

COMMERCIAL CLUB COMMITTEE REFUSES TO YIELD TO RAILROAD'S OVERTURES FOR MODIFIED ORDER

WAYNE WILL STAND PAT

Railroad Officials in Conference With Mayor J. H. Kate and Secretary Frank A. Berry.

SAY WHAT THEY WANT TO DO

Moving Tracks Depot to Location North of Present Suggested Commission's Letter.

Members of the Executive Committee of the Commercial Club met Tuesday evening to consider the depot situation, and talk over the railroad's proposition for a modified order from the commission. The executive committee is unanimous in favor of "standing pat" and yielding to nothing short of full and unqualified compliance with the terms set forth in the commission's original order. The state railway commission is evidently determined to have its order revised unless the city of Wayne is disposed to make concessions. As the city does not propose to suffer any concessions, it would seem as if the railroad company to either comply with the order or get into court.

A. W. Debrahm, general manager of the O. & N. railroad company, and J. B. Sheehan, general attorney, had a conference in Wayne Monday evening with Mayor J. H. Kate and Secretary Frank A. Berry of the Wayne Commercial Club. The purpose of the part of the railroad officials was to secure for a modification of the state commission's order to build an entire new depot at this place. They wanted support for a proposition to move the present depot to grounds north of the tracks and rebuild it. This would necessitate changing the fire limits. It would be to build a new depot they suggested that they would be disposed to build a block or more west of the present site. As to the desirability of such proposed location opinion is divided. Many think it would be a good public square as well as another street, while others think it would not be so good.

The following letter, written by the state railway commission to the railroad company has been forwarded to Frank A. Berry, secretary of the Wayne Commercial Club, and shows the stand taken by the state authorities with reference to the building of a new depot in the town of Wayne. It is as follows: Lincoln, Neb., July 6. Mr. J. B. Sheehan, St. Paul, Minn.—Dear Sir: Referring to your favor of the 28th ult., which replies to ours of the 24th ult., in regard to plans and specifications for Wayne depot under commission's order of April 25, 1911, in the matter of the complaint of F. A. Berry vs. Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway company, (Serial No. 177): We are forwarding copies of all correspondence passing between your office and the commission with reference to this matter to Mr. Berry, who writes under date of June 28th, as follows: "We are pleased with the course you have taken, and so far as the city of Wayne granting the railway company a permit to erect, within the fire limits, a wooden building is concerned, we will say that the ordinance will not be suspended. The city council takes the stand that if they suspended the ordinance for one day they would have to do the same thing for others and might as well repeal the ordinance. We insist upon the railway company complying with your order." Again, under date of June 29th, Mr. Berry writes as follows: "Your letter of the 28th last, containing copy of letter of James H. Sheehan received. In reply will say there is no use in Mr. Sheehan writing to me any further unless the proposed order of Wayne is in part to rebuild the old depot, and you are at liberty to so inform him if you so desire." In view of the position taken by the commission, who appears to be for the city authorities, the commission can see no good reason for a conference with you and your engineer, as previously by your favor of the 26th. As previously indicated, the commission has no objection to such reasonable modification of its order as may be agreed to by the complainant and the city officials; but if no such agreement can be reached it would appear that there is no prospect of such modification to enforce the term of the present order. Very truly yours,

REORGANIZATION OF COUNTIES ENDORSED

Personnel Enterprise. In another place on this page will be found a map of Dixon, Dakota, Thurston and Wayne counties, showing their present boundaries and dark lines showing what their boundaries will be if the plan proposed by the Wayne Herald was adopted. The Enterprise is strongly in favor of the plan and believes it to be practicable and expedient. Dakota county is altogether too small and it will not injure Wayne, Dixon or Thurston counties to be enlarged somewhat. Under the Herald plan, two townships belonging to Dixon will be annexed to Wayne county, about five townships of Dakota county will be annexed to Dixon and a half township of Dixon and about four townships of Dakota will be annexed to Thurston county.

The only question that may cause trouble is as to how the present independence of Dakota county will be maintained. But no doubt each of the other counties will be willing to share the proportionate share. Some of the Dakota towns are already almost completely in favor of the plan. And if the Dakota people are in favor of the plan, then it should be adopted. When we have had time to consider the matter, we will probably see that such a new consolidation will result from such a benefit.

SHOWS PRESENCE OF MIND AS BOAT UPSETS

Miss Miriam Patterson, daughter of Dr. C. Patterson of Omaha, and granddaughter of the late Mr. O. G. Gamble of Wayne, had the following experience, as related by Sunday's World-Herald: "Miss Patterson, who is visiting at Lake Okoboji, had an experience on Friday that was decidedly interesting. She was attending the boat race on the lake and was the only woman who was riding in the racing boats. Her boat upset, but instead of losing her presence of mind and perhaps her life, she bravely scrambled over the side of the board and out on the center-boards as it went over, but even venturing her feet. And it isn't an easy feat to switch from the inside of a boat to the outside in mid-lake without some sort of disaster. Miss Patterson displayed rare agility." Miss Patterson is known to many in Wayne, where she has frequently visited for some time. She has been heard in her voice in New York City, doing solo work in the First Presbyterian church here.

THE LIBRARY BOARD ORGANIZES FOR YEAR

The library board has been organized and organized by electing the following officers: Dr. C. J. Green, president; Mrs. C. A. Chase, vice president; and Dr. J. B. Heckert, secretary. The board voted to grant use of the ground west of the building to the library board for a chalet assembly. The secretary was instructed to send the plans for the proposed library building to the architect for correction, which work will require about four weeks. Following report was presented at the meeting of the library board Tuesday evening: Number of days library was open from October 15, 1910, to July 8, 1911, thirty-five. Number of books loaned, 5,035. General average, 95.7. Total number of books issued, seventy-two. Prizes paid to secretary of the city library board, $15.00. Number of books accessioned, 2200. Date of 1910, 1911, 1912.

SUPERINTENDENT HOUSE TAKES TO NORMAL STUDENTS.

Superintendent N. A. Hessel of Madison county, addressed the students of the normal school Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Hessel advanced the idea that the normal school is expected of the teacher. He said that in days past the normal school was reading, writing and arithmetic; now the teacher is expected to teach well, act as a lecturer, literature, history, art and motor activity. He said that the superintendent of the normal school, Hessel, will make the mistake of emphasizing manual work too strongly in the primary grades and pay too little attention to literature. He said that the teacher is the most important factor in school activities, and the teacher to be successful must master its problems and processes. Mr. Hessel advised teachers to use correct English, encourage their students to do well the reading circle work, use the public press, abolish the common drinking cup. Rural communities stand ready to pay higher wages for better teachers. Teachers should not underbid each other but should get the best services are worth. There are a number of teachers enrolled from Madison county and they will be pleased to see Mr. Hessel, and hear his helpful address.

POLITICAL ADVERTISING

Wayne, Nebraska, July 10, 1911

Editor Wayne Herald: The average voter is rather inclined to regard the office of County Superintendent of Public Instruction as being of very much less importance than that of sheriff, treasurer, judge, sheriff or even coroner, and this view and indifference is one reason for his cheerful willingness to allow a woman to usually fill this office while he searches for the other places.

As a matter of fact, however, the work of a county superintendent of public instruction, in its uplifting and far-reaching effects is of vastly more importance than that of any other public servant any of the other county officials may make a legal or clerical blunder which may be easily remedied, or only involves a financial loss at the outside, but a careless or inefficient superintendent at the head of our public school system, through slipshod methods of examinations or faulty judgment, may thus lose upon the suffering community, his prepared and totally unqualified teachers who will succeed in crippling, not only the regular pupils of the school districts of today, but through that same inefficient error, even our own generation of general and high school students.

Wayne county has been fortunate in its selection of county superintendents of public instruction, and it is a truly encouraging sign of the times to see the amount of good timber available for this very important office, and I desire at this time to especially call the attention of the general and taxpayers to the qualifications of Miss Alice H. Phillo, who is a candidate for superintendent, subject to the approval of the republican voters at the primaries to be held on August the 15th.

Miss Phillo is a graduate of the Vermillion, S. D., high school, and also a graduate of the State University of South Dakota, having completed the classical course in that institution in 1897, and receiving a Bachelor of Arts degree, being one of the very few women—or men, either—hereabouts who have had the staying qualities to obtain this educational distinction. In order to receive this higher education she was compelled to teach county schools in South Dakota and Kansas, and consequently she knows from actual experience the needs of the country districts as well as the handicaps and requirements of the rural teacher.

While attending the State University of South Dakota she took a special training course for teachers, and upon graduating she was elected to the principalship of the Vermillion ward school; she held this position for four years and resigned in order to accept the principalship of the Wayne ward school; where she taught two years, and as everybody here knows she gave the very best of satisfaction, both as teacher and principal. In both of these positions there was a constant demand for executive ability, and in her inactive past she has found wanting, but she has always been ready to accept of any administrative capacity as already demonstrated would have proved valuable assets to her and also to the county if she should be elected superintendent. She has kept in constant touch with all that is best along educational lines, and during her residence in Wayne has frequently acted as supply teacher, and has also taught in Twin Falls, Idaho, where she has recently completed an instructor in the higher branches. She has always been actively interested in everything connected with educational matters, having been president of the Kindergarten Board and vice-president of the Improvement League, and worked untiringly for the excellent results now apparent in our public schools.

Miss Phillo is an educational faculty; she believes in first securing a good, sound, practical education, and attaching the frills and trimmings subsequently, if any are desired and obtainable. She is a bright, progressive, energetic woman, with opinions of her own, and the courage of her convictions, and if she is elected to the responsible position of superintendent of public instruction, she will not only represent our school district, but our county well assured that she will receive hearty cooperation, and conscientious watchful supervision just the same as if she lived in the county metropolis.

Miss Phillo needs the office to support herself and two small children, but she is not asking for any sympathy vote on these grounds; she is seeking the nomination and election, has the necessary qualifications, and her friends believe that she is thoroughly and especially qualified for the position, and if she is elected she promises she will give her careful, personal, constant and undivided attention to the duties of the office, believing, as she does, that the office demands the very best that is in her at all times and under all circumstances.

All Christendom has been fired with interest in the life of the woman, Mrs. Napoleon, who has been sentenced to hang in Canada for shooting her husband. If the story of the outrageous manner in which she was treated by her husband is true, she ought to be mentioned instead of put to death.

Over in Dixon county there is such a dearth of candidates for county offices that the prospect is causing anxiety. No one has filed as yet.

There are so many candidates in the field for sheriff that no one ever will be able to guess the result. Each candidate is competing with voters almost constantly, and amazing promises, but none is so confident of the outcome that he is making any definite plans about moving into the sheriff's quarters.

Report of Charles S. Bevis, county treasurer, showing amount of fees earned by him for the quarter amounting to the sum of $625.25 was on motion duly approved.

The Emerson Enterprise suggests that the individual members of the republic have a source of perplexity in reorganizing Wayne, Dixon, Dakota and Thurston counties. The course to pursue in handling debts of a county after changing the boundaries has not been clearly defined.

ANOTHER BIG BARGAIN EVENT AT

Ahern's

A Great Half Price Clearing Sale

Of Wash Goods, Silks and Gingham, begins Saturday at 9:00 a. m.

Think of it! At just one-half the regular price you can buy your choice of all our fine summer wash goods, gingham and fancy silks. All the 50c silks, silk tissues and silk mulls go at 25c; all the 25c tissue gingham and fine dimities go at 12-1-2c; all the 15c lawns and dress gingham go at 7-1-2 cents. There is a fine stock to choose from and the goods are all new, this season styles.

Why Sell New Goods at Such a Remarkable Reduction?

Because the extraordinary sales of Ready-to-wear Summer Dresses hurt the sale of all summer goods badly. We bought and sold three times as many Ready-made Dresses as we usually do and as a result we did not sell our piece goods. Now we must sacrifice the profits on these wash goods and offer them at prices which will MAKE THEM SELL. You get the benefit. Never before have clean, new goods been sold in Wayne at any such extraordinary reduction. This is a big money-saving opportunity for you and it comes at just the time when you can well take advantage of it. There are three months of summer weather yet, Chautauqua time is coming on. You'll need new thin dresses and waists, of course. Then it won't be long until the children need fall school dresses. You can get all these materials at Ahern's at just half price.

THE CAUTIOUS MAN.

A bank run on business principles, appeals to the cautious man as the place for his money. The one who lugs his cash around in socks or tries to secret it in the cellar, is most reckless, as numerous incidents of loss by so doing testify. The modern banking system safeguards one's savings and give them a chance to earn something. Your deposit in this bank is an eminently wise and sensible course to pursue.

The Honorable Senator Sagebrush

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Copyright, 1910, by Street & Smith.

SYNOPSIS.
 Evan Blount, ex-Senator "Sagebrush" David Gray, is recalled by Patricia Anners Dick and is elected to a minor office in the presidential campaign. He declines his father, McVicker, head of the railroad, and "Boss" Blount's offers. He demands that the railroad stop offering him a position and that Gray west to meet his father, Evan, who is a man who takes him for a forty cent.

Evan is kidnapped by a band of men, evidently head-corporation agents, and is held captive in a mansion owned by a woman. The house is Watrache Hall, Senator Blount's home, and Gray is Evan's stepmother, whom he had never met.

The senator proposes running Evan for attorney general, despite the young man's recent arrival in the state. Evan declines to hear his father call a political trickster.

McVicker dresses Senator Blount to receive Evan. Patricia, a geologist, her father arrives at the Sagebrush camp. Blount's youngest brother joins the railroad's forces as division chief and political worker. He favors Evan. Patricia, a geologist, is made a rallying point by the major political hanger-on of the road.

Gray is dissatisfied with Evan. About the road's mixing in politics, his father pulls wires unknown to him and Evan declines to accept a position. Gray, who has been trying to do business with the road, says that he will not.

Gray has a talk with Mrs. Blount. Blount says a rebate from the railroad is the only thing he wants. He is referred to Evan and is advised by Mrs. Blount to put Patricia to work for the railroad.

Gray's interview with Hathaway reveals the road's mission. Gray resigns. Gantry insists that he go through to McVicker.

Patricia dresses Evan again. She asks him to attend to the road and work for public opinion. Evan resigns and is sent into the open country.

Gray's interview with Blount is threatened by Evan to Gantry. Gray is stopped. Evan suspects Gantry of tampering with his desk.

CHAPTER XIV THE DYNAMITE

It was about the time that Evan Blount was denouncing his fourth week of the campaign of education that the first signs of country weariness in the eyes of Miss Patricia Anners. During the last week of two weeks she had been denouncing the trouble to analyze seemed to draw the girl toward the city. The roads round Watrache were just as usual. In a country where such restrictions were conspicuous by their absence were just as keen. But now "You have interfered with my work," she said, "and I am going to stop you."

was silently scouting the face of the big man, who, if it was, should go to the devil. He was a political figure in the state for the succeeding two years.

It was a good face, and in Blount's opinion, it was a good face. Almost unconsciously he felt that it was a good face. He was a candidate for the corporation, and he was a candidate for the corporation. He was a candidate for the corporation, and he was a candidate for the corporation.

Throughout the play and the intermissions, Blount had made him a partisan of the weaker man. He was a candidate for the corporation, and he was a candidate for the corporation. He was a candidate for the corporation, and he was a candidate for the corporation.

"I have been doing precisely what you told me to do," he said, "preaching the gospel of honesty and good government, and trying my level best to make other people practice it."

"You have been successful?" she asked.

"Certainly so, in the preaching, since that depended solely upon me. As for the other, I don't know. Successes have been few, but I have done my best."

"I don't know," she said, "but I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

Blount felt in his pockets and found the key. "Get the packet and bring it to me," he directed, giving the stenographer the key to the inner compartment of the safe.

It was not more than a minute later that he was attempting to bring the key out of the confusion on his desk; that a sudden opening led him to go quickly to the door of the outer office. Scuffling it opened with a bang, he caught the clerk in the act of untying the string which bound the thick padlock. "Why don't you go to your room?" he called angrily.

"What are you doing? Why don't you go to your room?" he called angrily.

"There were still no signs of guilt in Collins' face."

"I don't know," she said, "but I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"On both sides, I am sorry to say," he returned gravely.

"That is not for my information," he admitted. "I know only the fact of the false registration. But with a fully equipped rolling machine on the ground the inference is pretty plain, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," she admitted. "Yet you say the fraud are on both sides. That doesn't justify any difference."

"I don't know," she said, "but I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

"I am sorry," she said, "and I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success. I am afraid I am not so sure of your success."

THE NATIONAL CONSERVATION CONGRESS

WILL BE HELD IN KANSAS CITY

The Conservation of Soil Fertility Will Be the Chief Topic Under Consideration.

Wallace Farmer, of the National Conservation Congress will hold its third annual meeting in Kansas City, September 1. It is believed that both President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt will be present and deliver addresses.

The president and executive committee of the congress have decided that the great theme of discussion at this year's meeting will be the conservation of soil fertility in all sections of our country.

Having riveted the attention of the people upon the necessity of conserving these resources which are peculiarly the property of the United States, it is now time to go on to something else and the next most important thing is the conservation of the fertility of the soil, not in the hands of the government, but in the hands of the state, but in the hands of the individual farmers, who are entitled to such legislation on the part of the states as they may deem wise and equitable.

PREVENTING RUN-OFF

One of the characteristics of the Great Plains region is the shifting nature of many of the rains. It does not rain every day, and when it rains it is likely to rain mighty hard when it does get started.

A scheme that has been proposed to prevent water from running off the ground is to cultivate the surface of the soil open to permit the water to enter.

Mr. E. R. Parsons, a Colorado dry farmer, has been the first to successfully apply this principle. Mr. Parsons follows the practice of digging all summer tilled soil, and any ground that is standing bare and idle, longwise and crosswise.

of the humid states after a heavy rain must conclude that a lot of water escapes from the land, and not only that but that it carries a load of soil with it.

It is common experience that the crop grows the better the more water is available to it, and the more water is available to it, the more water is available to it.

It is common experience that the crop grows the better the more water is available to it, and the more water is available to it, the more water is available to it.

Care must be exercised in using this system to have the embankments high enough and close enough together so as to hold all the run-off, else if the water is accumulated and then breaks through, the embankment will be of no use.

On the high table land at the edge of the Platte valley, 180 feet below the table land, we found wheat on summer tilled land that would yield around twenty bushels per acre.

WHEAT AND SUMMER TILLAGE

Where it doesn't rain enough in one year to produce a good crop, then store the moisture of one season in the soil and carry it over into the next season, so that a suitable portion of moisture will be available for the crop the second year.

It is quite as important to know what cannot be done as to the experience of this year. Wheat on summer tilled land is very valuable even if bumper crops are not produced in a year's yield.

METHOD OF PRESERVING EGGS.

Mr. H. Simpson, North Platte Agricultural College, in Wallace's Farmer: "That eggs can be satisfactorily preserved for from eight to twelve months has been proven by numerous experiments."

Contrary to the general belief that preserved eggs are usable only to a limited extent, they can be used in place of fresh eggs in a great many instances. It has been well demonstrated that eggs preserved for eight to twelve months in either of the two solutions which I outline here can hardly be kept from fresh ones.

If the eggs are to be kept only a short time, they may be packed in some of the dry substances, and fairly good results obtained. But these eggs cannot be depended upon for longer than two or three months.

Water glass is a soluble silicate solution of sodium or potassium silicate, purchased either in liquid or crystalline form. It is not expensive, costing ten to fifteen cents a pound, and one pound is sufficient to preserve about fifteen dozen eggs.

THE MODERN FARMER MUST BE A FIGHTER

The farmer must of necessity be a fighter. He has no sooner planted his grain than he must contend with the cut worms, the grub worms, the big worms, the web worms, scabbers, big and little, attack his corn before it is out of the ground. Later on the corn root worms and the corn root grubs...

PERU QUARTER GIVES PROGRAM IN WAYNE

LISTENED TO BY BIG AUDIENCE

The Peru quartet gave a recital program at the chapel on Friday evening of a very large and appreciative audience. The concert was entirely made up of music and was indistinguishable from an hour and a half long by the repeated encores. The music was all of high class and several pieces were deserving of special mention...

It has been decided to publish a school paper in connection with the Normal school. The first issue will appear in October and will be published regularly every month thereafter.

State Normal News

The school was planned to have a visit from Superintendent C. M. Peoney last Friday. Mr. Peoney is president of the board of examiners for county certificates.

Several cults for teachers have come to the office during the past week. There are a number of first class teachers in attendance who are not only well qualified for their work but are now able to assist school officers who are in search for good teachers.

A special teachers' examination will be held at the close of the summer school, July 27 and 28. This examination comes one week later than the regular examination and gives an opportunity to the students to take their examinations at the close of the term's work.

The departments of music and expression are planning to give a recital at the close of the summer term. Every member of the program will be given by a member of the faculty and the entertainment will be under the direction of Miss McCreedy and Professor Coleman. Definite announcement will be made next week.

Miss Hetty E. Elkins was among those who enrolled at the beginning of this week. Miss Elkins' home is at Aztec, N. M., and she is a graduate of the New Hampshire state normal school at Plymouth. She will take review and method work at the Wayne school and prepare to teach in Nebraska next year.

Superintendent Frank Pilger of Pierce county addressed the methods classes of the Normal last Thursday on the subject, "The Teacher as Others See Her." Mr. Pilger said that, in a sense, the teacher teaches everybody and at all times that she should therefore be careful in her personal appearance, should keep her room and clothes in order, and the school room clean and attractive. He believes that the teacher is responsible for order. If she keeps her desk orderly, the floor clean, gets about the room quietly, stinks in a low voice, is courteous and polite, the pupils will imitate her and an orderly school will be the result. He advised teachers to get parents to visit school and then show them what her pupils are doing - she should advertise her school work, but not her school troubles. He also mentioned the telephone and said that was greatly enjoyed by the pupils.

ON A RENTED FARM

An old farmer sat listening to a professor expounding the gospel of putting up good buildings. "The expenditure," said the professor, "may seem large, but will pay good interest."

What about the principal, when it comes back? asked the farmer. It is important on a farm and especially on a rented farm, to make sure that the expenditure will insure returns which will not only pay good interest, but the principal as well. The poultry breeder who himself puts up a new house on a rented farm rather than limit the number of chickens he keeps might be criticised for not having his principal insured to him. Unless this is insured he would better make movable coops, brooders and houses, which will be of assistance to his wife in raising the young crop, and sell off all but a brooding pen of his best birds each year, keeping just enough to fill the house comfortably. We have grown accustomed to keeping numbers of chickens on the farms. From one to two hundred broods to belong to the place, just as horses, cows and dogs belong; but horses, cows and dogs usually give signs of their displeasure at being over-crowded, and the chickens are not so apt to stand them in the barn and stables as he is to put three times as many chickens in a house as is useful. If a chicken died, the loss is trifling, and not until enough have died to wake him up does he really care sufficiently about the matter to look for a reason. The best way to prevent trouble from overcrowding is to sell the chickens in excess of the number the house should hold, in the fall, or as early as their size will permit. Perhaps only a new house would cost into convenience could be taken with you. Make pens of wire, or coops, of portable, knockdown runs. A pen 22 1/2 inches on the ground 8 1/2 inches high in front, and 10 inches high in the rear, made of ten-inch boards, is a convenient form. We had some such coops with tops hinged to enable us to shut and air the entire coop by raising the top, but a high wind took the tops of two such coops off and some fine chickens were drowned, so we have changed the plan of hinging the "loving half of the back, the front being nailed tight, making it proof against high winds. The coops are sunned by turning the inside down. The runway to these pens is ten feet wide, iron feet long, and twelve feet long. By removing frequently to fresh ground, the safe convenient shelter is provided for hen and chicks for weeks - for five months if but a few are kept in them. The runway moved daily and the coop emptied. Coop and pen do not cost over five dollars.

A set of four nests for brood hens, with a 1 1/2 foot runway divided into four parts, makes the set of brood hen nests. Hoisting hoops for raising chickens have a wire covered door, entering two-thirds of the nest, which is eight feet long. Each nest is boarded to enclose a brood, low rest a foot from the ground. Each nest of wire mesh makes one place, the whole is set together with screws, and knocked down for convenience in moving. There are no floors. The coops should be moved frequently to fresh ground, however, to insure cleanliness.

Recently a gentleman was complaining that he had put up a chicken house at his own expense in a certain place because he expected to remain there for ten years, but the owner died, the man wanted to leave and pay an increased rent, which he could get from another party because of the improvements the tenant himself had added. No matter how good the improvements the tenant thinks he has, he should put up with the cost of what comes out of his own pocket in such a way that he can take them with him when he moves. It takes a long time to get one's improvements, so with interest out of most improvements.

It is a new departure in the history of the fair, and the purchase of a ticket at an outside ticket office, the fair visitor will contribute to the turstule and lay down his fifty-cent piece, which drops into the slot, releases the lock and presenting the person to pass through. Therefore, when you come to the state fair this year be sure to have a 50-cent piece, as nothing else will unlock the turstule.

Those Who Take Foley's Kidney Pills

A man has a right to dislike music, if he happens to be built that way, but he will be regarded as a Centre creature if he expresses his opinion on the subject.

Watch Your Kidneys.

Their action controls your health. Read what Foley's Kidney Pills have done for your neighbor. Mrs. H. W. Allen, Quincy, Ill., says: "About a year ago my kidneys began bothering me. I had a swelling in my ankles and in the back of the head. My nervous system was getting worse, and later severe headaches. I was getting weaker, when I began taking Foley's Kidney Pills. I kept on taking them until I was once more on my feet. My kidney trouble and suffering I have a great deal to thank Foley's Kidney Pills for and shall always recommend them."—Folger's Pharmacy.

Spectacles are a great help to the eyes if the eyes need help, but they don't add much in the way of wisdom as some people seem to imagine, and they never look right on a baseball player.

Honest Medicines Va-Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the pure food and drugs law in its relation to prepared medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines, carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds, and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley's Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious.

The baseball team from Wayne and a goodly aggregation that accompanies them came down to Winside last Thursday, returning earlier but wiser. The boys were surprised to find in every part of the game and the score stood 5 to 7 in favor of the home team. Friday, the following day, our boys went over to return the game. The score was tied in the ninth inning. Wayne scored in the tenth, leaving it 3 to 1 in their favor. Fred Jensen's team, which was lifted out of a wagon for the best of him in town last Thursday afternoon, and which had had a hard run the street for the crowd that was just leaving the ball park. It was a wicked looking runaway, and to spectators it looked impossible for them to get through the street of promulgates and spectators without killing a dozen or more, but fortunately the team got loose from the wagon just before reaching the crowd, and everyone escaped without injury.

At the home of Carl Bronzinski, four miles west of Winside, occurred a fire last Thursday afternoon of quite a serious nature. Anna, the oldest daughter at home, had her baby buried, as well as both arms to her elbow. At the present time she is doing nicely under the care of her physician, who thinks there will be no permanent effects. The fire was caused from a little fire of grease on the stove becoming ignited. Anna attempted to carry it out, but only got to the porch with it when her clothes were in flames and she had a distance of at least 20 feet before she extinguished the flames in a water tank. Her dress and bonnet were almost entirely burned. Mrs. Bronzinski had just returned from town and her team was tied to a tree only a few feet from the porch. The heat and flames were so intense that it was necessary to get a long handled spade to chop the hitching strap, and before this was accomplished, our horse dropped. The three girls then forgot the flames, heretically carrying water a great distance, but succeeded in extinguishing the fire with partial damage to the property. Had they not controlled the fire, the barn, granary and all the other buildings would have gone up in smoke. It is difficult for those who have visited this place since to understand how these three girls were able to accomplish their feat, which would have been a credit to a fire company. Two fifty and sixty feet high were burned to the top, which gives one an idea of the leaping flames. The girl that was so badly burned worked heroically until the fire was controlled; in fact, the others did not know her condition until the conflagration was over, when they made haste to summon their physician.

We doubt if any newspaper in the state carries an announcement of as great a bargain opportunity as is presented to the readers of the Herald in this week's advertisement of Abern's Half Price Summer Goods Sale. A bargain as we understand is an article of merchandise which one really needs priced below the usual. Certainly the offer of summer dress goods and hosiery at half price is just this kind of a bargain, and one which is in demand in a bargain opportunity in every sense of the word. Don't miss Abern's Half Price Wash Goods Sale.

John Short for Sheriff.

John Short has never before during his long residence in Wayne county asked for an office. He does so now feeling that his friends will unite in his behalf and help elect him sheriff--a place for which he is eminently well fitted. He justly feels that his acquaintance in Wayne and over the county and his standing as a citizen who has shown a capacity for hard work, warrant his ambition to become sheriff.
