SUDDEN DEATH OF WAYNE MAN

E. B. PHILLEO PASSES AWAY

While Suffering Mental Aberration, He Takes His Own Life at His Home in Idaho.

Wayne relatives and friends of E. B. Philleo were shocked by the word flashed from Twin Falls, Idaho, last Thursday, that he was dying in a hospital there. This was soon supplemented by the news of his death. Wednesday morning, October 12, shortly after 5 o'clock, at his home in Twin Falls, temporarily bereft of reason by a physical defect which a post-mortem examination revealed, he inflicted fatal wounds on his body by the use of a knife. At once taken to a hospital, he was given into the care of skilled physicians, but the ugly gashes which he suffered, presaged inevitable death, and he passed away at 11 o'clock Thursday afternoon. His anxious wife was at his bedside almost constantly, comforting him with all possible attention.

E. B. Philleo, or "Ted," as he was familiarly known by his friends in Wayne, removed with his family to Idaho April 15, locating at Twin Falls, in that state, May 18. He entered the employ of the Bell Telephone company as district organizer, and later took up the work of housewiring for the company. He had profitable employment all summer, and made a number of advantageous investments in real estate. Finally, quitting other employment, he became attracted to the possibilities in the development of the Twin Falls newspaper man in the purchase of the plant and business. Ted was installed as business manager, and was enthusiastic over the outlook for the institution with which he had just become associated. Notwithstanding good profit from his labor and investments during the summer, he often became discouraged and dispirited. He frequently complained of pains in his stomach and back.

On the evening of the 11th inst., the second day after assuming charge of the News, he came home apparently feeling cheerful and buoyant and confident of the prospect. After retiring, however, he was wakeful and nervous. His wife rubbed his head and hands and tried to quiet him. At 5 o'clock, following hours of uneasy wakefulness for both him and his wife, he told her that he believed he could now sleep, and accordingly got his little girl, Esther, who was sleeping with her brother in an adjoining room, and put her in bed with her mother. Having done so, he disappeared into the adjoining room with the avowed intention of sleeping with his little son, Rialto.

A few moments later Mrs. Philleo heard some one fall to the floor in the bedroom whither her husband had gone and immediately hurried there. She had suspected that her son had fallen out of bed. Instead, she was startled by a tragic sequel to the night's vigil. Ted lay on the floor mortally wounded with thrusts from a knife he had grabbed from a sack which hung on the wall convenient to the kitchen.

The appearance of his wife led him to exclaim: "Alice, this is awful hard on you, but I have been a failure in everything, and I don't want to make this a failure." She summoned Mr. R. Philleo, and hurried for a doctor who lived nearby. When the doctor arrived, the injured man told him that he didn't want to be helped, as he had nothing to live for. The doctor replied that the father of two such fine children had a great deal to live for. Ted said he had not thought of that, and with that reminder, expressed willingness to recover.

The young man was immediately taken to the hospital where, on examination, it was found that four gashes had been cut, one below the heart, another in the lungs, another in the bowels and one in the stomach, severing the gastric artery. An operation was performed, and the fatal nature of attack on himself was made apparent. With reason restored, he regretted what he had done during moments of mental aberration, and was conscious until death's touch closed his life.

Mrs. Philleo advised a post-mortem examination, and the result has done much to ease the burden on the sorrowing relatives. The surgeons in attendance found an intestinal contraction, affecting nervous centers and at times overwhelming the mind. This disease, the doctors said, would have resulted in his death within a few years. The examination explained the pain which he had suffered in the past, and which occasionally depressed his spirits without cause or reason.

Accompanied by the bereaved family and R. Philleo, the remains were shipped Friday to Wayne, arriving here Sunday morning. Funeral services were conducted at the R. Philleo home Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. Alexander Corkey of the Presbyterian church, and interment took place in the family plot in Greenwood cemetery.

A profusion of floral tributes, sent by people from Wayne and elsewhere, and beneath which the casket was hidden, testified to the high esteem in which the deceased young man was held.

E. B. Philleo was born at Blair, Neb., September 26, 1879, and came to Wayne with his parents from Ponca twenty-three years ago. He graduated from the Wayne high school, and afterwards for a number of years was employed in his father's lumber yard. Later he was in charge of the Wayne telephone exchange which he and his father owned, and which they sold shortly before the removal to Idaho.

He was married to Alice C. Hyde at Brookings, S. D., June 24, 1903, and to the union two children were born, Rialto, aged 6, and Esther, aged 5. He early joined the Presbyterian church, and was a practical, conscientious member. He was also a member of the A. O. U. W. lodge of Wayne.

Ted Philleo was a young man of exemplary habits and character. He was the essence of sincerity and honor in his relations with the world. He held and deserved the friendship of all. It is almost inconceivable that his sunny, cheerful nature, always in evidence, could for a moment have been blasted by the assault of a lurking disease. Liberated from a physical infirmity which incited destruction of the flesh, he will, from behind the veil that obscures eternity, watch with solicitude the footsteps of his two children and widowed wife who showed splendid, sterling character during her late trial, and who faces the future with laudable fortitude and confidence.

Besides his wife and children, he leaves a mother and father, and three sisters and two brothers, being Mrs. F. W. Norris of Washington, D. C., Mrs. J. W. Epler of Wayne, Mrs. Geo. Wilbur of Hood River, Ore., and Messrs. Fred and George Philleo of Wayne. In their affliction, they are assured the deep sympathy of the community.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

The number of typhoid cases, lately developed, impresses the importance of attention to the water supply. Most if not all of the cases thus far reported have been using water from private wells. These should be looked after, and the purity of the supply made certain. As to the city water, it is probably pure, but an analysis would give assurance. Further, the water mains ought to be flushed often enough to guarantee freshness and purity to the supply from hydrants on side streets. Flushing the mains every month would be none too often. Proper attention to water supply is a safeguard that is too important to be neglected.

CRABTREE TO BE HERE.

He is expected to be entertained in Wayne on the 27th. He will be accompanied by Mr. Opershevas who will speak at Hoskins, October 25.

JUDGE MOSES ENTERTAINS

HE BANQUETS HIS FRIENDS

Rich Five-course Dinner Followed by Merry Toasts - Songs and Orchestra Music.

The aftermath of the birthday surprise executed in honor of Judge Moses last July came Tuesday night when the latter acted as host at a banquet given by him for his friends at the Union hotel. The generous remembrance on his eightieth birthday anniversary was reciprocated in splendid style, the occasion being a brilliant success in every detail.

Twenty-eight guests gathered in the parlors of the Union hotel on invitation of Judge Moses. He was assisted in welcoming his friends by Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Moses. At 8 o'clock when the party had assembled, the genial host announced that dinner was ready in the dining hall, and that places at the tables would be found according to cards that had been previously arranged. Each place was provided with a cluster of flowers for a buttonhole bouquet. The dining hall was decorated in good taste, and an orchestra, comprising Chas. Craven, C. W. Salisbury and Miss Voigt, enlivened the occasion with appropriate musical selections.

After a five course dinner, replete with the choicest viands and luxuries, and served in perfect style, a season of toasts was introduced. W. H. Morris acting as toastmaster in a very creditable manner. The following persons responded to the subjects indicated: Rev. Alexander Corkey, "Our Host;" Dr. C. W. Wightman, "Eighty Years Young;" Judge Jas. Britton, "Our Neighbor;" Judge H. H. Moses, Life! Is it Worth Living?" Mrs. Morris sang a solo, "Annie Laurie," and the program was concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by all present. The talks were given in a happy vein, and a spirit of good nature and good cheer pervaded the banquet hall. Before dispersing, the crowd was photographed by Messrs. Craven and Salisbury.

Judge Moses looks younger than he is, and feels and acts younger than he looks. The mutual warmth of friendship between him and his Wayne acquaintances is plainly manifest. They esteem him, and he esteems them, and pronounced evidence of such esteem has been given on two notable occasions of late—the birthday surprise and the reciprocal banquet Tuesday night.

Judge Moses came to Wayne from Ohio twenty-two years ago in quest of better health, and he was abundantly rewarded by getting what he came after. Notwithstanding his eighty years, his health is good. He practiced law for thirty-five years in Ohio, where he was a leading member of the bar, and he worked so hard in his profession that he suffered a nervous breakdown, and as a consequence was advised to move west to recuperate, which he did, and he is now glad of it.

In Wayne he has been a conspicuous and helpful figure in the advancement of public enterprises. He was a leader in submitting the question of voting bonds for a new court house and was instrumental in the movement which culminated in the building of an opera house many years ago. He has been public spirited, and is known and respected by the community.

The following were his guests Tuesday night: Dan Harrington and wife, Jno. T. Bressler and wife, J. G. Mines and wife, Dr. J. J. Williams and wife, Rev. Alexander Corkey and wife, H. B. Jones and wife, W. H. Morris and wife, A. J. Ferguson and wife, F. E. Moses and wife, H. F. Wilson and wife, C. E. Smith and wife, Judge Jas. Britton and wife, and John Harrington and wife.

Are Your Pigs Full of Worms?

Pen them up. Do not give them anything to eat for one day. This is necessary to get their stomachs empty. A worm medicine is best on an empty stomach. Then give WORMITE in thick sludge made of ground feed morning and evening for three days. The number of worms that will be killed and expelled from your pigs will make you think they are worm factories working overtime. If your pigs are wormy, you cannot give them Wormite too soon.

Are you satisfied with anything other than the best? Don't be misled as to the quality of the suit you buy. When someone tells you that they sell just as good suits as the Wooltex, just find out if they will gladly do these things if your suit does not prove satisfactory: Will the suit be re-lined if the lining should wear out in two whole seasons' wear? Will the suit be replaced with a new one if it should fade? Is the style guaranteed, and the shapeliness permanent? Not a sort of evasive promise, but a specific guarantee should be demanded. Look for the Label and you will have all these specific guarantys.

Whale Oil Still in Demand.

Whale oil still has its uses and whalers' commands prices that make the search for it well worth the effort. While returning to Wayne from the country Sunday night, Orr Bell was startled five miles west of town by an individual springing from the brush and attempting to stop him by catching his horse by the bridle. The animal jumped and carried Bell safely into town. Harry McMullen driving over the same road later, saw a skulking man by the road-side in the same place.

The latter part of last week Lee and Harry Miner had a terrific experience with an unruly cow which they attempted to drive from a pasture. The animal first attacked Lee and knocked him down, stepped on him and tore off his clothes. Harry going to the rescue, was badly hooked. Both were severely hurt but fortunately no bones were broken. Had it not been for Harry's interference, Lee would probably have been killed.

PROPOSED RAILROAD.

Members of the Yankton commercial club have been in Omaha to talk over with leaders of that city the proposed railroad line from Yankton to Omaha. That is a proposed enterprise in which Wayne should share. This city is on a direct line between Omaha and Yankton, and such a road through here would be supported by the richest part of the state. Wouldn't it be well for the local commercial club to become active in going after the road?

THE BIG SUBSCRIPTION RALLY

Standing of Contestants to be Announced Next Week.

Many people have been asking how our subscription voting contest is coming along and who is in the lead. We do not know who is in the lead and will not know until the votes are counted next Tuesday. The standing of the contestants will be announced in next week's paper and then everyone interested can see how his or her favorite candidate stands.

Some of the contestants have already turned some nice subscription reports which insures them a good showing of votes when the first count is made, and others have good reports ready to turn in. All contestants must have their reports in the Herald office by next Tuesday in order to be counted.

Those of the contestants who have reported say it is an easy matter to secure new subscriptions to the Herald whenever they find anyone not taking the paper. People note the improvement in the Herald and are showing their appreciation by adding their names to the list. We have already made a good showing of new names and expect to secure several hundred before the contest is over.

The renewal subscriptions also help the contestants out for votes. Each contestant is provided with a list of the Herald subscribers showing when each subscription expires and they are authorized to collect money from anyone taking the Herald and give a receipt for same, and anyone paying one of these contestants will be credited on our subscription books the same as they would if they called at the office and paid. Remember the contestant can tell you what you owe on subscription and you will be doing the contestant a favor if you will pay him or her. Of course people paying subscriptions at the office are entitled to votes and can cast them for any contestant they wish to favor. Since the contest started a great many have called at the office and paid subscriptions and cast their votes for their favorite contestants. The line-up of contestants is as follows:

- Mrs. Roy E. Fisher..... Wayne R. F. D. 1
- Mr. Jas. Steele..... Wayne R. F. D. 2
- Mr. Albert Sals..... Wayne R. F. D. 1

"IT BEATS ALL."

This is quoted from a letter of M. Stockwell, Hannibal, Mo. "I recently used Foley's Honey and Tar for the first time. To say I am pleased does not half express my feelings. It beats all the remedies I ever used. I contracted a bad cold and was threatened with pneumonia. The first doses gave great relief and one bottle completely cured me." Contains no opiates. Felber's Pharmacy.

CAPT. BOGARDUS AGAIN HITS THE BULL'S EYE.

This world famous rifle shot who holds the championship record of 100 pigeons in 100 consecutive shots is living at Lincoln, Ill. Recently interviewed, he says: "I suffered a long time with kidney and bladder trouble and used several well known kidney medicines, all of which gave me no relief until I started taking Foley Kidney Pills. Before I used Foley Kidney Pills, I had severe backaches and pains in my kidneys with suppression and a cloudy voiding. On arising in the morning I would get dull headaches. Now I have taken three bottles of Foley Kidney Pills and feel 100 per cent better. I am never bothered with my kidneys or bladder and again feel like my own self." Felber's Pharmacy.

THE DELINQUENT TAX LIST.

Lincoln Journal: These are hard times, in one respect, for the "official" newspapers of Nebraska. The delinquent tax list as a revenue-making standby of the editor who happened to be in the graces of the powers at the court house, has shrunk and shrunk till in some counties it is almost invisible. Cedar county is an example. As reported by the Randolph Times: "The tax list for Cedar county is the smallest this year it has been for the many years. Precincts 1, 14, 20 and 22 have no delinquent taxes at all. The Randolph precinct has five pieces of land advertised and some have only two or three. A batch of town lots at St. Helena that haven't paid taxes for some twenty or thirty years have been put on the list and advertised and will be sold for taxes, which in most cases amounts to but a few dollars for each lot. These lots make up almost one-third of the list.

How Stonewall Jackson Won Life's Battle

By JOSEPH W. FOLK, former Governor of Missouri

YOU may be whatever you resolve to be." This was the motto of Stonewall Jackson. By this rule he lived and conquered, and by it died in the rush of victory. Such was Jackson's faith in God and himself, he inspired not only his own men with the certainty of victory, but the entire confederacy felt sure of ultimate triumph while he was in the field. No warrior was ever worshiped by his people as was this Soldier Saint of the Lost Cause. While he lived and fought the people of the south saw in him the incarnation of God's justice struggling for them. When the wound which was inadvertently given by his own men at Chancellorsville terminated fatally, the news came as a chilling shock to southern hearts. The history of modern times affords no parallel to the deep sorrow that throbbled in the hearts of the confederate people when Jackson died. Those who had never seen his face wept for him as for their nearest kindred. They began to realize that with him removed their cause was doomed. As one of the leaders declared when he heard the news of Jackson's death, "God has deserted us, else he would not have taken Jackson."

In being so bowed down with grief at Jackson's loss, it must not be understood that they loved Robert E. Lee and their other generals less for the first named at least, their devotion amounted to idolatry, but there was something in Jackson that the others did not possess which appealed to the people of the south, and gave them a sublime confidence. This was the reflection of his absolute faith that the hand of Providence was guiding him on.

Christened "Stonewall" at Manassas. Stonewall Jackson, as every school-boy knows, was plain Thomas J. Jackson until the battle of Manassas when the day seemed to be going against the southern forces. Gen. Bee rode up to Jackson and in despair exclaimed: "There is no help for us back," and Jackson replied: "Then we will give them the bayonet." Catching the inspiration of Jackson's indomitable will, Bee galloped back to his command and shouted: "There is Jackson standing like a stone wall. Rally behind the Virginians. Follow me." Gen. Bee charged at the head of his men, and in a little while fell mortally wounded with his face to the front. From that time Jackson was known as "Stonewall," and his command became immortal as the Stonewall brigade.

Stonewall Jackson's ancestors had lived in Maryland and Virginia for more than 100 years and were of Scotch-Irish descent. They were all honest, God-fearing people, and they were of fighting blood, taking a conspicuous part, first in the Indian troubles, and then in the revolutionary war.

Not Robust in Boyhood. The boy who was to become one of the greatest military commanders the world has ever known, was born in 1782 in Chesburg among the beautiful mountains of west Virginia, and now West Virginia. He was left an orphan at an early age by the death of his father, and his mother being unable to support him, he lived with an uncle, through whose kindness he was given the benefit of the best schools of those times. Without showing any special aptness as a scholar, he by perseverance mastered whatever he undertook, and through hard study learned his lessons well. Like all geniuses of war he excelled in mathematics. As a boy he was not strong physically, and in his early years suffered a partial paralysis, which later disappeared through the strenuous exercises at the military academy.

Served as County Constable. Partly for the healthful outdoor work that the office would give and partly to obtain funds to aid in his further education, he secured the appointment as constable in his district. He was under age at the time, but was in such general favor that no one raised the question as to the legality of the court appointing a minor to the office. He performed the duties of this post with industry and fidelity, though the duties of people he was thrown in contact with officially, were not such as to aid in the development of character.

As he approached manhood he did not display that sober, serious nature that afterwards dominated him. The spiritualization of everything he did, and his rule of making every act of his life a religious act came later. At this time he was different from other young men in attending horse races, house raisings and country dances. His truthfulness and aggressive honesty remained untarnished from childhood. He was always modest, self-reliant and full of dignity and courtesy.

Success in Mexican War. At the age of 18 he obtained a West Point cadetship and entered that institution. His literary education had not been thorough, and he progressed with difficulty. (In the examinations which closed the first half year's novitiate he came within an inch of failing. He steadily improved, however, through his earnest application and untiring perseverance, and graduated at the age of 22, in 1840, seventeenth in a class of about seventy. The Mexican war was then in progress, and Jackson was at once made second lieutenant by virtue of his West Point commission. His services were brilliant in this campaign, and he was promoted to the rank of major.

Became Devout Christian. So far Jackson had not given deep study to religious subjects, and had little knowledge of creeds. When he returned to the United States at the close of the Mexican war, he became intensely concerned in Christianity, and joined the Episcopal church. From that time forward his every act was characterized by extreme piety. He is quoted as having said that two hours was as long as he could go without communing with his Maker in prayer. Conscientiousness was one of his marked traits, and duty was to him of first consideration. His reverence of the Deity was that of the standard of perfection and of the source of authority. He believed in a special Providence, and was erroneously called a fatalist by some. His abiding trust and simple faith were those of a child. He never questioned the ways and wherefores of Providence but fervently prayed for everything and was satisfied with what occurred. "I prefer God's will to my own," he said.

A few years after the close of the Mexican war, he accepted the chair of natural philosophy in the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington, and took charge of the cadets at that place. This connection opened up for him his career in the war. At the outbreak of hostilities between the states he responded to the call of the governor of Virginia, and placed his cadets and himself under Gen. Robert E. Lee's command. He was appointed colonel of the Virginia Volunteers. After the battle of Harper's Ferry he was promoted to the rank of brigadier general in recognition of his eminent ability.

A Thunderbolt in War. He then began those marvelous military operations that have won the plaudits of all mankind. Military experts have pronounced his maneuvers greater in some respects than Napoleon's and surpassing in details those of Julius Caesar. He was a thunderbolt of war-energy. He would strike at one point and in an incredibly short time attack at some distant place, and hurl his forces against the weakest link of his opponent. He was never routed in battle and never had an organized portion of his army captured. The baffling strategy which he brought to bear upon the opposing forces, his furious attacks, and his remarkable marches made his name and fame as a leader of armies undying. While the battle raged he would be in the very front of danger, and when the crisis was passed he would retire to his tent for prayer. His trust in the Almighty made him fearless of all things else. He united qualities that seemed incompatible, by combining military genius of the highest order with intense religious fervor. He would never tell his plans of war even to his closest associates, and those around him would not know what he intended to do until the orders were given. He made rapid marches, advancing and retreating with a swiftness unexampled before in the annals of war. His sudden onslaughts usually swept all before him, and when the opposition brought against him over-whelming numbers he would suddenly disappear to crash like lightning in a new and unexpected place. His tactics were to advance and fight and and independent states confederated under a constitution guaranteeing those rights; the north fought to establish the indissolubility of the union of those states. It is plain now that armed conflict over this question was inevitable from the time the states came together to form a "more perfect union" and adopted a constitution without settling the question of the right of a state to withdraw from that compact. The future was certain to bring either disunion or the sealing of the union in blood. If the difference as to the dissolubility of the union had not arisen out of slavery, it would have come over some other problem. The south was deeply impressed with the righteousness of its cause, and Lee and Jackson and the other great leaders believed in it as they did in their religion. They were fighting for the freedom of their states—not for the slavery of men and women.

These disputes are all forever settled now, and no patriotic American wishes they had terminated other than as they did. Nevertheless, the southern cause was to millions of good people a sacred cause, worth going on fighting until victorious. Through it all he prayed and prayed. More than once as his brigade was passing into action, he could be seen sitting motionless upon his horse with right hand uplifted, and while the war columns swept by him in solemn silence, into the very storm of shot, his lips would move in earnest prayer as the earth trembled beneath the thunder of cannon, and the very air of the heavens seemed agitated with the shriek of shell.

Slain by His Own Men. "You may be whatever you resolve to be," and so he resolved and he won. He believed that his marvelous victories would go on to the end of the war, and that the southern cause would triumph, but God willed otherwise. His victory at Chancellorsville was followed soon after by his death from the injuries inflicted by the fire of his own soldiers, who in the darkness of night mistook him and his escort for the enemy. He accepted the Divine Will with that same satisfaction he did his favors, knowing it to be best. As he lay on his deathbed conscious that his earthly allegiances were in ruins, and that his life was ebbing fast, he was thoroughly resigned to his fate. When the shadows came closer, and he realized that the end was at hand, he said his last words: "Let us cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees." So he died courageous and trustful, a noble example of the winning of life's battle by simple faith and devotion to duty.

Fought for State's Rights. Was he sincere? His critics question. How, it has been asked, could a man pray for the continuation of human slavery? The civil war was not waged for or against slavery. It is true the agitation of the slavery question brought about the issues out of which the war came; but the south did not fight to keep negroes slaves, nor did the north fight to make negroes free. The south battled for what it conceived to be the rights of free praying for and dying for. Exactly as no southerner now regrets that the union was maintained, so no patriotic northerner denies the sincerity of the southerners in fighting so bravely for a cause they believed altogether righteous.

Roused North and Thus Saved Union. The evening bells of life are tolling for the survivors of that fierce conflict, and one by one they are being laid to rest in their last camping ground. The animosities of other years have subsided in the soft twilight of time and the deeds of those who wore the gray as well as those who wore the blue are the common glory of a united country. Jackson believed and taught that God's will is best, and so all see it was in the end of that contest. It was this man of iron and of faith that was raised up through his mighty victories to arouse the nation, and thus preserve this federated republic that is the hope of the oppressed of every land.

Faith in God, faith in his fellow men, faith in himself, these are the ways by which Jackson won a fame that will become brighter and brighter as time flies through the ages.

At the Austrian Border

"You may talk about the difficulties you encounter with the custom inspectors on arriving in New York," said an English woman in New York, "but you will find that worse troubles of the kind accumulate for you in certain parts of Europe. Especially is this apt to be true on the Austrian border."

"I was coming up from Turkey on my way to Paris a few months ago. Owing to the fact that my cousin, who had been traveling with me, could not get away from Constantinople, I had to make the journey alone."

"The train on which I traveled is supposed to be one of the finest in Europe, but most of the way to Vienna it stops every few minutes. They told me the reason was that they had been unable to get enough coal to start with and that these stops were necessary to get fuel. Apparently they took on about a shovelful at each station."

"We reached the Austrian frontier about two o'clock in the morning, and there uniformed customs officials went through the train routing out everybody. They wouldn't let the women dress, and I had to hurry out with nothing on but a dressing gown, and the night was cold, too. We were huddled in a room in the station and our hand luggage was brought out, while every compartment in the train was searched. Then they made us open our bags and satchels."

"The man who attended to my luggage was a very disagreeable sort of person. He insisted upon my opening every parcel I had."

"Now, in my effects was a large box of Turkish delight, which, as you may know, is a sort of sweet paste or gum and is considered a great delicacy out there. I was taking it to some friends in home. The box was solidly constructed, in fact, there were two outer cases of wood and the candy was in a sealed tin box."

"You must open this box," said the official in gruff German."

"I certainly shall not," I replied, and I explained what it contained."

"But it must be opened," he insisted. He refused to believe me."

"Then open it yourself," I said; "but you must fasten it up again."

"He growled and started in. The outer case was securely nailed and it took some time to get the top off. When he had removed that and revealed another wooden box the official swore. Then when he had got the top off the second box there was the tin. He spelled the blade of his knife cutting that open and then when he came to the Turkish delight he was disgusted."

"Of course I laughed in his face. Then he refused to pack the boxes again, but I insisted, threatening him with all sorts of things about appealing to the British ambassador, and so on, so he finally turned in and did as I ordered; another woman, while my fellow passengers chaffed him at being ordered about by a woman."

"I learned afterward that a woman traveling alone had been smuggling a lot of Turkish tobacco into Austria and that the officials had lately been keeping a sharp lookout for her. My being unaccompanied had aroused suspicion."

The dentists who took a stand against kissing probably lost the patronage of all kissable girls.

crowd by calling, "Oh you Dick, Patty," and so on till the whole set were awake. So was every one else."

"I did learn the names of one young man and his sister, but as for the others, were I to meet any of them on Broadway or the Bowery or any other place I should be tempted to greet him with, 'Oh you Harry, Oh you kid.' Perhaps I was an 'Oh you something' this summer myself."

AROUND THE HOUSE

ADVICE AND INFORMATION OF ALL SORTS.

Humor and Wisdom Combined in a Manner That Will Appeal to Housewife Desirous of Being Up to Date.

Gather and burn the rubbish. "Gently to hear; kindly to judge."

When a mouse gets into the home of a Turk it must have a harem score 'em loots.

A clothes tree on which to hang unfinished garments is a great convenience in a sewing-room.

When powdered sugar gets hard, run it through the food chopper. This is an easier way of breaking the lumps than using a rolling-pin.

In a department store a man is apt to buy the first article shown to him—a woman the last; but it takes her a long time to decide which shall be the last.

To thicken gravies for pot roasts or stews, put a piece of brown bread in with the meat. When you go to make the gravy rub it up for the thickening. Be careful not to fill the kerosene lamp too full. The oil may be drawn up over the top and get on fire and make you trouble—maybe set the house on fire.

Never leave a trunk lid raised when there are children about. They are naturally inclined to investigate things, and leading against the trunk to look in may bring the lid down upon them with serious consequences.

Comfort in a cold country house can be gotten from a small log of hard wood which is slowly heated for some hours in the cook-stove oven, and then slipped into a bag of heavy cotton flannel. It has a very pleasant fragrance that is hardly matched by the customary rubber hot-water bag.

Those who intend to dry sweet corn will find the following device a help: Take a piece of planed inch board, about six inches square; drive a six-penny or eight-penny nail through center and set in plan; force cooked cob down on nail, which holds ear in place while being shaved.

I knew a man who thought his wife ought to look his clothes over every night to see if the buttons were all right and no holes in the pockets. And yet I never heard that he sat up nights thinking of the little things he might do to make his wife happier. Lots of 'em he might have thought of. Brethren, let's be ready to give as well as to take.

There are candies sold in the form of cigarettes in boxes in imitation of those the real articles are and it is quite a sight to see little five and six-year-old lads with these in their mouths pretending to smoke them. Couldn't you discourage the habit of buying such candies, mothers? When the demand ceases, they will not be made.

Apple butter is made with a new unforded cider. It is made with a preserving jug with fresh cider and boil it down one-half. Repeat this until you have the desired quantity. It is well to do this the day before making the apple butter. To every four gallons of bottled cider allow a half-bushel of nice, juicy apples, pared, cored and quartered. Nearly fill a large kettle with cider and put in as many apples as it will cover. Stir it often, and when the apples are soft stir continuously until they are a pulp. Cook and stir until the butter is dark brown and as thick as a marmalade. Add bottled cider if it becomes too thick, and apples, if too thin. It requires no sugar. Spices can be added if liked, but we think it better without them. When cold put in stone jars and cover; it is not necessary to seal them.—Farm Journal.

Wedding Cake.

One pound of flour, one pound of sugar, one pound of butter, one cup of molasses, one dozen eggs, one and one-half cups of sour milk, and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of soda. Three pounds raisins, two pounds currants, one-half pound chopped walnut meats, one-half pound candied orange peel, two grated nutmegs, two tablespoonfuls cinnamon, one tablespoonful cloves, ground; two gills best brandy, one gill best wine. Bake four hours in moderate oven.

Muttonettes.

Cut from a leg of mutton slices about one inch thick. On each slice lay a spoonful of stuffing made of bread crumbs, pepper, egg, butter, salt, sage, pepper. Roll up slices, pinning with little skewers or toothpicks to keep dressing in. Put a little butter and water in a baking pan with the muttonettes and cook in hot oven, three-quarters of an hour. Baste often, and when done thicken the gravy, pour over the meat, garnish with parsley, and serve on hot platter.

Peach Butter.

Select peaches that are neither too mealy nor too juicy. To half bushel of peaches allow from four to five pounds of granulated sugar. Peel and halve the peaches, and put into a kettle, stirring constantly to prevent burning. When perfectly smooth and thick add the sugar. Put in jars that are air-tight. A part of the stones may be added to give a nice flavor.

Tomato Marmalade.

Pare and seed four quarts of ripe tomatoes and four pounds of granulated sugar, six large lemons and one cupful of seeded raisins. Put these in a kettle in layers and cook until quite thick. Pack in jars and cover with paraffin. This is a delicious relish.

Beetroot and Onion Salad.

Pare and slice some small beet roots in a shallow dish and the slices chopped onion among the slices. Pour first a little oil over them and just before serving add a dressing made of salt, pepper, vinegar and mustard.

Gathering.

To gather nicely on the sewing machine make the tension quite loose. Then pull the top thread tense and then the lower one will not pull through, as is often the case when you draw it up. It also saves tying the two ends together.

Wore on Visitor's Nerves

"No, I'm not particularly enthusiastic over my vacation," said the lady with the young face and the beautiful gray hair, in answer to her friend's question. "I fear I'm growing old—old in mind and impulses, I mean. I've been losing one of my net fancies—delusion perhaps it was—and that is always disconcerting."

The chief charm of youth, to me, has ever been its originality. Perhaps this was an "off" summer for the youth who gathered at the little shore place where I spent the summer; and why it was a bit disappointing to find them all members of the "Oh you family."

"I'll admit the first two or three times one hears a 'youngster' talk another with a jovial 'Oh you Harry,' or 'Polly,' as the case may be, it sounds rather smart, but given 20 or 30 young people living in the space of two city blocks for three months, with the one constant greeting, "Oh you Beesie," "Oh you kid," and its novelty passes" on one."

"Needless to say this particular crowd of young folk devoted many of its faithful sleeping hours as well as its waking ones to larks and escapades of all sorts, and an ancient body like myself never appreciated being wakened at any and all hours of the night by the tuncful cry, 'Oh you Mary—Paul—Jane' from the next door plazza. They went nightly in a body to the post office—a small town's most popular meeting place—and on their return left their several members of the never-omitted parting salute from all—'Oh you—'."

"In the morning neither cockcrow nor jangling waves, not even your neighbor's cook nor a fish peddler disturbed our morning naps, but some 'up and coming' youngster up the street, or perhaps nearer by, began wakening the various members of the crowd by calling, 'Oh you Dick, Patty,' and so on till the whole set were awake. So was every one else."

"I did learn the names of one young man and his sister, but as for the others, were I to meet any of them on Broadway or the Bowery or any other place I should be tempted to greet him with, 'Oh you Harry, Oh you kid.' Perhaps I was an 'Oh you something' this summer myself."

"My heart became weak and uncertain in its action and that frightened me. Finally my physician told me, about a year ago, that I must stop drinking coffee or I could never expect to be well again."

"I was in despair, for the very thought of the medicine I had tried set many lines on my face. I thought of Postum but could hardly bring myself to give up the coffee."

"Finally I concluded that I owed it to myself to give Postum a trial. So I got a package and carefully followed the directions, and what a delicious, nourishing, rich drink it was! Do you know I found it very easy to shift from coffee to Postum and not mind the change at all!"

"Almost immediately after I made the change I found myself better, and the days went by I kept on improving. My nervous system and brain began to feel strong and well-balanced all the time."

"Now I am completely cured, with the old nervousness and sickness all gone. In every way I am well once more."

Second Annual Corn Show

Bigger, Better Than Ever

The interest the farmers took in our corn show last year is what made it the success it was and the Wayne Commercial club earnestly hopes that they will show even more interest this year. As with the co-operation of the farmers with us in this movement we can have one of the best corn shows in Wayne to be seen in Nebraska.

The Commercial club and merchants of Wayne are giving liberal prizes, and are willing to do all the work in connection with the show. All we request of you is that you make an effort to have an exhibit in at least one of the classes we will have, and with the quality of grain raised here this year, you ought to be able to enter two or three classes.

The premium list and catalogue will be ready in a very few days.

The management of the supper wishes to announce that all ladies who left dishes after the feast can have them by calling at the church parlors.
Peter Henkle returned Sunday from Sioux City where he went to escort his fourteen-year-old son Fred back home. Fred took a notion that he wanted to go to Sioux City and engage in the show business, and went there Friday with a companion who had a similar ambition. The boy thoughtfully mailed a card to his father, who, accordingly, went after him. The boy was glad to get back home.
Ellis Powers and Jas. Bostedder had a narrow escape from being run over by the Norfolk passenger train Monday night. Ellis is the son of Frank Powers, drayman, and carries the mail from the depot to the post-office. When the train came along, the young man jumped on the mail car, as was his custom. The crowd was so large and pressed so close to the moving train that Ellis struck Bostedder and both were knocked down and onto the track. The engineer saw the accident and applying the air brakes, stopped the engine instantly, and thus saved Powers and Bostedder from being crushed and killed. This narrow escape from a fatal accident emphasizes the fact that there is not sufficient space on the depot platform.

BIG CROWD HEARS BURKETT EXPLAINS THE NEW TARIFF

Not Ideal, But Best That Could Have Been Passed at the Time—The Party of Progress.

Hon. E. J. Burkett, United States senator, and candidate for re-election, addressed a good sized crowd at the opera house in Wayne Friday night. The political pot has not been boiling enough in Wayne county of late years to make political meetings very attractive, and so it has not been certain that a crowd would respond to the announcement of the coming of an orator. Thus, the size of the audience that gathered to hear Senator Burkett was very gratifying to him and the local partisans having the meeting in charge. Preliminary to the speaking, the brass band gave a number of lively selections.

The senator's presentation of facts was clear and forceful, and his showing in behalf of the accomplishments of the republican party justified the belief that none left the meeting without stronger respect and fealty for that party. The senator was received with applause, and his utterances, frequently clinching a point in support of republican principles, were greeted by approving hand-claps.

The speaker mentioned that the republican party was a progressive organization, while the democratic party believed in a government doing nothing except to exercise a sort of police power. The republican party has a record of good results. The senator spoke of the one exception to republican control—the Cleveland administration, during which business was paralyzed, prices for farm products dropped and labor was often unemployed. He mentioned the false alarms that were sounded by democratic leaders in 1896 and periodically afterwards.

The senator mentioned the tariff at considerable length. He did not uphold the law as ideal, but the best measure that could have been passed in view of the conflicting interests of different states. The fact that the bill was not wholly satisfactory to any senator or congressman showed that it lacked special favoritism. No member of congress could get all he wanted into the bill. He showed that revision was downward on necessities and upward on luxuries, and was armed with the record to offer as proof. He denied that he voted against free lumber or against reducing the tariff on shoes and farming implements. He was asked in an unsigned letter why he voted against a reduction of the tariff on farming implements as noted on a certain page of the congressional record. He explained with the indicated page of the congressional record before him that the vote was against an amendment which did not propose as great a reduction of the tariff on farming implements as had already been made in the bill. Senator Bacon who introduced the amendment, did not know that the measure called for a bigger reduction than he proposed. Otherwise he would not have introduced it. Therefore, opposition to the amendment in question is shown to have been wise and in the interest of tariff reduction when all the facts are understood.

Senator Burkett's address was logical and convincing, and strengthened Wayne county support of his candidacy.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

- For Senator, E. J. BURKETT. For Governor, C. H. ALDRICH. For Lieutenant-Governor, M. R. HOPEWELL. For Secretary of State, ADDISON WAIT.

Attendance at the Wayne State Normal is as large as was expected, and is growing steadily.

Ambitious western cities have overdone the census padding trick, and prosecution of the guilty is threatened, according to advices from Washington.

George D. Perkins, veteran editor of the Sioux City Journal, is mentioned as likely to be appointed by Governor Carroll to succeed the late Senator J. P. Dolliver.

Besides re-appointing the state and giving north Nebraska the representation it deserves in the legislature, it is reasonably certain the next session will tackle the primary and do a few things to it for its betterment.

Now that Walter Wellman has undertaken a perilous venture and narrowly escaped death, he may be satisfied: The airship in which he and his companions started across the Atlantic, was wrecked at sea, and a steamer in the vicinity went to the rescue just in time to save the men who proposed to fly from one continent to another.

The death of Senator J. P. Dolliver removes one of the nation's brightest statesmen. As an orator, he has few equals.

The country is not behind the city in home comforts and luxuries. There are many splendid farm residences, models of convenience and sumptuous in furnishing, equal to the best in the city, and in the entertainment of guests the rural population is fully up to the highest standard.

Omaha Bee: Collier's Weekly, with all its fault finding, declares the country has nothing to hope from a democratic congress, because there are more reactionaries on the democratic side than on the republican side.

Edgar Howard of the Columbus Telegram, charged Congressman Hitchcock, candidate for United States senator, with having borrowed money from the state while Joe Bartley was state treasurer, and with still owing the state. Hitchcock gave positive denial. Howard then submitted for publication a letter written by Hitchcock to Bartley asking for the renewal of certain notes. Hitchcock comes back with an explanation that he borrowed money from Bartley personally, and that the same had been paid. It is now Howard's turn.

The march of civilization is taming the west and obliterating such "personal liberty" as boasts of carrying a six-shooter, and being wild, woolly and fearless. There is a sort of candor and a kind of honor reflected by the venturesome, hilarious spirit of the primitive west that is somewhat fascinating, though it would be weakness to pick up a character, schooled to regard law and order with indifference, and exalt him to a place of executive responsibility. Such a man is Jim Dahliman. He is not fitted by training to lead the advanced civilization of Nebraska. To turn back to the habits and customs of fifty years ago would be "personal liberty" not consistent with the government and orderly society of this state.

Personal liberty which guarantees the right to charge the human hide with liquid hilarity, early and often, without restrictions as to the time of day or night, or size or quality of the cargo taken aboard, flourishes in Wilber, and therefore when Candidate Dahliman spoke there recently he must have felt that his plea would be greeted, as it was, with enthusiastic favor. He indicated to his Wilber friends that when he took possession of the state as governor he would be the boss and would show the legislature whether it could run him or not. If he is elected it would seem useless for the legislature to meet unless perhaps to approve in a perfunctory manner the laws and amendments which his ideas of government would suggest.

Some people talk as though county option were a terrible ogre that would devour the state. Truth is, it is given a place of too great importance in politics. It does not deserve the attention that it receives. It would not prevent a community from having saloons if the majority should want them. It merely extends to the county the right to say whether it shall have licensed sale of liquor within its borders or not. It would simply give people a voice in saying whether they shall have saloons or not—a privilege which would seem to harmonize with a former boast of the democratic party which declared that the people should rule. County option neither forces a saloon on a community nor forces a community to do without it. It puts the question up to the people.

It is a serious mistake to center all ambition and hope in the accumulation of money. It is a mistake to hold up money as the deity for the youth of the land to worship and strive for above all other things. Dollars and cents have their worthy uses, but as they are not a guarantee of happiness nor deserving of laudatory recognition unless conferring a benefit on society, they should not be allowed to monopolize all thought and effort and thus dwarf the soul the real man. It is a disadvantage to boys and girls to teach them that money-getting, to the sacrifice of nobler qualities, is of surpassing importance. If they are properly disciplined and grounded in honesty, integrity, high-thinking and right-living, they can, with the exercise of talent and energy, make enough money for comfort, and at the same time, capable of forgetting the dollar, exalt self by radiating sunshine and doing good to others.

The Lincoln Journal sent a staff reporter to Wilber to report Jim Dahliman's speech, and his utterances as published, are not likely to excite enthusiasm in behalf of his candidacy. Here is a brief excerpt which shows how Dahliman felt and talked: "How about this pardon business? I'll tell you. We all get over the ropes sometimes. I get over myself, and I know. Well, that's the kind of cases I pardon. Suppose a man and a woman have a family row and she gets him put in jail. The judge gives him twenty days. Then she grows penitent and wants him. She has to come to little old Jim Dahliman to get him. And she comes bawling around, and I pardon him. I hear bawling enough at home, Lord knows. Then there's another class I pardon. Maybe an old Saline county farmer with a section of land comes to Omaha: He goes down to John Mauer's restaurant—that's a swell place and takes a little too much. He gets into jail and the police judge gives him ten days. Well, Jim Dahliman goes right down and lets him out, you bet."

Mr. Hitchcock in his denial of Howard's charges, confesses that the World-Herald suffered hard sledding financially around 1895. As a matter of fact, many people experienced a tough time during the years indicated. We were having the experiment of a democratic administration, and dollars were so scarce that a few of them on hand once made a man feel rich. Nearly everybody was in debt, and every face reflected despair. With the election of McKinley and the restoration of confidence, conditions grew rapidly better. Unexampled prosperity followed and has continued. People are comforted with money ahead, instead of being goaded by obligations they cannot meet. The World-Herald has prospered with the rest. Such being the facts, how can Mr. Hitchcock muster the courage to urge another democratic experiment with the national government? The contrast between times of 1895 and now is so great that one would think Mr. Hitchcock would shudder at thought of the possible success of the democratic movement for control, which he apparently favors.

COUNTY OPTION.

Chairman Husehetter of the republican state committee, has issued this statement regarding county option: "County option does not put in a saloon nor take out a saloon. On presenting a petition to the county board with the legal number of signatures all the voters of any county may say whether they do want a saloon or whether they do not want one. "At present all the villages, towns and cities in Nebraska have option. The taxpayers outside of the towns are required to pay court expenses and assist in the maintenance of jails and penitentiaries, thereby forcing them into the position of being taxed without representation and virtually disfranchised. "Should the coming legislature pass the county option law any county not voting on the proposition afterwards would retain the Slocumb law and 8 o'clock closing law, as at present. It is eminently fair to let Douglas county have what it wants and at the same time let the outside counties have what they want, which both could get by a majority vote of their own people. Let all the people rule. "The democratic platform stands for the initiative and referendum, which will give all the counties the right to vote on the liquor question the same as county option. Hence, county option does not restrict personal liberty; it enlarges it."

PRESBYTERIAN NOTES.

"A Religious Awakening" will be the subject of the sermon at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. In the evening he will speak on "The Risen Christ." Next week Rev. Alexander Corkey goes to Winterset, Iowa, to assist his brother, who is pastor there, in special evangelistic meetings. He will be gone ten or twelve days.

C. E. CONVENTION.

The attention of all Christian Endeavors is called to the coming convention of the Nebraska C. E. Union, at Aurora, October 21-23, during which Aurora will entertain more than 750 delegates from societies all over the state. The convention program presents many notable features, among which are addresses by many speakers of national reputation, including Francis E. Clark, D. D., President of the World's C. E. Union; a school of C. E. methods, under Field Secretary Karl Lehmann; chorus music, led by J. Herbert MacConnell; a great junior rally and a citizenship mass meeting addressed by some of the most prominent men in the state.

UNION EVANGELISTIC MEETING.

In view of the fact that several of the churches in Wayne are planning to conduct evangelistic services in the near future, the Wayne Ministerial Union has invited Dr. D. E. Jenkins, of Omaha Theological Seminary, to address a union mass meeting on the evening of October 30 at the M. E. church. Dr. Jenkins is already known to many of the Wayne people and is always welcome here. He will speak on "Evangelism," and it is expected that his address will materially help in the ensuing evangelistic campaign. The Presbyterian church will begin the campaign on November 6, the first Sunday in November, and meetings will be held daily for two weeks. Rev. S. S. Corkey of Winterset will be the preacher for these special services, and Mrs. Emily Collins, of Keokuk, Iowa, will lead in the singing. When meetings close in the Presbyterian church, it is expected that similar services will be held at both the Baptist and Methodist churches successively.

Dr. Jenkins will preach at the Presbyterian church on the morning of October 30.

The Eastern Star ladies have planned what they term a "hard times social" for tomorrow night, the purpose being to raise money with which to buy new dishes for the order. "Hard times" costumes are expected to be worn.

Uncle Walt The Poet Philosopher

Come hither, little Peterkin, and hearken to my spiel; I've sat and watched you playing there with ball and hoop and reel; and thrice you mother, at the door, hath called you to her aid, for she is busy canning prunes, and making marmalade. And thrice you answered: "I'll be there in just a brace of shakes," which answers, if not brazen lies, at least were dizzy fakes; and here you play with hoop and reel, and gambol like a lamb, while mother wrestles with the stove and stirs her blamed old jam. I tell you, little Peterkin, you're starting life all wrong; when mother calls, a little lad should line up for her strong. You have a lot of years ahead in which to romp and play, but mother's feet are drawing near the ending of the way. I've lived about a hundred years, and I've forgotten lots; the memory I carry 'round is kind o' blank in spots; but I remember mother well, and when she called I flew and left my play on eager feet, her little chores to do; and had I done the other thing in those dim, distant years, I could not speak of mother now without some bitter tears. So throw away the ball and reel, and hoop and skipping rope, and help your mother feed the stove and stir the boiling dope.

I lived on rice and sifted milk and prunes and squashes, and said: "I feel as fine as silk, and medicine all bosh is! This healthful rubbish that I eat, relieved the glanders; it cured my fever, aching feet and yellow janders. The doctors work an awful graft; they give you oceans of beastly dope and then a raft of pills and potions. They try to cure a case of mumps, with saws and axes and poisoned drugs and stomach pumps, and high their tax is. If you'd be feeling well and nice ignore their joshes, and fill yourself with milk and rice, and prunes and squashes!" I flayed the doctors every day, in print and forum, and came to think that I was a high-coccalorum. And then I had an awful dose of stomach trouble; I rolled around and chewed my toes, all bent up double. The doctors came from near and far; their dope they blended, and poured it where my innards are, and pain was ended. I was so near Death's stream of ice I heard its washes! Doggone the sifted milk and rice and prunes and squashes!

THE DOCTORS

When the famous William James quit this world and all its games, for the country where in time we all must fit, he assured us that he'd send word of some kind to a friend, if the rules and regulations would permit. People say that he has tried to converse from t'other side, but the wires in bad condition seem to be; he no sooner makes a start than connections fall apart, and the only thing we've heard is "Hully Chee!" If he does arrange to talk you can bet a pound of chalk that the message will be silly and absurd; for the ghosts will never tell of the regions where they dwell, never send to eager ears a helpful word. Men whose thoughts had sterling worth when they lived upon the earth seem to deal in empty twaddle when they're dead; and the words they send us back seem to indicate a crack in the thinking part of every spectre's head. Men whose words were spiced with wit ere this weary world they quit are as dull as circus barkers when they die; and they send us dreary dope from the shinning starry slope, and I often scratch my head and wonder why. If a ghost had any sense it would know that we're intense in our longing for some knowledge of that shore, where we find the journey's end—but the spirits only send stale remarks that jar our souls and make us sore.

They're giving all manner of knowledge, the teachers infesting this vale; you stare up your head in a college, or gain erudition, by mail. Alas, but in all of our questing, the thing that's most useful is missed, the beautiful science of resting is never put down on the list. The people who rustle around me pursuing the kopeck and yen, astonish, disgust and confound me, they're such blamed industrious men! They never let up for a second, all day they are working for gain; at night, when their profits are reckoned, they're planning another campaign. They're planning some skirmish or sortie, some ambush they think may be sprung; they're older than Noah at forty, and die of old age while they're young. The thought of a let-up is funny; suggest it, and get a rebuff. "We'll rest when we have enough money, and money is surely the stuff." And all through the country you'll find 'em, for money they labor and grub, as though the old Nick were behind 'em, a-touching 'em up with a club. All this may look good to the miser who, lives by his big money chest, but some who are calmer and wiser insist on the beauties of Rest.

The farmer, in his pasture steep, has reared a flock of healthy sheep. He takes his trusty shears and ax, and cuts the wool off their broad backs, and then he takes the wool to town, and for it gets some roubles down, and then the children have new hats, the daughters blow themselves for rats. The wool is taken to the mill that toots its whistle on the hill, and dyes dye, and carders card, and weavers weave it by the yard. And tailor's make it into suits, which clothe the forma of rich galoots. And hands are busy, larders full, because the farmer raised his wool. And homes are bright, and children play, as happy as the livelong day, and busy housewives cease to weep, because the farmer sheared his sheep. The statesman tours across the land, and scatters words on every hand; he tells the people they're oppressed, their rights all driven galley west; they euhred are by sinful games; whatever is wrong, he claims. As though to stir rebellion sent, he sows the seed of discontent. Which is the better friend to keep, the farmer with his flock of sheep, or he who makes no wheels go round, but fills the land with empty sound.

I like to watch the good old clock, that hung upon the wall; I really think a man might walk from Cleveland to St. Paul, and not behold a smoother piece of skillful craftsmanship; the wheels went round as slick as grease, and never make a slip. I dearly loved for hours to stand and watch the pendulum; and note the active minute hand, and hear the fly-wheel hum. I liked to hear the blamed thing strike—but on one fateful day, the boss remarked: "You'd better hike—you are not worth your hay. You're paid to help to sell my stock, and do some other chores, but all the day you watch the clock, so chase yourself out doors." And then he pushed me with his feet, and fanned me with his chair, and when I landed in the street my shoes were in the air. O, clocks are fascinating things, and they have lovely works, and pendulums and hands and springs, but they are bad for clerks, who yield to their seductive charm, and watch the hands go round, and listen to the loud alarm, and hear the striker pound.

Ahern's The New Goods Bought in Chicago Last Week

Here are the principal lines of goods bought in Chicago last week and most of which will be on sale by Saturday. Sales on our first fall stocks of these goods had been so heavy that we were almost entirely out, so that when these goods arrive you will have a choice from almost an entirely new stock.

Ladies' Wool and Worsted Dresses One of the most popular and easiest selling lines we ever handled. These dresses have style—they fit just as nicely as you could wish and they are moderate in price. Dresses of fine all wool serge, nicely trimmed... 12.50 Dresses of finest French serge and panama... 15.00 to 18.00 Voile and Silk Dresses, very handsome... 18.00 to 20.00 An experienced dressmaker makes all alterations free.

Winter Coats of Mixed Goods The demand for coats of heavy mixed goods has been so great that it is almost impossible to get them. There are plenty to be had of certain kinds but they are mostly off shades or goods too thin to be useful. I was fortunate enough to get a few made up of the popular reversible plaid and they are now on sale. I was obliged to wait for several other styles particularly becoming to young people to be made. They have large sailor collars, deep cuffs, long wide sleeves and are trimmed with very large buttons. The cloths are just the very nicest we have seen. They are worth waiting for. We expect them soon.

Embroidered Black Voile Skirts Those beautifully embroidered black Voile skirts we had, sold so well that I bought another assortment. This lot will be made up in different styles so that all those who purchase any of these handsome skirts will have an individual style. Delivery of these goods was promised for this week.

New Sweaters—Mostly Red There never was such a season for red sweaters. Merchants everywhere are short of red sweaters. There will be enough of them here now to fit you all out. We have in a very complete stock of sweaters of every kind for Ladies, Children and Men.

New Dress Shoes Sales on fine dress shoes and especially button shoes exceeded all our expectations and one of the first places we visited in Chicago was the stock room of the Thos. G. Plant Co., where orders from the west for Queen Quality shoes are filled. We selected and had shipped at once, and they are here ready for you, a fine assortment of button shoes in patent with cloth tops, gun metal with cloth tops, patent with kid tops and all gun metals. You know the style and wearing quality of Queen Quality shoes. There is a pair here to fit you whenever you are ready.

Furs and Fur Coats This week the fur scarfs and muffs will be on display for the first time. If you prefer first choice now is the time to buy. For the benefit of those who wish to consider the purchase of a real Russian Pony Fur Coat, we have had one shipped out for examination. I selected this coat from 15 different styles as being the best suited in style, price and quality to my trade. It is a coat I can guarantee and it is a handsome coat moderately priced. If you are thinking of a fur coat come in and look at it. I can get you one like it.

New Dry Goods Items We also bought a great many goods for our general Dry Goods Stock while in Chicago. New Outing Flannels, Percales, Dress Goods, Ribbons, Underwear, Men's Neckwear, Etc. Our whole stock is now complete and ready for a great winter's business.

Advertisement for Queen Quality SHOES. Features an illustration of a shoe and text: 'This Label is on Every Pair', 'Makes New Shoes As Pliant As Old Ones', 'The patented "Flexible Wonder Worker" process slashes the underside of the innersole in a manner which makes it resemble in appearance the scales of a fish. The outsole is then flexed on a special machine, without the usual chemical bath so injurious to the wearing quality of sole leather. The combined result is the "Flexible Wonder Worker Sole." It is used on all Queen Quality Shoes.'

ALL ABOUT TRADING STAMPS AND PREMIUMS

We give them to encourage you to do the biggest share of your trading at this store. If you and your family come here to do the big share of your buying I am ready to show my appreciation of your patronage by giving you a useful and valuable premium. All you have to do is think of and go to Ahern's first and oftenest to do your buying and I will give you a premium worth while. And in order that everyone may be treated exactly right in receiving of these premiums I have adopted the trading stamp method of giving them out because the trading stamp system is the fairest way of regulating the giving of these premiums that has ever been found. By this method every family gets a premium just as valuable as their trade merits. There can be absolutely no favoritism or partiality shown. The family who trade $100 worth will get premiums just exactly twice as valuable as the family who trade $50 worth; etc.

And besides this guarantee of fairness to all there are several other reasons why the trading stamp system is much better for you than the ordinary way of premium giving.

First When you get your required amount of stamps you don't have to take a chair or a set of dishes or a rug or some premium for which you have no use—instead you bring your book in and take your choice from hundreds of fine premiums among which you are sure to find something you need and want. You can furnish a home complete with the premiums we give. You can see hundreds of these articles here at the store and we have a catalogue of many others, any of which we will gladly order for you.

Second—You are not asked to pay any money when you come to get your premium. Many stores give premiums for a certain amount of trade and a certain amount of cash to be paid when you get the premium, and this cash payment often is equal to the value of the premium you get. That is not our way; we give the premium absolutely free; all you do is bring in your book of stamps and exchange it for any premium you select.

Third—It sometimes happens that when you are working for a premium the store gives up the premium giving plan before you get the required tickets or punches on your card, or you move away and thus lose your chance. These disappointments are all overcome in giving the S & H Green stamps which we give because these stamps can be presented for premiums at any S & H Premium Parlor in the country and these parlors are to be found in thousands of towns and cities in every state of the Union. The Sperry and Hutchinson Co., are a million dollar corporation—they are the only successful trading stamp concern in the country and their pledges, and their stamps are just as good as gold. We have given premiums to many people who began saving stamps in other towns and who moved to Wayne before their books were filled. They finished filling their books by getting stamps at Ahern's and we gave them the premiums. If this store quit business next week your stamps would be just as valuable as ever because you could redeem them at any other parlor. So there is no danger of ever losing your interest in any premium you are working for.

Fourth—The premiums which we give are much more valuable than those offered generally. This is possible because the S & H Co., who conduct the premium parlor in our store buy premiums in, car load lots, in lots of a thousand and ten thousand for the hundreds of premium parlors they operate all over the country and on account of their great purchases they buy at prices which I or no other merchant buying his own premiums could possibly

Double S & H Stamps With Ladies' Tailor Made Suits

Our stock of Ladies' Tailor Made Suits is now at its very best. Every new cloth and stylish shade is represented and the size assortment is complete. We can fit you and please you in a suit especially well just now. In order to induce you to buy your suit next week, while we are best prepared to serve you, we will give double stamps with every suit sold. Here is an opportunity to more than half fill your stamp book at one purchase. Fine suits at $20 to $25—cheaper suits at $12.50 to $17.50.

50 Extra Stamps With Every Pair of Shoes

The time is here for buying your fall footwear and, just to get your special attention for our Fine Shoe Department, we will give 50 extra stamps with every pair of shoes sold next week. Our shoe department is a complete shoe store. We have shoes for women, children and men. Dress shoes, comfort shoes, work shoes, school shoes, storm shoes, and every pair guaranteed to give you full satisfaction in style and wear or bring them back and permit us to make them good. The travelling public who look over our shoe stock say we show the most styles and the most up-to-date styles in footwear of any store in Northeast Nebraska. Queen Quality shoes for women, Julian Kokenge shoes for young ladies', Kreider's shoes for children, Packard shoes for men. The best of shoes at no higher price than you pay for ordinary kinds. Remember—50 extra stamps with every pair.

Double S & H Stamps With Every Pair of Blankets

Blanket time is here—these cool nights mean more covers and you will undoubtedly need a pair or two of blankets within the next few weeks. Buy them next week and get double stamps. In addition to getting the extra stamps you will get the best blankets and get them cheaper than you can buy them anywhere. There is a reason for this. These blankets are road men's samples which I am fortunate enough to secure on account of having travelled for the blanket department of the J. V. Farwell Co., for several seasons. These blankets are the pick of the whole stock and simply on account of having been carried in trunks as samples by the Farwell road men they are sold at a good discount to a few favored customers of the House. They are in perfect condition and they are genuine bargains. You can buy 11-4 all wool blankets from me for the same price you pay for a 10-4 size elsewhere. The cotton blankets are proportionately just as cheap and they are all extra good blankets just as all samples are. There are hundreds of pairs to choose from and whenever you are ready, remember that a saving you can make by buying here. And remember double stamps next week with every pair.

Extra Stamps With Groceries

Our grocery department is now in charge of Mr. Benson, an up-to-date groceryman of several years experience. Your orders will get prompt, careful attention and there will be plenty of special bargains for you every week. Get in the habit of buying groceries at Ahern's. You'll get them just as good and just as cheap or cheaper than elsewhere and you'll get trading stamps at a surprising rate.

ALL ABOUT TRADING STAMPS AND PREMIUMS

(Continued from Opposite Column) get. You can see for yourself how much nicer and better these premiums are than the ordinary kind by coming into the store and looking over the hundreds of fine articles on display in our premium parlor. You will conclude just as hundreds of others have decided, that these premiums are mighty fine useful gifts well worth saving for.

Fifth—By the stamp system several families or friends can put their stamps together in one book and get a premium together. Members of church societies and lodges often take advantage of this feature of the stamp system to get furnishings for their church or lodge room or for gifts.

Sixth—In the saving of trading stamps you get many chances to collect free stamps and double stamps and extra stamps if you will just watch the advertising of the Ahern Store and take advantage of the many special offers made. You will be surprised at how quickly you can fill a book, and get a premium, if you watch your chances at these special offers.

And it is worth while—don't forget that.

From the foregoing explanation of the trading stamp and premium system which Ahern's operate you can readily see what pains have been taken to make our giving of premiums fair to everyone—absolutely safe and well worth your attention.

Every customer of ours is going to get fair, just and liberal treatment in this plan just as we guarantee in all our business dealings. We are constantly alert for any good honest advertising scheme that will bring more people to our store—we have tried many but have never found one that pleased our customers better or brought us such a large share of their trade as the simple plan of giving them a good useful premium in appreciation of their business. If you will come in next week and get a stamp book we will put in 30 stamps free to start you out and take pleasure in showing you what a nice premium you can get when you have filled your book.

Always ask us for the stamps if we forget to give them. We are glad to give them but sometimes we forget. Regard them just as you would your change; they are valuable and you should have them.

You are entitled to a stamp with every 10c purchase whether you pay cash or produce. Customers having charge accounts can get stamps by paying their account every 30 days. We will give the stamps at time of settlement.

You are entitled to double stamps for all purchases made on Thursdays of the week. We give these extra stamps in order to induce as many as possible to trade on Thursday instead of Saturday, thus enabling us to wait on all better.

You are entitled to ten free stamps the last Wednesday of each month. The S & H Company give these stamps in order to get you to come to the premium display at least once a month and see the new premiums which are coming in all the time.

It is easy to fill a book of stamps if a family will just get the habit of collecting them. Every family spends enough money for groceries, dry goods, shoes and men's furnishings in a year to fill several books of stamps if they would just remember to concentrate their purchases at one store. Get the habit of coming to Ahern's first and see how well it pays. You are not requested to buy a dollar's worth of goods here that you can't buy just as good and just as cheap or cheaper than you can buy anywhere else.

A shipment of new premiums is expected this week—mission rockers with upholstered seats, mission style hall clocks, new chifferonis, new parlor clocks, beautiful big Xmas dolls, electric reading lamps and new cut glass pieces are among the good things coming.

The Old Corral Wall

The House That Jack Built

By GERALD PRIME

There was a sudden jolt, followed by a tilt and a dragging over an uneven surface, a weird prolongation of the air-brake exhaust and then the train came to a dead stop.

History of Red Cross Seal. "Charity stamps," first used in Boston in 1862 for the soldiers' relief funds during the Civil War, were the original forerunners of the Red Cross Christmas seal, which will be used this year to bring happiness and cheer to millions.

Popularity of This. "Every other young actress is calling herself 'Thais,'" said Henry E. Dixey at a dinner at Mauglin's.

Slightly Mixed. Two Englishmen were resting at the Red Home Inn at Stratford-on-Avon. One of them showed a print picture of a low, tumbling building underneath which was printed: "The House in Which Shakespeare Was Born."

Tit for Tat. Lloyd C. Griscom, in an interview in New York, said of party dissensions: "They are animated by a nasty spirit, a tit-for-tat spirit; and they go from bad to worse."

The sows that are usually most prolific and that are also usually the best mothers are those that have long, deep bodies with a row of well-developed teats on each side.

Especially when soft feed is fed, a broad, smooth board will be found very convenient in feeding chickens either young or old.

Anyone who has had any experience with nursing brood sows knows that while nursing their young pigs, they naturally lose in weight and condition even with the best care and feeding bestowed them.

It is generally appreciated among flock owners that in order to obtain the most profit from sheep husbandry stock must be kept that will produce a maximum quality and quantity of both wool and mutton.

Pumpkins make a splendid feed, and how cheap they are! Nothing will fatten shoats quicker, in connection with a bit of soft corn, and nothing will so thoroughly and efficaciously rid them of worms.

Dairymen who have town or city milk routes, and market gardeners who retail their produce, have exceptional opportunities for marketing fresh eggs and poultry at the highest prices.

A Nebraska farm paper says: "The $75 milk cow is with us." Please tell us about it. In Iowa the $75 cow is a rare bargain especially if she is of dairy breeding.

At the best, haying is hard work, and no matter how much improved labor-saving machinery we employ it requires muscle and good judgment. Alfalfa is making good in the east, and farmers are realizing that it is comparatively easy to get a stand, by the use of lime and plenty of stable manure. This is ideal pasture for swine and no harm will be done the crop if pastured lightly.

To read about the care of fowls in detail makes it seem quite a lot of work, but when once you get started and give your poultry the same care you do other stock there is nothing on the farm that will pay as well for the money invested.

Ducks are nervous creatures and will often lose much flesh on account of their nervousness at night. If one becomes frightened he soon starts the entire pen into a stampede. Avoid this by keeping a lantern burning at night.

If you have running water in the house, and the garden is near, in droughty seasons you can save yourself much lugging of water by simply connecting a few lead pipes in the garden with the house main.

A sow's condition should not be fat like that of hog fed for the butcher's market when she is due to farrow, but she should be sleek, well rounded out and in a condition of perfect thrift and health.

Of the various shell making materials which those who live inland can easily procure one of the best is old mortar or plaster, but any of these things should not, on any account, be mixed with the food.

One of the most difficult and trying problems which the poultry keeper has to meet is that of keeping his poultry houses and stock reasonably free from lice, mites, and other external parasites.

A GENEROUS AND CHARITABLE WISH.

"I wish that all might know of the benefit I received from your Foley's Kidney Remedy," says I. N. Regan, Farmer, Mo. His kidneys and bladder gave him so much pain, misery and annoyance, he could not work, nor sleep. He says Foley's Kidney Remedy completely cured him. Felber's Pharmacy.

We'd rather ride the brake beams on a freight train than ride on a scalper's ticket on a passenger train.

REAPING BENEFIT.

From the Experience of Wayne People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Wayne residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. Joseph Schmalstieg, of Wayne, Neb., says: "It is a pleasure to confirm the public statement I gave in 1907, endorsing Doan's Kidney Pills. I was troubled by a heavy dull ache through my kidneys and back. I also had dizzy spells and headaches. The kidney secretions were excessive and plainly showed that my kidneys needed attention. Doan's Kidney Pills drove away the pains in my back and toned up my system. Since then whenever I have felt in need of a kidney medicine, I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills and they have relieved me."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Concrete Facts.
Pulverized wood is sometimes mixed with cement for making what is known as wood concrete. This is lighter than concrete that is made with sand. Straw, seaweed and hay are also pulverized for use instead of wood. The pulverized product is very much like sawdust. The chief advantage of wood concrete over ordinary concrete is that it is soft enough to permit of nails being driven into it.

Sunday Irregularity.
Physicians will tell you that upsetting the regular habits (let us hope the habits are regular) of the week on Sunday, eating more than is good for you, taking more or no exercise, all works toward indigestion, the results of which are felt through the following week until Sunday comes again, when the process is repeated.

Slings Up His "Load."
Targoons had occasion recently to speculate as to whether a drunken man was such an idiot. He was standing on a penny welding machine endeavoring to insert a coin in the slot. He said he wanted to weigh himself to see how much of a "load" he had.—Fargo Forum.

On Record.
We desire to go on record right now as being of the firm opinion that a literary woman who wants to be loved should see to it that her flapjacks are the equal of her sonnets and her corned beef hash every bit as good, if not better than her essay on Browning.—Exchange.

Largest Rose Tree.
Germans claim to possess the largest rose tree in Europe. It is found in Herr Wehrle's garden at Freiburg. It extends 115 feet at the top and forms a spacious bower. Originally it was a wild rose, on which a Chromolaena tea rose was grafted in 1881.

Useless Statistics.
Some statisticians have figured out that Americans lose $10,000,000 yearly by leaving sugar in the bottom of their coffee cups. Of course they don't, but still there is a certain fascination about statistics. They are so strikingly useless.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Attachment for Auto Lights.
An attachment for acetylene automobile headlights has been invented by which the gas may be lighted by short circuiting the regular parking system with a switch from the driver's seat.

Exercise.
The value of daily exercise is to bring the less used organs into play that they may the better sustain the organs which to us individually appear more important.

Under the headline "Old But Sweet" a German agricultural paper publishes a description of what it calls the oldest fruit bearing grapevine in the new world. The vine is on a farm in Roanoke Island, North Carolina, where it has flourished more than 300 years. It was planted by one of the followers of Sir Walter Raleigh in 1584, and the history of the old vine shows that it has borne fruit every year.

Remedies for Dyspepsia.
Summing up his experiences with 425 cases of dyspepsia, an English physician said that benefit had resulted most frequently from one of two kinds of medicine—namely, alkali and a carminative, such as ginger, an hour or an hour and a half after a meal, or when the discomfort came on, or blameth carbonate, in doses of half a dram or more before meals.

The New Way.
The practical politician who in a cruder stage of his art kissed the babies and showered the women with lines and compliments, now preserves more of his self-respect, while achieving substantially equal results, by telling the fat men they are getting thin and the lean men they are getting stout.—Puck.

Horrid.
Valet (entering chamber)—I heard you scream, sir. Wot's the blooming row, sir? Aisy—"You'd better get up with me until morning, James. I just had the awfulest nightmare! I dreamed I was walking along the avenue without me walking stick, James!"—Chicago News.

The Beet Sugar Industry.
Beet sugar making is as yet an infant industry, with most convenient form. It is light and durable, and the free space below the bowl insures a cool, clean smoke, neither biting nor "gurgly."

Confess the Compass.
On account of the magnetic qualities of the hull and the ore which comprises the cargo, many of the vessels of the lake fleets experience great trouble in navigating owing to the influence of the metal hull and the cargo on the compass.

The Calabash Pipe.
A well made calabash pipe possesses all the valuable characteristics of all other pipes, with most convenient form. It is light and durable, and the free space below the bowl insures a cool, clean smoke, neither biting nor "gurgly."

Workers' Big Drink Bill.
According to the syllabus of the board of education on temperance and hygiene, about two-thirds of the United Kingdom's total drink bill, or nearly $10,000,000 a week, is spent by the working classes.
