were on my feet much. My kidneys were weak and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage and unnatural. I tried various remedies, but I must say that I received more relief from Doan's Kidney Pills than from all the other preparations put together. Doan's Kidney Pills, in my opinion, are a specific for kidney trouble."
