

SUPREME COURT SENDS CASE AGAINST WILLIAM FLEGE BACK TO DIXON COUNTY FOR A NEW TRIAL

TO FACE ANOTHER JURY SUPREME COURT FINDS ERRORS IN PROCEEDINGS OF THE LOWER COURT.

FRED S. BERRY PREPARED BRIEF Murder With Which William Flege is Charged, Committed June 30, 1910.—Defendant Out on Bond.

Attorney Fred S. Berry received a telegram Tuesday night stating that the supreme court had reversed the case against William Flege, who is charged with the murder of his sister, Louise, and ordered it back to Dixon county for a new trial.

Louise Flege was murdered sometime on the afternoon of June 30, 1910, by being shot in the breast and through the head. She was found that evening about 6:30 o'clock, lying in the yard on the farm in Dixon county where she and her brother lived.

Yesterday's Lincoln Journal gives this account of the finding of the supreme court: William Flege, sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of his sister, is to be given a new trial.

The defendant has been at liberty for several months on $25,000 bail bond. It was signed by his brothers who are wealthy farmers and is the largest bail bond ever given in the supreme court of Nebraska.

Without deciding whether or not the evidence against Flege was sufficient to justify a conviction, the supreme court ordered a new trial on the ground of erroneous instructions by the trial judge. As another trial is to be had, the court says it has not passed on the sufficiency of the evidence against Flege.

Among the instructions deemed by the supreme court to be erroneous was one which assumed that the defendant inflicted the revolver shot wound which caused the death of his sister.

The court holds that it is error for the lower court to give an instruction that implies malice from the circumstances surrounding the case, it being for the jury to decide that question. The instructions defining a "reasonable doubt" are held by the supreme court to be erroneous and prejudicial to the defendant.

It will now devolve upon the county attorney of Dixon county to again prosecute Flege for the killing of his sister. The murder occurred on a farm where Flege and his sister lived. A German youth lived with them and worked on the farm. The killing of the woman caused intense excitement in the neighborhood and detectives were set to work. Finally the young man said that he saw Flege kill his sister after a heated quarrel and that he went back to the field to work and did not return till evening and that he was afraid to say anything about the killing for fear of threats which he said Flege had made against his life if he told. Flege denied his guilt and attempted to discredit the story of the informer.

Testimony was given to prove that Flege had bought an automobile and spent much of his time away from the farm and that this caused his sister to quarrel with him and to chide him for not attending to the farm. Flege sought to show that there was no trouble between himself and his sister.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEETS

Members of the Wayne county Sunday school executive committee met at the Wayne Presbyterian church Thursday afternoon to lay plans for the year's work. The meeting was opened by prayer led by Rev. D. T. Davis of Carroll.

A more complete organization of the districts was asked for so as to work in harmony with the county association. The duties of county officers were discussed. Much interest was shown and there seems to be every possibility of Wayne county reaching a higher standard in Sunday school work.

The meeting was adjourned with prayer by the president. Those present were Miss Hope Hornby of Winside, Miss C. M. White, F. H. Jones and Mrs. Homer Seace of Wayne, Rev. D. T. Davis, E. L. Lundquist and Christena Lundquist of Carroll.

HOSKINS MEN TRIED IN THE COUNTY COURT

The case against Fred, Paul and William Borchner who were charged with interfering with an officer, Marshal W. H. Stephens of Hoskins, was tried before a jury in Judge Britton's court Tuesday, and a verdict of guilty was returned. County Attorney A. R. Davis conducted the prosecution, and Fred S. Berry appeared for the defendants. Stephens claimed that when he attempted to make an arrest, the defendants took his revolver and club away from him. Defendants claimed that Stephens drew his gun on them and tried to use his club. Each defendant was fined $10 and costs. An appeal will be taken to the district court.

FROM ONE TO TEN YEARS IN THE PEN

Madison, Neb., November 28:—Henry Stehr of Norfolk, gets from one to ten years in the penitentiary for the death of his 3-year-old stepson, Kaurt Stehr, whose feet were frozen in the New Years blizzard last winter.

Judge Welch today pronounced sentence, giving Stehr this indeterminate sentence. The length of time to be served will depend upon the state board of pardons, which will not take up the case probably until their attention is called to it.

Stehr will be taken to prison this week. Motion for a new trial was overruled by Judge Welch. Mrs. Stehr's case is still on the docket and the supposition is that County Attorney Nichols will next proceed to prosecute her on the same charge upon which Stehr was convicted.

A. B. CLARK PREPARING TO RETIRE FROM FARM

A. B. Clark who has been farming in Wayne county for twenty years, has rented all his farms and is preparing to retire from active supervision. Therefore, he will have a big public sale, on his home farm three miles north and one-half mile west of Wayne, Wednesday, December 13. He is offering a splendid lot of animals. Twenty years ago he came here with a car load of the best draft horses in north Nebraska, and since then he has kept only the best horses on his place. The animals he offers for sale are really the product of twenty years of experience. Mr. Clark is figuring on going to California about the first of the year to spend the balance of the winter.

PROFESSOR HOUSE TALKS BEFORE CLUB

At a meeting of the Minerva club last Tuesday evening, Mr. House addressed the ladies and their guests on the subject of "Economics and Society." The meeting was held at the home of Judge and Mrs. James Britton, and a large party of interested listeners gave close attention to the words of the speaker.

The economic struggle is primary, as shown in the history of primitive races. It effects all the customs and habits of the people and is used as a means of control over the members of the tribe. It effects marriage, invention, art, religion, and in short every law and every custom of tribal life.

As civilization advances the struggle may become less keen, and then the people may evolve higher values, as in the case of the Greeks who set the pace for art to all succeeding generations.

Mr. House then applied the discussion to modern conditions and pleaded for the recognition of higher values, in the abolition of war, the settlement of the labor problem, the improvement of art and education, and in the establishment of a system of eugenics.

The address was replete with information and logic, and those who heard him felt greatly benefited.

Mrs. James Miller and Mrs. House furnished a musical number.

ARM CRUSHED IN CORN SHREDDING MACHINE

Monday's Norfolk Daily News:—Melvin Ellis, employed by Fred Busse at Hoskins, was the victim of a terrible accident in a shredding machine Saturday morning. His left arm was caught in the machine and his hand and arm clear to the shoulder were badly crushed. Drs. Verges and Taagan were summoned and it was thought the arm would have to be amputated.

YOUNG MAN CATCHES HAND IN MACHINERY

Clyde Gaffin, who has been employed in O. P. DePew's bakery, accidentally caught his left hand in the moving machinery of the bread brake Friday, and had two bones broken and the muscles torn lose in the member. The young man was cleaning the machine when he slipped and dropped his hand down between two revolving rollers. Mr. DePew says he had warned him to exercise caution to avoid accident. Dr. Zoll and Wightman dressed the hand, and it is believed recovery will follow without more serious results.

WHEN PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH WAS FOUNDED

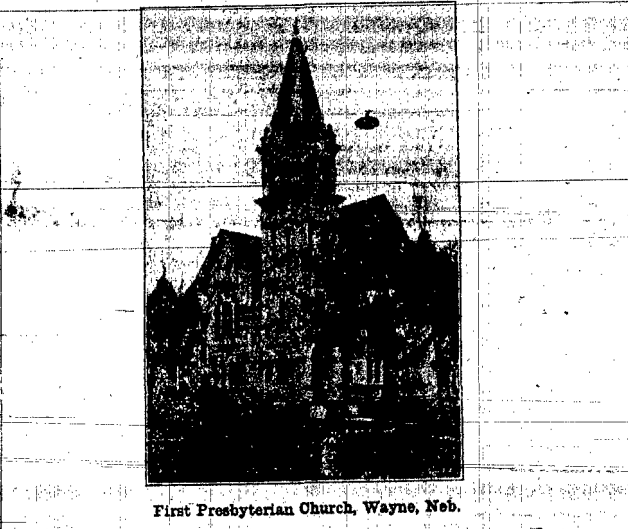

EVENT TO BE DULY OBSERVED

Big Supper and Program of Speeches and Music to Mark the Notable Anniversary.

The thirtieth anniversary of the organization of the Presbyterian church in Wayne will be observed on the evening of December 13 by a banquet and program of speeches and music. David Cunningham will give some interesting reminiscences, and others will speak. Men and women of the church will join in making this anniversary a notable and happy one.

The Presbyterian church was organized in Wayne December 21, 1881, by Rev. George L. Little, synodical missionary for Nebraska, and there were eleven charter members. Three months previous to that time Rev. G. M. Lodge conducted the first religious services held in the new village of Wayne, preaching in a store building, and taking this as his text: "Almost, thou persuadest me to be a Christian." The present beautiful and commodious church building was completed in 1899.

During the thirty years since the church was founded there have been eight pastors as follows: Rev. George M. Lodge, 1882 to 1887; Rev. Frederick P. Baker, 1887 to 1891; Rev. A. F. Ernst, 1892 to 1895; Rev. E. van Dyke Wight, 1895 to 1897; Rev. D. C. Montgomery, 1897, to 1901; Rev. Peter Birrell, 1902 to 1904; Rev. Thomas Osborne, 1904 to 1910; Rev. Alexander Corkey, 1910.

OPPORTUNITIES IN INDUSTRY.

While attending a meeting during the corn show the writer was impressed with the opportunities opened by modern industry for the specialist. By the word "opportunity" is not meant merely the chance to become rich, but rather the possibility for the development of the entire personality, especially the mental life. Time was when it was supposed that only preachers and college professors were really intellectual.

While this was never true, it is less true today than ever before in history. Diversity in industry has brought with it a comprehension of the value of intelligence in the oversight of business. The use of the mind in constant attention to a particular form of industry reveals considerations of unexpected value in the development of that industry. The writer wished that he knew everything about any one subject as well as the speaker on hogs knew his subject. Further, the exact knowledge of the subject possessed by that speaker enabled him to give an exceedingly intelligent presentation of his facts. Men do not have to avoid the farm of the shop in order to be intelligent in their views and helpful and even artistic in their lives.—J. T. HOUSE.

Rumors of a marriage near at hand were flying around thick yesterday, and the public, always curious in a love match, was getting ready to applaud. The reports, however, anticipated greater haste than the facts would warrant. While there is good circumstantial evidence to prove that a marriage is in prospect, and that a Wayne gentleman, supposed to have become a fixed and immovable bachelor, will in due time join the ranks of the benedicts, the date of that happy consummation is said to be too remote to justify at this time an announcement or arouse nervous excitement on the part of the public. The rumors came too soon.

It is all right to tell a man to do as he pleases; you know blame well that he can't do it.

CHAMP CLARK TALKS.

William J. Bryan's recent unfavorable criticism of Champ Clark has drawn from the latter a statement explaining the wonderful things he has had a hand in doing to unite the democratic party. He congratulates himself over his remarkable political achievements. He denies with a good deal of vehemence that he wants to force a union with Canada, offering this explanation of his attitude:

"One of the most preposterous canards put into public print since Gutenberg invented movable type," added the speaker, "is the charge that I am in favor of the forcible annexation of Canada. There is not a fact in the universe on which to base such a slander. I never at any time or place stated, or even hinted, such a wicked or Quixotic scheme to any human being. I have never dreamed of such a thing and would oppose it to the utmost.

"I have frequently, for years, expressed the hope that there might be a union of the two nations by mutual consent and for the good of both. It always seemed to me a friendly suggestion, because we are neighbors of the same blood and speaking the same language, but as the Canadians do not seem to want it, there is an end of it.

"What I said at Fremont, Neb., was in response to a question from a person in the audience. I said I had never thought of anything but a union of the two countries by mutual consent. I did not say that it was an issue or that it ever would be, but if Canada was agreeable, nine-tenths of the people of the United States would endorse the idea."

CITY COUNCIL HAS REGULAR SESSION

Councilmen Sprague, Kingsbury, MeVicker, Larison and Meister answered to roll call at the regular meeting of the city council Monday evening, and Mayor J. H. Kate presided. Councilman Bright was absent.

Matters of interest to the city were discussed. Councilmen expressed the opinion that if there is a dilapidated sidewalk in the city it should be torn up and replaced with a good one. Councilmen are not disposed to tolerate dangerous walks. The new water and light rates were talked over somewhat.

While waiting for the building of the proposed city hall, the importance of sheltering the fire apparatus is apparent, and a resolution was passed authorizing the mayor to employ some one to repair the roof over such apparatus to safeguard it against inclement weather, and render it fit for service in the possible event of an outbreak of fire.

The case of Mrs. Maggie Warner against the city, trial of which in the district court awarded plaintiff $500 for injuries alleged to have been sustained by reason of a fall on a dilapidated sidewalk, was considered and finally a motion prevailed to carry the case to the supreme court, the city attorney being instructed to prepare an appeal.

trip of several miles in an ambulance, accompanied by Major Baker, chief surgeon at the fort. It was stated at the fort that his physical condition did not permit of an examination today. The banker-convict is expected to go through this ordeal tomorrow. According to a statement given out yesterday by Warden Moyer at the penitentiary, Morse is suffering from kidney trouble.

It has been reported to the department of Justice that Morse's life was in danger if kept under the depressing influences of the prison and his removal to the army hospital was ordered to ascertain just what such a change would accomplish.

In his new quarters Morse will be under the care of Major Baker and a staff of four trained nurses, who arrived in Atlanta last night. His ward is cheerful and comfortable and he will have the privilege of receiving friends and relatives whenever he wishes.

The Constitution will say tomorrow it has learned from reliable sources that Morse's condition is such that he will never be returned to the federal prison to serve out his sentence, but that, after remaining under the care of surgeons at Fort McPherson for a time, he will be given his freedom, either under a parole or a full pardon.

The Poet Philosopher

The pumpkin is a gorgeous fruit. I'm glad the farmers always sow it. We should unite its charms to food, the cook, the farmer and the poet.

It should appeal to every PUMPKIN heart, the pumpkin, succulent and mellow. The finest thing in all the mart—although it has a streak of yellow. It looks so tempting in the fields that it will make a hungry man turn; when plucked by skillful hands it yields the autumn pie and jack-o-lantern. The pumpkin pie—O jumping ginger! No other pie has such delights! No other pie can be infringer upon this masterpiece's rights. As lonely as the moon above us, without a peer we see it stand; and if our housewives really love us, they'll make us pies to beat the band. This pumpkin pie came down the ages, from Plymouth Rock and Boston Pike, and should inspire the poet's rages far more than eagles and the like. It beats the bulwarks and esquipages of which our patriots declaim; indorsed by Wiley and Wood Hutchins, it basks in an eternal fame.

For work that does not gall me, but fills my heart with glee; the voices sweet that call me to dinner and to tea; for dachshunds that I adore me, for critics who score me, for friends who never bore me, I'm thankful as can be. For severity troubles from pessimists and cranks, for having sundry roubles and kopcks, for banks; for checks that some one mails me, for health that never fails me, for law that seldom jails me, I raise this card of thanks. For rattle books a-plenty, life's tedious to break, from Homer down to Henty, from Libbey up to Shakespeare, for mystic tales of wonder that split the soul asunder, for tales of blood and thunder this card of thanks I make. For that I'm here and living, these bright and sunny days, and capable of giving a buck to hard luck jays; because this good old planet's improved since Adam ran it, and we are here to man it, this card of thanks I raise.

The man whose appetite is fine, who can, when he sits up to dine, dispose of sundry chops or steaks, and finish up on pies and cakes, who goes clean through the bill of fare before he rises from his chair—that man should envy none on earth—the gods were smiling at his birth! He may be doomed to humble toil—to pushing plowshares through the soil, to backing will to hungry sows, to sawing horns from muley cows, to digging gumbo in a ditch—but he can view the idle rich, and he can look on sceptred kings, and say: "I'm better off, by jings! For what avails all wealth or pomp if one is not inspired to romp when sounds the gladsome dinner horn? I'd rather chew an ear of corn, or eat a shoulder or a ham, or fill myself with prunes and jam, and know I can digest the same than bask in wealth or roll in fame." This world with sorrow is replete for those who wince when they must eat, who have to exercise the jaw on pre-digested chop and straw; who look with horror on a roast, as though it was their father's ghost. But life is full of wholesome glee for him, whose stomach bold and free, is always ready for a chore, takes what it gets and looks for more.

I had taken ponds of poison, I had taken loads of pills, in a fierce, prolonged endeavor to alleviate my ills; from a thousand drug store flagons I had blown the costly foam, and I talked about my symptoms till the all-fired cows came home. And it used to grieve me vastly that my friends refused to stand while I talked of my diseases and my aches to beat the band. Then my uncle Jeremiah came and sat beside my cot, and he said: "I will not listen to a string of tommyrot; you have talked about your ailments, you have brooded o'er your pains, till you think them living issues, and they've soured your poor old brains. I have come around to cure you, and I will," my uncle said, and he took me by the ankles, and he hauled me out of bed. Then he made me don my raiment and he chased me out of doors, and he urged me with a pitchfork till I helped him do the chores. All the day he kept me humping and whenever I paused to tell of my handsome line of symptoms, he would simply give a yell, and look round him for a doraick; so I learned to hold my peace, and I also learned the value, as a cure, of elbow grease.

When Joseph James Kerplunk was married, the village cut-ups all broke loose, and all the junk in town they carried to his abode, and raised the dewe. They shot off guns and banged tin boilers until the bridegroom, sore distressed, appeared and begged those bughouse foilers to chase themselves and let him rest. And then to still their foolish ravings, and get some peace for self and bride, he had to blow his hard earned savings for punch and other things beside. Next day he said: "Although I should tarry for ages in this world of men, you let your life I'll never marry a female woman e'er again. A bridegroom's treated like a sinner by all these sporty village guys, whereas he should be called a winner; the center of admiring eyes. And men will shy at matrimony, old maids will haunt this dreary land, until these sports of conduct phoney are rounded up by law and reamed. Both men and maids are sad and lonely, they haven't got the nerve to wed; they'd marry twice a year if only the noisy cut-ups all were dead."

Alas, the homes that joy forsook because the housewives couldn't cook! Alas, the agonies and aches imparted by punk chops and steaks! Alas, the strained and tear-wet eyes distressed by seeing tearome pies. Our kitchens, in these modern times, are scenes of most atrocious crimes; these meats is ruined by the ton, by being charred or underdone; and bread is baked like paving bricks—we slice it up with saws and picks—and things are fried that should be stewed, and deadly kinds of hops are brewed. How often do you see a maid whose cooking leaves you un-farred? I know a million damsels fair; they prance around me everywhere, and some can paint and some can sing, and some can waltz like everything, as compliments they have to burn, but when for tempting grab I yearn, I couldn't call a girl by name who's equal to the cooking game. The day's at hand when suffering man must eat his dinner from a can. The girls embark in politics, and haven't time for skillful tricks with frying pans and kindred tools, and that's why indigestion rules.

BEGINS SERVING TIME.
Lincoln Center, Kan., Nov. 25.—The far party trial past, the town is returning to its accustomed quiet. All of the defendants in the case except Ed. Riordan, who is in jail here, are back at their homes. Riordan is serving the first day of his one-year sentence for aiding in the assault on Miss Chamberlain.

Watson Scranton, one of the men sentenced by Judge Grover yesterday, to one year in jail, will start serving his term next Tuesday. Everett Clark and Jay Fitzwater, who were given the same sentence with Scranton, have decided to appeal their cases, and are free on bonds.

The two men found guilty yesterday, Sheriff Clark and John Schmidt, may never go to jail. They were not actually present at the tarring and it is known Prosecutor McCandless will ask that they be let off with a fine.

Motions for a new trial in their cases will be argued on December 18, and no sentence will be passed until then, at least. Only three other cases are to be tried.

THE COST OF DOGS.
Omaha Trade Exhibit: Another of the causes of the high cost of living has been discovered. According to C. S. Harrison of York, Neb., who has written to the state papers about the matter, it is the cost of keeping the nation's canines. He says: "There are about six millions of dogs in the United States. Think of the train loads on train loads of provisions they consume every day! If you figure the cost of their keep—call it ten cents a day—and then multiply by six millions, it is $600,000. You say the dog lives on the waste. There should be no such waste. If there is, that is another cause of high prices. We live as well as our neighbors, but the cat could not get a decent meal from a week's waste from our table. Other animals are productive, the dog is destructive. The damage inflicted by six million dogs is enormous."

Many will agree with Mr. Harrison that the dogs are not worth their keep. At least ninety-nine out of a hundred have no excuse for existence. Who will lead a crusade to kill off the dogs and cut the cost of living?

Croup is most prevalent during the dry cold weather of the early winter months. Parents of young children should be prepared for it. All that is needed is a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Many mothers are never without it in their homes and it has never disappointed them. Sold by all dealers.

LABEL SUIT COMMENCED.
Judge Lee S. Estelle of the district court of Omaha, has begun a libel suit against the Omaha News Publishing company and Rev. Benjamin F. Fellman, pastor of Grace Baptist church of Omaha, asking for $60,086. A letter published over the preacher's signature is alleged to have been libelous.

RECENT VISITOR IS PLEASSED WITH WAYNE

Jacksonville (Ill.) Daily Journal: Mr. and Mrs. Enslay Moore have returned from a visit to Nebraska. They first went to the northeast part of the state, Wayne and Dixon counties, where they enjoyed the first cold and wet spell, about three weeks ago. Wayne city is the capital of the county of the same name, and is a delightful place; resembling Jacksonville in the high average of its citizenship. It has also a fine, large high school building, and the Northern Nebraska Normal college is an additional feature of attractiveness for intelligent people. The town is beautiful by situation, and contains an unusually large number of fine private residences, as well as a handsome courthouse and a lot of pretty churches.

Wayne county is one of the best, agriculturally, in the state. Notwithstanding the early drouth, well cultivated land bore a good corn crop, and the price of new corn starts well.

The Moores visited Mr. and Mrs. J. Woodward Jones. Mr. Jones is a son of Mr. W. W. Jones, son of Elder John T. Jones, formerly of Jacksonville; Mrs. Jones being a daughter of Mrs. Ella K. Morrison.

From Wayne the Moores went to Lincoln, and visited Mrs. Morrison and family. While at Lincoln Mr. Moore attended a banquet of the Men's Guild of the First Presbyterian church, at which the Hon. William J. Bryan was the principal speaker. Mr. Moore also attended a fine concert by Sousa's band.

The great storm of Saturday week brought unusual and decided cold to Nebraska, but it was fortunate in missing the heavy winds which did so much damage in states further east.

The republicans in Nebraska enjoyed their recent party victory, which was all the more notable because this was an off year. Mr. Moore had the pleasure of meeting Governor Aldrich at Lincoln and found him an agreeable and bright man who has filled his position with honor to himself and credit to the state.

If Nebraska is an "insurgent" state it does not appear so and it does well to be in strong support of the Grand Old Party at this time.

People of Wayne and Wayne county have not only material abundance to make them thankful, but have good reason to be grateful for superior social conditions—a generally high standard of citizenship.

Tedious delay in getting telephone connections and disconnections will be rendered inexcusable when the new system is installed in Wayne. The change will be a great relief to people who use the phone frequently.

More attention should be devoted to road improvement. Commercial clubs ought to interest themselves in better roads leading to their respective towns. They should cooperate with the county board in putting the thoroughfares in better shape.

Thanksgiving day over, we turn attention to the Christmas season. The next few weeks will see active preparation for the greatest holiday of the year, and the prosperity of this section of the country ought to make the season one of unprecedented plenty and happiness.

A man suggested that his line of work was drudgery and made him lead a "dog's life." The fact is, a man should so have his soul in his business or work that he will not regard it as an oppression.

Those who had a hand in dealing out justice to Henry Clay Beattie, jr., believing him guilty of murdering his young wife in Virginia last July, felt ease of conscience when remotest doubt was swept away by a confession made by the doomed man the day before he was taken to the electric chair.

The importance of having something worth while to do in life is impressed by the disgraceful career of young Beattie, which did not begin when he murdered his young wife last July, but which commenced in the formation of his character years before.

Churches generally are taking an active interest in the movement for international peace. Sermons are being preached showing up the folly of nations constantly preparing for war, and the enormous expense involved.

Rev. Alexander Corkey handled the question at the Presbyterian church Sunday night, and at the close asked his congregation to sign petitions to be sent to the two Nebraska senators urging them to join in the ratification of the treaty now up to the United States senate.

Rev. Corkey emphasized the fact that war is a resort to brute force, and settles nothing according to rules of justice. The nations have been rivals in building fighting ships and machines until civilization calls a halt, appreciating the horror of fighting over disputes, and regarding costly war preparations an intolerable burden.

The leading nations can agree to quit arming themselves and compel smaller and less civilized governments to follow their lead. Rev. Corkey commended President Taft in high terms for his stand in support of the peace movement, and treated the subject generally in a very clear and forceful manner.

WHO IS SANTA CLAUS? A Query Prompting One of the Pretty Legends of St. Nicholas. History says St. Nicholas, the patron saint of Christmas, was bishop of Myra, in Lycia, and that he died about 326.

Tradition fills in the meager details with a number of legends. Among his flock—so runs one—was a nobleman with three daughters. From being rich he became so poor there remained no way of obtaining food for the maidens, who, having no bread to eat, wept continually, while their father grew more and more desperate.

St. Nicholas heard of the family's plight, and taking a handful of gold, he repaired to the nobleman's house one night while the maidens slept and the father sat alone weeping. A cloud showed St. Nicholas an open window in the nobleman's home. So he threw in the gold, and it fell at the feet of the nobleman, who, when he found it, returned thanks and presented it to his eldest daughter as her wedding portion.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD. HOW TO SERVE RABBITS. THIS being the season when "Brier Rabbit" contributes his plumpness to make the bill of fare attractive, a few recipes for cooking this toothsome animal will not be unappreciated. Broiling is quite a favorite way of preparing game. Rabbits should be broiled forty minutes. For roasting about thirty minutes is necessary. Roast game is generally served with jelly and garnished with slices of lemon, watercress, parsley or potato chips. In selecting a rabbit see that the body is firm, without odor. The flesh should look reddish. Old rabbits have stiff ears with rough edges and rough worn paws. Select a young rabbit in preference to an old one. Tame rabbits are seldom palatable. Roast Rabbit. To roast a rabbit proceed as follows: Clean the animal thoroughly. Put into a dripping pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper and spread with butter. Add a small onion and carrot sliced with water enough to cover the bottom of the pan. Put this into a quick oven, basting often and adding more water if necessary. When done strain the gravy, and when the rabbit is served pour the gravy over it. Serve with cranberry sauce. Stewed rabbit is a less rich dish than roasted rabbit. For stewing skin and clean the rabbit thoroughly, cut into pieces and prepare a stewpan by putting into it a quarter of a pound of butter. Let the butter melt and then place in it the pieces of rabbit. Turn them nicely until they are browned. Take out of the pan and pour in a pint of boiling water, add a tablespoonful of flour which has previously been stirred to it paste in cold water, a little onion juice, a tablespoonful of salt, add the meat and let the rabbit stew until tender. Rabbit Pie. Rabbit pie is a dish that is a favorite in English households. The rabbit must be stewed and seasoned well. A deep baking dish is lined with puff paste or biscuit crust, and the rabbit is then placed in the dish covered with an upper crust and baked just like an ordinary chicken pie. In fact, the cooking of rabbit is very similar to that of fowls, for it is fricasseed, stewed, larded or baked like chicken. For a dressing put one cupful of sour cream into a basin. Stir in gradually half a cupful of melted butter, the juice of a lemon carefully drop by drop and the whisked whites of two eggs. Fruit salad with mayonnaise or French dressing may always be served with game. Anna Thompson.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD. THE CORAL CRANBERRY. THE ruby cranberry is in its heyday now. Containing as it does a good proportion of acid, it is one of the most wholesome fruits now available. Cranberry sauce to serve with poultry or game, cranberry pies or tarts and cranberry jelly are as good for the stomach as they are agreeable to the palate. Stewed cranberries may be served as a side dish. One way of stewing them is as follows: Wash a quart of cranberries, place them in a granite stewpan and add two cupfuls of granulated sugar and two gills of water. Cook them ten minutes after they begin to boil. Have the cover on the saucepan, but avoid stirring. The berries should be skimmed while cooking to remove the skum. They may be served as they are or strained, when taken off the fire. The cranberries can be run into individual molds or into one large mold. Serve with sprigs of mint. Cranberry Jelly. For cranberry jelly take a quart of cranberries, a half pint of water and a pound of sugar. After washing boil the cranberries for ten minutes. Mash and strain through a flannel bag. Put the juice back in the kettle or porcelain saucepan and stir in the sugar. Let it boil for about fifteen minutes. Then try it to see if it will jelly. If done, turn out to cool. To make a good cranberry pie place uncooked cranberries in a pie dish lined with pie paste. Add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, a half cupful of molasses and after putting on an upper crust let it bake in a brisk oven for about half an hour. Candied Berries. The little folks adore candied cranberries. Here is a recipe for them. Take a quart of berries and lay them in a pan that will hold them evenly on the bottom. Cover with ten cupfuls of sugar and water enough to come to about one-third the height of the berries and bake slowly until the berries are tender. They must retain their shapes. Pile very neatly upon a glass dish. They should look like candied cherries, with a small amount of thick sirup and should be a scarlet color. These are nice to serve with poultry. Anna Thompson.

THE SEASON FOR TACT. Thoughtlessness in Yuletide Gifts Often Shatters Friendships. Many a pleasant friendship has been broken by ignorance of good form in gift making. Many a social career has been nipped in the bud by a present ill chosen or wrongly sent. If you are rich and have some friend who has lost her money be careful that your gift does not reflect your knowledge of her financial straits. Remember that somehow she will manage to buy the obviously necessary thing, while her heart still bungers for the dainty, the luxurious touches of life. Again, there is the wealthy friend of your family to whom you brought letters of introduction when you came to town. She has not taken you into the bosom of her family, but occasionally at her large and general functions she has entertained you. Choose no gorgeous gift in such a case. Rather send her a beautiful flower on Christmas morning with a well worded greeting or the newest book about which her world is surely talking. MERRY CHRISTMAS, BABY. Merry Christmas, baby, with life just begun; Years of rosy footsteps, blithely may they run. Childhood, yet beyond thee proffers fun and play; Farther on the shadows lie—oh, so far away! Sunlight shimmers o'er thee from the morning skies. Heaven smiles before thee in thy mother's eyes. Laughing in her arms, baby, in that light divine. Love, the sweetest life can give, is this moment thine. —Helen Holt in Leslie's Weekly.

THEY ALL WORK FOR SANTA. Fathers, Mothers, Grandparents and Children, Who Make Toys. Though Santa Claus begins getting ready for the next Christmas the minute he unharnesses his reindeer, yet he never could make enough toys to go around if he did not have a lot of people to help him. In Germany there are several villages where everybody works at toy-making, not only the mothers, fathers and children, but even grandmothers and grandfathers. For generations these families have made toys—dolls, tin soldiers, doll furniture, little wooden wagons and wooden animals of all kinds. In many homes the children begin helping in this work when they are so small they can hardly sit at the common working table. Often a whole family will earn only 60 cents a day.

OLD CHRISTMAS SUPERSTITION. Recalling Time When a Peculiar Popular Prejudice Existed. A well known fifteenth century carol begins: Put in ivy, box and bay Put in the church on Christmas day. But the customs of those times were rigid regarding the removal of all decorations from churches and dwellings before Candlemas day, Feb. 2, for people had superstitious about their remaining longer. Herrick alludes to this popular prejudice in the lines: Down with the rosemary, and so Down with the bales and the mistletoe. Down with the holly, ivy, all. Wherewith ye dress the Christmas hall. That so the superstitious find No one least branch there left behind. For look how many leaves there be Neglected there? Make, trust to me. So many goblins you will see. Perhaps the superstition was a pretext of the particular old housewives who knew that by Candlemas day the crisped green things, dried by Yule logs and many torchlights for illumination, would be nuisances of falling leaves and berries to tread underfoot. However this may be, the belief obtained. Argument Defined. An argument is an effort of two people to keep each other from finding out the truth.—Life.

Anna Thompson. Palisades of the Hudson. The Palisades are slowly changing. To the traveler of a hundred years ago they were a sheer cliff of clean rock rising in a perpendicular line from the water's edge nearly a thousand feet. Now they are buttressed at the foot by immense deposits of broken rock which frusts have pried from the cliff. Gradually this buttress is growing higher. The upward growth of this supporting pile is due to the trees—evergreens of various kinds—which have grown seemingly right out of the rocks.—New York Sun. Not Going. "You're going to the smoker tonight, aren't you?" "Nope." "Why, the boys are expecting you. Didn't you promise them you'd be there?" "Yes, I intended to be present; but you see, we have the recall system in our family, and my wife has just exercised it."—Chicago Record-Herald. An African City. This native city has great infolding walls, twelve miles in circumference, pierced by thirteen deep gateways, with platform and guardhouses and massive doors heavily clamped with iron. Christmas Day. How will it dawn, the coming Christmas day. A northern Christmas such as painters love. And kinsfolk, shaking hands but once a year. And dames who tell old legends by the fire. Red sun, blue sky, white snow and pearly ice. Kitten, ringing air, which sets the blood on fire. And makes the old man merry with the young. Through the short sunshine, through the longer night? In what soe'er garb or gay or sad. Come fair, come foul, 'twill still be Christmas day. -Charles Kingsley.

MEMORABLE YULETIDES. Odd Coincidence of Queen Victoria's Sorrows at Christmas Time. One of the most extraordinary Christmas days London ever had was that of 1801. The shops had been, as usual, specially prepared and decorated with the object of attracting the buyers when suddenly on Dec. 22, a thick fog came on. Not until the evening of Dec. 26 did it lift. This particular fog held the record for being the heaviest London had known. Thirty lives were lost and over 200 accidents recorded.

Christmas, 1800, was the coldest England and Scotland had ever experienced. Just three years later Christmas day was marred by news that William Makepeace Thackeray, the great novelist, was dead.

The late Queen Victoria's most memorable Christmas was the most pathetic. It was in less than a fortnight from Dec. 25, 1861, that her husband, the prince consort, passed away. So affected was her majesty that she allowed fifteen years to pass before she celebrated Christmas day in the traditional fashion. Then on Christmas day in 1872 the Prince of Wales, who became King Edward VII., was so ill that his life was despaired of. But he made a remarkable recovery.

USE MOST CHRISTMAS CANDY. Several Million Dollars' Worth Sold to New Yorkers. Three million dollars' worth of Christmas candies is New York city's annual holiday bill. The amount of money spent by New Yorkers during the holidays for candy alone is so great that it seems out of proportion to the amount donated for charity until it is remembered that perhaps one-third or more of all the candy bought during the last half of December is given away by secular and religious societies, by Sunday schools and churches, and that consequently a large part of the sum belongs in the charity account.

Three of our New York manufacturers get the bulk of this class of orders, and they agree that, even taking the population of the city into account, New York's consumption of candy excels that of any other city.

CHRISTMAS IN NORWAY. Richly Cooked Rice a Popular Dish. Brownies Used to Share It. The day before Christmas the holidays really begin. It is customary to have richly cooked rice served with milk or fruit juice for dinner. In the tureen is a blanched almond, and he who gets this receives a present. The practice used to be prevalent among the peasants to set out a dish of this Christmas rice in the barn for the gnomes or brownies, whom they thought would do some good turn for them in payment.

Flowers always make a home look festive, and the custom in Norway is to send these as messengers of love at Christmas. The Masqueraders. Yes, I believe in Santa Claus, in elves and fairies, too. I've never seen them, but because of lovely things they do. Their names are Joy and Tenderness. And Good Will Here on Earth. Their mission is to ease distress with happiness and mirth. And when they dress as fairy folk, in furs and gauze apparel. They think 'tis just a pleasant joke to come in masquerade. -John Kendrick Bangs.

CHRISTMAS WOOING OF CUPID.

Mystic Love Spells With Apples in Foreign Lands. Apples enter into many Christmas spells. In Austria on Christmas eve the apple must be cut in halves in the dark and without being touched by the hand. The left hand half is then placed in the bosom of the diviner and the right hand half behind the door of the bedroom. Then at midnight, should the spell have been fully carried out, the spirit or astral of the beloved one appears, standing beside the half which was laid behind the door. Another charm is to cut an apple in two and count the seeds in each half. If the numbers are even marriage will be soon. If a seed is cut in two there will be trouble in the course of love, and should two seeds be cut there will be early widowhood. A Sicilian maiden throws the fruit from her window into the street and watches. Should it lie long without being picked up she will be widowed soon after marriage. Should it be picked up by a woman marriage will not be within the coming year, but should it be picked up by a man then she will be wedded before the next year is ended.

A THANKSGIVING SURPRISE

By JOANNA SINGLE.

THANKSGIVING day was almost upon Miss Abby Cullom, poor, but thrifty, in her cottage at the end of the town, and her only near neighbors, the Beans, Miss Abby, being a New Englander, was always prepared. The Beans, being southern "Crackers," were eternally unprepared in their shiftless little hut. Miss Abby had a good vegetable garden and a big chicken yard.

This is where the turkey comes in—an immense gobble, the monarch of the place and the pride of Miss Abby, who had doomed him to Thanksgiving dinner. He grew fatter, and fatter, and the assorted collection of Bean children watched him hopelessly while they sat astride the division fence. Hunger shone from their eyes.

"They'll be stealin' him next thing," Miss Abby muttered as she threw out the dishwater and wrung the dishrag fiercely.

"Maw," bawled one of the twins to his gaunt, bedraggled mother in the door, "ain't we goin' to have no turkey? We ain't never had no turkey like other folks."

"Yore paw's had mighty pore luck, honey. He can't make out to buy turkey, honey."

"Why can't he, maw?" wailed the oldest girl.

"Yore paw's had bad luck," the dull mother voice reiterated. "He'll git us somepin' extra, but I don't reckon it'll be turkey. Turkey meat's awful dear, honey."

Miss Abby slammed into her house with a righteous rattle of still blue calico and an indignant display of flat ankles. She snorted wrathfully.

"Luck! It be'd had any luck he'd never have been born. But he's luckier than his wife and children. He's the fatest image of a man that ever wore pants—too lazy to come when he's called to meals. I'd see that he never was called if I was her."

Miss Abby went to make her bed, and from the open window next the Bean house she could hardly help hearing the rest of the conversation.

"Maw, he's awful big! Will she eat him all herself? Will it make her sick, maw?"

"Why, maybe she'll have company, honey."

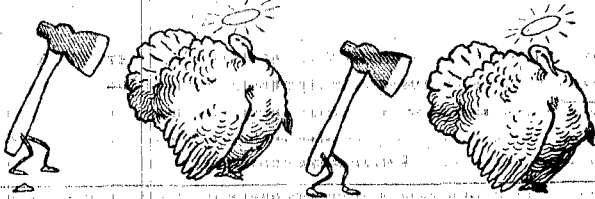

"Can't we be company, maw? Why ain't we never company?"

"We ain't got any relations up along here, honey."

"Would Miss Abby let us be company if she knowed we ain't goin' to have no Thanksgiving?" Miss Abby shut the window with a bang.

"Tain't as if he couldn't work," she muttered. "He won't work. His gar' den's all dried up for lack of a little water, and there he set all summer on that bench! Nothin' short of a fire built under him would start him to gobb. I should think he'd want to see them young ones with clean faces and full stummicks at least once in the year!"

THE AXES: "No; here's where the ax gets you!"

The days flew, and the turkey grew still fatter and more complacent. The Bean children looked more and more wretched. They sat often on the fence in the chilly November air, their half clothed bodies shivering, their bare feet blue with cold. But with the eternal faith of childhood they watched the turkey in the hope that something would yet give them a taste of him.

Miss Abby's old maid heart grew soft sometimes, but hardened at thought of the lazy father and slovenly mother.

Miss Abby had had bad luck about Thanksgiving company. Everybody was elsewhere engaged—the minister and his family, the Browns and the Freshams. She had no relatives near. Have some one she must, for she had refused Matilda Jenkins' invitation on the plea of having company herself.

The day before Thanksgiving she had found no one and was worried. In the cold-gray morning she came out to feed the chickens from a yellow crock held in the angle of her arm. When she had tossed the cornmeal to the hungry brood she closed the chicken yard gate, set down the crock and stood watching the turkey—and the house next door. She folded her thin arms across her blue calico chest for warmth and in what she saw forgot how cold it was.

Four of the eight Beans had the whooping cough, and their thin, saw-low little faces, cleaner than usual, were gattered against the grimy panes overlooking the chicken yard. She could hear the wail of the baby and the coughs of the older ones.

"I just can't do it," she muttered and at last returned to the house, ill at ease and chilled to the bone.

She piled wood into the stove till the kitchen was stifling, but she could not get warm. Her teeth chattered in a chill, and in spite of hot lemonade and Jamaica ginger Miss Abby had to go to bed in the middle of the afternoon with hot blisters at her feet and a mustard plaster on her chest.

She fell into a doze, broken by visions of the hungry little faces next door. She wished she had at least taken them over some vegetables. "I will—long about night," she muttered and fell into a strange, wretched sleep.

When she awoke it was night and very cold. Pains stabbed her chest sharply, and her head throbbed dizzily. Then she seemed delirious and heard the babbling of hungry children. Then she went completely out of her head.

She came at last to herself, weak and feeble. The bedroom was very cold, but the fever was gone and the stabling palus. She wrapped herself up and managed to light the kitchen fire, creeping back to bed till things warmed up. The door of the Bean house slammed, and she heard a child cough.

When the warmth from the kitchen filled her room she rose and went out to get some breakfast. She had never felt so weak in her life. She put on the coffee-pot.

Miss Abby sat eating her toast with her feet in the oven. Mrs. Bean knocked and entered.

"Land sakes! Air you sick?"

"Sick! I ain't feelin' very spry," said Miss Abby sharply. "I went to bed restiddy afternoon, I felt so sick!"

"We ain't seen you out this mornin', an' as it's Thursday an' Thanksgiving, 's'posed you had bad news that called you away in the night. The children's been feedin' the hens an' the turkey—the ones that ain't whoopin'."

"What you talkin' about?" snapped Miss Abby. "This is Thanksgiving, ain't it? I'm too sick to recollect it."

"I come to see if I could do somepin' for you all. You look mighty peaked," said Mrs. Bean. Miss Abby shook her head, and the woman was almost to the door when Miss Abby recalled her. "Is your man at home?" she began abruptly, while Mrs. Bean stared. "Well, then, would he as lief kill that big turkey for me?"

"Why, sure, he would—You all air weak, an' that turkey looks mighty hefty."

"And can you come over and help me cook him?" Miss Abby went on. "I shall need help with the fest of the dinner, too. If I don't feel any spry'er I do now. You can bring the baby and leave the others with him till dinner's ready. Then I want you should fetch them all over and let them eat all the turkey they can hold. I don't feel's if I could get away with more than ten pounds myself," she concluded grimly. The woman stood still staring, too astonished to express her gratitude even had she known how.

"Well," commanded Miss Abby, "if we don't git on the move dinner won't be ready before midnight!"

"Yes'm," agreed the woman, letting herself out of the door. She sped across the yard more quickly than Miss Abby had ever yet seen her move.

"It'll take me a week to clean up after them, and it's encouragin' that shiftless man," grumbled Miss Abby. Then she heard from the Bean house a yell of joy that utterly demolished her New England conscience for the time being and sent a warm glow to the uttermost depths of her human heart. And she set to work on a dinner that was a record breaker in the Bean experiences.

No Suffragettes in Plymouth. Governor Bradford of Massachusetts specified that, "besides water-fowl, there was a great store of wild turkeys" for their first Thanksgiving feast, 1621, by which it is plain that our ancestors inaugurated the custom of the turkey on Thanksgiving day.

But chefs were not numerous in Plymouth. The first feast, at which there were fifty five white men and ninety Indians, was prepared by "four women, one servant and a few maidens." Poor women! How they must have sighed for their day of emancipation!

Hymn of Thanksgiving.

We thank thee, O Father, for all that is bright—
The gleam of the day and the stars of the night,
The flowers of our youth and the fruits of our prime
And blessings e'er marching the pathway of time.

We thank thee, O Father, for all that is dear—
The soft of the tempest, the flow of the tear—
For never in blindness and never in vain
Thy mercy permitted a sorrow or pain.

We thank thee, O Father, for song and for feast,
The powers that glowed and the wealth that increased,
For never a blessing encompassed thy child
But thou in thy mercy looked downward and smiled.

We thank thee, O Father of all, for the power
Of aiding each other in life's darkest hour,
The generous heart and the bountiful hand
And all the soul help that sad souls understand.

We thank thee, O Father, for days yet to be,
For hopes that our future will call us to thee,
That all our eternity may form through thy love
One Thanksgiving day in the mansions above.

—Will Carleton.

When the Hen is Safe.

"This," remarked Mrs. Hen, "as she flew up on to Mr. Turkey's back, 'is my happy day. It's Thanksgiving, you know. What have I to give thanks for? Oh, several things, thank you. On almost any other day in the year I am liable to get the ax, and when I do get it I won't worry whether my head's on straight. But my worry comes from not knowing just when the ax may fall. There are 365 days in the year. Thanksgiving is the only day when I am immune. My large and lovely rival, Mr. Turkey, who scorns me in the barnyard, is underneath my feet today, as you can see with the naked eyes. Ta-ta, Mr. Turkey; I see the farmer coming with his ax."

HENRY STEHR FOUND GUILTY AT MADISON

Madison, Neb., Nov. 25.--Henry Stehr was this afternoon found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death of his 3-year old son, Kurt Stehr, whose death followed the freezing of his feet in the blizzard of January 1, last.

The jury was out three and one-half hours. Counsel for the defense immediately made a motion for a new trial. Sentence will not be pronounced until after this motion has been argued and passed on by the court. The argument on this motion will be heard today.

The penalty for manslaughter is imprisonment in the state penitentiary not less than one year nor more than ten years.

Story of the Case.

Little Kurt Stehr, 3-year old son of Mrs. Henry Stehr, was found several days after the blizzard of New Year's day, this year, to be suffering from gangrenous feet. The feet were amputated, one of them falling off during the operation, the gangrene having rotted the bone. It developed that the child had been frozen in the blizzard. Neighbors said the little fellow had been shut in an outbuilding during that awful storm.

Witnesses told of Stehr's having whipped the child cruelly. Mrs. Klentz and Miss Klentz, the nurses to whose home the lad was taken for the operation, told of finding welts on his stomach, a gash on his eye and a cut on his thigh. Stehr admitted having whipped the child with a strap to correct him of a disease.

The death of the little fellow was pathetic and tragic. He had called for his mother but she had failed to come to his bedside on the day of his death, despite the fact that the word had been sent to her.

Three days after the child's feet were taken off he died in the arms of his aunt, Mrs. Bankrath, in the Klentz home.

The jury apparently decided that Stehr was willfully negligent and deficient of his duty toward the child, and therefore brought in a manslaughter verdict in accordance with Judge Welch's instructions.

A GREAT POLITICIAN.

Lincoln Journal: Theodore Roosevelt is an inspired politician. The country has never had his equal. This is the starting point of most of the prophets who insist on looking for a presidential boom to take wing from Oyster Bay.

To such as these, Colonel Roosevelt's declaration on the subject will make no difference. What he says is only a part of the deep game of politics a master politician is of course playing. Does he say he refuses to run for president? Not a bit of it. He only says he has told his friends they must not run him. Who ever got the presidency by seeming to want it? In refusing to ask for it Roosevelt is doing the very thing to get it. Observe how he slips in an assertion calculated to give the impression that he is overwhelmed with demands that he run--that he is the band wagon, in short.

No matter that the same prophets were seeing the same things four years ago when Roosevelt didn't run. When people have spectres on the brain a little thing like past misses doesn't disturb them.

But there is one consideration that might move the bankers on Mr. Roosevelt's political genius to a different conclusion. Isn't it possible that inspired political sense is just the thing to keep the colonel out of the presidential campaign this time. We are shooting political rapids just now in this country. There is no telling which man or which party is going to hit the rocks and be wrecked. Wouldn't it be the part of inspired politics to stay in dock till the waters are calmer--especially for a man who risks as valuable a ship and cargo as Colonel Roosevelt's accumulated political honors and prestige?

Lame back comes on suddenly and is extremely painful. It is caused by rheumatism of the muscles. Quick relief is afforded by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Sold by all dealers.

NEBRASKAN TALKS OF ADMINISTRATION

Lincoln Special to Monday's Omaha Bee.

Lincoln, Neb., November 26.--According to W. T. Thompson, former attorney general of the state of Nebraska and at present solicitor of the United States Treasury department, the Taft administration needs but the honest consideration of the thinking people of this country to secure their approval. The acts of this administration in the enforcement of the laws against the big interests have been unparalleled in the history of the country, Mr. Thompson declares.

"The position occupied by President Taft in the minds of the public of the different sections of the country is unique," Mr. Thompson said today. "In the east, among those composing the so-called big interests, and especially among those connected with the trusts, which have feared the power of the administration in the vigorous enforcement of the anti-trust laws, the president is regarded as distinctively, and in fact altogether too progressive; while in the west, among the insurgents, he seems to be regarded as a standpatter. He is, in fact, both; but in the best sense in which those terms are to be understood. He is a 'standpatter' in that he stands pat on the proposition that the law must be enforced and obeyed by the great as well as the small, the rich as well as the poor; and he is a progressive in that he believes in all rational, practical, and necessary prohibitive and remedial legislation, and also in the vigorous and fearless enforcement of existing laws.

Enforcing Anti-Trust Laws.

Never in the history of this country has an administration in the same length of time undertaken so much in the line of federal law enforcement as has the Taft administration in its first three years. Never before has so much been begun and consummated under prosecutions for the enforcement of the anti-trust laws, as during the Taft administration. Not only has there been a most determined effort made to dissolve trusts, but their promoters have been indicted and prosecuted criminally.

I mention a few of the suits begun and terminated in the Taft administration:

United States Steel corporation, suit begun.

Sugar trust, indicted July 1, 1909; pending.

Paper trust, defendants pleaded guilty and fined $57,600.

Window glass trust, defendants pleaded nolo-contendere and fined $10,000.

Beef trust, criminal case pending.

Southern Wholesale Grocers' association, dissolved.

Great Lakes Towing trust, pending.

Chicago Butter and Egg Board, pending.

Cotton corner, James A. Patten and others indicted 1910; case before the supreme court.

Bathtub trust dissolution decree, under consideration.

New England hide and rendering trust, demurrers sustained.

Electric lamp trust, dissolved.

Trans-Atlantic steamship pool, pending.

Eastern Retail Lumber Dealers' association, pending.

New England Milk trust, pending.

Retail lumber trust, pending.

Shoe machinery trust, pending.

Standard Oil company, dissolved by supreme court, May 15, 1911.

Tobacco trust, dissolved by supreme court, May 29, 1911.

Wire trust, subsidiary of steel corporation; a number of defendants entered a plea of nolo-contendere and were fined $1,000 each.

Federal income tax known as the corporation tax, advocated and successfully defended by the Taft administration and approved by the supreme court of the United States on March 13, 1911.

People Need Information.

"If our newspapers would advise the people fairly and honestly as to the accomplishments of the Taft administration I believe the president would secure the unanimous support of the delegates from the western states to the republican national convention.

"It is a matter of pride to the Nebraskans in Washington to know the advanced and progressive standing which Senator Norris Brown has attained in the United States senate and with the administration. He has the entire confidence of his colleagues in the senate and of the president and his cabinet.

"It is also gratifying to know that there is a lively interest being manifested on the part of a goodly number of the republicans of the state in the interest of the renomination and reelection of President Taft."

Criminal Court Methods There Utterly Different From Ours.

Criminal court trials in Italy are conducted under a very simple system, though utterly different from the system which governs procedure in American or English courts, says an exchange.

The trial takes place before three judges and a jury, to which are added a certain number of extra jurors, who are sworn and are present in court to hear the testimony and are held ready to take the place in the jury box of any juror who may in the course of the trial be incapacitated from further service. The depositions of all the witnesses have been taken in writing and signed before the trial begins.

Each of the judges has a copy of these before him. The prosecutor and the counsel for the accused furnish to the court a list of the witnesses they desire called, and these are all summoned by the court, which has power to punish nonattendance.

The first thing that happens when the trial begins is the questioning of the accused by the presiding justice. In Italy, as in most of continental Europe, a man accused of a crime is considered by the law to be the very best witness to his own guilt or innocence. In England and America the accused need not testify unless he chooses. In Italy he is the first and most important witness.

The accused is allowed the widest scope in defending himself. He has a right to tell his own story in his own way, to offer anything he can in the way of justification or palliation. Even hearsay evidence is admissible. The judge has absolute discretion as to what testimony may be received and what excluded, and any judge who exercised this discretion unfairly would be an object of execration. Bias on the part of one judge is possible, but there are always the other two judges on the bench with him, and they are a perfect check against unfairness.

When the accused has given his testimony he is confronted personally with his accuser. The accuser is necessarily the principal witness against him. Strictly speaking, the prisoner has no right to interrupt his accuser while the latter is telling his story, but in practice the judges permit it, and the confrontation sometimes becomes a three cornered debate between accuser, accused and judge, the latter giving the accused the widest leeway to demonstrate his innocence.—Case and Comment.

How Watches Vary. Theoretically, says a jeweler, the best watches of today are perfect, but actually they both gain and lose time every day. Even if the good watch does not vary one second at the end of the twenty-four hours, the expert insists, it has both gained and lost in that time. If it is wound in the morning it runs fast and toward the next morning runs slow, thus equalizing the time. He says the best watches should be wound twice a day and then at only two-thirds of the capacity of the mainspring; thus preventing either binding or extremes of strong or weakened spring. The balance wheel was expected to equalize differences of mainspring tension, but really this is not the case to what is called perfection.—New York Press.

Boston's Winter and Summer. Nearly all visitors to Boston, if they do not see it, are told of the place where one may "step from Winter into Summer or from Summer into Winter at any time of the year without giving a thought to his clothing." This may be done at the point where Washington street intersects the street which is "Winter" on one side and "Summer" on the other. A guide was endeavoring on this bit-of-humor to a visitor from New York a few days ago, but was not rewarded by the smile which the Winter and Summer joke usually calls forth. "That's nothing," said the New Yorker, "but what is really funny here is to see the entrance to the underground railway marked 'The Elevator.'"—New York Tribune.

The Church Cough. Of all coughs the church cough is the most difficult to check, and it is almost as contagious as yawning. The late Mr. Haws practically cured his Marylebone congregation of coughing during the service. He used to announce an interval for coughing with a polite request to those who found this insufficient to go outside. There is a somewhat similar practice in the Russian army—the nose blowing drill—which is performed by the whole regiment at a signal from the colonel. And no soldier dares sneeze at any other time.—London Spectator.

The Old Order Passteth. What has become of the old fashioned man who was about to solve the problem of perpetual motion? And where is the old fashioned woman who wore gloves that reached only halfway to the end of her fingers? Can anybody furnish information concerning the whereabouts of the old fashioned boy who wore mittens which were fastened to a long string?—Chicago Record-Herald.

Considerate. "Why do you argue with your wife?" asked the bachelor. "Don't you know the futility of it?" "Of course," replied the married man, "but I have to allow her a little pleasure once in a while."—Puck.
