DEATH CLAIMS WELL KNOWN YOUNG LADY

Miss Jennie Vennerberg, aged 28 years, died at her home, two and one-half miles northeast of Wayne, yesterday morning, after an illness that began nearly a year ago. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vennerberg.

Miss Vennerberg had taught school in Wayne county for several years, three as principal of the Carroll school, and a year ago decided to take some studies in the State Normal, accordingly entering that institution at the beginning of the term. About Thanksgiving day she suffered a nervous breakdown, and from that time on her health gradually failed. She went to Rochester, Sioux City and Lincoln at different times in the hope of securing effective medical help, but nothing that could be done seemed to give relief, and finally, weakened and discouraged, she yielded to the inevitable.

The deceased young woman was born in Sweden August 22, 1883, and came with her parents to America and Wayne county nineteen years ago. She attended the public schools and later attended and graduated from the Wayne Normal. Then she turned attention to teaching and was a well qualified and highly esteemed member of the profession. Ambitious for further training, she took up a course of study at the State Normal a year ago. She was a diligent student and always a hard worker, and her ambition to accomplish things evidently exceeded her endurance.

Besides her parents, she leaves three sisters and three brothers, all at home excepting one sister, Mrs. Annie Matthee, who lives at Los Angeles, Cal., and who will be unable to attend the funeral. Funeral services will be held at the English Lutheran church in Wayne tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Ringler, assisted by Rev. Mr. Shacklock of Carroll.

All who knew the young woman admired her bright intellect and her noble, sterling character. She had a multitude of warm friends who keenly regret her untimely death and who share in the sorrows of the stricken family.

A. B. CLARK WINS CASE IN SUPREME COURT

The supreme court has handed down a decision in favor of A. B. Clark in the case brought against him by Edward Perry. The action was one started by Mr. Perry in the district court to enjoin Mr. Clark from putting in tiling on his land so that water would run over on Perry's land. The suit was started in August, 1908, and after the district court found for Clark, an appeal was taken by Perry to the higher court. Judge Root wrote the opinion affirming the decision of the district court, and the essence of it is contained in the following quotation: "A court of equity will not enjoin an upper proprietor from draining surface water from his land through tile drains in the natural course of drainage into the natural channels which nature has provided, and onto the land of a lower proprietor."

Why we handle The FAVORITE Being a Story of How we Were Convinced First, we were attracted by the handsome appearance of the Favorite, but we did not decide to handle it for this reason alone, although we decided it was the most handsome base burner on the market. We wanted a better reason than an attractive looking stove, so we looked it over thoroughly, comparing it point by point with other base burners, and this is what we found: That the material from which it is made is all of the highest grades—the doors, mica frames and joints being absolutely air and paper tight. We were told the Favorite produced the most satisfactory results with about half as much coal as other base burners. We discovered this to be true. We found the reason to be in its Triple Exposed Flues. The sectional cut herewith explains these flues better than we can in words. The heat passes from the fire pot into the two outside down flues, across the bottom of the stove, under the ash pan, where it enters the central flue. It then passes back over the bottom and up the central flue to the chimney. Just think of this great radiating surface, and it is more than doubled, because the flues are SET OUT from the back of the stove. The flues therefore radiate from all sides, and the back of the stove radiates heat, also. This feature alone places the Favorite in a class by itself, making it the best and most economical heating stove in existence. But other features of its construction must not be overlooked. Would like to tell you all about them. Do not put off buying your heating stove until the cold days come. Come and see us now, and our Favorite will be your Favorite too.

Places Chosen for Hiding—Losers Serve Supper to Winners—Joyous Time for All.

The hunt given last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Philathea class of the Baptist church was a marked success. The whole scheme was carried out in an admirable manner. At eight o'clock, the men having gathered at the church supplied with lanterns and search lights, the captain of each squad received due information concerning the block upon which the group of ladies he was to search for was hidden. Then with a confident air the groups of men sauntered forth on their quest.
 Mrs. Henry Ley had hidden the squad under her guidance in a deserted cellar beneath a building in the college square and Mr. Bert Brown and his weary fellow searchers returned with a less confident air than that with which they went forth.
 Freda Ellis' crowd hid in a cellar under Fred Philleo's residence with the same disastrous effects upon the hopes of the young men led by Mr. LeRoy Ley who went to search for them.
 Margie Kohl did not go under ground but she and her group concealed themselves beneath the mattresses of the beds at the home of Professor Kemp, having the beds carefully made up over them to avoid suspicion. Verne Marteller and his squad were successful here, however.
 Miss Bernice Beebe found a suitable hiding place in a building back of Mr. Feather's home and avoided detection by Ray Hickman and his crew.
 Mrs. Nicholas took her ladies to Mr. Henney's residence and tucked them away under the porch, but Mr. Charles Weiss' and Mr. Henney's group sought them out and they had to stand treat.
 Charlotte Larison, Laura Barrett, Mrs. Arthur Norton and Ina Hughes led groups and none of them were found by Captains Ray King, Mr. Benson, Mr. Mabbot and Joe Munsinger.
 Miss Woosley hid her group of teachers and students in the college square and they were found and marched majestically to the church parlors by Captain Fleetwood.
 Perhaps the most unique hiding place of all was the one found by Ruby Hughes. She and her crew climbed to the garret of the Guy Williams residence. Then the paper was carefully matched and the opening concealed. It is needless to say Charles Nicholas and his gallant knights were unsuccessful in the search.
 After returning to the church the losers served supper to the winners, following out the Y. M. C. A. plan. Everyone seemed to enjoy the occasion, and there was a great deal to be heard about what they would "do next time."
 Miss Woosley, Miss Ruby Hughes and Miss Charlotte Larison did most of the management of the affair, but were assisted by all the Philathea members.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our thanks to the members of other churches, who helped make our hunt a success, and expect to hold ourselves in readiness to return the favor.—The Philathea Class.

Dr. Blair who has not yet become expert in handling automobiles, accidentally ran his new machine into the standpipe Friday. Aside from breaking the fender, the car was not damaged. The standpipe was not hurt.

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY SOCIAL.
 A unique social will be given by the young people of the Presbyterian church next Friday evening at the home of Mr. John T. Bressler. The Indiana poet of world-wide fame, will furnish the reading and songs for the program, and Superintendent J. H. Kemp will give a brief sketch of Mr. Riley's life. In addition to the literary and musical program games will be enjoyed and refreshments served. This is the first of a series of like socials to be given during the coming winter. All the young people of the church and congregation, including students at the BALL GAME ADJOURNED.

The business men's game that was to be played here last Tuesday between the business men of Wayne and Winside was declared off. Tuesday morning the club's physician on examination of the Wayne players, discovered that the coach in charge of the players had overtrained several of the players, including Ellis, Fisher and Ahern, and the weather being bad, it was decided by the management to call the game off. It will be played Tuesday, October 3. A new coach has been secured and he guarantees to have the players in shape by that time, and the drubbing the Winsiders will receive will be something that will stay with them the balance of the season.

EXCELLENT ALFALFA FIELD.

Edward Perry offers an example on his farm four miles north of town of what alfalfa will do in this county. He has a field of twenty-eight acres devoted to alfalfa, and has cut the fourth crop from it this year. The hay is now high enough for another cutting. He has taken 100 tons from the field besides allowing between 200 and 300 pigs to run on nine acres of it. Alfalfa is a profitable crop, and it would seem that more should be grown in Wayne county.

SALE OF FURNITURE.

The household furniture of B. F. Feather and Mrs. W. M. Wright will be sold at public auction on the vacant square near the postoffice next Saturday if the weather is favorable. In case of inclement weather, the sale will be postponed one week. S28tf

FARM RESIDENCE AND CONTENTS BURNED

The farm home of Leroy Oman, seven miles northeast of Wayne, was destroyed by fire about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. Mr. Oman is a bachelor and lived alone. He was awakened suddenly by smoke, and the flames had made such headway that he was unable to save anything. Besides his household goods, he had 200 bushels of seed oats in the house. The house was owned by Ensay Moore of Illinois. Mr. Oman carried insurance on his furniture in the Mutual Insurance company of Lincoln. He thinks the fire may have started from a defective chimney.

A big majority of the Canadians evidently disagreed with the American insurgents who thought reciprocity would hurt the United States but help Canada.

A New York paper suggests that W. J. Bryan's radicalism in 1896 was mild compared to the variety which Governor Aldrich of Nebraska preached at the governors' conference recently.

The republican county central committee should warm up and take an active interest in pushing forward the claims of all its party nominees. All are good men, and all are deserving of more than mere quiet support.

Canadians opposed reciprocity as the insurgents did in this country, but on exactly opposite grounds. The former thought the United States had the big end of the bargain; the latter figured that Canada had the big end. Do any of them really know?

The commission form of city government tends to fix responsibility and put municipal affairs on a business basis. Omaha decided to adopt such system some weeks ago, and Beatrice will soon vote on it. Under the commission plan

GEORGE T. PORTER. George T. Porter is another long-time resident of Wayne county, and he will make an excellent sheriff if voters rally to his support and elect him, as they should.

LAMBERT W. ROE. Lambert W. Roe, candidate for county treasurer, is so well and favorably known to the voters of Wayne county that words of praise, though deserved, seem unnecessary to insure a majority vote for him.

EPH ANDERSON. Eph Anderson, candidate for county commissioner, is a level-headed business man, and his faithful services as a member of the board entitle him to re-election.

fewer men would have charge of the city's affairs, and they would be paid sufficient salaries to warrant the time and effort needed to properly attend to public business.

The financial report of the local Chautauqua is very encouraging. It reflects the success of the late assembly, and indicates the intellectual ambition and high desires of the people of Wayne and vicinity.

The West Point Cadet band has filed articles of incorporation with capital stock fixed at $30,000, the purpose being to own the auditorium in that city. Does not West Point's enterprise to secure a modern opera house suggest some sort of a plan that could be followed in Wayne looking to a similar end?

The chairman of the state central committee urges republicans, regardless of conflicting opinions regarding the presidency, to get together in support of the state ticket, and his position is supported generally by the newspapers and party leaders of the state.

A candidate does not deserve to run for office on the republican ticket nor on the democratic ticket if he cannot give his fellow nominees cordial support. The policy of a candidate of either party shaking his head dubiously over the prospect of others on the same ticket is so utterly selfish and presumptuous that it should lose rather than gain support.

Pontius Pilate's decision against Christ is pointed out as an argument against the judicial recall. Pilate said Christ was innocent, but the people clamored for conviction and he listened to them. If Pilate had followed his own judgment, he would have done right, but he was afraid of the recall, and yielded to popular demand, resulting in one of the most flagrant cases of injustice in all the world's history.

Editor Elliott of the West Point Republican, who is reported to be a candidate for the republican nomination for congress in this district, is said to have been in Wayne on the occasion of the laying of the corner stone at the State Normal last Friday. While by telepathic impact we should have known he was in town and hunted him up and got acquainted with him, the mysterious force did not communicate the fact to us, and therefore we were ignorant of his presence until after he had gone, and as a consequence suffered the misfortune of not meeting him. But if we had a congressional bee buzzing around in our bonnet, we would not wait to be hunted up, but would journey around to sources of public information—like newspaper offices—and submit a brief inventory of qualities suggesting fitness for statesmanship. If Mr. Elliott neglects acquaintance with other newspapers of the district, as he did the Herald, we can't imagine how they can either support him or oppose him. They won't know him well enough to form an opinion.

The Winside Tribune is disposed to make fun of the fact that Frank Benser has only one leg. No one has ever referred lightly or inconsiderately to the fact that his opponent is a cripple. In detailing the record of Frank Benser's life should his crippled condition be overlooked and forgotten? In contrast with the physical misfortune of his opponent, is the loss of a leg to Benser a trifling matter that deserves to be treated with ridicule? Is an amputated limb a source of joy, while some other crippled condition is expected to excite sober solicitude? After thinking well enough of one cripple to keep him in office twelve years, should voters now turn to another cripple, who is equally able and equally deserving, and who is seeking a first term, and mirthfully brush him aside as an object of burlesque? Mr. Benser is not seeking votes on the sympathetic plea that he has only one leg, but he has reason to feel that voters cannot, in view of the unfortunate physical handicaps of both candidates, be led to give his opponent support on the ground that he is a cripple. Mr. Benser's fitness for the clerkship is unquestioned, and as the republican nominee and as a citizen who has not been an office holder for a long series of years, he is clearly entitled to majority support.

The notion that farm life is not so happy as city life appeals with favor to only those who like crowds and relish the smell of smoke. A man raised in a big city, who has cultivated a taste for stuffy business and residence districts, and who has become attuned to social pretense and sham, cannot understand how people can tolerate existence in a comparatively small place like Wayne. On the other hand, few Wayne people could be driven to live in a big city. They prefer to know everybody in a center like Wayne than know nobody in a city like Chicago. They shrink from the greater inequalities among people of the big cities. They shrink from the extremes of poverty and riches. We prefer to enjoy nature embodied in a true, bright Wayne man, whom we know, than mingle in a throng of cold, indifferent, stiff-necked natural specimens of unknown qualities in Chicago. Going still farther into an enjoyment of real nature, many prefer living on farms, where there is more freedom, where the breath of growing vegetation is an elixir of life compared to the stifling atmosphere of a great city, and where friendships are loyal and not based on dollars and cents. It is nonsense to suppose that the bigger the city, the greater the happiness, or to suppose that the farm is not more attractive to many than any other place in the world.

ODDS AND ENDS.

Candidates of all parties are out interviewing voters and helping them make their vote. Farmers ought to have corn husking contests for candidates exclusively.

If a properly regulated private corporation would give better and cheaper electric service than Wayne now gets, why not make the change? The city deserves the best, and consumers could well stand a reduction in rates.

The foliage has begun to show tints that suggest the approach of winter and the need of artificial heat. In point of weather, October is usually the most agreeable month of the year, and it ought to be in view of the variety that comes along later.

Tobacco chewers were this week stricken with this thunderbolt from Fairbury:

Fairbury, Neb., Sep. 25.—Finding that his plug of tobacco was very difficult to bite into, Charles Kashaek of this city, took the mouthful which he had just bitten from the plug out of his mouth and found that it contained a man's index finger, the flesh of which he had bitten through. The finger was well preserved.

A human finger, the index finger, the most useful finger of all, chucked into a plug of tobacco! One would not be greatly surprised if it had been some finger of less value and importance. Such a waste of fingers is doubtless not relished or desired by tobacco users. Whoever is acting on the assumption that index fingers do not lose value by being taken from the hand and retailed out in plugs is mistaken. The index finger is a marvel of accomplishment when performing the service for which it was originally designed. In every battle fought on land or sea since the beginning of time, the surpassing utility of the index finger has been evident. It did its duty in signing the Declaration of Independence and the Emancipation Proclamation; it helped free the American colonies, and later aided in liberating four millions of slaves. The index finger is one of the greatest as well as one of the earliest inventions, and has become almost indispensable as associated with the hand. But detached, it loses its value, and is worth nothing as a plug of tobacco. The finger supply—especially index fingers—should be guarded and conserved in the offices to which they were originally dedicated.

KANSAS LINING UP FOR THE PRESIDENT

Baldwin, Kas., Sep. 25.—The warring republicans of Kansas buried the hatchet yesterday and walked side by side to pay honor to President Taft. Governor Stubbs who is generally conceded the one "insurgent" faction, welcomed Mr. Taft with the hope that the state, without regard to church or party or faction, would extend the most royal reception ever given a president in the United States. Republican State Chairman Dolley, who holds office in the state under Governor Stubbs, and Republican National Committee man Mulvane united in telling Mr. Taft that the Kansas delegation to the next convention would be solidly for him and United States Senators Curtis and Brewster rode side by side in the tonneau of the same automobile, over the Kansas countryside and sat on the same platform to pay honor to the chief executive.

To the students at Lawrence the president spoke of the good the Y. M. C. A. has done in the world as he has seen it, and depressed sufficiently to resent publicly the allegations as to drunkenness and dissipation in universities made by Mr. Crane of Chicago recently. "I do not know," said the president, "whether you have observed the attack made upon young men at Harvard by some gentleman who felt it necessary to send a detective into the community to find out how wicked the boys were. I have not any particular sympathy for that kind of investigation. Wickedness that has to be unearthed with a spade ordinarily ought to be kept under cover that the spade raises. I know something about those universities. I know its sister university, Yale. The truth is, universities don't differ much. I know what

Yale was in my day, and I know it might have been better. I contributed something to the detectives' knowledge in those days possibly, but there is a high standard of morality. Dissipation and drinking are frowned upon by the public opinion of the college. "That is what shows what a college is, the public opinion of the young men and young women who are in it, and I resent scandal making and muckraking with reference to the standard of our universities when they are doing such good work and putting out men into the community with higher moral ideas every year."

Wayne County Teacher

Quarterly Test Questions.

At the end of each quarter, test questions based upon the course of study will be mailed to each teacher. These questions are to be used as a basis for judging the work done by the pupils. If it is impossible to give the questions as they come to you, owing to the irregularity of the class or other local condition, the teacher is at liberty to substitute questions. The questions serve to give the teacher a clear idea of what work ought to be done in the various grades. We think that in the seventh and eighth grades a pupil ought to be able to handle the questions with but very little change.

The grades earned on examination should be averaged with the daily grades for the grade to be placed upon the report card.

Pupils' Reading Circle Credits

Credits added to eighth grade examination grades:

The state superintendent and the reading circle board recommend that the county superintendent award each year a credit of three per cent a book to any pupil in the seventh or eighth grades who shall read in a satisfactory manner from one to five of the books recommended by the reading circle board for the current school year. Such credits may be applied by the county superintendent, at his discretion, to the grades earned by the pupil in reading, geography, grammar, history and physiology in the examination for the eighth grade diploma; provided that not more than fifteen credits may be earned in any one year; and provided further, that in no case shall more than five credits be applied on any one of the subjects named.

Seventh and eighth grade pupils should preserve their reading circle certificates and present them to the county superintendent when they register for the eighth grade examination.

Teachers, talk this matter over with your eighth graders and urge them to complete the reading of the five books that they may have the fifteen credits added to their grades. If they have read three books in the seventh grade, as nearly all have, but two books will be required in the eighth grade.

When the County Superintendent Visits Your School.

No doubt the county superintendent will open your school room door sometime soon, and step inside. It is not necessary for you to stop your work right then to give him a chair or a book. He is just a part of the school machinery and will take care of himself. The time to speak to him or to consult his wishes to a seat, is at the close of the recitation which is in progress when he enters. He will appreciate having the daily attendance register but seldom cares for a text book.

Don't think that the superintendent is writing down bad points in your work if he jots down a few notes while visiting you. Quite often these notes are for the school just visited or for the county paper and they are more apt to be good than bad points.

The superintendent wants to see the regular work of the school and the program should be continued as tho he were not present. If he wishes any change, he will ask you to make it.

If you have any particular difficulty in the school speak to him concerning it, not before the children, however. The superintendent is there to help you in your work, not to criticize, so feel free to ask about any point of the school work.

Above all don't forget that the county superintendent has been "through the mill" and can see the school from your standpoint and make allowance for local conditions.

In one or two schools visited this fall the same row of dusty, grimy picture cards and calendars greeted us as did last year. If teachers have nothing to put in its place, the bare wall would be preferable. In one school we could name and will if they are not removed by the next time we visit, the same paste-board banners have hung untouched for four years.

A few teachers holding state certificates have failed to register the same in the office of the county superintendent. State certificates are not valid until registered in the county in which the holder teaches.

Teachers' examination will be given on the third Friday and Saturday following of each of the months of November, January, March and May.

Please bear in mind that during the school year our office day is Saturday. You may or may not find us in on the other days of the week.

Reading Circle and Certification.

Beginning in November, 1911, from two to five of the examination questions in theory and art will be based upon the reading circle work completed in Colgrove's The Teacher and the School, and at the end of the school year one whole list of questions will be based entirely on this reading circle book.

It is believed that making the reading circle work more of a factor in the certification of teachers will not only add to the interest of the reading circle work itself, but will aid teachers in equipping themselves for the most efficient work.

Upon the approval and request of the proper county superintendent a credit of 5 per cent may be added to the grade earned on an examination in pedagogy or reading before September 1, 1912, for satisfactory work done during the school year from September 1, 1911, to September 1, 1912, in Colgrove's The Teacher and the School.

A credit of five per cent may be added to the grade earned in composition for satisfactory work in Cabot's Ethics for Children.

Certificates will not be renewable unless the applicant has done the required amount of reading circle work during the year.

Not all teachers have secured the reading circle books for this year. There are a few copies here in the office and we wish that all would get them before long.

Caring for the School Library.

There is no better way to teach good citizenship than to teach respect for the rights and property of others. The one great argument against free text books is that it makes children careless in the use of books. A child values almost instinctively, that which belongs to him, but must be taught to value what belongs to others.

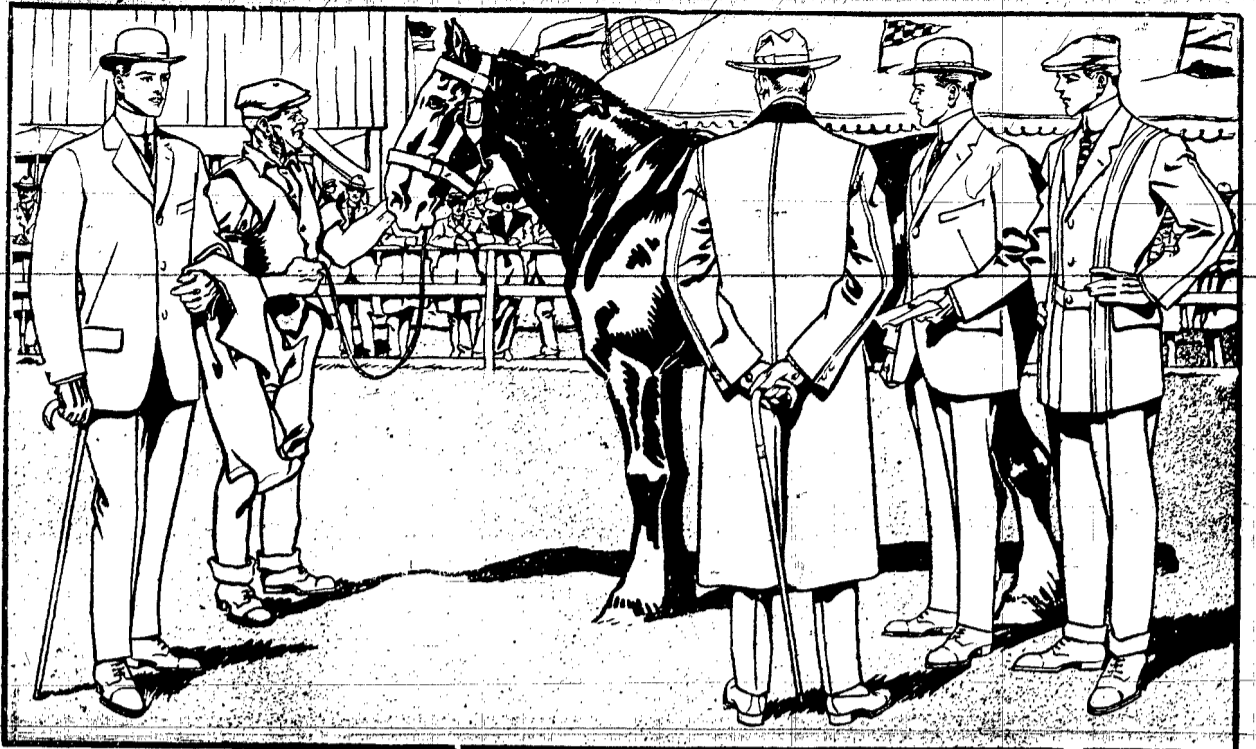

All text books owned by the district should be numbered and a child should be charged and held responsible for the books given him. At the end of the school year he should turn in the books bearing the same numbers charged to him or settle with the district for them. He should understand that the books are loaned to him and that he must take care of the district's property.

Again, scores of library books are lost from the school libraries over the county each year because there has been very little system to the keeping of these books. All library books should be numbered and when a child takes a book he should be charged and held responsible for it. It is well to have some particular evening, say Monday evening, as library night when the books are given out and charged to the pupils by the teacher.

The county has very generously furnished each district with a new library and text book register containing rules for the keeping of the same. If it is possible, we are going to do away with so much useless waste of the public's books.

The first in the series is the small red perfect attendance slip (furnished in booklets to all teachers), which is given for twenty consecutive days with no absence or tardiness. If a pupil misses a day any time during the month he can begin to work for his twenty perfect days as soon as he re-enters school. There need be no connection between the school month and these twenty consecutive days. When the pupil has as many perfect attendance slips as there are months of school in his district, the teacher sends or brings them in to the office and a large certificate of award is given the pupil. For three certificates of award a diploma of honor is issued him. We have a new form for the large certificate—the Golden Rod Series. These are particularly appropriate for our state of Nebraska.

The Emerson Meeting.

On October 14, the first teachers' meeting of the year will be held at Emerson. This is a joint meeting of the teachers of Burt, Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne counties. It is one of the best meetings of the year. Some even consider it better than the Norfolk and state meeting from a standpoint of benefit derived. Owing to the ease and the small expense of attending this meeting, no teacher in Wayne county should fail to attend. There are sectional meetings in the forenoon, so that everyone can get what he needs and wants, and a general session at the opera house in the afternoon. Programs will be sent to each teacher later.

Winside has seven members in its twelfth grade. This is a fine showing for the first year that the school has carried twelve grades. Those in the grade are Ina and Ida Reed, Gertrude Motson, Emily Prince, Florence Holtgreen, Abbie Lound and Edith Prescott. They are taking normal training work.

Of General Interest.

The school house in No. 40 has been papered and painted in the soft shades of tan. New window blinds and a hanging globe have also been added. Since school began the pupils have done a good piece of hand work in the hem-stitching of tan colored scrim sash curtains. Miss Milliken, the teacher, is alert and progressive and the school board aid her in her good work by furnishing the needed supplies.

A few of our public schools have been reduced in number owing to the establishment of a German-English school at Altona.

In ordering school textbooks be sure to order those that are on the recommended list and thus preserve the uniformity that exists in the county. We publish the complete list with this issue of the paper.

The school house in No. 20 has been improved by a new hard wood floor. The interior wood work has been painted and the walls papered. A hanging globe has been ordered and will be placed soon. Mr. Henry Klopping is director.

Teachers ought to keep the correct time. In this day of telephones there is no need of being a "half or three-quarters of an hour slow or fast" by Friday night.

Miss Bartels writes from district No. 75 that she has an enrollment of sixteen and that there has been no tardiness nor absence since school began. She also says that the school house has been newly papered and painted and a much needed hallway added to the building.

Wayne will have its annual corn show some time during November.

Those taking part in the Emerson program from Wayne county are Edith Stocking from the Wayne Normal, Anna Fair from Hoskins and Ben Robinson from Skoles.

Miss Dorothy Green is teaching school in No. 77.

Teachers will report at the end of the first month and each month thereafter, the name and address of every parent or guardian who has children of school age under fifteen years, not attending school.

The SCHOOL YARD is the place for children when at play. A teacher has responsibility enough while the children are under her direct supervision, and she should not increase it by allowing pupils to wander off down the road.

Did you ever pass a school house where the children threw clods and called out disrespectfully to the passer-by? One does not need to visit such a school to know what spirit prevails.

An agent has no right to use school time to show his wares. That time belongs to the pupils and anyone who has the betterment of the schools at heart will not ask for it.

We are always glad to have teachers come to the office Saturday to talk over their work. We have observed that those doing the best work in the schools are the ones who are most often consulting with the superintendent, the teachers at the normal or the teachers in the towns of the county. All of these people are glad to help young teachers; so do not hesitate to ask concerning your difficulties.

A case of scarletina has developed in district 27, southeast of Wayne. The school has not been closed but is very small at present owing to the fact that a number of patrons are keeping their children at home.

Miss Sandahl from district No. 2 writes that the school house has been painted inside and out and a new fence built around the school yard. She also writes that there are three strong students in the eighth grade.

Not all teachers have sent in preliminary reports as yet. Those lacking are numbers 4, 7, 19, 20, 25, 37, 45, 56, 70, 74, 75 and 83.

The Wayne County Teachers' association re-organized with the following officers: Mr. Ben Robinson, Skoles, president; Mr. Cliff Penn, Wayne, vice president; and Miss Anna Fair of Hoskins, secretary. The first meeting is to be held at Wayne and the time of same is left to the committee.

WHAT IS THE MATTER?
 Wallace's Farmer. Many of our readers have been sorely disappointed in their crops this year and will, of course be disposed to lay it to the lack of rainfall in a large section of our territory. In fact, normal rainfall is the exception this year in most states; lack of rainfall or prolonged drought the rule. It is well, however, for them to inquire: Does this account for all the shortage?
 On many farms the farmer may have an object lesson, if he will but keep his eyes open. Perhaps he will find on the next farm a crop of thirty bushels of corn per acre, where he has but fifteen bushels. There has been no difference in the rainfall nor in the temperature. Many a farmer has harvested a fifteen bushel wheat crop, while his neighbor has harvested twenty five or thirty bushels. Now in the same neighborhood there was no difference in the rainfall or temperature. What has been the matter with your crop? Why is it less than your neighbor's? It takes more than rainfall and more than temperature to make the earth yield its full increase.
 If you will look into the matter closely, you are very likely to find that the main difference betwixt you and your neighbor is that he has vegetable matter in the soil and you have not. If a chemist were to analyze the soil in these two farms he would not likely find any difference. There is probably just as much potash, just as much phosphorus, just as much lime, in your soil as in your neighbor's. You may not have so much nitrogen, because you do not have so much humus or humus material.
 You may say that your neighbor's corn was put in on clover sod and yours on cornstalks. Possibly you put three or four crops of corn on the land, in succession. This in itself may explain the difference, or you had no right to expect as much of a crop as your neighbor who planted on clover sod. His soil, well stored with vegetable matter, retained moisture better than yours. His soil was in proper physical condition, and the roots of the plant could get hold of the plant food in the soil. Your soil ran together, the roots did not have a chance for full development. But, you say, I am a grain grower; he is a stock farmer. Very well, this should teach you that you can not grow one crop nor any succession of grain crops on land continuously and yet stand such a dry season as this. But, you say, my turn will come when we have a wet season. It will not. He will have just the same advantage in a wet season that he had in the dry season. That is, his soil, well stored with vegetable matter, will absorb rainfall that will run off yours. The rainfall that you got run off to the creek and washed gullies in your farm because the soil lacked vegetable matter. Much of the rainfall stayed with him and appeared in his abundant crop.

 But, you say, my field was also in clover sod; I also am a stock farmer. In that case you must look farther. How did your neighbor prepare his seed bed? How did you? Did you take your seed corn out of the crib, wheat out of the bin, while he selected his seed corn carefully and thoroughly graded his wheat before sowing it? You may say: That can not account for it, because my corn grew just as well as his did. Possibly it did last year; almost any corn grew last year; but he selected his seed corn carefully, picking ideal ears from ideal stalks. He took no chances with it. If you selected your seed corn as well as he, however, and had the same kind of rotation, and still there is a difference, possibly your preparation of the seed bed was poor, or your cultivation deficient.
 You may make sure of this: that nature makes no mistakes; that barring hail or some other calamity which it is beyond the power of man to prevent, you are getting just what is coming to you, and your neighbor is getting just what is coming to him. We want you to think about it, and "give neither sleep to your eyes nor slumber to your eyelids," until you find out just why it was that your neighbor grew a crop that will furnish him a profit this year, while yours will probably lose you money, or at best simply pay expenses.
 No amount of reading of agricultural papers, or books, no amount of attending short courses or corn judging schools, and no number of years at college can make a man a good farmer unless he himself is wide awake and does a lot of thinking. Nobody else can think for him. The most the outsider can do is to hold up an ideal, discuss general principles, set a good example. The rest the man must do for himself; and if he does not do it for himself, it will not be done.
 Agricultural salvation, like the salvation of the soul, in one sense comes through faith—faith in the unvarying operations of the great laws of nature that lead to crop production. In another sense it comes through works; and every man must make his "calling and election sure," must "work out his own salvation," if not with "fear and trembling," then with all due diligence. In both cases, "faith without works is dead," and works without faith will not bring the answer. There are more analogies betwixt agriculture and religion than most farmers dream of.

 The bids on the extension of the five blocks of water main were then opened and duly considered. The bid was by motion awarded to Herbert Bluechel as the lowest bidder.
 It was then moved by Sprague and seconded by Larison that the matter of selecting the site for the city hall be laid over until the next meeting. Roll call was as follows: Ayes, McVicker, Larison and Sprague; nays, Bright, Kingsbury and Meister. Mayor Kate voted aye, and declared the motion carried.
 It was moved and seconded that the chairman of the water committee as acting water commissioner be empowered to employ Herbert Bluechel to put in the water extension according to plans and specifications on file and at the price submitted. The motion was carried. No further business appearing before the meeting, motion was carried to adjourn.

DEATH OF INFANT CHILD.
 The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Stamm, living about four miles north of Wayne, died very suddenly Sunday afternoon, the mother finding the child dead in bed. Funeral services were conducted at the home Tuesday afternoon by Rev. B. P. Richardson of the Baptist church, music being furnished by the choir of that church. The child was aged 8 months and 8 days.
The Italian Treatment.
 The Italians resort to a very simple method when they wish to obliterate the injurious effects of salt air and sunshine after a visit to their villas the shore of the Adriatic, the Tyrrhenian sea or the lakes. They bathe the face with the white of an egg, well beaten, let it dry on the skin and rinse it off in soft water after fifteen minutes. The treatment is repeated three or four times, and always at night just before retiring.

CUTTING THROUGH CAPE COD
 Canal That Will Save 120 Miles of Sailing May Be Completed Next Year.

So much attention has been given to the digging of the great ship canal across the Isthmus of Panama, and, locally, so much interest being expended in the slow and tedious building of the barge canal across New York state, that slight has almost been lost of the Cape Cod canal, which has been in progress since June, 1880. This canal has been projected since 1620, for the Pilgrims saw the advantage of saving this 120 miles of sailing around Cape Cod, and the danger from the storms that at seasons of the year are said to be very severe off the cape itself. In the last 60 years there have been 2,131 sailing vessels lost on these voyages, and more than 700 lives. It is said that more than 35,000,000 tons of freight are carried yearly past the mouths of the canal, and the saving in freightage alone will be enough to pay for the construction of the canal in a very short time. Insurance rates that will be saved in the construction of the short cut will be a very large figure, for the companies have learned that the fogs and gales are very destructive and that losses demand high premiums upon all cargoes.

The canal will run from Barnstable bay on the south side of Buzzard's bay on the north side, and will lessen the difference in distance between New York and Boston by water about 120 miles. It will be large enough for the largest vessels afloat, and it is expected that it will be completed in 1912, though this statement is doubted by some, as trouble has been had with several contractors who have failed to complete their work.—Utica Observer.

MISS SUSAN GLASPELL'S DOG
 "Voila" is the Original of the Two Delightful Puppies in "The Visioning."

Miss Susan Glaspell, the author, has a dog, which fact is of more importance than might at first appear. For in her new novel, "The Visioning," are introduced two frolicsome puppies named Pourquoi and N'est-ce-pas. And there are no two more real characters in the whole book than Why and Ain't it, to use their names in English form.

It was Miss Glaspell's own dog, a bohemian beast, that inspired the creation of "The Visioning's" twin puppy clowns. The real dog also has a French name, Voila. When its owner bought it, over in Paris, she wanted at first to name it Raspall, both in memory of the boulevard on which she lived and as a sympathetic cognomen for a sensitive souled Parisian dog. But her family objected. They could not see their way clear to shouting, "Come, Raspall! Raspall! Raspall!" So Miss Glaspell compromised on Voila.

Voila has vagaries. It is a wanderer. It is a collie, and a collie, it evidently thinks, ought to be afraid. Whenever it feels that way, away Voila goes. Fortunately, it wears a collar with Miss Glaspell's name and address. She has come to think nothing of such a phone message as this:—"Hello! Is dis Miss Glaspell? Vell dis is der bartender bei Hans Bummelransen's saloon. No, no, va! I didn't got der wrong phone number. I choost-vant to say I got here your tog. Vill you come for him?"

VISITORS LOOK INTO WAYNE LIGHT PLANT

From Tuesday's Norfolk Daily News: To find out the truth about municipal ownership of public utilities, a man was sent to Wayne, accompanied by an auditor, where the electric light plant is run by the city. Wayne has been referred to by advocates of municipal ownership as a town where municipal ownership was a success and where the city was making money by operating their own electric light plant. The first man interviewed was Mr. John H. Kate, mayor of Wayne, the inventor and manufacturer of the X-Ray incubator, and one of the most successful business men in northeast Nebraska. When asked if the electric light plant was self supporting or a paying proposition for the city, Mr. Kate said: "No one knows—there are no records kept of the plant. If I had the power I would sell our plant tomorrow to a private individual or corporation, because it is my personal opinion that a private corporation can run the plant much more efficiently and economically than the city, for no one takes the proper interest in the plant. We don't know anything about electricity and neither myself nor any member of the council know a 'watt' from a 'cat'." When asked if there were not some records kept of the cost of operating the plant and of the earnings, the mayor said: "Not that I know of or anybody else in town." Mr. Kate said that Wayne was an example of how the business of the average city was run and said that no business man would stand for such an absence of records and such loose management in his own business.

The representative then went to the office of the city clerk, where such records as were available were put at his disposal. These records consisted of a cash book, a coal receipt book and a bunch of memoranda. It was impossible to get an accurate account of the expenses of the electric light plant proper, on account of many of the items being mixed up with items properly chargeable to the water plant, but it was found that the earnings of the plant were about $654 a month and such expenses as were apparently chargeable to the electric light plant exceeded the earnings $53.50 per month. In addition to these expenses there is a large amount of other expenses, an accurate record of which was impossible to get, but it was found that in addition to the earnings of the plant, it is the custom each year to levy a special tax of four mills on all taxable property within the city for the maintenance of the electric light plant. This has afforded an additional revenue of $4,850 per year. It did not look as though the plant was a great dividend payer, but it was evident that the city of Wayne is paying a big price for street lights, consisting of five arc lamps and sixty small incandescent lights, in spite of the fact that the rates for current are 12 cents per kilowatt and in no case smaller than 10 cents. It was rumored that some one was getting a rate of 9 cents for power, but after interviewing the largest power users in the city, the representative was unable to learn who he was.

The city has some flat rate customers who pay $1 per month for a 16-candle-power incandescent and $2 per month for a 32-candle-power incandescent. All those on the meter basis are subject to a minimum bill of $1 per month. The service is not a twenty-four-hour service, the plant shuts down at midnight and doesn't start again until 7 in the morning. Consumers pay $17 for their meters. A trip through the street showed that only a very small percentage of the business houses used electricity in any form. After interviewing many of the business men, it was learned that the reasons for this were the unreliability of the service and the high rate of 12 cents per kilowatt.

Mr. Ahern, proprietor of the largest store in Wayne, said he did not use electric lights because it was too expensive. He lights his store with gasoline gas. He said he thought that a private individual or corporation could run an electric light plant much more cheaply and give better service than a mayor and board of councilmen.

The firm of Orr & Morris used electric lights, but Mr. Morris expressed the opinion that it cost the city more to do anything than a private individual or corporation because everybody expects to charge a city more. Mr. Morris was in favor of the city selling the plant.

Mr. John T. Bressler, former mayor of Wayne, said: "Municipal ownership of the electric light plant is not in my opinion the best for the city. It is not run as efficiently and economically as a privately owned plant. There is more waste and it costs the city more. I would favor selling our plant to a private corporation and let them run it."

With the Wayne plant losing money every month, with its service unpopular on account of unreliability and high rates, and with the business men in favor of selling the plant, it did not look as if municipal ownership of the electric light plant at Wayne was a success.

RESTORING LIFE IN JAPAN

English Scientist Tells How the Islanders Maul Those Who Are Virtually Dead.

An English scientist, Prof. A. Abrams, has recently been making a special study of the restoration to life practiced by the Japanese, and while he does not fully explain why the men come back to life after being to all intents dead, he does tell how it is done, and this in itself is interesting.

In Jiu-Jitsu if a man is knocked out, beaten senseless, killed or otherwise mangled, and if a man has been killed by a sunstroke or by drowning the restorer rolls the patient on his face and extends his arms sidewise. Then he strikes the patient on the seventh cervical vertebra with his wrist severely and regularly until the patient recovers consciousness.

Immediately he is placed in a sitting posture, his arms rotated and he is aided in walking, for otherwise he relapses into unconsciousness immediately and in some cases dies at once.

This system of pounding the seventh vertebra has been found peculiarly beneficial in some acute heart diseases and the effects of the treatment under Japanese manipulation seem almost miraculous at times. As yet there seems to be no clear medical explanation of the effects of pounding the seventh vertebra, but the genuineness of the cures and resuscitations frequently described by travelers is now scientifically established by Professor Abrams' investigations.—Health Culture.

Ahern's

James J. Hill, of St. Paul, Minn., the Great Railroad Magnate, says:

"I believe that the future will prove that every acre of land in eastern Polk county, Minn., is worth at least $100. This is by no means unreasonable when you take into consideration the nearness of the land to the great market cities, with perfect transportation facilities, the rich productivity and fertility of the soil, which is the very best in the state."

Corn, wheat, oats, barley, speltz, flax and potatoes make large yields.

This country has never had a crop failure. All kinds of grains and grasses grow in great luxuriance, the soil being the richest that can be found in northwestern Minnesota. Some of the largest yields in grain that have been recorded in Minnesota have been made in this district, and as the result the farmers are especially prosperous and progressive. It has been found, however, that as a dairy farming district it has no equal, and as a result the farmers are stocking their farms with dairy cows and creameries are being organized with great rapidity.

Good improved farms can be bought for from $25 to $45 per acre on easy terms. Carfare round trip $20, which amount will be refunded to parties purchasing land. For further particulars see

I am staunch, a fashionable chap—the famous, reliable, well-known caps were worn by the frowsy kid, or teamster or tough so the face was hid—but now I'm the ultra and classy kid. For the good Heidcap has swagger and snap, and makes of a chap an aristocrat. Or English cloth I'm made for they in England can beat us any day, at wearing cloth in a fashionable way, but I'm fashioned here in the U.S.A. I'm fashioned here with a sort of go, and swagger and lines that makes you know, that I am the son, that a fellow ought, put on his head if he'd look just so. There isn't a thing that a cap should be, that you would find built into humble me. Best of cloth and best of care in making a cap that's fit to wear—and the owner looks like a millionaire. There's an inference plain from what we said—the Heidcaps place is at the head.

Are Anxiously Awaiting Their Return

ASSOCIATED DOCTORS SPECIALISTS

WILL BE IN WAYNE AT BOYD HOTEL

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 4

ONE DAY ONLY

These are the doctors you no doubt have read about. While you may not know them personally, you may know them by reputation, or through some of your neighbors they have treated. The remarkable success of these talented physicians in the treatment of chronic diseases has aroused much enthusiasm in the northwest. This is said to be no doubt is true, one of the most able specialists' organizations of its kind in this section of the country, and must be a successful one from the many good results they are getting.

The Associated Doctors, licensed by the state of Nebraska for the treatment of deformities and nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on them, consultation, examination and advice free. It is specially requested that married ladies come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

The name, "Associated Doctors," is what it implies, a union of specialists, twelve in number, that have gotten together for the treatment of chronic and nervous diseases. Not to be understood that they treat all diseases that the human body is heir to. They mean to be very careful in selecting and taking cases as they want good results, which mean good returns in the way of their patients recommending them to others. They estimate that over eighty per cent of the patients now coming to them come from recommendations of those they have treated.

They do not treat any acute diseases whatever, their time and attention being devoted to such diseases as follows: Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys or bladder, rheumatism, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long-standing, deep seated, chronic diseases that have baffled the skill of the family physicians, should not fail to call.

According to their system, no more operations for appendicitis, gall stones, tumors or goitre. They were among the first in America to earn the name of the "Bloodless Surgeons," by doing away with knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

BELOW ARE THE NAMES of a few of the many patients that have many good things to say for the Associated Doctors:

From the Ponca Journal, October 13, 1881: Counsellors J. Powers, Jr. of Dakota City, and J. Britton of Wayne, were in town this week attending district court. Mr. Britton states that Wayne is rapidly improving in size and business.

A gentleman who attended the Cedar county fair at St. James last week, reports the following incident at that place on Friday: A large bull snake climbed winding up the lightning rod on the Baptist church, and in that manner went to the top of the steeple, where, getting impaled on one of the points of the rod, it hung, twisting and squirming, suspended at least sixty-five feet from the ground. Mr. George B. Beals, an expert marksman from Herbsa Creek, happened to be there with his rifle and fired two shots at the snake. The first one missed, but the second shot cut the snake loose and he fell to the ground. He measured seven feet in length and in his largest part was two inches in diameter.

Those who went from this place to St. James last week to attend the county fair, if they went by the way of Lime creek, noticed near the road and about three miles this side of St. James, an immense rock. It is the only rock, great or small, within a long distance. The questions how it came to be placed there, and when it was done, are among the mysteries and secrets that are buried under thousands or hundreds of thousands of years. From the top of the rock can be seen the well known mound called by the Indians "Spirit Mound," or "Devil's Mountain," on the opposite side of the river and about eight miles from Vermillion. This mound is between fifty and sixty rods long, fifteen rods wide and sixty-five or seventy feet high, and at first glance would give the impression of having been built by the hand of man. The Indians used to regard it with fear believing it to be the abode of a myriad of evil spirits. These, in the form of little devils about eighteen inches high, were said to wage war on mankind, and fully make up in malignancy what they lacked in size. Bryan McDonald, an old Scotch trapper and hunter, who lived for many years among the Dakota Indians, and who became well acquainted with their traditions, stated that among their legends concerning Spirit Mound, was one in which was mentioned the great rock near St. James. It was said that just before a storm a bright light would be seen at night on the summit of Spirit Mound, and that on such occasions a responsive light would appear on the rock. It was supposed that the high, desolate prairie about the rock was a sort of stamping ground for the race of little devils that made their home on Spirit Mound, and that the lights were signals from one to the other. Hence it was, that the great but harmless looking rock which our citizens passed by so fearfully last week was such an object of terror fifty years ago to the then residents of this country; that no Indian would visit it under any circumstances.

BRYAN ON CANADA.

Sioux City Journal: Mr. Bryan was in Canada for ten days lecturing under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. He was in at the windup, and he greatly enjoyed "the fight." "Now, for partisan purposes," he reported to the Commoner, "the conservatives deliberately appeal to prejudice and try to make capital by cultivating a spirit of unfriendliness to the people of the United States. The indications are that the effort will fail, and yet the very effort, like the effort of the republicans to prevent tariff reduction in the United States by declaring that it was in the interest of Great Britain, shows how a pecuniary interest can blind people to fairness and justice." "It is pleasant to find Mr. Bryan so openly in opposition to appeal to prejudice. President Taft will read Mr. Bryan's report with sympathetic interest."
