The boy who works faithfully, determined on results rather than merely putting in time, is certain to win success.

A Missouri newspaper makes this optimistic observation: "Never in the history of this county has there been such general prosperity as now. If there is a farmer in this county who has not raised a better cotton crop than last year, we have not heard of it. Coupled with the large crop is the fact that the price is much higher than last season, and the further fact that a bumper corn, pea, potato and hay crop has also been raised. The farmer is now more nearly on a cash basis than ever before, and prosperity is in the very air. The calamity howler is a rare avis, and if any should be discovered they should be sent to a first-class surgeon and operated on for liver trouble."

WAYNE AUTHOR'S NEW VOLUME

Omaha Bee: Written in answer to the proposition that the modern church is a fraud and built on hypocrisy, that was advanced by Harold Bell Wright in his "The Calling of Dan Matthews," a Nebraska minister presents to the world "The Victory of Alan Rutledge."

The book of Harold Bell Wright tells of the entering into the church of a young man, Dan Matthews, and his struggles against the falsity he finds there. Finally he withdraws in disgust and goes into other fields, proclaiming the true Christian and will not ally himself with the evil forces to be found in the church of today. The interesting part of the book is that it purports to be the experience of Harold Bell Wright himself in the ministry, and his withdrawal. The scene is laid in a small town in the west, Clarion, Ia., away from the usual scenes of New York and the east, and is a tale of poor people. It was a popular book, having a circulation of over 200,000.

Rev. Alexander Corkey, a Presbyterian minister of Wayne, Nebr., took great exception to the principles advanced by Wright, and has written an answer that the critics say will far eclipse the first book in making the people of the country think. In his book, also a novel with a love story, he shows the opposite of the case, and it is also the story, fictional somewhat, of his own life.

The book is essentially of the middle west, the scene being in Cedar Bluffs, Neb.; where Rev. Corkey was, before he went to Wayne last spring. Nebraska and Iowa characters figure prominently, among them being W. J. Bryan. A Wahoo auctioneer, just as he is in life, is placed in the book. As Mr. Corkey himself expressed it, the book is a real story of the real middle west.

Alexander Corkey was born in Ireland in 1871 near Londonderry, the son of an Irish minister, Rev. Joseph Corkey, and his Scotch wife. He attended McGee college in Londonderry, and came to America in 1889, still a college student. He was seven years in business in Kalamazoo, Mich., and later finished his theological education in McCormick seminary, Chicago, winning a fellowship there and going to Edinburgh university a year.

He began his ministry in Malvern, Ia., in 1900, also serving at Fairfield, and came to Nebraska, to Cedar Bluffs, in 1906, taking his present church at Wayne in the spring of 1910. He tells how the idea of writing his views of the church life first came to him on a hint from Henry Kieser, manager of the book department of Bennett's store in Omaha. The "Victory of Alan Rutledge" is not his first book, a short history of the conditions of life in Ireland having been put out by him a short time ago.

"My next book, if this one is successful, as it appears to be from the reports of the critics, will be on the race question. I consider that one of the vital questions of the day and one that is little understood.

"My idea is that the negro should be educated as highly as possible, when he will not wish to mix with the white man in marriage, but will be a self-respecting citizen and a credit to this country. Have the good white men of the country combine with the good colored men and working against these bad influences of the two races which we see at present they will in the course of time settle the question. The negro does not want to amalgamate with the white man, but he wants a square deal from him."

Speaking of the liquor question, Rev. Corkey said, "It is the business of the church to create public sentiment about such a thing and not to try to form laws on it. The time for argument on the subject and its good and bad points is past. The thing for a church to do is to create the proper sentiment against it and the laws will follow."

THE MINISTERIAL-LOOKING MAN WITH A QUICK MOVEMENT, SWAPPED HANDCUFFS ON GURNEY'S WRISTS

may well fitted to deceive with a plausible story for he seemed candid in manner and well equipped in every way to impose upon the most incredulous.

The officers of the secret service all considered him a dangerous person and none was anxious to encounter a man of such gigantic proportions and apparently desperate character.

My first move against Gurney was to send Mike Bower, a newly-fledged government detective, to form his acquaintance. Bower was selected because his appearance was anything but that of a detective.

After a few days Bower again approached Gurney, this time with a diamond stud that had been slipped from his fastenings. "I need some more money," said Bower.

Gurney inspected the gem with an appreciative eye, and finally said: "You are a good one. Did you ever handle any of the 'queer'?"

"I took a little hand in it once," replied Bower cautiously, "but I do not like to take the chances any more."

not believe in using harsh measures unnecessarily. Gurney fairly chuckled at the simplicity, and was thrown completely off his guard.

He assumed an air of great mystery and spoke of the possible existence of counterfeit plates that might be reached for a reward. He would not, he declared, accept a dollar for his personal services, but because of his great fancy for me, was ready to assist in every way possible.

In the meantime the services of an old counterfeiter, fresh from the penitentiary, had been secured. Many of his old confederates were now operating with the Gurney gang and, through him, Bill Butts, a fresh-looking detective from one of the western states, was introduced to several of the men who made their headquarters at a saloon on the Bowery.

At first the counterfeiters and chivies hanging around the place appeared to be suspicious of Butts. One day, however, when these villains were drinking beer in the back room of the place, a fight arose. The detective went in with the rest and stretched out several of the fellows, though he was badly beaten up in the end, and in addition was robbed of his pocketbook and watch.

The ethics of the criminal profession are peculiar. When a crowd of crooks fight they frequently rob one another, and if the victim calls in the police to recover his property he loses the confidence of the rogues...

for months, and secured evidence to convict about twenty of the Gurney party.

While Butts had been busy with the gang of shovers, Bower had been devoting his time to Gurney and the other leaders. On one occasion Bower purchased $600 of counterfeit money from Gurney, and this he lured to me as I was on my way to dinner at the St. Clair house.

We selected a table where Gurney could talk without being overheard. His information, as usual, was indefinite, hearsay, with no particular point to it. He told me that my policy of being easy with the counterfeiters was working like a charm.

Miner appeared on time, but was still doubtful in regard to his ability to make the surrender demanded. He was a hard nut to crack but, before we parted, I succeeded in convincing him by the use of language not less threatening than it was forcible, that it was for his interest to surrender to the police.

A few days later Gurney told Bower, in a boasting way, of this interview and, in a burst of enthusiasm, declared that everything about the government, detective headquarters was known to him before it transpired. He asserted that my policy of my assistants, and was so puffed up over his imaginary success that he really believed he knew what was going on in my office.

Swiss "Guardian Schools"

Solving the Difficult Problem of Caring for the Children of the Street.

In the overcrowded quarters of every large city where working people live there are always many small children who are allowed to run the streets without proper oversight.

Switzerland has solved the problem, partly at least. In the city of Basel, for instance, "guardian schools" or...

organized and supported by the state, are open every day, and from the middle of March, every evening. They can hardly be called schools, but rather recreation classes.

Under the teacher's direction the children play games, tell stories, sing, crochet, embroider, sew and so forth. In good weather they are taken outdoors for games or walks. Each class has about thirty-five children in it, just enough for the teacher or guardian to handle comfortably. An inspector visits the classes frequently and makes reports to the school authorities. The state provides all the materials for the games and work, and also pays for the lunches.

Basel has a population of 130,000, and last year 2,000 children were taken care of in these guardian schools. In addition to that work Basel has an organization known as the Play association, which looks after the games for young people. There is also another society, now 25 years old, whose special business it is to give instruction to and provide recreation for boys on Sundays and in the evenings. Last year it had 34,000 children under its care.

"I believe I do be placed in juxtaposition with the general," while perched the influential citizen at the banquet.

Penalties for Forest Destruction. Petersburg.—The streets in the Argentine region of Pennsylvania are a few during the summer that water lilies had to be run to keep the colories in condition.

Would Do His Best. "I believe I do be placed in juxtaposition with the general," while perched the influential citizen at the banquet.

ENGINEERS MAY QUIT

GREAT RAILWAY STRIKE LIKELY ON WESTERN LINES. TIE UP ON 61 ROADS.

TIE UP IMMINENT ON 61 ROADS

Leader of Brotherhood Declares Mer Will Unanimously Sanction Big Walkout in a Short Time if The Railroads do not Give in.

Chicago.—A strike vote will be taken between engineers of the sixty-one roads west, south and north of Chicago, including the Illinois Central, following the termination of the negotiations between the roads and grand officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which began September 26. A difference in wage increase of approximately 7 per cent and the alteration of working conditions stood between the negotiators.

Grand Chief Warren C. Stone, of the brotherhood, who has been leading the railroad men in their demands, said he believed the strike vote would be unanimously in favor of suspension of work and that the result would be known by December 10. Immediately thereafter he said a full opportunity would be given the railroads to meet the workers, and if they ignored that opportunity, within five hours every engine west of Chicago in all branches of the service would be stilled, the crews drawn out and out of the thousands of cars would stop every driver on duty.

The whole question arose from the decision of the engineers themselves in a convention at Detroit, Mich., last spring. It was decided then that the existing wage scale, in effect since February, 1907, was unsatisfactory and that, working conditions had been imposed by the railroads which should be eliminated. The grand officers were handed to meet the railroads and present their demands. The general working conditions of which the engineers complain include among other things the following:

Drivers of mallet compound engines which do practically the work of two engines and entail a greater responsibility and capability, receive the same wages as other drivers of high power engines of much lesser capacity. They desire to be relieved of the duty of preparing their engines for travel and of caring for them after running. Switching time should be paid for on all different bases. The magnitude of the wage question is evidenced by a statement by the employers that the 7 per cent difference now standing between the drivers and the railroads means approximately $2,300,000 a year. The cost of alterations of the working conditions, minor considerations in the confidence, would be less than $500,000, it was asserted.

SETTLERS HELD UP

NINE RANCHERS HELD ON RE-MARKABLE CHARGES BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

INSANE ASYLUM A WEAPON

One Homesteader is Said to Have Been Railroaded to Institution After the Ranch Owners Had Destroyed His Home and Machinery.

Omaha, Neb.—Indictments returned by the federal grand jury against nine ranchmen of western Nebraska were made public. The indictments charge conspiracy to drive from their claims homesteaders who took sections of splendid land under the Kinkaid homestead law.

The men named in the indictments are Perry S. Yeast, his son, Frank W. Yeast, Leslie E. Ballinger, M. C. Tubbel, Emil Anderson, Willmot Z. Emerson, Harry Sutton, Boone B. Lawthorne and Dr. Harry H. Huff.

Doctor Huff and Sutton are members of the insanity board, and the indictment alleges that through conspiracy C. J. Davasher, a settler on land wanted by the ranchmen, was found insane and sent to an asylum.

The specific case of Davasher is mentioned in detail. It is charged that Yeast and the other defendants, accompanied by a band of cowboys, visited Davasher's home and after threatening him and his family with death if they did not leave the country, destroyed his home, broke up his machinery, cut his harness to pieces and in other ways mistreated him. Later, according to the indictment, Yeast conspired with members of the insanity board and secured Davasher's incarceration in the asylum.

This latter act, according to the indictment, was committed in a high-handed manner. The insanity commissioners, it is alleged, went through a mock examination, declared Davasher insane and issued a warrant for his arrest. This was served on the spot, and within an hour he was rushed off to the asylum without being permitted to have the advice of counsel.

Davasher's case was brought to the attention of the superintendent of the institution who conducted an examination into the case. He at once decided Davasher was not insane, and the latter was released by habeas corpus proceedings.

CRISIS COMES OVER STRIKE

Discussions Arise Among Ministers, After Vote of Confidence Adopted by Deputies, Over Labor Problems—Briand Wants United Body.

Paris.—According to the urgent request of President Fallieres, following the tendering of his resignation by each member of the French cabinet Wednesday, Premier Briand set out at once upon the task of forming a new ministry.

The new cabinet will be largely the old ministry reorganized, with the distribution of the portfolios made with special reference to a solution of the vexatious labor problems.

The news of Premier Briand's action came on Paris like a thunderclap with no previous warning. The country seemed to be thoroughly in support of M. Briand.

The collective resignation of the ministers was the direct result of the bitter attacks made in the chamber of deputies upon the government's action in suppressing the recent railroad strike. Although a strong Republican majority voted strongly in support of the government, discussions arose at a recent meeting of the ministry and M. Briand announced that a united body would be needed to meet the now and serious labor problems which had grown out of the labor troubles.

STRIKE CAUSES A TRAGEDY

Poverty-Stricken Garment Worker Slays His Wife, Shoots Baby and Kills Himself.

Chicago.—Worry over the loss of his position as the result of the strike of the 40,000 garment workers and the fact that he had been estranged from his wife led to a tragedy Thursday in which a husband shot and killed his wife, wounded his one-year-old baby and committed suicide.

The tragedy occurred in the small store conducted by Mrs. Mary Seklana, twenty-five years old. Her husband, John Seklana, who was a Bohemian tailor, had been one of the alleged underpaid employees of a big clothing firm and was one of the army of 40,000 unemployed who are fighting the factories of that establishment. Driven by poverty, it is declared, he quarreled with his wife, who separated from him.

After the strike, with his meager wages cut off, he faced starvation and, it is said, had existed upon funds furnished him by the union and friends.

They cut a hole through the rear double door in order that they might reach through and unfasten the lock bolts. ### ESKIMOS' OWN LAND

EUROPEANS CANNOT COMPETE WITH THEM IN ARCTIC.

Agile and Fearless, the Native Will Easily Scale icy Heights Where Explorer Pursues Way With the Utmost Difficulty.

"In all my experience I had never encountered a rougher, more difficult country in which to hunt than in Ellesmere Land," writes Harry Whitney of Cook-Pearry fame. "Ordinarily I should have believed these mountain slopes, with walls of smooth rock sheathed with a crust of hard ice and snow, quite unscalable.

"In places they were almost perpendicular. Rarely did they offer a crevice to serve as foot or hand hold, and lifting points and firm set boulders were too widely scattered to be of much help.

"In this his native land the Eskimo has a decided advantage over the white hunter. His lifetime of experience has taught him to scale these ice-clad heights with a nimbleness and ease that are astounding. He is quite fearless, and even the mountain sheep is not his superior as a climber.

"As if by magic, and with little apparent effort, the Eskimo flew up the slippery walls, feet outstripping me. How they did it I shall never know. Now and again I was forced to cut steps in the ice or I should inevitably have lost my footing and been hurled downward several hundred feet to the rocks beneath.

"I was astonished even at my own progress, and when I paused to glance behind me I felt a momentary panic. But there was no turning back and one look robbed me of any desire to try it.

"The Eskimo has no conception of distance. He is endowed with certain instincts which enable him to draw a fairly good map of a coast line, but he cannot tell you how far it is from one point of land to another. Often when they told me a place we were bound for was very close by hand it developed that we were far from it. This they are never sure of, and cannot indicate.

"The Eskimos have a white man 'stung to death' from every point of view. They not only can go to sleep promptly but sleep soundly and well as they travel, when circumstances permit. They get sustenance, too, by eating hard frozen walrus and seal meat or blubber. This I could never do. It is so strong in flavor that it invariably nauseated me, though I did succeed very well with raw hare or deer's meat when I had it."—Outing Magazine.

John's Chocolates.

The office force of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company at Eighth and Market streets had a good laugh on John, one of the clerks, the other morning, says the Philadelphia Times. He was telling his companions of a girl he was going to call upon at evening. All went well until after luncheon when a package, very neatly done up, arrived for John. That got the boys; they had to see what was in it. When John went out he opened it and found it contained chocolates. These they took out and replaced with coal.

In the evening John called on his fair one and presented her with what he thought was chocolates. Of course she went on saying, "Oh, John, what did you bring these for?"

At the same time, glad he did so, she opened the box, took one out, and put it in her mouth. All of a sudden she said:

"Why, John, that's awfully funny candy."

After lighting the gas she discovered it was coal. John made all kinds of excuses, but failed.

Auction Sale on Large Scale.

The old adage that one half of the world knows not how the other half lives applies in a measure to the fact that there were sold by auction in New York last week between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000 worth of carpets and rugs, the product of a big carpet mill at Yonkers, N. Y. The sale was conducted on the upper floor of one of the big buildings along the Fifth avenue in the wholesale district, and continued from Monday morning, when it opened, until Saturday evening at 7:30. It was attended by buyers from all over the country, who spent the entire day in the auction room, taking only a brief respite at noon time for luncheon. The luncheon was provided at the saleroom, so that the buyers did not have to leave the building and consisted of a supply daily of 5,000 sandwiches, 30 gallons of coffee, 20 gallons of condensed milk and 500 bottles of beer. On Friday fish was served to those who do not eat meat.

Restrained by Modesty.

Lisa Cipriani, the well-known Italian writer, told at a dinner in New York an amusing story of her little brother: "Ritchie, when asked, used to say, 'I am going to run away. Then my mother would answer: 'All right, run away; but your clothes are mine. You came to me naked and naked you shall leave me.'"

"And Ritchie would plead, 'One little pair of trousers!'"

"No," my mother would reply, 'It is not good for you to run away, and I can't let you have even one little old pair of trousers for such a purpose.'"

"Ritchie would plead again, 'One little old pair of trousers!'"

"But his mother was firm and, thanks to her firmness, Ritchie never ran away."

Knowing little or nothing about other forms of investment they have bought adjoining farms, paying high prices in order to secure them.

The men selling have moved to the northwest, the west or the southwest to put the proceeds of their sales in cheaper lands. These causes have forced a decrease in the rural districts which the growing cities have not been able to make good.

It will be noted that nine of the counties mentioned in the current report as showing a gain in population contain such cities as Des Moines, Sioux City, Council Bluffs, Cedar Rapids, Davenport, Dubuque, Burlington, Clinton and Waterloo.

Sioux City Journal: A Thanksgiving proclamation coming in on the eve of an election is a jarring note. It will read better a few days later.

"We continue to be at peace with the rest of the world." Very well; but we are not at peace with ourselves. We lack faith in ourselves.

Our peace with the rest of the world is insecure so long as we remain at war with ourselves. We have great need of consistency which is another word for constancy.

There are not days enough of thanksgiving. In material things our great country has amazingly prospered during the year.

The problems of our time are many; and no problem is greater than faith in one another. Is there unwitting invitation to adversity?

CLOSING DAY FOR CONTEST

DECEMBER 17 IS THE TIME

Prizes Awarded on that Day—Votes Issued Free on Subscription Payments Count.

When we started the subscription voting contest we promised that it would close before Christmas, thus making it a short contest. This seems a very short time for one to work and secure such valuable prizes as will be awarded, but we have set the closing date for Saturday, December 17. The contest will close promptly at 6 p. m. on that date and the automobile, piano and other prizes will be awarded as soon as the final count can be made.

The race so far is very close. No contestant is so far ahead, but what the lowest one could be in the lead. The contestants are doing good work and will be well rewarded in the end.

It takes votes to win these prizes. Votes are issued free on all subscription payments whether to the Herald or to the Nebraska Farmer, but it does not cost much more to take the two papers together and a subscription to both counts double for votes. If you want to make your votes count for the most, according to the amount of money you pay, be sure that you give the contestant your subscription for both papers.

ALL ABOUT THE NEW BAND

Fourteen of Wayne's boys have secured their parent's consent, and provided money for their horns and are ready to start practice as soon as the instruments come. We will welcome as many more boys as want to join, provided they have their parents' backing and can get good horns.

A good instrument which will last and be good enough to use in the regular band next year will cost from $18.00 to $25.00. The instruments are furnished at wholesale cost, come on approval and are tested by Mr. Buraker before being used. If not satisfactory Mr. Buraker will reject and return any such instrument.

Practice will be held and instruction given to new members only one night each week.

A blackboard drill in the fundamentals of music will be given every night.

As soon as proficient, the members of the new band will join the old band.

Instruction costs nothing; the Commercial club pays Mr. Buraker for that purpose.

A hall will be rented and properly kept so that the practice will begin promptly at 7:00 o'clock and close at 8:30, thus enabling the boys to get home at a good hour.

If your boy wants to join, confer with band committee right away, with Real Bargains! Extra Stamps! Special Offers!

FOR THE NEXT SEVEN DAYS

November Shall Not be a Dull Month at Ahern's

As a rule November is a quiet month in all business lines because you are all so busy in the field that you put your winter buying off till December. But we are determined to keep the buying right up to top notch this month by putting on more steam, offering specially attractive bargains, making lots of extra stamp offers, cutting off a little of the profit on many items and getting in some new goods to tempt you. Our expenses go on just the same, we have the help and the rent to pay, we have the goods to sell and there is no use in folding our hands and waiting for December. We will take less profit and keep our store crowded right along. We start this week with a crackerjack lot of special offers as made on this page. You can get them till one week from tomorrow (Thursday), then will advertise a fresh lot, and the savings you can make will be so great and the extra stamps you can get will be so many that you'll feel well repaid for taking a day off and coming to Ahern's in November. There are a lot of winter goods you know you are going to need, buy them this month instead of next and get the saving in price and the extra stamps. Look for a new list of bargains next week.

Money-Saving Hints

There never was a more opportune time for you to buy a suit. The open winter makes the tailor made suit the most desirable garment to be had. The styles are so staple that one of these fall suits may be worn for two or three seasons very nicely. Large women who wear odd sizes will find suits here cut especially for them. Every suit is a new one, too. Of course a big inducement to buy now is the price. We bought 40 sample suits from the Alexander Black Co., at one-fourth off the regular price and these are the suits we are offering at reduced prices. They are better than regular suits, being samples and the price is very near wholesale. The $25.00 suits will cost you $19.75, the $20.00 suits $15.00 and the $15.00 suits $12.25. Now is the time to buy. Double stamps with these suits all week.

We will make you a present of any last year's coat or suit you find in our stock. This offer is extended to my clerks as well as customers.

A new lot of Persian silks for waists just received. They are the popular thing this fall.

The felt and fleece lined shoes are here now. Better get them in time.

This is not overshoe weather but it is the right time to buy overshoes—the new goods are here. You'll get fresh rubber with life and wear to it, and you'll get those extra stamps.

Folks who want their shoes to look neat and stylish as well as to wear, should get "Queen Quality" shoes. Hundreds of factories use good leather and sew their shoes well, but there is no factory gets out the good-wearing shoes that have as much style as "Queen Quality" shoes, at a reasonable price. They don't cost any more than ordinary shoes but you'll feel a whole lot better dressed in them. Forty new, up-to-date styles to choose from.

Our grocery department is getting to be a big factor in our business—our expense of handling groceries is so small compared to those of exclusive grocery stores, that we are able to offer better inducements to our customers and money saving in groceries attracts most everyone.

Double Trading Stamps With

Ladies' Tailored Suits

Buy your suit before one week from Thursday and get double stamps. A $20.00 suit will bring you $40.00 worth of stamps. There are 55 fine suits to choose from—every one new. We fit them perfectly without extra cost.

Prices on Suits are Reduced

The prices on suits have been reduced considerable. You'll be surprised at what a fine suit you can get for $15.00 to $18.00. The open winter is making the tailor made suit the most desirable garment you can buy.

100 Extra Stamps

With Every Pair Wool Blankets

These blankets are travellers' samples. They are much better than ordinary blankets and they are one-fourth cheaper. You can buy the big size 11-4 all wool blankets here for the same prices you pay for the smaller 10-4 size elsewhere. And just to keep business up during this dull month, I will give 100 extra stamps with every pair.

50 Extra Stamps

With Every Pair Men's Shoes

Just to make it worth your while to remind the men that they can buy their shoes at Ahern's just as well as at the Clothing store we will give 50 extra stamps with every pair sold during the next seven days. We have every kind of shoes a man needs, and every line we sell is true, tried, well known and reliable. Our Tan Elk and Barnyard shoes are two of the best work shoes ever made, and the Packard Dress shoes are an extra good and stylish line. Send the men to Ahern's for their shoes and remind them to get the stamps.

30 Extra Stamps

With Every Pair of Overshoes

The new Overshoe stock is now here—just to induce you to come in and get them this month and keep trade humming, we will give you 30 extra stamps with every pair. Our Beacon Falls Korn Belt 4 Buckle All Rubber Arctic advertised so extensively in the farm journals is the best piece of Rubber Footwear ever gotten out for men. Better than a Rubber boot because it is warmer—just as water proof—lighter and more convenient. Priced just the same as last year.

100 Extra Stamps

With Every Child's Coat

Another great trade winning special for November. There are dozens of fine coats to choose from and remember we don't want you to buy unless you can do just as well or better in price and quality than you can anywhere else. We are giving away part of our profit in stamps just to increase our November business. Don't wait till next month. Take the time to buy your girl a coat now and get the 100 extra stamps.

Stamp News

Plenty of opportunities to fill your book in a hurry during November. There are enough specials on this sheet to fill an entire book if you took advantage of them all.

Many of our customers send their men folks here for their shoes. That means a lot of stamps as well as extra good shoes at a saving in price.

Several customers have brought in their friends from neighboring towns to trade and these friends have kindly given them their stamps. They both profited thereby.

Another lot of new premiums have been ordered. The S. & H. company regret that we cannot give them more space in this store as they would like to double their premium display. Things being as they are we have to order such articles as we think you would like. The S. & H. Co., have a catalogue at our store listing hundreds of premiums not on display and you are welcome to look it over and select anything you like. We will gladly order it for you.

There is no trading that brings stamps so regularly as grocery buying. Why not get the habit of buying your groceries here? You'll get them here as well as anywhere and before you realize you'll have stamps enough for a nice electric reading lamp or a piece of rich cut glass.

Three hundred families came in last week and got the stamp book containing the thirty extra stamps. It surely pays a merchant to show his appreciation of a customer's trade by giving a nice premium. Those three hundred families coming for those books means they like the idea.

If you want to satisfy yourself beyond a doubt that the trading stamp is a good thing for you to save and that it don't cost you a cent, make a list of articles that you have bought in other stores the last two or three months and come down and price the same merchandise here. That is the one true test and I wouldn't invite you to make it if I didn't know just what you would figure out. It would mean another customer for Ahern's.

COMPARE! COMPARE!! COMPARE!!! THESE GROCERY PRICES

with what you pay elsewhere for the same goods. You'll find our groceries just as good or better, and just as cheap or cheaper than you can buy anywhere and we give green trading stamps and valuable premiums in addition. Our expense of handling groceries is so low we can afford to make these special offers:

Beat-em-All Soap	8 bars for 25c
Gallon Pails Standard Corn Syrup	35c
Best White Tip Parlor Matches	7 boxes for 25c
3 Lb. boxes Lily Gloss Starch	20c
12 cans best Eagle Lye	$1.25
12 cans Peas, Corn, Tomatoes (assorted any way you like)	$1.25
Wedding Breakfast Maple Syrup, per gallon	90c
10-lb. boxes best Soda Crackers (no tins to return)	75c

SELL US YOUR CHICKENS!

This month the chickens will be sold and we have prepared and planned to take them by the hundred. Will pay you every cent we can get for them. We won't charge a thing for handling them. All we figure on is Sioux City prices less the express and we do the work and take the risk in shipping. The yard at the rear of our store has been arranged just for your convenience in unloading and weighing the chickens. It is the handiest, safest place in Wayne. Call us up and get prices. It is impossible to quote a price on this circular that will hold good for any time as the Sioux City market changes almost daily, and we are going to quote Sioux City prices less the express only. We want butter, eggs, potatoes, lard, geese, turkeys and ducks.

CONFLICT OVER SICK MAN.

Neligh Special to the Norfolk News: An incident of more than a passing nature has had many people of Neligh wrought up to a high pitch within the past two days, and all on account of the serious illness of Earl Pickeral, who is suffering with typhoid fever at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J.

D. Housh in the west part of the city.

Up to early Saturday afternoon the young man has been in charge of Dr. R. W. Chamberlain and Miss Trusel, a nurse from Sioux City, but at this time both were notified of the fact that their services were not necessary and that the patient would receive Christian Science treatment from that hour on. Readings have been given by members of the family, and also some have been received by telegram from the extreme east in the young man's behalf.

Upon the report gaining circulation that the physician and nurse had been discharged, or that the latter refused to stay without her physician, on the case, the feeling had become so intense that the city officials were called upon to act. Upon consulting Mayor Wattles, Attorney Kelsey and Dr. Chamberlain went to the Housh home after 8 o'clock Saturday evening, but they were not permitted to see the patient and their stay in the kitchen was of about fifteen minutes' duration.

Yesterday afternoon City Physician D. W. Beattie and Officer Nichols went to the Housh home to note the sanitary conditions that might exist. After a heated argument by Mr. Housh the physician was allowed to enter the sick room, but upon the attempt to take the temperature of the patient, he was immediately stopped by the grandparent. The conditions found in the sick room were of such character that the doctor ordered a quarantine card placed on the house. This was done by the officer after much argument on the part of Mr. Housh and after Nichols had been forced off the porch, three times.

A nurse from Omaha, who was telephoned for, arrived late last night. Mr. Housh said that he would under no circumstances let her enter his home.

Mr. Pickeral contracted the disease at Wayne, where he has been making his home during the baseball season, and where his roommate died of typhoid fever a short time ago. Earl is reared in a Christian Science home and knew their ways and teachings, but upon being taken sick he requested that Dr. Chamberlain be his physician. What can be obtained from the bedside of the young man is that he is somewhat improved, but at any event he is not out of danger.

"What is the matter?" asked the proprietor, who had walked up unobserved.
"That woman who just left hustled up to the counter and asked to see men's shirts. I spent 20 minutes showing her every style and color we carry. After inspecting the entire stock she roars and thanks me the sweetest, adding: 'I didn't wish to purchase any. You see I am making my husband some summer shirts and I wanted to be sure I was doing them right. My husband is very particular about the finish of his shirts.' And they say married women are so considerate."
The boss smiled and walked away.

PUTS ALLIGATORS TO SLEEP

Man Declares He Has Peculiar Power Over Saurians, and Apparently Proves It.

Bert Swan is the name of a man who can catch alligators with his hands, turn them on their backs and make them as helpless as infants. The alligator's Swan handles are not the giants that bask in the mud of tropical rivers, but they are sufficiently formidable nevertheless.

It is wonderful with what quickness these saurians can snap at a man. Swan gave a little session with his pets for the benefit of a correspondent of St. Nicholas and this quickness of action on the part of the alligators was fully demonstrated before the little private performance ended.

The first task was to get the alligator into the open where the light was sufficiently good to permit of snapshots. This was done by two men grasping the alligator, one seizing his jaws with a lightning movement and the other grabbing his wildly waving tail.

In the open the alligator proved as wicked as could have been wished. Swan's method of catching him was to hold the hands in readiness and wait for a favorable chance to grab the upper and lower jaws. As this was done while the formidable rows of teeth were apparently itching for a chance to snap the man's arm, it was no simple matter to catch the jaws and imprison them.

Swan waited a long time before he saw his chance and the eye could scarcely follow the movement of his hands as they were darted toward the outstretched jaws. Once the jaws were closed in the man's vise-like grip it was a simple matter to slip one hand under the snout, seize one of the clawing legs with the other and turn the alligator on his back.

The owner of the alligator says he has found a way to hypnotize the creatures. Be that as it may, it is true that he made the wicked little saurian perfectly still for as long a time as he wished and then raised him in his arms and carried him around like a baby, the animal being apparently sound asleep all the time. When Swan put him down and touched his throat with a finger he awoke once more into vicious life and began snapping as before.

The alligator cannot move very quickly on his legs and it is easy enough to avoid him when he comes at you, but to try and plin his jaws is another matter and a task that no one would care to try unless gifted with lightning-like agility and the quickest of eyes, as well as with muscular hands.

How Matilda Helped the Curate

By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

She was not at all pretty; in fact, some persons thought Matilda was not even good-looking, but for all that there was something in her frank, good humor, and a liveliness in her little, gray eyes that always began by amusing and usually ended by captivating all those who came in her way.

Everyone used to think that Matilda would end by marrying her childhood playmate and companion, Paul Meade, and it had been whispered more than once that there was an engagement. And it was also whispered, though Matilda made a confident of no one, it was Paul's fault that when, not long after Matilda's twenty-seventh birthday, he went off to South America on a big engineering scheme, he did not take Matilda with him.

"Matilda acts exactly like a disappointed spinster," said her sister Clara one day. "She's gone into church work as if her last hope went with Paul to South America. She's at church now taking charge of one of those tiresome guilds, and she spends more than half her time going about and visiting the poor parishioners."

Constance smiled and looked up from her sewing. "Disappointed spinster!" she said with a laugh. "I think you have forgotten our new curate. It's his guild she's working for, and his poor she's visiting, and the end of it all will be that he will propose like the rest, and I almost think Matilda would take him, too."

Clara gasped: "You don't mean that little Mr. Cobb, do you? How perfectly ridiculous! Why, a man like that couldn't even amuse Matilda. He's a mere boy and he hasn't had any experience. To be sure he's the most unsophisticated and delightful boy in the parish, but he doesn't know any more how to manage a girl like Matilda than one of his own choir boys would."

I Am Going to Marry Deaconess Gray.

A few minutes later Matilda came upon her sisters. "Here," she exclaimed, undoing a package she had brought with her, "won't you take some of this sewing? Stephen—that is, Mr. Cobb—wants to get the work of tomorrow. It is for his mission up the mountains where he supports a deaconess with his own money. Isn't that generous of him? I promised to finish these garments tonight and I never could manage by myself."

Clara looked up in surprise. "The first thing you know, Matilda, that little curate of yours will be in love with you," she said, reproachfully. "I should think you'd have more sense than to ride with a man's feelings like that."

"Why," laughed Matilda, "I think I'd make a very nice minister's wife, don't you?"

"You aren't engaged, are you?" asked Constance, curiously.

"Don't you 'exactly'?" Matilda, assured her. "He hasn't even proposed yet! Tell me when he does."

"Before many days had passed it was quite obvious to the two younger sisters that Matilda actually had designs upon the affections of the non-esteemed Mr. Cobb."

"After all," said Constance, "she says she would like to be a minister's wife and I suppose she has to marry some one some time."

NEW SOUP RECIPES

GIVING VARIETY TO FIRST COURSE IN MENU.

Potatoes and Sorrel Added to Familiar Tomato Bisque—How to Use the Water in Which Fowl Has Been Boiled.

In the fall the housewife's fancy seriously turns to thoughts of soups. With the first few whiffs of snappy autumn air the stock pot acquires an interest which it lacks for at least three months, while the daily menu becomes longer by one hot, wholesome soup.

When reinstating soup to its proper dignity this year it would be an excellent housewife's study to vary it to a greater extent than in former seasons.

The average first course is extremely limited in point of variety, and good and tasty recipes are so numerous that it is a pity this should be the case.

While fresh tomatoes are still with us, try a variation of the familiar tomato bisque. Have the fruit weighed just a pound, and cook them in four white potatoes. Most of the water in which fowl has been boiled, according to size, and have a bunch of sorrel in the water. When soft, rub them through a sieve and heat again with some butter. Add the seasoning liked, boil up yet again, and serve with toast fingers.

Any poultry stock makes a good soup in capable hands. And by poultry stock is meant not the extracted juices of a whole fowl, but simply water in which the bird has boiled.

This is the method followed by one adept manager to use up the superfluous liquor when serving boiled fowl. To a pint and a quarter of the latter add just a little celery, a mere spoonful of onion, a saltspoonful of pepper, corns, and a teaspoonful of salt to taste. When it has reached the boiling point, simmer it slowly half an hour, and afterward strain. Prepare the usual blend of flour and butter, gradually pour on to it the boiling liquid. Add one cupful of milk and season with salt and pepper.

If the yolk of one egg is slightly whipped, thinned with a tablespoonful of the soup, and added to the potage proper it makes for additional richness. In such case it must be served immediately, or it will curdle.

Artichokes are less known than many other vegetable broths which are less choice. Following is a reliable recipe for it. In a tablespoonful of good butter fry a white turnip sliced thin, red onion ditto, three pounds of Jerusalem artichokes, washed, pared and sliced, and a thin slice of bacon. Stir these in the hot butter for ten minutes, and gradually add one pint of stock. Season to taste, strain and press vegetables through a sieve, after which add two cups of boiling milk, reheat and serve.

One of the many uses of a can of salmon is a soup, easily whipped up on washday or to eat out a scanty luncheon, menu some time.

Remove all bits of skin and bone and mash the fish in a bowl to a paste. Mix together two cups of veal broth with the same quantity of sweet milk and bring to a boiling point. Cream together two tablespoonfuls of flour and one of butter, and with it thicken the stock, stirring smooth. Add the fish, boil up once more and serve.

The same rule can be used when there is a pound of fresh hotted salt-luncheon, menu some time.

Good and appetizing, too, especially noteworthy in a household where there are school-going appetites, is cream of sage. For it is the sage, after being thoroughly washed, is soaked three hours or more. A quart of white stock is put in the soup pot with a small onion, a bay leaf and a parsley spray and is slowly simmered for 30 minutes, after which the greens are removed. A pint of cream or milk is then added and thickened in the usual way with blended butter and flour. This thickened milk is poured into the boiling stock, seasoned and the potage is ready for immediate appreciation.

Home Made Vinegar.
Save the peelings and cores of apples used in cooking. Cover with water and to every two gallons of water add a cupful of molasses and a little mother if available. Cover with good firm netting and keep in warm place for three or four weeks. Use cider if preferred, in which case two cupfuls of molasses are necessary to one gallon.

Ginger Pears.
Allow five pounds of sugar to seven pounds of pears. Soak one ounce of green ginger over night in two cups of water. Peel the pears and cut in small pieces. Make a strup of the sugar and the water in which the ginger was soaked and the ginger cut in small pieces. Add the sliced pear, cook slowly four hours when the strup should be dark and rich.

Peanut Cookies.
Shell and rub off the inner skin of sufficient roasted peanuts to measure one pint when chopped fine. Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter and one cupful of sugar; add three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of milk, one-quarter of a teaspoonful of salt, the chopped nuts and sufficient flour to make a soft dough. Roll out, cut in circles and bake in a moderate oven.

Orange Pudding.
Peel and slice a half dozen oranges, over which pour one cup of sugar. Boil one pint of milk and thicken with one tablespoonful of dissolved cornstarch. Add the beston yolks of three eggs just before removing from the stove. Pour this mixture over the oranges. Beat the whites of the eggs with a little sugar, for a meringue, and brown delicately.

Cream of Squash.
Peel and boil until tender, add one cup of sugar, one cup of milk, to every cup of squash, add one cup of milk; put in a small lump of butter, season with salt and pepper; serve hot.

WOULD BE OF MORE VALUE

Father O'Leary's Facetious Rejoinder to John Philpot Curran an Example of Real Wit.

One day the famous John Philpot Curran, who was also very partial to the said corned mutton, did me the honor to make a little speech to the society of such men as an intellectual treat. They were great friends and seemed to have a mutual respect for each other's talent, and, as it may easily be imagined, O'Leary versus Curran was no bad match.

One day after dinner Curran said to him: "Reverend father, I wish you were St. Peter."

"And why, counselor, would you wish that I were St. Peter?" asked O'Leary.

"Because, reverend father, in that case," said Curran, "you would have the keys to heaven, and you could let me in."

"By my honor and conscience, counselor," replied the divine, "it would be better for you that I had the keys of the other place, then I could let you out."

Curran enjoyed the joke, which he admitted had a good deal of justice in it.—From Kelly's Reminiscences.

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would cut my scalp. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my fingertips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain—sovereign of conscience and I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment in all. The first time I took six or seven bottles of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

An Effort to Oblige.
"Mr. Lobrow does his best to be agreeable," said the sympathetic young woman. "It's too bad that he has so little tact."

"I understand that Miss Coddley refuses to speak to him. He sent her a box of candy and she fed it all to her pet terrier. So he tried to be still more kind and thoughtful and sent her a box of dog biscuit."

Who in His "Naturalist on the Prowl" Describes Little Animal—Serves as a Fright of Him.

Pets are of all sorts. One of the most amusing and attractive is described by Eha in his "Naturalist on the Prowl." This little animal was a lemur and besides many gentle and caring ways, it seemed as if it possessed a certain sense of humor.

That was beyond human endurance, and I would roll the little fellow into a ball, wind his long, lily tail about him and fling him into the bed. He would be unwound in a moment, and would skip away to explore some more.

His mind being longer than his head, he walked slowly, with his head down, but when in a hurry he would bound and bound along like a kangaroo, tail in the air, arms extended, fingers spread, looking like nothing one ever saw.

The servants regarded him as unclean, and fled at his approach. He would give chase, and there never was a fiercer sport than to see the butler in full flight up the long stairway, with the gleeful little demon after him, three steps at a bound.—Youths Companion.

FINE IVORY NOW THE VOGUE

Toilet Table Accessories at the Present Moment Are Costly but Decidedly Smart.

All the toilet and dressing table requisites are now found in fine ivory. The only care needed is to rub off with a fresh, soft cloth, occasionally using a rag moistened in alcohol if spots occur.

The backs are monogrammed in black, brown, or occasionally in raised gold. Sometimes the sets are shown with floral decorations, but this is not so good style as is seen in many of the imitations.

White celluloid sets with a monogram in black, dark green, blue, or brown are now to be found in good designs with simple lines. The latest preparations are no longer combustible, and a full celluloid toilet set is a good investment for a guest room, for a girl at college, or for the chronic traveler.

The researcher after novelty can have her dressing table appointments in antique gilt, old Japanese lacquer, or Dresden china.

Such a selection is not for the average buyer, as unless rare workmanship and corresponding cost are had, the results are likely to be poor.

"Chatting Merrily the While"

By Wilbur D. Nesbit.

Styvaline, the new anesthetic, permits the patient to retain his consciousness, and carry on a conversation, while being operated upon.

Gather 'round me, stitful surgeon, nurse, physician and chirurgeon, Let my conversation, surgeon while you stare upon my ribs.

I shall rest upon a quiver and without a shake or shiver As you cut apart my liver, if you won't say I'm glib.

Go ahead and slice my show with the best of skill that's in you, While I merrily continue to inquire a little.

Tell me why when I am ailing and to you I come a-trailing, I must find it well calling to ask what you christen it.

You will nod and hem and have some in your manner more than awe some, Till you make me think you saw some subtle symptom of the plague;

Then you tell me to keep quiet and you fix me up a diet;—but a riot—but the rest of it is vague.

You will write me a prescription couched in something like Egyptian, Looking like a wild connotation of a spider in the ink;

Though with science you have planned it, and by rights you may command it, Still, if I could understand it, it would help a lot, I think.

What's the matter, doctor? Truly, I don't mean to be ungrateful; Please don't look at me so coolly or I think that I shall weep.

But the doctors and the nurses brought the drug that talk dispenses, And in spite of feeble curses put the talking one to sleep!

His Family's Plans

By JOANNA SINGLE

With an intent frown, young John Markham listened while old John gave a thousand last directions about the management of the mutual business of Markham & Markham.

"Confound that doctor!" he finished, wincing with a sudden pain. "I know he is right, and that I simply must spend the next three months tramping about Europe, worrying your mother and a frazzle and trying to forget business as much as possible. It that or die. But, doctor or no, I've got to attend to some things myself, so I shall be obliged to take Miss Spencer along. She knows the business almost better than either you or I, and she's a cheerful person to be with us. I'm sorry about this sudden plan, but you'll have to get a new stenographer—don't trust business colleges. Call up Saverly—his business runs on the same general lines. He's my best friend, and to be sure to have good girls and one to spare in the summer. Well, see you later. I'll go home now."

Young Markham, who always did things now, went to the phone and asked Mr. James Saverly for the loan of a stenographer for a few months—one that could spell, and mind both her own business and that of her employer. The old man thought a moment and promised to send one over in the morning. That was done.

Markham then proceeded to other matters determined that no detail should suffer in the enforced absence of his father.

But as he worked he raged, for the night before he had overheard a parental conversation which he could not escape without letting them know he had heard, which would have troubled them terribly. He wished he didn't know that they were cold-bloodedly worrying about his marrying, though he was but twenty-four, and that they had imagined they could choose a wife for him. They seemed worried lest he be captured by the wiles of "some woman," some girl without money and position, some one not in their own particular social set.

He would show them that he would make his own choice, sincerely hoping the family would like it. But, if they didn't, he could be more thorough! When sentiment was more forlorn than final. But it was the limit that they should plan to force old Saverly's daughter on him—it was Margaret! his mother mentioned, though there were several of the motherless girls.

They had been in England with an aunt since childhood, and were coming back any time now. Let's see, he remembered that Maggie was the youngest, tomboyish child he had dined with at the pension one summer when he was twelve and she a bit younger. The matter said she was sorry the girl was a little frail, she would have preferred a stronger girl; but Margaret was charming—she had seen her in London last summer. She had been "presented" and was beautifully mannered. The matter had gone on to tell her husband that his old friend was crazy. He had had a lot of girls taught to earn their own living in case something happened to him. Maude had learned to cook, Elizabeth to dressmake and heaven only knew what he had taught Margaret! She was the youngest, and marriage might save her. She had hoped to "throw the girl in John Junior's way that summer, and here she had to trawl all over Europe! She was quite pathetic about it.

The young man sat on the veranda that night after he had dutifully seen his parents off. He had promised them anything, and was to be made comfortable in the old house by the family servants. He hoped the pater would improve in health—and temper. Then he went off early to bed, his mind still busy with choosing his own wife.

Miss Stone, the new stenographer, was waiting the next morning. He called her to take some dictation in the inner office, and almost unconsciously, though he was courteous to every one, accorded her the manners he would have used with girls of his own set. She was little and slender, with quantities of plainly arranged, bright brown hair and steady, clear, gray eyes. She should not have been much past twenty, but she had an air of poise and detachment that was quite remarkable. His quick eye noted that her exquisitely neat black dress was new and cheap, that her small shoes were cheap, but her handkerchief which lay on the desk before her was of very fine linen. She took dictation swiftly and quietly without asking him to repeat, with an alert intelligence that pleased him. And when, later, she brought him the letters to sign they were faultless. She could spell and she could bring forceful order out of his rather chaotic and headlong sentences. And neither that first day nor on any other did she seem to regard him personally. She did her work and then went home. It was very simple.

Business, always slack in summer, went smoothly enough, but he saw that every detail was brought up to date. Every one was busy enough. The girl seemed not to mingle with the other girls, but kept to herself. He found that she could not only spell, but that she could exist without gun, cheap finery, and elaborate coiffures. And she made no attempts, subtle or otherwise, at flirting with her young employer. He was used to being ogled by the girls in his employ. This was refreshing, all-right. The girl was refreshing, all-right. The girl was refreshing, all-right. The girl was refreshing, all-right.

"You might ask my father, Mr. James Saverly," she said demurely, "whether he thinks I have had enough business experience."

"But you, you! I want your answer!" She rose, dropping the little "Marpesa" to the floor. He stooped to pick it up, and from the open fly-leaf this name looked up at him, "Margaret Stone Saverly."

"Anything my father and you wish would be quite all-right," she said, smiling, and she followed her out and went down the street with her to her father's office.

MANY PERSONS LOOK ALIKE

If You Have Not Met Your Own Double, You Often See Those of Other People.

They say that every man, woman, and child has a double, but even at that you seldom hear of the two encountering. Have you met yours? Neither have I come face to face with mine, or even heard of him. The earth's a mighty big sphere, you know, and it's more than likely our doubles are thousands of miles away from us.

But to counteract this fact, did you ever observe the large number of persons in strange places who have resembled the equally large number of persons with whom you're acquainted? I never yet have been in a city where there wasn't some one who looked like some one I knew.

I was walking down Broadway with my wife the other day at a time when occasional brought numbers of sightseers downtown. For my part, I see the streets crowded every day, but not so my wife, who gets downtown only when there is "something doing" outside of her "shopping day."

One remark that she made set me thinking: "My goodness! Think of all these people being here, and we not knowing any of them!" I wondered if you didn't know some of them. I looked about me; then on all sides. There, right in front of me, was Tom. No; it wasn't Tom; it was Ed; double; dark instead of light.

And then, five minutes later, Dick passed. But it wasn't Dick, either; this man's hand, I could see when he lifted his cigar, was completely formed, while Dick's had not a forefinger.

Then came Harry, on rather a man who resembled him, saying the deformation of being chubbeted. And this coincidence just served to inform me that the world is a mighty queer place. How was it I could meet the doubles of my friends and yet have never stumbled across my own?

This Walter Was Wise.

One of the last times that Bishop Burgess of Long Island dined out was at the Plaza club, where the waiters ate all the time. The head waiter bowed Bishop Burgess and his host profusely to their places. "This way, admiral," said he. "Pick this table. You got a better view of the harbor head, admiral."

"I am not an admiral," said Bishop Burgess, smiling. "My mistake, admiral," said the head waiter. "Am I not or know all the time I was ever talked to a military man. You like this table, don't you?"

"It is not a capital," said Bishop Burgess, smiling more broadly. "I am a bishop."

"To be sure, admiral," said the head waiter. "To be sure! Ve'y sorry for mah mistake, sah. I got dem titles of admiral and colonel wrong. Ah knowed some as Ah saw you dat you was one of the face cards of you profession, sah."

Ships on Postage Stamps

Uncle Sam's Engravers Have Used All Sorts of Vessels as Designs in Recent Years.

The ship postage stamps are numerous and have performed yeoman service. Among the most notable of stamp pictures of modern vessels are those on the Buffalo Exposition stamps of this country, the one-cent stamping a fast-going vessel on the great lakes and the 10-cent showing a brave ocean traveler. An early local stamp of this country shows a queer little side-wheel steamer that would be a curiosity nowadays.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Fowls are obliged to throw off much of the waste of the body through the lungs. They do not sweat, but instead breathe several times faster than sweating animals when heated.

"With their consent—or without it. With or without the consent of the world—and of your parents, if you have any! I'm willing to ask them if you say so. Give me a chance, Margaret!"

"You cannot possibly have anything to say to me, Mr. Markham. What is it, please? I am quite at your service."

"Very well," he said in a low tone. "This should be said in your home, but as you bid me speak here, I shall do so. I have loved you from the minute I saw you, and I want to win you love. I want you to marry me. This was direct, and no woman could mistake the sincerity of it."

"With your parents' full consent!" she asked slowly, flushing, and her voice very low.

"You might ask my father, Mr. James Saverly," she said demurely, "whether he thinks I have had enough business experience."

"But you, you! I want your answer!" She rose, dropping the little "Marpesa" to the floor. He stooped to pick it up, and from the open fly-leaf this name looked up at him, "Margaret Stone Saverly."

"Anything my father and you wish would be quite all-right," she said, smiling, and she followed her out and went down the street with her to her father's office.

Small fruit on the farm is a source of joy and satisfaction. You often hear people say they can buy the fruit cheaper than they can raise it but they don't, and what's more it never tastes so good as the home grown.

In the winter time, after the hens have gone to roost, arrange the litter, (change it if necessary) and scatter the grain into this, so when the hens come off the roost in the morning they can go to work for their breakfast.

There is no gold mine nor get rich quick scheme in the poultry yard, but if you will practice these four words: cleanliness, punctuality, perseverance and care you will receive a good profit from the poultry.

The western man knows that when his lambs go to market, a carload from a well-bred, thoroughbred sire will go for a dollar per head more than for a scrub. They have proved it many a time.

In buying a brooder the chief points to be observed are: a good lamp, a heating device giving off the heat from a central drum, and an arrangement which facilitates easy cleaning.

Science says impure food fed to poultry is the cause of many diseases in man. Then as poultrymen we should be careful what we feed our poultry and the care we give it.

There is little need of buying expensive grains for swine, when maintained on farms, or of feeding much grain, except to nursing mothers or in fitting for market.

A few sunflower seeds planted around the henhouse and yards will not only add to the appearance of the place, but will furnish good food later in the season.

Brooder-lamps are often exposed to the wind, and if cheaply constructed or poorly enclosed, the result will be a chilled brood of chicks, or perhaps a fire.

Not every one may hope to own prize-winning birds, but let us do the best we can by bringing up. There is no wisdom in keeping poor cows.

We have our choices of the breeds and may be enthusiastic about them. The breed you like is the breed with which you will succeed.

Never plow furrows up and down the face of a hill; they can as well be run across its face. In such places there is no fear of water lying so as to do damage, but there is great chance of a drought lessening the yield. This is especially the case if furrows up and down the hill provide facilities for a quick run-off in case of a downpour of rain. Where there are no such furrows for the escape of the water, it will be much more likely to soak in.

Corn in ideal condition for the silo when it is in ideal condition to be cut for fodder, i. e., when the kernels are well glazed and just before the foliage begins to brown. Corn at this stage introduced into a well-constructed silo and carefully spread and well tramped has never failed in our experience to produce ideal silage.

Hogs make their most profitable growth in summer, when they are young, but this will not be true unless they have something to eat. Plenty of pasture and milk with some grain will help them along at a time when they are best able to respond and when pork is made most cheaply.

After the pigs are two weeks old they may be turned into a lot together, where they may be fed without being disturbed by the sows. The feeding lot of the pigs should be connected with the sow's pen by a small opening through which they may pass back and forth at will.

Alfalfa is making good in the east, and farmers are realizing that it is comparatively easy to get a stand by the use of lime and plenty of stable manure. This is ideal pasture for swine and no harm will be done, the crop if pastured lightly.

There are no secrets about good dairying. The farm journals tell all there is about it over and over, but the man who does not read and apply modern methods remains in ignorance, and possesses an empty pocket-book.

The average dairy farmer takes it as a matter of course that cows usually shrink during the fall and fall away in their flesh condition, and therefore he makes no plans to remove the cause of the falling away.

A good brood sow of whatever breed must have a big feeding capacity in order to produce plenty of milk. For this reason it is never wise to buy a sow with a short, chunky body set on too short legs.

In buying a farm one of the most important things to consider is the matter of water for the stock. No animal on the farm can be expected to do its best without free access to good water.

Idle horses need good, judicious care. There are instances where valuable animals have dropped dead when being taken from the stable after a long period of confinement.

Economy in saving, and the application of barnyard manure is needed on most farms. Manure is one of its valuable products, yet it is not fully appreciated by most managers.

Maybe those old hens will go through another winter all right, but you will not get much out of them. Let them go. It is the young hen that does the business.

If one waits until husking time to save the seed corn the task will always be done more hurriedly and the chances are that a poorer quality will be secured.

Benefits can be derived from even a roughly kept register of the cow's yield and other matters concerning her which otherwise would be forgotten.

In a day's time a chickadee has been known to eat hundreds of insect eggs and worms that are very harmful to our trees and vegetables.

Dipping every fowl is the surest and safest way to get rid of the body louse and all parasites such as feather mites, scaly leg, scabies, etc.

If there is a furnace in the cellar, beets and carrots keep much better if packed in sand. This prevents them from shriveling so badly.

Oats is one of the most important feeds we can feed to growing chicks, as it is a muscle and loose builder and makes fine feathers.

Where you find fifth you find vermiform. These two things cause a host of diseases, and right here is where the losses begin.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

De Forest, Wis.—"After an operation four years ago I had pains down my backache, and a weakness. The doctor wanted me to have another operation. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I am entirely cured of my troubles."

Mrs. ANNETT VESPERMANN, De Forest, Wis.—"Another Operation Avoided." "For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILLY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerer St., New Orleans, La.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

If you want special advice about your case write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

A Realist on Hope. William Dean Howells, discussing realism at one of his Sunday afternoon in New York, let fall a neat epigram on hope.

"Hope," said the famous novelist, "is not, really, an angel, in a diaphanous robe of white, but only the wisp of hay held before a donkey's nose to make him go."

Reporter in Luck. City Editor (hurriedly)—Anything new about that suicide in the St. Fashion hotel?

Reporter—Not much. The man was a stranger, about my size. Shot himself with a .32-caliber revolver. Had on a dress suit at the time. The body had been taken in the morgue.

City Editor—Don't you see, that's lucky. I want you to report a big society wedding in an hour. Rush around to the morgue and ask the keeper to lend you that dress suit.

On Authority of Teacher. A quick-witted boy, asking food at a farmhouse too recently ravaged by other hungry fishing trawlers, was told that he was big enough to wait until he got home.

"Of course, if you have children with you," hesitated the kindly woman of the house, and was immediately informed that there were six children in the party.

"No, I don't tell a fib, neither," was the indignant parent later drawn forth by the condemnation of one who had shared the good bread and butter thus secured. "Fib! Notin'! We're children six times over. We're children of our father and mother, children of God, children of our country, children of the church and children of grace." Teacher said so last Thursday, and I guess she ought to know."

FROM NEARBY EXCHANGES

Wakefield Republican: Philo Graves received a telegram last Saturday from Los Angeles, California, announcing the death of Lon Allen who died Oct. 28th at the soldiers' home there.

Harman Republican: Mrs. B. T. Harman died at her home in this village on Wednesday morning, Nov. 2, at 5 o'clock, aged 63 years. Her death was due to paralysis although she had no attack at the time of her death.

Winside Tribune: Mrs. Shaw, Etha and Henry Miller are expected now soon to arrive in Winside and occupy Mrs. Shaw's residence again. Mrs. Shaw and daughter have been in Washington for some time residing with Mrs. Shaw's father on his fruit farm up near Chelan, Washington.

Carroll Index: Last Thursday evening Alice Leverenz gave a party to some of her friends. Those present were Elmer Lundquist, Miss Christine Lundquist, Myrtle Kingstons, Hazel James, David Theophilus, Keeley Allensworth, Janette Jones, and Will James. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing "Flinch." At a late hour all found their partners and then all partook of a delicious three-course supper. In the early hours of the morning all departed for their homes feeling assured that the evening had been well spent with Alice.

A force of 25 men on Monday commenced the erection of a direct copper telephone circuit between Sioux City and Ponca. This will connect with the lines tributary to Ponca now on the circuit, giving them direct connections with Sioux City and intermediate points over the Nebraska Telephone company's system. Heretofore the towns between Sioux City and Newcastle have secured service via Wayne and Hubbard. The new line crosses Walker's island, going in an air line to Jackson, Vista and Waterbury. Dakota City Eagle.

Hartington Herald: Callie Sterling, the 13 year old daughter of R. B. Sterling, died at her home Friday morning of spinal meningitis or what is popularly and erroneously called infantile paralysis. The child had been ailing for several days prior to leaving school and complained of pain in her head, back and limbs, but she did not give up until Wednesday when her condition was so much worse she was compelled to remain at home and a physician was called. By this time, however, the unmistakable symptoms of spinal trouble began to appear and, in spite of earnest efforts to save her life, the child grew steadily worse and Friday morning passed away. Death was immediately due to strangulation, the patient grasping and choking her life out in the effort to get her breath.

FATAL SHOOTING.

Hartington News: With the remark, "I told you what I would do to you if you lied to me," Mrs. Maggie Davis shot and instantly killed Ira M. Churchill, at his home near Coleridge, last night about 8 o'clock.

Churchill was in the barn milking a cow when the woman stepped in at the door, and with this remark, fired four shots from a new 32 calibre long barreled Smith & Wesson revolver. Two shots entered the head and two penetrated the body, one passing through the heart. The range was so short that the powder set fire to his clothing. Benjamin A. Hall, who lives with his family on the Churchill farm, was milking another cow when he heard the shots, and glancing up he saw the woman. He retreated by another door, went to the house and returning with a weapon, met Mrs. Davis, who said, "I have killed Ira. Go take care of his body."

Mrs. Churchill and Mrs. Hall had alarmed the neighborhood by phone and Chas. Sutton, hurrying to the scene of the shooting, met Mrs. Davis, who repeated her story and gave the weapon to him. She went back to the home of Clinton M. Boucher, for whom she had been working. The Boucher family left the house, leaving her alone, but when the officers arrived to arrest her she was ready to go, warmly clothed for the ride and with her grip packed, cool and collected.

The officers in this city were notified and Sheriff McFadden, County Attorney Burkett and Coroner Reifert, left at once by auto with Henry Hesse and Mark Hurlbut. An inquest was held and the woman was brought back and lodged in the Merchants' Hotel until the jail can be placed in readiness for her.

It appears that Mrs. Davis, who is about thirty-five years of age and has a husband in Illinois and a daughter eleven years old living with Mrs. Davis' sister near Coleridge, had expected to marry Churchill, who is about thirty years old. She had worked for Churchill several months during the illness of his first wife, who died of a lingering illness in February of this year.

Since the death of Mrs. Churchill she has worked at places in the neighborhood.

Churchill was married one month ago today to a very modest and charming young woman at Shelby, Polk county. Since his marriage Churchill had received threatening letters from Mrs. Davis.

Mrs. Davis had applied about a year ago for a divorce from her husband, alleging desertion and non-support, but the case had not come up for hearing.

"MERCHANTS' SALE WEEK."

Omaha Trade Exhibit: The business men of a Nebraska town contracted with a promoter some weeks ago to put on a "Merchants Sale Week." Now the matter is in the courts, as the business men claim the promoter did not fulfill the contract, particularly in reference to the distribution of advertising matter. The net result will be much annoyance and needless expense. As Trade Exhibit has frequently pointed out, there is no necessity for hiring promoters to carry on work of the kind. Any town having merchants live enough to make any sort of co-operative effort has enough brains in it to carry the matter to a successful conclusion without help from any promoter.

Farmers have been taking advantage of the ideal weather for corn-husking, and are pushing the work as fast as possible. They don't propose to be caught with their corn in the fields by winter's severe storms as they were last year.

Wayne always contributes a packed house when Elwin Strong & Co. fill an engagement here, and the presentation of St. Elmo by that popular company Saturday night proved no exception to the rule. The house was crowded, and none went away disappointed. St. Elmo has a good plot, and in the reproduction Elwin Strong, in the leading role, was supported by a lot of able performers. There are no weaklings in the company, the cast being well balanced and each one adapted to his or her part. Re-appearance of the company at any time will be greeted by the usually big and appreciative audience.

No professional violinist who ever appeared in Atchison could play as well as Alois Philipp's pupils.

A HOUSEHOLD MEDICINE
To be really valuable must show equally good results from each member of the family using it. Foley's Honey and Tar does just this. Whether for children or grown persons Foley's Honey and Tar is best and safest for all coughs and colds.

A Peeping Tom is not only a nuisance and a criminal, but a mighty poor judge of entertainment.

The old, old story, told times without number, and repeated over and over again for the last 36 years, but it is always a welcome story to those in search of health. There is nothing in the world that cures coughs and colds as quickly as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Sold by all dealers.

Every man who serves on a jury should have the right to use the word "Hon." as a prefix to his name.

Many school children suffer from constipation, which is often the cause of seeming stupidity at lessons. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are an ideal medicine to give a child, for they are mild and gentle in their effect, and will cure even chronic constipation. Sold by all dealers.

"I'm not very particular," a man said today, "but I'll accept no man's invitation to have a drink of pop."

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

One trouble with the man who is greatly moved by a revival sermon is that he is apt to have to be moved so often.

Mr. Otto Paul, Milwaukee, Wis., says Foley's Honey and Tar is still more than the best. He writes us, "All those that bought it think it is the best for coughs and colds they ever had and I think it is still more than a bad cold and it cured him in one day. Please accept thanks."

How a man lies when he tells the woman he intends to marry that he plans to devote his whole life to making her happy!

DRESSED IN "BLACK AND YELLOW."

Not "football colors" but the color of the carton containing Foley's Honey and Tar, the best and safest cough remedy for all coughs and colds. Do not accept a substitute but see that you get the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow carton with black letters.

Any man who believes that, in a few years, people will travel everywhere in airships, is generally regarded as progressive.

HEXAMETHYLENEFETRAMINE
Is the name of a German chemical, one of the many valuable ingredients of Foley's Kidney Remedy. Hexamethylene-tramine is recognized by medical text books and authorities as a uric acid solvent and anti-septic for the urine. Take Foley's Kidney Remedy promptly at the first sign of kidney trouble and avoid a serious malady.

When a man is living with a woman to whom he is not married, he always has an excuse to get away; he can say that he has decided to behave.

Farmers, mechanics, railroaders, laborers rely on Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Takes the sting out of cuts, burns or bruises at once. Pains cannot stay where it is used.

We hate to have a strange man slap us on the back; we feel about it, imagine, as a woman does when a strange man tries to hold her hand.

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.

Whenever a man is shot, do you notice how his friends tell around that he was killed because he had braced up, and was trying to lead a better life?

GOOD RESULTS ALWAYS FOLLOW
The use of Foley Kidney Pills. They are up-building, strengthening and soothing. Tonic in action, quick in results.

"Boy wanted," reads a card tacked up in a Commercial street store window, "but no boy with curly hair, rosy cheeks and an ability to play the piano need apply."

When a child becomes settled in the system, it will take several days' treatment to cure it, and the best remedy to use is Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It will cure quicker than any other, and also leaves the system in a natural and healthy condition. Sold by all dealers.

The fact that he knows nothing about a subject isn't much of an indictment for the average man to keep still; indeed, it often seems to work the other way.

BOTH SPEEDY AND EFFECTIVE
This indicates the action of Foley Kidney Pills as S. Parsons, "Battle Creek, Mich., illustrates: 'I have been afflicted with a severe case of kidney and bladder trouble for which I found no relief until I used Foley Kidney Pills. These cured me entirely of all my ailments. I was troubled with backaches and severe shooting pains with annoying urinary irregularities. The steady use of Foley Kidney Pills rid me entirely of all my former troubles. They have my highest recommendation.' Felber's Pharmacy.

STALEY POINTERS

THIS is our thirteenth season selling STALEY fine wool underwear in Wayne, and our thirty-second year of selling this famous make of underwear. You may think that we have advertised this make of underwear enough in Wayne, but as there are some newcomers into the county each year, and there are a few men in Wayne county who do not wear the STALEY underwear, we are going to keep right on advertising this underwear until every man in Wayne county knows it. We have yet to find a single man—or a married man either—who has worn STALEY underwear, that is willing to wear any other kind. That alone should convince anyone that STALEY underwear is superior to any other make. There are a great many things about men that we do not understand, and one of them is, that a majority of the men of Wayne county who do not wear STALEY underwear know that they need it and should wear it, but because they are trading at some store where they do not sell STALEY, they think they have to do without it. We cannot understand why they fail to come here to get what they know they ought to have. If STALEY underwear was high priced and they could not afford to wear it, they would have a good excuse for not wearing it, but STALEY underwear is made for the poor as well as the rich, and every person can afford to wear it and enjoy good health and be comfortable. Ask anyone wearing STALEY wool underwear how he likes it and he will recommend it. Ask any doctor if you should wear STALEY underwear and he will recommend it. Come in and ask us to show you STALEY wool underwear, look at it, feel it, and you will understand why so many wear it, and will be ready to buy it.

Why It is Better

The wool used to make the STALEY underwear is pulled, not sheared, which leaves the ends of the fibers smooth, and not blunt and sharp as all other wool underwear is. Then the wool is put through a process of cleaning that takes out all the foreign matter such as grease impurities, sand-burrs and chaff. It is thoroughly cleansed, then it is carded and spun into yarn and knit into garments. These garments are put into great vats of hot soap suds and thoroughly shrunk. That is why the STALEY wool underwear does not irritate the skin, and is worn by men and even women in Wayne that never found any other wool underwear that they could wear.

Why It is Comfortable

It is made to fit; not stretched to cover; the seams are all sewed with a double over-stitch, which makes a smooth seam that will never rip. This seam is found only in the STALEY underwear, and you will always feel comfortable with STALEY underwear on. Keep yourself warm in STALEY underwear this winter and you will always wear it.

A Fine Assortment

STALEY underwear is made in fifty different kinds. We can please the rich and poor alike. We can fit any person, no matter what his shape or size may be, big or little, short or tall, lean or fat, at the same price as the regular sizes. We have it in all colors and can please the most particular man, and we guarantee satisfaction to the wearer.

Why You Should Wear It

The best medical authority in the world concedes that wool underwear is the only underwear fit to wear. We can give you the names of more than fifty cases of rheumatism that have been cured by wearing STALEY all wool underwear. This is the only factory in America that makes an exclusive line of high grade wool underwear which is sold direct to the retailer and cannot be bought from a jobber. Wool woven and made into undergarments by the STALEY methods absorb the perspiration, thereby preventing the wearer from suffering through sudden changes in the weather. Now don't wait until you get a good case of pneumonia before you are converted into the STALEY family. Six dollars' worth of STALEY is cheaper and is worth more than twenty-five dollars' worth of medicine.

A Timely Warning!

We have sold thousands of suits of STALEY underwear in the twelve years we have been in Wayne, and no man who was a wearer of STALEY underwear has asked for a divorce, and only two men have died in the twelve years that had on STALEY underwear; there has been no man in jail with STALEY underwear on except the sheriff. Now, you and your family need the protection that STALEY underwear gives. It is a remarkable fact that every man who wears STALEY underwear becomes possessed of a desire to tell his friends, and it is a fact that no man who comes to us on a friend's recommendation, leaves the store without making a selection from our large stock of STALEY. Ask your doctor what kind of underwear he wears and he will tell you STALEY. Now, if it is good enough for him it is good enough for you, and this is just the time of year to buy new underwear, as your old, worn out garments do not have the proper warmth in them.

COULDN'T TRIFLE WITH ARI

Mr. Davis Learns a Lesson as the Result of Trying to Do His Own Whitewashing.

"Pay a man to do a little whitewash on a fence!" Mr. Davis sported indignantly, he said. Mrs. Davis sighed, bringing up the sigh from the deep well of experience. "You'll miss yourself all up," she protested, "and it will hurt your back." Mr. Davis laughed scornfully. "Just you watch me," he said, with confidence. Then he went out and bought a whitewash brush. He paid a quarter for it, and the dealer had tried to make him buy one for 75 cents.

"Seventy-five cents for a whitewash brush!" Mr. Davis was so angry he steamed.

"Then he bought a bushel of lime and went home. This lime was a fine powder when it came and when mixed with water became a watery fluid with flakes of white on top. The lime stayed in the bottom of the tub.

When he used the new brush it shed hairs like a setter dog in summer and being wet, showed that it possessed two thin rows of hairs on either side and none in the middle. Also when the whitewash dried the fence looked in no wise different from its former ugliness. Mr. Davis considered. His back hurt. There was lime in his eyes and he was mad.

His next morning he went to the house and found Mrs. Davis preparing to go down town, so he went back to his work. As soon as she was safely out of sight he headed for a negro shack he knew and resurrected Uncle Peter, who was 76 years old and had been whitewashing and doing odd jobs for 70 years.

"He turned the job over to Uncle Peter, who threw his brush in the alley, emptied the whitewash and produced $2 from him.

"With a wheelbarrow Uncle Peter wheeled and promptly returned with a barrowload of lump lime and a brush and set to work. Mr. Davis sat on the steps with his pipe and watched him work.

When Mrs. Davis returned her husband was washed (and shaven and a fence was glistening white.

"Why, you did it all," she said, in evident surprise, nettled her husband. "Of course I did," he said; "I do all I get out of it."

"All by yourself?" inquired Mrs. Davis, admiringly. "Well," confessed Mr. Davis, "I got Uncle Peter to do the heavy work." "Oh," said Mrs. Davis, and went in to take off her hat—Galveston News.

group buys at a Quaker wedding, as nearly as the writer, who attended one last week can remember it. Then the bride says the same thing, interchanging names and substituting "wife" for "husband." After that they kiss and sign their names to a document, which is read before the meeting, and which all those present may sign afterwards. That's all, and it's done. The young people marry themselves, taking the covenant without a clergyman's intervention, without even a presiding officer to say "We have with us today," etc. It is a mighty valid marriage ceremony to those who witness it, and there is a sweet simplicity about it that gives it a charm and dignity no less than priestly robes, stained glass and organ music could impart.—New York Evening Mail.

French Women in Politics.

Madam Durand, one of the leaders of the feminist movement in France, makes the suggestion that while conscription continues in force, a compulsory nursing service for all women over twenty-one—save mothers—be instituted. Another question which the women there are considering is the forbidding of the sale of absinthe which as all who have lived in Paris know, is responsible for the ruin of many a career. In France women know that a breath of ridicule would kill their cause, and so their methods in pursuing the elective vote have to be the most dignified. In spite of the fact that they have big odds to contend with, the cause is undoubtedly forging ahead in Paris. A regular electoral campaign is being held and daily meetings are in order. Both press and politicians have had their attention attracted by the work the women are carrying on and are giving it considerable time and attention.

Mustaches Impulsive.

Mustaches have been made compulsory in the Austrian army, or rather an old ordinance has been revived by a royal decree from the war ministry. It is the personal wish of the Emperor Francis Joseph. The original order was issued in 1848, and its author was General Count Gyulai, the successor of the famous Radetzky in the war with the Italian states, who himself possessed an immense flow of mustache, and who wanted every man in the army to grow one too. The new order, at the same time, upholds the exclusive privilege enjoyed by the Windisch-Grätz regiment of dragoons, which distinguished itself in the battle of Koenigsberg where Frederick the Great was defeated in 1757, in memory of which they were allowed to shave. Since then there has not been a mustache in the regiment.

Gentleness Better Than Force.

Power can do by gentleness that which violence fails to accomplish; and gentleness best enforces the imperial mandate.—Cicero.

TRY TO BE HAPPY

AT LEAST ONE MAY ATTEMPT TO CULTIVATE CHEERFULNESS.

According to Philosophers, the Possession of a Joyous Disposition is Worth More Than an Annuity of Generous Proportions.

Pleasantly entertaining the auditors in Judge Cabaness's court the other day, the attorney for Mrs. Charles Wesley Reed spoke some eloquent words on the philosophy of cheerfulness. "A cheerful nature," he said, "like a Claude Lorraine glass, tinges all objects with sunlight." And he quoted with approval Hume's remark that it is better to be born with a cheerful disposition than with an income of ten thousand pounds.

Lifting the attorney's relations from their environment of personal application to Mr. Reed, there is much to be commended in what his lawyer said, declares the San Francisco Chronicle. Cheerfulness is, indeed, greatly to be desired in the world, though whether a cheerful nature is necessarily a more valuable possession than ten thousand pounds a year may be open to some argument. It is possible, for instance, that ten thousand pounds a year might of itself procure at least a type of cheerfulness.

But of the general usefulness of being happy there can be no two opinions. The man who sings at his work, whatever his occupation, can do more in the same time and do it better than the one who follows his pursuit in silent sullenness. Efforts to be permanently useful must be uniformly joyous, for what the sunshine is to the flowers smiles are to humanity.

It is possible, of course, to be too enthusiastic over the importance of cheerfulness. To confront every situation with a cheerful grin is neither humanly possible nor would it tend to effectiveness of action. Always to look at the silver lining which is supposed to border every cloud, and not observe the cloud itself, is also likely at times to be a mistaken policy. But the habit of seeing the best side of every event, while giving a certain necessary attention to the other side, is one which is very well worth the while of every person to cultivate.

There is a difference between being cheerful and being mirthful. The latter condition should be accidental, arising naturally out of the occasion, and the occasion seldom is laid for it. Cheerfulness, on the other hand, is something which, being a habit of mind, can be made continuous. It is as natural to the heart of a man in strong health as color to his cheek, and where it is lacking, unless temperamental infirmities be the cause, there must be ill-health, excessively severe labor, or erring habits of life.

German Acuteness.

The egg cups imported into India at one time all came from Great Britain. The Indian eggs are, however, very small, and the egg cups did not fit. A German traveler noticed this small item and got his firm to make smaller egg cups and export them there. All the trade is now in German hands.

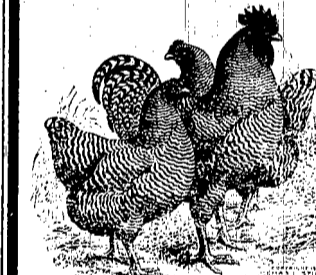

In Africa the spears imported from Sheffield were found to be rather dangerous weapons to place in the hands of the natives, owing to their sharp points. The Solland Steel works sent a lot of round-pointed spears out, which found favor, and now Germany has captured the whole market.—From "Germany of the Germans."

Mr. Gladstone's was one who cherished the old view that women and tobacco ought not to be brought into association. Sir Edward Hamilton records that he would recall a dictum of the fourth marquis of Londonderry, a magnate of fashion in Gladstone's earlier days, that no man ought to enter the society of ladies until four hours had elapsed after he had smoked a cigar. This was one reason why Gladstone hated the modern fashion of smoking after dinner, though his own dislike of the smell may have counted for a good deal.

But "Cranford" shows us that women and the pipe could be associated by extreme politeness—before the pipe was smoked. The courtly old bachelor, getting out his pipe and spittoon after dinner hands the pipe to the lady, although he did not succeed in making Mrs. Carlyle very cheerful, recognized to the full the value of cheerfulness, and at least in his writings did much to impress its importance upon people. "There is no greater everyday virtue than cheerfulness," he wrote in one of his works. "This quality in man amazes men like sunshine to the day, or gentle renewing moisture to parched herbs. The light of a cheerful face diffuses itself and communicates the happy spirit that inspires it. The sourest temper must sweeten in the atmosphere of continuous good humor."
